District report praises schools

By Craig Sterrett
The Daily Iowan

A committed professional teaching staff, assisted by a dedicated support staff, helps create the quality education in the Iowa City Community School District, Superintendent of Schools David Cronin said Tuesday night in his annual State of the District Report.

Cronin conveyed his recommendations for the 1987-88 school year, including the establishment of a more universal smoking policy, better dealings with the needs of adolescents and the effective use of the Phase III funds.

In the 53-page report, Cronin acknowledged the progress and pointed out many of the achievements of the district during the 1986-87 school year and also some of the priorities of the district for the 1987-88 school year.

CRONIN ALSO PRAISED the school board for its involvement in other committees and its contributions to the district.

One of the committees, the Drug-Free Schools Committee, set up and had approved by the school board a one-semester course that must be taken by ninth-graders. The course will address such issues as substance abuse, sex education (including AIDS and other sexually transmitted diseases) and other contemporary health issues.

All school board members are involved in at least three committees and some are involved in state and national groups, said Cronin.

THE DISTRICT WILL offer an introductory foreign language program for elementary school students, grades four through six, beginning with the 1987-88 school year.

The program offers students courses in Spanish, French and German. One language will be taught at one school and the languages will rotate to different schools in a cycle of three years. In this way, each of the district's 15 schools may offer students a new language in each of their fourth- through sixth-grade years, according to the report.

The report also noted the district did not arrive at a voluntary settlement with the teacher's union for the first time since 1975 when the Iowa House passed legislation formalizing collective bargaining procedures in Iowa. The arbitrator ruled in favor of the board in this instance.

The report also said that, in an effort to improve communications in schools, monthly "climate meetings" were held to discuss concerns.

In other business, the Phase III Committee submitted its preliminary report to the school board. Said Committee Chairman Steve Wolken: "This was a tremendous committee. They took their charge very seriously."

The board will now study the report over the Phase III funding and will discuss it in depth at its July 14 meeting.

Committees fail to draft testimony plan

By E. Michael Myers
United Press International

WASHINGTON — The Iran-Contra committees failed to draft a plan Tuesday to compel testimony from Lt. Col. Oliver North and all negotiations on the matter "could blow up" over demands from North's lawyer, a source said.

After nearly a week's wrangling over the legal fine points, an agreement that seemed near Tuesday apparently was not concluded later in the day and committee members left the problem to simmer overnight.

A committee source said the real difficulty in forging an agreement stems from demands by North's attorney, Brendan Sullivan, including the selection of a certain date for private questioning, which conflicts with committee plans.

"Sullivan is being very difficult, and even the Republicans are getting difficult with him," the source said. "There are conditions about the private testimony (the committees) are unwilling to yield on. The date of the private testimony is one. This whole thing could blow up."

EARLIER, SOME committee members expressed concern that negotiations with the fired White House aide set a bad precedent in the handling of critical congressional witnesses.

WASHINGTON — Washington experienced another shredding party, this one in full public view, when the Iran-Contra hearings resumed Tuesday. When it was over, Oliver North's credibility was tattered, perhaps irreparably, and the congressional committees faced a new problem involving the Marine lieutenant colonel who stands at the center of the controversy.

They had been given fresh reason to wonder, as a key member acknowledged, how believable North would be if he finally takes the Iran-Contra witness stand after all the clamor for his public appearance. And they also had been given a vivid glimpse into North's bold method of operating.

What unfolded on Capitol Hill Tuesday was damning testimony about a coverup

City debates property or sales tax

By Joseph Levy
The Daily Iowan

A concept local government and business leaders are calling an exercise in good government began last year when Iowa City Manager Stephen Atkins projected the city would be nearly $1 million in debt by fiscal year 1989.

"We can expect the budget we would prepare to be about $900,000 short," Atkins said.

It was then that Atkins recommended the formation of the Citizens' Committee on City Revenues — a group that would explore potential ways of balancing the city books.

The group was formed early this year and a 14-1 majority of the group recently voted not to cut any city services, saying the city needed to consider either a property tax increase or the implementation of a local sales tax on merchandise.

IOWA REVENUE CITY

This is the first of three stories examining efforts to increase Iowa City revenue.

Ten of the committee's 15 members took the position that the property tax was the viable route to create additional revenue while the other five members favored the sales tax.

THE IOWA CITY COUNCIL mulled over the recommendations of the committee at its June 15 informal meeting, but tabled talks until a public discussion scheduled for June 30 at the council's formal meeting.

Councilors and local business leaders are currently pondering the advantages and disadvantages of both plans.

The property tax increase, which Iowa City Mayor William Ambrisco said would probably be an additional 4 to 5 percent increase over any annual increase, is being billed by its supporters as the fairest proposal.

The committee report from the 10 members supporting the property tax increase claims that while the tax would be regressive among low-to-middle income households, it would be progressive at higher income levels, taking a larger share of the higher income households.

Myles Braverman, a local businessman on the committee, said the additional tax would not be detrimental to lower income and fixed-income households.

"THERE ARE ENOUGH programs in place to help soften that," he said, referring to state assistance programs.

But beyond the impact additional taxes will have on the individual, leaders are concerned about the way taxes affect the business climate of the city.

While supporters of the property tax increase say it would have little effect on the retail sales pattern of the city, some leaders are very hesitant about making this claim.

"We have to be very careful," Iowa City Chamber of Commerce Executive Vice President Patrick Grady said. "With a property tax increase you lay out an increase in the cost of production for businesses in this town."

Grady said that consideration may make Iowa City less attractive to incoming businesses.

But Atkins pointed out this may be an oversimplification.

"MOST BUSINESSES make their location decisions on a variety of factors," he said, citing labor source, transportation, market and financial feasibility as primary concerns. "There are business leaders who have told me they would prefer a property tax to a sales tax."

Supporters of the sales tax implementation — a 1 cent addition to the 4 cent state tax on merchandise levied in the metropolitan area of Iowa City — claim the tax would reach a broader base of users of city services.

Committee chairman Craig Willis, a supporter of the local sales tax, explained it would

Iowa native accepts Joffrey challenge

By Anne Kevlin
The Daily Iowan

Mark Wuest is explaining how the sequence of numbers type-written on a piece of paper will someday translate into fluid ballet movements when the Joffrey Ballet performs Stravinsky's "The Rites of Spring."

"This is a plie, this is a step and then this is a lunge," he says, pointing at each number.

Wuest, who has been a member of the prestigious Joffrey

Ballet for nearly a year, has quickly learned how to decipher a choreography chart. But, had he not enrolled in a UI dance class five years ago, the Marshalltown native might have been studying consumer index charts for a career.

Originally a pre-business major, Wuest signed up for a class in beginning ballet for men and eventually graduated from the UI in 1984 with a degree in dance. An avid swimmer and gymnast, he said he had no interest in competing in college, but the need for exercise prompted him to try dancing.

"I REQUIRE PHYSICAL activity, just for my sanity," Wuest said. "I was a little bit bored and unstimulated, just by school in general at that time."

Dance was a new experience for Wuest and it proved to be the challenge he needed. And it didn't take long for his talent to shine through. He performed for a while with the Kansas City Ballet, and when the Joffrey performed at Hancher Auditorium early in 1986, Wuest drove here to participate in a company class.

Wuest said he hoped the heads of the Joffrey would give him a scholarship to the school for the summer — but what they ended up giving him was a job with the world-renowned ballet company.

"I didn't expect to get this job," he said.

Part of a career in dancing is adjusting to a careful lifestyle. The lifestyle of a dancer requires some discipline and a lot of intelligence, according to Wuest.

"YOU JUST HAVE to keep it in mind that your body is your profession," he said. "At the same time, I don't want to live my life so carefully that I don't have fun in my spare time. I do everything in moderation, including moderation." Living in New York City, one of the Joffrey's home bases, is an aspect of his job Wuest said he enjoys.

"I also like that my job takes

Drowning teenager saved

DES MOINES — A Des Moines fisherman saved Michael Leedy, 17, of Des Moines, from drowning late Monday by hooking him on his line and reeling him to shore, police said Tuesday.

Officer Douglas Boal said Leedy had been trying to wade across a lagoon in a park on the city's south side when he slipped beneath the water's surface.

Leedy, who had been under water about two minutes, had no pulse and was not breathing when he was pulled from the water by David Nuttig, Boal said. Leedy was listed in critical condition Tuesday at Iowa Methodist Medical Center.

Judge commits suicide

CHICAGO — A former Cook County judge whose name had surfaced in the Operation Greylord investigation of courtroom corruption took his own life, ending any chance of becoming the ninth judge to fall victim to the federal probe of the nation's largest judicial system.

Allen F. Rosin, 56, was found fully clothed in a tanning booth in the posh McClurg Court Sports Center early Monday morning with a gun shot wound to the head. No suicide note was found at the scene, police said.

