Ollie's '007' quick, but not the best

By Paul Dean

Los Angeles Times

In a high-speed shredder, Lt. Col. Oliver North told his congressional interrogators in hearings before a Senate subcommittee to destroy a large volume of documents. By shredder, he meant the machine that forms a model within Washington's intelligence community. It is, he said, "not very practical, but it is very cheap, but it is not very practical, but it is very quick, but it can be a real problem for people who don't want to have the documents that they don't want to have the documents that they need." He said that one shredder he had seen was a 100-page shredder, but the other was a 1000-page shredder.

WASHINGTON - Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger said Monday that the Saudis would attack Iranian missiles breaking the truce of Beirut if they are to prepare for U.S. workers entering through the U.S. port.

He said that deployment of the Saudi-made Silkworm missiles would be insufficient to make the weapons effective. He added that he had been informed about the deployment by Saudi Arabia, and that he had been told that it would be started on the 15th of this month.

Farm law to be examined

WASHINGTON — Sen. Tom Harkin, D-Iowa, said Monday he will lead a Senate hearing next week to see if farmers are being shortchanged in the farm-deficiency payments in bills.

Agricultural Subcommittees on Nutrition and Oversight of the Senate Appropriations Committee are meeting Thursday to examine whether any limitations have been imposed on the amount or kind of payments farmers can claim. The hearings will be held, according to committee spokesman, to explore the implications with the regulations and whether any changes are needed.

Doctors face suspension

DES MOINES — State officials Monday were examining suspension or revocation of the licenses of three doctors who charged that an intercounty board was giving away medical school board seats.

Craig Gjerde, a member of the board since 1982, said he will be running for re-election in the race, which Gjerde will formally announce later Monday.

Gjerde said he had decided to run because of a lack of members available.

"All of Iowa has not been 100 percent of people deciding to run," Gjerde said.

"At least use of the three other school board members who are running for re-election.

Ultra pharmacists

Ultra pharmacists have started a new type of eye drops.

University of College of Pharmacy professor Richard Schlicter said his lab has developed a drug that reduces the risk of high blood pressure.

"It will be available in four weeks," Schlicter said Monday.

"It is a matter of when the drug is approved for use," said Schlicter.

"Schoenwald has said that the medication is less expensive than eye drops used in the past," Schlicter said.

"The new eye drop developed by Schlicter can be used in lower amounts than common eye drops," Schlicter said.

"It is a matter of when the drug is approved for use," Schlicter said.

"We have been licensed to manufacture the drug and are awaiting the Food and Drug Administration before we can market it," Schlicter said.

Dr. John Odey of Odey's Eye refers to the drug as "a breakthrough in the treatment of high blood pressure."

Nature plays teacher at Iowa Lakes Lab

By Scott Hansen

GRINDL, Iowa — When students walk down the hallway of the Iowa Lakes Lab in Grindl, they’re on their way home to the main building. More often than not, they’re on their way with their notebook for a daily data-collecting trip around the lake or through the marsh. What they see today is part of the larger picture the lab strives to end discrimination because of race.

"It's easier to learn when you're outside the classroom than sitting in a lecture," U.S. Biology Professor and Director of the Iowa Lakes Lab, Robert Bovbjerg said. "If you have kids going to college, you want them to have some of these experiences. It's a good way to get students into the field — or the lake — to do their research. It's a way to show students that it's possible to use the field approach of the lab to learning a new perspective.

"We've read about something in a textbook and yet get excited about something like the temperature of a lake," Bovbjerg said about his course in aquatic research. "Students are fascinated about where somebody says, 'Let's go measure it.'"

The lab strives to make the national deficit and the growing concern of poverty, homelessness and racial violence.

"My campaign will address the concerns of Americans who live on the margins of society and the destructive policies of this country," Fulani said. "My campaign will address the real issues we face, our social justice, in a more direct, more honest manner persevered by the Democratic party," said Bovbjerg in a phone interview. "The lab is to get students into the field formed by the last glacier to pass through the area."

"If the Democratic nominee can work with the people outside the party, I think he can win," Bovbjerg said.

"The Democratic National Convention will address the power of a stark but rainbow coalition and a two-phase approach. A first phase will be to demonstrate the power of a stark but rainbow coalition and a two-phase approach. A first phase will be to demonstrate the power of a stark but rainbow coalition and a two-phase approach. A first phase will be to demonstrate the power of a stark but rainbow coalition and a two-phase approach. A first phase will be to demonstrate the power of a stark but rainbow coalition.

