Amana V.I.P. shines despite rain

An exhausted Mike Ditka, head coach of the NFL Chicago Bears, chomps on a cigar as he relaxes on the 17th tee, waiting for play to resume after a one-hour rain delay at the 21st annual Amana V.I.P. Golf Tournament at Finkbine Golf Course Monday afternoon.

Good golf, coolers and bratwurst, celebrities, sun, and a little rain; those are what make up a good day at the Amana V.I.P. tournament, spectators said Monday.

The tournament, held annually for the past 21 years at the UI's Finkbine Golf Course, drew an estimated 10,000 to 15,000 people, according to Amana public relations manager Ann Collins.

Dedicated fans arrived as early as 6 a.m. and stayed until 8 p.m. when it was announced that Vance Heafner had won with a round of 66.

Fans lined the greens all day — with the exception of a half-hour rain shower — and hid under trees while waiting for the storm to pass.

"WE GET ALL kinds of people," Collins said. "We get people who love golf and people who come to see the celebrities. Some are real veterans. They bring their lawn chairs, their coolers, their umbrellas and sunscreen."

Dorothy Shutt, of Moline, Ill., is one such veteran. She and her group of friends picked a green in the center of the course for their lawn chairs and a nearby bush for their picnic area. They arranged coolers, picnic baskets and a portable table complete with umbrella.

"We do this every year," she said.

"I enjoy this tournament much more than other ones," Shutt said. "The atmosphere is different. The people are friendly."

"This is a day off for all the professional golfers," said Herb Parsons, a spectator from Cedar Falls. "There is not much at stake for them so they have more fun."

"I'm having a ball," said Spanky McFarland of Little Rascals fame. "This is my fourth time here. I like the fun, the people, the golf, the weather."

BILLIARDS LEGEND Willie Mosconi agreed and said he liked Iowa: "The people are so nice here. They're very congenial."

About 43 professional golfers participated in the tournament, including Tom Watson, Fuzzy Zoeller and Iowa native Dave Rummells. Twenty-four celebrities participated in the tournament, including Chicago Bears coach Mike Ditka, basketball coaches Tom Davis and Bobby Knight and singer Pat Boone.

"This is an opportunity not many Iowans have," Collins said. "Not many golfers of this caliber come to this area and not many celebrities come here at once. The gallery really takes advantage of this opportunity."

The celebrities and professionals were often late teeing off because they signed autographs for people in the gallery.

Boone would consider hosting PTL

Entertainer wants to see show survive

By Lisa Legge
The Daily Iowan

Although he won't help settle the disagreement between PTL leader the Rev. Jerry Falwell and former PTL president the Rev. Jim Bakker, entertainer Pat Boone said Monday he would consider temporarily hosting the PTL show if asked.

Boone, in Iowa City Monday for the Amana V.I.P. golf tournament, said he had been asked by Bakker's lawyer, Melvin Belli, to host the PTL show.

"He asked me to host for a while until Jim Bakker got back," Boone said. "I hope I would not be asked (by Falwell), but if I was asked, I would want to help for just a year."

Boone said he has not been directly asked by Falwell to host the show.

"If they need me, I would consider it. I wouldn't shrug it off," Boone said, adding, however, that he is busy with his own work.

"I'm interested in seeing them survive," Boone said. "I hope they get somebody else and I hope it survives without me."

BOONE SAID Belli had also asked him to help arbitrate the disagreement between Falwell and Bakker, but he declined.

Falwell took over the PTL ministry in March after Bakker admitted to an extramarital sexual encounter. Falwell later accused Bakker of being a homosexual, while Bakker accused Falwell of trying to steal the ministry.

"It's not for me to insinuate myself into the situation," he said, adding only the people inside PTL should be involved in order to come to the quickest and best decision.

"I hope they close the door and pray and come to a sensible plan," he said.

Boone said he also declined a previous invitation to be on the board initially set up to investigate Bakker's relationship with church secretary Jessica Hahn.

"JERRY FALWELL asked me to be a member of the board," Boone said. "But I said no because I was too busy."

"That was before we knew how bad it would get," he added.

Boone said recent incidents involving television evangelists have not discredited them as a whole, but admitted some changes need to be made.

"There's necessary weeding and pruning going on," Boone said. "There have been some excesses and some mistakes have been made. They've got to be more accountable and more practical."

Boone said he is confident Bakker is capable of getting back into the ministry and will be able to do so soon.

Cause uncertain for GPA discrepancies

By John Bartenhagen
The Daily Iowan

Although the overall UI grade point has slowly declined from its peak a decade ago, grade inflation has continued to distort mean GPAs in some UI Colleges.

After reaching a high of almost 2.8 in the mid-1970s, the mean UI grade point has stabilized around 2.7, prompting some UI officials to believe grade inflation is no longer an issue.

But according to reports compiled by the Office of the Registrar at the end of every semester, GPAs in the Colleges of Business Administration and Pharmacy have increased by .20 and .14, respectively, since the fall of 1976.

Associate Dean of Business William Albrecht said different factors than those contributing to the grade inflation of the 70s are now at work.

"WE MUST BE getting better students," he said. "We have applied better standards for admission because we have been overcrowded for so long and I think the increased competition is the answer."

This is the second of three stories examining grade point averages at the UI

In the UI College of Engineering, however, an increase in student ability has not had a similar effect on GPAs, according to Associate Dean of Engineering Paul Scholz. The average GPA in that college has decreased only three-hundredths of a point since 1976, the smallest change registered by any UI College.

"It's really surprising because the quality of engineering students has increased according to ACT

GOP falls short in local visits

By Shawn Plank
The Daily Iowan

Democratic presidential candidates have outnumbered Republicans in Johnson County campaign stops this year 12 to two, but officials in GOP camps say their candidates will visit the stronghold Democratic county closer to the caucuses.

Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., and Rep. Pierre du Pont, R-Del., are the only two GOP candidates to visit the Iowa City area during the first six months of the year, both visiting earlier this spring.

But officials in two other Republican campaigns said their candidates haven't been avoiding Johnson County — they're just waiting to make their mark shortly before the February caucuses.

George Wittgraf, state chair of George Bush's campaign said when the vice president first stumped for president in 1980, he didn't visit Johnson County until September 1979 and made only two stops here.

"THERE'S BEEN NO shying away on his part," Wittgraf said.

Bush has come close to Johnson County, making two stops in Cedar Rapids within the past year. Wednesday, he will be appearing in Van Horne, Iowa, about 40 miles northeast of Iowa City.

Penny Brown, state director of Jack Kemp's campaign, said the New York representative and former pro quarterback will make two or three appearances in Johnson County this fall. He is tentatively scheduled to attend a UI College of Law event and Iowa's homecoming football game.

Asked if Kemp and the other candidates are avoiding the county, Brown said, "Oh no, not at all. There are 99 counties."

But Johnson County Democratic Party Chairman Ron Bohlen said GOP candidates do not consider it worthwhile to come to Iowa City because they would meet with small crowds.

DOLE ATTRACTED about 100 people during his April visit and du Pont garnered about 50 UI students during his May visit to a local bar. Democratic candidates have drawn crowds as large as 375 to 400 during early campaign stops.

S. Korean lawmakers back concessions to opposition

By Nick B. Williams Jr.
Los Angeles Times

SEOUL, South Korea — Lawmakers of South Korea's ruling party Monday threw their weight behind party chairman Roh Tae Woo's bombshell proposal to meet all of the opposition's main political demands, including direct presidential elections.

In a caucus convened after Roh's surprise morning announcement to the Democratic Justice Party executive council, the National Assembly legislators adopted a resolution of full support for the sweeping program for democratic reform.

Roh's position was further strengthened when the 28 members of the executive council voluntarily resigned. "We have decided to tender our resignations to give Chairman Roh a free hand in restructuring the party," Kim Jung Nam, the party spokesman, said.