Man acts in self-defense

ROCK ISLAND, Ill. — A Davenport man was acting in self-defense when he fatally stabbed the husband of a co-worker at the IBP Inc. meatpacking plant in Joslin, Ill., last January, a defense attorney said Tuesday.

Fernando Gonzalez, 21, is charged with murder and voluntary manslaughter in the Jan. 30 stabbing death of Jerry Skiff, 24, of LeClaire, Iowa, that resulted from a feud between Gonzalez and Skiff's wife, who also worked at the IBP plant.

Pipe bomber sentenced

CHICAGO — Earl Steven Karr, who told authorities he planted pipe bombs in cities where he didn't feel welcome, has been sentenced to 10 years in prison for planting five bombs in Chicago in 1984.

Karr, 26, of Minnesota, was sentenced Monday by Cook County Criminal Court Judge James M. Bailey after pleading guilty to five counts of possession of an explosive device.

Karr had been charged with planting a total of 23 bombs in Illinois, Iowa, Minnesota and Wisconsin between May 3 and June 8, 1984. Six people were injured by the devices.

He was arrested after a pipe bomb in his rental car accidentally exploded in Mason City, Iowa, on June 8, 1984.

Banker jailed for forgery

SIOUX CITY, Iowa — A former Paullina, Iowa, bank president has been sentenced to two years in prison for attempting to defraud the First National Bank, officials said Tuesday.

Dennis Petersen was convicted of forging a cashier's name on two checks worth $104,000 and misapplying money with intent to defraud the institution.

McStop refuels travelers

WILLIAMSBURG, Iowa — Travelers going through Iowa may soon have a McStop to go along with the McChickens and Big Maes.

McDonald's Corp. briefed Iowa County supervisors about building a restaurant, gas station and motel complex near Williamsburg in a new travel concept called McStop.

The land proposed for the McDonald's complex lies just north of Interstate 80 and east of Iowa 149.

UI prepared to implement Public Policy Center in fall

By Scott Hauser
The Daily Iowan

One of the first recommendations of the task force on University Strategies for the Future Development of the State will be implemented next fall as the UI introduces its Public Policy Center on the UI campus, UI officials said Tuesday.

"One of the major premises of that report is that the university needs to get more involved in the economic development of the state," said UI Professor of Urban and Regional Planning and Civil and Environmental Engineering David J. Forckenbrock, the center's director.

"That's the premise of the policy center," said Forckenbrock. The center will put together interdisciplinary teams from the UI to conduct research on public policy issues affecting the state and to analyze the impact and alternatives of those decisions, Forckenbrock said.

"PUBLIC POLICY is the actions taken by a society to achieve objectives directly related to the quality of life of that society," he said, citing groundwater research, highway infrastructure research and problems of rural Iowans as examples of projects the center may study.

The state Board of Regents approved a report outlining the establishment of the center at its Cedar Falls meeting last week.

UI President James O. Freedman established the 20-member task force in January 1986 to study ways the UI could use its resources to "open avenues for healthier economic development." The task force released its final report last February.

Forckenbrock said the research and analysis the center's teams collect will be provided to the state Legislature, the state's major departments and the private sector.

"THIS IS A LOT better than what they have now," he said. "Oftentimes the Legislature doesn't have anybody to give them a clear idea of the impact of their decisions."

UI Graduate College Dean for Advanced Studies Rudolph W. Schulz said the UI is ideal for such a flexible and interdisciplinary center.

The UI has faculty members who do research that would be helpful to policymakers, but the research is conducted in different departments that often do not collaborate with each other, he said.

"The resources really haven't been marshalled into an effective arrangement for people who need the research to find it," Schulz said.

He said one of the exciting things about the center is that it will draw on faculty members in the health and social sciences, law, business, engineering, urban and regional planning, geography and other departments.

"THE PROBLEM SORT of defines the people who do the research," he said.

The center is one of a growing number of centers in the country, Forckenbrock said, adding only 12 to 15 major universities have public policy centers.

Unlike its more established counterparts — Harvard University's John F. Kennedy School of Government and the University of Minnesota's Hubert H. Humphrey Institute of Public Affairs — the UI center would focus more on Midwestern issues rather than international policy, he said.

The state Legislative Council — comprised of the leaders of the state's two legislative bodies — has expressed a great deal of interest in the center, Forckenbrock said.

The new center will also conduct symposia throughout the year and will provide an opportunity for faculty and students to get together to talk about public policy issues, he said.

Forckenbrock said the new center is slated to have its own facility this fall, but will gradually work into a full schedule of events.

"It's off the ground, but has yet to achieve cruising altitude," Forckenbrock said. "Eventually, it will become a major feature of the university."

Police

An Iowa City man was found dead early Tuesday morning on a stairwell of an Iowa City apartment building at 739 Michael St., according to police reports.

The subject was identified as Todd Osterkamp, 23, of 737 Michael St., by Acting Johnson County Medical Examiner Victor Edwards. Edwards said Tuesday night that no cause of death had been determined, but foul play was not suspected in the incident.

Police were called to the scene at 10:17 a.m. Tuesday, by a resident of the building who reported the subject was passed out in the stairwell and not breathing, police records state.

Report: A group of people were reported playing football in Memory Gardens Cemetery at about 2:30 a.m. Monday, according to police reports.

David Paul Close, 18, 61 Regal Lane, was charged with public intoxication, being in the cemetery after hours and drinking under the legal age in connection with the incident, according to the report.

Report: A man wearing cutoff jeans was reported "picking fights" with pedestrians outside of the Vine Tavern, 330 E. Prentiss St., at about 6 p.m. Monday, according to police reports.

Police were unable to locate the subject, according to the report.

Report: Two male subjects were reported entering a cornfield near the Iowa City Airport at about 9 p.m. Monday, according to police reports.

Airport officials have reported recent thefts of lights from the runways, and neighbors in the area have been asked to call in suspicious persons in the area, according to the report.

Theft: An Iowa City man reported Tuesday that his 1970 gold, four-door Chevrolet Impala was stolen west of West High School sometime early Tuesday morning, according to police reports.

Theft: An Iowa City man reported the overnight thefts of a 19-inch color TV, a compact disc player and an equalizer Tuesday afternoon in the 400 block of South Dodge Street, according to police reports.

The report stated the TV is valued at $400, the compact disc player at $75 and the equalizer at $27.

Missouri state official stumps for Gephardt

Missouri Lt. Gov. Harriet Woods will be in Iowa City today to campaign on behalf of Democratic presidential candidate Rep. Richard Gephardt.

Woods will campaign for the Missouri Democrat at The Brown Bottle, 115 E. Washington St., at 6 p.m. She will also attend a reception at the home of Minnette and Fred Doderer, 2008 Dunlap Court. Both events are open to the public.

UI School of Social Work honors Sackter

The UI School of Social Work will hold the fourth annual Bill Sackter Day beginning at 1 p.m. Tuesday, June 30, at North Hall.

The event honors the memory of the late Bill Sackter, a former Iowa City resident who spent 44 years in a mental institution and whose life story was portrayed by actor Mickey Rooney in the award-winning films "Bill" and "Bill: On His Own."

Both movies will be shown beginning at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday in North Hall Room 208.

In addition to the movies, an open house will be featured at Bill's Coffee Shop in North Hall from 1-5 p.m. The open house will be followed by a dinner in the coffee shop beginning at 6:30 p.m.

A program following the dinner will present as speaker screenwriter Barry Morrow, who served as Bill's guardian after his release from the institution. The program will also feature informal reminiscences about Bill by members of the School of Social Work.

Bill Sackter Day activities are free and open to the public. Donations will be accepted and reservations may be made for the dinner by calling the UI School of Social Work.

Locksmiths provide easy UI access

Campus service shop opens more doors than the Avon lady

By D.R. Miller
The Daily Iowan

They hold the keys to success at the UI. They open doors for people all over the UI campus.

John Cahill, manager of the UI Miscellaneous Services Shop, and his staff of locksmiths maintain 25,000 doors in 250 campus buildings and houses.

"Our job is to maintain the key systems, doors, door hardware shades, blinds and movie screens for the UI campus," Cahill said.

"We have several million keys out there," Cahill said, adding in one six-week period last fall the locksmiths cut 10,000 keys.

The key shop provides UI Parking Services alone with 6,000 keys each year, Master Locksmith Margaret Ruddy said.

The UI builds its own master key systems, something not many places do, Cahill said. Many institutions buy commercial locks and install them, but the UI decided building its own key systems would save maintenance costs, he said.

THE SHOP'S ANNUAL budget is $282,000, and it carries about $150,000 in lock hardware, Cahill said.

"You have to have a special personality to be a locksmith," Jim Miller, a 17-year employee of the lockshop, said, explaining the locksmiths have to work closely together.

"We learn not just from the instructions, but from others at the end of the day," Miller said. "We all exchange information about what we did or if we came up on something new."

At one time, because they had access to many sensitive places on campus, locksmiths were once required to pass a security clearance in which they were bonded by the UI.

