Iran-Contra affair keeps unfolding

Scandal's key players met after disclosure

By Sara Fritz and Karen Tumulty
Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — On Nov. 25, 1986, just hours after the White House disclosed that money had been diverted to the Nicaraguan rebels from the Iran arms sales, the scandal's key players huddled with an attorney in a Washington hotel room — their second session in as many days.

The discussion that afternoon was interrupted twice by separate telephone calls from President Ronald Reagan and Vice President George Bush to Lt. Col. Oliver L. North, who had been fired from the White House's National Security Council staff earlier in the day.

Those meetings, which all of the participants now refuse to discuss, lie at the heart of what Congressional investigators strongly suspect was an orchestrated cover-up involving North and the two Iran-Contra middlemen, retired Air Force Maj. Gen. Richard Secord and Albert Hakim, along with their lawyer, prominent Washington attorney Thomas

Oliver North
C. Green.

WHILE THESE FIGURES in the Iran-Contra scandal insist that they did nothing in violation of the law, the Senate and House committees have uncovered evidence that North and his associates went to considerable lengths to hide the details of their activities once it became clear to them that the whole operation was about to be exposed to public view and investigated by the Justice Department.

And the possibility of such a cover-up is one of the central points now being pursued by the congressional committees as they prepare to resume public hearings later this month.

Both North and Secord — as well as North's secretary, Fawn Hall — are known to have shredded classified materials relating to the project in the days immediately preceding Nov. 25, and North instructed Hall to alter certain key documents showing that the White House had been involved in providing military assistance to the Nicaraguan resistance, despite a law prohibiting government aid.

HALL HAS ALSO admitted that while in the company of North and Green, she smuggled potentially incriminating secret documents out of the White House inside her clothing to keep them from falling into the hands of FBI agents who had been sent to seal off North's office.

Members of the special House and Senate committees were stunned last week when Hall sought to justify her actions by saying that there are "times when you have to go above the written law." Even though she quickly retracted her statement, Sen. George J. Mitchell, D-Maine, later noted that others involved in the affair have used a similar justification.

"It is clear that there is an effort under way to create the impression that patriotism, See Cover-up, Page 7

Memo approval could lead to impeachment

By Doyle McManus
Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — Congress will probably consider impeaching President Ronald Reagan if it discovers that Reagan knew about the diversion of profits from his secret arms sales to Iran, the chairman of the House committee on the Iran-Contra scandal said Sunday.

If former national security adviser John Poindexter testifies next month that Reagan knew of the diversion, "It is likely... (that) you would have a demand for impeachment proceedings," Rep. Lee Hamilton, D-Ind., the committee chairman, said on ABC-TV's "This Week with David Brinkley."

Reagan has repeatedly denied knowing of the diversion of funds, which funneled about $3.5 million to the Contras and more than $7 million to the Swiss bank accounts of a partnership set up by retired Maj. Gen. Richard Secord.

Hamilton said that he does not know of any evidence that clearly shows that Reagan approved the diversion, and added that he does not know how Poindexter — currently being questioned in secret by congressional investigators — will testify.

BUT HE MADE it clear that despite Reagan's denials, Congress' Iran-Contra committees still consider it possible that the president did approve the diversion.

Hamilton noted that an April 1986 memorandum for Reagan drafted by then-White House aide Oliver North clearly outlined the diversion of money to the Contras.

"I don't know whether that memorandum got to (Reagan) or not," he said. "If that memo had reached the hands of the president and he had approved it, that would be a very serious matter."

"Now, did he break a specific law by doing that? I'm not sure that I can judge that," Hamilton said.

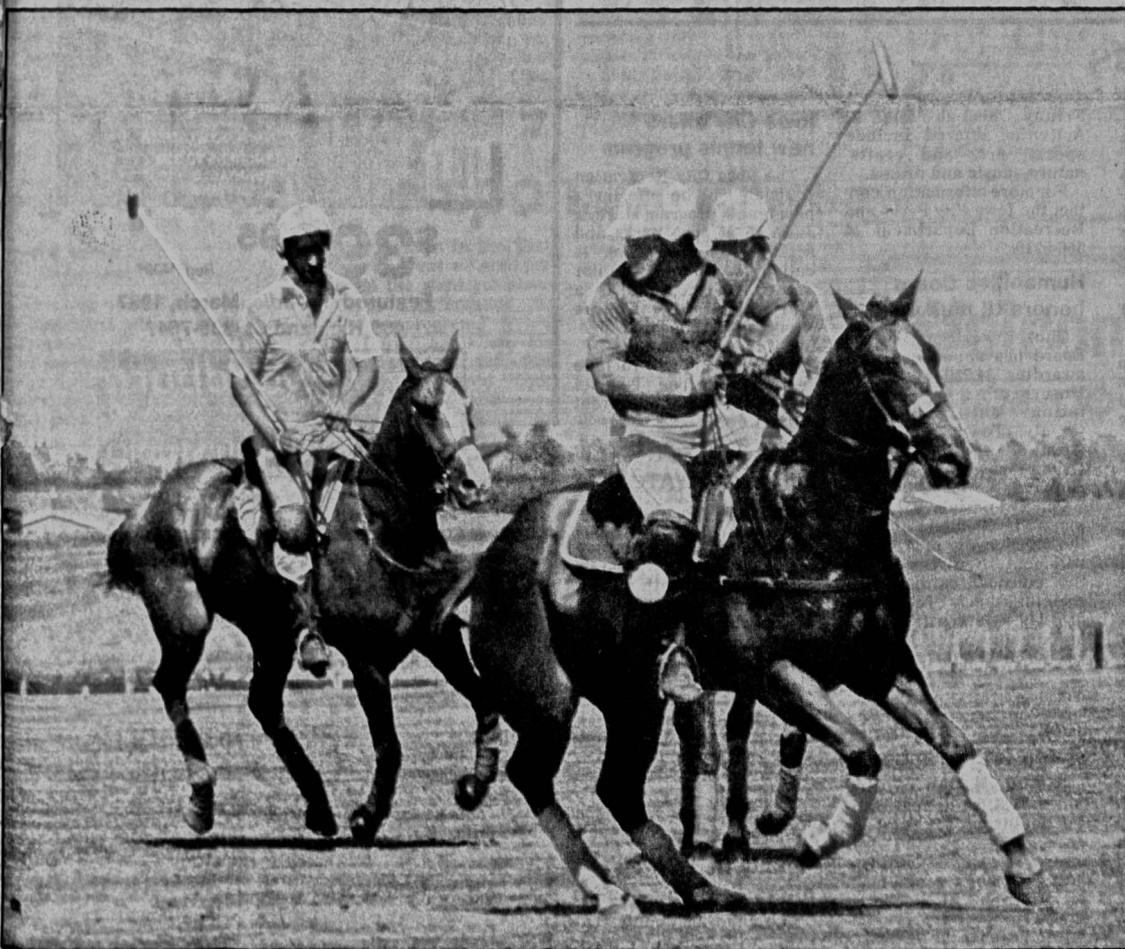

But in political terms, he added, "It is likely if that occurred — and let us emphasize the 'if' — that if it occurred, you would have a demand for impeachment proceedings."

HAMILTON SAID that members of his committee's staff, which has been questioning Poindexter, have not alerted him to any bombshells in the former Reagan aide's retelling of events.

"I know nothing about Adm. Poindexter's testimony," he said.

The April 1986 memorandum was given to Department of Justice investigators by National Security Council officials last Nov. 22, the day after North and his secretary, Fawn Hall, destroyed hundreds of documents relating to North's secret operations.

The memo was a detailed proposal to sell $3.7 million in U.S. anti-aircraft missile parts to Iran for $17 million. Of the profits, the memo said, "$12 million will be used to purchase critically needed supplies See Impeach, Page 7

Plan for Gulf called unwise by Kissinger

By Don Irwin
Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — Former Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, Sunday both questioned the wisdom of the Reagan administration's plan to reflag Kuwaiti tankers to bring them under U.S. Navy protection in the Persian Gulf.

"I think it's a bad idea to get ourselves militarily involved," Kissinger said during an interview on NBC's televised "Meet the Press." He emphasized, however, that he lacked full information on the proposal and said that he would reserve final judgment until he is filled in on a report on Persian Gulf security that President Ronald Reagan is expected to submit to Congress Tuesday.

