North makes deal to testify

Oliver North

By Sara Fritz
and Karen Tumulty
Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — Former White House aide Oliver North, the mastermind of the Iran-Contra affair, ended a legal standoff with Congress Wednesday by agreeing to testify publicly before the investigating committees beginning July 7 and privately next Wednesday.

North's decision to testify under a grant of limited immunity from prosecution means that the Iran-Contra hearings will not be deprived of their star witness. If North had refused to appear, the committees were prepared to hold him in contempt of Congress.

The former White House aide notified the committees of his willingness to testify after receiving written assurances that the public questioning would be limited to four days and the private testimony would center entirely on his knowledge of President Ronald Reagan's role in the Iran-Contra affair.

BUT COMMITTEE members emphasized that they did not permit North or his lawyer, Brendan V. Sullivan, to dictate the terms of his forthcoming testimony — something that members feared would set a bad precedent for Congress.

"No one can tell us how to run it," said Sen. Daniel Inouye, D-Hawaii, chairman of the Senate panel.

Rep. Lee H. Hamilton, D-Ind., added: "I think that the precedents and practices of the House have been accommodated fully and that the concerns of the witnesses have likewise been accommodated, and that we have done that consistent with the prerogatives of the Congress."

Committee attorneys said that by offering North some of the assurances he sought, Congress averted a protracted legal battle that could have delayed or perhaps scuttled the investigation. It was feared that if the committees decided to go to court to press contempt charges against North, he might then be indicted by independent counsel Lawrence E. Walsh and thus be freed of all obligation to testify before Congress.

NEVERTHELESS, some dissenters on the committees said they had surrendered some of their power by engaging in week-long negotiations with Sullivan over the terms of North's appearance.

Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Texas, described the arrangement as "disastrous," and added: "When you play softball with hardball players, you often get beat." He said the committees should have offered North one choice: Testify or go to jail for contempt.

In their letter to Sullivan, the committee lawyers pledged that when they question North in private July 1 they will limit their interrogation to what

TV great Gleason dies of cancer

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UPI) — Entertainer Jackie Gleason, who made "How sweet it is" a household expression and became a television legend as bus driver Ralph Kramden on "The Honeymooners," died Wednesday night at the age of 71.

Gleason's wife, Marilyn, said the heavyset, chain-smoking comedian died quietly and comfortably of cancer in the couple's home in the wealthy Fort Lauderdale suburb of Lauderhill.

Gleason's wife said the entertainer's two daughters, Linda Gleason Miller and Geraldine Gleason Chutuk, and his son-in-law, Jack Chutuk, flew from California to Florida last week and spent Father's Day with him.

"He had family and close friends in for Sunday," she said. "He was feeling in good spirits Monday and Tuesday. He quietly, comfortably passed away."

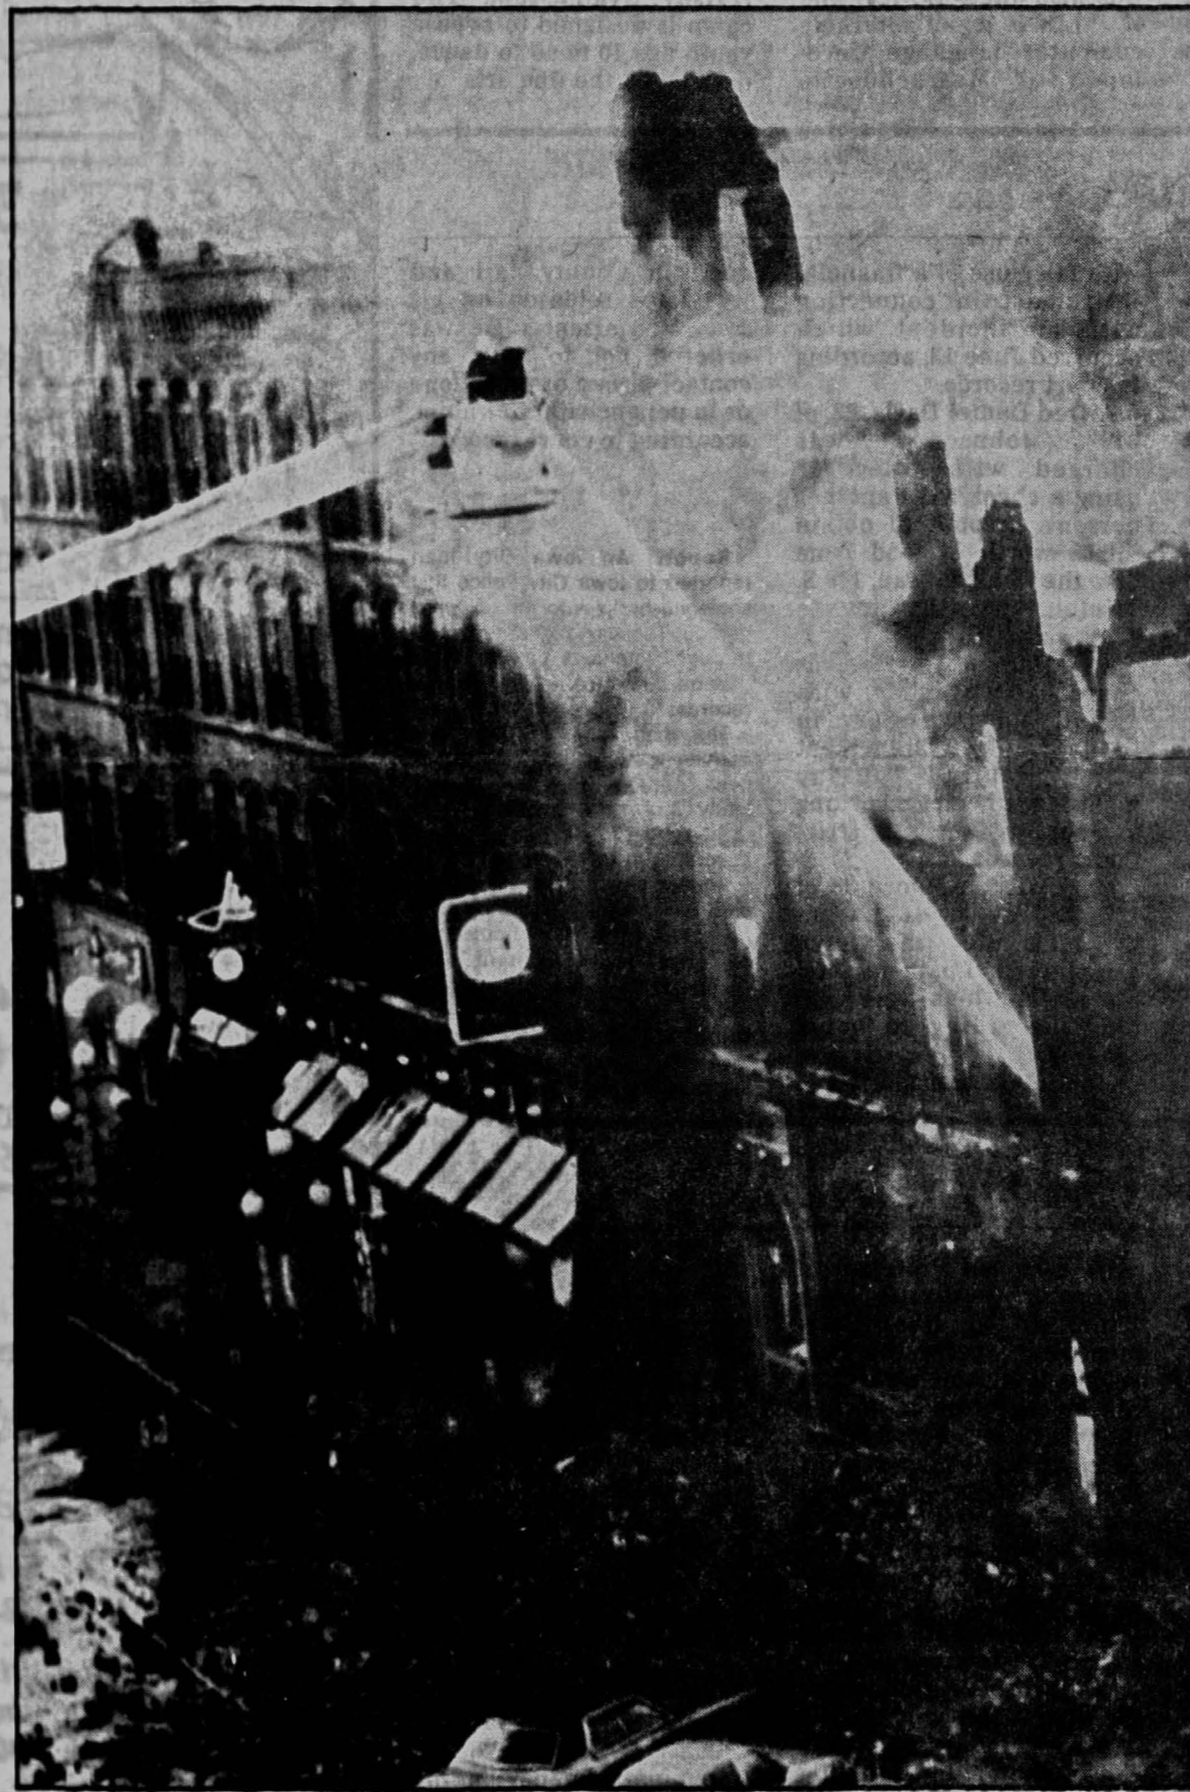

Gleason was released last week from Imperial Point Medical Center in Fort Lauderdale, where he had been undergoing cancer treatment. He had undergone triple bypass heart surgery in 1978 and suffered from emphysema and diabetes in recent years.