"During the riots in the 1960s, we were one of the few shops on campus that could go anywhere without being hassled by either side," Cahill said.

When first lady Nancy Reagan came to campus, Cahill's employees were responsible for sewing a new backdrop for the stage in Lindquist Center where she was to speak.

"THERE IS A heavy-duty sewing machine upstairs we use for sewing," Cahill said. "If there is a heavy sewing job to be done, we do that, too."

"We never do the same job two days in a row," Cleo Lynch, a 23-year employee of the lock shop, said.

"We are all family here," Ruddy said. "There isn't a better bunch of guys to work with on campus." Ruddy, one of a few women working in the UI Physical Plant, became a locksmith in 1979.

But the job does have its problems.

Most of the problems encountered by the locksmiths involve people trying, unsuccessfully, to get into or out of an office or classroom where the key will not work. Some of these incidents are more memorable than others, Ruddy said.

"Once I got an after-hours call. There were two women trapped in their dorm room in Burge," Ruddy said. The locksmith was unable to get the door open from the outside and had to open the door from the inside after crawling across the roof onto a ledge and entering the room through a window.

AS RUDDY EXITED the room, again through the window, "One of the women had to hold the back of my pants so I wouldn't slip and fall," Ruddy said. The locksmiths are on call 24 hours a day, seven days a week, including holidays.

"Once there were eight kids trapped in a dorm room over the holiday break. They had been partying and they were unable to get out of the room," Lynch recalled. "When I finally got the door opened, they all headed straight for the bathrooms."

The key shop took part in the UI's test of the first automatic door openers for disabled people, according to locksmith Elson Byler.

Byler said the LCN Door Co., in Princeton, Ill., developed the first handicapped door opener in the country. "We installed them here at the UI and tested them," Byler added.

The UI now has 14 of the door openers installed across campus.

Glass remains hostage despite warning

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Syrian authorities Tuesday demanded the release of American Charles Glass and the son of Lebanon's defense minister and threatened action against the Moslem extremist kidnappers unless the hostages were freed.

But the sundown deadline set by the Syrians passed with no word on the captives and a security source reported that a crack unit from Syria's special forces had moved into the Bekaa Valley, a hotbed of Lebanon's Moslem fundamentalists.

Col. Ali Hammoud, chief of the Syrian force in Lebanon, refused to say whether Syria would take military action to free the hostages kidnapped last Wednesday.

Court ruling ties highway funds to booze

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court, supporting the move toward a national minimum drinking age, ruled Tuesday that Congress may reduce federal highway funds to states that refuse to raise their drinking age to 21.

The court, stepping into a contentious clash between state rights and congressional authority, concluded on a 7-2 vote that Congress has broad power to set standards for the spending of federal funds. If states do not wish to meet those standards, they may turn down the money, Chief Justice William Rehnquist said in rejecting an appeal from South Dakota.

Congress "has offered a relatively mild encouragement to the states" to raise their drinking age, Rehnquist said, and it "remains the prerogative of the states" whether they comply.

AIDS report calls for leadership, caution

CHICAGO — The American Medical Association Tuesday adopted its first comprehensive report on AIDS, calling for more national leadership in dealing with the epidemic and a cautious approach to screening people for the virus.

The AMA also decided to start a wide-reaching AIDS public awareness and information program, and endorsed the use of condoms as one useful measure to contain the spread of the AIDS virus.

But AMA officials emphasized the group's position on the issue goes beyond setting AIDS-testing guidelines. "We're calling for a national commission to look at this problem, we're calling for increased training for counseling, and we're calling for appropriate care to be given to those afflicted with this illness," said Robert McAfee, an AMA trustee.

Bush spokesman denies affair rumor

WASHINGTON — Spokesmen for George Bush and his presidential campaign dismissed rumors Tuesday that have circulated in the nation's capital about an extramarital affair involving the vice president.

The rumors also have been widespread in Iowa where the Republican caucus will be held in February. George Wittgraff, Bush's Iowa campaign director, said he was hesitant to discuss the rumors because his comments might only be used to substantiate them.

"I see it as really irrelevant and an unfortunate and meaningless digression from the substance of a campaign. There's absolutely no factual basis to any of the comments regarding the so-called affair," Wittgraff said.

Wittgraff refused to state the rumors were started by Dole's campaign workers. "I'm not sure whose been fueling them," he said.

Soviets assail chemical weapons

MOSCOW — Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev said Tuesday the Soviet Union has stopped manufacturing chemical weapons and was building a facility to destroy stockpiles of the arms.

Gorbachev announced the project during an address in which he urged the West to adopt a "realistic" approach to nuclear arms control. He said Washington was "testing our patience" by avoiding concrete responses to Soviet proposals.

Gorbachev, trying to underscore his point, said the Soviet Union ceased the manufacture of chemical weapons while Washington has gone ahead with plans to produce a new generation of biological weapons.

Western estimates of the size of the Soviet chemical weapons arsenal range between 300,000 tons and 500,000 tons — far larger than the West's.

Bakkers hope for PTL return fades

TEGA CAY, S.C. — Jim and Tammy Faye Bakkers' lawyer reported Tuesday the couple had sent the Rev. Jerry Falwell a message of "mediation, reconciliation and forgiveness" and would move out of their million-dollar lakeside "parsonage" without a fight.

A long and lawyer-like statement issued by attorney Jim Toms, left in charge of the Bakkers' case by Melvin Belli, indicated the defrocked evangelist and his wife had given up all hope of regaining the PTL ministry in a legal battle.

However, he said the Bakkers are "not distancing themselves" from the Bring Backer Back movement set up by followers who want the Bakkers back at the helm of the PTL. "I think it would be fair to say their hearts and love are with the ministry of PTL," he said.

Vietnam deserter gets discharge

QUANTICO, Va. — The Marines freed Vietnam deserter Douglas Beane Tuesday, and proclaiming "the cloud of fear is gone," the 17-year fugitive left for the homecoming with his parents that led him to risk court-martial and return to America.

Beane, a Marine private, deserted during the Vietnam War in 1970 but surrendered to U.S. authorities in Australia last Dec. 15 when he applied for a visa to the United States.

"I never had such a wonderful birthday present," said Beane, who turned 40 June 19.

Conviction of desertion in wartime carries a maximum sentence of life imprisonment. The discharge is under "less than honorable conditions" — neither honorable nor dishonorable — and Beane forfeits all pay and eligibility for veterans benefits, a Marine Corps spokesman said.

Bhopal gas leak brings back memories

BHOPAL, India — About 200,000 people, some shouting "run, run, the killer gas has come again," fled their homes in panic Tuesday as ammonia gas leaked from an ice factory near the site of the world's worst industrial disaster.

Several people were injured in the stampede as residents rushed out of areas that witnessed similar scenes in the early hours of Dec. 3, 1984, when toxic gas leaked from the Union Carbide pesticide plant, killing more than 2,500 people.

S.Korean leaders set to meet

By Spencer Sherman
United Press International

SEOUL, South Korea — President Chun Doo Hwan and opposition leader Kim Young-sam Tuesday set up an unprecedented meeting for today to seek a compromise solution to the country's two-week political crisis and daily street violence.

The meeting was announced hours after the Reagan administration's top Asian troubleshooter, Gaston Sigur, arrived in Seoul to press for reform of the South Korean political system and what he called fulfillment of the people's "strong desire to move towards stronger democracy."

A spokesman for the opposition Reunification Democratic Party said Kim and Chun would meet at 10:30 a.m. today (9:30 p.m. Iowa time Tuesday).

Tens of thousands of students demonstrated again Tuesday across the country to demand that Chun reopen debate on revision of the 1980 martial law constitution to allow direct presidential elections.

THE BROAD-BASED National Coalition for a Democratic Constitution scheduled a "march for peace" in Seoul and other cities Friday. A similar rally June 10 began two weeks of the worst political violence seen in South Korea since Chun took power in 1980.

In Seoul, where persistent rioting and ubiquitous clouds of tear gas have repeatedly paralyzed the city center, demonstrations Tuesday were generally peaceful. About 20,000 people assembled without major incident at Yonsei University, a hotbed of violent protest.

Chun, who has remained aloof throughout the crisis, broke his public silence at the dedication of a nuclear power plant in a southern province, calling for "dialogue and compromise."

Political sources say the former four-star general, who is backed by military elites in key government positions, appears to have heeded the moderate wing of his ruling Democratic Justice Party.

But diplomats and other seasoned observers said hardliners calling for military repression of the protests could still win out if a compromise is not reached soon.

Reagan ready for budget war

By Linda Werfelman
United Press International

WASHINGTON — The House passed a $1 trillion budget compromise Tuesday, setting up a confrontation with President Ronald Reagan over provisions he says demand too much from taxpayers and give too little to the Pentagon.

