Local phone cable damaged

Service restoration may take days to complete

By James Cahoy
The Daily Iowan

Phone service for an estimated 2,700 Iowa City and Coralville residents may not be restored for several days after a telephone cable was damaged by a mechanical trencher Monday afternoon.

Northwestern Bell phone crews worked through Monday night trying to repair the cable, which was located on Newton Road near the construction site for the new UI Human Biology Resource Center.

But Northwestern Bell Cable Supervisor Gary Tomas, who was heading the operation to repair the three-inch thick cable, said it would take a long time to completely restore service in the affected areas.

"It's going to take quite a while, probably two or three days," Tomas said Monday night. "We hope to have at least some of the service partially restored by Tuesday morning, but it's hard to tell how long the whole thing is going to take to fix."

TOMAS SAID NONE of the surrounding UI buildings had been affected by the accident, which occurred about 3:30 p.m. on Monday, when a construction worker digging with a trencher at the site

Officials rap independent counsel law

By Ruth Marcus
Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The Justice Department argued for the first time in court papers Monday that the independent counsel statute under which a host of current and former high Reagan administration officials are being investigated is unconstitutional.

In a brief filed in federal appeals court here, the department said the 1978 Ethics in Government Act should be overturned because it violates the constitutional mandate of separation of powers. The filing came in a case involving an investigation stemming from the Environmental Protection Agency's 1983 Superfund scandal.

JUSTICE DEPARTMENT officials have criticized the statute on constitutional grounds in congressional testimony, but in previous court challenges avoided directly addressing the constitutionality of the law, passed in response to Watergate and the firing of special prosecutor Archibald Cox.

The department's action comes as an unprecedented number of administration officials, including Attorney General Edwin Meese III, are the subject of independent counsel investigations, and as the constitutionality of the law has been challenged by Lt. Col. Oliver North and former White House aides Michael Deaver and Lyn Nofziger.

It was also announced Monday that independent counsel Lawrence Walsh is expected to seek to interview President Ronald Reagan about the Iran-Contra affair, probably this fall, before pressing ahead with criminal charges against some of his former aides, according to informed sources.

WALSH WILL NOT talk about the progress of his inquiry, but sources familiar with the investigation say he still must collect a considerable amount of evidence before obtaining a broad conspiracy indictment against Lt. Col. Oliver North, the fired National Security Council aide; Rear Adm. John Poindexter, former national security adviser, and others.

Asked when he was appointed last December whether he would seek to question the president, Walsh

Tanker war heats up in Gulf region

Kuwaiti ship first victim of Iranian retaliation

By Charles P. Wallace
Los Angeles Times

MANAMA, Bahrain — Iranian troops firing machine guns from a speedboat attacked a Kuwaiti cargo ship at the mouth of the Persian Gulf early Monday, the first apparent retaliation for Iraq's resumption of the so-called tanker war in the gulf after a six-week lull.

As in past incidents, Iran made no official mention of the attack on the 24,349-ton Jebel Ali, a container vessel.

Gulf shipping sources said Iranian Revolutionary Guards in a speedboat attacked the ship at dawn, about 20 miles from the port of Umm al Quawain in the United Arab Emirates.

In other developments in the war between Iran and Iraq, which began seven years ago this month, each country reported bombing some of the other's industrial centers.

IRAN SAID ITS warplanes bombed factories and military bases in the northern Iraqi town of Dukan. Tehran also reported that Iranian forces shelled factories, power stations and oil installations in Iraq's southern port city of Basra and the naval base at Umm Qasr for a second day.

Military communiques issued in Iraq and monitored outside of that country said that Iraqi warplanes flew 100 combat missions Monday, including new attacks on Iranian oil installations in the Persian Gulf.

The attack on the Jebel Ali took place about halfway between Umm al Quawain and Abu Musa, an Iranian island which has been used by the Revolutionary Guards in the past to launch attacks against shipping headed for Kuwait.

THE VESSEL WAS reported to have suffered damages in a container bay and returned to Dubai for repairs. There were no reports of casualties among the crew.

The Jebel Ali is owned by the Kuwait-based United Arab Shipping Co., a consortium owned by the governments of the Persian Gulf Arab nations.

The Iranians apparently chose their target carefully, since only hours earlier, two Kuwaiti tankers that have been re-registered in the United States steamed in the general vicinity of Abu Musa Island, accompanied by six U.S. warships.

The convoy was spotted off Bahrain early Monday on its way to Kuwait, where it was expected to arrive on Tuesday. The convoy is being preceded by Sea Stallion helicopters, which are searching for mines in the sea lanes leading to Kuwait.