Just three days after another outburst of anti-government demonstrations had rocked the country and left the capital swamped in police tear gas, Roh, a 54-year-old former general, turned politics on its head here by proposing a series of reforms. They came as a surprise to both his party

IBP repays Iowa loan

COLUMBUS JUNCTION, Iowa — IBP Inc. has repaid a $4 million loan the state of Iowa awarded the meatpacker to open its Columbus Junction pork plant. The loan, arranged by the state in December 1985, was part of a $25 million federal economic development block grant.

The repayment came less than a week after IBP announced it was building a tannery in Illinois instead of Muscatine because of Iowa's "negative business environment." The comment drew sharp criticism from state officials, who said they have awarded IBP nearly $10 million in grants and loans since 1983.

UI prepares for number of program location changes

By Scott Hauser
The Daily Iowan

The UI Institute of Public Affairs moved from its on-campus location to the Oakdale campus Monday, setting the stage for a domino series of planned UI program location changes, UI officials said Monday.

After some additional work on the Dey House, 507 N. Clinton St. — the current location of the institute — the UI Undergraduate Academic Advising Center will move some of its offices into the house, said UI Director of Planning and Administrative Services Richard Gibson.

The UI Office of Services for Persons with Disabilities will move from its Calvin Hall location into some of the Burge space currently used by the advising center, he said.

"We're vacating our Quadrangle office and giving up a small amount at Burge," said advising center Director Juliet Kaufmann. THE CENTER advises about 7,000 students annually, Kaufmann said, but she said she expects the figure to go up slightly next year.

Kaufmann said the advising center currently has one-third of its staff and student advisees using the Quadrangle office, while the other two-thirds use the Burge office.

When the move is complete, the office will have two-thirds of its office in the Dey House and about one-third in Burge, she said.

UI Facilities Planning and Utilization Administrative Assistant Al Stroh said the moves have no definite schedule, but depend on the completion of the work in the Dey House.

"It's a domino effect," he said. "We'll move them when the space is ready and we get them scheduled." The reason for the moves is to consolidate the resources of the advising center and to locate the handicapped services office closer to the residence halls with the most disabled residents, Gibson said.

"IT'S A VERY logical move for us," UI Institute of Public Affairs Associate Director Tim Shields said of the new Oakdale location.

He said the institute's work in researching public policy issues and consulting with and providing services for governments of Iowa is well-suited to the service and outreach aspect of the Oakdale campus.

The institute has eight full-time professionals, a clerical staff and three to four graduate assistants, he said. He said their move should be completed by this afternoon.

The other moves are expected to be completed before the end of summer, Gibson said.

Elderhostel students enjoy 'fun' learning

By Anne Kevlin
The Daily Iowan

For some, it's nostalgia; the return to the memories of college days. Others participate to experience the fun of learning and to meet people from all over the country.

The program, in its eleventh year at the UI, is called Elderhostel. The participants are people of the age of 60 who, for a week or two, become college students — living and eating in the residence halls, studying and attending non-credit classes.

Classes for the program began Monday.

"It's a good vacation," said Peggy Houston of the UI Division of Continuing Education.

Elderhostel is offered through that division to anyone who meets the age requirement, regardless of prior education, Houston said.

In Iowa, more than 26 colleges offer Elderhostel programs, and more than 1,000 colleges offer the programs worldwide, according to Houston. But the UI helped pioneer Elderhostel.

"WE WERE ONE of the early universities in the country to do this," Houston said.

Participants in the program pay $215 per week, which includes classroom and living expenses — they live in Stanley Residence Hall and eat in the Burge Cafeteria.

"It's quite an inexpensive vacation," Houston said.

The Elderhostel program attracts people from all over the country by distributing 350,000 catalogs listing the courses offered throughout the nation, Houston said. Word-of-mouth also promotes the program, and participants often return each year.

At the UI, up to 40 people attend the various Elderhostel programs each week during the summer term, the only time the programs are offered here. Participants are able to choose the courses that interest them, but no credit is offered. Without grades, tests and final papers to worry about, Houston said, the Elderhostel participants can enjoy the "fun part of learning."

INSTRUCTORS FOR the Elderhostel courses are UI professors and graduate students, and the courses vary widely.

"The people who are here this week are here for short fiction," Houston said. "Next Sunday, I have another group of people coming in for the whole month of July, working on their novels."

Other courses this summer include one on the Victorian age in literature, one on modern dance and a class at Lake

Macbride on birds of prey in their natural habitat.

According to Houston, part of the attraction to the Elderhostel program is the opportunity for the participants to interact with the younger college students. Participants, she added, sometimes fear the younger students will not accept them because of the age difference, but the disparity seldom causes problems.

"Oftentimes, the students will say, 'Hey, that's really neat,'" Houston said. "It's a happy kind of surprise for everybody, I think."

Residents express concern over waste treatment project

By Craig Sterrett
The Daily Iowan

Residents of the Makada subdivision on the south side of Iowa City are concerned about having the proposed waste treatment plant built in their neighborhood because it could lower their property values, dry up their wells, cause traffic problems and additional deterioration of area roads, and emit offensive odors.

"I chose to build here — not in the city — to get away from noise and traffic," Makada resident Raymond Truitt said. "It appears this project may cost me thousands of dollars in decreased property values with absolutely no positive benefits. I think I should have some say in this matter."

On June 22, the Johnson County Zoning Commission approved the city's application to rezone 51.5 acres between the Sycamore extension and Sand Road from rural to light industrial in order to allow the plant to be built. The application was passed on the condition that the access for the plant come from the north, but the zoning commission did not specify where the access road would have to be.

THE ACCESS MAY be built as an extension of Sycamore or off of the east-west stretch of Sycamore which intersects Sand Road about a half mile south of town.

The chairman of the zoning commission, Bob Saunders, said he preferred to send the plant's traffic down Sand Road, then west on Sycamore and south on an access road which the construction company will build in the future.

"I would like some assurances that they will go up Sand Road," said Truitt. He said Sycamore was poorly maintained by the city, runs through a residential area and school zone, and can't handle truck traffic.

"I would sure like to see them avoid the residential area," Truitt said. "It would be pretty dangerous to have those big trucks going over the road."

IN ADDITION TO the potential traffic problem, area residents may be affected by the lowering of the water table which will result from the building process. The water table in the area is only ten feet below ground in some places so the engineering firm will have to pump water out while they are building holding tanks.

Some area residents have wells that are only ten feet deep, so when the construction company lowers the water table the wells may go dry, Saunders said.

Area residents are concerned about what sort of compensation they will receive if their wells go dry.

But Saunders said the Code of Iowa has a provision which says the Department of Natural Resources may order the building process to cease immediately until the injured party receives compensation. If their well goes dry, all they have to do is contact the DNR, Saunders said.

The construction company would then have to provide compensation in the form of monetary recompense, trucked-in water, deeper wells or a new pipeline, Saunders said.

The Johnson County Board of Supervisors will discuss the project at their July 16 formal meeting.

Local property owners object to bar's beer garden proposal

By Joseph Levy
The Daily Iowan

At least five downtown property owners have written the Iowa City Council objecting to the proposed construction of a beer garden by a local bar.

The Sports Column, 12 S. Dubuque St., is planning on adding an outdoor service area in an alley behind their building if the council will permit them, owner Don Stalkfleet said.

But the five property owners, representing three properties adjacent to the Sports Column, claim the construction of a beer garden in the alley may lead to more unrest downtown.

"This type of operation would only add to the clutter in the area around the facility and would increase the likelihood (of) public urination," the Rev. Robert Welsh of the First Christian Church, 217 Iowa Ave., wrote in his letter.

WELSH SAID THE OUTDOOR service area would pose an incompatible situation for church functions and could degrade the dignity of downtown Iowa City.