The measure, approved 215-201, goes to the Senate today, where final approval is expected. Thirty-four Democrats voted against the measure, which had the support of only three Republicans in the nearly party-line vote.

Reagan has denounced the plan repeatedly over the last week, saying it would "raise taxes and gut defense" and complaining that it was drawn up by "those tax-and-spend trolls under the Capitol Dome."

He repeated his pledge to veto any legislation "that raises the

U.S. foreign debt rises past $263 billion mark

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. foreign debt more than doubled last year to $263.6 billion, larger than the three biggest developing nations combined, the Commerce Department said Tuesday.

The report on America's Net International Investment Position marks the steepest drop yet into red ink for a country that was the world's largest creditor nation as late as 1982 and racked up surpluses from 1919 through 1984.

Officials as prominent as outgoing Federal Reserve Chairman Paul Volcker have warned debtor status means the United States is in the uncomfortable position of depending on other nations to keep its economy going.

American people's taxes" with Congress" over the spending plan.

Hours before the vote, House Speaker Jim Wright of Texas accused Reagan of "obviously . . . attempting to divert attention from his world problems by trying to stage a phony fight

"HE SOUNDS MORE like a sideshow barker than a president," Wright said.

Reagan has no authority to sign or veto the budget resolution, which will serve as a blueprint for government spending for fiscal 1988, which begins Oct. 1. But he does have veto rights on subsequent legislation that will be needed to write many budget provisions into law.

The measure calls for new taxes totaling $19.3 billion in fiscal 1988 and $64.3 billion through fiscal 1990. It does not specify how the money would be raised, leaving that task to other congressional committees.

It also includes a two-tier military spending plan that would link the higher spending level of $296 billion to Reagan's approval of new taxes. If he rejected tax provisions, the Pentagon would have authority to spend $289 billion.

11-year-old pilot flies for record

ARLINGTON, Texas (UPI) — John Kevin Hill could be considered a typical sixth-grader, except that he's trying to become the youngest pilot to fly across the United States.

John Kevin said he hopes to set a record for flying around the world in 1989 and would like to become a space shuttle astronaut.

Home sweet home

Last week, the state Board of Regents renewed the tenant lease of a company called Functional Home Designers which occupies space at the UI's Technology Innovation Center.

The decision to renew the tenant lease of Functional Home Designers shows the UI's commitment and concern for those needing specialized housing due to aging and physical disabilities.

The company consults with homeowners, architects and builders in an attempt to build and modify homes for less functional area residents who wish to remain independent and live in their own homes.

The Technology Innovation Center is designed to promote the success of companies which are just starting out by providing them with office space and funding while they are getting on their feet. By helping companies get off to a good start, the center is instrumental in efforts to revitalize Iowa's economy and encourage the growth of small business in our state.

The efforts of the technology center in helping any new company get off the ground is admirable, and to extend that support to such a praiseworthy business such as Functional Home Designers, is even better.

Functional Home Designers is a company which makes possible the continued independence of persons with disabilities and aging citizens of local communities. Their efforts to help senior citizens and those with disabilities is commendable and should be the standard in any community.

Living in nursing homes and care facilities is simply not the same as living at "home." A company which works to help those who wish to remain on their own is a company worthy of the UI's support.

Also, by continuing to integrate and promote access of aging persons and persons with disabilities in local neighborhoods, universities, businesses and everywhere else, those persons will continue to add to our communities and our lives.

A cool breeze

Graceful dancers, poetry readings, theater, story times, sculptures, weavings and pottery mixing with flutes, guitars, fiddles and voices. Add a fountain with children playing in it — and one might think this a picture of some far-away city.

"Shall I compare thee to a summer's day?" asked William Shakespeare in a poem to a loved one. (Obviously, Shakespeare had never been to Iowa City in late June.) But, amidst the horrible humidity of an Iowa City summer, one can find a cool spot for the spirit this week in the downtown pedestrian mall.

Thanks to ArtsFest '87 — a cooperative project of the Iowa City Downtown Association, the Iowa City/Johnson County Arts Council, the Iowa City Parks and Recreation Department, the Iowa City Public Library, The UI Fine Arts Council and the Greater Iowa City Area Chamber of Commerce — there is a different type of Iowa sunshine to taste, touch, smell or just to sit and watch.

The people of Iowa City and the UI should take time away from air-conditioned offices, libraries, apartments or the beach to open their artistic horizons to the many colors of ArtsFest '87. (And to perhaps thank the organizers and participants while they're at it.)

But perhaps there is something to regret about ArtsFest '87... it's not year round.

Fond farewell

Movie critic Pauline Kael once called his dancing "the most beautiful and wittiest expression of American romanticism on screen." But if Fred Astaire had been just a great dancer, he would not be remembered as fondly as he is by millions of movie fans today.

In movies such as The Gay Divorcee, Top Hat, The Band Wagon and innumerable others, Fred Astaire represented a touch of class. Looking at his movies today, one cannot get a sense of what he and his longtime partner, Ginger Rogers, meant to the audiences of the Depression; the happiness they gave them and the dreams they inspired. But as it did then, his class still comes across, and so does his genius.

As an actor, Astaire was nominated only once for an Academy Award, for The Towering Inferno. But he deserved more Oscars than the academy could have possibly given for all the talent, grace and enthusiasm contained in his movies.

In a day and age when style is generally represented by game show letter-turners and heavy metal rock stars, Fred Astaire will be missed in more ways than one.

Peace march leads to understanding

THE following are the words of Maureen McCue, a physician at UI Student Health Services as she marches for peace through Novgorod, U.S.S.R., 400 kilometers south of Leningrad, with 230 other Americans and about 200 Soviets on their way to Moscow.

"We're walking down the Moscow-Leningrad Highway, the main highway in the Soviet Union. We are greeted by so many Soviet people wherever we go... it's a very major event here. Thousands of people are coming out to embrace us and to speak with us and to walk with us... They want to know us, to meet us. They want us to bring a message back of peace and friendship."

McCue is walking in what can be considered the "other half" of the Great Peace March — 500 men and women who marched from Los Angeles to Washington, D.C., last year. In fact, 230 members of the Great Peace March are now part of the current march across the Soviet Union.

McCUE DESCRIBES HER day-to-day experiences:

"Everywhere we go people are dancing and singing, making us feel very welcome and trying to extend friendship to us by inviting us into their homes. The children have been teaching us songs and have learned a couple of ours."

"As we walk, a very large percentage of people greet us at each town, some giving us gifts. The children are on bikes riding alongside us. The older people sit and wave with tears in their eyes. They want so much for peace in the world. It's very overwhelming. The Soviets marching with us are expressing as much surprise as the Americans."

"When we're not on the march, we have free time, and are allowed to do just about anything. As a physician, I've spent some time with Soviet physicians and in Soviet hospitals. We have different ways of handling medical problems, but we haven't had any trouble overcoming those differences."

Last year, many people questioned the impact of the Great Peace March, questioned the idealist visions of those who marched across America. They questioned what all that walking did to change the minds of those people in big offices behind closed doors in Washington, D.C.

BUT POLICY MAKING is not what these peace marches are all about.

After visiting the "peace city" of the Great Peace March when they came through Iowa City last year, I had two particular questions: "Why are you doing this?" and "How do you know complete disarmament will work?"

The "why" question was answered by a woman in her late 60s. She and her husband had come to my apartment with a group of marchers to take showers and eat dinner. These two surprised me more than any of the other marchers (although they were all very different). They surprised me because of their age and because I had the feeling that they were not the type who had been protesting their whole lives.

The woman explained why they decided to march:

"We were at a New Year's Eve party and everyone was asked to write down what they wished for the new year. After midnight we all opened the slips of paper and shared with each other," she explained.

"There were several young children there, and one, a girl, had drawn a picture of a plane. We asked, 'Why a plane?' and she answered, 'Because the planes drop the bombs.'"

The woman said she had never seen such concern, such worry from a child. "This child was questioning whether or not there would be a world for her to grow up in," said the woman. Soon after, she and her husband heard about and decided to join the Great Peace March. They didn't know if they could make it the whole way — but they were taking it one step at a time — and hoping for the best.

THE SECOND QUESTION, "Is total disarmament possible?" is not one which could be answered so easily. Since the first successful test of a thermonuclear bomb in 1952, scholars have argued out the questions surrounding building up nuclear forces.

Today, the policy arguments rage on among policymakers, scientists and citizens of many nations. These policy questions are important, and certainly the Great Peace March and now the Soviet Peace March attempt to educate people on the issues.

And while policy arguments are essential in the world, these marches do something educationally that cannot be done in big offices behind doors.

And this is what the Soviet Peace March and the Great American Peace march are really all about.

They are about people learning to work together, sharing food, sleeping quarters, cooking, blisters, dances, sorrows, smiles. They are about going back to the roots of Soviet-U.S. tensions — fear and mistrust — and eliminating them one at a time.

"Humanity has now achieved, for the first time in its history, the power to end history," President Dwight D. Eisenhower said in 1956.

