Gulf helicopter crash kills 1

By Robert Gillette
Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — A Navy helicopter ferrying cargo and servicemen to American warships in the Persian Gulf crashed and sank on a routine mission Thursday, killing at least one person, the Department of Defense said.

A spokesman for the U.S. Central Command in Tampa, Fla., said five persons aboard the Navy SH-3G Sea King helicopter were rescued from the gulf, but that one passenger was confirmed dead and three others were missing. The helicopter attempted to land on the La Salle, the armed transport serving as flagship of the Middle East force escorting Kuwaiti tankers in the gulf.

"It was in fact an accident," the spokesman, Air Force Lt. Col. Chuck Manker, said. He added that there was "absolutely no reason to suspect" that the crash was the result of hostile action.

DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE officials said the Sea King helicopter was ferrying military passengers and cargo from shore facilities at Bahrain to the LaSalle when it crashed at 5:58 p.m. local time.

A Navy announcement said the Kidd, a guided missile destroyer operating near the LaSalle, immediately launched its small Sea Sprite patrol helicopter, which directed the two ships to the sinking aircraft.

Pentagon officials said they had no information on the condition of the five persons who were rescued. They would not say precisely where the accident occurred, apparently to avoid disclosing the location of the two U.S. ships. Identities of the nine passengers and crew were withheld pending notification of relatives.

The Navy will conduct an investigation into the cause of the accident, the officials said.

THE SH-3G IS A medium-sized transport helicopter made by the Sikorsky Aircraft Division of United Technologies Corp. The Navy said the crew was assigned to Helicopter Support Squadron 2, based in Norfolk, Va.

In Washington, Secretary of Defense Caspar W. Weinberger met Thursday with French Defense Minister Andre Giraud to discuss the situation in the gulf. Officials said the United States was also seeking cooperation from Britain, Italy, West Germany and the Netherlands in its escort mission.

Pentagon spokesman Robert Sims said that Weinberger made no specific request in his meeting with the French defense minister, but that the United States is "looking for cooperation from friends in the region and other friends who have the same interests we have."

IN THE GULF, a storm was reported to have delayed reloading of the Bridgeton, which sustained a 29-foot gash below its waterline when it struck a mine last Friday in a shipping channel that skirts the Iranian island of Farsi. Despite the damage, the Bridgeton is to

Officials continue hunt for head

By Scott Hauser

The 2-month-old search for a new UI president has attracted more than 200 applications so far — a pace search officials said this week is on schedule.

"We're still at the information-gathering stage," UI communications studies professor and chair of the UI's 17-member campus search committee Samuel Becker said.

"At this stage of the search, in effect, we're acting like consultants to the search firm," Becker said.

The state Board of Regents appointed the committee in May to work with the Chicago firm of Heidrick and Struggles to locate candidates interested in the office of chief executive officer of the UI.

Former UI President James O. Freedman officially stepped down as UI president July 1 to take the position of president of Dartmouth College in Hanover, N.H., where he was inaugurated July 19.

THE CAMPUS committee will narrow the list of presidential aspirants to a handful of candidates for the regents to consider.

The board makes the final selection of a new president.

"I think we're making reasonable progress," regents President Marvin Pomerantz said, adding the search firm has received more than 200 applications.

At its April meeting, the board, presided over by former regents President John McDonald, set a goal of October 1987 to select a new UI president. However, Pomerantz — who was elected board president in May when two other new members took their appointments to the board — said the search has no firm deadline.

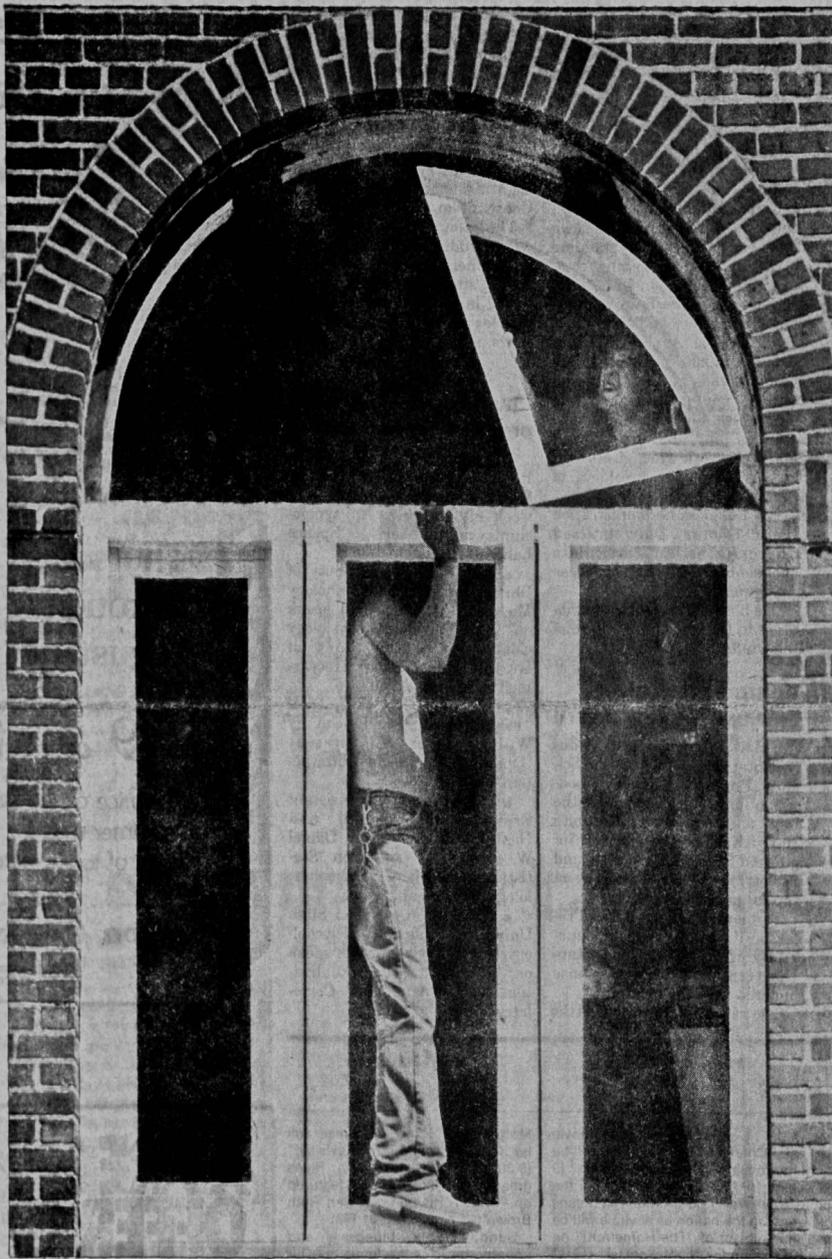

"I just don't think you can cast it in stone," he said. "The important thing is that the board feels — and all those involved feel — we have the best possible candidates."

BECKER AGREED, saying the committee is less concerned about the number of candidates than the quality of candidates.

"I'm sure the Board of Regents is just as concerned as we are that it's more important we get the best possible candidates than it is to get done in October or November," he said.

No independent firm was hired during the 18-month search for Freedman — a search which ran from 1980 when former UI President Willard Boyd stepped down.

500 students set to receive diplomas

By John Bartenhagen
The Daily Iowan

About 500 UI students will officially end at least part of their educational careers today and tonight at Hancher Auditorium as the UI honors and graduates the summer class of 1987 with commencement and convocation ceremonies.

Because several hundred relatives and friends of graduating students were unable to attend last summer's ceremonies due to an unexpectedly large turnout, UI officials have scheduled two separate commencements this year. Commencement for graduate and professional students will begin at 2 p.m. and the ceremony for undergraduate students will begin at 8 p.m.

UI Interim President Richard D. Remington will give his first graduation address in that position.

UI Vice President of Educational Development and Research Duane C. Spriestersbach, who has missed only one UI commencement since 1965, will be master of ceremonies this year. Although he has played many roles in these ceremonies, including one semester as an interim president, he said the tradition of graduation remains special to him.

"THESE ARE always impressive ceremonies," he said. "They represent a very important rite of passage for the graduates. I think ceremony has a place — otherwise our lives would be so bland and mundane, and I think the graduating students are starting to believe that, too."

Spriestersbach said the number of students attending the ceremonies has steadily increased over the years. Jean Lawrence, administrative assistant to the UI registrar, said she expects about 470 students to actually attend the ceremonies, down from 530 students last year. The large number of graduates attending last year was unusual, she said, adding the percentage of graduating students attending this year is still higher than in 1985.

End of July creates moving chaos

By Ed Heigler
The Daily Iowan

It's confusion for property owners. It's a hassle for tenants. It means sore backs, cleaning fluid-scented hands and sweat.

Hundreds of apartment leases expire today in Iowa City, causing many people to move.

The scenario is the same for many. "It's chaos," UI senior Amy Weaver said. "It's all empty boxes. I can't figure out how to take my stereo apart to get it to my new apartment. We have a rug doctor sitting in the middle of the room and I don't know how to set it up."

"The heat is unbearable, and I can't wait to go out and get a beer," Weaver added.

UI junior John Gengler is not going to let his move worry him too much.

"I've thought about moving," he said. "I've got a truck so I'm going to just throw things in the back of the truck and go."

THE CHANGEOVER IS chaotic for property managers as well.

"In the apartments with a majority of students, you have a very high turnover rate," said Renee Demand, resident manager of Emerald Court and Westgate Villa in Iowa City and Scotsdale Apartments in Coralville. "Just the night of July 31, 50 or 54 people are moving overnight."

Of the 37 people vacating Iowa City's Seville Apartments today, 32 are students, Manager Tracy Hauser said.

"It gets to be hectic with all the people coming in and coming out," Hauser said.

In addition to the students working to clear and clean their apartments, apartment management crews ready the rooms for new tenants.

"WE'RE GOING TO BE up all night checking apartments, painting and seeing the apartments are ready for the next tenant," Demand said. "We really organized for it."

Penningroth Apartments Manager Mark Marme-Ruggeberg arranged for 40 apartments to change hands in the next two days. To make matters worse, the apartments are furnished so his employees must move lots of furniture in a little time.

"They're really suffering today in this weather," he said. "They're thanked very much by their manager."

The tangle of new leases and old ones worsens as the month ends.

"A majority of Iowa City gears towards July 31," Demand said, adding new leases often begin August 1 — leaving tenants in limbo for hours.

"Unfortunately some people have nowhere to stay that night," she said.

UI JUNIOR Matt Bush is caught in that predicament. Bush has to work July 31, the day his old lease expires and his new one begins. Two other parties are involved, each with leases expiring and one beginning that day.

Regan claims president not aware of deal

By Karen Tumulty

WASHINGTON — President Ronald Reagan "visibly was shook . . . and recoiled" when he was told that profits from U.S. arms sales to Iran had been diverted to Nicaragua's Contras, former White House chief of staff Donald Regan told Congress' Iran-Contra investigating committees Thursday.

