Warships, aircraft headed for Gulf

U.S. orders helicopters to start mine-sweeping

From DI Wire Services

WASHINGTON — Eight U.S. Navy mine-sweeping helicopters have been ordered to the Persian Gulf to ensure that Navy-escorted convoys of reflagged Kuwaiti tankers will steam through waters free of underwater explosives, Pentagon officials said Wednesday.

The RH-53 choppers will be put on the helicopter carrier USS Guadalcanal, an assault ship that will have about 600 Marines aboard, the officials said. The helicopters and the carrier will link up at the Indian Ocean island of Diego Garcia and will go from there to the gulf region, they said.

But no decision has been made to send the 602-foot Guadalcanal into the gulf because there is "a lot of concern" about bottling up a ship of that size in those restricted waters, where the only exit is through the narrow Strait of Hormuz — Silk Worm Alley — where Iran has threatened to deploy Silk Worm missiles.

IF THE GUADALCANAL does enter the gulf, it would mean 600 lightly armed Marines with helicopter assault capability would be in the waterway. Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger issued the order Tuesday night to dispatch the helicopters from their base at Norfolk, Va., aboard C-5 transport planes to Diego Garcia, where they will go aboard the Guadalcanal, the officials said. Each C-5 can carry two of the huge Sikorsky RH-53s.

The 11,000-ton Guadalcanal was ordered detached from three other ships of a Marine amphibious unit in the northern Arabian Sea for training exercises and directed to proceed to Diego Garcia, which is several steaming days away from the gulf, the officials said, speaking on condition they not be identified.

Weinberger's order dispatching the helicopters to the gulf was sent amid grave concern by the Navy that its escort ships will be she-

France sends 4 vessels to positions off Oman

By Stanley Meisler
Los Angeles Times

PARIS — The French government, embroiled in its diplomatic crisis with Iran, ordered an aircraft carrier and three other ships Wednesday to head toward the Middle East to protect French interests and demonstrate "firmness."

Premier Jacques Chirac told reporters that France "has no aggressive intent but wants to be respected and will do everything to make sure that it is respected." He said that the decision to send the ships "was not a dramatic one" but "a demonstration of firmness."

Asked whether there was any hope for a speedy solution to the quarrel with Iran over its refusal to allow an Iranian listed as an embassy interpreter to be questioned by the French, Chirac said, "I would like it, but I am not ready to accept the least bit of blackmail."

THE ANNOUNCEMENT of the impending departure of the ships was made after a Cabinet meeting and a brief private discussion between President Francois Mitter-

Ambrisco to abstain on towing contract

By James Cahoy
The Daily Iowan

Iowa City Mayor William Ambrisco announced Wednesday he will abstain from a vote on Iowa City's towing contract in August in order to avoid "any appearance of impropriety."

But Ambrisco strongly denied implications that he had a conflict of interest because the insurance company which he co-owns, Welt-Ambrisco Insurance Inc., does business with Holiday Wrecker and Crane Service, 211 10th St., Coralville, one of two companies bidding for the contract.

"This suggestion that there is a conflict of interest is a bunch of hogwash," Ambrisco said. "We have insured this account since 1980, and whether or not they get the contract will not affect their premiums with us at all."

Earlier this week, Dale Gerot, owner of Iowa City Wrecker, 1222 Gilbert Court — the only other company bidding for the city contract — said Ambrisco might be guilty of a conflict of interest if he took part in the vote over who will be given the towing contract.

BUT AMBRISCO said Iowa City Attorney Terrence Timmins had informed him Tuesday there would be no conflict of interest if he voted on the contract. Timmins was unavailable for comment Wednesday.

"I think he (Gerot) owes me an apology for the ridiculousness of that statement," Ambrisco said. "I've always tried to serve the people of this city fairly, and now I have to deal with this sort of garbage."

Councilor Darrel Courtney agreed that Ambrisco had been wronged in the controversy.

"I think if anybody had bothered to check on the letter of the law, they would have found out there was no conflict of interest," Courtney said. "It may have been implied, but legally there was no conflict whatsoever."

Gerot declined comment Wednesday about Ambrisco's statement and about the contract bids.

Star Wars keeps arms talks stalled

By John A. Callcott
United Press International

GENEVA — The Soviet Union Wednesday formally presented a draft treaty proposal at the Geneva arms talks that would ban Star Wars anti-missile systems from space and limit research on them to laboratories on Earth.

American delegates immediately said there was nothing new in the proposal and that Moscow still linked an end to the space-based U.S. Strategic Defense Initiative to any cuts in offensive long-range nuclear weapons.

U.S. space arms negotiator Henry Cooper said the Soviets had suggested "little that is new" from Moscow's position when the arms talks first began March 12, 1985.

"Over and above detail, it is important for the public to understand that the big picture has not changed," Cooper said at a news conference.

"WE ARE DISAPPOINTED that the Soviet Union continues to hold 50 percent reductions in strategic offensive nuclear arms hostage to stopping the U.S. SDI program," he said.

President Ronald Reagan has repeatedly declared the SDI program is non-negotiable.

But Soviet negotiator Alexei Obukhov made it clear that Moscow was not about to separate the two issues.

Obukhov said the proposals would prevent deployment of weapons in space by maintaining the 1972 Anti-Ballistic Missile treaty. He also linked the draft treaty to U.S. proposals for 50 percent reductions in long-range strategic nuclear weapons.

"There is an indivisible and inherent interrelationship between reductions in strategic offensive arms and limitation of ABM systems," he told a news conference after meeting U.S. delegates.

"IF EITHER SIDE proceeds with practical development of an ABM system ... the other side will be

'Football Express' planned for Ames

By Craig Sterrett
The Daily Iowan

Years ago, college football fans piled onto trains destined for away games to cheer on their gridiron heroes.

Now, for the first time in years, football fans will have the opportunity to travel by train to see this fall's football game between Iowa and Iowa State.

Sponsored by the Iowa Association of Railroad Passengers and local radio station KRNA FM, "The Football 400 Express" will carry 675 passengers to the Sept. 19 matchup in Ames at a cost of $49.50 a ticket.

The trip also serves an economic purpose as the association and the radio station are trying to show Amtrak the economic feasibility of having a route through central Iowa.

The train will leave Chicago and arrive in Cedar Rapids about 9:30 a.m. on game day. From there it will travel to Ames and finally to Boone.

"This trip is a non-profit organization — it is just to promote railway travel and have a good time," KRNA FM Operations Manager Rob Norton said. "Our main goal is to impress people with Amtrak and the radio station."

Fans will ride in luxury on the double-deck, 12-car Amtrak Superliner, which will probably include a lounge car and a dining car, Norton said.

Seats on the trip are going fast and fans are showing a lot of interest, Norton said. The average age of people buying tickets so far has been about 26.

"A blending of crazy people would be nice to give the party maximum impact," Norton said.

The train will use the Chicago and Northwestern Railway, one of the busiest freight lines in Iowa, which Amtrak recently considered for regular passenger service.

Iowa has not had a central passenger route since 1966, when Rock Island Railroad Inc. stopped running passenger trains on the rail

Debt leads to shooting

DES MOINES — A fatal shooting on Des Moines' south side Monday night was the result of an unsuccessful attempt to collect on a debt, police said Wednesday.

Police said Robert Wallace was shot and killed after he had gone to the home of Michael Nichol to retrieve money he believed was owed to him from a traffic accident.

