Stark officers will leave Navy

Captain, weapons officer both acknowledge accountability

From DI Wire Services

WASHINGTON — The skipper and the tactical weapons officer of the USS Stark on Monday accepted accountability for the vessel's "lack of readiness" when it was hit by two Iraqi missiles May 17 in a Persian Gulf attack that killed 37 sailors.

A Navy spokesman said both officers were given a letter of reprimand and that the skipper, Glenn Brindel, had requested retirement while Lt. Basil Moncrief Jr. had submitted his resignation.

The action was taken by Adm. Frank Kelso II, commander of the Atlantic Fleet, who opted to hold an "Admiral's Mast" and administer non-judicial punishment rather than send Brindel and Moncrief before a general court-martial.

Officials said Brindel would be retired as a commander because he had not served the requisite three years to make him eligible for retirement as captain and thus would lose about $100,000 in retirement pay.

OSTENSIBLY mistaken for an Iranian vessel, the Stark was hit just above the waterline by two sea-skimming Exocet missiles fired by an Iraqi air force jet. Only one of the missiles exploded, but the second still carried much of its propellant and set off a raging fire when it struck near the crew's sleeping quarters.

Although the ship had detected the approach of the plane, it did not maneuver into position where it could fire its six-barrel Phalanx defense system designed to shoot down missiles.

IN A MEETING at the State Department, Iraqi Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz said Monday his country will not accept a partial cease-fire in its war with Iran, meaning that it will reserve the right to attack naval targets in the Persian Gulf.

Aziz met for more than 90 minutes with Secretary of State George Shultz and Assistant Secretary of State for Middle East Affairs Richard Murphy.

Towing service issue heats up

By Joseph Levy
The Daily Iowan

The owner of a local automobile towing service said Monday that Iowa City Mayor William Ambrisco may be guilty of a conflict of interest.

Dale Gerot, owner of Iowa City Wrecker, 1222 Gilbert Court, said the cards may be stacked against him as he attempts to land the city's towing contract, which went up for bid Monday.

According to Gerot, Ambrisco, who is the co-owner of the insurance agency insuring Holiday Wrecker and Crane Service — the only other wrecker competing for the city towing contract — should not have a say in the awarding of the contract.

"If he is going to vote on the contract, I think it would be a conflict of interest," Gerot said. "But I'm not a lawyer."

THE INSURANCE CONTRACT Ambrisco's company holds with Holiday Wrecker would run $20,000 a year if Holiday is awarded the job.

Holiday Wrecker and Crane Service, 211 10th St., Coralville, currently provides towing service for the city, but the city terminated the contract when the company broke a rule in the contract, operating another business out of the same building in which it ran the towing service.

Iowa City Manager Stephen Atkins said the company was running a salvage business out of the same location.

"That was interpreted to be a violation," Atkins said, explaining the additional business could have affected the level of service Holiday Wrecker provided the city.

GEROT SAID he thought the city was not punishing Holiday Wrecker for the violation, as the business has simply resubmitted a bid for the contract.

"They've rewarded Holiday instead of punishing them," Gerot said.

Atkins defended the city's actions, questioning what was wrong with allowing the company to bid.

"I have no idea what (Gerot) is

Penrith denied plea appeal

Probation hearing set for Aug. 26

By Phil Thomas
The Daily Iowan

Johnson County Sixth District Court Judge John R. Sladek ruled Monday that Iowa wrestler Brad Penrith will be held to his guilty pleas on public intoxication and disorderly conduct charges in connection with a June 16 incident on the downtown pedestrian mall.

Penrith, who was allegedly fighting with 21-year-old Stephen Bloomer of Davenport June 16, initially pled guilty to the two charges but later asked to reverse his pleas because he was unaware of the "negative consequences" of filing the initial guilty pleas, according to court records.

Penrith now may face a 28-day jail sentence in Johnson County and a 58-day jail term in Dallas County, Iowa, for violating his one-year probation for an OWI conviction that was set in August 1986, according to court records.

CONNIE WILSON, Penrith's probation officer, filed an application to revoke Penrith's probation last week and a hearing to review the matter was set for Aug. 26, according to court records.

Under the probation, Penrith was required to abstain from alcohol, obey all ordinances and serve 115 hours of community service work at the Salvation Army, according to court records.

Penrith had only served 9.1 hours of the community service work by April 21 and the ruling was modified so he could pay a $500 fine, which was not paid as of July 20, according to court records.

The first appeal to reverse the guilty pleas was denied by Johnson County Sixth District Court Judge Bruce Goddard on June 30. Penrith's lawyer, Douglas Russell, filed another appeal for a higher court to review Goddard's decision July 13.