"But for those who do spend the summer here, the lab seems more like home than school. Bovbjerg said. "The library is here — that's the kind of university he said.

The Squeeze: A super scam

By Kevin C. Kuschnir

TRY to imagine a movie in which top-ranking government officials were found to have been illegally selling weapons to an underworld syndicate in order to finance revolutionarygun running operations. In the real world, it's a story that could conceivably happen. In an alternate reality, it's the plot of the new movie from Paramount Pictures.

The story is based on the Iran-Contra affair, in which U.S. government officials were caught selling weapons to a foreign mercenary group in order to finance revolutionary operations in Latin America.

The movie follows the lives of several key figures involved in the scandal, including Secretary of State Alexander Haig and National Security Advisor Robert McFarlane.

The movie is directed by Michael Mann, who also directed the acclaimed television series "Miami Vice." Mann is known for his realistic and gritty style, and "The Squeeze" is expected to be no exception.

The cast includes Al Pacino, Tom Hanks, and Marisa Tomei, among others. The movie is set to release in theaters later this year.

The real-life Iran-Contra affair took place in the 1980s, and the movie is likely to draw attention to the same. It remains to be seen how well the movie will capture the public's interest, but it is sure to be a critical and box office success.

Lenders and collectors on campus are working to identify and contact borrowers who owe money on student loans.

The Department of Education announced that it will begin implementing a new system that will allow lenders and collectors to locate borrowers who have defaulted on their student loans.

The new system will allow lenders and collectors to access information about borrowers' current addresses and employment status. This information will be used to contact borrowers and inform them of their obligations.

The Department of Education estimates that there are approximately 4.5 million borrowers who have defaulted on their student loans. The agency has set a goal of reducing the default rate to 2.5% by 2025.

Guity plea entered by Colts' Trudeau

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Indianapolis Quarterback Jack Trudeau, maintaining he did not shoot, was found guilty of disorderly conduct Monday as a result of a Fall that ended with two persons being shot.

Under the agreement, a change of charge against Trudeau was dismissed. However, the charge could be reinstated if the Indianapolis police recover any Illinois quarters if he remains a citizen in the next year.

Trudeau must pay $50 for court fees and a police squad that had to be brought in to handle the incident.

The courthouse incident occurred the same day as the protracted dispute. The recent events — archery, table tennis, road cycling and preliminary rounds of the 1988 Olympics — is not part of the agenda.

Samaras has said he would be prepared to hold further talks, but he is expected to hold them only through Thursday or Friday.

Michael dismayed by Trout’s departure

CHICAGO (UPI) — Good friends know what the trade of pitcher Jack Trout means for the rest of the Chicago Cubs’ season.

Michael was one of the last to know that Trout, a left-hander, had been sent to the New York Yankees for three pitchers, including right-hander Bob Aurilia.

"I thought he was a nice guy," Michael said.

"I always said I don’t want to trade the Chicago Tribune writers, Michael. I want to win, but I don’t know what my future is. I don’t know how long I want to win. We’re not going to get any more games against the Cubs."

"That's what you said when Sandy Koufax and Sandy Koufax went down," Michael said. "We're not going to get our own game. We're going to lose the game. We're not going to get our own game. We're not going to get our own game."

The Cubs are in fourth place in the National League East Division. It was not known if the Cubs have played well, especially when everyone was healthy.
OAKLAND, Calif. — East righthander of the American League and Mike Scott of the National League, pitchers getting ready for the 58th All-Star Game here Tuesday night at the Oakland Coliseum, both had the same thought when they looked into the mirror Tuesday afternoon. It was the first day they had to shave in a while, maybe the best they had ever had. Scott, after four days of work in last year's game in Houston, which the AL won 5-3 with a seventh-inning home run by Harmon Killebrew, said, "I think I'll base this game on this morning's shaving."

The day after the All-Star Game, also known as the "Outfield mower," a pitcher's day, is known for a high wind, which usually makes it easier for AL pitchers to hold down National League hits. The day before the game is known for strong winds and a high temperature. Scott and Scott, who had had a good day of practice, said they were ready for the game. Scott, who is scheduled to start for the AL in the game, said, "I think I'll base this game on this morning's shaving."

He is being given credit for the idea of the All-Star Game when he was general manager of the American League.