Another downtown property owner, who refused to be identified, said Stalkfleet couldn't claim to own the alley.

"We all have back doors that walk right into the alley," the owner said. "How can he own it? You cannot assume the rights of the alley when we all own it."

The council is scheduled to decide whether to grant Stalkfleet the right to construct the beer garden at their regular meeting tonight.

At their informal meeting Monday evening City Attorney Terrence Timmins told the council to expect some talk tonight about the issue.

"THERE MAY BE SOME PEOPLE who we didn't write to who will come," Timmins said. But Stalkfleet said worried feelings by property owners can be attributed to conservative attitudes.

"A lot of property owners are skeptical of change in any direction," he said. Stalkfleet said Monday he and his attorney are prepared to rebut all allegations made by the property owners at tonight's meeting.

The council discussed Stalkfleet's application briefly at their June 15 informal meeting. Councilor Larry Baker and Timmins said at that time a beer garden in the alley behind the Sports Column may be a fire hazard.

In other business at the council's Monday meeting, the council discussed the possibility of replacing Iowa City's 10 existing tornado sirens.

CORALVILLE FIRE CHIEF Gary Kinsinger told the council a new system of sirens would cost between $150,000 and $200,000, while a single siren would cost between $13,000 and $16,000.

Kinsinger told the council a problem with the existing siren system — which is operated by a county dispatcher — is that it cannot be heard in several places in the county.

ONE PROFESSIONAL golfer in particular, Blaine McCallister, was often held up. He was busy posing for photographs with women in the audience.

"It looks like Blaine's hamming it up," said Michelle Lafrenz, an intern at Amana, adding she intended to notice McCallister "because he is so good-looking."

The pros and celebrities entertained the spectators in various ways: George "Goober" Lindsey taped the clubs' "Women's Locker Room" sign to the front of his cart. Boone, in his tee-off speech, said, "I like these events — V.I.P., P.T.L. At least they're easy to spell."

Comedian Terry Ree, in his tee-off speech, coached his audience to cheer loudly "no matter how I hit it."

The audience laughed and did cheer loudly.

"He didn't get a real good hit in either," said Kenneth Siders, a Cedar Rapids spectator.

WHILE SOME PEOPLE come to see and talk to the celebrities, one spectator enjoyed a slightly different pastime.

"It's fun to watch the people who are watching the celebrities," said Rick Peterson of Hoffman Estates, Ill. "The highlight for me is when somebody gets locked in the john or gets hit by a ball."

Hoffman and his crowd had settled in an area near the second tee.

"We can see three tees and three greens. We're in the shade. We've got the brat stand and the restrooms nearby," said a friend of Hoffman.

Ron Sarchett of Center Point arrived at 6 a.m. and had been sitting in the sun all day.

"I've come to get some rays," he said. "And that way I can drink more."

But some spectators, including Gordon Collins of Clinton, Iowa, were not golf fans.

"I'm not a golfer. I cannot stand golf. I hate golf," said Collins. "I just came because my son gave me a ticket for Father's Day."

Grades

scores and high school rank," Scholz said. "These things are hard to rationalize, but I think the faculty members grade on absolute rather than relative criteria, so students are graded on what they can do now and not what others have done in the past."

GRADES ARE NOT regulated in the College of Engineering, Scholz said.

"I don't look at grade inflation at all," he said. "We share the registrar's report with the departmental executive officers and they might make changes on their own, but we don't police grades."

Grade inflation is also an issue in the UI Rhetoric Program, according to Rhetoric Chairman Doug Trank. Grades in rhetoric classes are higher than the UI average, Trank said.

"I'm always worried that a student in one section doesn't have the same opportunity to get a good grade as one in another section," he said. "But it's difficult to regulate with 150 instructors."

Rhetoric teaching assistants attend a three-day workshop before teaching, Trank said, and are required to attend weekly meetings during the semester. Instructors work with TAs to help establish similar criteria for assessing grades.

"WE'RE NOT LOOKING for conformity, but we want there to be a consensus on what is an outstanding paper, an average one and a poor one," he said. "In this department, we're not as concerned with the end result in terms of grades as we are with making sure the students are writing and speaking better."

The Rhetoric Program is not the only UI department where the mean GPA differs from the norm. Grade points range from a low of 2.3 in the Mathematics Department to a high of 3.5 in the Department of Secondary Education.

UI Education Professor James Marshall said there are two reasons for the higher GPA.

"The people who enter the College of Education are taking courses with a practical outcome, so the amount of effort they put into the courses will be greater than what they put into general education requirements," he said.

THE OTHER DIFFERENCE results from difficulty in measuring what education students have learned, he said.

"I should be able to give an accounting student a paper-and-pencil test to determine what he knows about the field, but what are the means of evaluating teaching?" he said.

"Teaching ability is entirely context-related, yet in the same classroom, I have students who will be teaching in different environments. How will I know how they will do in those contexts when I am teaching them in an air-conditioned university classroom?" Marshall asked.

brethren and the opposition. "Chairman Roh's statement covered our most important demands," opposition leader Kim Young Sam told an afternoon press conference.

Roh vowed to resign as his party's chairman and presidential nominee and to retire from public life if his proposals were not accepted by President Chun Doo Hwan and the party rank and file. With the pledged support of the party, only Chun's response was awaited.

"The president will make a final decision soon," said presidential spokesman Lee Jong Ryool.

On a visit to a patriotic shrine outside Seoul Monday afternoon, Roh told reporters, "I don't think the president will oppose it," suggesting that he had not discussed his proposals with Chun before announcing them.

"I thought I was made responsible for solving political problems when President Chun told the (opposition) leaders that he would not involve himself in domestic politics," Roh explained. "So I worked on ways to solve the problems."

A ruling party aide said that Roh would soon make a direct report to Chun on the reform program.

Political analysts, diplomats and even opposition leaders saw virtually no political room for Chun to reject the reform program, even if he wanted to. While declaring that he was taking a wait-and-see attitude, Kim Young Sam said that Roh "probably had some sort of political consent from President Chun."

"I think they probably realize the majority of the community in Johnson County just doesn't support their position," Bohlken said.

Registered Democrats outnumber Republicans in Johnson County by almost two to one. According to the Johnson County Elections Commissioner Jeff McCullough, Democrats claim 38.92 percent of registered voters, while 20.38 percent are Republicans.

Rep. Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., will be the next contender from his party to come to Iowa City when he makes his third appearance here July 3.

David Blakely draws a crowd as he makes a point while four houseguests escape in a scene from "Hay Fever," which opened the University of Iowa Noel Coward Summer Theatre Festival on June 2. The festival runs through July 25 in the UI Theatre Building.

Coward's 'Hay Fever' exudes spirit of spring

By Hoyt Olsen
 The Daily Iowan

THE opening production of University Theatres' Noel Coward Festival, Hay Fever, opens slowly and ends abruptly, but provides ample charm in-between. The play offers an entertaining collection of eccentric characters and a beguiling glimpse into another era.

Hay Fever is an apt title, for the play is full of the spirit of spring. The mood is light, the action flirtatious and the conflicts of no more consequence than a few dandelions sprouting on the back lawn.

Each member of the wealthy Bliss family, without telling the others, has invited a guest down to its country estate for a quiet weekend of romantic dalliance. When four guests arrive instead of one, the result is anything but quiet romance, especially when family and guests are comprised of such an odd assortment.

though the news may "break" him. The diplomat, needless to say, is aghast.

And so it goes, with one artificial pose succumbing rapidly to another. "We none of us ever mean anything," Sorel explains to the bewildered boxer after Judith has "given" them to one another.

COWARD'S TRADEMARK as a playwright was his sprightly dialogue, and there is plenty of it in Hay Fever. There is also a certain requirement that goes along with using the king's English. Cast members have varying degrees of success, a difficulty more noticeable when contrasted with the true stiff-upper-lip British accent of Dai Parker-Gwilliam (as Simon Bliss). Beverly Auxier's maid, saddled with the burden of what was evidently supposed to be cockney, sounds more like a native of Muscatine with a speech impediment that inhibits her h's.