IN THE COURT document filed July 13, Russell wrote that Penrith's initial guilty pleas were not "voluntarily, knowingly and

Lab director joins global AIDS study

By Anne Keivin
The Daily Iowan

A UI public health expert has joined forces with experts from the World Health Organization to study the incidence of AIDS in underdeveloped countries.

Jane Getchell, assistant director of the UI Hygienic Lab, recently returned from the West African country of Sierra Leone, where she and two other health experts evaluated the incidence of AIDS and ways to prevent it from spreading.

Getchell said she and her colleagues are part of a pool of 40 to 50 health consultants chosen by WHO in a worldwide effort to halt the spread of AIDS.

Health experts from Sierra Leone met with the team in the country's capital city of Freetown during the last week in June.

The three-member team recommended improving laboratories for testing, developing AIDS education programs and testing a sample of Sierra Leone's population to determine the extent of the virus in the country.

Getchell said there are no known cases of AIDS in Sierra Leone and no one has tested positive for the virus, but bordering African countries have high incidences of the deadly disease.

The reason for an apparent lack of AIDS in Sierra Leone is unknown, Getchell said.

"I'm guessing, but there does not seem to be a lot of traffic between Sierra Leone and the other countries," she said. AIDS cases may exist despite the absence of documentation, she added.

"I'M NOT CONVINCED that I believe that there are none at this point," Getchell said. Only 200 people from a population of 3 million have been tested for the AIDS antibody, she said.

WHO is providing Sierra Leone with $131,000 in funds to refurbish laboratories and purchase test kits, according to Getchell. Primitive conditions there will make setting up laboratories difficult, since they will each need an independent energy source and a clean water supply. Poor sanitation in the country is the cause of diseases other than AIDS, Getchell said.

"In terms of morbidity and mortality, AIDS can't hold a candle to diarrheal diseases and malaria," she said. Health care in Sierra Leone is limited, Getchell added, citing the existence of only 18 dentists in the entire country.

Along with the crude living conditions, the culture of Sierra Leone could contribute to an AIDS problem, Getchell said. The majority of the population is Moslem, a religion that commonly involves polygamy. Prostitution is also legal in the country.

"Sexual activity is really their main source of pleasure," Getchell said.

AIDS EDUCATION IN the country currently stresses not sharing razors and toothbrushes, although those practices are not known to spread the virus. Getchell said she hopes future education in Sierra Leone will address the use of condoms. The population there is largely unaware of the worldwide AIDS problem, she said, and education will have to be mainly through word-of-mouth.

"The complicated factor is that there's not a lot of media in Sierra Leone" to provide information about AIDS, Getchell said.

Getchell compared the low incidence of AIDS in Sierra Leone to that of Iowa. She said she is interested in the effect education will have on residents of Sierra Leone.

"Here in Iowa we might be able to learn something from them," she said.

UI staff offered support for MBA

By John Bartenhagen
The Daily Iowan

A fellowship provided by the UI College of Business Administration will support a UI staff member working toward a master's degree in business administration this fall, UI officials said Monday.

One opening in the Program for Emerging Managers — a 21-month intensive course of study that allows participants to work full-time while earning a master's degree — has been reserved for a member of the UI staff, Associate Vice President for Finance and University Services Mary Jo Small said Monday.

"There are a lot of people on this campus already who, by working for the university, are able to continue studying and this is an extension of that idea," Small said.

College of Business Administration Dean George Daly said the staff fellowship is worth $15,000, the cost of tuition for the program, and will be awarded on the condition that the recipient remain a UI employee for at least two years after graduating from the program.

"IT'S A PROGRAM that is designed for people working full-time who can't or don't want to interrupt their careers and who don't want to take six or seven years of part-time classes to get a graduate degree," Daly said.

The exclusive fellowship will send a positive message to UI staff members, Daly said.

"We're very hopeful this will increase staff morale at the university and continue the professionalization of staff members," he said.

From the 16 UI staff members who have applied for the fellowship, a selection committee headed by Small will choose up to five candidates. The final selection will be made by the College of Business Administration, whose members will not be eligible for participation in the first fellowship competition, she said.

"THE PEOPLE IN the College of Business Administration are not eligible this year because we did not want there to be a perceived conflict of interest," Small said.

In making the selection, Small said the committee will look for candidates who are professionally and academically qualified and who will be useful additions to the Police investigate death

CEDAR RAPIDS — Authorities Monday were investigating the death of a man whose body was found in a city park Sunday night.

Police said the man, whose identity was not revealed pending notification of relatives, was found in a car at Mohawk Park by a passerby about 9 p.m. Authorities said although foul play is not indicated, no possibility will be ruled out until an autopsy is completed.

Man dies in car crash

DES MOINES — A Des Moines man was killed early Monday when the car in which he was riding veered out of control on Des Moines' west side and slammed into a tree, officials said.