During a career that spanned four decades, Gleason became the comedy backbone of CBS television in the mid-1950s, directed an orchestra that sold millions of records, starred in several movies and won a Tony for his performance in the Broadway hit "Take Me Along."

"The Great One" poked fun at his girth and once said he managed to struggle through the streets of Brooklyn to stardom because "I had a dream . . . I had a goal. I wanted to become an actor."

"I had these goals and all of the magical possessions I

Iowa laws limit alternatives to increase funds

IOWA REVENUE CITY
This is the second of three stories examining efforts to increase Iowa City revenue.

By Joseph Levy
The Daily Iowan

Although alternatives to raising Iowa City's property tax or implementing a sales tax have been proposed, Iowa City Manager Stephen Atkins said different methods of raising an additional $1 million for fiscal year 1989 are highly unlikely.

"State laws very closely limit the ability of cities to raise revenue," Atkins said, explaining a local sales tax or vehicle tax are the only new taxes a city can levy.

"That's it," he said. A vehicle tax to be levied on all registered motor vehicles was considered, but city estimates suggest a $15 tax on each vehicle registered in Iowa City would only generate a fraction of the $1 million Atkins estimates the city will need to maintain current city services.

Another alternative would be to reduce some city services, said Atkins.

"We can certainly reduce services," he said.

BUT 14 OF the 15 members of the Citizens' Committee on City Revenues agreed city services should be maintained at their current levels — not cut — and that option has not been given as much consideration.

Atkins said he believes that stand is probably representative of what Iowa City residents want.

But state regulation of the city budget inhibits any attempt to raise money.

"We are severely regulated by the state of Iowa," Atkins said. "The state in some way, shape or form, regulates 87 percent of the revenue."

Atkins explained most tax dollars are earmarked by the state for specific purposes and the city council actually has very little power in allocating tax dollars.

Iowa City Mayor William Ambrisco agreed the city has little self-determination where the budget is concerned.

"WE HAVE SERVICES that are obvious we have to maintain," he said. "Those are self-evident."

Committee Member Myles Braverman said he was concerned state regulation of city funds might be a problem.

"It's becoming much more difficult to know what to do and where to find it," Braverman said. "The worst thing is the way the state Legislature has the community's hands tied."

Committee Chairman Craig Willis also said he felt limited in the number of options available to raise money.

"No one was terribly thrilled with all of the choices," he said.

Willis added that although the variety of choices wasn't great,

Car business pays attention to detail

By Franc Contreras
The Daily Iowan

Every now and then a bit of West Coast styling makes its way to Iowa City. It's true with clothes, music and hairstyles. Now it's true with car washing.

Neutron Buff Inc., 310 E. Prentiss St., sounds like it may be a strange sort of futuristic machine which polishes bits of nuclear material. That's not quite the case, but it's close.

The new business specializes in auto detailing, a contemporary idea which started in Southern California and reached Florida before coming to Iowa. The location is easy to spot; shining Porsches and BMWs are parked out front.

"Detailing is not well-known in the Midwest, but it will be," owner Eric Morris said. "It's all about customer service. You bring your new car or used car to us, no matter what make it is, and we'll make it beautiful. We go over every inch of it, we'll even hit a few spots you never knew existed."

MORRIS AND THE rest of the staff at Neutron Buff are not "car wash boys" because they do more than just wash cars. And when they are finished with a car, the customer should be able to look into the reflection of his vehicle and clearly see the traffic on Gilbert Street 20 yards away, Morris said.

The product which enables them to produce the ultra-high gloss is called liquid glass. It is not a wax product but a special compound which Morris said does not yellow like wax does.

The liquid glass is applied by hand to a customer's car only after the vehicle has been thoroughly washed and dried. But the way it's applied and later rubbed into an auto's surface is what makes this company different, said Manager Clark Calta.

"QUALITY IS WHAT we're after, that's why we use our hands," Calta said. "While a car is in this shop it's mine."

Calta takes the cotton swab and begins to gently caress the logo on a 1987 black BMW sedan belonging to former Iowa basketball player Greg Stokes.

Calta and two other men will work on the $70,000 car for more than five hours before Stokes returns. But they know the owner will be pleased with the special attention his automobile received.

"Every car we work with gets this same attention," Calta said. He points to a gray Chevrolet station wagon waiting for the special treatment.

"I'll make that car shine," he said.

There is more to the high-polished finish than mere cosmetics, Morris said.

"This highly polished look has a functional side, too," he said. "Once this stuff is applied it's very easy to wash. Just take a hose to it then wipe it down."

IBP, union slate talks

SIoux CITY, Iowa — IBP Inc. and striking union members in the Sioux City area have agreed to a new round of talks, the first in three months, union officials said Wednesday.

Union and company negotiators will meet on July 1 in Omaha. IBP locked out 2,800 union meatpackers at its beef plant in Dakota City, Neb., Dec. 14 after union members rejected a new three-year contract.

The union has charged IBP with bilking workers out of hundreds of thousands of dollars in worker-compensation payments and covering up injury reports.

Tyson jury deliberates

DES MOINES — A federal jury Wednesday began deliberating a $1 million civil suit accusing Iowa State Penitentiary officials of "deliberate indifference" in the death of inmate Gary Tyson during a 1981 riot.

During final arguments Wednesday, attorney Robert Wright, representing Tyson's mother, argued Tyson's death on Sept. 2, 1981, could have been avoided had penitentiary officials heeded "obvious" warnings that Tyson's life was in danger because he was known as an informant.

DES MOINES — The Iowa attorney general's office said Wednesday it is suing "Millionaire Maker" Ed Beckley for $2.8 million in refunds his Fairfield-based company promised Iowa consumers.

The suit, filed Tuesday in Polk County District Court, alleges Beckley reneged on an agreement made last fall to make refunds by last Friday to about 10,000 Iowans who subscribed to his "No Down Payment" home-study course on how to make millions selling real estate.

CEDAR FALLS — University of Northern Iowa science instructor Shirley Cropper has a cooling thought about thunderstorms on a hot, muggy summer afternoon.

Cropper, who teaches a course called Elements of Weather, says it's actually snowing in those tall thunderheads.

Summer means classes for many local students

By Craig Sterrett
The Daily Iowan

Alice Cooper's song "School's Out For Summer" is the first song that comes to mind when most students leave school for summer break. But for more than 930 Iowa City Community School District students, they began attending classes when summer arrived.

The district offers programs including special education, driver education, instrumental lessons, a math and reading maintenance program for grades one through six and a summer enrichment program for children in grades two through nine.

THE DISTRICT offers 25 two-week classes during the summer enrichment program which is geared to students who have demonstrated potential for advanced levels of learning and creativity.

"The Summer Enrichment School offers an introduction and exposure to something the students normally wouldn't do during the school year," Summer School Director Paul Davis said.

held at City High and Penn Elementary schools deal with computers, science, literary skills and the fine arts. Seven classes for students up to sixth grade are offered at Penn Elementary, including three computer classes, Creative Drama, Children's Literature, Laboratory Science and an environmental awareness class called Birds, Beasts, Bugs and Us.

City High offers the same classes held at Penn, plus 17 additional ones. About 63 Apple computers from all over the district were transferred to City High to accommodate the large number of students wanting to use them.

Introduction to Microcomputers is a beginning course on hardware and software, BASIC computer language and the many uses of computers. The district offers three more classes using BASIC, including Intermediate Levels I, II and III.

THE ENRICHMENT program also offers LOGO I and II. LOGO is an alternate computer language developed at Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Other summer computer classes are Delta Drawing, where children create colorful drawings on the screen with simple commands, and Word Processing.

In addition to the computer classes, the enrichment program offers several science classes. Some of these are Exploring Laboratory Science, Levels I & II, Field Research, Challenges for the Mind, Inventions and Toothpaste Chemistry and More.

"We tested different brands of toothpaste for foam, abrasiveness, Ph-balance and to tell whether there was starch in the toothpaste for filler," said toothpaste chemistry student Matt Wagner, 13. "I took the class because I wanted to learn more about consumer products and what people do to test products to see how good they are."

Through the UI, the enrichment program also offers For the Young of Art camp to be held June 22-26 at Halsey Gymnasium. The camp is designed to expose youth age 10 to 16 to dance, drama and the fine arts.

An Iowa City woman and a Sioux City, Iowa, man were charged in Johnson County District Court Wednesday with indecent conduct in connection with an incident which occurred at College Green Park at 3 a.m. Wednesday morning.

Court records state that the two "were observed engaging in sexual intercourse in playground equipment in the northeast portion of College Green Park."

Records state the woman's skirt was pulled up to her waist and the male subject, nude from the waist down, was on top of her.

The male subject was also charged with public intoxication, according to court records.

An Iowa City man was charged in Johnson County District Court Wednesday with false use of a financial instrument in connection with an incident which occurred June 13, according to court records.

Alfred Daniel Davis, 22, of 317 S. Johnson St., was charged with allegedly using a check from another person's account to obtain $18.88 worth of food from Sam the Chicken Man, 118 S. Clinton St., according to court records.

A Iowa City man was charged Wednesday with assault causing injury in connection with an incident which occurred Tuesday night at his home, according to Johnson County District Court records.

Mark William Moore, 33, of 1220 2nd Ave., was charged by police after "the victim complained of pain and had red marks which were visible," according to court records.

Moore was transported to Johnson County Jail and was later released on his own recognizance. He was ordered not to have any contact either by telephone or in person with the victim, according to court records.

Report: An Iowa City man reported to Iowa City Police that someone broke into his unlocked garage Tuesday night and went through both cars parked in the garage, according to police records.