Nichol, 37, confessed to the shooting, but no charges were filed and the case was expected to be turned over to a grand jury. Nichol contended he shot Wallace in self-defense, but police said there is no indication Wallace was armed.

Iowan gets life sentence

DES MOINES — A Polk County judge has sentenced a Des Moines man to a mandatory life prison sentence in the shooting death of a man who allegedly shotchanged him in a drug deal.

Judge Anthony Critelli imposed the sentence Tuesday on Charles Edward Robinson, 40, who was convicted of first-degree murder and attempted murder last month in the Jan. 20 death of Joseph Coon and the wounding of Mario Burkhalter, who was staying in Coon's north-side home. Prosecutors described Robinson, as a cold-blooded drug dealer.

Alcohol linked to drowning

DES MOINES — A University of Minnesota student presumed drowned in Saylorville Lake this week had been drinking alcohol before the accident occurred, Polk County Sheriff's officials said Wednesday.

Joseph Paul Hans, 27, who was staying with his parents in Des Moines during summer vacation from the university, fell into the water about 4 a.m. Tuesday when the boat he was driving lurched on the way to a dock.

A passenger, Dane Alberty of Des Moines, also was thrown from the boat but was able to swim to safety.

Alberty told sheriff's deputies he and Hans had been drinking beer and wine while driving around the lake. Officials said they found alcohol containers in the boat.

2 named to infant panel

DES MOINES — Two Iowans will be sworn in Thursday as members of a new national commission formed to examine ways to reduce infant mortality in the United States.

The Iowans named to the panel include Rep. Tom Tauke, who will serve as one of four congressional representatives on the 15-member National Commission To Prevent Infant Mortality, and Herman Hein, pediatrics professor at the UI and director of the Iowa perinatal care program.

Pot found in car crash

FORT MADISON, Iowa — A Fort Dodge, Iowa, man who survived an automobile accident in Lee County that killed his friend was jailed Wednesday on drug charges.

Sheriff Don Arnold said Steven Groat, 26, was charged with possession of marijuana with intent to deliver after deputies searched the demolished car of Joseph Halligan, 32, of Fort Dodge, who was killed in an accident that occurred around 2 a.m. Tuesday on Highway 218 in Donelson, Iowa.

Arnold said deputies found nearly four pounds of marijuana, scales and other drug paraphernalia and nearly $16,750 in the back seat of the car.

'Lefties' more creative

CEDAR FALLS — Left-handed people are likely to be more creative and physically coordinated than their right-handed counterparts, but also more inclined to be alcoholic, aggressive and even suicidal, a University of Northern Iowa professor said Wednesday.

Marketing professor Dennis Clayton said studies have shown "lefties," who make up 10 percent of the U.S. population, excel in arts, sciences and sports. But he said their creative drive also may lead to aggression that could generate violent tendencies.

New pension bill enables workers to transfer funds

DUBUQUE — Instead of losing retirement benefits when they switch jobs, workers would be allowed to take their pension plans with them, under a bill approved by a House panel this week.

Rep. Tom Tauke, R-Iowa, the bill's sponsor, said the measure approved by the House Education and Labor Committee will address a serious lack of pension coverage for the nation's workers by adapting pension laws to the increasing mobility of the work force.

"Far too many workers rely on Social Security alone for their retirement security, so this legislation offers incentives to both employers and employees to make better plans," he said.

"The bill meets the challenge of a rapidly changing workforce characterized by frequent job transfers and a growing number of small businesses," he added.

THE LEGISLATION approved by the panel Tuesday is based on the concept of "pension portability" which offers a new approach to the way pension benefits are earned, he said.

Currently, workers accrue retirement benefits within plans offered by employers, but their pension contribution; are not transferable to other plans when workers change jobs.

The National Bureau of Economic Research estimates that a worker who changed jobs once at age 31 would lose 28 percent of his or her pension value, Tauke said.

"Considering that the average worker changes jobs more than six times, the pension value lost by Americans is staggering," he said.

Many workers ask for refunds of their pension contributions.

and thus abandon all retirement benefits. Research suggests the refund usually is spent immediately and not invested for retirement, he said.

UNDER A "portable pension," however, workers could apply years of service and earnings to one, continuous career plan which they could carry with them from job to job, Tauke said.

The bill allows workers to contribute money to a simplified employee pension fund managed by someone other than the employer, such as a bank, trust company, or fund manager, Tauke said.

"In addition to portability, the plan would relieve companies of the burden of managing pension plans and give employees a better opportunity to direct their own investments," Tauke said.

Iowa City Mayor William Ambrisco withdrew a civil suit Monday that he filed against an Iowa City man in Johnson County District Court in September 1986.

Ambrisco and his 21-year old son, Daniel Ambrisco, both of 6 N. Mt. Vernon Drive, filed a suit against Daniel Alberhasky, 47, of 300 Bjaysville Lane for damages and medical expenses incurred after Alberhasky allegedly discharged a firearm that resulted in Daniel Ambrisco colliding with another vehicle on Aug. 3, 1986, according to court records.

Daniel Ambrisco alleged that he was parked in an area about 500 yards from 100 Bjaysville Lane on the evening of Aug. 3, 1986, with a female friend when Alberhasky approached in an all-terrain vehicle and asked why they were there, according to court records.

Ambrisco claimed he told Alberhasky that he had permission from a former classmate to be in the area and following the conversation, Alberhasky discharged a firearm either into the ground or in the air, according to court records.

After hearing the gunfire, Ambrisco left the area "as fast as possible" and accidentally hit a 1973 Volkswagen while trying to avoid another vehicle blocking the entrance to the area, according to court records.

The Volkswagen belonged to Paul Hauser and Valerie Cool-Hauser of 100 Bjaysville Lane, Johnson County Sixth District Court Judge Bruce Goddard ruled in Dec. 1986 that Daniel Ambrisco owed the Hausers $200 for damages to their vehicle.

The case was dismissed with prejudice, which means it was handled outside of the court system, according to court records.

Two Coralville residents were charged with assault in Johnson County District Court Wednesday after an alleged domestic dispute at their residence.

Leanne Kelly, 25, and Daniel Thomas Worden, 34, both of 710 Fifth Ave. Place in Coralville, were both charged with assault after they were allegedly fighting with each other at their residence Wednesday, according to court records.

Kelly reportedly suffered scratches and a wrist injury during the incident, according to court records.

Two Iowa City police officers were acquitted Monday of charges of using excessive force in U.S. District Court in Davenport Monday.

Iowa City Police Detective Gerald Knock and Police Officer

Charles Singleton were accused by Joe Grant, address unlisted, of using excessive force when they arrested him during the 1982 UI Homecoming parade.

Grant sought $15,000 in compensatory damages and an undetermined amount in punitive damages.

Grant was allegedly marching in front of a float for then Iowa gubernatorial candidate Roxanne Conlin and protesting her candidacy when arrested.

Grant alleged that Knock threw him on the ground and choked him. Grant was later convicted of interference with official acts following the incident, according to court records.

Report: A poster display of a Mason City Globe Gazette newspaper featuring the plane crash deaths of rock stars Buddy Holly and Ritchie Valens was reported stolen Wednesday from a display case in front of the Astro Theater, 212 E. Washington St., according to police reports.

The glass covering the case was reported broken, according to the report.

Report: A 10-speed bicycle valued at about $700 was reported stolen Tuesday from the Ordinary Bike Shop, 215 N. Linn St., according to police reports.