Nunn, asked on the same program for comment on the reflagging proposal, said he was "very skeptical" of the plan to register 11 Kuwaiti tankers under the American flag to qualify them for escort by U.S. Navy vessels through the Persian Gulf war zone, where they risk attack by both Iraqi and Iranian forces.

THE PLAN LACKS consensus support, Nunn said, suggesting that "the administration would be best advised to delay it." The end of June has been the tentative target date for initiating the plan, which was under development May 17, when an apparently inadvertent missile attack on the Navy frigate Stark by an Iraqi warplane left 37 sailors dead. The Stark was then on escort duty in the gulf.

While the nominal reason for reflagging the Kuwaiti vessels is to protect the flow of gulf oil, Nunn said, most oil leaves the gulf in Iranian ships, which remain subject to Iraqi attack. Noting that the plan would offer no protection for ships of other allied nations, he said it shows "a strong tilt toward Iraq."

The plan has also come under criticism from Nunn's House counterpart, Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, who told a news conference Saturday that the reflagging scheme was "a policy in trouble" because it did not involve U.S. allies who should be "escorting some of the tankers." But Aspin, like Nunn, declined to say whether Congress would support the plan. See Gulf, Page 7

The heat was on in Iowa City this weekend.

And as record-high temperatures continued to burn across the Midwest Sunday, Iowa City residents flooded to the Coralville Reservoir, local pools and anywhere that was air-conditioned to escape the searing heat.

But relief is in sight, according to the National Weather Service, which predicts cooler temperatures for the rest of the week.

"The weather pattern over us has taken on a summer configuration. That's why we're getting July-type weather in the middle of June," Scott Truett, forecaster for the National Weather Service said. "The heat wave we had over the weekend was caused by a high pressure system in the upper atmosphere, but conditions should become slightly more tolerable through the rest of the week."

TEMPERATURES reached record highs Saturday and Sunday in the Iowa City area, which caused many Iowa City residents to seek refuge from the heat.

Iowa City Park Swimming Pool manager Sharon Kline said the pool was full Saturday and Sunday. "It was literally packed," she said. "Most of them were in the water trying to escape the heat."

On Sunday at the annual Thieves' Market, a sale of handcrafted works which took place near the Union, people flocked to the shade of nearby trees, while others brought along sun umbrellas to escape the heat. Some exhibitors attributed slow sales to the sweltering conditions.

Temperatures for the next few days should be at least 10 degrees cooler than they were during the weekend and there will be a chance of rain tomorrow, according to weather reports.

TODAY'S HIGH should be in the low 90s with the relative humidity ranging from 30 percent to 40 percent. The slight bit of relief will be supplied by a weak cold front coming from Minnesota and South Dakota, according to the National Weather Service.

National Weather Service bureaus across the region are beginning to issue safety tips to protect people from the rising summer heat.

The tips included slowing down work activity, dressing appropriately and drinking plenty of water.

UI student wins Miss Iowa

DAVENPORT—Miss Scott County Robin Wolfram was crowned the new Miss Iowa during the weekend and will represent the state in the Miss America pageant next September.

Wolfram, 24, of Davenport, sang a vocal solo and parlayed wins in preliminary swimsuit and talent competitions earlier in the pageant to finish first.

Wolfram, a UI student and Ventura native, will compete in Atlantic City the third week in September in the national pageant.

First runner-up was Miss Southwest Iowa Patricia Brown, 20, of Council Bluffs, a Creighton University student. Second runner-up was Miss Muscatine Lisa Somodi, 19, of Muscatine, a UI student who played piano.

Iowa displays war memorial

SIOUX CITY, Iowa — A Vietnam veteran who developed a half-scale mobile replica of the Vietnam Veterans Memorial to benefit veterans unable to travel to Washington to see the real thing brought his monument to Iowa during the weekend.

The memorial, which includes the names of Vietnam war dead, was being displayed in Sioux City's Central Park until Wednesday.

John Devitt of San Jose, Calif., said when he visited the monument in the nation's capital, he was so emotionally moved that he felt he had to take a replica to all veterans around the country.

Employee drug tests begin

PALO, Iowa — Iowa Electric Light and Power Co. said it will begin drug testing employees at the state's only nuclear power plant later this summer.

Company officials said there will be no random testing, but tests will be part of the pre-employment screening process for workers at the Duane Arnold Energy Center.

Iowa Electric spokeswoman Nancy Dougherty said the decision was first considered several months ago when a government panel heard complaints from the Nuclear Regulatory Commission about workers at nuclear plants being intoxicated on the job.

Pamida bans sale of butane

OMAHA — Pamida Discount Centers will no longer sell butane fuel at its 167 retail stores in the Midwest, following the death of an Omaha teen who intentionally inhaled the substance last month.

Pamida Vice President Byron Wolf, citing the May 17 death of Nathaniel Joiner Jr., said there is sufficient evidence inhaling butane fuel alters the chemistry of the lungs and causes other health problems.

Walgreen Drug Stores in Nebraska put their butane behind the counter following Joiner's death, and Baker's supermarkets in Nebraska stopped selling the lighter fuel.

Iowa man faces death

ROCK ISLAND, Ill. — A circuit court judge will decide this week whether an Illinois woman and an Iowa man should be sentenced to death in the Nov. 23 beating death of her estranged husband at a rural Viola, Ill., farmhouse.

Judge Wilbur Johnson has slated closing statements in Rock Island County Circuit Court at 9 a.m. Monday in the sentencing hearings for Janet Jackson, 33, of Rock Island, and Tony Royark, 27, of Davenport.

Janet Jackson was convicted May 28 of murder and related charges by a jury in her husband's death, and Royark pleaded guilty to murder and other charges last month on the day his trial was to begin in Rock Island County.

Councilors set to consider options for city tax issues

By Joseph Levy
The Daily Iowan

The price of renting an apartment in Iowa City could increase in the near future if the Iowa City Council decides tonight to raise city property taxes to keep city services at their present levels.

Iowa City Mayor William Ambrisco said Sunday he hopes the council will reach a decision tonight whether to raise the city property tax or implement a city sales tax to collect an additional $900,000 deemed necessary by City Manager Stephen Atkins to maintain city services into the future.

"I hope we can make a decision," Ambrisco said. "We as a council have not debated the issue."

A citizens' committee, formed by the council, has recommended the city use one of the two taxation methods rather than slash city services in order to balance the budget.

Fourteen of the 15 committee members said they were in favor of raising revenue rather than slashing services, 10 of whom favored increasing property taxes an additional 4 to 5 percent.

AMBRISCO SAID increasing property taxes would most likely result in upped rent for UI students living in apartments, but added UI students utilize community services as much as Iowa City residents.

"That's one of the reasons (the public library) has had such a crunch. It's a lot easier (for UI students living in downtown apartments) to use the city library," he said.

But Ambrisco added raising property taxes may not be the best way to go about raising additional revenue since the city just raised the tax 5.3 percent to subsidize Mercer Park Pool.

"It's a very, very difficult decision to make," he said.

The report to the council by 10 members of the Citizens' Committee on City Revenue specifically earmarked the increased burden on rental housing facilities — and thus UI students in apartments — as being fair.

The alternative tax would be an additional 1 percent sales tax on merchandise added to the state's 4 percent sales tax. The 1 percent addition would be levied locally and monies raised would be used locally.

Craig Willis, chair of the citizens' committee, said a sales tax increase would net enough revenue to maintain city services and provide about $1 million in property tax relief for Iowa City residents.

Ambrisco to run for re-election

By Scott Hauser
The Daily Iowan

Iowa City Mayor William Ambrisco announced his candidacy for re-election as an at-large candidate to the Iowa City Council Friday, saying city government service is the highest devotion he can show his hometown.

"My 3 1/2 years' experience, the pleasure I have working with my co-councilors and the professional staff and the volume of projects started and not yet completed compel me to want to stay the course," Ambrisco said. "For these reasons and others I respectfully ask the voters of Iowa City to consider my candidacy for a second term."

Ambrisco, 57, has been a council member since 1983 and mayor since 1986. His term expires at the end of the year.

Also last week Council Member Larry Baker, who represents District C, announced he would not seek re-election to the council.

William Ambrisco

HE SAID THE time commitment required with serving on the council are interfering with his family life, work on his second novel and the possibility of getting a job outside Iowa City.