Regan's shock upon hearing the news was so convincing, Regan testified, that "I'd give him an Academy Award" if the former actor was feigning surprise. Regan is expected to conclude his testimony today.

Regan's account, lauded by both Democrats and Republicans on the committees as candid and credible, reinforced the claim of John Poin-dexter, Reagan's former national security adviser, that the president knew nothing of the diversion of money to the Contras during the period when Congress had banned U.S. aid to the rebels.

THE CONGRESSIONAL investigators had made the president's knowledge of the diversion, which apparently was carried out in his name by White House aide Oliver North, into the central issue of their three months of hearings, which probably will end early next week.

As chief of staff for a president who did not involve himself in details, Regan was known for putting an iron grip on most aspects of White House operations. His testimony provided the committees with their first Oval Office perspective on the foreign policy disasters that plummeted the administration into its worst crisis.

In vivid, salty and often humorous detail, he described how the president became the victim of a frustrating "bait and switch" operation by the Iranians on whom he had pinned his hopes of opening a long-range relationship with the regime of the Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini and gaining the release of Americans held hostage by Iranian-backed terrorists in Lebanon.

REGAN RECALLED expressing his own impatience as early as February 1986, when the Iranians failed to secure the release of U.S. hostages after receiving their first direct shipment of 1,000 TOW anti-tank missiles from the United States.

"I told (Reagan) I thought we ought to break it off, that, you know, we'd been snookered again," Regan testified. "And how many times, you know, do we put up with this rug-merchant type of stuff?"

However, the administration was to be "led down the garden path," as Regan put it, four more times before public exposure last November forced the end of the secret arms sales.

The former chief of staff also expressed bitterness over his own unceremonious ouster from the White House last February. He made it clear that he believed he was the victim not of the presi-

Deere to cut 200 jobs

MOLINE, Ill. — As many as 200 workers at the John Deere Parts Distribution Center in Milan, Ill., may be bumped from their jobs because workers at a closing Deere foundry in Dubuque have greater seniority.

"This really is more of an internal union matter," Deere & Co. spokesman Robert Shoup said Wednesday.

"Many of the workers at the Dubuque plant have more seniority than those at plants here and by virtue of their seniority can bump those who work at other plants," he added.

In March 1986, Deere announced plans to phase out production and eventually close the Dubuque Foundry. Shoup said workers at the Dubuque plant had agreements in their contracts whereby they were eligible to take jobs of workers with less seniority at other Deere plants.

Prestley pleads guilty

MORRISON, Ill. — A rural Morrison man has pleaded innocent to murder charges in the July 12 slaying of his grandmother, who was found strangled to death in her bed at the Whiteside County Nursing Home.

Donald Prestley, 34, who is being held in the Whiteside County Jail in lieu of $500,000 bond, entered the innocent plea in Whiteside County Circuit Court Wednesday in the death of his grandmother Edith Doan, 91, Morrison.

Circuit Judge Martin Conway slated Prestley's trial on two counts of murder for Oct. 20. Prestley surrendered to authorities last Thursday, one day after authorities issued an arrest warrant identifying him and accusing him of the slaying.

Police to drop charges

MONMOUTH, Ill. — Warren County officials have decided not to prosecute a Monmouth man who beat a groundhog to death with a baseball bat in his yard.

William Martin, 34, told authorities Monday he had killed an animal that he had seen in the yard where his children were playing, but he did not know what kind of animal it was, police said.

An animal control officer removed the animal's body, and Martin later was cited for killing or injuring a wild animal and for having no hunting license. Groundhogs are protected under Illinois conservation laws.

Record cocaine bust

CHICAGO — Drug charges were to be filed today against three men detained by federal agents who seized 2 1/2 tons of Columbian cocaine stuffed in bananas and other fruit in a wholesale produce district.

Investigators said more than 5,000 pounds of cocaine were seized during the raid Wednesday, making it possibly the largest narcotics haul in Chicago history. Drug Enforcement Administration officials said the drugs had a wholesale value of $82 million and a street value of up to $250 million.

Charges were to be filed against the three men in custody and investigators were looking for three more men suspected in the smuggling operation.

IBP officials to speak

DAKOTA CITY, Neb. — IBP Inc. said Thursday company officials plan to reappear before a congressional subcommittee to answer allegations they lied during a previous hearing on worker injuries and illnesses.

Rep. Tom Lantos, D-Calif., chairman of the House subcommittee on housing and employment, has accused IBP Chairman Robert Peterson and other company officials of making false statements under oath to the subcommittee during a May 6 hearing.

Lantos said IBP officials gave false statements about injury and illness logs kept at the company's Dakota City plant during a hearing on allegations the company underreported employee injuries and illnesses.

After the hearing, Peterson informed Lantos the company got wrong information from subordinates.

School board head runs for re-election

Iowa City School Board President Randall Jordison filed papers Wednesday to run for re-election in the Sept. 8 school election, becoming the third board member to declare his candidacy.

"I think you can be a better board member in your second term on the board," said Jordison. "I also have several projects I would like to see completed."

Jordison joins board members Kathy Penningroth and Craig Gjerde in running in the election. They are all running for three-year terms.

The only board member up for election on Sept. 8 who has not declared his candidacy, David Woodruff, said he would not decide until today whether he would run again.

Four other Iowa City residents have filed for the three seats with three-year terms up in the Sept. 8 election. They are: Connie Champion, 430 S. Summit St.; Jay Christensen-Szlanski, 819 Wylde Green Road; Linda Dellsperger, 22 Wakefield Court; and Betsy Hawtrey, 715 S. Summit St.

One resident, Frances Malloy, 1013 Kirkwood Court, has filed to run for the one seat with a one-year term currently occupied by Woodruff.

UI Business College gives Schmidt Award receive the UI College of Business Administration's Oscar C. Schmidt Business Leadership Award.

James L. Churchill will receive the award at the Iowa Business Leadership Banquet at 7:30 p.m. Oct. 1 at the Highlander Supper Club.

Given annually by the college, the award recognizes an Iowa business person for outstanding corporate leadership and community accomplishments. The selection is made by a committee of UI faculty and alumni.

Rockwell's Avionics Group employs 5,200 persons at its Cedar Rapids headquarters and designs and produces aviation electronics for airline, general aviation and military aircraft markets worldwide. Churchill was appointed as president of the division in 1981.

UI Business Administration Dean George Daly praised Churchill as an "articulate spokesman for the business community."

"He has made a major contribution to the economic welfare of this state," Daly said.

UI professors given Law and Society award

UI Law Professor David Baldus and Statistics and Actuarial Science Professor George Woodworth have been awarded the Law and Society Association's Harry Kalven Prize for Distinguished Scholarship in Law and Society for their research on capital punishment.

Former UI College of Law Professor Charles Pulaski, currently with the Arizona State University Law School, was also honored with the award.

The trio's research provided the principal focus of the U. S. Supreme Court's recent decision in McCleskey vs. Kemp, in which Georgia's capital sentencing system was upheld against claims that it was applied in a racially discriminatory fashion in violation of the Fourteenth and Eighth Amendments of the U.S. Constitution.

The Baldus, Pulaski and Woodworth studies argued the capital punishment system was biased.

The studies have been published in a series of law review articles over the past seven years.

Students boost state jobless rate

By Bill Brewer
United Press International

DES MOINES — A flood of students and graduates into the job market pushed Iowa's unemployment rate up .4 percent last month to 4.5 percent of the workforce, state officials said Thursday.

Officials have the school students and graduates entering the labor market in June, it's not uncommon to have an increase until those people are absorbed into the labor force," Department of Employment Services analyst

Ann Wagner said. She noted 16,100 students and school employees began looking for jobs when schools closed for the summer last month.

Total unemployment in Iowa last month stood at 66,100 people, about 6,100 more than in May, but 28,000 fewer than in June 1986 when Iowa's jobless rate stood at 6.4 percent.

Adair County and the cities of Ames and Iowa City recorded the lowest jobless rates in Iowa, 1.8 percent.

THE STATE'S highest unemployment levels last month were in Waterloo, 7.8 percent; Sioux City, 7.5 percent; Ottumwa, 7.4 percent; and Lee County, 7.3 percent.

DES Director Richard Freeman said nearly 1.41 million Iowans held jobs in June, about 800 more than in May and 32,100 more than in June 1986. Most of the June increase stemmed from seasonal hiring of farm workers, he said.

Freeman said 1.1 million Iowans held non-agricultural jobs during June, nearly 2,800 fewer than in May, but 26,300 more than in June 1986.

He said seasonal employment declines in education were partially offset by increased hiring by manufacturing, construction, trade, finance, insurance and real estate companies.

Despite the layoffs of 340 workers when the Farmland Foods plant at Iowa Falls closed last month, manufacturing employment increased by nearly 1,500 people from May to June, DES officials said.

Since June 1986, manufacturing employment has increased by 6,800 people.

"That's encouraging because that sector was cold for several years," Wagner said.

She added nearly 8,000 more Iowans were working in service and trade industries last month compared to June 1986. Other large employment gains occurred in government, which has hired 5,700 new workers in the past year, and construction, which employs about 3,700 more Iowans than in June of 1986.

I.R.S. investigates Farm Aid Group may be forced to pay $74,000 in taxes

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI) — It will be up to the Internal Revenue Service to determine whether Farm Aid Inc. owes nearly $74,000 in unpaid sales taxes on ticket purchases, Gov. Kay Orr said Thursday.

Tax Commissioner Don Leuenberger said Farm Aid will have to pay $73,830 in tax on the approximately 69,000 tickets sold.

The tax was computed by applying the state's 4 percent sales tax and Lincoln's 1 1/2 percent sales tax to the ticket fee, then deducting 3 percent that Farm Aid Inc. may retain as a collection fee. Tickets were sold for $20 plus a 75-cent handling fee.

"The Farm Aid people are dealing with the Internal Revenue Service," Orr said at a news conference. "We'll hope they can be accommodated by the Internal Revenue Service."

LEUENBERGER SAID Farm Aid lawyer Joel Cherry of Atlanta has asked the IRS to exempt Farm Aid from sales tax liability, but the request has not been granted yet.

In considering the request, the IRS is expected to apply the "reasonable market value" test, Leuenberger said. The test involves the amount of money that a ticket-buyer can claim as a charitable deduction on his or her federal income tax return. Expenditures that can be claimed as true donations are not subject to sales tax, Leuenberger said.

The IRS will have to determine whether $20 is too much to spend "for 12 hours of entertainment with entertainers of that reputation and quality" in setting the reasonable market value of a concert ticket, he said.

IF THE IRS decides that the reasonable market value of a Farm Aid ticket is $10 and the other $10 can be claimed as a charitable contribution, Farm Aid Inc. would owe sales taxes on only half the ticket sales total.