A man in the store allegedly said he was taking the bike for a test ride and the bike was reported stolen when he failed to return after four hours, according to the report.

Library Foundation raises $275,000

The Iowa City Public Library Foundation has raised $275,000 of the $375,000 needed to match the $125,000 National Endowment for Humanities Challenge Grant awarded to the library last December.

The challenge grant is given by the National Endowment for the Humanities to an organization on the stipulation that that organization raise a certain amount of money in order to receive the full amount of the grant.

The Library Foundation has already received the first third of the grant award and will receive the second third on Oct. 1. The foundation plans to raise $100,000 in cash and pledges during the next 12 months in order to receive the final portion of the grant by October of 1988.

The National Endowment for the Humanities Challenge Grant is part of the 10-year campaign for a $1 billion endowment by 1996.

Service held for Iowa City woman

Merchants cash in on North

By Franc Contreras
The Daily Iowan

Lt. Col. Oliver North's star-spangled testimony during the Iran-Contra hearings made him a national hero in the eyes of many Americans. Now video companies, T-shirt makers and a book publisher are capitalizing on the former House aide's sudden popularity.

Two videocassettes featuring segments of North's testimony are available nationally this week. "Taking the Stand," a $5.95 paperback with transcripts from the hearings, is already on sale in Iowa City bookstores.

"Lt. Oliver North: His Story, Cable News Network of the Iran-Contra Hearings," was released last week by Forum Home Video. The video focuses on North's six days of testimony during the hearings. It sells for $24.95 and is hosted by CNN Newscaster Bernard Shaw.

THE OTHER VIDEO, "Oliver North: Memo to History," will be available in stores Friday, according to officials at MPI Home Video. It will sell for $19.95 and is described as a "Cliff's Notes version" of the hearings. North and other key witnesses make appearances during the 90-minute production.

Iowa City video merchants are not carrying the CNN video yet, but one video store manager said it could be ordered.

The 735-page "Taking the Stand" is already cashing in on the enormous amount of publicity generated by North's testimony, according to Iowa City bookstore clerks.

"It could make the Top 20 list of best-sellers in a week or two," Lynette Nerad, a clerk at B. Dalton Bookseller, Old Capitol Center, said. "Overall, it's one of our best-sellers right now."

NERAD SAID she has received a number of requests for the book, which hit local bookstore shelves a week ago.

"I imagine it will be popular for a while, and it could be a collector's item someday," Nerad added.

While some book buyers said it was "incredible" that the North testimony was already available, others were not so enthusiastic about the paperback.

"It seems overdone," one shopper who declined to be identified, said. "I've already seen too much of it on television, and it was in most of the major news magazines. I might have bought it otherwise, but only if I knew North wouldn't get any royalties."

Iowa City convenience stores are also carrying the North book, but it is not selling well.

"NOBODY'S BOUGHT either of our two copies yet," QuickTrip Assistant Manager Mark Gard said. "It's probably too boring. After all, it's straight transcripts from the hearings."

Ollie books and videos are not the only items attempting to cash in on North's notoriety. Clothing manufacturers are taking a shot, too.

North T-shirts are available in two different styles for $10.95 at the Strawberry Patch in the Old Capitol Center. One style pictures North in a characteristic pose — his right hand raised as he swears to tell the truth to the Iran-Contra committees.

The other shirt shows the colonel in front of an American flag, his eyes cast upward in a solemn manner. The caption states: Oliver North's America.

N. Liberty gets doctor after 20 years

By Lisa Legge
The Daily Iowan

North Liberty, Iowa, has its very own doctor.

Family Practice Specialist Cheryl Johnson will see patients beginning Aug. 3 at the North Liberty Family Health Centre.

The city of approximately 2,500 people has not had a general practice physician in more than 20 years, according to North Liberty

City Clerk Mary Kae Yordi.

"The people in North Liberty are really excited. I've heard only positive comments," Yordi said. "It will be very convenient."

Johnson said being North Liberty's first physician will be a challenge.

"I'm real excited about being in a town that hasn't had a physician before," Johnson said. "This is a community that needs a physician."

In addition to her family practice, Johnson will be on the staff of Mercy Hospital in Iowa City. Her practice includes care for expectant mothers and delivery of babies.

"In this community the opportunity to do family deliveries is still there," Johnson said.

An Iowa City native and West High School graduate, Johnson completed a Family Practice Residency at the UI in June.

Johnson earned her bachelor's degree in microbiology from the University of Kansas and graduated in 1984 from the UI College of Medicine. She lives in Iowa City with her husband, Kent Johnson, and her son, Andrew.

An open house will be held August 2 from 2 to 5 p.m. at the North Liberty Family Health Centre, 5 East Cherry.

North Liberty is 10 miles north of Iowa City on state highway 965.

Seafood vendor cries foul

By Joseph Levy
The Daily Iowan

An Iowa City businessman said Wednesday seafood vendors who operate out of trucks in Iowa City parking lots are stripping him of business.

Richard Haendel, co-owner of Goldie's Fresh Seafood, 922 Maiden Lane, said the mobile seafood vendors take away all of his business when they are in town and may be peddling unsafe products.

"On the days that (the vendors') shrimp comes in, my shrimp sales go almost to zero," Haendel said, adding the vendors have been cutting his shrimp sales by 25 to 35 percent for nearly two years.

Not having to be inspected or regulated helps the vendors, Haendel said. "They don't have the same overhead I do," he explained. "I don't think it's fair. I pay taxes, (the vendors don't) and they come in and undercut me."

He said he would not object to the vendors operating in Iowa City if they were obligated to adhere to the same regulations he must follow.

Health regulations — not just taxes — also concern Haendel. Seafood, he said, is particularly sensitive to spoilage.

"It's got to be kept properly," he said. "There may be bacteria in it that can cause people to be sick."

HE ADDED the vendors' scales are not inspected, and could possibly be inaccurate. "They may be shortchanging the people," he said.

Haendel sent a letter to the Iowa City Council earlier this month asking the city to look into ways to regulate and tax the transient vendors.

Iowa City Mayor William Ambrisco brought the letter to the attention of the council at its meeting this week.

Ambrisco said he was concerned about vendors taking customers away from area businesses.

"I don't like it," Ambrisco said. "I get a little upset about these people running into our community, taking revenue out and then moving on to the next community."

But the mayor added he is not concerned about those non-profit organizations which sell products door-to-door in Iowa City. "I have no quarrel with those people," he said.

Iowa City Manager Stephen Atkins told the council he would look into what could be done to regulate the vendors, both tax-wise and from a health standpoint.

'La Bamba' compromises and loses its soul

By Matthew Wills
 The Daily Iowan

In all its liberal earnestness, La Bamba tries hard to be much more than a biopic about '50s rocker Ritchie Valens. Yet, in its delicate balance between commercial acceptability and a statement about the success of a Chicano who went from migrant worker to pop sensation, La Bamba errs on the side of blandness. This is unfortunate, and ultimately rather depressing, because the film is one of the very few in recent years that even attempts to deal seriously with minorities in this country.

La Bamba tells the tale of Valens, born Ricardo Valenzuela, who made it to the top of the charts in 1959 at the age of 17. He died in a plane crash with Buddy Holly and J.P. "The Big Bopper" Richardson just outside of Clear Lake, Iowa, that same year. In an odd stroke of marketing, the Astro Theater has posted copies of the Mason City newspaper's report of the accident, immortalized in rock 'n' roll myth as "the day the music died" (actually it was transported to England).