The man reported there was nothing missing, but that he has been getting less gas mileage lately and now suspects some gasoline might have been stolen, according to police reports.

Report: Iowa City police discovered a garbage can which had been blown up by a homemade explosive device in front of a house at 411 S. Lucas St. after a nearby resident reported shots being fired in front of her home at 1:56 a.m. on Wednesday, according to police records.

UI medical professors awarded grants

A specialist in high blood pressure research at the UI College of Medicine is one of three recipients of a $250,000 Burroughs Wellcome Clinical Pharmacology Scholar Award for 1987.

UI Assistant Professor of Internal Medicine and Pharmacology Ross Feldman will receive the Burroughs Wellcome award for his investigation of factors that regulate blood pressure and the changes of the body's circulatory system with advancing age, and specifically the regulation of cell structures called receptors.

The award will be distributed to Feldman over a five-year period. While investigating salt and its effects on high blood pressure, Feldman has shown that a low-salt diet favorably affects the hormone receptors that regulate blood pressure.

Five UI College of Medicine internal medicine researchers also received grants totaling more than $300,000. They include:

• Victor L. Schuster, who received $127,000 from the National Institutes of Health to study the mechanisms and regulation of kidney electrolyte transplants.

• David Ferguson, who was given $110,000 from the NIH for a comprehensive three-year study of the nervous system's control of the heart, and peripheral circulation in patients with heart failure.

• Michael Welsh, who received $30,000 from the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation to examine the regulation of salt secretion by cultured epithelial cells.

who was given $19,160 from Medtronic Inc. to study the rates of pacemakers during exercise.

• Robert Ashman, who received $15,000 from the Arthritis Foundation to help support the UI Arthritis Care Team, which provides multidisciplinary care to arthritis patients in the UI Hospitals and Clinics and Clinical Research Center.

School election papers available

Nomination papers for the four open school board seats in the Sept. 8 Iowa City Community School District election can be secured from the office of the Iowa City School Board secretary in the board administrative offices at 509 S. Dubuque St.

Any person who is a citizen of the United States, 18 years of age or older and a resident of the school district may become a candidate for the school board. Nominating petitions must contain the signatures of at least 10 eligible voters in the school district. An affidavit acknowledging the candidate's eligibility must also be filed with the petition.

Nominating papers must be filed with the board secretary between July 5 and July 30. Any paper filed after July 30 at 5:00 p.m. will be ruled ineligible.

Superconductors spur study

By Tony Jeffris
The Daily Iowan

Recent breakthroughs in the field of solid-state physics have UI researchers joining what has become a worldwide effort to find room-temperature superconductors. "This is a very fast breaking field," UI Chemistry and Physics Professor Norman Baenziger said. "You have to keep up on the gossip of what's going on in the field rather than waiting for it to appear in print."

Baenziger and UI Chemistry and Physics Professors William Savage and John Schwieter formed an interdisciplinary research team to work on superconductivity two months ago.

Superconductors are materials that conduct electricity with no loss of current and repel all external magnetic fields. Conventional materials develop resistance to current which is lost as heat.

THE POTENTIAL uses of the materials are countless, according to Savage. For example, scientists envision replacing conventional power transmission lines with superconducting materials and saving large amounts of current that are now lost to resistance and dissipated as heat.

"Out of this area can come revolutions that we can't even imagine at the moment," Savage said.

While "high-temperature superconductivity" is relatively new, the phenomena of superconductivity has been around for 75 years. In 1911, physicist Hieke Kamerlingh Onnes at University of Leiden in the Netherlands discovered certain materials could be made into superconductors when cooled with liquid helium to temperatures of 4.2 degrees Kelvin, or minus 452.59 degrees Fahrenheit. Liquid helium, however, is expensive and in the past limited the cost-effectiveness of manufacturing superconductors.

THE MAJOR BREAKTHROUGH in high-temperature superconductors occurred last year when J. Georg Bednorz and K. Alex Mueller, researchers at the IBM research laboratory in Zurich, Switzerland, discovered substances that were superconductors at 30 degrees Kelvin.

In February, a University of Houston research team supervised by physicist Paul Chu discovered a ceramic material that would superconduct at temperatures of 98 degrees Kelvin. Chu used very inexpensive liquid nitrogen as a cooling agent.

Scientists expect in the near future to be able to manufacture superconductors at temperatures now found in household refrigeration and possibly even at room temperatures.

According to Savage, the key to discovering the room temperature superconductors will involve manipulating the right mix of materials. Savage said the UI research team is beginning with what he calls the "standard" material. This is composed of one part yttrium, two parts barium, three parts copper and seven parts oxygen.

WHILE THE UI research team has successfully produced materials capable of superconducting at 94 K, Savage said the discovery of high-temperature superconductors is likely to come through substituting yttrium with other rare earth elements and the barium with elements such as niobium, strontium and calcium.

Flexibility is the key, Savage said. "We will change our strategies on a daily basis if need be, but that's also part of the fun of it," he said.

So far, there have been claims by research teams of superconductivity at 300 Kelvin — near room temperature — and claims of 234 K using the standard material described by Savage. None of these findings, however, have been replicated.

Savage said although there are hundreds of researchers working on superconductivity worldwide, it would be entirely possible for discovery of room temperature superconductors to take place at the UI.

"THERE ARE FOLKS who say, 'IBM has 100 people working on this, how can you compete?' I feel, however, that you have to make up for size with careful thought," he said.

As Savage pointed out, the research team that made the original breakthrough had only two members.

"It's a lot like playing the lottery," he said. "If people knew the chances that they have of winning the lottery they might not play. But people do play the lottery and they win," he said. "I think we've got to be prepared that we may get the room temperature superconductors."

While the potential applications for the materials are numerous, Savage said most researchers feel the first uses will come in the field of computers.

Though Savage would not speculate on how soon superconductors would find everyday use, he said: "The thing we think is important is that it's a new area and it's a super area."

Iowa Court rules out venue appeal

DES MOINES — The Iowa Court of Appeals Wednesday ruled against a Davenport man who argued his first-degree murder conviction was unfairly influenced by a radio talk show advocating the death penalty.

In a 3-0 decision, the court said Rick Nebinger failed to prove comments made on the program were pervasive enough to bias the jury which decided the case.

Nebinger argued his trial in the February 1985 multiple-stabbing death of Floyd Brown, 79, should have been moved out of Scott County because numerous references to his case were made during the call-in show on radio station WOC of Davenport the day after he was arrested.

In other Wednesday rulings: The court upheld the first-degree murder conviction of Richard Winemiller, saying pictures of the dead victim used in his trial did not bias the jury.

Winemiller, who is serving a life sentence for killing James Brown of Monroe County in August 1985, had claimed the Monroe County District Court abused its discretion by admitting photographs of Brown's body during an April 1986 trial.

But the court ruled unanimously that death pictures are not ordinarily excluded just because they are gruesome.

A refusal to overturn a ruling against a former employee of Federal Express Corp. who alleged her employer slandered her by calling her a lesbian.

In a 3-0 decision, the court ruled against Mary Veach of Des Moines because she was unable to show her boss' comment about her alleged sexual preference was made with actual malice.

In her lawsuit, Veach accused Federal Express and several co-workers of slander and intentional infliction of emotional distress.

A divided court reduced the amount a double murderer must pay his victims' families, despite complaints from one judge the majority decision ignores the societal costs of the crime.

The court, in a 4-2 decision, said $16,500 is too much for Roger Van Hoff, 31, Pocahontas, to pay while he is in the Iowa State Penitentiary serving two life prison terms.

Proposed shelter hits obstacle

By James Cahoy
The Daily Iowan

A plan by Youth Homes Inc. to buy an Iowa City house and use it as shelter for adolescent girls has hit an obstacle after a lawsuit was filed Tuesday in Johnson County District Court by nine Iowa City residents.

The suit is directed against the Iowa City Board of Adjustments, which on June 16 approved allowing Youth Homes to move into the home at 19 Evan St. Neighbors of the area filed the suit and have asked for the court to annul the board's decision.

The suit alleges that the board granted permission for the move by Youth Homes without allowing the residents the right to be heard on the issue. The residents contend in the suit that if the shelter is located at 19 Evan St., it will diminish property values in the neighborhood, create parking problems, pose a danger to traffic on Evan Street and deprive residents of the right to peacefully enjoy their property.

IN ADDITION, the suit alleges that the board illegally reduced the number of required parking spaces for the home from eight to four and ignored evidence that Youth Homes' parking plan would not provide adequate parking. The suit also contends the board failed to recognize the group home move would mean there would be "an undue concentration" of service facilities in the area, but did not elaborate.

The nine plaintiffs in the suit listed on court documents include Halvor Scott, of 903 Iowa Ave.; Dean Oakes, of Rural Route 2; Michael and Francine Abboud, of 1015 Muscatine Ave.; Johannes Ledolter, of 947 Iowa Ave.; Martha Fiesler, of 912 Iowa Ave.; Irene Laciná, of 910 Iowa Ave.; and Donald and Nancy MacFarlane, of 943 Iowa Ave.

Attorney Clemens Erdahl, who represents the nine, said the main problem the residents had with the Board of Adjustments was that it did not allow them to be heard.

William Dull, of 320 E. Jefferson St., who owns the Evan Street house, said he still plans to sell it to Youth Homes.

"I see nothing wrong with the sale from a legal standpoint, and I see nothing wrong with it from a moral standpoint," Dull said.

Dull, who said the home is listed on the National Registry of Historic Homes and is part of the Woodlawn Historical District, added the residents listed on the suit did not try to contact him about the suit or his plans to sell the home.