Now, more than 30 years later, we must assure the older people that there is still hope. And moreover, we must teach the children being "different" isn't necessarily bad. For if we keep our minds open to learning and keep believing in each other, we won't have any trouble overcoming those differences.

Reflections: James O. Freedman's era

THE office in Jessup Hall Room 101 is now vacant. Its occupant for the past five years, UI President James O. Freedman, is making final preparations for the move back to his native New Hampshire and the presidency of Dartmouth College.

Freedman's five years and three months was a time of transition for the UI, with greater emphasis placed on technology and international education. Some have been critical, saying this new emphasis came at the expense of such traditional strengths as liberal arts. Freedman counters, noting for the UI to remain a strong institution in the next several years, it needs to be on the "cutting edge" of such fields as laser science and international education in order for the more traditional fields to remain strong.

There are three things the UI needs to do to stay competitive into the 21st century, according to Freedman. First, the UI must maintain its current strengths. He pointed out that it is much easier to maintain a program than try to rebuild one after a period of deterioration.

SECONDLY, THERE MUST be a strengthening of science facilities. This is not a problem unique to the UI; many colleges are finding their laboratory facilities slipping behind those in some high schools. Freedman would include the performing arts in this category, in addition to the physical and natural sciences.

Finally, the university and the state must do everything possible to attract the strongest faculty and best students available. While this will all require expending additional scarce resources, Freedman indicated the UI really can't afford not to make the investment.

Despite what critics may say about the specific directions the UI has taken under Freedman, all must admit that the man does understand the job of being a university president. He knows when to listen, and when to delegate. He learns on the job, taking mental notes so mistakes made will not be repeated unnecessarily.

And while at the UI — despite six-day weeks and 15-hour days — Freedman always put on a cordial front, whether fielding a question from the press, soliciting funds from a wealthy donor or speaking to a local service club — all daily parts of the job.

WHEN I ASKED Freedman about his time in Iowa, the conversation always turned to how friendly the people were, and how much courtesy was shown him. Being a New England native, Freedman seemed genuinely refreshed by the warm treatment Iowans gave him; a contrast to the more "chilly" East Coast lifestyle. When asked to cite his fondest memories of 63 months in Iowa City, Freedman recalled December 1982, his first Christmas in Iowa, when a group of students surprised him and his wife at their house and sang Christmas carols. The incident has been repeated every year since, and it seemed to genuinely touch Freedman each time.

His final words to the university community: "Buy more books." An avid collector, Freedman remarked on the "excellent collection" of book stores in Iowa City, compared with only one bookstore at Dartmouth. "We need to keep them in business," he said.

It was a relatively brief period, the James O. Freedman era at the UI. How memorable it will eventually become is uncertain, but who will be certainly remembered is a caring, dedicated, capable individual who enjoyed his stay among friendly and open people.

Jeff Stein is a DI columnist.

attempt involving backdated "phony bills" sent North, backdated "phony letters" he sent in return and elaborate attempts — including the filing of typewriter keys — designed to provide "an action calculated to deceive," in the characterization of Rep. Ed Jenkins, D-Ga.

IN THIS CASE, the operative was Glenn A. Robinette, who served 20 years in the Central Intelligence Agency's "technical services," which, the committees learned, "establish false documents." He now works as a "private security consultant."

Robinette, a retiring, mild-mannered, soft-spoken, white-haired witness, told how he installed an elaborate $13,900 security system at North's home in Great Falls, Va., last year at the request of retired Major General Richard V. Secord, a key figure in shipping U.S. arms to Iran and resupplying Nicaraguan Contra forces with proceeds from those deals.

Secord wanted the system installed, Robinette testified, because North had received threatening calls, his family had been subjected to harassment at their home and the former national security aide had been dissatisfied with the posting of two guards on his property.

WORK ON THE SYSTEM — which included remote control gates, alarms, lights, and heat and smoke detectors — began in May last year and was completed early in July. Robinette testified, under persistent questioning, that it was paid for entirely by Secord and that he never expected to bill or receive payment from North.

That fact became critical in the testimony Tuesday because it is a federal crime for a U.S. employee "to receive any form of compensation for his services other than his salary."

Last December, nearly six months after the system was installed and after North was fired from his White House job for his role in the diversion of funds to the Contras, North phoned him, Robinette said. "He said that, 'By the way, you never sent me a bill,' or 'you've never billed me for that security installation at my residence,' and 'how about — you better send me a bill,' or 'please send me a bill.'"

Robinette obliged. He sent two. Both were false, he testified.

The first was backdated to July 2, 1986.

The select committees had met separately in closed session during a break in public hearings to discuss arrangements for the former National Security Council staff member's testimony about his involvement in the worst scandal of the Reagan presidency.

But House committee Chairman Lee Hamilton, D-Ind., came out of the private session to say no final deal had yet been struck. The Senate panel met after the day's hearing and Senate committee Vice Chairman Warren Rudman, R-N.H., said no agreement had been reached. The committees were expected to try again today.

The snag in negotiations apparently rests with North's desire to testify only in public — depriving panel lawyers of preparatory private sessions. Though North was granted limited immunity from prosecution June 15, his lawyers, led by Sullivan, said last week the immunity order does not apply to private questioning.

THAT OPINION, offered a day before North was first to appear last Thursday before committee attorneys, threw the questioning process askew. Some Senate panel members said they could live with public questioning only, but House members said Tuesday the private interrogation was necessary.

House committee member Jim Courter, R-N.J., said the House panel was insisting on a private session with North because "we want prenotification if the president knew."

North is believed to hold the key to numerous questions about President Ronald Reagan's knowledge of the diversion of profits from the U.S. arms sales to Iran to the Nicaraguan rebels.

also serve to lower the property taxes for community residents.

"The 1 percent sales tax can provide $1 million for positive services plus $1 million for property tax relief," he said.

State law, which controls 87 percent of city spending, mandates that some of the funds raised through a local sales tax be used to decrease local property taxes.

ADDITIONALLY, Willis said the council may be more apt to favor the sales tax route because it must be approved by a referendum of voters — taking the heat off the council.

"(That) is more politically palatable for the council to do," he said.

But the sales tax could also have adverse affects, Grady said.

"There is concern on what impact it would have on the retail community," Grady said, adding the amount of property tax relief generated by the sales tax would be a decisive issue.

The council is expected to vote on the committee's recommendations at its meeting next week.

me away from there," he said.

The Joffrey company has been in Iowa City for the past three weeks rehearsing for the December performance of "The Nutcracker" in Hancher Auditorium. Wuest said he has enjoyed being back in Iowa City and being able to visit family and friends.

Other Joffrey dancers were not as excited about the prospect of spending a month in Iowa.

"People were apprehensive about coming here for a month, but people have really had a good time," Wuest said.

THE DANCERS begin rehearsals every weekday at 10 a.m. and wind up their days around 7 p.m., said Wuest. The job is rigorous both physically and mentally, he said.

"Some people maintain their jobs by being really smart," he said, adding dancers have to be intelligent along with having athletic bodies.

"I've seen lots of bodies that don't have minds," Wuest said. "Memorizing choreography and knowing how to take care of the body requires brains."

Dancing, for Wuest, is a career choice that is challenging and enjoyable. He said his family and friends are excited about it. Wuest said he is content being a member of the Joffrey.

"Content, but not complacent," he said.

Rain halts, Wimbledon gets rolling

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI) — Boris Becker, finally getting a chance to unleash his energy after two days of waiting, struck down Karel Novacek in straight sets Tuesday to begin defense of his Wimbledon title.

Ivan Lendl, meantime, struggled on a dark, wet afternoon before subduing an 18-year-old qualifier he knew nothing about and who has yet to win a Grand Prix match this year.

Becker, with his flashy style, entertained a Center Court crowd which had waited until late afternoon of the second day before rain permitted play. He delivered 10 aces and even won a point with his left hand — for which he apologized — in beating Novacek, 6-4, 6-2, 6-4. Becker closed out both the first and second sets with aces.

LENDL, THE LOSING finalist to Becker last year, worked for 2 hours and 22 minutes to beat Christian Saceanu, a Romanian who now lives in West Germany, 6-2, 3-6, 6-3, 7-5. Lendl, ranked No. 1 in the world, came within two points of dropping the fourth set before making the decisive break in the 11th game.

Other seeds to win during a program abbreviated by rain were No. 4 Stefan Edberg, No.

11 Pat Cash, No. 12 Brad Gilbert of Piedmont, Calif., and No. 13 Joakim Nystrom.

Edberg became only the third man during the Open era to sweep a Grand Slam match without dropping a game when he routed fellow Swede Stefan Eriksson, 6-0, 6-0, 6-0.