WHILE MOST OF Valens' songs were fairly innocuous, teen idol numbers like his Top 10 hit "Donna," his true contribution to the evolution of rock was his version of a traditional Mexican folk ballad. "La Bamba," a buoyant rocker that's enjoying a much-deserved resurgence inspired by the film, introduced Latin influences to the hydra-headed genealogy of rock, influences that are manifest on the film's soundtrack. The film's original music is by Carlos Santana and Valens' songs are performed by Los Lobos.

Rock biopics are typically generic and La Bamba follows the requisite path of humble beginnings to discovery to stardom. Simply put, Valens is born to rock and as played by Lou Diamond Phillips, he's radiantly sure of himself. His only trouble is that he dreams about plane crashes, dreams which are represented by hauntingly beautiful slow motion scenes reminiscent of chance documentary footage. Otherwise, the kid is as boring and predictable as most 17-year-olds.

Lou Diamond Phillips as 1950s rock 'n' roll star Ritchie Valens in La Bamba, the story of how Valens rose from migrant worker to teen idol with three hit songs in eight months before his tragic death.

THE FILM'S strengths, then, come not from Valens, but his family. La Bamba, in fact, is at its best when it deals with his extended family, portrayed as a social source of community. Ne'er-do-well brother Bob struggles to both control himself and to maintain his Chicano heritage; he's the one who gets mad about Ritchie's enforced professional name change to something less obviously Mexican. Rosana

DeSoto stands out in the cast as Valens' mother, balancing several generations and initially managing her son's breakthrough.

La Bamba postulates the music as the great social moxie, a language all its own that all but a few intractable bourgeois understand. The film has to take this point of view. In attempting to "cross over" to different audiences — i.e. make it palatable to the white majority — La Bamba is a very nice, wholesome film. It speaks softly and carries no stick at all, which is its problem. It's too goody-two-shoes. Valens is practically a saint, while his brother is reformed by the end of the movie.

BECAUSE IT sidesteps the pertinent issues of racism and ethnicism that went along with the beginnings of rock, most notably when Valens wins over a bar full of rednecks with his music, La Bamba is like white bread. Writer-director Luis Valdez, whose Zoot Suit was deemed too Chicano to be successful, has learned to tow the line and to water down his films.

Commercial success, like Valens' name change, can only occur with a whitewashing of identity. This is the tragedy of La Bamba, which must compromise so much that it loses its soul.

Jazz legend Carter set for career milestone

Benny Carter

By Leonard Feather
 The Los Angeles Times

Heavy schedules are not unusual for traveling musicians; after all, they expect their lives to be fairly hectic. But how many of them will turn 80 next weekend?

Benny Carter, the alto saxophonist, composer, arranger, trumpeter, educator and bandleader, will mark that milestone Aug. 8. He will no doubt continue to amaze admirers who, 10 years ago, could not believe his level of activity at age 70. Moreover, it is widely accepted that he is playing better today than ever.

Today, Bennett Lester Carter has reached what might be called a milestone-a-minute stage of his career. The plaques, honorary doctorates and poll victory symbols are almost running out of space in his trophy room. His birthday will be officially proclaimed as "Benny Carter Day" in Los Angeles.

HIS PLACE IN 20th century music was best summed up in 1972 by the caption under a photo of him in the Saturday Evening Post. It read, "Benny Carter, World's Greatest Living Jazz Artist, Any Instrument."

The Carter images are multifarious. Above and beyond his reputation as the pre-eminent alto saxmaster, he has among his songwriting credits such abiding works as the ballads "Blues in My Heart," "Lonely Woman," "Key Largo," "Nightfall" and "Melancholy Lullaby," as well as the perennial "When Lights Are Low" (recorded by Miles Davis, Tony Bennett, George Shearing, Sarah Vaughan and some 60 others).

As a bandleader, Carter was admired for the precision of his ensembles and the beauty of his writing, particularly for the saxophone section, as well as for his ability to select promising young instrumentalists. At one time or another, his sidemen have included Miles Davis, Teddy Wilson, Dizzy Gillespie, Max Roach and Ben Webster, to name a few.

A PIONEER IN reverse integration, he had Art Pepper, Buddy

Rich and Paul Cohen in the band in the early 1940s. In the 1930s, Carter led his own bands, one of which was the world's first interracial and international orchestra.

He is the only jazz musician whose achievements have had to be documented in a two-volume work, Benny Carter: A Life in American Music, written just before the death of its author, Morroe Berger, includes a discography, filmography and lists by artist and title the hundreds of recordings of Carter works; listing the artists who have not played or sung his music would have been a far simpler task.

Once Bill Berry, then playing trumpet with Carter in Japan, asked him, "Benny, what is the secret of success?" Carter thought for a moment, then gave a one-word answer — "Survive."

ON THE OTHER hand, Carter recently said, "During a recent tour, I received this tremendous ovation one night and I said to myself, 'Why should anyone get this just for survival?' That's not what we're selling. We're offering music to the public, some of whom may never have heard of Benny Carter. Maybe some of them feel it's possibly their last chance to see me, but I'm certainly not planning it that way."

He accepts only those jobs that interest him and can command a healthy price. He has formed a 10-piece band to tour Japan almost every year since 1977. He still enjoys the academic life and is considering offers from several universities, among them a week of clinics at Harvard next spring.

Kurtz quips brighten battle of the sexes

By David Streitfeld
 Washington Post

Mantalk by Irma Kurtz; Morrow-Beech Tree; (192 pp.)

Irma Kurtz shoots from the lip:

"A man and a woman have one important thing in common at the start of a romance: they are both in love with him."

"(We keep hearing that men should be more emotional, by which it is meant they should respond to challenge or criticism as brainlessly as many women do.)"

"After the first delirium, marriage becomes a battle between two egos. Generally, his takes a bigger beating, because he had more to begin with."

"Inventive love-making is similar to any other form of charm — a little goes a long way, and when it has gone its way, there's not much left."

TAKE THAT, guys and gals. In the battle of the sexes, Irma Kurtz admits no hostages. With quips as refreshing as a beaker of chablis poured over your head, she examines why men think this way, women act that way and why staying in love is only slightly easier than gun-running to the Contras.

Mantalk, Kurtz's collection of notes from the front lines, is curiously subtitled "A Book for Women Only." If that weren't enough to make the average man shy away from totting it up to the cash register, it's packaged in hot pink. He'd be more likely to buy a nurse romance.

That's unfortunate, because Kurtz appears to be one of the few correspondents of love without an ax to grind. There's no pseudo-scientific research in this book, no misleading interviews with clumps of lonely lads or angry lasses, nothing except the brisk and occasionally brutal observations gathered by Kurtz's 30 years in the trenches and her work as the "Agony" columnist for Cosmopolitan.

NOR IS ANY strident central point being made. Kurtz describes the territory, not reshapes it to meet a thesis. In a way, that's as much of a relief as her wit. Male-female relationships have become hot news again — and nearly everyone has the same thesis.

Times with titles like Why Can't Men Open Up?, Women Who Love Too Much, Men Who Hate Women and the Women

Who Love Them, Smart Women, Foolish Choices and The Love Crisis: Hit-and-Run Lovers, Jugglers, Sexual Stingies, Unreliables, Kinkies and Other Typical Men Today have been selling hundreds of thousands of copies. They all assert that men today are not measuring up, are misogynistic, cause women psychological pain because they act as if they hate them, have a difficult time expressing their feelings or are just plain creepy.