Polk County Medical Examiner R.C. Wooters said Tom Nitzke, 29, died at the scene of the accident. The driver of the car, Eric Schwarz, 26, was listed in serious condition Monday at Broadlawn Medical Center.

Crops survive heat wave

DES MOINES — Iowa's corn and soybean crops progressed rapidly toward maturity despite last week's oppressive heat and humidity, the Iowa Department of Agriculture said Monday.

The department said 97 percent of the corn crop reached the silk stage last week, which is about two weeks earlier than normal. The condition of the corn crop was rated as 36 percent excellent, 54 percent good and 9 percent fair.

The condition of the soybean crop, with 98 percent of the state's beans in bloom, was rated 27 percent excellent, 61 percent good and 11 percent fair.

Helmet law urged

CEDAR FALLS — Iowa's failure to enact a motorcycle helmet law may reflect a lack of intelligence on the part of state legislators, a University of Northern Iowa safety official said Monday.

Ivan Eland, program coordinator for safety education at UNI, said Iowa is one of only seven states that do not require motorcyclists to wear helmets — a "not-very-flattering" distinction.

Eland said statistics show overwhelmingly that motorcycle helmets save lives and, if motorcycle safety is of any concern to Iowans, helmet legislation must be adopted.

Teen pregnancies down

DES MOINES — A recent state Health Department claim that teenage pregnancy is not an epidemic in Iowa is a misleading assessment that could lead the legislature to ignore the problem, the executive director of Planned Parenthood of Mid-Iowa said Monday.

Jill June said while births to Iowa teenagers may be at an all-time low, 3,500 such births last year is a "tragedy that can't be ignored."

"One unwanted teenage pregnancy is one too many," June said. "Until no teenagers become pregnant before they would like to be, we have a job ahead of us."

$1 million suit filed

CEDAR RAPIDS — The wife of a Wisconsin man who was electrocuted while working on an Iowa highway last month is seeking more than $1 million in damages in a lawsuit filed in Linn County District Court.

Ricky Zickert, 37, died June 12 on U.S. Highway 151 near Marion when the box from a dump truck that was unloading rock came into contact with a power line.

Kathleen Zickert and her 4-year-old son, Isaac, are suing Iowa Electric Light and Power Co., truck driver Karl Quaas, and truck company owners Donald and Max Graham of Alburnett.

Loras College gets grant

DUBUQUE — The Northwestern Bell Foundation has awarded Loras College a $75,000 grant for the "Loras: Century 21" fund-raising campaign, school officials said Monday.

Corrections

In a story headlined, "Youth drowns in Iowa River" (DI, July 27), it was incorrectly reported that the body of 11-year-old Andy Lepic surfaced from time to time after search efforts began Saturday. Actually, the body did not surface until recovered Sunday, according to Johnson County Sheriff Gary Hughes.

The DI regrets the error.

Top 3 local administrators may see salary increases

By Joseph Levy
The Daily Iowan

A recommendation to increase the salaries of top Iowa City administrators is expected to pass without debate at tonight's Iowa City Council meeting, councilors said Monday night.

Under the proposal, Iowa City Manager Stephen Atkins' salary would increase 3.2 percent to $64,001 and Iowa City Attorney Terrence Timmins' salary would be raised 3 percent to $54,329.

Iowa City Clerk Marian Karr would net the biggest increase under the proposal. Her salary will increase 8.58 percent to $30,014, if the recommendation passes.

"This is a really strong team," councilor Kate Dickson said at Monday night's informal council meeting. "They're all very effective."

The increases are standard procedure, said Iowa City Finance Director Rosemary Vitosh. The three administrators are listed as unclassified city personnel — their salaries are not negotiated by the collective bargaining process like those of other city employees.

Instead the council decides how much to pay them, Vitosh said.

THE COUNCIL MET in executive session earlier this year to discuss the fiscal year 1988 salary increases. Dickson said the decision to increase the salaries was unanimous at those meetings.

Atkins, the city's top administrator, said he was satisfied with the council's evaluation of his work.

"I thought I had a very thorough and complete appraisal," he said. "The council treated me fairly."

When Atkins was city manager of Schaumburg, Ill., he made about $78,000 annually. But he said more than just money was considered in his move to Iowa City.

Timmins also said he was pleased with the council's evaluation of his performance, adding his salary fits well within the range of city attorney salaries in Iowa.

"I think Ames and Des Moines might be a little higher, and Sioux City might be a little lower," he said. "My salary is probably right in the middle of the range."

Karr's salary increase of 8.58 percent should make her salary more competitive with salaries of other city clerks in Iowa.