However, Leuenberger said the current view of IRS officials is that Farm Aid concertgoers are getting full value for their $20 expenditure and cannot claim all or any part of it as a charitable donation.

"Unless that position is changed, the sales tax is due and owing," he said.

Iowa woman found strangled

Police question male suspect in homicide

By Rod Boshart
United Press International

CARBON CLIFF, Ill. — Rock Island County law officers Thursday were questioning a suspect in the strangulation death of an Iowa woman whose body was found in a shallow grave by two men clearing brush from a wooded area.

"We have a suspect we're talking to," said Rock Island County Sheriff Gordy Powell, but he refused to identify the man because no charges yet had been filed in the death of Karen Ruth Wyckoff, 20, of Muscatine, Iowa.

The woman, who was unemployed and had recently moved to Iowa from North Carolina, had her hands tied behind her back when she was strangled with a bungee cord and buried last Saturday, Powell said.

Powell said he believed the woman was last seen in Iowa, but investigators were fairly certain the homicide took place in Illinois.

to serve some search warrants and take fingerprint samples later Thursday.

Wyckoff's clothed body was discovered Wednesday morning by two men who saw a hand protruding from the ground in a wooded area near the intersection of Illinois 5 and Colona Road Wednesday morning.

foul odor and began searching the area when his son emerged from the woods looking ill.

"Dad, I think I found a body down here and it looks like a child's hand. I'm sick. I don't think I can take this," the elder Yates said.

The men returned home and summoned authorities.

"You hear about (homicides) happening everywhere else, but not in your own backyard," Cecil Yates said. "This wasn't 250 yards from my house."

ISU fined for environmental infractions

AMES (UPI) — Iowa State University has been fined nearly $35,000 by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency for violating environmental laws, officials said Thursday.

Lou Mitchell, associate director of ISU's Environmental Health and Safety Office, said the alleged violations include improper burning at a waste incinerator, open burning of non-explosive waste and failure to monitor groundwater properly near a pesticide-disposal pit.

Mitchell said the EPA's charges are not supportable.

"I believe we can make a good case against all four allegations," he said. "I'm a bit surprised that they took the position they did, and I think they're being a bit unfair. We're going to stand our ground on this and see what kind of a decision can be reached."

ANNE ROWLAND, assistant legal counsel for the EPA's Region 7 office, which covers Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska and Missouri, said a November 1985 inspection at ISU found violations of environmental laws at four sites, the worst of those infractions being the lack of a groundwater monitor near a pesticide pit on the university's agronomy farm.

Morris Kay, administrator for Region 7, said the EPA will remain "open-minded" toward ISU until both sides have time to discuss the charges.

"We want to sit down with people from Iowa State and talk about what has happened and find out what their position is," he said. "They have a right to state their case."

He said the enforcement of the $35,000 penalty will be contingent upon ISU's willingness to correct the infractions and formulate a plan to prevent future violations.

"We're not out to get anyone — it's our job to see that rules are being followed," he said.

ISU has 30 days to respond to the charges, which were filed July 8.

Man denied appeal on mooning charge

By Julie Rutz
United Press International

DES MOINES — The Iowa Court of Appeals Thursday denied jobless benefits to a fired bakery worker who claimed he exposed his buttocks to co-workers because his boss suggested it.

The court, in a 3-0 decision, upheld a ruling by Woodbury County District Court Judge Richard Branco that Jeffrey Crane's actions amounted to misconduct.

Crane was fired from the Metz Baking Co. in Sioux City, Iowa, two days after he allegedly "partially mooned" fellow employees Feb. 4, 1985, court records said.

Crane claimed he only unbuttoned his pants and never acted in a lewd manner. He also said he should be entitled to unemployment benefits since a company foreman initially proposed the act.

HOWEVER, A Job Service of Iowa hearing officer last year ruled testimony from co-workers revealed substantial evidence Crane did expose himself.

In upholding the hearing officer's and Branco's rulings, the appeals judges said Crane's actions not only constituted misconduct but also threatened sanitation at the bakery.

"Metz is in the business of food preparation, which implicates the need for sanitation and the interest of the company in retaining a reputation for sanitary working conditions," Judge Maynard Hayden wrote. "Claimant's partial exposure of his buttocks raises obvious sanitation concerns."

Hayden noted court records showed Crane's action was directed toward female employees. He said the incident threatened the company's ability to keep a workplace free of acts that are "of a conceivable sexually harassing nature."

"We find the egregiousness of claimant's action in this case to be on a level with the misconduct in (vulgar language) cases. We conclude claimant's deliberate act was in violation or disregard of standards of behavior which Metz had the right to expect of employees," Hayden wrote.

In another case, the court ruled the city of Des Moines must pay jobless benefits to a former airport parking attendant who said harassment from ticketed motorists forced her to quit her job.

Yvonne Davis quit her job in October 1984 after taking a 45-day medical leave to be treated for stress she allegedly suffered.

City officials claimed Davis was not entitled to unemployment benefits because she voluntarily left her job and because Davis and her doctor failed to work with the city in finding a way to lessen her stress.

Star Wars folly

While American and Soviet negotiators seem to be making progress toward the elimination of short-range nuclear missiles from Europe and Asia, the Mexican standoff on long-range systems continues.

Soviet negotiator Alexei Obukhov, speaking recently in Geneva, Switzerland, cited the American development of the Star Wars program as an obstacle to any strategic arms reduction. The Soviets are understandably reluctant to curtail their missile stockpile while America develops a system that might reduce the effectiveness of or render impotent those weapons.

President Ronald Reagan is staunchly committed to the space defense system and anxious to push an arms agreement through before leaving office. Why the controversial Star Wars program is so indispensable to him is not hard to see. It seems to represent a "tough stance" in a sense, since the Soviets don't like it, and yet the only real sacrifice it requires is tax dollars — at least 1 trillion of them.

Some American strategists, among them Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger, seem to believe we can shatter Soviet will, bring them to heel at the bargaining table by outspending them, by exploiting our economic advantage. Perhaps this can be done, but the Star Wars system seems the least efficient outgrowth of this strategy. Many experts believe any defensive gains provided by Star Wars could be offset by the addition of Soviet offensive systems, at approximately one-tenth of the cost.

Many experts also contend space based defense systems will never work, that the technological problems involved are, in the foreseeable future, insurmountable. This seems especially plausible in light of the fact American launching capacity is presently almost nil in the wake of the Space Shuttle Challenger disaster. Whether it is workable or not, all the experts agree Star Wars will be extremely expensive. Given that such mundane systems as tanks and fighter planes now invariably cost the Pentagon far more than projected, the exotica of Star Wars is a defense contractor's dream come true. It seems a guaranteed hemorrhage on the treasury.

A trillion-dollar yard where his tears on the ranch. But the average t. of animal it was, elect how much money should be thrown at this problem, particularly when the Soviets are offering reductions in strategic armaments. Star Wars should not be the non-negotiable impediment.

Rust repercussions

Although it has been nearly two months since 19-year-old Mathias Rust flew from Finland and illegally landed in Moscow's tourist-filled Red Square, the repercussions from the flight are only now taking off and they may reach alarming heights.

Rust, a teenage pilot from West Germany, faces three separate charges for his high-flying antics. If convicted of all three — illegally entering the Soviet Union, entering Soviet airspace and malicious hooliganism — he could spend the next 18 years of his life in a Soviet prison.

When Rust flew his single-engine Cessna 172 into Soviet airspace, avoiding air detection but attracting an abundance of ground attention, Moscow was severely embarrassed and slightly incensed at the inefficiency of its armed forces. So much, in fact, Defense Minister Sergei Sokolov and his deputy in charge of Moscow's air defenses, Alexander Koldunov, were fired.

The fact that a slow, non-evasive Cessna, equipped with no radar-avoidance system piloted by a teenager, could fly into the heart of the Soviet capital undetected is barely credible. So, too, is the line the Soviets are handing him. Eighteen years in jail for a teenage prank? Obviously, the Soviets do not have the equivalent of the American saying, "Don't bite your nose off to spite your face."

Instead of taking this internationally embarrassing incident and settling it in a diplomatic manner, Moscow is bound and determined to draw unnecessary criticism and quite possibly runs the risk of nullifying some of the positive perceptions they have elicited from the West by Mikhail Gorbachev's "glasnost" policy.

To begin with, the most obvious point to consider in deciding what to do with this teenage "criminal" is just that — he is a teenager. Granted, not your average senior in high school, but he is only 19 years old. This is the age where many are held totally responsible for their actions while not always realizing the seriousness of those actions.

Secondly, Soviet airspace is said to be some of the most restricted airspace in the world. With Rust's landing in the heart of Moscow, the Soviets have been afforded a unique opportunity to improve their air defenses as a result of a surprise, non-military "invasion."

Thirdly, even if the Soviets decided to withdraw the charges against Rust, the young West German would already have paid his dues in terms of prison time. Rust has been in a Soviet prison cell for more than two months as a result of his prank. Even the thought of a two-month stint in a cell would sober most people, especially someone not even 20 years of age.

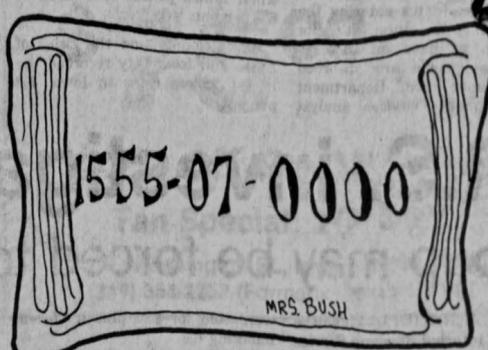

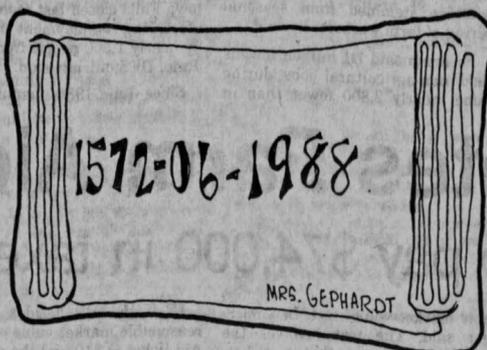

Yes, the Soviets have been embarrassed. But the incident provides an excellent opportunity for the Kremlin to show a little compassion for a kid who never intended any true harm. As Rust put it at the time of his arrest, he just "wanted to meet some people in Moscow."

Humes' predictions reveal all

One of the things that aids me the most in the dog-eat-dog, catch-as-catch-can, devil-take-the-hindmost, rough-and-tumble, overly-hyphenated world of column writing is that I have been granted extraordinary mental powers and abilities far beyond those of you who, unlike me, have not been visited by space aliens from distant galaxies, have not partaken of the sacred apricot of eternal wisdom from far away Mohenjo-Daro, have not learned to channel the free-flowing energies of the universe through their mere mortal frames and have not suffered several concussions but the headaches aren't as bad as they used to be, thank you.