NO INCIDENTS have been reported involving the American ships or the two re-flagged tankers.

Regents secretary: UI tuition may rise

By Scott Hauser
The Daily Iowan

A state Board of Regents official confirmed Monday that a 7 percent tuition increase has been mentioned as a possibility for UI students, but said no definite figures have been prepared for the board to consider at its September meeting in Iowa City.

At a meeting with UI student leaders Aug. 24, regents Executive Secretary R. Wayne Richey outlined possibilities for a tuition increase that would be effective next year, including a 7.5 to nearly 10 percent increase for resident undergraduates and a slightly higher increase for non-resident undergraduates.

Richey stressed that the figures he mentioned at a meeting with UI student leaders last week does not constitute a tuition proposal, but are only guesses as to the possible increase.

"I HAVEN'T EVEN looked at the material to make a proposal," he said.

The meeting was attended by UI Collegiate Associations Council President Mike Reck, CAC Vice President Maureen Edwards, CAC Administrative Assistant Laura Oberbroeckling and UI Liberal Arts Student Association President Gordon Fischer.

"To some extent it's judgmental," Richey said. "I was giving them a guess as to the range, but it's not a recommendation."

He said he was basing his guess on the expected needs of the UI, the needs of the state, faculty salary increases and the "extraordinarily high" tuition increases last year.

Student leaders agreed the figures were tentative, but said Richey told them an increase was definite.

"He told us it definitely would not be less than 7 percent and definitely not higher than 10 percent," Reck said. "But nothing is firm at this point."

Edwards said Richey told the group the tuition recommendation

UI Armory faces possible demolition

By Scott Hauser
The Daily Iowan

The UI Field House Armory has been preliminarily scheduled for demolition in 1989 to make room for a new psychiatric hospital complex, but its facilities are scheduled to be replaced, UI officials said Monday.

"The initial phases of the psychiatry pavilion will not affect the armory," UI Hospitals and Clinics Director of Public Affairs Dean Borg said. "The latter phases of the psychiatry pavilion will involve relocation of the facilities currently located in the armory."

The 35,000-square-foot facility, the western addition to the Field House, houses the UI branches of the United States Army and Air Force Reserve Officer Training Corps and six basketball courts maintained by UI Recreational Services.

Borg said construction on the new psychiatric hospital — adjacent to the UI Hospitals and Clinics John W. Colloton Pavilion, immediately north of the armory — is scheduled to begin in 1988 with the armory space being replaced by the hospital construction during 1989-90.

THE PROPOSED construction will be presented to the state Board of Regents later this year, he said.

Rec Services and ROTC officials said their discussions with the UI Planning and Administrative Services Office — the office which oversees construction site selection — have focused on replacement of the armory's operations in a new site on campus.

"All my discussions have been in terms of, if in fact the armory has to come down, it will be replaced," Rec Services Director Harry Ostrander said.

Ostrander said representatives from the Planning and Administrative Services Office asked him early this summer to identify criteria in a new site that would make it eligible to replace the heavily used armory space.

"My concern is we would like to have comparable courts that function just as well," he said. "The decision has been made to remove the armory, the decision that needs to be made is what is a comparable

Library holds art contest

The Iowa City Public Library Art Advisory Committee has announced its second annual contest for area artists. A $600 art purchase prize will be awarded for those art works selected by the committee to be added to the library's circulating art collection.

Iowa City area artists may submit up to three slides of their works for consideration by the committee. Any works submitted for the contest must be two-dimensional, original photographs, collages, drawings, prints, paintings or textiles that can be framed. They must be suitable for loan to library cardholders who transport the art for use in homes or offices for a two-month period.

Only art works that have been exhibited in an Iowa art show some time within the year prior to the submission deadline of Oct. 1, 1987, will be considered.

Slides should be sent to Carol Spaziani at the Iowa City Public Library. Those artists who wish to have their slides returned are asked to provide a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

The contest is funded by a special appropriation from the Iowa City Library Gifts and Bequests Fund. Contributions for the fund are welcome and can be designated for the art contest.

Councilors disagree over city's public library funds

By Joseph Levy
The Daily Iowan

Iowa City Councilors said Monday increasing the Iowa City Public Library's budget is a priority, but they didn't guarantee it would happen in the near future.

"It would be great, but I can't predict it," Councilor Kate Dickson said. "We have to look at the whole picture and the total budget."

The library is currently operating under reduced hours Thursdays and Saturdays and is closed on Fridays. Library officials opted to decrease hours earlier in March rather than cut services due to city budget woes.