Iowa football player Keaton Smiley will appear in Johnson County District Court Aug. 12 to ask for the dismissal of one of the charges against him and have two of the remaining four charges tried as separate matters.

The date for the hearing was set in Johnson County District Court Monday after Smiley's lawyers appealed for a hearing Friday.

Smiley has also filed a notice that he acted in self-defense in all three incidents, according to court records. His trial has been set for Oct. 12.

● A man who escaped from a local halfway house two weeks ago was formally charged with absence from custody in Johnson County District Court Monday and his arraignment date was set for Aug. 6, according to court records.

Paul Campbell, 33, was still being held in Johnson County jail on $5,000 bond Monday after he was arrested in Coralville July 16 after escaping from the Project H.O.P.E. House, 1916 Waterfront Drive, July 12, according to court records.

Campbell, who also goes under the alias of Jabir Mumin, pleaded guilty in 1983 to voluntary manslaughter in connection with the 1981 knifing and strangulation death of a Des Moines adult bookstore model.

Campbell allegedly stole a car for his escape that has since been located, according to court records. His whereabouts before his capture were unknown.

● An Iowa City teenager was being held in Johnson County Jail on $10,150 bond Monday for allegedly assaulting a juvenile in Iowa City last month and failing to appear in court for a previous offense, according to court records.

Jeffrey E. Ash, 18, of 511 S. Lucas St., was charged with assault in Johnson County District Court Monday after he allegedly struck an Iowa City youth in the mouth June 20 in the 300 block of South Clinton Street, according to court records.

Ash has also been charged with second-degree theft and possession of burglar's tools for allegedly stealing a motorcycle April 10, according to court records.

A warrant was issued for Ash's arrest on June 12 after he failed to appear at a pre-trial conference in Johnson County District Court for the two charges stemming from the April 10 incident, according to court records.

● An Iowa City man was charged with attempted murder and going armed with intent in Johnson County District Court Monday in connection with an alleged attack of a woman at his residence July 5.

Wendell Lee Partin, 26, of 31 E. Towncrest Trailer Court, was being held in Johnson County Jail Monday on $10,500 bond after he allegedly held the victim over a bathtub at knife-point and told her, "I will kill you," according to court records.

An arraignment date for Partin was set for July 29.

Shultz, Shevardnadze set up meeting

WASHINGTON — Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze and Secretary of State George Shultz are expected to meet here mid-September to discuss arms control and other matters, U.S. officials said Monday.

The effect of the meeting date, which is about one month later than the United States had proposed, will probably be to push the next U.S.-Soviet summit into November or later.

Soviet Ambassador Yuri Dubinin told Shultz Monday that Shevardnadze proposed visiting Washington 10 days to two weeks before the United Nations General Assembly in late September. No firm date was set, but the Soviet timetable is likely to be accepted, officials said.

Fitzwater: Press out to get Reagan

HARTFORD, Wis. — White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater, responding to news reports that President Ronald Reagan led an effort to conceal details of Iranian arms-and-hostages dealings in November, angrily declared Monday: "I frankly think that some members of the press are so hungry to try to destroy the president that they've lost all perspective."

He was apparently referring to stories reporting that Reagan led an effort in November to conceal the details about arms dealing with Iran in an effort to salvage the program after press disclosures about it. The articles were based on notes taken at a White House meeting Nov. 10, 1986, by Alton Keel Jr., then deputy national security adviser.

Meese begins Contra testimony today

WASHINGTON — Attorney General Edwin Meese, the long-time legal guardian of the Reagan White House, will face Congress today to defend his dual roles as the nation's top law enforcement officer and a presidential friend as the Iran-Contra scandal broke.

Members of the select House and Senate committees investigating the affair say a key element in their questioning will be whether Meese's position as Reagan's closest adviser compromised his ability last November to probe the affair.

Related to that issue will be whether Meese, wittingly or not, aided a cover-up with a questionable initial investigation.

Meese, who alerted the nation Nov. 25 to the diversion of money to Nicaraguan rebels from secret U.S. arms sales to Iran, was the political confidante closest to Reagan.

North's liaison gets limited immunity

WASHINGTON — Robert Owen, Lt. Col. Oliver North's liaison to the Nicaraguan rebels, has been granted limited immunity from prosecution in return for his cooperation with special prosecutor Lawrence Walsh, sources close to the investigation said Monday.

After receiving immunity in a sealed court order from U.S. District Judge Aubrey Robinson earlier this month, he was interrogated for more than 12 hours about North's activities in three or four informal interviews with Walsh's investigators, the sources said.

Under the agreement, Owen cannot be prosecuted on the basis of information he gives to Walsh's office and the grand jury or leads derived from the information.

He could, however, be subject to prosecution based on evidence obtained independently by the Watergate-style prosecutor.