A council member since 1983, Baker was the only council member to favor the divestment of city funds from businesses with holdings in South Africa and the only one who opposed cutting funds for the Iowa City transit system.

Council Member Ernest Zuber, who represents District A, has also said he will not seek re-election. Council Member George Strait said he will seek re-election to his at-large seat, the only other seat open in the Nov. 3 election.

Ambrisco said he would welcome the opportunity to serve another term as mayor if his co-councilors decided to select him. The city council selects one of its members to serve as mayor when they meet in January.

AMBRISCO SAID one of the highest priorities of the council's next session would be to establish and maintain a fund balance of $750,000 to $1 million in the city's budget to ensure the city is prepared for fiscal emergencies.

"It's just good, sound money management," he said, adding the fiscal year 1988 budget is balanced.

The council will hear a report from the 15-person Citizens' Committee on City Revenues which discusses the options for generating the extra revenue. The committee is split between favoring a property tax increase and establishing a local sales tax.

The mayor refused to comment on which solution he favored, saying the issue should be put to a referendum vote and not decided by the council.

Iowa City teachers applaud new $92.5 million pay plan

By Craig Sterrett
The Daily Iowan

Iowa City teachers said Sunday they are pleased with the new $92.5 million teacher pay plan signed into law by Gov. Terry Branstad last week.

"The plan sends a message to the teachers here and everywhere in the state that the legislators and the public appreciate teachers as one of our best resources," Iowa City Education Association President Sue Mandernach said.

The plan, scheduled to go into effect Sept. 1, will boost minimum teacher's salaries in Iowa to $18,000, and will raise the average teaching salary from $22,603 in 1986-87 to about $25,000 for the 1987-88 school year.

Several teachers said they felt the legislation would help make teaching in Iowa a more rewarding career.

"It will encourage me to feel that other people regard teaching as a profession," Iowa City West High School teacher Anna Mary Mueller said. She added the legislation was a vote of confidence in the state's teachers and would boost morale.

THE PLAN IS divided into three phases. Phase I will increase the minimum salaries of all teachers in Iowa to $18,000. Because there are few new and entering teachers in the Iowa City school district, the increases in the starting teacher salaries will not affect many Iowa City teachers, Iowa City School Board member Kathy Penningroth said.

In Phase II of the plan, experienced teachers will receive an average pay raise of about $1,100. The money for the pay raises will be given to school districts on the basis of $83 per student.

Penningroth said she is concerned how the money from the second phase of the plan will affect negotiations with the teachers union.

"The problem with the phase two funds could be how it fits into the salary schedule," Penningroth said.

Phase III of the plan will allow funds to be distributed to the districts on a $99 per student basis and would provide a way for schools to pay their teachers for performing extra duties outside of class or to reward them based on exceptional performance. The Iowa City School District Phase III committee is currently meeting to determine how this money will be distributed among teachers.

On June 23, the committee will submit a proposal recommending how to distribute the phase 3 funds to the Iowa City School Board. The board of directors must decide what to do with the money by Jan. 1, 1988.

Army Corps to sponsor tours

By D.R. Miller
The Daily Iowan

This summer the Army Corps of Engineers will be trying to increase public awareness and participation at the Coralville Lake through walking tours and programs, Brenda Bell, park ranger, said Sunday.

"This is the first year for visitor center tours and tours of the flood control system," Bell said. "We will have other programs throughout the summer such as water safety programs, puppet shows, animal shows or how to build water resource items out of common items."

Bell said there have been similar programs in the past, adding, "this year we are looking to get the word out about the Corps and broaden the scope of our program."

"The Corps' areas are the second most widely used areas in America," Bell said. "Only the National Forest Service areas have more users and the National Parks are third."

"People just don't hear much about us," she added.

SUNDAY'S TOUR covered the history of the Coralville project, begun after the flood of 1937 and the passage of the Flood Control Act of 1938, and a tour of the flood control system.

The tours will be repeated again during the summer on the Sunday Walking Tours which leave from the park visitor's center. There will also be nature trail walks leaving from Tailwater Trail, Bell said.

"There are programs planned for the Sugar Bottom Campground, West Overlook Beach area, the Regal Raptor featuring birds of prey," she said.

The Great River Relay will be held July 10. The program will include information about the Iowa River and the reservoir area. There will be a relay race with prizes awarded.

Program dates will vary with special programs for the holiday weekends.

Simply self-defense?

The jury began deliberation on Friday in the trial of Bernhard Goetz, the subway gunman who has been charged with the attempted murder of four black teens in a N.Y. subway car in 1984.

Goetz claims he believed the four youths he shot were attempting to rob him and he was only acting in self-defense. Troy Canty, one of the youths Goetz shot, testified that he merely asked Goetz for $5.

Prosecutor Gregory Waples, attempting to show that Goetz used deadly force unnecessarily, emphasized taped statements of Goetz saying he fired twice at one of the youths, Darrell Cabey. According to the tapes, Goetz said to Cabey, "You look all right, here's another," just before pulling the trigger again. Cabey is now paralyzed and suffers from brain damage.

Justice Stephen Crane, outlining the self-defense law to the jury, stressed that Goetz had to have reasonably believed that each of the four youths Goetz shot represented a separate threat.

It is hard to believe that Cabey, with one bullet already in him, was so threatening to Goetz. How is it that Goetz had time enough to viciously mutter the above statement and then to shoot again? It is asking a little too much to believe that Goetz, illegally possessing the firearm to begin with, was only protecting himself — for all the shots he fired.

Research rat

For those who have seen Monty Python's "The Meaning of Life," in which all the children of a large family are sent to London for "medical experiments," the present practice at many research institutions — including the UI — of using animals from shelters for research may seem cruel and inhumane.

Some animal rights groups are opposed to this on the grounds that the animals are undergoing needless, excessive pain. Indeed, some widely publicized cases of abuse have been uncovered in the past; however, legislation passed in the past few years has provided for a system of investigation of animal treatment.

Rep. Robert J. Mrazek, D-N.Y., has introduced a bill prohibiting the use of pound animals in any projects which receive funding from the National Institutes of Health. Many prominent researchers, including heart surgeon Michael DeBakey, have pointed out what this really means: that many kinds of medical research going on today would be all but impossible if the bill passes.

The UI depends heavily on NIH funding in a number of areas. The repercussions of this bill, if passed, would hit the UI community hard. The only alternative to shelter animals in certain projects is animals raised specifically for use in the lab, and the use of these adds tremendously to the overall costs of research — costs which the bill conveniently ignores and does not provide additional funding for. With the increased costs of research, the UI would have to do one of two things; reduce the amount of research going on or increase the allocation of money to get the same amount of research done. Neither proposition is very appealing to UI administrators or to tuition-paying students.

Perhaps in a perfect world, there would be no diabetes, kidney disease or AIDS, and no research of these diseases would be necessary. But then, in a perfect world, people wouldn't callously abandon millions of unwanted "pets" every year in our nation's animal shelters.

Third Thatcher victory

Margaret Thatcher has won five more years for her Conservative Party to push the country toward, as she might put it, the virtues of self-reliance and individual initiative.