Two hostages freed, but not Glass

BEIRUT, Lebanon — The son of Lebanon's defense minister and his bodyguard, kidnapped by Moslem extremists a week ago in southern Beirut, were freed Wednesday but an American abducted with them remained in captivity.

The releases came a day after Syrian occupation forces in Lebanon threatened to take unspecified steps against the suspected kidnappers unless the two men and the American, Charles Glass, were freed.

It was not immediately known whether Syria had withdrawn the terms of its ultimatum following the release of the two Lebanese or would continue exerting pressure on various groups in Lebanon until Glass is freed.

Senate approves $1 trillion budget

WASHINGTON — The Democratic-led Senate approved a $1 trillion budget Wednesday, triggering a bitter struggle with President Ronald Reagan over provisions he says will overburden taxpayers and gut military programs.

The Senate split nearly along party lines in voting 53-46 in favor of the spending proposal, which calls for more than $19 billion in new taxes and limits military spending.

Only three Republicans — liberals Lowell Weicker of Connecticut, Robert Stafford of Vermont and John Chafee of Rhode Island — voted for the budget resolution. Three Democrats, William Proxmire of Wisconsin, Howell Heflin and Richard Shelby of Alabama — voted against the spending plan.

Earlier, the Senate voted 56-43 to set aside a proposal to send the budget back to committee for changes that would bar any new revenues from being raised through an oil import fee.

Chrysler indicted on odometer fraud

WASHINGTON — A federal grand jury indicted Chrysler Motor Corp. and two of its senior executives Wednesday for conspiracy in an alleged scheme involving odometer fraud, the Justice Department announced.

The department said the charges stem from a program at Chrysler dating back to 1949 where executives were permitted to drive newly manufactured cars with the odometer disconnected for up to six weeks.

The department said during an 18-month period beginning in July 1985 and ending in December 1986, Chrysler sold more than 60,000 vehicles that had been driven by company managers with their odometers disconnected.

The indictment, returned in St. Louis, also alleged this practice began as early as 1949, and over the past 38 years, millions of cars had been sold under the same circumstances.

Saudis offer help in mine search

WASHINGTON — U.S. officials say Saudi Arabia has offered to help Kuwait search for antiship mines Iran is suspected of placing in the northern Persian Gulf to complicate the U.S. plan to provide a military escort for Kuwaiti tankers.

In a related development, the U.S. Navy has accelerated its preparations for sending the battleship USS Missouri and three accompanying warships to the Persian Gulf next month if President Ronald Reagan should decide to deploy that much extra firepower there.

No final decision has been made on whether to send the USS Missouri. Some defense officials argue that sending in a battleship would be overkill and would intensify anti-American feelings in the Middle East.

Waldheim arrives in Rome to protests

VATICAN CITY — Austrian President Kurt Waldheim arrived in Rome Wednesday to meet with the pope, and four U.S. Jewish activists climbed the steps of St. Peter's Basilica in death camp uniforms singing a Hebrew prayer to protest the visit to the Vatican.

"We tell the Vatican, the pope, the world that this is intolerable," Rabbi Avraham Weiss said, reiterating charges by Jewish organizations that Waldheim was involved in Nazi war crimes. Waldheim arrived from Vienna for a two-day visit, his first state visit since he was elected president June 8, 1986.

Amnesty may include 'anti-Soviets'

MOSCOW — The Soviet Union is expected to release hundreds of political prisoners this year under a general amnesty declared in honor of the 70th anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution.

This amnesty will be the first in Soviet history to apply to people sentenced for such political crimes as "anti-Soviet" slander and violation of laws regulating religious practices, Soviet Foreign Ministry spokesman Gennadi Gerasimov said.

Commenting Wednesday on the general amnesty, Gerasimov noted that it is "broader" than previous ones. "It should be," he said. "First, it is the 70th anniversary; second, there are new people at the top and thirdly, under glasnost, some of these crimes are now..." and he made a dismissive gesture with his hand.

6-year-old testifies in sex abuse case

NEWARK, N.J. — A 6-year-old testifying on closed-circuit television told a jury Wednesday a day-care teacher accused of molesting him and 19 other preschoolers did "many things" to him, including taking his temperature with a rectal thermometer.

The boy, who was 4 at the time of the alleged abuse, testified for about an hour in the trial of Margaret Kelly Michaels, 24, in what lawyers say is one of the largest child sex abuse cases in the country.

Michaels, who now lives in Pittsburgh, faces 163 counts of sexually assaulting and threatening children during the 1984-85 school year at the Wee Care Day Nursery in Maplewood, N.J.

USA Today to hit TV airwaves

ARLINGTON, Va. — USA Today, the national newspaper whose short stories and flashy graphics remind some readers of television news coverage, plans to hit the airwaves itself in the fall of 1988.

The proposed video version of the newspaper was unveiled here Tuesday by Grant Tinker, former chairman of NBC, and Steve Friedman, former executive producer of NBC's top-rated "Today" show.

The program is being planned to air as a half-hour, five-nights-a-week, satellite-fed syndicated series along the lines of "Entertainment Tonight."

Korean politicians deadlocked over reform

By John Burgess
Washington Post

SEOUL, South Korea — Opposition politicians denounced a sham political concession offered by President Chun Doo Hwan Wednesday and suggested they would encourage a redoubling of a 2-week-old campaign in the streets against his government.

The statements dampened optimism that the two intensely hostile sides were close to a peaceful settlement of the protests. But government spokesmen played down the rejection as posturing and said the sides were still headed toward a "grand compromise."

Chun presented his concessions to Kim Young Sam, president of the main opposition party, in a three-hour meeting Wednesday that included lunch. It was the first time they had ever met, an indication of the divisions that exist in the political society here.

CHUN OFFERED to reopen negotiations in the National Assembly toward amending the constitution, effectively reversing an announcement he made April 13 suspending the talks until after the 1988 Summer Olympics in Seoul.

Reaching agreement on the revision is considered crucial to achieving long-term political stability in South Korea.

Chun said that Kim Dae Jung, who shares leadership of the opposition party with Kim Young Sam, would be freed from a 2½-month-old house arrest. Busloads of police withdrew from his house about midnight Wednesday and supporters crowded into his garden to give congratulations.

Chun also told Kim the government would release as many as possible of the people who have been arrested since demonstrations began on June 10 and are still being held. The opposition says they number about 300.

KIM YOUNG SAM told reporters that his side had won some minor victories but that in general Chun had failed to offer significant concessions.

"I reject the idea of resuming debate in the National Assembly. We wasted time for one year there," he said, referring to inconclusive discussions that ended with Chun's decision to suspend talks in April.

Kim said he told Chun that the question of what type of government to create should be put to a national referendum. "Let the people of Korea decide their fate," he said. But Chun did not agree to such a referendum.

Kim also assailed Chun for giving what he said were non-committal answers on requests that 3,000 other people who the opposition regards as political prisoners be released.

BEFORE THE SUSPENSION of talks in April, the opposition had proposed a referendum and is now calling it the most important issue. The government, however, has always said the problem should be settled in the assembly.

Wednesday's events underscored the fact that reopening talks is only a small part of the task. Even before April, no substantial dialogue was going on, as the two sides had quickly become deadlocked.

The opposition wants a system headed by a popularly elected president. The government, however, is pressing for a cabinet system headed by a prime minister.

South Korean President Chun Doo Hwan, left, shakes hands with opposition leader Kim Young Sam prior to their meeting Wednesday.

Religious groups win right to hire on basis of faith

By Henry J. Reske
United Press International

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court, in a major victory for religious groups, ruled Wednesday churches operating non-profit businesses may hire only members of their own faith and fire those who backslide.

The ruling, in two cases involving workers at Mormon-run firms, gives church groups operating non-profit businesses wide authority to hire and fire employees without fear of government intervention.

Justice Byron White, writing for the court, upheld an act of Congress exempting religious organizations from Title 7 of the Civil Rights Act, which prohibits discrimination on the basis of religion.

White said the exemption does not violate the First Amendment's provision against entangling church and state.

"A LAW IS NOT unconstitutional simply because it allows churches to advance religion, which is their very purpose," the justice said.

Many religious groups, such as the Roman Catholic church and Protestant denominations, operate a variety of schools, hospitals and other institutions. Some are non-profit and others for-profit traditional businesses. The court did not decide whether Wednesday's ruling would reach for-profit operations run by religious groups.

David Watkiss, with the American Civil Liberties Union in Salt Lake City, which handled the case for the fired workers, said the ruling's impact may be limited in that "most of the nation's churches don't engage in coercive religious discrimination in non-religious employment like we had in our case."

HE ALSO SAID the court essentially imposed "a non-profit limitation. They said it was not unconstitutional to exempt them in non-profit activities. They suggest the opinion would come out differently in profit-making businesses."

But Deborah Ellis, who also worked on the case for the ACLU, called the ruling distressing and said there was no question that those fired were dismissed simply for not being good Mormons.

"I think the Mormon Church is a very good illustration of the problem," she said. "In Utah, the Mormon Church is one of the biggest employers in the state. ... It controls many non-religious jobs. We don't believe Congress really intended to give such a broad exemption in non-religious activities of churches."

Firefighters extinguish blaze in downtown Des Moines

DES MOINES (UPI) — Firefighters Wednesday worked to douse smoke-generating "hot spots" emitting from a building that burned Tuesday in the historical Court Avenue district, clearing way for cleanup efforts that may take as long as a week.

Fire officials said they still had not determined the cause of the blaze that destroyed the eight-story Brody Building, which was in the process of being demolished. Reports had surfaced that a blowtorch being used by demolition workers had ignited the fire, but officials called those reports premature.