Overall the cast is strong, with particular delights provided by Cynthia Goodale (as the guest who "uses sex as a shrimp net"), Timothy Porter's diplomat and Jacques Hinchshaw's airheaded flapper. Kate Burke, who specializes in outlandish femme fatales (such as Cleopatra in last year's The Suicide), crams every moment onstage with an impressively exaggerated theatricality.

NINETEEN-YEAR-OLD daughter Sorel has invited a career diplomat. Her brother Simon's guest is a woman who delights in the conquest of male hearts. Their author-father David has invited a flapper whose assets do not include brains. And mother Judith, a retired actress, has a rendezvous scheduled with a gentlemanly amateur boxer. Hostilities ensue, and alterations are made concerning who is paired with whom.

The added complication is that the tone of the entire family is set by Judith, who continually turns real-life situations into variations on the stage melodramas she once acted. When the diplomat kisses her after she has all but forced him to do so, Judith suddenly breaks into a monologue, threatening to tell her husband "about us," even Linda Roethke's opulent costumes make one positively nostalgic for an era when people changed into evening dress before dinner. Dan Nemtanu's set, dripping with Persian rugs, paintings of bonneted aristocratic women and silver table service, further evokes the era.

Further presentations of Hay Fever will be staged July 2, 7, 14, 17 and 23. For ticket information, call the Hancher Box Office at 335-1160.

'InnerSpace' promises summertime fun

By Kevin C. Kretschmer
 The Daily Iowan

FOR many Americans the warming temperatures of May and June not only mean summertime, they mean Spielberg time as well. The two terms have nearly become synonymous, promising sunny skies, sandlot baseball, picnics and a movie blockbuster or two.

InnerSpace is poised to join an already lengthy list of Spielberg films that have taken hold of the public's collective imagination and pocketbook. This comedic re-working of the sci-fi classic Fantastic Voyage is directed by frequent Spielberg collaborator Joe Dante (Gremlins in hectic, hilarious fashion).

THE FILM IS A conglomeration of clever and cheap sightgags, witty remarks and smarmy sex jokes that are thrown at the audience so rapidly that, good or bad, they are long gone before one has a chance to think. Jeffrey Boam's and Chip Proser's script is in the Zucker-Abrahams-Zucker style made famous in the films Airplane and Ruthless People, only with a greater infusion of sentiment that is the Spielberg trademark.

Quaid plays astronaut Tuck Pendleton, whose alcoholic binges have virtually ended his military career. As a result, Pendleton accepts a dangerous assignment with Vectorscope, a weapons research company working on a miniaturization project.

Pendleton is reduced to microscopic size in preparation for being injected into a research rabbit, but after a series of unlikely incidents, he ends up in the blood stream of Jack Putter (Short).

PUTTER, possibly his own worst enemy, is an assistant manager at a Safeway supermarket. Already suffering from much self-induced stress, Putter suddenly gets a dose of very real pressure and one very small astronaut. Meanwhile, various criminal parties are intent on stealing the miniaturization process. The film starts in high gear and never lets up. Incredible situation follows incredible situation, though the hilarity of these same events never allows the audience to take any of it too seriously. The ending does beg a sequel, though by that time enough thrills and laughs have been offered to satisfy any but the most unreasonable filmgoer.

Quaid, who has starred in a number of big-budget flops like The Right Stuff and Jaws 3-D, should finally join the ranks of the top commercial stars. The career of "SCTV" and "Saturday Night Live" alumnus Short should also be helped a great deal by his goofy but endearing performance. Meg Ryan (Armed and Dangerous) also scores as the spunky reporter who aids in exposing the nasty profiteers.

Crenshaw LP gives pop a good name

By George Yatchisin
 The Daily Iowan

Marshall Crenshaw; Mary Jean and Nine Others (Warner Bros.)

POP music: The stuff that rots your brain worse than an infatuation you can't shake while awake or dreaming. Verses about love lost, dark bars, fast cars, girls with two names. Choruses with sweet harmonies, falsettos stretched full with hope and longing. Guitar breaks in which the body puts the lie to the mind, "To hell with art, let's dance."

For the past five years, some of the best pop music has come from Marshall Crenshaw, and this year's model, Mary Jean and Nine Others, is no exception. Crenshaw-detractors claim he never changes, that you can't tell one song or album from another. They fail to see that this is his music's beauty. Every song appears to be tossed-off, as casual as a Saturday afternoon with nothing to do, a guitar to strum and another girl loose in the mind.

CRENSHAW DOESN'T stretch out the simple guitar-bass-drums concept much; he's not doing anything Buddy Holly and others didn't do decades ago. What makes Crenshaw's music a joy is small pleasures. For example, "Calling Out for Love (At Crying Time)" features a catchy bass bounce from Graham Maby (formerly of Joe Jackson's band), delaying Crenshaw's complaint of love and loneliness, ending with a strangled guitar solo out of Richard Thompson and some hopeful harmonies which drag four syllables out of the word "go."

Mary Jean seems closest to Crenshaw's second album, Field Day, as producer Don Dixon flips as many switches as Steve Lillywhite did on that album. At times Dixon's mix detracts. Polishing this music can render it heartless, and pumping up the solid rhythm section of Maby and drummer Robert Crenshaw (Marshall's brother) seems silly — they can anchor and kick these tunes without any electronic aid. But the simple beauty of the songs never gets buried completely and the vocal arrangements rival those of the Beatles, particularly on the bittersweet "Somebody Crying."

It may be "merely" an album of pretty guitar ditties, but the pervasive mood is melancholy, with music as the last hope for some salvation. If Crenshaw can't get the girl, he's got his guitar, and we, losers at love, too, get to come along for the ride.

Crenshaw knows how to express all the fundamental emotions well through music that is catchy, well-crafted and direct. From his experience in the cast of Beatlemania through his work with his power pop trio, Crenshaw has presented a pop music celebration. He doesn't waste much.

There might be a social function for such music after all.

The facts don't lie in 'Dragnet'

Aykroyd-Hanks imitation of TV classic drags

By Matthew Wills
 The Daily Iowan

IT'S Monday morning. This is the movie review. My name's Wills. I work at a word processor. It's a dirty job, but someone's got to do it. Dragnet is the film and these are the facts.

Dan Aykroyd is Joe Friday; not the famous Joe Friday, but his nephew. Remember Joe Friday, Jack Webb's television characterization of a paramilitarist L.A. policeman and Ronald Reagan's ideal cop? Well, we didn't want him, but he's back anyway and Aykroyd plays him straight — literally, with a flagpole for a spine. Tom Hanks superbly acts the part of, you guessed it, Tom Hanks (called Pep Streebek in the film), Friday's hip partner. His hipness stems from his knowledge of centerfolds and strip joints, an obnoxious plot device that's supposed to contrast him with the uprightly moral Friday. This is where the concept "comedy" is supposed to come in. It doesn't.

THE FILM DOES have some humor, more or less, so it's not completely dead. It's a tossup, but villain Christopher Plummer appears to have the best line. Aykroyd has a couple of moments of funny, but incredibly brief, monologue, which would have been hilarious if allowed to go on long enough for people to get the joke. But the film also has lots of boring car chases and there's an inane, heavyhanded plot involving conspiracy, porn and religion, the last two virgins in the L.A. basin (one of them being Friday; get it?), deadly gas and a lion with a mohawk. The lion has one of the funniest bits in the film. Considering that the stars of Ishtar turned out to be a few buzzards and a camel, it's starting to look like Benji the Hunted might be worth a try. You see, this is a dirty job.