For instance, I have the power to cloud men's minds. Unfortunately, this only works on the weekends, and using that sort of ability around here after Friday afternoon is a bit like gilding the lily if you ask me. More importantly, I have the ability to see the future. You doubt me; ah, I knew you would.

Michael Humes

(See!) Here, I'll submit to a test. I know that this sentence will not end with a period! I know that I won't have to write a column while the Bijou's projectionists are on vacation. I know that Scott Raab will be back in the fall, having undergone successful physical therapy to wipe the smirk off his face. And I know that fate of one Oliver North. Read on, gentle reader... if you dare!

• August 10, 1987 — Lt. Col. Oliver North unexpectedly appears on the U.S. Navy flag ship in the Persian Gulf, the USS Maple Malard. Asked by reporters the reason for his mission, North replies, "It's a sort of field test. After selling all those arms to the Iranians, I would like to see first-hand if they work."
• Sept. 2, 1987 — Las Vegas' first Oliver North impersonator, Sal

Mimeo of Jaywalk, Ind., appears at Silver Sucker casino. Mimeo performs a medley of songs that includes "On the Good Ship Ollipop," "Why Not Take Ollie Me?" "Ollie Ever Need is You" and "Shred Sails in the Sunset," and an original number, "Ayatollah!" set to the tune of the Broadway classic, "Oklahoma!"

Ayyyyatollah, who sets mines out bobbing in the sea.

And blood flows like tea, but a neat idea!

Undermined Iraq's security!

Ayyyyatollah, whose resentment blossomed into hate.

It'll sure be great when he grabs Kuwait.

Cuts off oil, brings Europe to its knees!

We've made our allies look like fools.

But the Contras got residuals!

And when we cry, "Peace!"

But war gets all the grease.

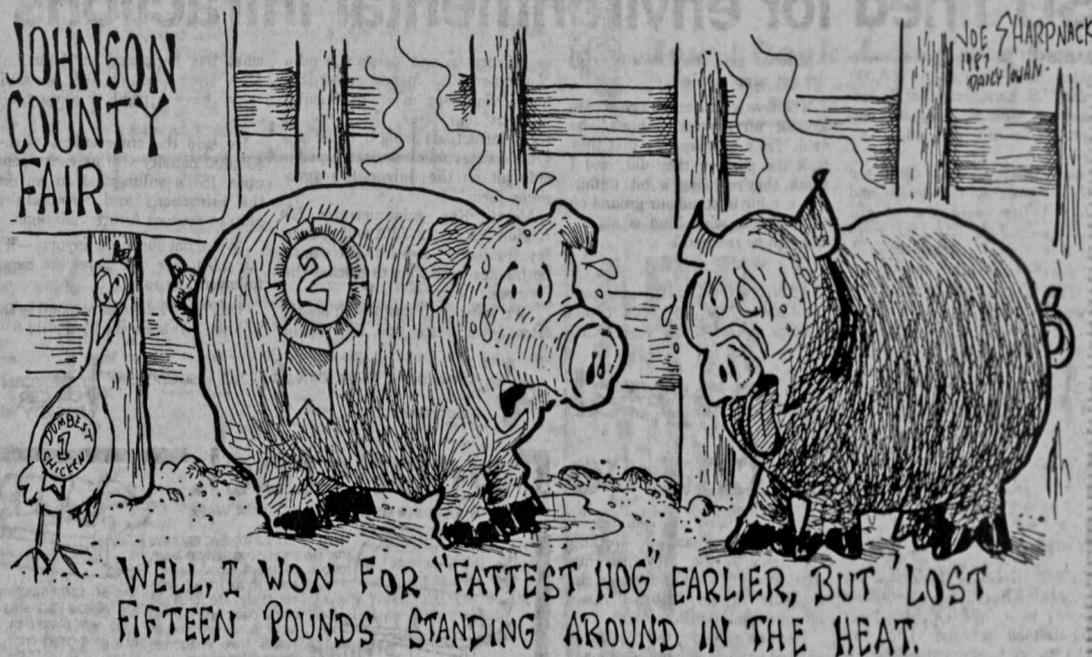

We're only saying, you're doing fine, Ayatollah!

Ayatollah... oh, Jeez!

• Sept. 19, 1987 — Vice President

George Bush creates a firestorm of controversy when he says he is "tired of people calling Ollie North a liar as if that was something negative. He may have lied to the Congress, to the president, to several high-ranking Cabinet officials and to the American people, but at least he told the truth to a sleazy Iranian arms merchant who had been stripped of his security clearance. He had to start someplace, didn't he? The truth is Colonel North combines the best qualities of a liar and a hero; he is, in fact, a liar of heroic proportions." Bush later apologizes for being "needlessly substantive."

• Oct. 1, 1987 — The Oliver North Story begins filming in Hollywood. In a surprise, Arnold "Conan the Kennedy" Schwarzenegger is beaten out for the title role by the comeback star of 1986, Dennis Hopper. When Hopper, heretofore famous for playing paranoid sociopaths, was asked what he could bring to the role of America's newest hero, he says "a ring of truth."

Letters

Student-run

To the Editor:

Thank you for the article on KRUI's new public affairs program. However, I believe some clarifications are necessary.

KRUI is staffed entirely by UI student volunteers who produce all programs that listeners hear on-air. Thus, the headline, "KRUI to air student-made public affairs radio show" is certainly no revelation and completely neglects the importance of this new show.

The program is written, produced and engineered by students outside of KRUI. It is the product of a new, unprecedented course in the School of Journalism and Mass Communication.

For the first time, students actually receive academic credit for their work with KRUI. That is what makes this show unique and that is what the headline should have focused on — not that KRUI is airing a "student-made" show. We've been doing that since 1952.

Ketchmark kudos

To the Editor:

My respect goes to Mike Ketch-mark for writing one of the best letters to the editor that I have seen in weeks. Ketchmark quotes a letter penned in 1780 at Valley Forge by the man who was to become the first president of the United States. Ketchmark then seems to draw a parallel between Ollie North and George Washington with the words, "Thank God we still have Americans like Col. Oliver North." Now, before you get upset and start writing letters to the editor, ask yourself a few questions. I suspect many readers failed to appreciate just how cleverly Ketchmark constructed his letter. It troubles me that his efforts may go unnoticed.

Ask yourself, for example, why he concludes his letter with this apparent likening of Ollie North and the Contras to George Washington and his band of rebels. Is he really suggesting that North is a modern-day George Washington?

Ask yourself, did George Washington shoot unarmed citizens in the head at point-blank range? Did he and his men suffer increased hardships and spill blood to establish the U.S. Constitution only so men like North, John Poindexter and President Ronald Reagan could make a mockery of the freedoms it promises?

Finally, ask yourself, does Ketchmark really believe Ollie North is an American hero? Does he actually expect us to view the Contras as modern-day minutemen? Hey, come on! We read The Daily Iowan! We know what's going on. I think it is pretty ironic Ketchmark was being ironic, don't you?

President ready for skin cancer operation

Ronald Reagan

By Helen Thomas
United Press International

WASHINGTON — President Ronald Reagan will undergo hospital treatment today for the first time for recurring skin cancer on his nose, the White House announced Thursday.

The president, wearing a small, flesh-colored bandage on his nose, said he feels fine and joked about the development, telling reporters, "My nose gets laughs all the time." White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater told reporters that a biopsy of the shaving of a "small lesion" taken from the tip of the president's nose Wednesday showed basal cell epithelioma in the tissue.

He said it was similar to the basal cell carcinoma that Reagan had

Reagan presses abortion battle

By Norman D. Sandler
United Press International

WASHINGTON — President Ronald Reagan, rallying the politically faithful, announced a series of steps Thursday to bar federally financed family planning programs from encouraging or advising pregnant women on the option of abortion.

In a move applauded by anti-abortion activists and denounced before the Senate Labor Committee, Reagan said the Department of Health and Human Services will tighten restrictions on 4,500 federally supported family planning centers.

While continuing to press for a constitutional amendment to prohibit abortion on demand, Reagan cited a need for "practical steps that we can take now, even before the battle for the human life amendment is won," to discourage abortion.

Rather than wait for requested changes in federal law to deny federal money to family planning centers that advocate or perform abortions, Reagan announced a series of regulatory revisions that could achieve almost the same result.

removed from his face on two previous occasions, in July and October 1985. Such cancers are considered minor and rarely spread.

"BASED ON these findings, the president will have a further excision on his nose," Fitzwater said.

Dermatologists independent of the White House said the better facilities available at the hospital probably influenced the decision to have the president go to the Bethesda Naval Hospital for the procedure.

This is the first time the president has had to go to the hospital for the treatment, which has been conducted previously in the White House doctor's office. Fitzwater said Reagan faces "a little different procedure" this time, since the "biopsy showed there were enough cells there that they would have to go deeper."

Reagan, 76, who underwent major surgery for colon cancer in July 1985, said he was no more concerned about the procedure today "than about any other tomorrow."

OVERALL, FITZWATER said, the president "feels great" and his health "is excellent."

Fitzwater said Reagan would go to the hospital late in the afternoon following a meeting with President Hadj Omar Bongo of Gabon.

Brush fire rages unchecked

1,500 battle wall of flame in California

By Cy Ryan
United Press International

WOODFORDS, Calif. — Six hundred firefighters joined the battle Thursday against a 6,000-acre Sierra wilderness fire that destroyed 27 houses, forced 250 people to flee and dropped ashes 30 miles north on Carson City, Nev.

Initial damage estimates ranged up to $4 million, fire officials said, and the flames spread from the 5,000-foot elevation to the 8,000-foot level in the scenic Sierras, engulfing tinder-dry pinions and brush. The new force of firefighters brought to 1,500 the number struggling against 30-mph winds and steep terrain to control the blaze, which knocked out power and telephone service and forced the closing of mountain highways.

"WE'RE THROWING in everything but the kitchen sink," Toiyabe National Forest ranger Greg Clark said.

Fire Boss John Russell said Thursday he had "no guess when it will be controlled. I can tell you it won't be contained today or tomorrow."

A Nevada Division of Forestry official said the fire was caused by "human negligence," such as a carelessly discarded cigarette or carelessly tended camp fire.

"It looks like nuclear war," said Lt. Stan Pope of the Douglas County Sheriff's Department. "It's a pretty awesome sight."

The $150,000 home of attorney George Abbott was engulfed by flames. "I wouldn't want to live there now anyway, now that the canyon is gone," he said sadly, reflecting on the charred chateau he owned for 15 years.

BUT TOM NAGEL, who lost his garage, a car and $60,000 worth of tools, refused to give up. "I guess I will buy some new hammers and start over," he said.

Authorities said one person had been missing but was accounted for and one firefighter suffered minor leg injuries.