Cash, a quarterfinalist at Wimbledon last year, defeated American Marcel Freeman, 6-0, 6-3, 6-2; Gilbert ousted Stuart Bale of Britain, 7-6 (7-4), 6-4, 6-3; and Nystrom beat Henrik Sundstrom, 6-2, 6-7 (5-7), 6-4, 6-3, in another all-Swedish confrontation.

Gabriela Sabatini, at No. 7 the highest women's seed to play, defeated American Barbara Gerken, 6-3, 6-3; No. 8 Manuela Maleeva of Bulgaria defeated Canada's Helen Kelesi, 6-3, 6-2; and No. 11 Lori McNeil of Houston won her opening round match from Marie-Christine Calleja of France, 6-2, 6-3.

Payne sees future for Lohaus, Gamble

By Steve Williams
The Daily Iowan

Brad Lohaus and Kevin Gamble have passed the first test on the road to NBA stardom, but according to another ex-Hawkeye, the trials are far from over.

Michael Payne, an Iowa graduate in 1985, has been through the NBA ringer for the last two years. After being chosen by the Houston Rockets, Payne went to rookie camp and returned for the Rockets' mini camp but was never given a professional contract NBA.

Payne has since chosen another route to fulfilling his professional dreams, taking his act to a very receptive circuit, the Italian Professional League.

But according to Payne, Lohaus and Gamble have the potential for much brighter futures, as long as they are willing to give the effort.

"I think what attracted the Celtics to Brad was the improvement he made between his junior and senior seasons," Payne said. "And if he can keep improving he's got a real good shot with Boston."

THE ONE OBSTACLE Payne

could foresee for Lohaus is Greg Kite, a fill in player for the Celtics last season but a veteran who can throw his weight around on the inside.

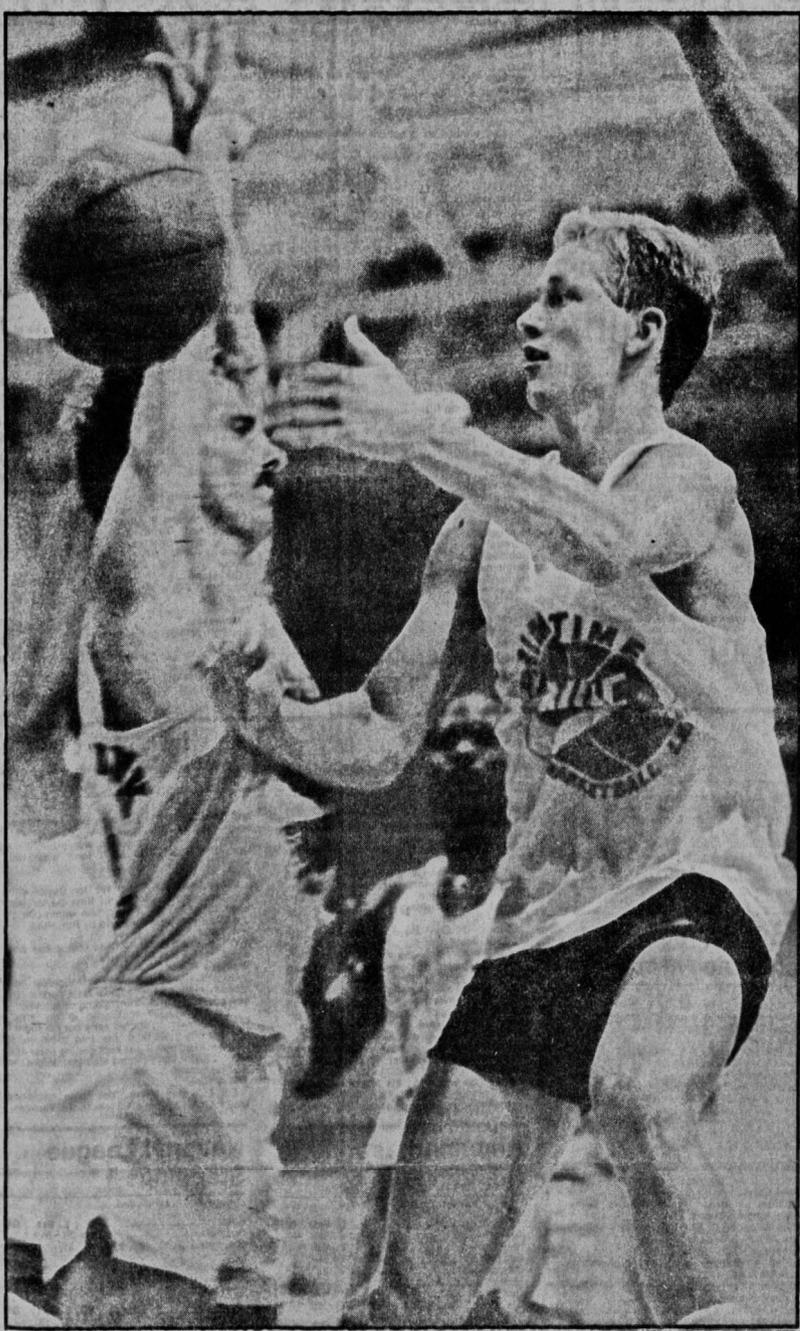

"Kite knows how to push, to rebound and to fight," Payne said. "And if Brad wants to make the team, he's going to have to do the same. That means he's going to have to hit the weights."

"It's going to take a lot of work," Lohaus said in a Monday interview, "but it's something I've been working for all my life, and I'm going to give it my best shot."

Gamble's role with the Portland Trailblazers is not quite as defined as Lohaus', but like his former teammate, Payne also sees a bright future for the Iowa forward.

"I think Kevin's chances are real good," Payne said. "He gets out on the break, he hits the outside jumper and he can post up, and if he gets in good shape and comes in with confidence he might be able to stick it out with them."

Lohaus and Gamble will get their first taste of NBA life this summer when the league holds its annual rookie camp for all incoming players.

Prime Time League battles summer heat

By Steve Williams
The Daily Iowan

After a shaky first week, the Prime Time Summer Basketball League is in full gear.

Southgate Development is also in full gear, winning its third straight game against no defeats, this time, a 132-118 win over Ahren's Construction in the first of four games Tuesday at the City High School Gymnasium.

Michael Payne again showed his superiority over some of the state's better talent, scoring 34 points while grabbing a game-high 14 rebounds.

Teammate Glenn Martin from Drake also used his quickness to compliment Payne with 29 points while

Prime Time Basketball

Kent Hill added 21 points and nine rebounds, Nick Nurse from Northern Iowa and Dave Venzke from Mankato State also added 16.

AHREN'S CONSTRUCTION had a couple of weapons as well, being led by Western Illinois graduate Todd Hutchenson with a game-high 35 points. Behind Hutchenson was Northern Iowa's Troy Muilenberg with 23 points and Les Jepsen, who had 18 points and 10 rebounds.

Meanwhile, the heat which has plagued Iowa City for most of the month was also a strong factor Tuesday as players showed signs of fatigue through much of the game.

"That heat is going to kill somebody before it's over," Payne said.

Ahren's Construction kept things close for much of the first half, taking a 61-60 lead into intermission. But at about the 10 minute mark of the second half, Southgate broke the game open, taking an 11-point lead which it never relinquished the rest of the way.

Clements denies coverup attempts

AUSTIN, Texas (UPI) — Gov. Bill Clements denied Tuesday that he helped cover up his involvement in payments to SMU football players and said former SMU Athletic Director Bob Hitch was "absolutely inaccurate" in his description of a key 1985 meeting between four high-ranking school officials.

In a report issued Friday, a committee of United Methodist Church bishops said Clements and other SMU officials conspired in November 1986 — about the time Clements was running against Gov. Mark White — to "protect Clements and to prevent disclosure of his participation" in a decision to pay SMU players.

Clements, questioned during a Capitol bill-signing session Tuesday, denied that SMU officials tried to cover up the story.

"Look, let's don't talk about any cover-up. There was no cover-up. That's absolute nonsense," Clements said. "That's a newspaper, media term and I don't accept that term. I never heard the term. I don't know anybody engaged in any kind of cover-up whatsoever."

CLEMENTS ALSO TOOK issue with a description by Hitch to the Methodist bishops of an August 1985 meeting on an SMU parking lot. The meeting occurred after a session in which Clements and Hitch urged that payments to SMU players continue and SMU President L. Donald Shields and SMU Trustee Edwin Cox Jr. said they should stop because of the NCAA's new sanctions against repeat offenders.

Those sanctions would be applied against SMU in February 1987, resulting in a two-year abolition of the Mustangs' football program.

According to Hitch's account to the bishops, Clements and Hitch walked to an SMU parking lot after the meeting with Shields and Cox. Clements asked Hitch if the payments could continue and told him, "Then do it," the report said.

Clements, however, said Hitch's description was "absolutely inaccurate."

"I've made myself abundantly clear in that meeting of four people; Mr. Hitch and I were on one side of the issue and Mr. Cox and Mr. Shields were on the other side of the issue," Clements said. "How they resolved it I have no idea."