At the same time, there's been a rise in the number of newspaper articles insisting the "new man" — remember, he acted just like Alan Alda or Phil Donahue — is not only a myth, but females thought he was too wimpy anyway. In both cases, the message is clear — women are women, but men are little boys.

SOMETIMES, IF YOU read this material closely, it's hard to see any rigorous argument being made. Most of these books and articles are written from emotion, not fact. But why bother looking for the facts in such a complex, personal, intangible issue?

A further problem is that the writers mining this territory are forced to deal in generalities. You'd never catch them saying "blacks are ..." or "Italians are ..." but they'll blithely toss off phrases like "the vast majority of American men today are confused, angry, stressed, and downright uncertain."

Irma Kurtz, if not offering any answers either, at least has a sense of how difficult — if not actually illusory — the whole concept of reconciliation between the sexes is. She knows that compromise is not always efficient or fair.

"(C)OMPROMISE IS hard to define," Kurtz writes, "when, say, he wants to live at the South Pole and she wants to be near her mother at the North Pole. What does compromise mean then? Presumably, that they live at the equator. Or that one of them 'compromises' by living where the other wants to be."

Men and women, she says, have never gotten along especially well. Any lasting relationship is an extended truce at best. Happy endings are a myth brought on by an abundance of childhood cartoons, sitcoms, fairy tales and refined sugar. This is no one's fault — the sexes just think differently, so they have contrasting expectations, goals, schemes and Saturday night plans.

Least this seem too depressing, Kurtz points out that it's also what makes the game interesting. "It is difference ... that produces progress and it is friction that produces excitement."

Chaos Rx: Go see one man's lunacy

By Alex Wilding-White
 The Daily Iowan

For the next three weeks, Iowa City will be a very different place than what it has been for the last two months. For many, it will be a maddening time for registering for classes, buying books, finding a place to live and/or moving belongings into a new residence. Not a whole lot of fun, but what's got to be done has got to be done.

In the midst of this chaotic state of affairs, it would definitely help to take a night off and take in some top-quality comedy from one of the best in the business. Such an opportunity will happen Aug. 12-13 as one of Iowa's prodigal sons, Jim Turner, will bring his one-man brand of lunacy to Gabe's Oasis, 330 E. Washington St.

A MEMBER OF the comedy troupe Duck's Breath Mystery Theatre (which formed in Iowa and is a big favorite locally), Turner is a master at creating characters that are as absurd as they are believable. Rande of the Redwoods, a satirical '60s hippie burnout; Tommy the Polynesian, a tacky Hawaiian; and Sterling Dal Zall, a congressional hopeful with a slightly different set of merits, are but a few of the crazies Turner pulls out of his bottomless bag of tricks. If, as Steve Allen once commented, creating characters "is the major leagues of comedy," Turner is a contender for Most Valuable Player honors.

Phillip Elwood, a critic for The San Francisco Examiner, once wrote, "Turner is a certified crazy, swapping costumes throughout his routine, affecting new characters every time his back is turned, reciting outrageous limericks and, at one point, playing the roles of both dogs in a fight, one of (which) is on a leash, too."

Jim Turner

UNLIKE DUCK'S Breath partner Merle Kessler, whose character Ian Shoales has reached a nationwide audience through his "I gotta go" monologues for TV and radio, Turner concentrates primarily on the quirks of human nature, only bringing in politics and culture where appropriate. To people he becomes as those his audience can readily identify, twisted versions of the more colorful characters we all experience at one time or another.

To warm up for his short string of solo dates, Turner will make an appearance as the guest VJ (as Rande of the Redwoods) on MTV next Tuesday night. Included in the appearance will be a recently produced video by Duck's Breath done to their song "Either Way Is Fine With Me" from their forthcoming Born To Be Tiled LP.

Bill passed to avert financial crisis

WASHINGTON — Congress, trying to escape a financial "crisis of confidence," passed a bill Wednesday to extend the debt limit for eight days so the government can borrow more money while lawmakers work on a long-term solution to the debt problem.

Key senators also reached agreement on a long-term debt limit bill to include controversial provisions to revamp the budget process. Debate is expected today.

A days-old dispute over complexities of those provisions has kept the debt extension plan bottled up in the Senate, with Treasury officials warning of government default if lawmakers do not act.

"I hope that no one underestimates the damage that could be done to the prestige of the government and the financial markets if we fail to pass this," Rep. Butler Derrick, D-S.C., said during House debate on the short-term debt measure.

'Lesion' removed from Reagan's nose

WASHINGTON — President Ronald Reagan, who weathered two previous bouts with skin cancer, had "a small lesion" removed from the tip of his nose Wednesday in what the White House described as a routine medical procedure.

White House physician John Hutton made the disclosure in a written statement issued after the procedure had been conducted under local anesthetic and said the tissue would be "submitted for standard microscopic examination."

"This is a very common procedure, which is performed on many people who have had extended exposure to sunlight over the years," Hutton said. "The procedure was routine and went very smoothly. The president is in excellent health."

Distraught man kills 3 of his children

PHOENIX — A father apparently distraught over separation from his wife shot and killed three of his four children after wounding their mother Wednesday, then turned the weapon on himself, police said.

Jesus DeLeon Castorena, 36, was in critical condition with a gunshot wound in the head at St. Joseph's Medical Center following six hours of surgery.

Police were called to the home at 3:40 a.m. MST after Castorena's wife, Jovita, 34, fled to a neighbor's house with her fourth child and telephoned for help.

Castorena apparently shot the other three children and himself just before officers reached the scene, police Sgt. Andy Anderson said.

Shuttle critic forced out of NASA job

SPACE CENTER, Houston — Astronaut John Young, a frequent critic of shuttle safety policies, says he was forced to give up his job as chief astronaut, but a top NASA official Wednesday defended the management change.

In his first public comment on the issue since his transfer to a new post in April, Young told The Orlando Sentinel that he suspects his removal as chief of the astronaut office was triggered in part by his sharp public criticism of NASA safety policies after the Challenger disaster.

"They just called me in one day and said I had a week to make up my mind whether I wanted a new job, that it was a lateral transfer and I didn't have a choice," Young, 56, said in a Houston interview. "I said I'd like to think about it some and they said there was nothing to think about."

U.S. Navy admits accidental bombing

TOKYO — The U.S. Navy admitted Wednesday that American warplanes on exercises near Okinawa dropped dummy practice bombs on a Malaysian freighter, seriously injuring a sailor and crippling the ship.

The Navy "deeply regrets the accident and is conducting a full investigation of the circumstances," said the statement, issued in Tokyo by the combined command of U.S. Forces-Japan.

The 5,922-ton, Malaysian-registered Pomez Saga, with a crew of 21 Filipino seamen, reported being hit by a rocket off Okinawa island Monday night in what it called an attack by unidentified aircraft.

The ship, skippered by Eugenio B. Kampana, was en route from Taiwan to the Japanese port of Nagoya to pick up cargo.

China prepares for younger leaders

BEIJING — Chinese President Li Xiannian Wednesday told Japanese legislators he wants to step down from the ruling Politburo in October, according to Japanese sources.

Western diplomats said Li's disclosure sets the stage for the rise of younger leaders under the tutelage of Deng Xiaoping, the country's top leader.