Sgt. Joe Friday (Dan Aykroyd), left, and Pep Streebek (Tom Hanks) are assigned to investigate the Pagan robberies in Dragnet, and are forced to go undercover to follow up a lead.

Highlighting the near barrenness of good roles for women in most of today's feature films, Dragnet's female characters present us with that reactionary standby, the virgin/whore dichotomy. The film's reliance on these stereotypes, as well as its numerous images of flesh reminds us yet again of the equation between the stupidity of a film and its reliance on sexism.

TV'S "DRAGNET," with its crypto-fascist Sgt. Joe Friday, American Icon, is absolutely prime material for great parody. But the film blows it off, afraid of getting its satirical teeth into such hallowed pop pulp. Even with its rap update of the famous "dum-de-dum-dum" theme song, the film is a dog. Aykroyd, one of three credited writers, should be ashamed of himself. A Second City and "Saturday Night Live" veteran shouldn't be caught dead in such bilge.

Just the facts: Dragnet is a drag. Even the kids in the audience were squirming in their seats. Only the facts: Four out of five dentists recommend chewing on your ticket stub when bored during films. The facts: There are thousands of theaters in the nation, and every one of them has a sad story to tell. This has been one of them. The names haven't been changed to protect the innocent. There aren't any. My name's Wills. I carry a note pad.

Gore announces presidential candidacy

CARTHAGE, Tenn. — Sen. Albert Gore Jr., D-Tenn., officially launched his bid Monday to become the nation's youngest president, saying the time is right to bargain with the Soviets and America needs a youthful leader who can match wits with Mikhail Gorbachev. Gore made his formal announcement before a crowd of about 7,000 in his hometown about 50 miles east of Nashville, Tenn.

"The first time in at least a generation, the Soviet Union has a leader who combines youthful energy and innovation with experience," said Gore, 39. "The free world urgently needs a leader who can match him, test him, bargain with him and make the most of this possibly historic opportunity for a safer, saner world."

Report in on U.S. Embassy security

WASHINGTON — Former Defense Secretary James Schlesinger said Monday he has recommended that the top three floors of the eight-story U.S. Embassy in Moscow be demolished and replaced and a new annex built to ensure protection from Soviet bugging.

Schlesinger told the Senate Budget Committee that the report he submitted to Secretary of State George Shultz Friday recommended that the Soviets not be allowed to occupy their new embassy in Washington until such new U.S. facilities are ready for occupancy in Moscow.

Schlesinger said it will be necessary to use entirely American workers and construction materials for the project, which will require the superpowers to renegotiate the 1972 agreement that allowed each to build a new embassy complex in each other's capital.

Van Gogh painting brings millions

LONDON — A private art collector living in Europe paid $20.2 million Monday for a painting by Vincent van Gogh, making it the second most expensive picture ever auctioned.

"Le Pont de Trinquetaille," portraying an iron bridge in the southern French town of Arles, took the poverty-stricken artist little more than a morning to paint just over a century ago.

It is the second most expensive picture ever sold after van Gogh's masterpiece, 'Sunflowers,' which was bought for $39.9 million by a Tokyo-based insurance company in March.

The painting of the bridge is one of at least five works van Gogh completed in a weeklong creative spurt in October 1888, only two months before he cut off one of his ears, and less than two years before he committed suicide at age 37.

NBC newswomen strike over contract

NEW YORK — Nearly 3,000 NBC employees from New York to California walked off the job Monday in the year's third TV network strike, blasting NBC owner General Electric for using tactics from "the union-busting days of the 40s and 50s."

The members of the National Association of Broadcast Employees and Technicians struck at 12:01 a.m. when the network imposed a contract rejected by the union March 31 that raises salaries an average of 3.64 percent the first year and 4.68 percent the second. It also allows NBC to expand the use of temporary employees and "daily hires," or per diem workers.

NBC said the strike was expected to have little impact. The live broadcast Monday of NBC's "Today" show, however, was marred by several technical problems and miscues.

Prosecutor urges jury to convict Barbie

LYON, France — A prosecutor Monday urged the jury in Klaus Barbie's trial to convict the former Nazi Gestapo chief of Lyon on all charges of deporting to death camps, torturing or murdering hundreds of Jews and Resistance fighters during World War II.

Prosecutor Pierre Truche attacked Barbie's assertions that he was only following orders, that he did not know that deportees were often sent to their deaths and that he was not responsible for the Gestapo section in charge of anti-Jewish activities.

Truche, in his final argument to begin the eighth and final week of the Barbie trial, called on the jury to "render the justice to Barbie that he never rendered to his victims."

Soviet industry ailing, reforms needed

MOSCOW — Prime Minister Nikolai Ryzhkov, defending Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev's plans to reform the ailing Soviet economy, said Monday that 13 percent of Soviet industry is unprofitable and might have to be shut down if it does not improve.

Ryzhkov, in an address to the nation's nominal parliament, the Supreme Soviet, urged the deputies to adopt Gorbachev's economic reform to stop the country's economic slide. Adoption by the rubber-stamp parliament of Gorbachev's reform package is automatic.

State enterprises, now operating under rigid central planning that began in 1928, have piled up debts of $64 billion, he said, and an alarming number are not profitable.

Government drug testing to begin

WASHINGTON — The Transportation Department, following President Ronald Reagan's orders for a drug-free workplace, said Monday it will begin comprehensive drug testing of air traffic controllers and others this summer.

The testing, the first such program by a civilian federal agency, will cover those department employees whose jobs affect public safety and security, Transportation Secretary Elizabeth Dole said.

"I couldn't look the American people in the eye and say we're doing everything we can to make the system as safe as possible if I were to look the other way while drug abuse threatened travelers' safety," Dole said in a statement.

Justice spokesman denies Meese role

WASHINGTON — A Justice Department spokesman, replying to reports of grand jury testimony, denied Monday that Attorney General Edwin Meese or any other Justice official had given legal approval to Lt. Col. Oliver North's activities in arming the Nicaraguan rebels.

The denial was given in response to published reports of the recent testimony of an unnamed former National Security Council aide before the federal Iran-Contra grand jury convened by special prosecutor Lawrence Walsh.

Reagan will nominate Bork

By Ronald J. Ostrow and James Gerstenzang
Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — President Ronald Reagan will nominate federal appellate Judge Robert H. Bork to the Supreme Court, possibly as early as Wednesday, subject to checks with Senate leaders of both parties by White House chief of staff Howard H. Baker Jr., administration sources said Monday.

The tentative decision was made at a 32-minute meeting Monday of Reagan, Baker, Attorney General Edwin Meese III, White House counsel A.B. Culvahouse and Assistant Attorney General William Bradford Reynolds.

A senior White House official said that "it's fair to say Bork is the leading candidate" but cautioned that another individual remained under consideration if any problems developed during a preliminary background investigation and the discussions with key senators.

Bork, 60, is regarded as an unbending conservative, unlike retiring Justice Lewis F. Powell, a crucial swing vote on the court. Bork has drawn high praise for his judicial scholarship, demonstrated during five years on the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals here, as solicitor general and as a law professor at Yale University.

In filling Powell's vacancy, the president has the historic opportunity of shaping the ideological balance of the Supreme Court by giving it a majority of conservatives. In addition, confirmation of his nominee would give Reagan a much-needed victory at a time when his administration and credibility have been severely damaged by the Iran-Contra scandal.

Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., whom an aide said had been asked to meet with Baker Wednesday, predicted that Bork would be confirmed if nominated but said it would not be the smooth experience so badly needed by Reagan to strengthen his presidency in its final years.

Nominating Bork "would be inviting problems," he said, primarily because of the "Watergate experience" — a reference to Bork's 1973 firing of special prosecutor Archbald Cox on orders from President Nixon while Bork was the No. 3 man at the Department of Justice. Attorney General Elliot L. Richardson and Deputy Attorney General William Ruckelshaus resigned rather than obey Nixon's order to discharge Cox.