Library board members have already actively campaigned for a budget increase, hoping that if the 1 percent city sales tax referendum is approved in November some funds can be directed to the library.

During council discussions on the sales tax issue in June, councilors offered no guarantees the library would gain any funds. Councilor Darrel Courtney said Monday the library holds a mixed-priority status by the council.

Courtney said he and councilors George Strait and Dickson have given the library higher budgetary priority than councilors Ernest Zuber, Larry Baker, John McDonald and Mayor William Ambrisco.

"It could be a campaign issue," Courtney said, adding the make-up of the next council will greatly determine whether the library will get its budget aided. "Tell me who is going to be elected and I could answer that," Courtney said.

"I happen to think that it's a basic city service. It's not as high a priority as public safety, but it's real close," Courtney added. "The majority view of the council has kept it a little lower than that."

Library Director Lolly Eggers said the library needs an additional $55,000 to $60,000 to reinstate full-time service.

Sales tax surplus revenue would provide the library with the needed funds, she said.

"We're certainly hopeful," Eggers said. "The better the city's financial situation is, the better our chances are."

The library could resort to additional fundraising activities or seek donations to raise the money, she said.

But Egger is weary of using money other than tax dollars, because it is not a reliable source of income. "Gift money is not certain," she said.

Courtney said the Iowa City Library is an important part of both Iowa City and the UI community, and its budget should be maintained.

"The university has an impact on the public library," he said, adding to many UI students who use the facility.

Egger added the council has been supportive of the library.

"Generally, the council is very proud of the library," she said. "They would like to keep us open."

A former Iowa City lawyer was sentenced to five years probation after being charged with first degree theft in connection with misappropriating funds from his office in 1982, according to Johnson County District Court records.

Larry Lee Fugate, of Brookville, Florida, allegedly misappropriated $10,000 from his own firms while he practiced law in Iowa City in October 1982, according to court records.

On Nov. 5, 1982, Fugate filed court papers indicating that he was representing a 12-year-old minor in a personal injury lawsuit.

On Dec. 15, 1982, Fugate again filed papers indicating that an out-of-court settlement for $10,000 had been reached, and that a trust account for his client containing two-thirds of the settlement was to be set up by Fugate, according to court records.

In March 1987, it was learned that no such trust account had been set up by Fugate. He was charged April 27 with first degree theft, according to court records.

In addition to his probation, Fugate's sentence stipulated that he spend 180 days at a community corrections center, according to court records.

Kemp exempted from active duty in 1961

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Republican presidential candidate Jack Kemp got a medical exemption in 1961 that allowed him to avoid active duty as an Army reservist and continue playing professional football, his office confirmed Monday.

Kemp, who played professional football for seven seasons, was a private in an Army reserve unit in San Diego that on Oct. 15, 1961, was ordered to active duty during the Berlin crisis, The Sacramento Bee reported.

The California newspaper cited medical records it had obtained to show the congressman from New York was not called to active duty at the time.

John Buckley, a spokesman for Kemp's campaign, confirmed the report.

"The standards for active duty in the Army are rigid and Kemp did not pass them," Buckley said. "He had a separated shoulder and variety of ailments. He did play football that year, receiving Novocain shots."

Kemp, 52, who has developed a reputation as a hawk on defense matters during his 17-year congressional career, said he did nothing to avoid a call-up.

"I didn't request that (the exemption)," he told the Bee. "Like all people, I wanted to do what was right. I must admit I was married and had a child, but I certainly would've done whatever I was called to do."

Kemp said the physical examination that excused him from active duty was the Army's idea. Army medical records show Kemp, a reservist from 1958 to 1962, was discharged from the reserves 10 months later because of the injury.

Military doctors reported swelling and a muscle spasm in Kemp's left shoulder and said "voluntary range of motion" of the left arm was limited to 80 degrees, about chin level.

Kemp's roommate for the 1961 season, Hall of Fame tackle Ron Mix, recalled the injury.

"He had a chronically separated shoulder and he literally had to be shot up with painkillers to play," Mix told the Bee.

Mix, also a member of the 977th Transportation Army reserve unit, was denied a deferment from the active duty call-up although he was the sole support for his mother.

CAC approves Parents Council funding

By Paula Roesler
The Daily Iowan

The UI Collegiate Associations Council Monday unanimously approved $5,000 in internal funding to create a Parents Council to lobby the Iowa Legislature and state Board of Regents on higher education issues.

The CAC will use the initial funding to send more than 20,000 letters to parents of UI resident students facing the dilemma of tuition increases and financial aid cuts.