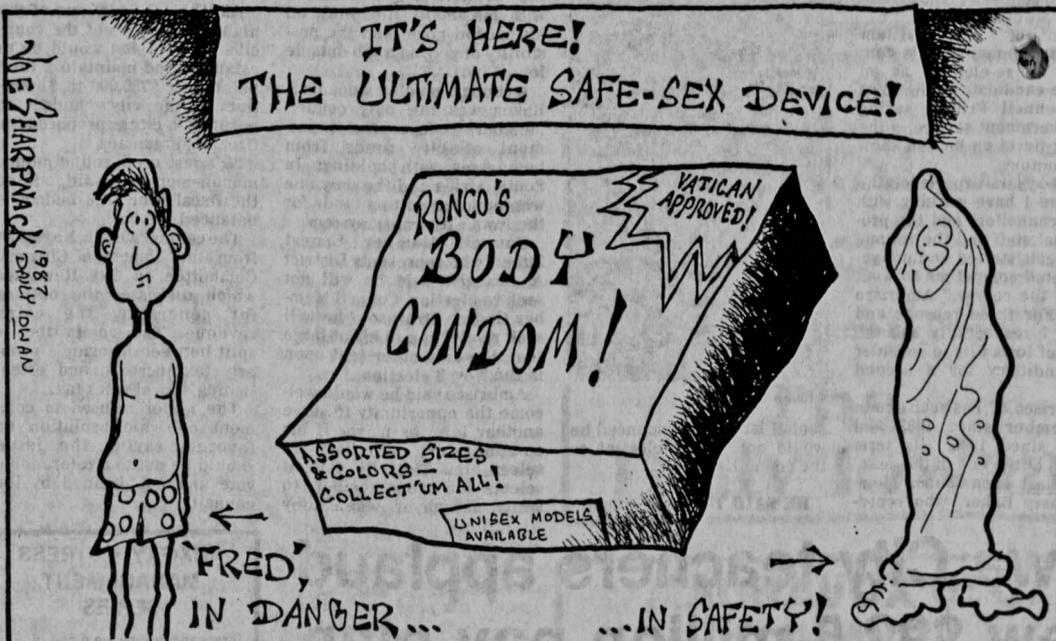

Mrs. Thatcher's style of leadership is, by any standard, pretty aggressive. Her manner is deliberately divisive, and British politics has become increasingly polarized. The Alliance of the Liberal and Social Democratic parties, which stands for the old style of consensus politics, was the biggest of the losers in Thursday's voting.

The split in her opposition between Labor and the Alliance, incidentally, has been great good luck for Mrs. Thatcher, enabling her to win large parliamentary majorities with less than half of the popular vote. On Thursday the Conservatives got just over 42 percent of it, very similar to their shares in 1983 and 1979.

There are problems in Britain: The south prospers while the north is deep in depression. Most of heavy manufacturing keeps sinking while other industries, particularly those involving finance and electronics, do conspicuously well. Unemployment is still around 11 percent; it has been in that range for five years, and there's now a sub-class of the more or less permanently unemployed.

If the British economy is being strengthened, this is being achieved at a substantial cost. But Mrs. Thatcher has unquestionably given much of her country a sense of pride and possibility that was not there when she first came to power.

A rubber by any other name

It's time the truth be told about condoms, and the truth is this: They're not condoms at all — they're rubbers.

I know all about rubbers. When I was in high school, several eons ago, I carried a rubber in my wallet. All the boys I knew carried rubbers in their wallets. The rubber was for us a surreptitious badge of adolescent virility, a foil-wrapped promise of those wonderful mysteries of sex, as yet denied us, shrouded in fantasy, dream and the carnal magazines hidden under our mattresses.

In the mythology of the teenage male, should a boy ever find himself in the ethereal position of having a girl leaning toward him uttering those mystical words, "Oh, alright," the rumored prerequisite question would be, "Do you have ... protection?" Some girls might be (so I was told) a bit more specific, asking, "Do you have ... uh, one of those things?" But whether "protection" or "one of those things" it was understood by all concerned that the object in question was a rubber. And if a boy wasn't sitting on one never would he live to hear, "Oh, alright."

For three years I carried my rubber in my wallet. Of course, I never got the opportunity to put it to official use. But I didn't carry it thinking I might use it; I carried it hoping I might use it. Hope was the sine qua non of the wallet rubber.

Our high school gym teachers, those antediluvian precursors of today's "sex educators," lectured us once or twice about rubbers, but never used the word. Either easily embarrassed, or even more prone to concealing the truth than our other teachers, gym teachers consistently referred to rubbers as "prophylactics." But from the chorus of titters that inevitably arose when the word was spoken, it was clear that the gym teachers knew that we knew that "prophylactic" was simply the Greek word meaning "rubber."

Times change, and today's rubbers have taken on a much more important social function than keeping alive the hopes of teenage boys. In the past few years, as AIDS has grown to epidemic proportions, health officials, educators and the media have all recognized the need to inform and educate the public about the practice of "safe sex."

The safest sex, of course, is no sex at all. However, as effective a measure as this might be to control the spread of AIDS, it would inevitably result in a significant loss of fun, gobs of pent-up frustration and in the not-too-distant future, the extinction of the species.

That's where rubbers come in. Not that they are foolproof, but they do provide some measure of protection, not only against AIDS, but other sexually transmitted diseases as well.

The problem, however, is that while our collective consciousness has been raised a degree allowing us to at least engage in public discourse about safe sex without too much blushing, the word "rubber" still sticks in our collective throat. Health officials, educators and the media, while all nobly attempting to make us more prudent in our sexual habits, can't seem to cast off the stigma traditionally encasing the word that dare not speak its name: rubber.

Hence, we have "condom." Now I have nothing against the word "condom." As euphemisms go, it's okay. But if the purpose of the current safe sex campaign is, as I think it is and should be, to inform and educate the public about safe sex practices, "condom" is counter-productive.

Besides, most of us don't know a condom from a condor. What we know are rubbers and that's the word we should be using.

How about it, Dr. Ruth?

Ethics don't start in business school

As dean of a leading business school, I am barraged with questions about what I am going to do to improve business ethics. The questions are usually accompanied by a strong undercurrent of accusation that business schools are responsible for the bad ethics of corporate America.

The best solution, the accusers suggest, would be to abolish business schools, but if that is impossible, the schools should at least take responsibility for the mess they have created and clean it up.

These assertions are unfair. Business students come to us from our society. If they haven't been taught ethics by their families, their clergy men, their elementary and secondary schools, their liberal arts colleges or engineering schools, there is very little we can do.

Injunctions to "be good" don't sway young men and women in their mid to late 20s. In the final analysis, what we produce is no worse than what we get.

The key to what must be done is found in the words "collective interest." Ethical questions arise because we live in communities that function according to rules and laws that promote the long run interests of the community. Ethics is not arbitrary. It is functional, but it functions to allow a group of human beings to successfully live with each other.

A hermit can neither be ethical or unethical. He simply exists. Ethical dilemmas arise when a person's actions may contribute to the common good of the community but at the same time hurt his self-interest. Choosing to sacrifice one's appetites and self-interest is at the heart of ethical action.

The doctrine that one should sacrifice self-interest for the collective good, however, is a message that is seldom preached in America. In our secular religion, the importance of the individual greatly overshadows the importance of the community. The bumper sticker "The Man Who Dies

With the Most Toys Wins," depicts the current state of American ethics.

If the only legitimate goal is maximizing personal income, then there are no ethical principles that must be obeyed. Individuals simply face a cost-benefit calculus where there is some probability of being punished if one is caught violating society's ethical principles.

How can this country restore the belief that social goals and social responsibilities are so important that they override one's personal gratification? Ethics will be restored when most individuals come to the realization that they play for a common team and are willing to sacrifice self-interest for the team.

Those who do believe that the team sometimes merits priority over the individual have to preach that message at all levels of American society if our ethics are to be improved. Business schools are in a unique position to preach ethics in the field of economics.

To do this, business schools cannot simply add courses in ethics to the curriculum. We have to change what is taught in business classes.

Today's finance classes teach that the sole goal of business managers should be to maximize the net worth of shareholders. Managers follow this principle because doing so maximizes his or her personal net worth. If the only goals of firms and individuals are monetary, however, it is but a short jump to maximizing those monetary variables with means that are illegal or unethical.

Business law courses outline what is legal and imply that firms and individuals should go right up to the line between legality and illegality. Ethics does not consist of asking one's lawyer, "Is it legal?" The question, "Is it right?" is not the same as, "Is it legal?" and yet most Americans act as if it were so.

Sacrificing self-interest for the common good is not going to be advocated by business schools or accepted by our students unless a majority of Americans also support the premise. In the end, business ethics is merely a reflection of American ethics.

Wrong reasons

To the Editor:

As a black woman, I was both shocked and disappointed in Matthew Stelly's article concerning the Keaton Smiley incident. ("Smiley Arrest Raises Questions," DI, June 12).

His attempts to rationalize Smiley's behavior are futile. Stelly claims that black recruits are "intentionally kept from various black social outlets." But, black players handle black recruits and take them to black fraternity and sorority parties as well as to the "Field House."

Also, in the past, a few football players have joined black fraternities and were able to keep up their grades and play. Stelly reports that "there are no black churches." There are, in fact, several black churches in Iowa City, one in particular which is frequented by two of Iowa's basketball players from Michigan.