An aide to a senior Democratic senator predicted that the confirmation "will be slow if it's Bork," noting his Watergate-era involvement.

Nevertheless, in forecasting Bork's probable approval by the Senate, Byrd said he was regarded as "capable, highly capable," though he has a strong conservative record.

"Will he be confirmed? The odds are he will," the senator's aide said. "It really is a different world than it was last summer."

U.S., Egypt make M-1 tank deal

By Jim Anderson
United Press International

WASHINGTON — The United States and Egypt have reached preliminary agreement on a deal to permit Egypt to co-produce the M-1 battle tank — the most sophisticated tank in the U.S. inventory, the State Department announced Monday.

But the tentative pact, announced by State Department spokesman Charles Redman, drew quick fire from Congress, where Democratic Sens. Howard Metzenbaum and John Glenn of Ohio said they would oppose any such deal because it would give away American military technology and cost American jobs.

The tank is currently built in Lima, Ohio, and Warren, Mich., by General Dynamics, which has a $3.5 billion contract for 3,299 of the $1 million tanks.

Redman said while the administration had decided to begin some form of co-production of the tank, "the modalities and details" had not been worked out.

Congress could attempt to block any such deal.

The tank's key sensitive technology is its armor, which was developed by the British and adopted by the United States. The armor is made of steel plates with ceramic wedges that deflect armor-piercing shells toward the top of the tank, preventing penetration.

The technology has not been supplied to other countries, although it is believed the Soviets already have a similar capability.

Attempting to ease concerns about the agreement, Redman noted that "sensitive technologies will be protected and will not be manufactured in Egypt."

He said the State Department has granted General Dynamics a munitions license to permit the company to open discussion on the details of the co-production arrangement.

But Metzenbaum argued that "we must protect American technology and that means keeping weapons production here in the United States."

"I will oppose the decision to allow the M-1 to be built in Egypt. It would cost Ohioans jobs and there is no reason to build American weapons abroad when they can be built in Ohio and other states," the senator said, adding that it would be "foolish to send sensitive American weapons technology to such an unstable part of the world."

Glenn, a member of the Senate Armed Services Committee, said the production of the sophisticated tank "should remain solely in U.S. hands," adding, "I believe that a majority of the Congress will agree with me."

"While this proposal might boost Egypt's self-image and enhance its standing in the Arab world, it appears to me that Egypt might have far better uses for the $1.3 billion in foreign military sales money that it receives from the United States than to spend it on tank production," he said.

Baseball Almanac

Quick Quiz
Boston's Don Baylor eclipsed Ron Hunt's career record by getting hit by a pitch Sunday for the 244th time. What current AL coach, whose best years were in the 1960s, was hit 188 times to rank third? What two active American League rank seventh and eighth on the all-time list? (answers below. Clue: the two active players both hit right-handed, both have over 150 career homers and both have played in one World Series)

Bleacher Reachers
There were 42 home runs hit in the majors Sunday in 13 games. Bill Madock of Detroit slammed three for the first time in his career.

Comiskey Crushers
The Angels blasted a team record-tying six home runs in a 13-3 victory at Chicago's Comiskey Park. Wally Joyner cracked two and Brian Downing, George Hendrick, Ruppert Jones and Devon White also homered for the Angels, who have now seven straight. Only White failed to reach the upper deck.

Lightning Does Strike Twice
California's George Hendrick batted for Mark Ryal in the third inning Sunday at Chicago and slammed a home run. In the fifth, Ruppert Jones batted for Hendrick — and also homered.

Monstrous Mash
Bo Jackson crushed a towering homer Sunday at Kansas City that carried 440 feet into the upper tier of the fountain in right-center field. "I've never seen anyone hit one there, either right-handed or left-handed," said Hal McRae, the Royals batting coach.

McGwire on Fire
Oklahoma's Mark McGwire has five homers in his last two games. In the first of the year, McGwire became the first rookie, the fourth American League player and the 14th player overall to hit five homers in two consecutive games. McGwire, 8 for 9 with seven RBI in his last two games, tied a modern, major-league record by scoring nine times over two consecutive nine-inning games.

Davis outguns Knight at V.I.P. Connors advances in Wimbledon play

IOWA CITY, Iowa (UPI) — Indiana basketball coach Bobby Knight reigned on the college basketball court in 1987, but the Hoosier coach took a back seat to a hot-putting Iowa coach Tom Davis Monday at the Amana V.I.P. Golf Tournament.

Knight traded in his sneakers for golfing spikes at the University of Iowa Finkbine Course, dodging trees, and sportswriters and one-liners from Iowa State Coach Johnny Orr as he plodded through fairways lined with autograph-seekers in his second appearance at the one-day, pro-am event.

Knight joined fellow Big Ten coach Davis and golfing pro Peter Oosterhuis in a fivesome that drew one of the largest galleries of the day. Businessmen Bud Markow and Ray Harmon rounded out the fivesome.

"TOM PLAYED GREAT," Knight said after his group ended with a "best ball"

13-under-par score of 59. "I struggled around the front side and I think I was 2-over on the back side."

Knight got off to an inauspicious start when his first drive came to rest under an evergreen tree. Davis had a decided home-course edge since his new home is located next door to Finkbine.

Davis said the two coaches needed each other "in a friendly way" during their trek around the 18-hole course, talking a little basketball but mostly golf and fishing. "He's very good company."

Knight showed one of the reasons why his team captured its third NCAA crown last March, sinking four of five free throws to three by Davis and Iowa State's Orr in the "ham-dunk" competition.

"Now you know why Tom and I get so upset when some damn 19-year-old misses two of them," said Knight, who played college ball at Ohio State.

"I SAW BOBBY make those free throws," said Orr, who was a college standout at Beloit and battled Knight's Hoosier teams during Orr's coaching stint at Michigan. "I saw him play ball in college. I saw him miss eight in a row."

The Iowa State coach said the wind was a factor in the free-throw shootout.

"It was very calm, if you noticed, when Knight shot and Tom Davis. Then the wind came up," Orr said. "I would hate to think that I couldn't outshoot Knight."

While Knight and Davis were taking their turns at the free-throw line, Orr drew a roar from the onlookers with a reference to an effort by Puerto Rico to extradite Knight to serve six-month jail sentence for slugging a policeman during the 1979 Pan American Games.

"You've got to be careful Bobby because there's some Puerto Ricans out there," Orr said. "They're in the roughs, so stay out of the rough."

THE INDIANA COACH recited by telling the crowd: "Without any reservation, Johnny is a great guy and really funny and nothing was funnier than his team last year."

After the match ended, Knight declined to comment on the Puerto Rico situation in light of a recent U.S. Supreme Court decision and sidestepped a news conference to catch a flight out of Iowa City.

Davis said he believes many people have the wrong impression of the colorful Hoosier coach, and said he enjoyed his chance to be play as Knight's partner after their teams split two games on the basketball court last season.

"Going into this year there were a lot of questions about how good the Big Ten really was and some of us even thought maybe we had dropped a notch," Davis said. "Bob's performance left little doubt in anybody's mind."

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI) — Jimmy Connors, whose simple philosophy is to "go out and do the job," did it with precision and style Monday to defeat Kelly Evernden and reach the fourth round of Wimbledon for the 15th time.

However, the American men's contingent was reduced to two when 10th seed Tim Mayotte, succumbing to a sudden heat wave, blew a two-set lead in falling to Swede Mikael Pernfors, 2-6, 4-6, 6-4, 6-3, 7-5.

Mayotte, failing for the first time in seven Wimbledon appearances to reach the round of 16, twice was up a break in the fifth set. But on three occasions he double faulted to set up match point for Pernfors, and his third flirtation with danger proved disastrous in the final game.

FOLLOWING A WEEK of mostly foul weather, the temperature soared near 90 degrees and Mayotte said following the three hour and 25 minute contest, "I felt I was definitely outplaying him, and if I had the gas I would have put him away."