They said Li's statement showed that Deng was outmaneuvering his opponents and succeeding in his efforts to shake up the five-man Politburo standing committee, China's highest decision-making body.

Deng, 82, had earlier indicated that he himself, while continuing to hold some posts, would retire from the standing committee at a crucial Communist Party Congress scheduled to be held in October. This was taken as a sign that Deng was attempting to force Li and the conservative economist, Chen Yun, out of the standing committee as well.

Blacks strike S. Africa for equal pay

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — Almost 34,000 black workers were on strike Wednesday in seven separate disputes with white employers and a black miners' union said another 200,000 were ready to stay off the job for better wages.

The strikes appeared to follow a trend of increased worker challenges to the authority of white employers and against wages for blacks that are generally about a third of the earnings of white workers.

Black miners' union leader Cyril Ramaphosa told reporters Wednesday a wage strike involving 200,000 blacks at 45 gold and coal mines "could take place any day now." He said employers would be given 24 hours notice of the strike, which was approved by more than 90 percent of union members in balloting this month.

Filipino urges debtor nations to unite

MANILA, Philippines — A Philippine senator Wednesday called for creation of a worldwide debtors' cartel to allow Third World borrowers to "speak with a single voice" in seeking solutions to their huge foreign debts.

Sen. Teofisto Guingona said the country was struggling under "the bondage of indebtedness," unable to finance its economic recovery because of staggering debt payments.

"Let our foreign creditors continue to treat us with disdain and indifference, mainly because we struggle alone, we bargain alone," Guingona said on the second day of business for the newly reconstituted Philippine Congress.

He called on the government to "initiate a movement that will unite all those nations overburdened with a debt problem in a single organization that will seek solutions . . . and speak with a single voice."

Reagan pressures Senators

Asks for Bork to be evaluated 'on his merits'

By Norman D. Sandler
United Press International

WASHINGTON — President Ronald Reagan exhorted the Senate Wednesday to evaluate Supreme Court nominee Robert Bork "on his merits" and, with his confirmation in doubt, ranked the conservative jurist among the legal likes of Brandeis and Frankfurter.

"No man in America and few in our history have been as qualified to sit on the Supreme Court as Robert Bork," Reagan declared in a speech to a group of state and local law enforcement officers from around the country.

Tying the nomination to a theme of law and order, Reagan sought to exert pressure on the Senate, where some Democrats oppose Bork on grounds his presence would tip the ideological balance of the high court for years to come.

A COLUMBIA University Law Review study released Monday found Bork to be far more conservative than Reagan's average nominee to the federal bench, with a record marked by "an apparently inconsistent application of judicial restraint."

"The average Reagan judge may be within the Republican mainstream," the study observed, "but the president's nomination of a man with Judge Bork's record to the nation's highest court can only fuel the current debate about judicial extremism."

But Reagan, in his first substantive defense of the nomination he announced July 1, rebutted such criticism by noting the Supreme Court has never reversed an appeals court decision written or supported by Bork.

"That's a vote of confidence any judge in America would envy," he asserted.

Reagan also pointed out that Lewis Powell, the retired justice Bork would succeed, "agreed with Bork" in nine of 10 of those Supreme Court reviews.

U.S.S.R. sentences Chernobyl workers

CHERNOBYL, USSR (UPI) — A Soviet court, harshly condemning the chronic laxity and abuses that caused the world's worst civilian nuclear disaster, Wednesday sentenced six former employees of the Chernobyl atomic power facility to spend up to 10 years in labor camps.

After the verdicts, Soviet officials said there would be at least three more trials which could reach much higher levels in government and industry.

Presiding Judge Raymond Brize cited discipline so lax that workers were allowed to play cards and dominoes while the nuclear facility's four massive graphite reactors hummed away virtually unattended. The disclosures raised disturbing questions about the safety of the country's 16 other atomic power stations.

The April 26, 1986, disaster left at least 31 people dead and 237 hospitalized with radiation sickness.

Former plant director Viktor Bukhanov and two other men received the maximum penalty of 10 years at labor, while the other three received five, three and two years at labor.

All sentences were under a regular labor regime that means the six will be permitted to have regular visitors and mail and a more substantial diet.

2 men charged in beheading death

READING, Pa. (UPI) — A teenager and his 22-year-old companion were charged Wednesday with beheading a robbery victim with a kitchen knife and scrawling a message in his blood, evoking a scene from a recently televised horror movie.

The older suspect, John Calvaresi, of Reading, Pa., was arrested in a wooded area in nearby Alsace Township at about 3:15 p.m., four hours after he became the target of a massive police manhunt, Reading police Sgt. John George said.

Earlier in the day, police filed murder charges against Michael Boettlin Jr., 16, who they said looked on while Stanley Detweiler, 42, of Reading, was beheaded.

Police believe the suspects killed Detweiler after breaking into his apartment to commit a burglary, George said.

Detweiler's headless body was discovered Saturday by his roommate on the floor of their apartment. The head was lying beside the body and the word "redrum" — "murder" spelled backward — was written on a wall in the victim's blood.

India and Sri Lanka sign pact

By Jonathan S. Landay
United Press International

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka — India and Sri Lanka signed an accord Wednesday designed to end the civil war by Tamil rebels, and Sinhalese mobs opposed to the pact stormed police stations and burned buildings in an explosion of anti-government violence.

Officials said at least 15 people died and more than 60 were injured. Unconfirmed reports put the countrywide death total at between 35 and 40 people.

At least 34 people have died in two days of rioting by Sinhalese who fear the peace pact to end the four-year insurgency will lead to a partition of the lush island off southern India into Tamil and Sinhalese regions.

WEDNESDAY'S violence, the worst civil unrest since 1983, erupted in the morning before Indian Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi flew into Colombo to sign the accord with President Junius Jayewardene and continued throughout the day.

A senior security source later told United Press International Jayewardene had asked for Indian peace-keeping troops to be deployed in war-torn northern Jaffna peninsula to help enforce a cease-fire that is to go into effect Friday under the accord.

The source said Gandhi had agreed and a battalion of Indian troops — about 1,000 men — and support units would be flown Thursday morning from southern India to Jaffna's military airfield at Palali.

The source declined to reveal deployment plans and official confirmation was unavailable.

THE ACCORD, which would give greater autonomy to the two provinces where most of the Tamil minority live, makes India the guarantor for the rebels and provides for the deployment of Indian peace-keeping troops if Jayewardene deems them necessary to maintain peace.

The largest rebel group, The Liberation Tigers of Tamil Eelam, or LTTE, has refused to accept the accord.

Ghandi told a news conference the LTTE was concerned over a requirement that it first surrender its arms within 72 hours of the start of the cease-fire before army troops would return to their barracks.

But if the group surrenders arms to Indian troops, who could then guarantee safety, that might convince the LTTE to accept the accord.

Jayewardene and Gandhi expressed confidence the accord would be implemented, with the president brushing off opposition within his Cabinet and vowing to dissolve Parliament and call new elections if the legislature refuses to ratify the accord on Aug. 18.

Dome will host pope, football within 24 hours

By Joe A. Gyan Jr.
United Press International

NEW ORLEANS — The Louisiana Superdome will host the pope, a college football clash and the New Orleans Saints 1987 debut in a 24-hour period in September, but officials of the world's largest indoor arena see no problems.

"I think we're pretty well geared up for it," said Bill Curl, vice president of marketing and public relations for the Superdome. "We're obviously keeping a close eye on it."