Some 900 firefighters were pressed into service Wednesday after the fire started in Woodfords Canyon in Alpine County, California's least populated county near the Nevada line.

Smoke from the blaze could be seen 60 miles away in Reno, Nev. The fire was 25 miles south of the scenic Lake Tahoe resort, and ashes fell on Carson City, Nev.

"These winds and the steep terrain are hampering control efforts," said Lesley Foster of the Forest Service.

Ruth Summerfield said she fled for safety when a 200-foot wall of flame roared toward her home.

"I got out with my life; that's all that counts," Summerfield said.

Poll shows strong feelings on AIDS

By Robert Seibbrook
Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES — Many Americans are prepared to accept very strong measures to battle the mounting AIDS epidemic, and 42 percent say they believe that some civil liberties must be suspended in the effort, according to the Los Angeles Times Poll.

When asked "do you think some civil liberties must be suspended in the war on AIDS," 42 percent of respondents in the nationwide poll said yes, 38 percent said no and 19 percent were not sure.

Also, 68 percent said they favor criminal sanctions for people with AIDS who remain sexually active and 84 percent approved making it a crime for people in AIDS high-risk groups to donate blood. Both findings represent significant increases since the same questions were asked by the Times Poll in December 1985, when the affirmative figures were 51 percent and 77 percent, respectively.

THE NATIONAL survey of 2,095 people, conducted July 24 to 28, was designed to assess public perceptions of how to control the AIDS epidemic and to see if they had changed since the 1985 poll.

The new survey showed that about half of Americans would tolerate mandatory testing for people with a high risk of acquiring AIDS and adding AIDS to the list of infectious diseases that require quarantine.

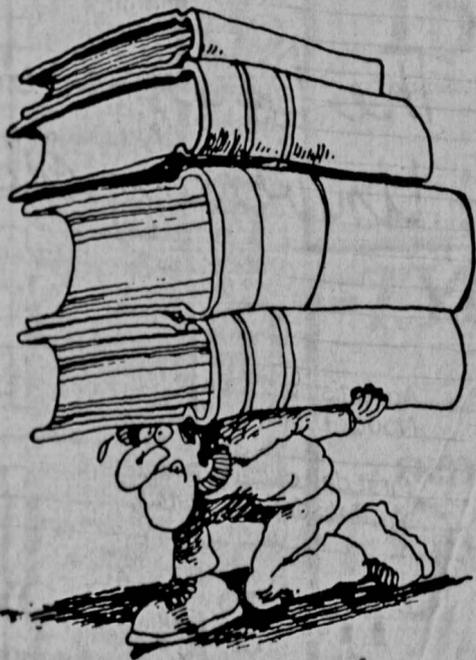

IN ADDITION, the percentage of respondents who favor a tattoo for people who test positive for the AIDS virus, a proposal once advanced by conservative columnist William F. Buckley Jr., has nearly doubled — from 15 percent to 29 percent — since the last poll.

Only three-quarters of respondents agreed that AIDS was a question of community not-civil rights.

There has been a hardening of public attitudes on AIDS," said I.A. Lewis, the director of the Times Poll. "It is almost as if many Americans think of civil liberties as a luxury when it comes to protecting the public health."

MOST AMERICANS agreed with the majority of AIDS experts that widespread, mandatory testing of people for the AIDS virus is a less effective measure against the disease than increased public education and research.

Marine freely signed statements

QUANTICO, Va. — A naval investigator testified Thursday in the court-martial of Marine Sgt. Clayton Lonetree that the former guard at the U.S. Embassy in Moscow freely signed a statement in December implicating himself in the sex-for-secrets scandal.

However, when asked whether Lonetree also denied passing secrets to the Soviets, Naval Investigative Service agent Tom Brannon replied, "At times he told me that."

In cross examination by defense attorney Michael Stuhff at the Quantico Marine base in northern Virginia, Brannon denied he was brought into the case because of an expertise in extracting confessions, which he was able to do with Lonetree.

Lonetree, 25, is accused of a romantic involvement with a Russian woman and passing sensitive information to the KGB during his assignment in Moscow from 1984 to 1986. If convicted of the most serious charges, he could be sentenced to life in prison.

South African explosion injures 68

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — A bomb exploded Thursday outside a downtown army headquarters, injuring 68 people, including children walking to a movie theater and soldiers waiting to collect their pay, authorities said.

Law and Order Minister Adriaan Vlok blamed the outlawed African National Congress for the attack. President Pieter Botha condemned the attack "as a dastardly and callous act by terrorists . . . under the control of godless communist forces."

The mid-morning explosion shook buildings a mile away and blew out glass storefronts and the windows of offices and apartments within three blocks. It also damaged dozens of parked cars.

Children walking to a cinema complex and some of the 500 soldiers waiting to collect their pay were among the 68 people hurt by flying glass and debris, police Col. Frans Malherbe said. But there were no major injuries, Red Cross officials said.

Outside the Witwatersrand Army Command headquarters there was a 3-foot gouge in a parking space where the car bomb blew up. Glass and rubble were strewn over the mangled remains of a vehicle that police said had been rigged with the bomb.

The blast ripped bricks and mortar from an adjacent cinema complex.

Plane crashes after takeoff, kills 15

MEXICO CITY — A propeller-driven cargo plane bound for Miami with eight people aboard crashed onto a highway shortly after takeoff from Mexico City Thursday, killing at least 15 people on the ground, authorities said.

The plane took off at 5:01 p.m. and crashed two minutes later on the Mexico City-Toluca highway 10 miles west of the capital, said Antonio Alvarez, director of airport services at the Mexico City airport.

Four passengers and four crew members aboard the plane were killed, according to reports.

Cosmonaut returns to Earth

MOSCOW — A cosmonaut returned to Earth after a 21-day mission in space, but he did not break the space health record set by another cosmonaut, Radio Moscow said.

The Soyuz space capsule carrying Alexander Laveikin, who had been in space since Feb. 5; Mohammed Faris, the first Syrian in space; and Soviet space rookie Alexander Viktorenko parachuted to Earth in a grass field in Kazakhstan, Soviet Central Asia, near a rural village about 1,100 miles east of Moscow, the official Tass news agency said.

Radio Moscow said Laveikin, 36, was so weak he was lifted aboard the retrieval helicopter while the other two cosmonauts, who had been in space six days, walked briskly to the aircraft.

Money used to buy sex

FORT MILL, S.C. — Jim Bakker's former bodyguard suggested Thursday the disgraced PTL founder was using the ministry's lavish bonus system to pay for homosexual gratification in his studio office.

Don Hardister was enraged by a story in Time magazine that said he was duped into guarding the door of Bakker's studio office while men he thought were having a business meeting were actually having sex.

Sikh extremists assassinate 2

NEW DELHI, India — Sikh gunmen assassinated two members of a right-wing Hindu party and fired on pedestrians early Thursday, provoking a massive sweep by security forces, authorities said.

Cabinet members met in emergency session, placed the army on standby and ordered security forces to go on red alert following the attacks, the first in New Delhi since terrorists killed 14 people in June.

Later Thursday, police defused a powerful bomb five minutes before it was set to explode at noon on a train in a New Delhi train station. Police were alerted to the bomb after a railway employee heard a ticking sound coming from a briefcase abandoned on a train that had just arrived from Calcutta.

No claim of responsibility for the attempted bombing was received, and it was not known whether the planting of the bomb was related to the killings earlier.

Animal causes monkey business

NEW YORK — A "smart little cookie" monkey Thursday slipped out of its cage aboard a China Airlines cargo plane at Kennedy Airport, chased the flight crew from the cockpit and played with the controls before it was nabbed.

"He wasn't making any demands — he wasn't trying to take the plane back home," said John Schneider, an animal control officer from the Port Authority who netted the 15-pound macaque monkey after a 90-minute game of hide-and-seek through the 747 jet.

"He was a smart little cookie," he added. During the Keystone-Kop chase to catch the monkey, cargo workers, dozens of police and other employees at Kennedy stood around the plane watching.

"It looked like we were expecting the pope," Schneider said. The little monkey — who later was found to be a female — was part of a shipment of 60 research monkeys flown in on the cargo jet from Manila, the Philippines.

The noise and the sight of the monkey cavorting around the jet chased workers out of the plane, while the pilot and co-pilot took refuge in in the cockpit.

"There were about 20 cargo workers," Schneider said. "They all backed off and quit unloading. It's not in their union contract to put up with this."

Crew tosses leaders overboard

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — The Coast Guard said the first mate of a lobster boat was rescued after a 12-hour ordeal at sea Thursday and reported he and his captain were attacked by mutinous crew and tossed overboard.

Coast Guard Petty Officer Joe Dye said Willie Charpentier, 21, was plucked from the ocean about 9:30 a.m. EDT by an Air Force helicopter, but Phil Roush, the captain of the 61-foot lobster boat "Leslie Ray," still was missing.

Dye said the "Leslie Ray" was found at anchor about 25 miles southeast of Cape Canaveral and two FBI agents and a Brevard County sheriff's investigator were put aboard by a helicopter to detain the three-member crew.

India keeps Sri Lanka peace

By Rone Tempest
Los Angeles Times

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka — Several thousand Indian troops will remain in Sri Lanka until Tamil rebels surrender their weapons and a cease-fire has been sustained in the bloody ethnic war between the rebels and government forces, a senior Indian diplomat said here Thursday.

Shortly after dawn Thursday a brigade of 3,000 Indian infantrymen was flown to an airport on the Jaffna Peninsula at the northern tip of this island nation.

The Jaffna Peninsula is a stronghold for the Hindu Tamil rebels, where Tamils are in the majority and where much of the fighting has occurred in the 4-year-old civil war.

"They are a peacekeeping force that has come at the invitation of the Sri Lanka president," said Indian Ambassador J. N. Dixit.

"They have come to ensure the surrender of arms and to sustain the cease-fire that came into effect yesterday (Wednesday)."

The Indian military intervention in Sri Lanka — India's first foreign campaign since the 1971 Bangladesh war — came only hours after India Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi and Sri Lanka President Junius R. Jayewardene signed an agreement of cooperation aimed at ending the ethnic war here.

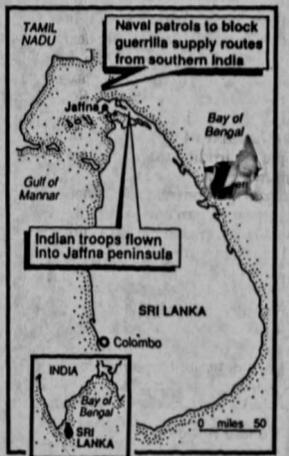

THE PACT calls for a cease-fire, the surrender of weapons by Tamil rebel groups, the withdrawal of Sri Lankan forces to the positions they held before a successful May offensive, creation of a northern province where Tamils will be in the majority and a referendum in northeastern Sri Lanka so that communities there could decide whether to be part of that province. The agreement sparked violent protests. More than 50 people were killed in rioting Tuesday and Wednesday in the Colombo area alone, which remained under strict military curfew Thursday night. Dozens of city buses and government offices were burned in the riots, the worst here since 1983.