Aquino assails international lenders

MANILA, Philippines — Philippine President Corazon Aquino Monday used her state-of-the-nation speech to the inaugural session of the new Congress to level a sharp criticism at the international lending community for refusing to grant more concessional repayment terms for the country's $28 billion foreign debt.

In a 35-minute address to mark the country's final passage from strong-man rule, Aquino also sounded a tough call against threats to the new democracy, including "totalitarian slavery on the left and reversion to fascist terror and corruption on the right." She urged the new Congress to make "a sober assessment of (the) adequacy" of the military and the need to increase defense spending so the army can be better equipped to meet the threats.

Communist guerrillas Monday exploded a land mine in the path of a military convoy and opened fire, killing 18 soldiers sent to reinforce a beleaguered army detachment, the official Philippine News Agency said.

At least 55 killed in head-on bus crash

BELO HORIZONTE, Brazil — At least 55 people were killed when two buses crashed head-on in a collision that "looked just like a battlefield," police said Monday.

The accident, which also involved a car whose three passengers were among the victims, occurred Sunday night near Belo Horizonte, 220 miles north of Rio de Janeiro, police said.

"It was a terrible scene. Bodies were strewn all over the road and it looked just like a battlefield," police spokesman Silvio Bacaru said.

Police said they have not established the cause of the accident. But witnesses said one bus carrying pilgrims from a Belo Horizonte suburb to a religious festival in the small town of Belo Vale was apparently on the wrong side of the road.

Black activist found dead in S. Africa

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — A black activist who helped organize a meeting of white Afrikaners and leaders of the outlawed African National Congress was found murdered near his hometown, the man's father said Monday.

Norman Ntonga said his son Mxolise Eric Ntonga, 32, was found Sunday bound and stabbed in the back seat of his car in King William's county, about 600 miles south of Johannesburg.

The younger Ntonga was a full-time director of the Institute for a Democratic Alternative for South Africa, which organized the talks in Dakar, Senegal, between 50 white Afrikaners and 15 leaders of the ANC on the abolition of apartheid and the black movement's 26-year guerrilla war against white rule in South Africa.

Governors urge federal AIDS funding

TRAVERSE CITY, Mich. — Governors urged Congress Monday to enact a federally funded AIDS education and prevention program but ducked the controversial issue of testing for the deadly disease.

A task force of the National Governors Association unanimously approved a policy statement calling acquired immune deficiency syndrome "the nation's No. 1 public health problem."

The committee called for a "national education and prevention program" with an emphasis on counseling young people before they become old enough to contract the disease, transmitted through sexual contact and intravenous drug use.

Soviets execute Nazi war criminal

MOSCOW — The Soviet Union said Monday it executed Nazi war criminal Feodor Fedorenko, a former death camp guard stripped of his citizenship by a U.S. court and deported to the Soviet Union in 1984.

Fedorenko, 79, a former brass foundry worker who lived in the United States for 35 years after the war, was sentenced to death by a court in the Soviet Ukraine in June 1986 for war crimes including the execution of Polish Jews at the Treblinka death camp and the Stutthof death camp in what is now the Soviet Baltic coast.

Bork not in GOP mainstream

Study shows voting record more conservative than most

By John Hanrahan
United Press International

WASHINGTON — Supreme Court nominee Robert Bork's appeals court voting record shows him to be far more conservative than President Ronald Reagan's average choice for top federal court seats, according to a study released Monday.

The study, prepared for the Columbia University Law Review, also found "an apparently inconsistent application of judicial restraint" by Bork. He consistently favored business challenges to federal regulations, but regularly supported the government position in suits brought by public interest groups, the study said.

The study also found that Bork, now a member of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia, voted on the conservative side of the issue 90 percent of the time in cases with decisions that were not unanimous. This compares to a 69 percent conservative voting record by other Reagan-appointed appellate judges.

BORK'S PATTERN of decisions shows that he, unlike most other Reagan judicial appointees, is outside the "Republican mainstream," the study reported.

Bork was nominated to the high court July 1 by Reagan to succeed retiring Justice Lewis Powell. Liberals plan to make Bork's conservative judicial philosophy and decisions a major issue in Senate Judiciary Committee confirmation hearings in September.

Although Republican-appointed judges overall were found to be more conservative than Democrat-appointed ones, the study determined that Reagan appointees were no more conservative in their votes overall than appellate judges appointed by Republican Presidents Eisenhower, Nixon and Ford.

THESE OTHER GOP appointees were also found to be voting on the conservative side of the issue 69 percent of the time. Only in discrimination cases were Reagan judges "significantly more conservative than other Republicans," the study found.

The yearlong study, based on 1,200 non-unanimous decisions by the U.S. Court of Appeals during 1985 and 1986, was conducted by Timothy Tomasi and Jess Velona, editors at the Columbia Law Review.