The Dome agenda for Saturday, Sept. 12, includes a massive rally that is expected to draw up to 73,000 youths and Pope John Paul II between 11:45 a.m. and 1:30 p.m., and Tulane's home opener against Iowa State at 7:30 p.m. before an estimated crowd of 70,000.

"It's too bad they're (Tulane) not playing Notre Dame that night," Curl said.

"It's going to be an interesting combination," Jeff Seal, Tulane's sports information director, said.

The Saints then host the Cleveland Browns at noon Sunday, Sept. 13.

"IT'LL BE A GREAT WEEKEND — for the city and the Superdome," Curl said.

"It'll be a long day for our security people, but I'm sure they can hack it. We'll have no problems getting the football game off on schedule."

Curl said preparations for the hectic weekend began about 18 months ago when the Archdiocese of New Orleans learned the pontiff was considering making the Crescent City part of his nine-city U.S. tour.

"We've been in virtually dozens of meetings already," Curl said. "It consumes a lot of time, but it's time well spent. These things never get to be routine, but drastic changes are not new to us and big events are not new to us."

"THE REAL KEY TO THE THING was the cooperation of the Tulane people," Curl said.

Some of that cooperation involved Tulane moving back the starting time of the Iowa State game from 7 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. to accommodate the Dome's transformation.

Tulane and its opposition normally work out in the Superdome the night before each game, but because papal preparations will be underway, the teams will take their acts to the Tulane campus for pre-game drills, he said.

Seal said the pope should be out of the Dome by 1:30 p.m., and both teams will arrive about four hours later. The entire stadium will be cleared before the squads arrive, he said.

"That's not a problem because we'll be dealing with youth groups and they'll be chaperoned," Curl said.

The pontiff's trip also has caused problems for Iowa State fans, he said.

"Iowa State's travel and hotel plans were made long ago, but I understand their fans are having trouble finding rooms," he said, adding Iowa State faithful are being forced to lodge as far away as Baton Rouge and Biloxi, Miss., each about 70 miles from New Orleans.

Maynards wait for special day in NFL history

ROCKLIN, Calif. (UPI) — Scott Maynard, a free agent wide receiver with the San Francisco 49ers, will fulfill two dreams Aug. 8 when he makes his professional football debut and his father, New York Jets great Don Maynard, is inducted into the Hall of Fame.

The 49ers open the NFL's preseason schedule when they meet the Kansas City Chiefs in the Hall of Fame game at Canton, Ohio. The game will follow this year's induction ceremonies.

"It's going to be a very exciting time in my life," the younger Maynard said. "I'm getting an opportunity to play in my first professional game, and my father is getting inducted into the Hall of Fame. Being there is going to mean a lot to me."

Unlike his more famous father, Scott has not found an easy road to the NFL. During his senior year at Texas-El Paso, he injured his knee and was not drafted by an NFL team. He spent last season as a coach at Eastern New Mexico.

"I DIDN'T GET my shot in college," the 22-year-old said. "Things just did not go smoothly for me. But while I was coaching I was catching the ball, running routes and working out with the guys. A number of scouts came around to see our players including Billy Atkins (the 49ers scout for the Southwest). We talked and he said 'Hey, you got to do it now, if you're going to do it, while you're young and motivated.'"

Maynard's chances of making the 49ers, who already have Jerry Rice, Mike Wilson, Dwight Clark and John Taylor, were made even slimmer when the team traded for Johnny "Lam" Jones and signed free agent Tony Hill.

"I'm just trying to do the best I can," said Maynard, 5-foot-11, 185 pounds. "I'm not trying to live up to anyone else's expectations. I'm learning a great deal every day, but it certainly is easier to tell a player to do it, than when you have to do it yourself."

Maynard said he learned a great deal by watching films of his father.

"He was very good," Maynard said of his father. "I don't remember much about his playing days, but I have had an opportunity over the last few years to watch him on film. He could catch, and he could run like a rabbit."

Kuester could gain more eligibility

By Scott Wingert
The Daily Iowan

Iowa baseball player John Kuester, his eligibility thought to be extinguished last spring, may receive an additional year to play for the Hawkeyes under the provisions of the NCAA hardship clause.

Kuester, who originally went to Kentucky after graduating from high school in Norway, Iowa, in 1983, pitched only one inning for the Wildcats (against Western Michigan at a spring game in Lakeland, Fla.) before a seriously strained rotator cuff ended his sophomore season.

He then transferred to Muscatine Community College, assuming he still had his second year from Kentucky. Shortly after joining the Hawkeyes the following season, Kuester was informed by Iowa baseball Coach Duane Banks he only had one year of eligibility left.

"APPARENTLY THE necessary paperwork never left Kentucky," John's father Gerald Kuester said. "There's some backtracking to do, but we're confident he can get his last year back."

"It's really Kentucky's fault," John Kuester said after a summer league game at Watkins. "From here, it (the redshirt) is looking pretty good. I know I'd like to be back."

The NCAA hardship provision which Kuester seeks reinstatement from requires a student-athlete be incapacitated resulting from injury of illness under the following conditions: (1) to have occurred during the first four years at a four year institution and (2) if the student-athlete has not participated in more than 20% of the completed contests in that sport and not participated in more than two of the institution's completed events in that sport, whichever is greater, providing the injury or illness occurred in the first half of the season and resulted in incapacity to compete for the rest of the season.

KUESTER BATTED .348 for the Hawkeyes last season and drilled four consecutive home runs in the weekend finale against Minnesota to propel Iowa into the Big Ten playoffs for the first time since 1983. At Norway, Kuester posted an incredible 51-0 pitching record.

While at Kentucky his freshman season, Kuester earned a 2-0 mark while pitching only nine innings. He was also a juco all-American during his season at Muscatine.

The reinstatement process was actually begun by Cornell baseball Coach John Schwiebert, who tried to recruit Kuester out of high school. He had followed Kuester's career and was surprised to read in the newspaper this spring that Kuester had played his final season at Iowa.

"He's the kind of kid I would travel around the world for if I thought I could get him another year," Schwiebert said. "I don't think anyone down there (Iowa) has even tried to get him what's coming to him."

Banks, noting the situation as an administrative matter being handled by Assistant Athletic Director Fred Mims, said he welcomes the opportunity to have Kuester back.

"Sure we'd like to have him," Banks said. "We'll just have to wait and see if he gets his red-shirt."

Mims is on vacation and was unavailable for comment.

"One more year could be the difference between John signing a bonus with a major league club and having to walk on and try out," Schwiebert said. "And it's frustrating to see these people down at Iowa sitting on their butts and doing nothing to get him that year."

Angels edge A's; McGwire hits 37th

United Press International

OAKLAND, Calif. — Devon White drove in three runs and scored twice to spark the California Angels to a 5-4 victory over the Oakland A's.

Mark McGwire slugged his 37th home run in the fourth inning for the A's to tie the American League record for most home runs by a rookie. McGwire tied the mark originally set by Al Rosen of Cleveland in 1950. The major-league mark is 38, shared by Cincinnati's Frank Robinson (1956) and Boston's Wally Berger (1930).

DeWayne Buice combined on a four-hitter for the Angels. Steve Ontiveros, 5-5, who finished July 0-4 after a 5-0 June, took the loss.