President Jayewardene apologized for an attack Thursday morning on the visiting Gandhi.

Gandhi was assaulted by a sailor in the ranks of an honor guard for the formal farewell ceremony at the presidential palace. The Indian leader was not seriously hurt in the attack.

Gandhi, 44, son of assassinated Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi, was examined by his personal physician on the aircraft returning home to New Delhi and was pronounced fit.

Adelman resigns arms post

By Robert C. Toth
Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — Kenneth Adelman resigned Thursday as director of the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, saying he has helped President Ronald Reagan "chart a new course . . . that dramatically reduces nuclear weapons."

Adelman, predicting a new U.S.-Soviet arms agreement and summit meeting this year, said he would remain on the job until at least mid-October or through a U.S.-Soviet summit conference if one is scheduled for later in the year.

In Moscow, a Soviet spokesman said Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze would be prepared to discuss "prospects for a summit meeting" when he meets with Secretary of State George Shultz in mid-September. Earlier, the White House said Shultz and Shevardnadze would meet here Sept. 15-17.

Adelman, 41, strongly denied any policy differences with the administration as a reason for his resignation. He said he intended to become affiliated with a policy "think tank" in the Washington area, write a twice-weekly column for a newspaper syndicate and a monthly magazine article, and perhaps resume teaching Shakespeare at a university.

ALTHOUGH ADELMAN said he decided to quit only three days ago, he has been restive as the disarmament agency chief for about a year. Two knowledgeable officials said Adelman unsuccessfully sought an appointment as U.S. ambassador to NATO late last year, though he has denied this.

His departure seems timed to coincide with the only arms control success that the administration can expect, in his view: a U.S.-Soviet agreement eliminating all intermediate-range nuclear missiles, with ranges of 300 to 3,000 miles, which probably would be signed at the prospective summit meeting.

Further arms deals, on strategic offensive arms and space defense weapons, are unlikely before 1989 because "the Soviets show no signs of wanting to move forward on them," he told a news conference.

WHITE HOUSE spokesman Marlin Fitzwater told reporters that Adelman had done an outstanding job guiding the administration's arms control efforts. Adelman's resignation letter to the president arrived Thursday morning, Fitzwater said, and no consideration had yet been given to naming a replacement.

In his resignation letter, Adelman wrote that Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev's move last week to accept the so-called "double-zero option" — and thus remove the major roadblock to the intermediate-range missile accord — "was the clearest and latest indication that the Soviets, at long last, have bought onto" a new course in arms control.

"Because of your resolve, we stand on the verge of a new type of arms control" involving radical reductions of weapons, rather than just put a ceiling on new growth, he wrote to Reagan. "I could not say that until now."

Quick-witted and sometimes irreverent, Adelman was initially controversial because of his inexperience and questionable commitment to arms control. He had been deputy ambassador to the United Nations for the first year of the Reagan administration, where he sometimes earned Soviet enmity.

dent's political adversaries but of others within the White House.

"I DON'T mind spears in the breast," he said. "It's knives in the back that concern me."

Regan added a wry note to his explanation of why Reagan hesitated before he allowed Poindexter, one of the architects of the Iran arms sales and diversion of profits to the Contras, to resign. Regan said of the president: "He's not the type that likes to go around firing people." A ironic statement coming from the president.

In marked contrast to six months ago, when Regan's truculent disregard for congressional sensibilities had made him an unpopular figure among both Democrats and Republicans on Capitol Hill, Regan's testimony drew a friendly and supportive reception from the committees.

"I am delighted to be discussing these issues with a man who has the ability to tell the truth," said Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Texas, who has been harshly critical of many witnesses.

REGAN, NOW earning his living on the lecture circuit and from a $1 million contract for his White House memoirs, undercut the significance of a key piece of evidence

Regan: First lady told me 'heads would roll'

Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — When the Iran-Contra scandal blew wide open in November, first lady Nancy Reagan phoned White House chief of staff Donald Regan and told him that "heads would have to roll," and strongly implied that his would be among them, according to a deposition by Regan quoted Thursday at the Iran-Contra hearings.

Regan's account of the Nov. 24 phone call — made in a private interview with congressional investigators recently — provides a colorful example of Reagan's behind-the-scenes efforts to exact quick vengeance last fall for the damage done to her husband.

Regan would not elaborate on the conversation in his testimony Thursday before the Iran-Contra committees, but a panel member, Rep. Dante Fascell, D-Fla., read some of the interview into the record while questioning him.

In the deposition, Regan said that Reagan "was very upset at the news apparently her husband had told" her about the discovery that arms sale proceeds had been diverted secretly to Nicaragua's Contra rebels.

"Heads would have to roll. . . . There would have to be a house-cleaning of people that had let Ronnie down. I seemed to have the impression that mine was one of the heads that would have to roll," Regan said.

in the investigation: a memo found by Department of Justice officials in North's office that describes the diversion scheme.

Regan said the undated, unsigned document, for which investigators have found no cover letter, did not appear to have been one that would have reached the president.

"This thing here is much too loose," Regan said. "It's not in the proper form."

Poindexter, a rear admiral, told the committees several weeks ago that he deliberately did not inform Reagan of the diversion because he sought to protect his commander in chief from what he realized would be enormous political embarrassment if the scheme ever became public.

HOWEVER, Regan said that Poindexter offered a dramatically different explanation when Regan asked for his resignation last Nov. 25. At that time, Regan said, Poindexter pretended to be ignorant of the details of the diversion.

The former chief of staff said that Poindexter "was sitting at the end of his conference table having breakfast from a tray. . . . John is a deliberate man. He adjusted his glasses, he dabbed at his mouth with his napkin, put it down. He said, 'Well,' he said, 'I guess I should have looked into it more but I didn't.' He said: 'I knew Ollie was up to something.'"

When Poindexter handed his resignation to the president later that morning, Regan quoted Reagan as saying: "This is a shame that it's happened. . . . this way, that a man with your great naval record, and so on, has come to this end."

take on about half its 3 million barrel capacity of crude oil.

Storm conditions also hampered the loading of a second reflagged Kuwaiti tanker, the Gas Prince. The departure of the two ships under U.S. Navy escort is expected to be delayed until the weekend.

By the end of next week, the Navy has said it will have the helicopter carrier Gualdalcanal and eight RH-53D Sea Stallion minesweeping helicopters in position in the gulf and ready for escort operations, to provide stop-gap protection against mines presumably sown by Iran.

Meanwhile, the United States is considering supporting a second U.N. resolution to force an end to hostilities in the nearly 7-year-old Iran-Iraq war, Undersecretary of State Michael Armacost said Thursday.

"We will continue to consult with our friends in the United Nations about a possible second resolution," Armacost said before boarding an airplane from Athens to Bahrain in the Persian Gulf.

Armacost will be the first senior official to arrive in the gulf region since U.S. warships began last week escorting Kuwaiti tankers.

"So we will continue the process of consulting with permanent members and the non-permanent members of the security council on that issue as well," he said.

Graduation

"We just had a really big crowd last year — the percentage of students that participated was surprising," she said.

OVERALL, 975 students are expected to receive degrees, Lawrence said, boosting the total number of degrees awarded by the UI in its 141-year history to 197,868. UI Business and Liberal Arts Placement Office Assistant Director Donald Moffett said summer graduates looking for jobs may actually have an advantage over those who graduated in the spring.

"When you graduate at the end of the spring term and you don't have a job, you're going to be competing for jobs with a lot more people than you would be in the summer," he said.

Although it is hard to predict employers' hiring trends, Moffett said the general job outlook seems to be good.

"The job bulletin listings that we publish has held up well in terms of the number of listings," he said. "That's a good indication."

Michael J. Link, who will receive a bachelor of science degree in zoology, will speak on behalf of the students at the undergraduate commencement. Link, son of James and Marilyn Link of Dubuque, is graduating with highest distinction.

until April 1982 when Freedman was named UI president.

Becker estimated about half of the nominations the firm has received have come from UI faculty and staff, but said he doesn't know how many of the nominees are connected with the UI currently.

He said the August interim — with faculty and student members on vacation — should not slow the search because most of the time-consuming work of interviewing candidates won't be undertaken until the fall.

Pomerantz said he is confident UI

Interim President Richard Remington will provide the UI with excellent leadership during the interim.

Remington has said he is not interested in becoming UI president.

"Sometimes I'll give them the old resident's phone number so they can arrange something," Demand said. "Some leave their things packed in trucks or on the sidewalks. At least the weather is going to be nice."

Baseball Almanac

Today is Friday, July 31. It is the 117th day of the baseball season. The dog days of August begin in one day. The playoffs begin in 67 days. The Pittsburgh Pirates are the only team in the NL East below .500.

Matchup of the Day
Boston's Roger Clemens, 10-7, last year's AL Cy Young award-winner, faces this year's leading candidate, Bret Saberhagen, 15-5, when the Red Sox play the Royals at Kansas City. (Game time 8:35 p.m. EDT.)

Quick Quiz
Oakland's Mark McGwire slugged his 37th home run of the season Wednesday to tie the AL record for most home runs by a rookie. Al Rosen of Cleveland originally set the mark in 1950. The major-league record is 38, shared by two players. Can you name them? (Answer below.)

Who's Hot
Oakland's Terry Steinbach hit his 10th homer Wednesday and is batting .389 in his last nine games since taking over for injured catcher Mickey Tetletson.

Who's Not
LA's Rick Honeycutt, 2-11, suffered his 10th loss in row, lasting only 2 1/3 innings against the Giants. Honeycutt's last victory was on May 12. The Royals have dropped five of their last six games and are 2-11 since the All-Star break. The Cardinals have lost six in a row.

Merry-Go-Round
Every Montreal starter collected at least one hit Wednesday as the Expos crushed the Cubs 11-3. The Expos banged out 15 hits as they won for the 13th time in their last 17 games.

Rain Delay?
It was raining baseballs at Yankee Stadium Wednesday. The game between the Yankees and Royals was delayed several times, as the ground crew and umpires had to scoop up baseballs — given out as a promotion — thrown on to the field.

Quiz Answer
Frank Robinson slugged 38 homers for Cincinnati in 1956 and Boston's Wally Berger accomplished the same feat in 1930.

Quote of the Day
"It was just bad luck that it happened on our wedding night." — Jay North, pitcher for the St. Petersburg Cardinals of the Class-A Florida State League, who, after just getting married and driving to the hotel after the reception, lost control and rammed his vehicle into a house. The groom, still in his tuxedo, spent the night in jail and was charged with driving under the influence of alcohol, careless driving and driving on an expired license. The bride spent the night in a hospital.