Stelly goes on to write that, "... coaches suggest that some stay in town for the summer or over the holidays to train." Not entirely true; many of these boys don't go home because Texas and New York are too far or too expensive to go to for a few days. Others stay over the summer because it may depend upon their eligibility to play in the fall.

And while the coaches are not entirely free from blame, they can only be used as an excuse to get the athlete out of just so many scrapes and mishaps.

To Iowa athletes, girls are as accessible and as free as The Daily Iowan, and one can't help but wonder why the 6-foot, 175-pound Smiley needed the aid of a knife to get his point across. His behavior is unacceptable and so is Stelly's explanation and rationalization for it.

Nicaraguan pilots train on MiG-21 fighters

MIAMI (UPI) — Nicaraguan pilots training for combat in Cuba have been assigned a squadron of Soviet-made MiG-21 jet fighters that could streak to Nicaragua and engage enemy forces in 30 minutes, a newspaper reported Sunday.

The Miami Herald quoted unidentified U.S. intelligence sources as saying the jets technically are not under Nicaraguan control, but constitute an informal squadron that could operate in Nicaragua.

"If Nicaragua were to be attacked, MiGs based at the San Julian air base in western Cuba could reach Nicaragua and engage enemy forces within 30 minutes if they flew at their maximum speed of 1,285 mph, the newspaper said.

From San Julian, a MiG-21 could strike as far north as Savannah, Ga., and as far south as San Jose, Costa Rica.

In February 1984, U.S. intelligence warned the White House of an impending delivery of MiGs to Nicaragua, and President Ronald Reagan signed a secret national security directive warning Moscow and Havana not to supply MiGs to Managua.

NINE MONTHS LATER, Moscow reassured Washington it did not intend to provide Nicaragua with fighters. Havana remained silent. Intelligence sources suspect the San Julian arrangement was reached at that time.

Nicaragua currently has no jet fighters of its own. Honduras is the only country in the region with a major jet fighter force.

San Julian air base, built by the United States during World War II to train B-29 bomber crews, houses Cuba's main military pilot training school. It is about 600 miles from Punta Huete, a Nicaraguan air base already prepared to rearm and refuel MiGs, the sources said.

Between 10 and 17 MiG-21s at San Julian are believed to be assigned to the 20 to 40 Nicaraguan pilots there at any given time. Sandinista mechanic trainees also are rotated at the base on a regular basis, the intelligence sources said.

THE TRAINING HAS been known for some time, the newspaper said, but what appears to be new is the identification of the training base and the implication that Nicaraguan pilots may have formed a unit that has informal possession of jet fighters.

The intelligence sources said they concluded the Nicaraguans were flying out of San Julian after examining statements by Nicaraguan defectors and analyzing pictures taken by spy aircraft and satellites.

Brig. Gen. Rafael del Pino Diaz, the Cuban military officer who defected to the United States May 28, reportedly was chief air combat instructor for the brigade that controls San Julian. U.S. officials had said they would ask him about the base.

Sikh extremists slay 12 in New Delhi

By Denholm Barnetson
United Press International

NEW DELHI, India — Sikh extremists indiscriminately fired submachine guns in a bloody rampage through four New Delhi neighborhoods, killing 12 people and injuring 20 others, police said Sunday.

A Sikh extremist group claimed responsibility for the slayings, saying they were in revenge for anti-Sikh riots in November 1984 sparked by the assassination of Prime Minister Indira Gandhi by two Sikh bodyguards.

"Killings squads have reached

New Delhi and they will take revenge for the November 1984 anti-Sikh riots," a man claiming to represent the Bhindranwale Tiger Force of Khalistan said in a telephone call to a news organization in the Sikh holy city of Amritsar in Punjab.

A police official in New Delhi said an undetermined number of Sikh extremists "in a pre-planned operation" carried out four attacks in fashionable neighborhoods in the south of the city Saturday night. He said the gunmen escaped.

HE SAID A total of 12 people were killed, including two who succumbed to injuries in a hospital, and 20 wounded in the four incidents, but did not give detailed casualty tolls from each attack.

Police issued a citywide alert, setting up roadblocks, tightening security at airports, railway stations and bus depots and conducting house-to-house searches.

The attacks were the first by Sikh extremists in New Delhi since the September 1985 assassination of Arjun Das, a city councilor of Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi's Congress (I) Party, who militants said helped organize the November 1984 riots that left more than 4,000 dead across northern India.

Saturday's violence was also the bloodiest by the separatists in New Delhi since more than 40 people died when a series of bombs concealed in transistor radios and cricket balls exploded in May 1985.

The police official said the bloodshed began at about 11 p.m. when a Sikh teenager armed with a submachine gun burst into a birthday party being held in a tent outside a house in the posh Greater Kailash neighborhood.

Violence wanes on S. Korean streets

By John Burgess
Washington Post

SEOUL, South Korea — Street violence here dropped sharply Sunday as worshippers flocked to a Catholic cathedral that has been under military siege for five days. Late Sunday night South Korean riot police abruptly withdrew from the streets around the church.

Their departure appeared to be aimed at getting about 300 students who have taken refuge on church grounds since Wednesday to go home.

It was one of several conciliatory steps that the government is taking in hopes of ending the confrontations.

New flare-ups remain possible, however. Tensions are still high, and few students seemed inclined to leave the cathedral, which their presence has dramatically transformed from the headquarters of the country's 2 million Catholics to a political rallying point for dissidents here.

"We want to make these grounds a symbolic bastion of the fight for democratization in our country," Reuter quoted a student leader as saying Sunday. "We will hold out here until our demands are met."

STILL, GOVERNMENT officials seemed relieved to see a marked reduction in the demonstrations, the most prolonged and serious in South Korea since 1980.

Thousands of people in their Sunday best thronged past police lines to the brick cathedral. Many were there to attend mass, held almost hourly. Others came to show support for the students or to satisfy curiosity about them.

"I am a Presbyterian," said a seminary student who was strolling through the crowd outside the cathedral Sunday afternoon. "But today I am coming here specially."

At a table, people dropped cash into a box for the protesters, with each bill drawing cheers from onlookers. Others watched a student getting first-aid for a chest abrasion.

U.S. hostages transferred to Iran

BEIRUT, Lebanon — The Lebanese weekly newspaper that revealed the Iran arms deal said Saturday some American hostages have been transferred to Tehran for interrogation and one Iranian faction wants to put them on trial.

In a related development, the semi-official Al Ittihad newspaper in Abu Dhabi, Oman, said Saturday missing Church of England envoy Terry Waite was flown from Beirut to Tehran twice during recent hostage negotiations between Iran and his church.

The reports by the west Beirut weekly magazine Ash Shiraa and Al Ittihad could not be independently confirmed.

A State Department spokesman Saturday said if the reports were true, "We would consider it a matter of the utmost gravity and would hold the Iranian government directly responsible for the safety and well-being of the hostages."

Eight Americans were abducted in Lebanon and are still being held.

Ford plans divestment in South Africa

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — Ford Motor Co. plans to pull out of South Africa, becoming the latest of more than 100 American companies to withdraw in the past two years, a company official said Sunday.

Ford is negotiating to divest its 42 percent share in South African Motor Corporation, which builds and markets Ford vehicles in South Africa, but plans to continue supplying vehicles, parts and technology under license, SAMCOR chairman Leslie Boyd said.

The Sunday Star newspaper said the American company planned to sell 18 percent of the SAMCOR shares to Anglo American and to invest 24 percent in a trust to be set up for local employees.

Other American companies which have pulled out of South Africa include General Motors, IBM, Coca-Cola and Eastman Kodak.

Pope ends Poland visit with mass

WARSAW, Poland — Pope John Paul II Sunday visited the grave of a pro-Solidarity priest slain by secret police and led a triumphal procession through Warsaw, ending a weeklong visit in which he repeatedly criticized his homeland's communist government.

An estimated 800,000 people attended an outdoor mass and watched the 4-mile procession through the capital. At an airport departure ceremony, the crowd chanted to the Polish pope, "Stay with us, stay with us."

John Paul, looking weary from 1,200 miles of travel during his visit, said, "My motherland must undertake upon itself the task of making human life in Poland more human, more and more worthy of a man."

Branstad signs pact with Malaysia

DES MOINES — Gov. Terry Branstad announced Saturday the formal signing of a Sister State agreement with Terengganu, Malaysia.