Clements acknowledged the meeting took place but said he and Hitch "did not change our positions at all."

Asked if he ordered Hitch to continue the payments, Clements said, "I certainly did not."

In Dallas, the Rev. Spurgeon Dunn III, spokesman for the Methodist bishops who prepared the report, said Clements' statements Tuesday were consistent with his testimony to the committee June 9.

BALTIMORE — Gary Ward homered off newly signed reliever Doug Corbett in the eighth inning Tuesday night to give the New York Yankees a 2-1 triumph over the faltering Baltimore Orioles.

Ward's two-out blast over the left-center field fence, his 10th homer of the season, snapped a 1-1 tie and gave Rick Rhoden, 9-4, the victory. Rhoden retired the first 15 batters he faced, and allowed three hits and one run over seven innings. Dave Righetti yielded one hit over two innings for his 15th save.

Corbett, 0-1, who was signed before the game, started the eighth inning in relief of rookie Mark Williamson.

AL Roundup

Blue Jays 8, Tigers 7
DETROIT — Willie Upshaw hit a grand slam in the fourth inning Tuesday night and Fred McGriff added a two-run homer, powering the Toronto Blue Jays to an 8-7 victory over the Detroit Tigers.

Dave Stieb, 6-4, allowed six hits in 6 2-3 innings. He has won three of his last four starts. Tom Henke, the fifth Toronto pitcher, earned his 13th save despite allowing a two-run homer to Alan Trammell in the ninth. Jeff Robinson, 4-4, took the loss.

With no score in the fourth, Jesse Barfield walked, George Bell singled to center and Ernie Whitt walked before Upshaw lined an 0-2 pitch into the upper deck in right for his ninth home run, equalling his home run total for last season. Kelly Gruber singled to third and McGriff pulled the first pitch to him into the upper deck in right for his sixth home run.

Twins 9, Indians 4
MINNEAPOLIS — Gary Gaetti drove in four runs Tuesday night, helping the Minnesota Twins overcome two homers by Tony Bernazard with a 9-4 victory over the Cleveland Indians.

Mike Smithson, 4-3, allowed six hits and four runs over 6 1-3 innings to gain his first victory since coming off the disabled list June 8. George Frazier worked 2 1-3 innings for his second save. Tom Candiotti, 2-8, took the loss.

Gaetti made the score 7-3 in the bottom of the fifth with his 15th home run of the year, a two-run shot that came after Kent Hrbek singled.

Bernazard hit his second solo homer of the game, and 10th home run of the year, to pull Cleveland within 7-4 in the seventh. Tom Brunansky answered with his 16th homer of the year, a two-run shot with Hrbek aboard, making the score 9-4 in the bottom of the seventh.

Quick Quiz
 Jamie Moyer boosted his season record to 8-4 Monday in Chicago's 3-2 triumph over Pittsburgh. Who was the last Cubs left-hander to win 20 games in a season? (answer below)
 Clue: This journeyman southpaw won 115 games in a 13-year career with Chicago, Philadelphia, Boston, Cleveland and the Milwaukee Brewers before retiring in 1971.)
Canned Brewer
 Dennis "Oil Can" Boyd allowed five hits in his 1987 debut Monday night, leading Boston to a 5-2 victory over the visiting Brewers in a game shortened to seven innings by rain.
 Boyd, 1-0, who suffered from a sore right shoulder and was making his first start with the Red Sox since spring training, did not walk a batter and struck out two.

Martin says Jackson isn't needed

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Four-time Yankees manager Billy Martin said Tuesday civil rights leader Jesse Jackson should not comment on baseball issues and added, "We don't need him."
 Jackson has met with Commissioner Peter Ueberroth and urged club owners to develop an affirmative-action policy since former Los Angeles Dodgers Vice President Al Campanis said blacks lacked some of the necessities to manage. There are no black managers or general managers in the major leagues.
 "I think Jesse Jackson should stick to religion and politics," Martin said at a book-signing session for his latest work, "Billyball." "He should stay out of baseball. We don't need him."
 Martin said race in baseball hiring shouldn't be "an issue at all. We've had black managers that haven't been successful and a lot of white managers who haven't been successful either."
 Martin, 59, who also managed the Oakland Athletics, Texas Rangers, Minnesota Twins and Detroit Tigers, said he will not manage this season.
 "Unless Jesse Jackson pushes me," Martin said, laughing, "I don't think so."
 Yankees spokesman Harvey Greene said Martin's view doesn't match the team's.
 "When Billy Martin speaks, he speaks only for Billy Martin," Greene said. "Our feelings are consistent with Jesse Jackson's and we're working with the commissioner to solve the problem. By no means is Billy Martin representing the club when he speaks out. He's talking for himself."
 Martin, now a special advisor to the New York Yankees, said he hasn't heard anyone speaking about the fact there are no women, American Indian or Chinese managers in the majors.

95-year-old Olympic winner disgruntled

NEW YORK (UPI) — America's oldest Olympic medal winner took a run on the sidewalks of Fifth Avenue Tuesday, trotting jauntily at age 95 but still disgruntled about his second-place finish at the Stockholm Games.
 "My knees hurt a little, I must be getting old," Abel Kiviat said after he ran back and forth a couple times in front of the Guggenheim Museum, covering about 25 feet at a brisk pace.
 In 1912, Kiviat had the lead near the final turn of the 1,500-meter race in the 5th Olympic Games. But then an Englishman, Arnold Jackson, "came sprinting around the corner."
 "I fell asleep on the turn, I guess, and saw him go by. By the time I made my sprint it was too late," Kiviat said after receiving a large round medal from the New York Road Runners Club, sponsor of the New York Marathon.
 Kiviat, who was raised on Staten Island and lives in Lakehurst, N.J., also received birthday greetings from President Reagan and a lot of slaps on the back from New Yorkers who stood in front of the museum in 85-degree heat to watch the spry athlete do his stuff.
 Kiviat's silver medal effort in the Olympics was the highlight of a career as a middle-distance runner. When he was 19, in 1911, he broke the world record for the 1,500 three times in 13 days and his time of 3:55.8 stood as a world record for six years and an American record for 16 years.
 He also held world indoor records at 600 yards, 1,000 yards and in the mile. He won national championships nine times, took the prestigious Baxter mile four straight years and added a Canadian championship in 1917, for which he was awarded a gold watch he still owns and that he said "still keeps perfect time."

Bubka sets pole vault record — again

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (UPI) — Sergei Bubka of the Soviet Union set a world record in the pole vault Tuesday night, clearing 19 feet, 9/4 inches at the Rosicky Grand Prix track and field meet.
 The previous record was his own mark of 19-8 1/4.
 Bubka, who's first major-league stint was curtailed by nerve problems, was brought up from the Royals' Double-A farm team last week.

Joynner-Kersey takes early lead

SAN JOSE, Calif. (UPI) — Jackie Joynner-Kersey ran a speedy 100-meter hurdles Tuesday and took the early lead in the heptathlon on the opening day of the USA-Mobil Track and Field Championships.
 After two events, Joynner had 2,181 points, four ahead of her world-record pace established last August at the U.S. Olympic Festival. The two-event total, however, was 46 points behind her Goodwill Games pace in Moscow last July, when she set her first world record.
 Joynner, running in the first heat, jumped away in the hurdles, clocking 12.90 seconds and finishing six meters ahead of Jane Frederick. The defending champ had a time of 13.62. Joynner's time was .20 seconds off what she had projected earlier in the month.
 Joynner then high-jumped 6 feet, 3 1/4 inches to tie for first with NCAA heptathlon champion Yolanda Jones. She failed in three attempts at 6-2, her personal best.
 "She knows she's a little behind (her pace)," said Bob Kersey, Joynner's coach and husband. "But there are five events to go. (Tuesday) we have the shot and the 200 (meters) and that should put her on schedule. The shot put will be a big key. We're shooting for a 50-footer."
 Following Joynner in the standings were Cindy Greiner with 2,078; Frederick with 2,036 and Camille Jamposky at 2,036. Jones was seventh at 1,916.

Pippen may strengthen Bulls

CHICAGO (UPI)—Scottie Pippen's major adjustment to NBA life will not be on the basketball court.

Pippen, who grew up in Hamburg, Ark., first has to adjust to big-city life in Chicago before he can worry about basketball adjustments in the pros.

The Chicago Bulls made a deal with the Seattle SuperSonics Monday and got Pippen as the fifth choice in the NBA collegiate draft. The Bulls also got Clemson forward-center Horace Grant in the first round.

Pippen played his college basketball at Central Arkansas, an NAIA school. He was a two-time NAIA all-America, sprouting from 6-foot-1 to 6-7 over his four college seasons.

The Bulls think Pippen can play at both guard positions as well as at small forward. But the first thing Pippen has to think about is life in the Windy City.

Olden Polynice and Scottie Pippen sport their new NBA team hats.