Domination
Floyd Bannister's five-hitter helped Chicago end Detroit's five-game winning streak Wednesday. Bannister bested the Tigers' Jack Morris, who has not won since July 4th. Bannister, 6-8, has now defeated Morris in four straight confrontations and is 11-6 lifetime against Detroit. He is 8-1 against the Tigers with the White Sox, winning his last seven decisions against them.

Really?
The single Detroit manager off Bannister marked the first time since April 21 the Tigers had been held without an extra base hit. It was also the second time this season Detroit was shut out.

Big Red
The Reds' Dave Parker slammed a three-run homer and drove in six runs Wednesday to help Cincinnati crush the Padres. It was the second time this season Cincinnati had six RBIs in a game. The Reds banged out 19 hits, tying a season best.

Mike Tyson

Tyson, Tucker ready for unifying fight

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Tony Tucker has been a winner throughout his boxing career, yet he will have to pull off the biggest upset in heavyweight championship history to defeat Mike Tyson Saturday night.

Tyson is a 12-1 favorite to defeat Tucker and become the unified heavyweight champion. Tyson owns the World Boxing Council and World Boxing Association titles, and Tucker is the International Boxing Federation champion.

Tyson, 21, is 30-0 with 27 knockouts and Tucker, 28, is 35-0 with 30 knockouts. Tucker also was 115-6 as an amateur with four national AAU titles, and gold medals in the 1979 Pan Am Games and World Cup.

Still, Tucker is more lightly regarded by the public than the other men Tyson has beaten in the unification series — Trevor Berbick, James "Boncrusher" Smith and Pinklon Thomas.

"I GET MOTIVATED when I hear those odds," Tucker said. "I don't get mad about it. I've got something to prove. Somebody's going to get rich betting on me." Tucker said he won't place a bet because he's a religious man. Win or lose, he will reportedly earn $1.9 million compared to Tyson's $2.5 million.

"The difference between me and Tyson is Tyson can lose this fight and come back and be accepted," Tucker said. "If I lose this fight, I'm out of boxing. That's my motivation. I have to win."

According to the Ring Record book, James Braddock's 1935 victory over Max Baer was the biggest upset in a heavyweight title fight. Braddock was a 10-1 underdog.

Leon Spinks was an 8-1 underdog when he defeated Muhammad Ali in 1978.

SPINKS IS THE LAST man to stand as unified heavyweight champion. The winner of Tyson-Tucker will become the next and they will fight in the same Las Vegas Hilton ring where Spinks upset Ali.

Of all the major upsets in heavyweight title fights, the underdog was a challenger. Tucker is a champion but gets little respect as one.

"Here I am, a man who don't know nothing about losing, and I'm a 12-1 underdog," Tucker said.

Tucker says Tyson is such a big favorite because he is far better known than Tucker. But Tucker's performance against Buster Douglas May 30 when he won the vacant IBF title contributed to his underdog status.

Although Tucker stopped Douglas in 10 rounds, he looked sluggish and trailed until Douglas ran out of gas. The fight was on the undercard of Tyson's sixth-round knockout of Thomas.

The bout, scheduled for 15 rounds, will be televised by HBO.

Two more NFL clubs offer test for AIDS

The St. Louis Cardinals and Houston Oilers have joined the Dallas Cowboys in offering players voluntary testing for AIDS, and several other NFL clubs are considering taking similar action.

"This is simply something we wanted to do, something we felt was important," Oilers spokesman Chip Namias said Thursday. "We are about our players and we realize the dangers of AIDS. And, of course, we want to have a 100 percent healthy football team."

Namias said the Oilers began offering the tests when players reported for physical exams two weeks ago in Houston.

ACQUIRED IMMUNE deficiency syndrome is a fatal affliction that destroys the body's ability to fight disease.

The Cowboys said their team doctors and trainers will wear rubber gloves when dealing with blood-related injuries this season. Members of the equipment staff will wear the gloves when handling bloody uniforms or equipment.

A spokesman for the Cardinals said team employees are wearing gloves when handling the soiled jerseys and dirty laundry, but he was unsure if team trainers and doctors would wear gloves when dealing with injured players.

"These guys are concerned first with administering whatever help is necessary to a player in distress," he said. "I don't think they're going to wait until they find a pair of gloves."

THE DETROIT LIONS are planning to offer players and coaches an educational program on AIDS and are re-evaluating for precautionary reasons some procedures used by the training and equipment staff.

Lions General Manager Russ Thomas confirmed Thursday steps are being taken to begin the program this season.

Larry Wansley, the Cowboys director of counseling services who is coordinating the AIDS information project, said Thursday the tests are a "positive, responsible step. AIDS is on the minds of everyone — you see it and read about it on the news every day, and we've had a lot of inquiries from players and people on the staff about whether we would have information on it."

A SPOKESMAN FOR the Denver Broncos said the team has a plan to implement AIDS testing, but no timetable has been set.

Green Bay Packers officials said they are considering testing players for AIDS, but "there has been no decision," said trainer Domenic Gentile.

Miami Coach Don Shula said the Dolphins have no plans to implement AIDS testing.

NCAA says LSU's probation near end

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI) — The probation periods given the Louisiana State football and men's basketball teams will expire in September as scheduled, an NCAA enforcement official said Thursday.

The LSU football program's one-year probation would not be extended past the Sept. 18 expiration date, and the men's basketball probationary period, which ran concurrent with the football program's, also will expire that date, said David Didion, an assistant director of enforcement.

Last year, the NCAA found the men's basketball program guilty of nine violations. Some of the charges involved Coach Dale Brown's recruitment of Tito Horford, a 7-foot-1 center who was ruled ineligible to play for Houston and left LSU before ever playing a game.

AS A RESULT OF the NCAA investigation, the men's basketball program will be limited to 13 grants-in-aid instead of the regular 15 for the 1987-88 academic year.

The infractions were the result of the NCAA probe and subsequent one-year probation of LSU's football program.

Sophists fall after 2 tourney championships

The Daily Iowan

A group of Iowa students and teachers calling themselves "geritol athletes" nearly swept a series of Recreation Services tournaments this summer, winning two of the three tournaments entered.

The Sophists, led by Communications Studies Department Chairman Bruce Gronbeck, won the intramural men's slow-pitch softball tournament, the co-ed volleyball tournament, suffering their only setback in the finals of the co-ed softball tournament.

"Co-ed softball is a great way for a department to pull its faculty, graduates and undergraduate students together," Gronbeck said. "Even department alumni follow the teams."

Alma's Army defeated the Sophists 12-7 in the championship game of the co-ed game, thwarting the team's chances at a sweep of the intramural events.

The Sophists won the men's slow-pitch win a four-run seventh inning to win 12-11. And the team's won two out of three in the championship to win the co-ed volleyball crown.

"This was an exceptional team of Geritol athletes," Communication Studies Professor Michael McGee said.

Hassard signs all-state prep

The Daily Iowan

Beverly Powell, an Illinois high school hurdles champion who competed for East St. Louis Lincoln High School, has committed to Iowa.

A native of Washington Park, Ill., Powell's 1985, 1986 and 1987 high school teams won state team titles. In 1987, Powell recorded a state record in the 300 meters, running a 43.7. She's a three-time all-state selection.

Earlier this month she placed second at the The Athletic Congress Junior Olympic competition in the 400-meter hurdles at 1:01.50.

"Beverly is a very versatile sprinter who will help us in the hurdles, sprints and relays. She has tremendous range and can run events from 100- to 400-meter distances," Jerry Hassard, Iowa women's track and cross country coach, said.

Northwestern AD quits post

EVANSTON, Ill. (UPI) — Northwestern Athletic Director Doug Single announced Thursday that he will resign effective Aug. 31.

"The decision comes after considerable thought, and it is based on personal and professional interests," Single said. "While I'm not ruling out the possibility of remaining in athletics in another capacity, I am primarily considering opportunities that have been presented to me in other fields."

Single, 36, was named Director of Athletics and Recreation for Northwestern in December of 1980.

The announcement of his resignation came the same day the university notified the Big Ten Conference and the National Collegiate Athletic Association that it will drop its track and cross country programs after the 1987-88 season.

a year ago," Michigan Coach Bo Schembechler said Thursday. "We were a quarterback-rich league, but with the strength moving tailback and fullback, I think all of that will change this season."

One thing that will help these new quarterbacks of the Big Ten is that many of the league's secondaries are equally depleted heading into the start of the 1987 season.

Iowa, Michigan, Wisconsin, Purdue and Minnesota are five teams which will start from scratch.

AGREEMENT WAS THE order of the day at the Big Ten Coaches Conference. While all agreed that ground games will pick up in 1987, coaches were equally agreeable to the idea that Ohio State was the team to beat in the Big Ten this year.

Returning a healthy backfield and a defense that includes the likes of Chris Spielman, Eric Kumerow and Derek Isaman, Bruce and his Buckeyes appear ready to pick up where they left off, after their 28-12 win over Texas A & M in the Cotton Bowl.

"This is the best I've ever seen the Big Ten in the four years I've been here," Indiana Coach Bill Mallory said.

"Ohio State, Michigan State, Minnesota, Michigan and Iowa all have a chance to win the title," Schembechler said, "which means we will have to be ready to play every week."

"There's no question that Ohio State is the favorite to win the Big Ten," Iowa Coach Hayden Fry said. "But I can see the bottom of the league moving up with the rest of the group, and I think you could just flip a coin for the rest of the conference right now."

Gamble, Bankers take first PTL title

By Marc Bona
The Daily Iowan

Kevin Gamble's 15-foot jumper with 31 seconds remaining gave Hills Bank an 86-84 win over Ahren's Construction and the first Prime Time League basketball championship Thursday in City High School.

Gamble, who was drafted by the Portland Trailblazers, finished with a game-high 39 points. His shot was reminiscent of the Iowa-Oklahoma game in this year's NCAA Tournament, when his last-second buzzer shot fell thru and kept the Hawkeyes alive.

"We were kind of fatigued," a tired Gamble said. "But we still had some spurts — here and there — and it came down to the wire."

TODD LUMSDEN, who played college basketball at Mankato (Minn.) State and attended high school at Cedar-Rapids Linn-Mar, scored 18 for Hills Bank. Greg McDermott of Northern Iowa also poured in 18.