The law journal will publish the study in its next issue. Additional research on Bork's voting record covers the period 1982 through 1986.

The Bork cases studied included ones on issues of civil rights, criminal defendants' rights, labor unions, freedom of information, constitutional rights and government regulations.

"It is surprising that Reagan judges on the average were no more conservative in their voting behavior than other GOP judges," said Velona. "If any group of judges would be ideologues, Reagan's appointees fit the bill. But that just hasn't happened."

 talking about," he said.
 But Atkins declined comment on whether Ambrisco was in a position of conflicting interest.
 "That's up to the attorney to decide," he said.
 Iowa City Attorney Terrence Timmins said he had formulated an opinion on the matter, but did not want to disclose it while the mayor was out of town.

"I'VE LOOKED IT over and I have an opinion, but I'm not going to express it yet," he said. "I would look for anything too extreme as a result."
 Dana
 Bids for the contract were opened Monday at 2 p.m. Holiday Wrecker and Iowa City Wrecker were the only two bidders for the contract.
 Atkins said bids will be evaluated by a committee of purchasers, legal department employees and members of the Police Department.
 The bids should be evaluated by the end of the week or possibly early next week, he said.

 UI's administrative staff. The committee will review applicants' academic success, job classification within the UI and letters of support in making the selections, she said.
 "From those criteria, I think we can get a good picture of whether someone is qualified or not," she said. "We are especially looking for people who will enhance the role of women and minorities in the administration."

THE FIRST CLASS in the Program for Emerging Managers will be enrolled this fall and will graduate in May 1989. Students begin the program in mid-August with a week-long session of classes, then attend classes each week on alternate Fridays or Saturdays.
 Daly said although program participants will spend the same amount of time in class as students enrolled in traditional graduate programs, the demand on their time will be greater.
 "If these people have families, then everyone will have to adjust a lot because this program will cause a high level of stress," he said. "But we can't change that and still offer the same program."

Gulf war, has said it will attack Kuwaiti ships under U.S. protection if its own shipping is hit by the Iraqis. The Iraqis have also said that if Iraq would stop the naval war, Iran would also.

Aziz said his country accepts the implementation of U.N. Security Council Resolution 598, passed unanimously by the council last Monday. It calls for a comprehensive cease-fire, a restoration of national borders that existed in 1979, and a negotiated end to the dispute that underlies the 7-year war.

IN WASHINGTON, the United States is considering dispatching minesweeping helicopters to the Persian Gulf to ensure shipping channels used by Navy-escorted Kuwaiti tankers will be clear of underwater explosives, Pentagon officials said Monday.

Renewed urgency about sending the huge Sikorsky choppers to the gulf followed mine damage to the supertanker Bridgeton Friday when the 401,382-ton ship and the smaller Gas Prince were under Navy escort 120 miles south of Kuwait on a maiden U.S.-led convoy.

LT. CMDR. Raymond Gajan Jr., the Stark's executive officer, had also been under investigation, but the Navy said his case would be handled separately because the allegations against him were of a lesser nature than those against Brindel and Moncrief.

Kelso apparently opted for non-judicial punishment rather than a court-martial in part because of the officers' actions in saving the ship after the accidental attack.

In an unusual step for such a proceeding, Kelso listed several factors bearing on the decision. Among them:

- The attack was "unexpected and originated from a source considered not likely to act in a manner hostile to a U.S. Naval vessel in lawful and peaceful operations in international waters."

- Brindel and Moncrief undertook "personal efforts in saving the Stark and preventing further loss of life (that) were extraordinary and heroic in the face of extreme personal peril."

- The prolonged nature of court-martial proceedings raised concerns that they would cause "intensified grief on the part of the families of the victims of the attack and stress to the Stark crew."

Brindel, Moncrief and Gajan were relieved of duty and flown back to the United States after putting out the fire and bringing the Stark, a guided-missile frigate, into port at Bahrain. The ship, which underwent temporary repair, is now making its way back to its home port at Mayport, Fla.

IRAQ PROMPTLY apologized for the attack, but the incident set off another escalation of U.S. naval presence in the gulf and put intense pressure on the Reagan administration for its plans to escort Kuwaiti tankers through the gulf.

Kelso had taken the investigators' report of tragedy under advisement several weeks ago.

Because the Stark had never fired a shot to defend itself, the actions of the crew had become the focus of the investigation from the outset.

Brindel, who was considered one of the Navy's promising young captains, told congressional investigators that he was in his quarters at the time of the attack and that Moncrief was in charge of the ship's combat information center.

As executive officer, Gajan was second in command on the ship but had only recently joined the crew under Brindel, who had been skipper for more than a year.