Connors, a 6-1, 6-2, 6-7 (4-7), 6-3 winner over New Zealand's Evernden, will meet Pernfors Tuesday in the fourth round. Pernfors, the losing French Open finalist last year, was a two-time NCAA champion at the University of Georgia.

Connors overcame a loss of concentration in the third set to defeat Evernden, putting in a superb 81 percent of his first serves.

which he missed makeable birdie putts.

"It's one of those things that if I would have sunk some putts on the last nine, I could have won today," Archer said. "But, you know, it's no big deal."

The pro-am portion of the tournament was won by Beth Daniel's fivesome, carding a 19-under-par 53. Daniel shot a 2-under 70 to pace her four male teammates.

The V.I.P. field included a number of colorful people, including Indiana basketball Coach Bobby Knight, who won a best-of-five free throw contest on the first tee over Iowa's Tom Davis, Iowa State's Johnny Orr, Navy's Pete Hermmann and Jacksonville's Bob Wenzel.

The V.I.P. crowd also had a number of celebrities to admire and get autographs from, but the biggest galleries were to be found by the always charismatic Fuzzy Zoeller and Tom Watson.

Harmon's fumbles proved unintentional

By Marc Bona The Daily Iowan and United Press International

Big Ten investigators have officially concluded former Iowa running back Ronnie Harmon did not fumble intentionally when he lost the ball four times in the 1986 Rose Bowl, The NCAA News reported.

Federal prosecutors apparently were asking the same questions as many Iowa fans following the Hawkeyes' embarrassing 45-28 loss to underdog UCLA, namely, why did the sure-handed Harmon lose the ball four times in one game after fumbling only once in 11 previous contests?

Big Ten officials and Assistant U.S. Attorney Howard M. Pearl examined the Rose Bowl tapes to see if Harmon might have been trying to throw the game for gambling purposes but concluded nothing suspicious occurred, The NCAA News reported.

The June 24 edition of the newsletter said the game is no longer under scrutiny.

IOWA MEN'S ATHLETIC Director Bump Elliott was not shocked in any way at the findings.

"It doesn't surprise me at all that that was the end result," Elliot said. "I'm very pleased that it has been cleared."

The investigation was apparently an off-shoot of a Chicago federal grand jury probe into alleged improper dealings by professional sports agents Norby Walters and Lloyd Bloom. Both Harmon and former Iowa defensive back Devon Mitchell have been implicated in that investigation for receiving illegal payments from the agents before they graduated.

Harmon, now with the Buffalo Bills, fumbled twice during runs in the Rose Bowl game and fumbled twice more after catching passes. He also dropped an apparent touchdown pass from quarterback Chuck Long.

After the game, Harmon credited UCLA's quick defense for the fumbles. Iowa Coach Hayden Fry said the all-America running back was crushed by his performance in the game.

Questions about the game emerged again last April before the Hawkeye spring game, but Fry said anyone who believes rumors that Harmon threw the contest was "outta your mind."

Board Chair Davis leaves for Florida

By James Cahoy The Daily Iowan

Liberal Arts Assistant Dean of Faculty Julia Davis, who served as UI Board in Control of Athletics Chairwoman during the past year, has announced she will be leaving the UI Aug. 24.

Davis, a UI professor of speech pathology and audiology and associate dean for faculty for the last two years, has accepted a position as dean of the College of Social and Behavioral Sciences at the University of South Florida.

During her time as chairwoman, Davis headed the board's proceedings while it dealt with such issues as the possible elimination of freshman eligibility for UI athletes, increased academic standards imposed by the NCAA and the relationship between sports agents and UI athletes.

DAVIS ALSO SERVED on a special ad-hoc committee which investigated allegations of payments to former UI running back Ronnie Harmon by agents Norby Walters and his partner, Lloyd Bloom. The committee concluded that Harmon and another student, who was later revealed to be UI defensive back Devon Mitchell, had received payments from Walters in violation of NCAA rules while enrolled at the UI.

Davis was unable to be reached for comment Monday, but described her philosophy as chairwoman in a Guest Opinion written for The Daily Iowan in February.

"The trick is to maintain a balance between a strong athletic program and a strong athletic tradition," Davis wrote.

Several of Davis' colleagues on the board praised her work as chairwoman. "I think she served admirably well," said board member Wayne Rawley.

"We dealt with some difficult issues this year, and during all the meetings she showed herself to be a very knowledgeable person," said board member Annette Fitz. "She was a good chairwoman, and she will be missed."

Oakland's McGwire shows power stroke

CHICAGO (UPI) — Mark McGwire still considers himself a line-drive hitter, despite evidence to the contrary.

McGwire set a record for rookies over the weekend — hitting five home runs in two games — in Cleveland as the Oakland Athletics completed a sweep of the Indians. The burst moved the big first baseman into a tie with George Bell of Toronto for the major-league lead in home runs, 27.

All of this from a guy who says his swing is designed for lined shots rather than roof shots. "It's hard for me to consider myself a home-run hitter," McGwire said Monday before the A's played the Chicago White Sox. "My swing is short and quick. It's more of a line-drive swing."

"I'm surprised about the home runs. I hit home runs through my career but this very much surprises me."

MCGWIRE SPENT the winter preparing for the pressures of being a platooned major-league player. Stardom was far from his mind. "I prepared myself over the winter not to be an every-day ball player," said McGwire, who played in 18 games late last season for the A's. "I was going to get my feet wet, go around the American League and learn things."

McGwire was hitting just .133 earlier this season when the A's decided to send Rob Nelson to the minors and use McGwire on an every-day basis.

"Playing every day, I get a chance to show my full potential. If you don't play every day, you can't get into a groove," he said.

His manner of handling sudden fame is as surprising as the power that brought the fame.

"That's a real important plus about Mark McGwire," Oakland Manager Tony La Russa said. "He has handled it. He's very solid."

WITH JOSE CANSECO and Reggie Jackson in the lineup with him, McGwire feels no pressure to produce the home runs that have made him the most talked-about rookie.

"This lineup is awesome," said McGwire, whose locker is next to Jackson's in the Comiskey Park visitors clubhouse. "Everyone can drive in runs any given time. It's put together very well. Nobody has to put pressure on themselves in this lineup."

"You don't hit a home run every day, but if he doesn't hit a home run, we still win," La Russa said. "He looks around and, if he doesn't do it, somebody else does."

The A's moved to within one game of first place in the AL West with the weekend sweep. "I think we are coming into our own," said McGwire, who could also have been talking about himself.

The PGA's Fuzzy Zoeller offers a prayer for a fellow player during his round at the Amana V.I.P. Golf Tournament. Zoeller finished the round with a 70, four off Vance Heafner's winning score of 66.

Heafner's birdies pace V.I.P. field

By Eric J. Hess
The Daily Iowan

A calm Vance Heafner holed six birdies without a bogey to win the 21st Amana V.I.P. Pro-Am Golf Tournament Monday at Finkbine Golf Course.

Heafner, an eight-year veteran of the PGA Tour, didn't think his 6-under-par 66 would hold up against the 42 other players from the PGA, LPGA and the men's Seniors' Tours. But everything seem to be going his way.

"I just made a lot of birdies and no bogies," Heafner said after finishing his round before a few of the groups left to play their first hole.

"IT WAS JUST one of those days when everything went in the hole. I wish it could have happened yesterdays (Sunday) at Hartford."

Heafner said the key to his success with Finkbine was keeping the ball in the fairway and hitting the greens in regulation.

"There's nothing very difficult about this golf course if you drive it straight," Heafner concluded.

A number of the other pros, also playing in a best ball competition with four amateur partners each, had a chance to catch the 32-year-old Heafner even after a one-hour rain delay which held a few of the golfers back as far as nine holes.