The blaze began at about 6:30 p.m. Tuesday, sending flames that could be seen as far away as 30 miles. Firefighters worked throughout the night to douse the blaze, and parts of Court Avenue remained closed to traffic Wednesday as falling debris splattered the street.

No injuries were reported in the fire, but several adjacent downtown businesses sustained heavy smoke and water damage. Officials said Spaghetti Works and Julio's restaurants and Johnny's Hall of Fame Lounge may be closed as long as a week while repairs are under way.

"It's a real mess — I don't know how long it will take to get the area cleared; maybe a week or so," Fire Chief Robert Armstrong said. "Our main concern now is just getting the hot spots out, then clearing out the debris."

Armstrong said firefighters have "some ideas as to what started" the blaze, but an investigation must be conducted before a determination can be made. He said reports that a blow torch may have ignited the fire "could be on target, or maybe they're not. We just can't say for sure right now."

DePalma strikes out with 'Untouchables'

By Matthew Wills
 The Daily Iowan

ONE doesn't see many gangster films these days and maybe for good reason. For one thing, we don't have "gangsters" anymore; we have organized crime. For another, the mob isn't quite the last refuge of the urban cowboy, as epitomized by James Cagney and Edward G. Robinson in the 1930s, either. But director Brian De Palma, who has made a career of going back to the materials of an earlier Hollywood, served up a remake of Scarface only a few years ago and now delves into the 1930s once again with The Untouchables.

Kevin Costner as the "untouchable" Elliot Ness.

Movies

The story of Elliot Ness's extra-legal campaign against bootleg kingpin Al Capone in Prohibition Chicago, The Untouchables is based on the 1960s television series with Robert Stack. The film stars Kevin Costner as G-Man Ness, Andy Garcia and Charles Martin Smith as his partners, Sean Connery as the only honest cop in town and Robert De Niro, giving the film its only lift, as big, bad Alphonse Capone.

DAVID MAMET, the Pulitzer prize-winning playwright, wrote the screenplay, but his work is largely invisible except for a few colorful, but questionable, bits of dialogue studded with ethnic bigotry.

The story is uninspired as well, since everyone knows how Capone was "got." The only thing worth noting about the plot is its disturbing celebration of unfettered police power.

What's absent in this film is something to talk about when it's over: there's no "there" there. For all its violence, it's terribly bland, with shiny post-modern re-creations of 1930s urban Chicago, including cars that are perfectly buffed and swank suits designed by Giorgio Armani.

Another reviewer put the film down as a "cartoon," but it doesn't even deserve that accolade. The state of the production of big budget commercial vehicles like this one is that the end of the line — video and cable sales — are what this film is aiming for.

DE PALMA, WHO has received much justifiable flack for his misogynist treatment of women in films like Dressed to Kill and Body Double, here avoids the issue completely. This is another reason why the film is so wan, for it seems that without controversy, there's really not much to a De Palma film.

Essentially a boys-only story about crime-busting, there are no women characters in the film to speak of, except for "Ness's Wife" (as her credit reads), and she is marginalized into wishing her husband good luck on his first day at the job and giving birth to another child. While it's commendable that women aren't being mutilated and fetishized by the film, it's a sad commentary that only wives are allowed in it.

IT IS REALLY too easy to just call The Untouchables a bad film. At one point, De Palma apes the Odessa Steps sequence in Eisenstein's Potemkin, a hallowed bit of cinema that's been much parodied. The trouble here is that, although technically perfect, the sequence is so belabored and drawn out that it hits you over the head with its nudge-nudge, wink-wink, "guess which film I'm quoting" mentality. Later, De Palma does his customary Hitchcock quote, from Marnie, and we're all supposed to get it. Who cares.

The Untouchables is essentially made for television. With Dragnet due out in the theaters soon, will the next television season bring us The New Untouchables? Stay tuned. It will probably be as modish a homage to the pre-Miranda police state as this film is.

Diversity makes The Pulse unique

By Jim Anderson
 Special to The Daily Iowan

A GUITAR player who is into classical music and three other musicians who are into rock and roll form the group The Pulse, an Iowa City band that will take the stage this Saturday and Sunday night at the Dubuque Street Brewing Company.

"We are not a band that all looks alike," said Rob Eckert, the band's lead guitarist. "We all bring something different to the band."

Eckert said he likes playing originals and having long jam sessions while other members of the group have their own musical tastes.

"You cannot expect to hear one kind of thing at our shows. We do cover tunes, originals and stuff that will balance everything out," Eckert said.

THE BAND'S outside musical tastes "are real diverse," said Eckert. "Drummer Stu Mullins likes stuff you might hear on the radio and our bass player, Pat Heffron, is really into the blues, keyboardist Mike Wood likes Billy Joel... and we all like The Beatles."

When asked about the positive and negative aspects about being in a band, Eckert said: "We enjoy seeing audiences have a good time. It's really a good feeling when you see people out on the floor dancing and having fun. It's also enjoyable being the center of attention for a while and the money is great. But for the most part we are in it to have fun."

Eckert's only complaint about being in a band is the intense volume level. "I always use ear plugs," he said.

CLAIMING THAT there is no real long-term goal for The Pulse, Eckert said it is hard to set goals "because everyone is so busy. Mike and I are both taking classes and we all work a lot, and have our own things to do."

The members of The Pulse agree that being in a band takes a lot of time. "Unfortunately we are all so busy that it has to take a back seat in terms of our priorities, but we still treat it with reverence," said Eckert.

"We all try to keep our shows as energetic as possible. Often we start jamming and then break off and start playing songs that we have never rehearsed or played before."

Barth mellows in 'Tidewater'

By Thomas F. Troy Jr.
 United Press International

The Tidewater Tales by John Barth.

THE hero of The Tidewater Tales has a bad case of writer's block.

Peter Sagamore suffers from no mere lack of inspiration. He has become such a severe critic of unnecessary verbiage that his latest story consisted only of a title, "B-flat."

Books

This is an ironic predicament for a character in a work by John Barth, whose works are known for their length, but it is not an unusual one.

Like an earlier Barth character, in End of the Road, the failure to find purpose is paralyzing, so Peter has ceased to function. By the end of the novel, Peter has found meaning of a sort in the love of his wife and soon-to-be-born children and in the simple enjoyment of telling stories.

THE SURFACE plots of this story are two: Sagamore's literary minimalism and the impending birth of his and his wife's twins. For 10 days, Peter and wife Katherine go for a meandering sail on the Chesapeake Bay while she is 8½ months pregnant. Will they be close to port when the twins are born? That question is the literary skeleton of this book. Adorning that frame is the story. At Kath's request — to help him overcome his "less is more" quandary — Peter tells their tales and records those of others they meet on their trip. Into and out of these pages seep fantastic players, including the CIA, the KGB, a girls' school on the Eastern Shore, a Maryland congressman tainted by scandal, a Baltimore tavern owner, a sperm and an egg and a New Jersey waste-recycling firm.

SINCE The End of the Road and The Floating Opera, Barth has given up on the conventional novel, choosing to shape his works to the way he writes — a baroque, playful style that eschews quotation marks and makes fun of chapter headings, among other aberrations. He also is not afraid to step outside the book to comment on the novel the reader is reading.

This novel suggests a mellow Barth who has found a place for love and family, while adding more political commentary to his works. In the process, Barth's characters have lost their tough, defiant edge while still seeming lost in the world.

Tidewater Tales seems repetitive for Barth. The setting is, once again, Maryland's Eastern Shore. The crux — to tell stories — is lame. There is a good deal to skip over, but Tidewater Tales is worth reading for some brilliant passages and for a style that makes other novelists seem quaint.

Bauer attacks famine with red, white 'n' blue recipes

By John DeMers
 United Press International

The American Sampler Cookbook by Linda Bauer.

LINDA Bauer realizes that every cookbook, in a sense, is a battle against hunger since it encourages people to eat. But she decided to use her own cookbook as a direct assault on the problem of world famine.

Bauer, the author of The American Sampler Cookbook, not only convinced American politicians from President Ronald Reagan on down to contribute recipes but also convinced her publisher to donate significant portions of the proceeds directly to the American Red Cross.

She says she chose this particular charity because it charges no administrative fees for distributing funds to the needy.

"It was amazing how everything worked out," said Bauer, a former Capitol Hill intern and current mother of two young sons. "I didn't even know if people would respond."

"BUT I GOT A good mix of recipes from main dishes to desserts, without really even planning it that way," she said.

Bauer spent a year and a half collecting the recipes, then weaving them together into a book, working mostly in the early morning hours before her children woke up.

Among her coups were a macaroni and cheese recipe from President and Nancy Reagan, a family formula for Cape Cod Fish Chowder from Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., Bean Soup from former House Speaker Tip O'Neill and Texas Chili in the style of current House Speaker Jim Wright, D-Texas.

The author manages to display the recipes in clear fashion while festooning them on occasion with anecdotes about their regional origins or descriptions of their special relationship to the politician-cook lending them his name.

Lawyer: Hostages top priority

By Joseph Mianowany and Anne Saker
United Press International

WASHINGTON — The CIA lawyer who gave the White House the legal instrument to sell arms to Iran said Wednesday the top priority always was purchasing freedom for American hostages in Lebanon, and that position was ever made of a diplomatic overture to Iranian "moderates."

Stanley Sporkin, who resigned as chief CIA counsel last year to become a federal judge, also told the Iran-Contra committees he cautioned the White House in early 1986 about bringing in Richard Secord to operate the foreign policy overture — but national security adviser John Poindexter apparently disregarded the warning.

The 22nd day of hearings by the select House-Senate committees on the foreign policy affair concentrated on the national security "finding" that Sporkin drafted in late November 1985 and President Ronald Reagan signed Jan. 17, 1986.