Brindel and Moncrief, foregoing their right to trial by court-martial and to appear before the "Admiral's Mast," acknowledged in writing their accountability for inadequate protection of the ship.

 intelligently made," and wrote that Penrith was not granted due process of law because he was not given an evidentiary hearing on the motion to withdraw the guilty pleas and a motion for a new trial, according to court records.

Russell declined to comment on the matter Monday.

Johnson County Attorney J. Patrick White said Monday's ruling by Sladek will be taken into account at Penrith's Aug. 26 probation hearing, where it will be decided whether or not he goes to jail.

Iowa wrestling Coach Dan Gable suspended Penrith from the team following the June 16 incident.

Long will start; Vlasic signs pact

By Marc Bona
The Daily Iowan
and United Press International

The Detroit Lions opened training camp hoping their long wait for a standout quarterback ends with Chuck Long.

Long entered training camp Monday at Oakland University as the starter. He is coming off a rookie season in which he held out most of training camp because of a contract problem but did start the final two regular-season games.

● Another former Iowa quarterback made his mark in the professional ranks: Mark Vlasic, a fourth-round draft choice by the San Diego Chargers, was one of two players signed by the team. Terms of the deal were undisclosed.

● Iowa football player Mike Flagg, tight end from Cedar Falls, Iowa, had his appendix removed July 14. Flagg, who is not supposed to miss any games this season, is slated to start for the Hawkeyes.

● An additional game has been scheduled for Iowa's basketball season, Iowa sports information office has announced. The game, against Dartmouth, will be played at Carver-Hawkeye Arena, Jan. 23, at 7:05 p.m., and will be televised on the Hawkeye Sports Network.

Fired manager will try again

BOISE, Idaho (UPI) — Fired Boise Hawks manager Derrel Thomas said Monday he will keep pursuing a job as a major-league manager but added he will come better prepared for his next assignment.

"This is not going to deter me from managing," Thomas said. "This was my rookie experience, an educational experience."

Mal Fichman, general manager of the first-year Northwest League team, announced the firing of Thomas on Sunday and said he would name pitching coach Joe Decker as interim manager.

"This was one of the hardest things I've had to do," Fichman said. "I hired him and he's a friend of mine."

Thomas, a black, said too much has been made of comments made by former Los Angeles Dodgers executive Al Campanis, who said blacks "might not have the necessities" to become professional baseball managers.

Pan Am stars to battle NBA

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — The U.S. Pan American Games basketball team will gauge how far it has come — and how far it needs to go — when it plays the first of three games against a contingent of NBA players tonight at Market Square Arena.

"We will use the game to see where we are," said Pan Am Coach Denny Crum, the head coach at Louisville. "Then we will have a couple of days to work real hard on things we didn't do very well. Until you play outside competition, some things you do aren't very evident."

The Pan Am team, which will have had 10 days of workouts before today's game, returns to its Louisville, Ky., training camp after the first game against the NBA squad. The U.S. amateurs meet the NBA team again Saturday at Louisville and Aug. 6 at Fort Wayne, Ind., before Pan Am competition begins Aug. 9 against Panama.

"WITH THE SHORT period of time you have to practice, you can't be as concerned about your opponent as you need to be about yourself," said Crum, who coached Louisville to NCAA titles in 1980 and 1986 and also led a U.S. team to the 1977 World University Games title.

The U.S. team, which has won eight of nine Pan Am basketball tournaments, deserves its role as a heavy Pan Am favorite, Crum said.

"But anyone who thinks there are no good teams out there doesn't understand the caliber of the world teams," he said.

In practice, Crum's two major goals have been improving defensive skills and creating a fast-breaking unit from players accustomed to a slower pace.

Leading the Pan Am team is 7-foot-1 center David Robinson, who finished his college career at Navy as the NCAA's leading shot blocker and No. 10 all-time scorer. After the Games, the No. 1 pick in last month's NBA draft will return to his two-year Naval assignment at Kings Bay Submarine Base in St. Mary's, Ga.

Robinson is the only U.S. player who has completed his NCAA eligibility. Players such as Indiana's Dean Garrett, also a member of the Pan Am squad, expect to be better next year for having worked with Robinson this summer.

"Being on the same floor with guys like David Robinson is impressive," Garrett said. "You can't do the same moves against David Robinson. Playing with him every day, twice a day, will help me when Big Ten starts. Not everybody can learn from the No. 1 player in the nation."

Foster says OSU made illegal deal

DALLAS (UPI) — Melvin Foster, the top high school football recruit in Texas last year, has told the NCAA a former Oklahoma State assistant promised several perks and to "take care of me" if he attended the school, The Dallas Times Herald reported in a copyright story Sunday.