Branstad spokesman Dick Vohs said the governor met with Malaysian Chief Minister Seri Amar Di Saturday to discuss the expansion of trade and industry in Terengganu.

"I am extremely pleased with the progress that was made here today," Branstad said. "I believe we have established a very promising and prosperous relationship with the people of this state."

Branstad said Terengganu would like assistance in developing agricultural products, processing food products, and developing, importing and improving small agricultural equipment.

Two rescued after 14 days at sea

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — Two men drifted in a disabled motorboat without food for 14 days in the Gulf of Mexico — and given up for lost by the Coast Guard — were recovering Sunday from exposure and dehydration after their rescue by the crew of a Greek freighter.

Nurses at Humana Northside Hospital said the men were "alert and doing fine" Sunday.

Demuro and Wolf left Bradenton, on Florida's west coast south of St. Petersburg, May 31 for a daylong fishing and pleasure trip, the Coast Guard said. They were reported missing June 7 and the Coast Guard conducted an extensive search by boat and helicopter. The search was suspended Thursday when no sign of the men or their boat was found.

Divers search for gold in sunken ship

NEW YORK — A team of treasure hunters embarked Sunday on "the chance of a lifetime" to salvage what they believe are gold coins worth as much as $1.6 billion from the wreckage of a luxury liner that sank in 1909.

"This is the one I've been after for years," said William Flower, leading a team of divers who will search the remains of the R.M.S. Republic on the floor of the Atlantic about 55 miles south of Nantucket, Mass.

The Republic, a 585-foot luxury liner, was the largest vessel ever to go down at sea prior to the 1912 sinking of the Titanic.

"This is the chance of a lifetime," said Martin Bayerle, 36, a professional diver who found and identified the wreck in 1981. "The happiest I'll be is to either get the gold on board or be sure there was no gold," he said.

Quarantine of AIDS victims considered

WASHINGTON — A quarantine of people who test positive for AIDS infection is the way to halt the spread of the deadly disease, Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., said Sunday.

Helms, who is sponsoring a bill calling for mandatory testing in some cases, appeared on CBS's "Face The Nation".

"I may be the most radical person you've talked to about AIDS," Helms told interviewer Lesley Stahl. "But I think somewhere along the line that we're going to have to quarantine if we are really going to contain this disease."

Dallas police No. 1 in use of force

DALLAS — Dallas police, for the second year in a row, rank No. 1 on a per capita basis among the 11 largest cities nationwide in the use of deadly force, a newspaper survey indicated Sunday.

Dallas police shot and killed 10 people in 1986 and wounded 19 others. In 1985, Dallas officers killed nine people and wounded nine others, earning the department the top ranking based on shootings per 100,000 population.

Four times as many people were killed by police in Dallas in 1986 on a per capita basis than in Philadelphia, Baltimore, Phoenix, New York and Los Angeles, The Dallas Times Herald reported Sunday.

Soviet reforms divide Party

Foes, friends of Gorbachev battle verbally

By Gary Lee
Washington Post

MOSCOW — There are increasing signs here that a crucial battle over the controversial economic and political reforms proposed by Kremlin chief Mikhail Gorbachev is now gripping the Soviet leadership, with veiled attacks on Gorbachev's allies as well as his foes spilling into the Soviet media and into speeches being made around the country.

The verbal battle is unfolding in advance of a major Communist Party meeting and referendum on Gorbachev's calls for more radical economic reform measures expected later this month.

Mikhail Gorbachev

Some of Gorbachev's closest political allies are now falling into the line of fire, according to Soviet and Western analysts here. Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze and Moscow party boss Boris Yeltsin, for example, have been the subject of indirect attacks in the central Soviet media in recent days. They are the two members of the ruling Politburo most closely allied with Gorbachev.

AT THE SAME TIME, potential Politburo opponents to Gorbachev's proposals have also come under media attack, including three members of the ruling body's old guard which is thought to favor a slower course of reform than that espoused by Gorbachev.

They are Gaidar Aliyev and Vladimir Shcherbitsky, named to the Politburo under former Kremlin leader Leonid Brezhnev, and Sergei Sokolov, who was removed two weeks ago as defense minister but is still a non-voting Politburo member.

Gorbachev is expected to use a major plenary session of the powerful Communist Party Central Committee, which is expected to be held in the next two weeks, as the forum to broaden his economic reforms to what he describes as a more "radical" level. But it is still unclear how strongly he will be supported in the bid by the 307-member body or the 11-man Politburo at its helm.

ONE LARGE UNKNOWN is what role second-ranking Politburo member Yegor Ligachev, considered by Western analysts as alternately a foe and a supporter of some of Gorbachev's reforms, will play at this crucial juncture in the Soviet leader's 2½-year-old reform movement.

As the party's chief ideologist Ligachev is well positioned to support or oppose Gorbachev's reforms.

He apparently is facing a challenge to that role, however, from Alexander Yakovlev, a close Gorbachev ally and Central Committee secretary, who evidently has launched a campaign to take over the ideology portfolio from Ligachev.

Reagan prepares for address

By Helen Thomas
United Press International

WASHINGTON — President Ronald Reagan is expected to announce in a televised Monday address that, backed by the allies, he is ordering U.S. negotiators to wrap up an agreement with the Soviets ridding Europe of all medium- and short-range missiles.

"We're there," one top aide said, referring to the superpower arms negotiations in Geneva that could lead to a signing of a pact by Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev at a summit meeting in Washington this fall.

He also plans to submit to Congress today or Tuesday a lengthy, mostly classified Defense Department report on security in the Persian Gulf and the protection of Kuwaiti oil tankers, which is expected to begin next month, said deputy White House press secretary Dan Howard.

The report is the result of a compromise with House Speaker Jim Wright of Texas to blunt congressional calls to invoke the War Powers Act and strong opposition to the administration's plans to beef up protection in the gulf.

On the arms front, a communique from Reykjavik, Iceland, where the NATO foreign ministers met last week gave the green light to the missile accord.

The president spent a quiet weekend polishing his speech after returning Friday from a nine-day journey that included the Venice Economic Summit and stops in West Berlin and Bonn, West Germany.

Reagan will brief Democratic and Republican leaders on the accomplishments of the Economic Summit and the prospects for an arms accord before addressing the nation at 7 p.m. CDT tonight from the Oval Office.

Aides said that while the address will highlight the results of the Venice summit, Reagan also intends to blend in his domestic priorities, mainly budget reform.

One White House official, who asked not to be identified, explained that Reagan wants to project his "agenda into the future."

"Part of it is to talk directly to the American people and tie in" the summit "with what's going on in our country," he said.

Aides said Reagan plans to campaign outside Washington one day a week to stress his view that the budget needs overhauling and to continue his opposition to a tax increase and cuts in the defense budget.

With only 20 more months to go in office, Reagan was in no mood to retreat from his goal, to push Congress into bigger cuts in domestic spending.

The president also is battling to hold the line against trade legislation, which he said in his radio address Saturday would damage prosperity at home and among U.S. trade partners by erecting tariff barriers against foreign goods.

commitment to a cause, sincerity of belief, lack of venal motive somehow combined to justify evading the law," he said.

So far, the evidence shows that Secord and Hakim — acting at North's request — established a web of Swiss bank accounts and offshore companies through which they secretly sold U.S. arms to Iran and supplied military goods to the Nicaraguan resistance.

ALTHOUGH SECORD insists that he was motivated solely by patriotism and a desire to assist the Contras, records show that both he and Hakim reaped millions of dollars in personal profit from the deals — money that members of Congress believe rightfully belongs in the U.S. Treasury.

North himself stood to benefit personally as well, from the terms of a $2 million will written by Hakim and a $200,000 fund established for the education of North's children.

Long before the Iran-Contra affair was disclosed, North obviously had contemplated how he would react if the story ever became known. Robert C. Dutton, Secord's assistant, recalled that North once told him that "if this thing ever got blown, he would end up taking the heat for the people he was running it for."

By Friday, Nov. 21, 1986, the day that North and Hall shredded documents, the Iran arms sale initiative already had been public knowledge for about two weeks and North apparently had reason to suspect that his other secret — the diversion of arms sale funds to his Contra-supply operation — was about to be exposed as well.

His suspicions were well-founded. Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 22 and 23, North was questioned by the Department of Justice and acknowledged the diversion of funds. Nov. 25, Attorney General Edwin Meese announced the diversion and President Reagan fired North.