Among them were Doug Tewell, Jim Thorpe, Steve Jones and George Archer.

TEWELL, THE FIRST player to tee off at this year's annual tournament, cruised early, making the turn with 3-under-par 33. One of his birdies resulted from a shot placed 10 feet from the pin on the 168-yard fourth hole. The 37-year-old Tewell then added 34 on the back nine to take the leader board's honors early.

A estimated crowd of more than 10,000 people saw Thorpe, who played the back nine first, card a 33 on the back nine and finish hard with a 34 on the front nine.

"I drove the ball good and long," Thorpe said. The 38-year-old golfer noted after the tournament that although he finishes well in U.S. Opens of recent years, the third leg of golf's Grand Slam is not in the cards.

Instead, Thorpe will attend the July's Hardee's Golf Classic, which runs opposite the British Open.

JONES WAS 5-UNDER after 16 holes when a thunderstorm forced PGA officials to suspend play.

When play resumed, Jones, who has not finished better than tied for sixth on regular tour stops, missed the 196-yard par-3 eighth hole to the left and later a five-foot putt to save par. But he redeemed himself with a birdie in front of the ninth hole crowd.

Jones said his low scoring play at the V.I.P. has not been indicative of his golf career so far.

"It's kind of been up and down — good round, bad round. I guess I had a pretty good round today," he said.

Jones' 32 on the front nine matched Archer's score on the same nine holes.

ARCHER HAD perhaps the last chance to realistically catch Heafner. The 47-year-old veteran came in from the rain at 4-under.

Returning, he birdied No. 15 after missing an eagle putt to move to within one stroke of the lead. Archer followed with three consecutive pars, two in

Bears' Ditka delights crowd

By Marc Bona
The Daily Iowan

Mike Ditka took time out of his normal duties as head coach of the Chicago Bears to compete in the 21st annual Amana V.I.P. Golf Tournament at Finkbine Golf Course Monday.

Decked out in black golf shoes, red-striped Amana shirt, bright red slacks and Amana visor, Ditka — making his sixth appearance in the tournament — looked out of place from his usual black and orange Bear attire.

Playing in a fivesome led by professional Bob Goalby, Ditka attracted a moving gallery from the start of the first hole, after his opening drive hooked slightly but got a decent bounce. After posing for a quick picture with a fan, he drew several "oohs" and "aahs" from the crowd when he barely missed a 30-footer on the green.

SWARMS OF PEOPLE surrounded a tired Ditka from hole to hole, never relenting in their search for autographs. Ditka walked the first couple of holes but soon gave in to the comfort of a golf cart, driven by his wife, Dianna.

Ditka, who said he usually shoots in the 70s or 80s, said after the competition Goalby helped his game.

"Bob improved my game because he went ahead and played without paying attention to how bad I was," he said.

On the second hole, Ditka drove a near-perfect drive down the fairway and turned to face the applauding crowd.

"Tough game, tough game," he joked. But his joking soon turned to agony as he overshot a 40-foot putt by about a foot.

From that point, Ditka kept his drives straight but landed three times in the sand during front nine play. He had little trouble chipping out but often overshot the hole when he was on the green.

DITKA WAS ONE of more than 20 celebrities participating in the Amana Tournament, and according to Ann Collins, public relations manager for Amana Refrigeration, Ditka was a great choice.

"He does quite a bit of this, participating in several pro-am tournaments," she said. "He's a terrific guy, and he plays well with the amateurs."

Before teeing off, Ditka addressed the crowd and lauded Iowa Coach Hayden Fry and his staff, saying if Iowa keeps producing such good teams, "This country's going to get a lot better."

Iowa football player Joe Schuster was Ditka's caddy for the 18-hole tournament. As Ditka was sitting in his cart waiting to tee off, he asked Schuster a pertinent question: "Joe, how are your knees holding up?"

Schuster's knee problems, however, will be nothing compared to Ditka's quarterback problems which were magnified during the NFL draft when the Bears selected Michigan's Jim Harbaugh in the first round.

Ditka called his first impression of Harbaugh "good," his second "better" and his third "excellent." Ditka said he will keep three quarterbacks on the roster.

Ditka added running back Walter Payton has indicated to him this will be his final season, but the Chicago coach said he didn't know what to expect from his star player. Also, Ditka said Jim McMahon, who has an injured shoulder, is throwing at 70 percent and is expected to throw at 100 percent soon.

As far as the upcoming season, "It's gonna be tough, and we're as good as anybody in the league," Ditka said. "Our extra incentive will be to win the Super Bowl... and that's a challenge. That's what life's made of — challenges."

Jackson satisfied, halts boycott threat

ROSEMONT, ILL. (UPI) — Civil rights leader Jesse Jackson said Monday he is satisfied with efforts by baseball to increase minority hirings and called off his threatened July 4 boycott of major-league games.

He also said he will urge colleges to follow suit and bring more minorities into athletic departments across the country. He said colleges are using black athletes but failing to provide basic education. Jackson said PUSH and other groups aim to increase minority representation in athletic departments.

"We will go university by university to bring about this change," said Jackson, a likely Democratic presidential candidate.

Jackson, founder of Operation PUSH, a civil rights organization, led a nationwide effort to increase minority participation in baseball front offices after former Los Angeles Dodgers vice president Al Campanis said in April that blacks lacked the "necessities" to become managers.

"We've seen signs of progress that represent change is taking place," Jackson told reporters.

Jackson spoke during a break in the annual PUSH convention, which was attended by former baseball greats Hank Aaron and Curt Flood. Former football players Mel Blount and Drew Pearson also attended.

NCAA chancellor slights bowls

DALLAS (UPI) — The chancellor of the University of California told the NCAA special convention Monday that college athletics would be strengthened by abolishing football bowl games and post-season basketball tournaments.

Michael Heyman, the opening speaker in a proposed 18-month NCAA sponsored debate on college athletics, said scholarships based on need and making freshmen ineligible for competition would help reduce problems facing universities.

He also decried the commercialization of college sports.

"Somehow," Heyman said, "we have committed ourselves to staging huge television extravaganzas. We can no longer just compete against each other. We have to put on a show for the nation. The time we spend putting on these shows is time we cannot spend doing other things more closely related to education."

HEYMAN WAS THE first of 10 speakers Monday in the opening session of the NCAA President Commission's National Forum. The forum is planned to run through 1988 and generate reform legislation for the 1989 NCAA convention.

"We have seen recruiters who bribe high school students," Heyman said. "We have seen staff members who alter transcripts and test scores. Many of us have become calloused to corruption. We are not pleased, but also we are not surprised, to hear of some coaches stashing players in a local community college and having them take easy courses solely to get eligible."

"I know I have offended some by what I have just said. Most of us believe that for every cheater who exploits athletes and corrupts athletics, there are hundreds who are honest and moral. I believe this, too. But I believe that we have to face up to the very unpleasant fact that we have created a world, the world of big-time athletics, where cheating too often occurs."

To solve the problems, Heyman listed changes that could be considered.

"WE COULD CONSIDER eliminating grants-in-aid based on athletic skill and instead award aid based on need."

"We could consider declaring freshmen ineligible for varsity competition."

"We could call for the creation of minor-league farm systems for professional football and basketball and sever what has been called the 'unnatural link' between academics and athletics."

"We could do the unthinkable and abolish bowl games and post-season basketball tournaments. "What would happen if we took these steps? What would the world of intercollegiate athletics look like?"

"I believe that athletics would be strengthened. I believe that opportunities for women and for underprivileged athletes would increase and that these opportunities would not be illusory, but real. Students would be recruited honestly. More athletes would be given a real chance to be bona fide students and more would graduate."

Heyman said he knew there would be those who would argue that, "big is not necessarily bad."

"They point to Notre Dame, Penn State, Nebraska, Michigan and other private and public universities that run big-time programs honestly and successfully," he said.