Yankees 4, Royals 0

NEW YORK — Mike Pagliarulo broke a scoreless tie with a seventh-inning sacrifice fly and Mike Easler added a three-run double to lead the Yankees to a 4-0 victory over the Kansas City Royals.

Steve Trout, Tim Stoddard and Dave Righetti teamed for the shut-out. Trout worked the first six innings, allowing three hits in his most effective outing since joining the Yankees July 12.

Danny Jackson, 4-13, took the loss despite allowing only four hits in 7 1/2 innings.

Mariners 8, Twins 3

SEATTLE — Alvin Davis hit two two-run homers and left-hander Lee Guetterman picked up his ninth victory, guiding the Seattle Mariners to an 8-3 decision over the Minnesota Twins.

Davis hit his 12th and 13th homers of the season, both off starter Mike Smithson, 4-6. Mike Kingery added a solo home run in the eighth.

Seattle's Guetterman, 9-2, scattered 10 hits over eight innings.

Smith, a UI senior criminology major, both reach in vain for a softball which was hit off the bat of Kent Hanson, also from Dubuque.

Cowboys offer AIDS testing

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (UPI) — The Dallas Cowboys have become the first NFL team to offer voluntary AIDS testing to its players, and apparently most of them have consented to the procedure.

Team spokesman Doug Todd said Wednesday the testing is confidential under California state law, and the results must go directly to a designated physician, which in this case is Dr. J.R. Zamarano, a team doctor.

"The (AIDS) test is made available with the physicals, which are still going on," Todd said.

"The first round was with the rookies on July 19 (the date rookies reported to training camp). The first batch of veterans were tested last Sunday and the last bunch will be tested this Friday morning."

A SPOKESWOMAN FOR the National Football League Players Association said Wednesday the Cowboys are the first NFL team to test for AIDS.

About 95 percent of the veteran players who have reported to camp have agreed to be tested for AIDS, and about 80 percent of the rookies have been tested, the Dallas Times Herald reported Wednesday.

Todd said the test requires a consent form signed by the player before the training-camp physical. Acquired immune deficiency syndrome is a fatal affliction that destroys the body's ability to fight disease.

NFL teams were encouraged to conduct voluntary AIDS testing at a recent league meeting of trainers, the Dallas Times Herald reported. Zamarano said the team's medical staff met and decided to propose the testing plan to Cowboys president Tex Schramm.

THIS YEAR COWBOY doctors and trainers will be wearing rubber gloves when dealing with blood-related injuries. Members of the equipment staff will wear the gloves when handling bloody uniforms or equipment.

Larry Wansley, a counseling services director who will conduct an educational program about AIDS for the team, said NFL trainers recently learned about at least three confirmed cases of AIDS transmitted by bleeding. Zamarano said the players' response to the testing has been "phenomenal. I thought a lot more players would turn it down."

If a player is tested positive, Zamarano said he would call the player into his office, after which the player will receive counseling and treatment.

Former Washington Redskins tight end Jerry Smith died last year of the disease.

Webster, Vance lead Montreal stomp Chicago

United Press International

CHICAGO — Mitch Webster hit a two-run homer and Tim Wallace and Vance Law added solo shots to highlight a 15-hit attack that carried the Montreal Expos to an 11-3 victory over the Chicago Cubs at Wrigley Field.

Montreal hurler Bryn Smith did not allow a run in six innings of relief to raise his record to 7-4.

"We have been steadily improving since the season started," Montreal Manager Buck Rodgers said. "We might very well challenge somebody before this is over."

Smith scattered six hits over seven

National League

innings, allowing one run and no walks while striking out four. Randy St. Claire pitched the final two innings.

Smith was going for his first shutout in two seasons before running into trouble in the seventh inning.

"Here you have to stay out of the big inning," said Smith. "All our pitchers have done a great job of not walking people. We have an excellent defense, and if you are not walking people, it keeps every one ready."

Every Montreal starter collected at least one hit.

Braves 5, Astros 3

ATLANTA — Dale Murphy hit his 27th home run and Gerald Perry stole an Atlanta club record three bases Wednesday night to lead the Braves to a 5-3 victory over the Houston Astros.

Charlie Puleo, 4-3, surrendered seven hits over six innings to earn the triumph. Jeff Dedmon gave up two hits over 1 1/2 innings while Gene Garber went the last 1 1/2 innings to notch his 10th save.

Houston took a 1-0 lead in the first off Puleo when Billy Hatcher led off with a single, stole second, went to third on an error on catcher Bruce Benedict and scored on a single to center by Glenn Davis.

Evert, Shriver win at Federation Cup

By Graham Rockingham
United Press International

VANCOUVER, British Columbia — Chris Evert and Pam Shriver defeated unseeded France 3-0 with straight-sets victories in singles and doubles Wednesday to lift the defending-champion United States into the quarterfinals of the Federation Cup women's team tennis championship.

The triumph also assured the United States and the other seven quarterfinalists spots in the main draw of the 1988 Olympics.

In the first two upsets of the tournament, unseeded Canada beat the unseeded Soviets, 2-1, and Britain defeated seventh-seeded Italy, 2-1. Canada will meet second-seeded Czechoslovakia in the quarterfinals, and Britain faces the top-seeded Americans.

IN OTHER SECOND-ROUND play, second-seeded Czechoslovakia knocked out Yugoslavia 3-0; third-seeded West Germany, led by Steffi Graf, eliminated South Korea 3-0; fourth-seeded Bulgaria ousted Indonesia 2-1; fifth-seeded Australia defeated Spain 2-1; and sixth-seeded Argentina beat New Zealand 3-0.

Shriver, forced into singles competition when Martina Navratilova sprained her ankle last week, shut out France's Isabelle Demengeot in the first set. Demengeot, however, forced the second set into a tie-breaker, which Shriver, No. 5 in the world, won 7-5 for a 6-0, 7-6 victory.

Evert, No. 3 in the world, breezed through her match against the 31st-ranked Nathalie Tauziat, 6-1, 6-0.

THE AMERICAN PAIR then beat Demengeot and Catharine Suire in doubles, 6-1, 6-0.

The triumph moved the United States, which has won the Cup 12 times, to the quarterfinals for the 25th consecutive year. The only time the United States failed to advance past the quarterfinals was in 1973 when it was knocked out by West Germany, 3-0.

The Federation Cup, with a total prize money of $325,000, is particularly key this year, since it forms the draw for the 1988 Olympics at Seoul, South Korea.

The eight nations that advance to the Federation Cup quarterfinals receive automatic byes to the 32-nation main draw. Tennis is making its first appearance as a medal sport at the Olympics since 1924.

"The Olympics are a lifetime dream," said Shriver, a 25-year-old with almost $3 million in career winnings. "And if it had come five years from now, it would probably have been too late for me."

But Evert, who at 32 is considering retiring next year, declined to commit herself to joining Shriver in Seoul.

"I can't think that far ahead," said Evert, who has said she will make a decision about her career by the end of the year. "I haven't put that much thought into it because my retirement is still up in the air."

Wildcats will drop 6 sports

EVANSTON, Ill. (UPI) — Northwestern University will drop its track and cross country programs after the 1987-88 season, it was reported Wednesday.

A statement will be released today stating the Big Ten school will no longer participate in men's and women's cross country and track, indoor and outdoor, the Chicago Tribune quoted sources as saying.

Northwestern President Arnold R. Weber refused to comment on the report, but said "cutbacks will not be made" in the university's football or men's basketball programs.

Chris Evert