THE 1½-PAGE "finding" — which Reagan did not even read before approving — gave the government the legal right to proceed with its clandestine sales to Iran and also to keep the dealings secret from Congress.

Sporkin, answering pointed questions from Sen. Howell Heflin, D-Ala., said that when he began writing the "finding," no official he dealt with ever spoke of Iranian "moderates."

"Is there anything in the docu-

Iran-Contra committees detail CIA involvement

Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The House and Senate Iran-Contra panels Wednesday disclosed new details of extensive Central Intelligence Agency involvement in the November 1985 shipment by Israel of American-made arms to Iran, and revealed that key CIA cables on the mission are missing or destroyed.

An unusual presentation by congressional investigators Wednesday focused on the role of Duane (Dewey) Clarridge, the senior CIA official involved in directing the agency's role in the operation. In sworn testimony to investigators, Clarridge denied knowing that the shipment contained arms and insisted that he thought it consisted of "oil-drilling equipment," according to House deputy chief counsel W. Neil Eggleston.

Two other CIA employees and a State Department official have given the committees statements that appear to contradict Clarridge's testimony that he was not informed that the cargo was weapons. Evidence produced earlier by Iran-Contra investigators has shown that numerous U.S. officials knew that the shipment in question involved Hawk anti-aircraft missiles that were meant to buy the freedom of Americans then held hostage in Lebanon.

Two secret CIA cables bearing on Clarridge's knowledge of the shipment are missing from his personal files, the only place where copies of the cables were maintained at CIA headquarters, Eggleston disclosed.

ment there that deals with endeavoring to develop some type of a dialogue with the moderate element in Iran?" Heflin asked. "No sir," Sporkin said.

"So do I interpret your testimony to be that you had not heard of any effort, when you prepared this document, to create a dialogue or a linkage with any moderate element in Iran?" Heflin asked. "You're absolutely correct, sir," Sporkin answered.

THAT TESTIMONY is the first the committees have heard showing the arms sales were from the earliest planning stages intended as ransom for the hostages and were not a U.S. effort to demonstrate diplomatic good will to "moderate," pro-West factions in the government of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.

Reagan has insisted the arms sales were merely an outreach to the "moderates" but documents and reports — including the Feb. 26 study by Reagan's own Tower Commission — show the arms deals were barter for the hostages.

At his March 19 news conference, Reagan said strategic concerns, not ransom for the hostages, was the key feature of the initiative, although, "It could be that the policy was flawed in that it did deteriorate into what I, myself, when I went on the air recently, said was arms for hostages."

NEAR THE CLOSE of his rigorous daylong appearance, Sporkin said to the panel — made up almost entirely of lawyers and former judges — "This has been about the toughest bar exam I've ever had."

Sporkin also said: • He thought the "oral finding" Reagan gave to the August and September 1985 Israeli transfers of weapons to Iran was "adequate." But later, when pressed by Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Texas, Sporkin said that opinion was merely an off-the-cuff remark and not a legal stand.

• He never knew the arms sales generated millions of dollars in profits that now are frozen in Swiss accounts. He said he was more worried that "it would be very easy for the Iranians to take the weapons and not pay us, and what could we do? We couldn't file a lawsuit."

• It "didn't bother me" that during the period that he was drafting the "finding" permitting the arms sales, the United States was urging allies around the world not to sell arms to Iran.

North

North knows about any involvement by Reagan in the diversion of funds from the secret Iran arms sales to the Nicaraguan rebels — the central issue in the congressional investigation of the Iran-Contra affair. Reagan has denied any knowledge of the diversion.

The letter said that the private questioning, in which North will be placed under oath, will be preceded by an informal, off-the-record interview from North's testimony to Sullivan had earlier objected to any private questioning, arguing that it could weaken the protective power of the limited immunity that North will be offered by the committees. He asserted that the immunity statutes do not pertain to private depositions.

Once North is formally granted limited immunity from prosecution when he appears July 7, the independent counsel will be prohibited from using any information from North's testimony to build his criminal case against the former White House aide.

Sullivan also had been seeking to limit the amount of time that North could be questioned, as well as the number of subjects that could be covered during testimony. In addition, he wanted a pledge from the committees that North would not be recalled for a second public appearance after being excused by the committees.

In response, the attorneys assured Sullivan that the committees intend to complete their public questioning of North no later than July 10 — meaning that he will be at the witness table for four straight days. They also said that they do not anticipate a need to later recall North "unless extraordinary developments create a compelling need."

At the same time, Hamilton said that the investigators do not feel bound by these statements in their letter to Sullivan. "If it takes longer," he said, "we'll go longer."

wanted at a distance," he said. "I knew I had to achieve them and to do a lot of work before I got them. I knew I would eventually get them and it turned out right. It was a happy story."

At age 13, Gleason got a job as a pool room rack boy in Brooklyn, mastered the game and used his talents with a cue stick to immortalize Minnesota Fats many years later in the film The Hustler. That role, opposite Paul Newman and George C. Scott, earned him an Oscar nomination.

When he wasn't shooting pool, young Gleason was shooting hooks and jabs at ring opponents in the Catholic Boys Brigade. He said in later years he would have become a professional fighter "if it hadn't been for the fact I fought a guy by the name of Jimmy Kehoe."

Gleason said he had beaten everyone in his weight class and against the advice of his coach, decided to take on Kehoe. "He fractured me," Gleason said.

His ring experience, however, helped land him a starring role with Jack Palance in Requiem for a Heavyweight.

Gleason's personal film favorite was the non-speaking pantomime role in Gigot.

Comedian Joe E. Lewis, a

Gleason pal, joked at the time, "Gigot was worth the price of admission to watch Jackie Gleason keep his big mouth shut for two hours."

Gleason also starred with Steve McQueen in Soldier in the Rain and played the small-town sheriff who pursued Burt Reynolds and Sally Field in Smokey and the Bandit. In the third of the series, Gleason played the dual role of Sheriff Buford T. Justice and the bandit.

But it was the "Honeymooner" sketches with Art Carney, who played sewer worker Ed Norton, that made Gleason a television legend. That was the character of spleenish bus driver Kramden and his embattled wife, Alice, a couple who turned matrimony into psychological warfare with a hard edge of humor.

Audrey Meadows starred as Alice and Joyce Randolph portrayed Norton's wife Trixie.

When Gleason moved his show to Miami Beach in 1964, he and Carney expanded the "Honeymooners" sagas into weekly hour-long musical comedies.

The staff at Neutron Buff believes the service they offer can help people who want to sell their cars ask a higher price from potential buyers.

"When a person goes to buy your car the first thing he looks at is the finish. If it looks good, he assumes the car is in good running condition," Morris said. "Unless you're willing to take a loss on your car, you should consider spending at least $125 on its exterior per year."

AAU field ready to display talent

By Eric J. Hess
The Daily Iowan

Twenty teams are set when play opens Sunday at the Amateur Athletic Union National 19 and Under Championship Basketball Games.

About 50 Division I recruits have been tabbed to play in the week-long tournament which features some of the top young talent in the country.

Scheduled to play in the tournament are three Iowa recruits. Brig Tubbs, from DeWitt, Iowa, will play on the Iowa host team along with Rodell Davis of Harvey, Ill.

Iowa's Curtis Cuthbert, who will play for the defending national champion Michigan team, hails from Flint, Mich.

ON SUNDAY, there will be three sites — Carver-Hawkeye Arena, Iowa City Regina Gymnasium and Iowa City West High School.

During opening ceremonies at the Arena, which start at 8 p.m., there will be a team march featuring all 20 teams.

Later in the proceedings will be a slam dunk contest between 20 participants. The contest will be judged by Michael Reaves of Iowa, former Iowa player Bob Hansen of the Utah Jazz and Chris Mullin of the Golden State Warriors.

Scheduled to speak will be Hansen, Mullin and Coach Bobby Knight of the national champion Indiana Hoosiers.

The 20-team tournament, which runs from Sunday, June 28, to Saturday, July 4, will be divided in five pools of four teams each. After three days of the play, four teams will be eliminated.

Two of the top teams in the field, according to one of the four executive chairmen, Jerry Strom, are Michigan and a team from New York called the "Gachos."

"All of these teams won association tournaments in their locale," said Tournament Coordinator Jon Meskimen of how each team qualified for the tourney, adding that some teams finished second or third in their region.

Tickets for the event are $3 for adults and free to children 18 and under each day.

Puerto Rican officials may extradite Knight

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (UPI) — A government official, encouraged by a new Supreme Court decision, said Wednesday efforts should be made to extradite Indiana basketball Coach Bob Knight, who faces six months in jail on a Puerto Rican conviction.

Knight was tried and convicted for assaulting a police officer during the 1979 Pan American Games. However, he left the island before the trial was conducted and remains a fugitive in the eyes of the Puerto Rican government.