"If I had gone to Oklahoma State, I would've been able to make myself a deal," Foster told the newspaper.

Among the offers made by assistant Willie Anderson, according to Foster, were plane tickets for Foster's mother and to pay for car repairs. The offers are apparent violations of NCAA recruiting regulations.

Anderson, now a sports agent in Edmond, Okla., said he did recruit Foster, a star linebacker out of Houston's Yates High School.

"As far as offering illegal inducements, I didn't do that," Anderson said. "I didn't say I'd take care of him. I sure in the hell didn't."

FOSTER, NOW A linebacker at Iowa, said Anderson began making overtures soon after he decided to sign with the Hawkeyes.

"When I said I was going to Iowa, Coach Anderson asked, 'What would it take for you to come to Oklahoma State?'" Foster said. "I said, 'Oh, I can name my price.' He said, 'Just tell me what would it take.'"

Foster said Anderson and Oklahoma State were determined to sign enough top Texas high school players "so they can beat Oklahoma," a Big Eight rival.

The NCAA earlier this week said it was conducting a preliminary investigation of recruiting in Oklahoma State's football program.

Anderson, who was fired last year as an assistant and recruiting coordinator at Oklahoma State, said he refused a request last month to talk with NCAA investigators.

Nebraska defensive end Broderick Thomas, a 1985 standout recruit from Houston's Madison High School, said he was interviewed recently by the NCAA and also told investigators Anderson offered him improper inducements to sign.

"They offered a lot of cars and money," Thomas said. "They offered everything under the sun."

U.S. Open delayed by Carner's bogey

EDISON, N.J. (UPI) — JoAnne Carner made her first bogey of the day on the final hole Monday to drop into a tie with Ayako Okamoto and Laura Davies and create the need for a three-way playoff in the U.S. Open.

The first Open championship to be extended to Tuesday, and the first involving three women, is scheduled to begin at 8 a.m. at the Fairmount Country Club.

A slimmed-down Carner was set to become the oldest U.S. Open champion in history at 48. After sinking a 5-foot birdie putt on the 17th, she needed only a par on the final hole to set a women's course record of 68 and capture her third Open crown. But she three-putted from about 25 feet, missing the second putt from eight feet.

THIS DROPPED HER TO 3-under-par 69 for the day and 3-under 285 for 72 holes. Davies, who is scheduled to begin defense of her British Open crown Thursday, closed with a 71 and Okamoto shot 72.

"I looked at that putt too long and the longer I looked the slower it got and I rapped it by," Carner said of her first putt on No. 18. "I probably should have chipped, but I was too nervous."

"I can go one more round for the Open."

Betsy King, with a 71, and Jody Rosenthal, with a 72, tied for fourth place at 289 as none of the other women in the original field of 153 bettered par.

Carner, at 48 years, three months and 23 days, is almost eight years older than Fay Crocker when she won the Open in 1955. Raymond Floyd was the oldest man to win the Open, doing so last year at 43.

CARNER, WHO HAS LOST 50 pounds in 14 months, also has a chance to tie the record of Bobby Jones by winning a ninth U.S. Golf Association championship. Her last Open title came in a 1976 playoff, and she also won five Amateur crowns and a girls junior championship.

Davies, the longest hitter among the women, lipped the cup with her birdie putt on the 17th hole that would have given her the championship.

"I had good expectations but nothing like this," the 23-year-old Briton said.

Okamoto, the third-round leader by one shot over Davies, gave away what would have been the first major championship of her career. Three birdies on the first six holes enabled her to build her advantage to three shots over Carner and Davies after eight holes.

However, she lost it all when she double bogeyed the ninth hole, four-putting from 35 feet while Davies picked up a birdie.

Another birdie on the 10th hole put the 38-year-old Japanese in front again, but she three-putted the 13th hole from three feet for a bogey.

Carner, meantime, reacting to the intense pressure by playing up to and entertaining an adoring gallery, birdied the first, fourth, 15th and 17th holes to take the lead.

LE SAND DES BETES & EYES WITHOUT A FACE
Le Sand des Bêtes/Eyes without a Face (1949/1950) Lyricism and death, poetry and terror all are united in these two stunning films directed by Georges Franju. Beginning with pleasant views of a Paris suburb, luring the spectator into a sense of comfortable familiarity as the camera observes a patch of wasteland, a block of apartments, a flea market with its waste strewn beneath a grey sky, Le Sand des Bêtes thrums eyes through the forbidding portals of a slaughterhouse and watches wide-eyed at (in Jean-Luc Godard's words) "in the bleeding flesh dripping down the screen." Eyes without a Face, a plastic surgeon—responsible for the disfigurement of his daughter's face—resolves to give her new one by abducting young girls and grafting their faces onto hers.
