Shultz: Lies kept Reagan in dark

By Joseph Musummo and Anne Saker

WASHINGTON — Secretary of State George Shultz is critically important to President Reagan in his handling of the unfolding Iran-Contra crisis in the closing weeks of the administration.

Shultz, who has been closely involved in the negotiations for a strategic arms limitation treaty, has been called into question by the Soviet Union.

The Soviet Union has issued a strong challenge to Shultz and his top aides, calling for the release of information about the secret arms sales to Iran and the transfer of funds to the contras.

The Soviet challenge comes as the Reagan administration faces growing pressure to release more information about the Iran-Contra affair.

Shultz and his aides have been under increasing pressure to release more information about the secret arms sales to Iran and the transfer of funds to the contras.

The Soviet Union has accused the Reagan administration of concealing information about the arms sales and the contras.

"It's a tough way to cut costs," said Michael Albrecht, the company's president and chief executive officer. "But it's a necessary step to ensure the continued viability of our company."

Albrecht said that route violates the spirit of the new teacher pay plan. The company has seen a significant increase in its employee base over the past year. As a result, they will need to make tough decisions to remain competitive.

Merit pay questioned

"Teachers are not the only ones who need incentives," said Albrecht. "Our employees also contribute to our success. We need to reward them for their hard work and dedication.

"Merit pay is a fair way to recognize our employees. It's a way to keep our best people, and attract new ones," he said.

"Our goal is to create a culture of professionalism and accountability. Merit pay is a key component of that," Albrecht added.

Further, Albrecht said, "We believe that merit pay is an important part of the new teacher pay plan. It's a way to ensure that our teachers are being rewarded for their hard work and dedication."

"We're glad to see that merit pay is being recognized as an important part of the new teacher pay plan," Albrecht said. "We believe that it's a key component of our overall strategy to improve our employees' productivity and performance."

The strategic implications involved in the Iran-Iraq war and the current transfer of Kuwaiti oil through the Persian Gulf resemble the theater of the staged. American waypoints are now assuming American-flagged tanker routes from Kuwaiti ports. The frigates are cutting back in the region because the Kufree is of key importance to Iran.

And Iraq also has a number of good reasons to initiate the phase of events that will lead to the destruction of the installations - which will prompt the Iranians to attack the Kuwaiti ports and its oil facilities. The Iranians want to "sit until the tanks roll through" and will attack the Kuwaiti oil ports. The frigates say they will attack only in response to Iraqi aggression.

And while Iran says they plan to support a muddied resolution passed Monday by the U.S. Security Council, that situation is anything but a make-up one. Iran is also attempting to send its flotilla into the Persian Gulf for more military matériel for the Iranians than for Iran. Thus, the frigates may only use to gain the war around the world. The American frigates that have been sent into the Persian Gulf are not simply a matter of making waves, but also of getting into the frigates to which Iran has access. Frank.

Former Colts’ All-Pro wants football returned to Baltimore

Baltimore, MD — Former NFL defensive end and Bubba Smith, talking in print and on television, is unanimous in his belief that Baltimore is capable of supporting an NFL franchise, estimated at $100 million a year.

"I’m 100% sure we can support an NFL franchise in Baltimore," said Smith, who was a highly successful defensive end in the 1970s.

"We built the stadium, we owned the team, we had the players, and we had the fans," Smith said. "And we had the money to build an expensive NFL franchise, estimated at $100 million a year."

Smith’s comments come as the NFL is evaluating the city’s potential as a host for an expansion franchise.

"The NFL denied having Taylor around," said Smith, who wrote a book about his life and career. "But the NFL security people were involved in the incident."

Ex-Creighton hoopster threatens life

CHICAGO (UPI) - Kevin Ronk, a former Creighton basketball player who joined official's union by stepping on an eighth-grader class to learn how to read, barricaded himself in a hotel room Thursday and threatened to take his life during a two-hour standoff with police.

The incident occurred when Harvey Collins, a nationally prominent official's union leader, arrived at the hotel.

Ronk, 21, who received a 36-month suspended sentence for his role in the 1987 murder of former Creighton basketball player Jack Reardon, was certified by the Ohio State University Hospital in June, located just west of the Loop, police said.

Collins, the head of the Professional Players Union, which was called to the hotel by police after Ronk demanded to speak to her, said Ronk was upset over his inability to enter a career - a failing he blamed on a number of injuries, including a broken kneecap and a broken foot.

Becker, McNerney to meet in Davis Cup

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) - Boris Becker, pleased to be playing John McEnroe on the first day of the United States-West Germany Davis Cup competition, said emotions would complicate his concentration.

McEnroe has not played competitively since the French Open in May. 'I'm happy to play him the first day,' said Becker, a two-time Wimbledon champion. 'It would be easier on him to play against me on Sunday when he's already played.'

The two will meet in the second of the two-match competition. Both losses in the first round of the 1987 Davis Cup competition. The country hosting this weekend drop from the World Group into Zone competition and is ineligible for the 1988 Davis Cup.

Buckner given release by Red Sox

BOSTON (UPI) - Vessas 6-6 second baseman Bill Buckner, former Red Sox star who finished second in the 1980 World Series, was released by the Red Sox and will not rejoin the 40-man roster.

Buckner, hitting .273 with 41 RBIs and two home runs this season, said he plans to return to the minor league first baseman class here, who has been playing for the Sox's Triple-A affiliate, Portland of the International League.

Buckner was dropped from the Red Sox's roster in early July after he suffered a broken right hand on July 1.

The Sox were hoping to re-sign Buckner if he agreed to return to the minor leagues.

Buckner's decision was expected to be in the Red Sox's relief options for tonight's game at Fenway Park against the Seattle Mariners.

Ohio Assembly seeks to put control on agents

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) - Legislation aimed at controlling the activities of sports agents was introduced in the Ohio General Assembly Thursday by Rep. John Glander, a Columbus school basketball coach.

Glander, who has been working to reform the agent world for three months, said a recent scandal involving the former Ohio State University wide receiver Chris Carter was the final trigger for signing a bill to govern agents. The bill would require agents to register with the state, submit to a background check, and would allow the state to impose fines on agents who violate the law.

The legislation also includes language that would make it easier for schools to penalize agents who interfere with their programs. The bill is expected to pass with little opposition, and Glander said he hopes it will be signed into law by the end of the month.

Glander said the bill is a necessary step to protect the integrity of college sports.

"We want to put some restric­tions on the agents whose only restric­tions are on the kids and the school," Glander said. "This bill is a measure of all the problems that we've seen over the years."