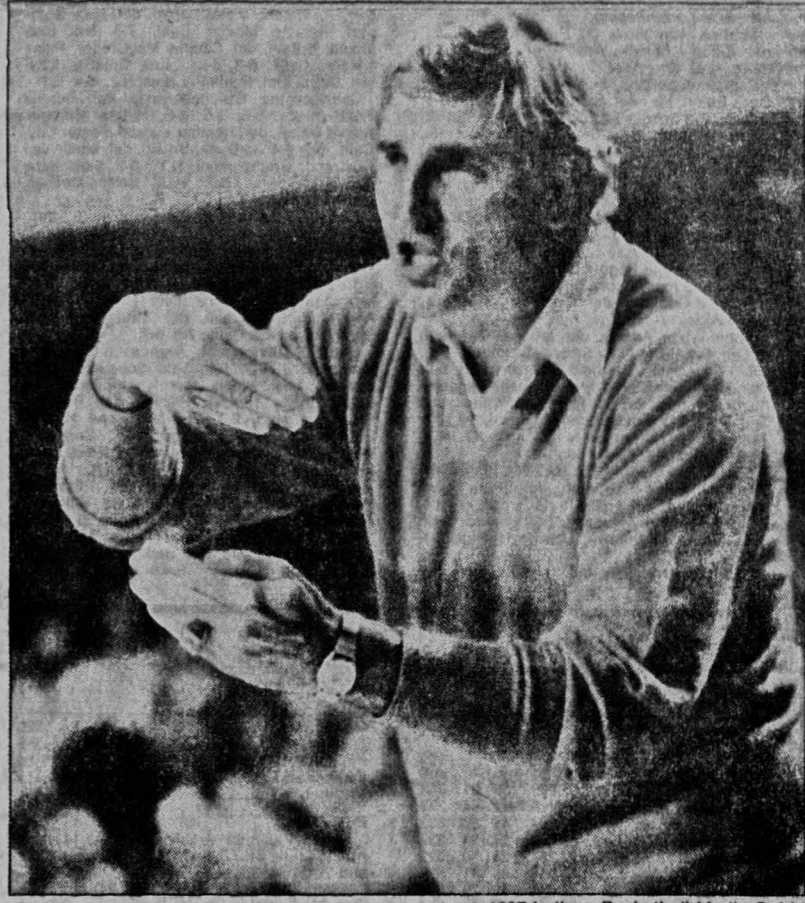

The impetus for a new extradition effort is based on Tuesday's Supreme Court decision, ruling federal courts have the power to force governors to comply with extradition requests.

"I would recommend (Knight's) extradition and I would submit his case immediately," said acting Secretary of Justice Guillermo Mojica. A request to the governor of Indiana for Knight's extradition would have to come from Gov. Rafael Hernandez Colon or Secretary of Justice Hector Rivera Cruz.

Knight was unavailable for comment.

Knight, coach of the victorious U.S. basketball team at the 1979 Games in San Juan, was charged with punching a Puerto Rican police officer who had intervened in an argument Knight was having with another man during a team practice.

A San Juan District Court judge convicted Knight of

assault later that year and sentenced him to serve six months in jail.

The incident created a furor in Puerto Rico, but then-Gov. Carlos Romero Barcelo never formally filed extradition papers to have Knight extradited from Indiana.

Mojica said he would recommend that Puerto Rico "submit a writ of mandamus to the federal District Court of Indiana to oblige" Gov. Robert Orr to send Knight to serve his sentence.

The Supreme Court's unanimous opinion helped Puerto Rico in its six-year battle to force the governor of Iowa to extradite a man wanted for murder and made it easier for states to bring criminals to justice.

IN INDIANAPOLIS, Indiana Attorney General Linley Pearson said he was surprised Puerto Rican officials would try to extradite Knight eight years after his conviction.

'Old guard' sweep to victory at Wimbledon opening round

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI) — Jimmy Connors, Chris Evert and Martina Navratilova, the old guard from the grand days of American tennis, celebrated the return of the sun to Wimbledon Wednesday by winning their opening round matches in straight sets.

Connors said he was loose and relaxed, Evert said she was angry and Navratilova was simply relieved.

Among them the trio has captured 11 singles titles at Wimbledon, and now in their 30s each has reason to wonder if there is to be any more occasion to celebrate.

Navratilova has the most at stake, seeking to add a record sixth consecutive women's crown and at the same time equal the mark of eight singles titles overall. She got off to a brilliant start, routing West German Claudia Porwik, 6-1, 6-0, in 31 minutes.

EVERT WAS EQUALLY efficient, beating Briton Sara

Gomer by the same score of 6-1, 6-0, in 42 minutes, while Connors defeated compatriot Marty Davis, 6-1, 7-6 (7-3), 7-6 (7-1).

Steffi Graf, the West German teenager who has come between Navratilova and Evert in the power structure, stretched her winning streak to 40 matches by crushing Adriana Villagran of Argentina, 6-0, 6-2, in 45 minutes.

"Of all the players, Martina and I are the angriest, we've got the most to prove," Evert said. "Everyone seems to think there's a changing of the guard. We're both champions. We've got a lot of pride and we'd like to win the tournament."

Three other American seeded men joined Connors in the second round with No. 10 Tim Mayotte beating France's Jean Fleurian, 6-2, 6-3, 6-3, No. 15 David Pate stopping Spaniard Sergio Casal, 6-4, 7-6 (7-5), 7-5, and No. 16 Kevin Curren defeating compatriot Ben Testerman, 7-6 (7-5), 7-6 (11-9), 6-3.

Pam Shriver, seeded fifth among the women, routed Natalia Medvedeva of the Soviet Union, 6-2, 6-1.

Among the other opening round men's winners were third seed Mats Wilander, No. 5 Miloslav Mecir, No. 6 Yannick Noah, No. 8 Andres Gomez and No. 9 Henri Leconte. Noah delivered 14 aces in beating Brad Drewett, 6-4, 6-4, 6-4.

Successful among the women were No. 4 Helena Sukova, No. 9 Bettina Bunge, No. 11 Catarina Lindqvist, No. 12 Wendy Turnbull, No. 15 Raffaella Reggi and No. 16 Sylvia Hanika.

Amana V.I.P. boasts celebrities of all kinds

Fuzzy Zoeller

By Marc Bona
The Daily Iowan

Professional golfers, actors and head coaches from the professional and collegiate ranks will be joined together on the links of Finkbine Golf Course June 21 as the 21st Amana V.I.P. Golf Tournament gets underway.

In all, 43 professional golfers are scheduled to attend. More than half have earned more than $1 million while eight have topped the $2 million mark.

The elite eight is comprised of Fuzzy Zoeller, Tom Watson, Billy Casper, Miller Barber, Hubert Green, John Mahaffey and Gene Littler. JoAnne Carner is the lone LPGA entry among the group.

IOWA GRADUATE Dave Rummells of West Branch, Iowa, who is ranked 57th this year with $98,325 earned on the PGA Tour, will be part of the field.

Iowa basketball Coach Tom Davis will be making his second appearance at the tournament.

The field of sports personalities includes Indiana basketball Coach Bobby Knight, Chicago Bears Coach Mike Ditka and New York Giants Coach Bill Parcells. Because of recent surgery, Parcells will not golf but will be in attendance.

Jay Hilgenberg, an Iowa City native and a former Iowa football player now with the Bears, will also be competing.

Billiards extraordinaire Willie Mosconi will also be in attendance.

In addition to Knight, college basketball coaches Pete Herrmann (Navy) and Bob Wenzel (Jacksonville) will participate. Both coaches will be coming back to Iowa City in December to play in the Amana-Hawkeye Classic in Carver-Hawkeye Arena.

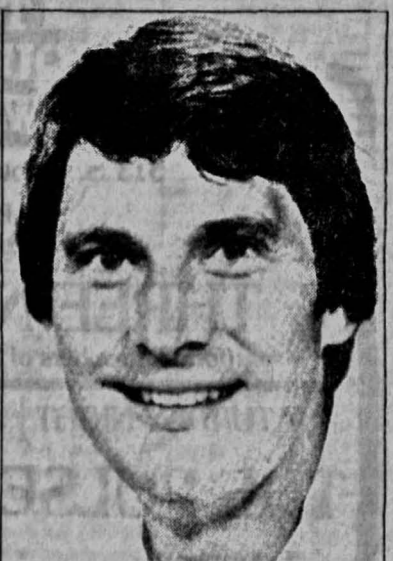

THE STAR-STUDED cast of actors will be led by Ernest

Borgnine, best known for his role in the 1960s television series, "McHale's Navy." Borgnine also appeared as the cab driver sent to prison in the science-fiction adventure, "Escape from New York."

Astronaut Gene Cernan, actor George Lindsey (best known as Goober on "The Andy Griffith Show"), country singer Roy Clark and singer Pat Boone will also be in attendance.

Last year, Jim Dent shot an 8-under-par 64 to win the event.

Tickets for the tournament, on sale at the Iowa Athletic Ticket Office, are $7 in advance and $9 at the gate Monday.

Schulz, baseball sue Hare Krishnas

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Peanuts cartoon creator Charles Schulz and major league baseball Wednesday filed a Hare Krishna community in West Virginia that used their trademarks in a multimillion-dollar nationwide panhandling operation.

The two charged that New Vrindaban, the biggest Krishna community in North America, infringed upon their copyrights by distributing caps, buttons and other souvenirs emblazoned with their logos in return for donations.

In a suit filed in U.S. District Court in Elkins, W. Va., the 26 major league baseball teams requested a total of $27 million in damages, a court spokesman said.

In a similar suit, United Features Syndicate, which represents Schulz, requested $50,000 in damages for each suspected copyright violation, a spokesman said. The number of violations could total in the hundreds.

Named as defendants were: New Vrindaban, a 2,900-acre mountain community 75 miles southwest of Pittsburgh; Dennis Gorrick, who headed the fund-raising program; and the village's guru, Kirtanananda Swami Bhaktipada.

Joyner-Kersey aims for world record

SAN JOSE, Calif. (UPI)—Jackie Joyner-Kersey unleashed the longest women's jump in American history Wednesday at the USA-Mobil Track and Field Championships, putting her in a position to set her third world heptathlon record in a year.

Joyner's long jump of 23 feet, 9 1/2 inches bettered her previous world best in the heptathlon of 23-03.4 set last year. It also was longer than her previous American open mark of 23-9, but it will not be accepted as an open record because the wind of 2.27 meters-second was stiffer than the 2.00 allowed.

The jump stands a heptathlon record because the allowable wind for that event is 4.00.