North conferred briefly with Green, Secord and former national security adviser Robert McFarlane shortly before he was questioned by Meese Nov. 23, but it was not until the following day that North, Green, Secord and Hakim met in the first of two lengthy sessions that they now refuse to discuss.

gress is likely to act to halt the plan.

KISSINGER, WHO WAS secretary of state under Presidents Nixon and Ford, questioned whether the level of attacks on gulf shipping is any higher this year than it was in 1986 and said that, anyway, "most of the attacks come from Iraq."

"So, by getting involved on — in effect — the Iraqi side, we are taking on a belligerent commitment" without knowing how the hostilities will come out, he said.

"If the American national interest is involved, of course we should be prepared to fight Iran," he said. "But it's not something one likes to slide into, one tanker at a time, when one cannot define what the war aim is and what the terms are."

Both Kissinger and Nunn rejected a suggestion which was advanced, then withdrawn, last week by White House Chief of Staff Howard H. Baker Jr. that the United States and the Soviet Union cooperate in keeping Persian Gulf sea lanes open.

"I THINK THAT would be a disaster," Kissinger said, "because the Soviet aim, and the Russian aim, for a century and a half has been to establish a foothold in the warm water area in the Persian Gulf. We have an interest in keeping Iran from winning the war, but we do not have an interest in establishing the Soviet Union in the Persian Gulf... We may have a very short-term common interest, but I would not consider that an area for superpower cooperation."

Nunn agreed with Kissinger that there is no convergence of interest in the gulf itself but said there may be benefit both to the United States and the Soviet Union, if the war ends under such conditions that Iran "will not become the dominant empire in that whole region." To ensure such an outcome will require help from the Soviet Union and from NATO allies because "we've lost a lot of credibility in trying to cut off arms to Iran," he said.

for the Nicaraguan democratic resistance forces."

The discovery of that memo led Reagan to fire North and demand Poindexter's resignation last November. Since then, several accounts have claimed that Poindexter briefed Reagan about the diversion at least twice, but none of the reports has been confirmed.

HAMILTON ALSO said he has been struck by new evidence during the six weeks of congressional hearings on the scandal that CIA Director William Casey may have been the key official supervising North's secret operations.

Casey, who ran the CIA from 1981 until last December, died last month after several operations to remove a brain tumor.

"I went into these hearings under the impression that Director Casey knew very, very little about these efforts to divert funds to the Contras and to supply the Contras," said Hamilton, who met frequently with Casey as chairman of the House Intelligence Committee.

"What we've heard thus far would suggest that Col. North was in frequent contact with Director Casey, and that surprised me," he added.

"What it may mean is that Director Casey was one of the persons — maybe the only person — who had some role supervising Col. North," he said. "That is a question that clearly has to be explored."

Two other members of the congressional investigating committees agreed that the increasing evidence about the scandal has continued to damage Reagan's standing.

"I don't think the president will ever regain the status he had before last November's election," said Sen. George Mitchell, D-Maine.

"I think he has already been hurt badly," said Mitchell. "I don't think the president will ever regain the status he had before last November's election."

"I think the president is certainly troubled," said Rep. Henry Hyde, R-Ill., one of Reagan's most stalwart defenders on the committees. "He is indeed a lame duck."

"I'd hate to have the last memory of the Reagan administration — the two of them — be this Iran-Contra controversy, because it's nothing anyone can be proud of," he said.

Actress Page dies of natural causes

NEW YORK (UPI) — Actress Geraldine Page, who was one of the pioneers of the Off-Broadway movement in the 1950s and appeared in more than 500 plays, died of natural causes at her home Saturday. She was 62.

Page, who was starring in Neil Simon's Blithe Spirit on Broadway, was found by her son, Anthony Torn, about 6 p.m., police said. A police spokesman said she died of natural causes.

Page missed the matinee and evening performances of the show on Saturday.

But despite her death, the cast met Saturday night at Rosa's Place restaurant in Manhattan's Theater District for a previously planned party.

"This gathering was already planned and they decided to go ahead with it," said Josh Ellis, a spokesman for the show.

"THEY WANTED TO be together when they found out about her death," he said.

The cast was told of Page's death after the Saturday night performance.

Page was nominated for a Tony award for her performance in the show, but the eighth time was the charm for Page, who won the best actress Oscar in 1986 for her role as Carrie Watts, a widow searching for her roots in The Trip to Bountiful.

Had she lost, Page would have become the all-time Oscar loser. Her victory — greeted by a standing ovation — left Peter O'Toole and the late Richard Burton tied for that dubious honor, each with seven nominations and no victories.

SHE TOLD REPORTERS

backstage that her husband, Rip Torn, "told me I was in great danger of getting it this time, and he turned out to be right."

Asked if she thought she should have won earlier, she replied, "Definitely. I've been magnificent all the time. But this time it was just the role. I'm so glad none of those illustrious ladies (the other nominees) got their fingers on this role."

She also said she hoped she won not because of her many previous fruitless nominations but "because they thought I did the best job."

Page made a career of playing Southerners, most memorably in works by Tennessee Williams, and women a generation or two older than herself.

Born Nov. 22, 1924, in Kirksville, Mo., and raised in Chicago, she established herself as an actress on the New York stage, appearing in more than 500 plays.

and period when the Lakers were struggling.

IN GAME 2, HE PACED the Lakers with 20 assists, one less than his Championship Series record. He was the Lakers' most consistent force in the losses to the Celtics in Boston, averaging 32.5 points and 9.5 rebounds in those games.

After the Lakers lost two of three in Boston, Johnson was anxious to come home and play Game 6.

"I didn't sleep at all last night," he said. "I was just waiting, waiting, waiting. I came out wanting it so bad I was hurrying myself."

Lakers Coach Pat Riley wanted his 6-foot-9 point guard to concentrate on shooting more in the season to take some pressure off Abdul-Jabbar, then 39 years old. Johnson responded by increasing his scoring average to 23.9, more than five points better than his average last year. At the same time, he remained the league leader in assists with an average of 12.2 a game.

"It was good that everyone counted us out at the beginning of the year," Johnson said. "We wanted to show them what we were made of and that we could win it all."

pounded in Games 1 and 2 at the Forum playing a deliberate style, ran at every opportunity and led 56-51 at half-time. In the opening two contests, they trailed by 15 and 19 points at intermission.

McHale led the way with 16 points and Dennis Johnson added 14, including 12 in the first quarter. Bird had just eight points but Magic Johnson hit only two of nine shots from the floor to collect only four.

Abdul-Jabbar paced Los Angeles with 19 points, hitting 11 of 11 attempts from the field while Worthy added 16 on 7 of 10 shooting.

The Lakers broke to an 8-2 lead as Worthy scored six points and the Celtics missed their first five shots, but Boston unleashed its fastbreak and sank seven of their next eight attempts in a 15-2 burst to take a 19-12 advantage midway through the first quarter. Dennis Johnson had three layups in the run.

The Celtics, requiring just a pair of jumpshot baskets, led 32-25 after one period and took a nine-point lead when reserve Greg Kite tipped in a miss to open the second quarter. However, Los Angeles got its break going behind Worthy and used a 13-6 spurt to pull within 40-38 with 6:25 remaining in the half.

Heavyweights fight for pride

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (UPI) — Michael Spinks, heavier than ever for a fight, remains the little guy in his David vs. Goliath matchup Monday night against Gerry Cooney.

Spinks, defending his claim to the heavyweight title in the scheduled 15-round bout at the Convention Center, was 208 3/4 pounds at the Sunday weigh-in. Cooney weighed 238, also a career high. Cooney, 6-foot-7, holds an advantage of 5 inches and 29 1/4 pounds.

"Sizing us up makes this an interesting fight," Spinks said, a former light heavyweight champ whose previous high weight was 205 for his second fight against Larry Holmes 14 months ago.

"Cooney is a powerful fighter and I'm a strategist. If I don't know anything else, I know how to stay out of the way of a punch."

COONEY, 28-1 with 24 knockouts, is a slight favorite although the 30-year-old Huntington, N.Y., native has fought three times since losing to Holmes five years ago.

Spinks, 30-0 with 20 knockouts, won the International Boxing Federation championship from Holmes Sept. 21, 1984 and defended it twice before the IBF lifted his crown because he failed to fight No. 1 contender Tony Tucker.