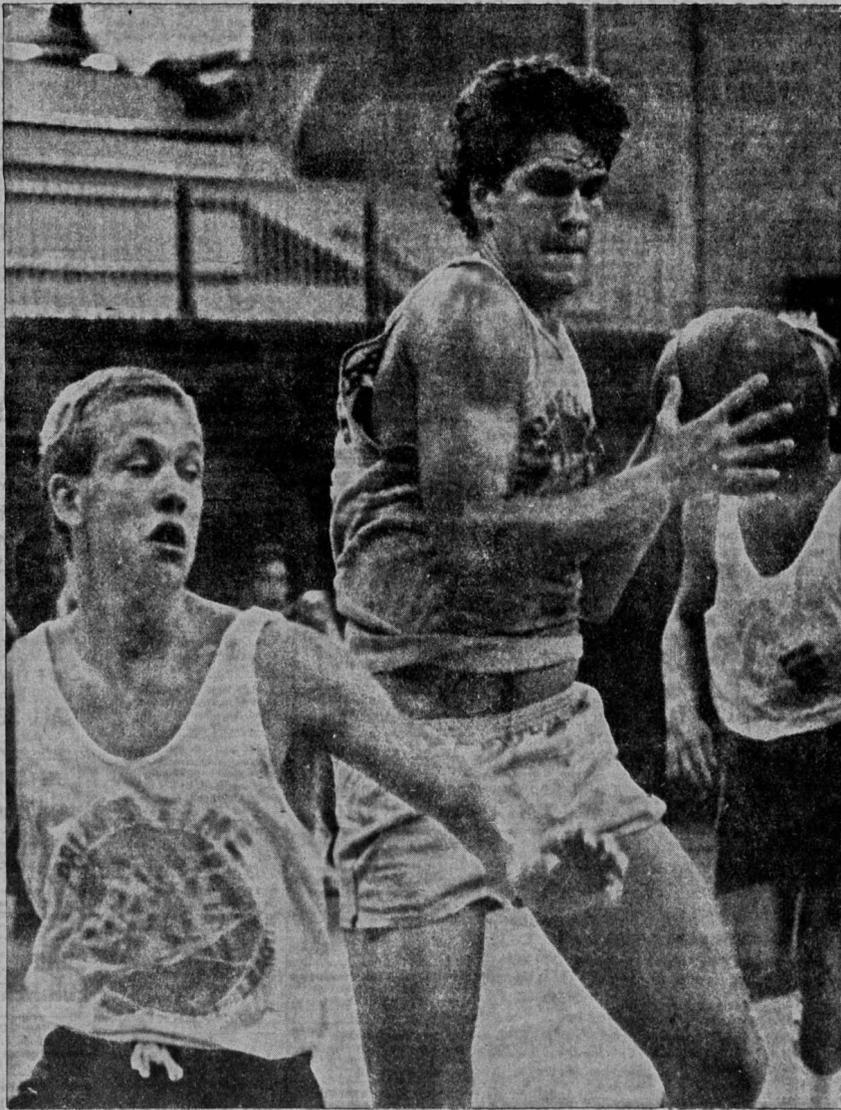

Jeff Kraayenbrink, a 1979 Northwestern graduate, led Ahrens Construction with 30 points. Northern Iowa's Troy Muilenberg (16), Iowa's Les Jepsen (15) and Western Illinois graduate Todd Hutcheson (15) contributed in double figures in a losing effort.

Hills Bank's Brad Lohaus, who will head to Boston in October to compete in the Celtics' training camp, pulled down eight rebounds, as did McDermott.

"After screaming at 660 kids at (Iowa) Coach (Tom) Davis' camp, then coming here, I'm dead," a hoarse Lohaus said. "Everybody was just too tired."

THE TWO TEAMS faced each other by winning their semifinal games played prior to the championship in the sweltering heat of the gymnasiums. Hills Bank ran away in overtime against Fitzpatrick's, 114-101, and Ahrens Construction topped Southgate Development, 97-83.

Hills Bank's Lohaus led all scorers with 36 points and all rebounders with 10 boards. Gamble scored 35, bringing his two-game total to 74 points. McDermott and Lumsden combined for 34 points, each scoring 17.

Fitzpatrick's was led by Iowa's Ed Horton, who scored 36 points, and Iowa recruit Curtis Cuthbert, who poured in 18. Troy Washpun contributed 15, Northern Iowa's Kent Pollpeter dropped in 12 and Kevin Drahozal — a 1977 Iowa City Regina High School graduate — added 10.

KRAAYENBRINK led Ahren's Construction with 30 points while Muilenberg and Hutcheson added 26 and 15 points, respectively.

Iowa's Kent Hill led Southgate

Development with 30 points and tied former Iowa standout Michael Payne with 12 rebounds. Northern Iowa's three-point shooting ace Nick Nurse poured in 26, while Eastern Illinois' David Paul scored 26 and Mankato State's Dave Venzke's added 21. Payne, who was awarded the league's Best Defensive Player, contributed 24 points and 12 rebounds.

Payne, who played in Italy last season, will play in Spain or France this season, he said. The former Hawkeye echoed most of the players in PTL, praising the competition in the league.

"It was a viable league for the people of Iowa City and the players," he said.

NURSE, WHO TWISTED an ankle driving the lane late in the game, lauded the competition he found in PTL.

"It's been a very really exciting opportunity for me because I can't find this kind of competition anywhere," Nurse, who will be a junior this year at Northern Iowa, said. "It's an hour-and-a-half trip, but it's well worth it."

Air attack grounded in Big Ten

By Steve Williams
The Daily Iowan

CHICAGO — The age of the quarterback is gone from the Big Ten as the conference moves from the air to the ground in 1987.

The list was long just a few years ago, as the likes of Chuck Long, Jack Trudeau, Jim Everett, Jim Karsatos and Jim Harbaugh made Saturdays in the Big Ten more of a one-on-one duel than anything else.

This season, however, faces like Tom Tupa, Dan McGwire and Brian Menkhausen will be doing the signal calling, giving coaches a sense that a return to the things that worked in the past may be a more advisable route than placing unneeded burdens on inexperienced shoulders.

"I THINK THE running back is back in the Big Ten," Ohio State Coach Earle Bruce said Thursday at the Big Ten Coaching Conference. "There aren't very many experienced quarterbacks in the conference right now, and I think we're moving to a position we were in a few years ago where the running game may become more dominant."

Five of the schools in the Big Ten will be starting the season with new signal callers, and while that means an equal five squads have their offensive leader returning, only two will come in with any accolades from last year.

Minnesota's Rickey Foggie and Northwestern's Mike Greenfield are the only quarterbacks returning to the league with any conference honors, both receiving honorable mention all-Big Ten last season.

Instead of quarterbacks, what the league does have is an overabundance of running backs, supported by the fact that nine of the conference's 10 teams have their leading ground gainer returning from a year ago.

"The lack of dominant quarterbacks in the conference could make for an interesting race," said Michigan State Coach George Per-

Carter gets no support by coaches

By Steve Williams
The Daily Iowan

Michigan Coach Bo Schembechler told reporters Thursday that Big Ten coaches agreed unanimously in urging the NFL not to hold a special draft for Ohio State wide receiver Cris Carter.

"On the topic of agents, coaches were unanimous in thinking that Ohio State was right in their actions toward Cris Carter," Schembechler said. "And we hope the NFL won't allow him to compete this season."

Schembechler went on to say that he didn't think this was a unique situation.

Schembechler further stated that the league will look to curb the use of steroids in the hope that collegiate football can be free of drugs in the near future.

les, who is ready to see star back Lorenzo White return to is former healthy self.

AMONG THE OTHER returning backs are first team all-Big Ten standouts Jamie Morris of Michigan, Rick Bayless of Iowa and Darrell Thompson of Minnesota. White was second-team all conference pick last season.

The rest of the league's best backs include Ohio State's Vince Workman and George Cooper, Iowa's David Hudson, Northwestern's Stanley Davenport, James Medlock of Purdue, Indiana's Anthony Thompson and Keith Jones of Illinois.

"This league should pick up more in the rushing statistics than it did last year," said Michigan State Coach George Per-

Alford, Averill win Big Ten's top honor

By Mike Trilk
The Daily Iowan

CHICAGO — Indiana's Steve Alford and Northwestern's Jennifer Averill were named the Jesse Owens-Big Ten Male and Female Athletes of the Year, the Big Ten announced Thursday.

Alford, who led the Hoosiers to an NCAA basketball championship last March, became the first basketball player to win the conference's highest individual honor.

"It is nothing but a great honor to receive this award," Alford, who was a second-round choice of the NBA's Dallas Mavericks last month, said. "It was an unbelievable honor to play at a school like Indiana and to play in a conference like the Big Ten. I had a tremendous four years with no regrets. And this tops it all."

AVERILL IS A two-time all-American in both field hockey and lacrosse and was equally impressed with the honor.

"I'm very surprised," Averill, who has been invited to the Olympic field hockey trials, said. "Just to be in the same category as Steve Alford is a great honor."

Expos on a roll, beat Cubs

United Press International

CHICAGO — Mike Fitzgerald went 3 for 3 and drove in two runs Thursday afternoon to power Montreal to a 6-1 victory over the Chicago Cubs, the Expos' fifth victory in their last six games.

Neal Heaton, 12-4, gave up eight hits over seven innings, including a solo home run to Keith Moreland in the sixth inning, struck out four and walked one. Tim Burke pitched the final two innings.

Casey Candaele drove in two runs with an eighth-inning double, his second double of the game.

Bob Tewksbury, 0-3, gave up three runs and nine hits over five innings.

The Expos scored single runs in the second, fourth, fifth and sixth innings to take a 4-0 lead. The first three runners to score reached base on walks.

Vance Law walked in the second inning, went to third on a double by Tom Foley and scored on a bloop single by Fitzgerald.

Tim Wallach received a two-out walk in the fifth, went to second on a single by Brooks and scored on Law's single to left.

Astros 8, Braves 5

ATLANTA — Alan Ashby singled home two runs and Kevin Bass added a two-run homer in support of emergency starter Bob Knepper Thursday, giving the Houston Astros an 8-5 victory over the Atlanta Braves.

Knepper, 4-12, surrendered six hits over five innings to snap a personal four-game losing streak. He was an emergency replacement for scheduled starter Jim Deshaies, who experienced shoulder stiffness while warming up. Dave Smith, the third Houston pitcher, went 1 1/3 innings for his 18th save. Rick Mahler, 6-11, took the loss.

Trailing 2-0 and held to one hit, the Astros scored four unearned runs in the sixth. With one out, Billy Hatcher reached on an error by shortstop Andres Thomas and was forced by Bill Dran. Walling and Glenn Davis followed with walks to load the bases. Ashby then singled home two runs. Davis scored and Ashby went to second on a balk by Mahler. Bass followed with an RBI single to center.

Phillies 1, Pirates 0

PITTSBURGH — Bruce Ruffin pitched a five-hitter over 8 1/3 innings and Glenn Wilson singled home a run in the ninth inning Thursday night, giving the Philadelphia Phillies a 1-0 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Ruffin, 9-7, has won five of his last six decisions and three in a row. Steve Bedrosian pitched two-thirds of an inning for his major league-leading 29th save.

Rookie John Smiley, 3-2, walked pinch-hitter Ron Roenicke to open the ninth. One out later, rookie Brett Gideon relieved Smiley and gave up consecutive singles to Mike Schmidt and Wilson.