The leap earned Joyner 1,257 points and gave her a total of 5,387 through five events — 60 ahead of the world record pace she established last August at the U.S. Olympic Sports Festival in Houston.

Joyner entered the day 15 points behind the pace, but husband-coach Bob Kersey said if she could leap more than 23 feet in the long jump, she would set the record.

"She's just an amazing athlete, absolutely amazing," Kersey said. "When she puts her mind to something, she puts her mind to something."

Joyner's first two jumps were 22-4 1/2 and 22-11 1/2. The 25-year-old native of East St. Louis, Ill., used a marvelous approach on her record-setting jump, but came very close to fouling.

Can You Top This?
I got tired with people asking me when I'm going to retire. As long as I can play the kind of tennis I'm playing now, I'll go on. I see it's exercise for me and I make a hell of a living at it. When I look back, I'll say I enjoyed it all. I've had it all, I've done it all. — 34-year-old Jimmy Connors after winning his opening-round match.

Many Happy Returns
Michael Young (1966).
None of the top five women's seeds required more than 45 minutes to win their opening-round matches. Martina Navratilova topped them all, winning in 31 minutes. Pam Shriver needed 41 minutes, Chris Evert took 42 and Steffi Graf and Helena Sukova each won in 45.

Seemingly By
Briton Jeremy Bates won his first-round match over American Bill Scanlon with identical scores of 7-6, 7-6, 7-6. He took the tie-breaks, 7-5, 7-5, 7-4.

Baltimore shuts out Yankees on first-inning round trippers

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Cal Ripken Jr., Eddie Murray and Ray Knight homered off Ron Guidry in the first inning Wednesday night, powering the Baltimore Orioles to a 4-0 victory over the New York Yankees behind the three-hit pitching of Dave Schmidt.

Ripken hit his 17th home run, over the left field fence, with two outs in the first inning and Murray, the next batter, lofted his 14th home run, into the first row of the left-field bleachers for a 2-0 lead. After Mike Young coaxed a walk, Knight lined his eighth home run, high into the left-field seats to tag Guidry with his third loss in as many decisions.

Pendleton slammed a 3-2 pitch off Mike Jackson, 1-6, into the right-field bleachers for his fifth home run of the year to tie his career high. The two-out homer came after Willie McGee singled.

Todd Worrell, 2-3, pitched the final 1 2-3 innings to record the victory.

Mets 2, Cubs 1
NEW YORK (UPI) — Bill Almon's one-out single in the ninth drove in Kevin McReynolds Wednesday night, giving the New York Mets a 2-1 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

McReynolds singled with one out off Lee Smith, 2-5, and moved to second when Howard Johnson singled off the glove of second baseman Manny Trillo. Dave Magadan then walked before Almon grounded a 1-2 pitch up the middle to knock in the winning run.

Roger McDowell, 4-2, who pitched a one-hit ninth, was credited with the victory in relief of starter John Mitchell and reliever Doug Sisk.

New York tied the score in the eighth on Mookie Wilson's RBI pinch single off Smith.

Reds 5, Giants 4
SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Eric Davis scored all the way from first base on a wild pick-off attempt in the top of the 10th inning Wednesday, giving the Cincinnati Reds a 5-4 victory over the San Francisco Giants.

Davis led off with a single to left and reliever Scott Garrelts, 5-5, threw the ball away while attempting to pick Davis off first base. When first baseman Will Clark had trouble picking up the ball, Davis scored.

John Franco, 4-1, pitched 12 3 innings for the victory.

Economics force shutdown of Alouettes

MONTREAL (UPI) — The Canadian Football League's Montreal Alouettes folded Wednesday, ending a 41-year football tradition graced by names like Fred Biletnikoff and Vince Ferragamo.

"Economics stared us in the face," said Alouettes majority owner and president Norm Kimball. "The people of Montreal told us clearly what their interest level was. They didn't want what we had available. They have that right."

The club, a breeding ground and pasture for future and former NFL players, folded before the regular season rather than face losses expected to reach $3 million, said CFL Commissioner Doug Mitchell at a news conference in Toronto.

"We felt that to start, and not really know if you'd finish was a really down way to go into the season," Mitchell said. "It's like a death in the family, but life goes on."

THE CLUB HAD SOLD less than 4,000 season tickets and the projected gate revenue of $300,000 would have fallen far short of the $2.7 million revenue target the league set last year for Montreal. The Alouettes' losses exceeded $3 million in 1986.

"Other than in 1976 to 1980, where there was the novelty of the Olympic Stadium, overall attendance has averaged 18,500 in the last 21 years and that just wasn't enough," Mitchell said.

Alouettes players were surprised, with their season set to begin Thursday in Toronto.

"The sun is still shining," said defensive lineman Glen Kulka after Kimball met with the players. "It's another day. It don't matter. . . I'm not angry. I just really wish we'd had the opportunity to play and to win fan support. If they could have given us a few more games, we could have created fan interest."

THE ALOUETTES HAVE had their problems on the field, but Mitchell was not convinced a more successful Montreal franchise would still be alive.

"That's the unanswered question and that's what bothers me. In the last seven years, they haven't had a winning record," he noted. Montreal last won the Grey Cup in 1977, beating Edmonton 41-9.

The players will be paid for the first game, said Kimball. The eight remaining CFL teams will hold a dispersal draft for the players Friday. Creditors will be paid in full and season ticket payments will be refunded.

The demise of the Alouettes is the latest in a series of CFL financial problems. The Saskatchewan Roughriders held a season-ticket telethon last week to raise funds. The Calgary Stampeders experienced similar problems before the 1986 season.

O'Grady upset over exclusion from shootout

CROMWELL, Conn. (UPI) — The Greater Hartford Open features the second-place finisher from last week's U.S. Open, the runner-up on the earnings list and a defending champion upset by his exclusion from the pre-tournament shootout.

Mac O'Grady, who did not commit himself to this year's tournament until Sunday, was shut out of Tuesday's $10,000, eight-player shootout.

"Every defending champ is in the shootout everywhere on the tour," O'Grady said. "I expected to be in it when I came here today."

"If I won the U.S. Open, are you telling me I couldn't play?" O'Grady snapped at former Greater Hartford Open chairman Ted May Jr.

SINCE MOVING TO THE Tournament Players Club of Connecticut from the Wethersfield Country Club in 1984, the tournament, which begins Thursday, has gained in respect, popularity and prize money. The total purse has more than doubled since the move, from $300,000 in 1984 to $700,000 this year, with the winner walking away with $126,000.

The list of competitors in this year's tournament shows the increased respect players are giving to the event.

Tom Watson, who finished second in last week's U.S. Open, leads the list of this year's participants. West German Bernhard Langer, who tied for fourth at the Open, and Paul Azinger, who ranks second on the PGA earnings list, are also scheduled to play. In addition, expected to compete are Fuzzy Zoeller, Ray Floyd and Roger Maltbie, who finished second in last year's Open when he lost a playoff to O'Grady.

Scott Simpson, the U.S. Open champion and the tour's leading money winner, is joined by Greg Norman and Seve Ballesteros as the tournament's most notable absentees.

O'Grady tied for ninth at the U.S. Open and has snapped out of a slump that began after his Tournament of Champions victory.

Maltbie has also struggled but was third in the Westchester Classic and fourth in the Masters.

O'Grady shot a course-record 62 in the final round of last year's Greater Hartford Open and won the first playoff hole by parring the par-3 No. 16.

Tyson-Tucker bout will merge title belts

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mike Tyson or Tony Tucker, neither of whom were part of the heavyweight unification series when it began, literally will be crowned champion with full pomp and circumstance after their scheduled 15-round bout in August.

Promoter Don King, full of his usual hyperbole, Wednesday unveiled a golden crown, which he claimed was studded with rubies and pearls, at a news conference.

The winner of the Aug. 1 fight in Las Vegas, Nev., will "crowned the true king of boxing" said the promoter, known for his own crown of gray electric hair.

The winner will also become the first unified champion since Leon Spinks claimed two titles in defeating Muhammad Ali in February 1978. Since that time 15 boxers have held a heavyweight title from one of the now-three international boxing associations.

TYSON OF CATSKILL, N.Y., became the youngest champion when he took the World Boxing Council title from Trevor Berbick on Nov. 22, 1986 — four months after his 20th birthday. He added the World Boxing Association title in March by defeating James "Boncrusher" Smith in a 12-round decision.

"This is it," Tyson said. "I always knew it would happen, but I never dreamed that I would be the one to settle it. It is the ultimate goal for me and I refuse to be beaten." Tyson, 30-0 with 27 knockouts, entered the 18-month-old unification series after the seven-fight round-robin event became embroiled in controversy. His entrance sparked the defection of Michael Spinks, who opted instead to fight Gerry Cooney.

WHEN SPINKS VACATED his International Boxing Federation title, Tucker won it over James Douglas with a 10th-round knockout in May. The 28-year-old Tucker, 34-0 with one no contest, will have over a 10-inch reach advantage and is 4 1/2 inches taller than the 5-11 1/2-inch Tyson.

"I never envisioned fighting Tyson," said the Detroit fighter. "When I was fighting professionally he was an amateur."

When the unification series started, Pinklon Thomas was the WBC champion, Michael Spinks was the IBF champion and Tony Tubbs the WBA title-holder. A series of bouts were set up with leading contenders including Larry Holmes, Tim Witherspoon, Trevor Berbick, Frank Bruno and Stefan Tangstad.

When Spinks, with the assistance of a court order, fought Cooney in a heavyweight bout earlier this month, he proclaimed himself the people's champion even though the fight was not sanctioned.

Tyson said if he claims all three titles, he would consider meeting Spinks.
