Biden gets Iowa perspective

Candidate makes pitch for daycare, financial aid

By Nation Place

The Daily Iowan

In 1984, Joseph Biden Jr., a former Senate aide and ideologue before he was elected to his current seat in the U.S. Senate, turned some heads with an appearance on the subject, witnesses said.

Incredibly, the therapy has been attempted on a single patient to build up knowledge of a wide range of ills. "Don't know me, I'm not paying me for your perspective," he said.

Biden interrupted the tour to return to the floor and joke, "I would like to reiterate.

The prompter, while Biden was on the stump, captured extraordinary footage of his villainous performances and the patient's response from inside the clinic.

Biden's a conservative for his family well known. Each night he makes a speech from his home in Wilmington, Del., to the Capitol of America.

Biden is serving his fourth term as president of the United States. He is the son of Senator Joe Biden and is running for re-election in 1984.

Smiley’s attorney surprised at new charges

By Phil Thomas

An attorney representing UI softball player Smiley Freedman, who is accused of battery, was "shocked" when charges were filed against her in Johnson County District Court last week.

Freedman is charged with touching UI student Cheryl Smiley with her hand, the palm of her hand and her elbow, according to court records.

"It causes a person to deny," said Johnson County Attorney J. Remington said he believed that the charges were not expected to be filed, and that Smiley’s attorney was surprised at the new charges.

"Mr. Freedman was not expecting any of these charges, just, not expected," Roberts said.

Freedman, who was born in October 1987, is a student at the University of Iowa and has been living in the UI dormitory for the past year.

In addition to the charges filed against her, Freedman also faces charges of assault and battery of a daycare worker.

"As far as we know there was nothing to this," he said.

There’s something special in the way that a simple purchase, such as an ice cream cone, can lift the spirits of the people standing in line.

Freedman, who is a full-time student at the University of Iowa, said, "I was just at the bottom of the barrel, but I was happy to see someone buy an ice cream cone for me." She added, "It was like a gift from the heavens." Freedman was at the Iowa City Dairy Queen, buying an ice cream cone, when the lady behind her said, "Would you like another one?"

Freedman, who is a junior in English, said, "That’s a great thing to hear when you’re having a bad day." She added, "I was just happy to see someone buy an ice cream cone for me."

Chair established to honor Freedman

By Anne Kevin

The Daily Iowan - 17 Sept 1987

"This was the way we all felt," said UI President, the Academic Affairs Richard Bott, announcing the establishment of the James D. Freedman Chair in Letters as a recognition honoring Freedman Friday afternoon on campus.

"We are very proud of this new chair," said Bott, "and we are very grateful to the UI Foundation for their generous support." The UI Foundation established the chair in honor of Freedman, who is a full-time student at the University of Iowa, for his contributions to the field of English.

Korean Conflict

In the past few weeks there has been an escalation of tension between the nations of Korea. The President of Korea, Chun Doo Hwan has been fighting with students and other perceived opponents.

There is growing discontent among South Koreans, especially among the middle class. This discontent stems from a feeling of being exploited and disempowered. The government has been accused of profiteering and using its power to silence opposition. Many students have been arrested and beaten.

In the weeks that have passed since the protests began, the situation has only escalated. The protesters have gained support from students and workers alike, and the government's response has been increasingly violent.

On the other hand, the North Korean government has been silent. This has led to speculations about their intentions and what they might be planning.

In conclusion, the situation in Korea is tense and volatile. The world is watching and waiting to see how this will play out. It is clear that this is a conflict that needs to be resolved peacefully.

Most likely, he'd say the Bible is inerrant, although if he could go into it in the manner and reflect, but if he were to make his authority and them that they do not believe in Christ, he would say that his authority for the Bible. This is a common argument which has been passed down from many, but not all, of our church fathers. He might even think he's echoing the language of some "parables," stories which are wonder-fully evocative and archetypal that he even socialist then. Why do I think he's left and confused? Because he might not get him to be honest and might grant that his authority for the Bible. This is in response to Earl Higgin's letter that perhaps he's put it that they do not believe in Christ, they're all either virgins or whores. For example, McNeish is telling women of his authority, although if we could pass 80 to 225 for his authority, he could go beyond his authority, although if we could pass 80 to 225 for his authority, he could not get him to be honest and might grant that his authority for the Bible. May the spirit of blessed Augustine, Streep and Barry be with you in all your personal battles over yourselves. You've lost the war and are most often defeated at the cross. held in Seoul. The South Korean government and the Korean Broadcasting System (KBS) are accused of widespread abuse of power. The protesters were also reported that KBS was planning to accommodate a delayed broadcast of the protest due to the low number of audience. The government, however, said that even if KBS delayed the show, the South Korean government would not support the opposition's call for a "no confidence" vote against the president.

PRIME Министр Lee had not sent a message to the South Korean government about the delayed broadcast, which KBS planned to make on Sunday, as a result of the military-backed ruling party's decision to delay the show in order to accommodate a "no confidence" vote against the president. Lee, who is a member of the main opposition United New Party, said he wished to remain in the position of prime minister, but that he was willing to resign if his party, the United Front, was unable to win a "no confidence" vote against the president.

In Seoul, Prime Minister Lee told the protesters that KBS had decided to delay the broadcast because of a "no confidence" vote against the president.

Lee said he was confident that his party would win the vote and that he would continue to work for the country.

The opposition declared that the ruling party was not only a problem, it was the main issue. Lee said that he was willing to resign if his party, the United Front, was unable to win the "no confidence" vote against the president.

But Lee also said that he was willing to continue to work for the country and that he would not resign if his party lost the vote. Lee said he was confident that his party would win the vote and that he would continue to work for the country.

Navratilova, Graf top Wimbledon field

In the final round before the coveted Wimbledon title, facing two daunting foes, she has not won a tournament since November. West German teenager Steffi Graf is the premier women's player at the moment, with two consecutive Grand Prix wins. Navratilova came to Britain last week aiming to reassert her superiority on her favorite grass courts, losing to Graf in the final of $30,000. She lost to Graf in the semifinals at Forest Hills in her sixth consecutive Wimbledon with a virus.

"Navratilova has to decide which side is with her," said Don Krieger, sports editor of the Daily Iowan. "She's better than Graf, but Graf is better. She hasn't been consistent and she hasn't been healthy."

Wilson's 'Red Truck' invites comparisons with Faulkner

By George Yepsen

The Daily Iowan

The Red Truck by Rudy Wilson

F I R S T novels almost always suffer. A young writer re-creating a mother's style, for example, may unwittingly reproduce her flaws. The wonder is how any young writer can avoid this fate

But Rudy Wilson, 23, son of author James Dickey, has created his first novel, The Red Truck, and isn't \textit{crushed} by the comparison with his mother's work. In the novel, Wilson introduces a story of a paddling expedition to Greenland to recover a piece of American folk art which was lost during World War II. The protagonist, a young man named Wilson, is a student at New York University who is granted an expedition by his professor, a professor who is also the novel's narrator.

The novel is set during World War II and is told through the eyes of the protagonist, Wilson. The story begins with Wilson's arrival in New York City and his desire to travel to Greenland. He is granted the opportunity to explore the Arctic and to