Even without an official title at stake, the Spinks-Cooney bout offers an intriguing matchup. Spinks is a smart defensive fighter while Cooney is one of boxing's most dangerous punchers.

Spinks is awkward and moves about the ring; Cooney is best against fighters who move straight toward him. Spinks is a dangerous counter-puncher who often beats opponents to the punch with his right hand — the "Spinks Jinx." Even Cooney's pulverizing hook is thrown widely, leaving him open to counters.

"Once I hit him, I'll hurt him," Cooney said. "I'll make him see what it feels like when a real heavyweight hits him."

Cooney was stopped in 13 rounds by Holmes in his only defeat. Spinks won two close decisions over Holmes after a four-year reign as 175-pound champion. Spinks said he will try to avoid Cooney's punch rather than match it.

Michael Spinks and Gerry Cooney square off before today's fight.

"Trade punches with a guy who punches harder than me?" he said. "That's not too smart. Cooney's strong but he's got his hands full. He's got somebody in the ring who refuses to let anyone have his way with him."

"I take pride in my defense, it plays a major part in my fight. That's where I win, when I throw the man off with a miss and capitalize on his mistake. Before you know it, they fall for a right hand or uppercut and that makes the fight simpler."

Cooney said he was worried about going 15 rounds when he fought Holmes and failed to press his advantage whenever he hurt the champion. Cooney is in better shape now, his body more muscular after years of lifting weights.

SMU athletic staff dwindles

DALLAS (UPI) — Less than half the athletic department staff from 1986 remains at Southern Methodist University, which will not field a football team through the 1988 football season.

The department budget has dwindled from nearly $6 million to less than $3 million and the demise of the football program has contributed significantly to the loss.

The NCAA, citing payments to SMU football players, banned SMU in February from fielding a football team in 1987. The school subsequently decided to bypass the 1988 football season.

The football team brought in approximately $4 million and spent less than $2 million. Without a football schedule in 1987 or 1988, immediate remedy is not in sight.

When the coaches' contracts expired May 31, seven assistants found positions with other organizations, ranging from colleges to the NFL to the Canadian Football League.

FORMER HEAD COACH Bobby Collins returned to Hattiesburg, Miss., with no immediate plans to resume coaching. Other sports at SMU have been affected, too. Assistant basketball coach John Underwood, women's tennis coach Owen McHaney, men's golf coach West Hilzer, women's golf coach Earl Stewart, strength coach Stan Cain, and assistant track coach Ralph White have departed in the past eight months in addition to four athletic department officials.

Athletic Director Bob Hitch, assistants Rick Baker and Gary Gallup and assistant business manager Sharon Hodgkins are no longer employed by SMU.

Lakers finish Celtics for NBA title

Johnson grabs third MVP award

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — Magic Johnson, forced during the year to replace Kareem Abdul-Jabbar as the Los Angeles Lakers' offensive leader, capped his best professional season by becoming the first player to win three playoff-series Most Valuable Player awards.

Johnson collected 19 assists and 16 points Sunday to guide the Lakers to a 106-93 triumph over the Boston Celtics and the NBA Championship.

"It was a total team effort," Johnson said. "All the guys chipped in and got the job done. This is my ultimate year. This one means more than all the others combined — almost."

Johnson, named the regular-season MVP in leading the Lakers to a 65-17 record, was named series MVP in the Lakers' 1980 and 1982 championship seasons.

THE CELTICS' LARRY Bird won the award in 1984 and 1986. The others to snare two series MVP trophies are Abdul-Jabbar (1971 and 1985) and Willis Reed (1970 and 1973).

Johnson joined Reed (1970), Abdul-Jabbar (1971), Moses Malone (1983) and Bird (1984 and 1986) as the only players to win the regular-season and postseason MVPs.

He finished with team-high average of 26.1 points, 13 assists and eight rebounds per game in the finals. In addition, he turned the ball over 13 times in the six games.

The epitome of his performance in the finals came in Game 4 at Boston Garden when he drove into the lane and sank a hook shot for the winning basket in a 107-106 triumph. Johnson finished with 29 points in Game 4, including 10 of 12 in the second half.

Boston's repeat attempt denied in rout fashion

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — Magic Johnson, applying the final stroke to an exquisite season, engineered an 18-2 burst to open the third quarter Sunday that carried the Los Angeles Lakers to their fourth NBA title of the decade with a 106-93 rout of the Boston Celtics.

In capturing the best-of-seven series 4-2, the Lakers dethroned the Celtics for the second time in three years. No team has retained an NBA crown since Boston accomplished the feat in 1969.

Johnson, held to four points in the first half, collected six points and two assists in the decisive run. While he scored 12 of his 16 points in the third quarter, the Lakers held the Celtics to 12 points — a point off the championship series record for fewest points in a period — to lead 81-68 entering the fourth quarter. The Celtics scored just 37 points in the second half.

JOHNSON WAS unanimously selected Most Valuable Player of the finals for an unprecedented third time. It marked the sixth time in the 19-year history of the award the regular-season MVP also earned the postseason honor.

The Lakers, owners of this year's best regular-season record, captured their 10th NBA title by registering a 15-3 mark in the playoffs. They won all 10 of their home games to tie a postseason mark.

Johnson was backed by Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, who had 19 of his season-high 32 points in the first half. The 40-year-old center was hugged by his teammates when he went to the bench with 50 seconds left. James Worthy added 22 and Mychal Thompson 15 for the Lakers.

Dennis Johnson led the Celtics with 33 points and Kevin McHale had 20 while Larry Bird was limited to 16.

Snead gets long-awaited win

HARRISON, N.Y. (UPI) — Six years without a victory and closing in on his 46th birthday, J.C. Snead had good reason to wonder if he would ever win again.

"I've thought of retiring, but what else is there to do," he said.

Snead found his own solution Sunday when he surged from behind on the closing holes and edged Seve Ballesteros on the first playoff hole to win the $600,000 Manufacturers Hanover Westchester Classic.

A simple par on the extra hole, climaxed by a three-foot putt, provided Snead a check for $108,000, the biggest payday of his career.

"It seems unbelievable I won at 46," said Snead, who actually doesn't reach that mark until October. "I was beginning to think I'll never do it again, but you never know.

When it's your turn it's your turn."

THE BURLY NEPHEW of golfing legend Sam Snead took the lead for the first time in the tournament with a birdie on the final hole of regulation and was forced into the playoff when a struggling Ballesteros also birdied.

"I was hoping like hell he'd miss it," Snead said of Ballesteros' seven-foot birdie putt on No. 18. "I'd be lying if I said I wanted him to make it."

Ballesteros, who now has finished second three times in only six U.S. appearances this year, encountered immediate trouble in the playoff when his drive on the par-4 10th landed behind a pine tree on the right. On his second shot he hit a tree branch with his club and the ball moved only a few feet.

His blast cleared the green and went into the crowd, and Ballesteros never holed out as Snead completed his par.

"It was fortunate for me and unfortunate for Seve he ended up where he did," Snead said. "I was happy but I'd rather win with a birdie."

Snead and Ballesteros completed the regulation 72 holes in 8-under-par 276. Snead, who started the day three shots behind leader Mike Reid, closed with a 1-under-par 70 and Ballesteros had 72.

ROGER MALTBIE, the 1985 Westchester champion in a playoff, missed a three-foot putt for bogey on the 17th hole and this cost him another chance at a playoff. A final-round 71 left him in third place at 277.

Reid, the third-round leader by a shot over Ballesteros, failed to make a single birdie Sunday and played the final seven holes in four-over, including a double-bogey on the 16th hole.

Reid, still winless in 11 years, wound up with a 75 and settled for a fourth-place tie with Mike Donald and Morris Hatalsky, both with 67.

Snead, three shots behind Reid with only four holes to play, birdied the 17th hole and then gained the lead for the first time when he sank a three-foot birdie putt on No. 18. He barely missed an eagle at the 18th as his 50-foot putt rolled over the hole.

Ballesteros, struggling all day with only two birdies on his first 16 holes, followed about 15 minutes later with his birdie on the 18th to force the playoff.

John McComish more than doubled his earnings for the year with a hole in one on the 16th hole.

J.C. Snead holds his championship trophy, his first win in six years.