"THE MAJOR adjustment will be off-court, coping with the big city," Pippen said Tuesday at his first public appearance in Chicago. "I'm really a small-time guy."

he took Pippen out to nearby forest preserves during a spring visit so he wouldn't feel too uncomfortable.

Collins wants all of his rookies to move to Chicago as soon as possible, even though teams cannot negotiate with rookies until a new collective bargaining agreement is signed with the Players Association.

"We would like them to be here when the moratorium is over," said Collins. "We've got the Multiplex (exercise facility). We've got our strength and conditioning people out there. I'd like to get them acclimated to the city and thinking Chicago is their home."

THE ADDITION OF Pippen and the 6-10 Grant, along with the trade with San Antonio for Artis Gilmore, has turned the Bulls into a strong club on the front line. With Michael Jordan in the backcourt, some NBA insiders are looking for the Bulls to make a big move in the standings.

Both Pippen and Grant scored more than 20 points a game as seniors and both are expected to take some of the scoring pressure off of Jordan.

Report clears Miami athletes

MIAMI (UPI) — A strength coach arrested in a nationwide crackdown on steroids did not provide them to University of Miami athletes, nor did anyone in the athletic department encourage their use, according to a report released Tuesday.

The investigation by the university's law firm of Mershon, Sawyer, Johnston, Dunwoody and Cole concluded that while the university has a testing program for steroids, a "minimal" number of athletes were using the body-building hormones and further steps could be taken to prevent their use.

Miami President Edward Foote commissioned the study after associate strength coach Pat Jacobs was arrested May 21 by U.S. Customs Service agents. Steroids — said to be enough to supply one person for two years — and cash were seized from Jacobs' apartment. He has been suspended without pay and pleaded innocent to charges of conspiring to defraud the United States and receiving counterfeit and smuggled steroids.

"ALTHOUGH WE ARE pleased and relieved that the investigation found no evidence that Mr. Jacobs was providing steroids to anyone connected with the University of Miami, and no evidence any member of the athletic department has ever encouraged or condoned the use of steroids by university athletes, it is clear we have work to do," Foote said.

Anabolic steroids are synthetic hormones that help build muscles, but doctors say steroids have harmful long-term effects and may cause liver diseases, prostate cancer, heart attacks and strokes.

The NCAA has outlawed their use and in the past year banned several players from participating in bowl games after they tested positive for steroid use.

Miami Athletic Director Sam Jankovich said the athletic department would immediately start taking steps to improve the university's steroid prevention program, and new guidelines should be in place before the start of the football season.

THE LAW FIRM ISSUED an 11-page report, most of which will remain confidential. On Jacobs' role with the Miami athletes, the report found no evidence he provided steroids to players, a finding also reached by federal agents investigating the case. The report also found that Jacobs advised athletes against using steroids.

The Miami Herald reported last month that at least 10 percent of the athletes at Miami were using steroids. The report issued Tuesday acknowledged there may be athletes using steroids, but concluded the number of athletes doing so was "minimal."

Miami began a drug-testing program two years ago that includes a test for steroids.

The report said the best defense against steroid use was a vigorous education program for athletes, trainers and coaches, genuine condemnation of their use by coaches and trainers and surprise testing.

Jankovich said Jacobs' boss, strength coach Bill Foran, believes athletes can build up their bodies through natural techniques.

"The thing about it, and this is why we employed Bill Foran, is that he's definitely convinced that you can build strength through proper nutrition and conditioning," Jankovich said. "We are making progress in that area. As much as drug testing is essential, I think the drug education aspect of it is more important."

To compile the report, attorneys Robert Cole and Chuck Klein interviewed more than 50 people, including medical experts, university coaches, players and staff.

GOOD MORNING, FELLOW WASTE-MANAGEMENT ARTISANS!

WHY THE GLUM FACES? LET'S BE HAPPY IN OUR WORK! COUNT OUR BLESSINGS!...

WHY JUST KEEP IN MIND HOW THE MANUFACTURING SECTOR OF THE AMERICAN ECONOMY IS STAGNATING WHILE WE IN THE SERVICE INDUSTRIES THRIVE AND PROSPER!

THANK GOD FOR THE SERVICE SECTOR!!

SERVICE THIS, DUDE

Doonesbury BY GARRY TRUDEAU

PHIL, AS YOU KNOW, THERE'S BEEN A LOT OF TALK RECENTLY ABOUT MORAL DECAY IN AMERICA...

ONE CAN ALWAYS EXPECT TO FIND IT IN THE MORE DESPERATE REACHES OF SOCIETY, BUT WHEN EVEN THE PRIVILEGED BEGIN TO VIOLATE THEIR SOCIAL CONTRACTS, WHAT ARE WE TO DO?

I CAN GIVE MY SERMONS, OF COURSE. I CAN TRY TO SPEAK TO THE BEST IN PEOPLE, BUT IF THE CULTURE WON'T SUPPORT SOME COMMON IDEAL, THERE'S NOTHING TO BUILD ON!

SO WHY BOTHER, YOU ASK? AREN'T I JUST TALKING TO MYSELF?

Hampton sentenced for drunken-driving

HARWOOD HEIGHTS, Ill. (UPI) — Chicago Bears defensive end Dan Hampton was placed on one-year court supervision, fined $500 and ordered to undergo alcohol counseling after he pleaded guilty Tuesday to drunken-driving charges.

Hampton, 30, of Cabot, Ark., was arrested last Nov. 24 for speeding, resisting arrest and possession of open liquor inside a motor vehicle. Assistant Cook County State's Attorney Bruce Paynter said the state agreed to drop those charges in exchange for the drunken-driving plea.

Astaire's memory, technique inspire Joffrey Ballet troupe

By Franc Contreras
The Daily Iowan

The memory of Fred Astaire will probably live forever in the mind of 10-year-old Ryan McBride.

McBride is a young dancer currently rehearsing with the Joffrey Ballet. He remembers his father talking about the 88-year-old dance legend who died Monday from pneumonia. "My Dad would talk about Mr. Astaire a lot when I was younger. Since then he's always been a sort of hero to me," McBride said. "I would watch his movies and say, 'That's what I should look like when I'm dancing.'"

"His death makes me sad, but I think that because he died people will start paying more attention to dance," he added.

Joffrey Ballet dancers of all ages said they felt a mutual sadness when they heard the news of Astaire's death. Many of them considered Astaire master at the craft they practice so diligently.

"WE WORK SO hard every day to reach the level that came so naturally to him," Jeff Maxted, 10, said.

That natural ability to glide across the dance floor made Astaire a favorite movie star beginning in the late 1930s, and his popularity continues today.

Dancers, actors and singers still study Astaire's seemingly effortless technique in hopes of gaining some insight into his brilliance.

"He was an all-around artist who had an impact on everyone who is an actor, singer or dancer," Patrick Corbin, of Potomac, Md., also of the Joffrey Ballet, said.

Corbin recalls meeting Ginger Rogers, one of Astaire's most famous dance partners, five years ago at a summer dance camp in Chatauqua, N.Y.

"I asked her what he was really like. She spoke highly of him, but she said they were both perfectionists, and that would occasionally lead to differences of opinion," Corbin said. "She also said he loved to dance for a living, it was his job. He always loved it, he never became jaded."

BUT AS GREAT artists die, younger ones fill their shoes and soon the memory of the super-talent who once wowed audiences fades into the past. That knowledge has some of the younger Joffrey dancers worried. They realize that Astaire's greatness may never be known by their school-mates.

"We were talking about him in my class, but hardly anyone knew who he was. I think it's because they don't dance," John MacMillan, 10, said.

But Astaire's memory will live on in the minds of those who do dance, because they realize he was special.

"His effortlessness, invention and virtuosity will make him remembered," ballet member Philip Jerry said.

"He was a tapper and a hooper, a ballroom dancer, but not just a ballroom dancer. He was a ballet dancer, but not just a ballet dancer. That's what made him unique, that's why I'll never forget him," he said.

Penn gets 60 days, probation for assault, reckless driving

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Actor Sean Penn was sentenced Tuesday to 60 days in county jail for assaulting an extra on the set of his latest movie but a Municipal Court commissioner allowed him to remain free from custody until next month.

Also Tuesday, Penn was sentenced to two years of informal probation after pleading no contest to a reduced reckless driving charge stemming from his arrest on suspicion of drunken driving late last month.

COMMISSIONER Juelann K. Cathey imposed the 60-day jail term on Penn after ruling that an April 2 incident in which he assaulted an extra during a break in filming of the movie Colors constituted a violation of Penn's probation from a previous battery case.

"I think he's a talented individual and I don't want this type of thing to happen again," said Cathey.

Penn, who wore a conservative grey suit and a green shirt open at the collar, thanked Cathey for her courtesy.

The commissioner also ordered the actor to undergo psychiatric counseling for his violent temper. Penn, who was present in court, will remain free until July 7, when he must surrender to begin serving his sentence.