The letters will ask parents to become involved in a letter-writing campaign to lobby Iowa legislators and regents.

The CAC will also send council members letters periodically to keep them abreast of the latest educational issues.

CAC COUNCILOR Michael DeYoung, a sponsor of the funding request, said the Parents Council is the most effective tool the CAC could have.

"If we can stop a 15 percent tuition increase and bring it down to a 5 percent increase, the program has just about paid for itself," he said.

CAC President Mike Reck agreed the program will be effective.

"There is no substitute for actual constituent contact," he said.

"The CAC will actually be performing a service for the state of Iowa by getting people acquainted with their legislators," Reck said.

CAC Vice President Maureen Edwards, who presented the funding proposal, said the initial mailing costs would vary from year to year.

"NEXT YEAR ONLY the parents of new students will receive the initial mailings asking for support," she said.

The CAC will also solicit the support of the parents of graduate students, medical students and law students, she said.

The UI chapter of United Students of Iowa has offered its manpower and money to help get the council started, Edwards added.

The UI Student Senate had initiated a similar parents coalition two years ago, but it was ineffective, Reck said.

"The Student Senate didn't follow up well at all," he said. "That's why there is no documentation to show the amount of (parental) involvement."

RECK SAID THE CAC would evaluate the Parents Council effectiveness by asking Iowa legislators how many letters they receive.

"If there is no evidence that parents are writing, the project will warrant no further funding," he said.

But Reck said similar lobbying groups have been successful in other states and he expects a high rate of compliance among UI students' parents.

Edwards said the Student Senate's former list of involved parents may be used after it is updated.

In other CAC business, UI Senior Melanie Katuin was appointed Director of the CAC Book Co-op for a one-year term and UI Senior Mike Skinner was reappointed Student Association Liaison for 1987-88 to the Union Renovation Project.

Note-taking service stirs UI controversy

By Lisa Legge
The Daily Iowan

It's the second week of school and the phone at Lyn-Mar Enterprise just keeps ringing.

Each semester approximately 1,500 UI students contact the business, located at 511 Iowa Ave., subscribing to lecture notes for their classes.

The service is controversial with UI administrators, who say it is unethical to make such notes available. But to owner Laurie Knepp, supplemental lecture notes are helpful to students.

"The idea of education is to learn," she said. "It doesn't matter how you learn the information, just so you learn it."

Knepp, who never went to college herself, said the lecture notes should not be used as a substitute for attending the class.

"Sometimes people subscribe and say, 'Oh, goody, I don't have to go to class anymore,'" Knepp said. "I don't want to tell them what to do, but I try to tell them the notes should be secondary or a back-up to their own notes."

But UI Religion Professor Jay Holstein disagrees.

"I'm against the idea of back-up notes," he said. "One thing they should be learning is how to take notes. What will he or she do in the next class where Lyn-Mar notes aren't available? A person who takes the course should learn to rely on his or her own resources."

"It's hard enough to keep people alert," he added. "The last thing they need is an excuse not to listen."

Lyn-Mar has note-takers in 12 UI classes, three of which have two sections. Usually graduate students and sometimes even teaching assistants for the classes, the note takers are independent contractors, enabling Lyn-Mar to avoid the paperwork and taxes involved in hiring employees. They are paid $7.50 or $8.50 per 50 minutes of class, depending on the course.

Holstein, who saw a copy of the notes for his class last semester, said, "Students who studied those notes alone would've gotten a C at best in the course."

Holstein also argues that material from his lectures is copyrighted.

"It's as if I took a book somebody else wrote and sold it," he said.

But Lyn-Mar claims full right to sell the notes.

"It's the note-taker's interpretation of the lecture," Knepp said, adding the notes are not transcribed verbatim.

"Lectures are university property and this is a public university," Norr said.

Subscribers usually receive the lecture notes Tuesday, but if they have tests, they can arrange to get them earlier. The notes are also available on a weekly basis.

Do subscribers use them in the way Lyn-Mar intends?

"I think a lot of students use them as a supplement," Knepp said. "If they don't, that's their prerogative. They're big people."

"I was taking classes that weren't my specialty," UI senior Paula Engels said. "I was taking too many notes. Lyn-Mar note-takers know how to categorize the information and that helped my retention."

Buttons 'Celebrate' UI Homecoming '87

UI students were given the opportunity yesterday to purchase Homecoming '87 buttons from characters such as Donald Duck, Porky the Pig and Sylvester the Cat.

Members of the UI Homecoming Council, who said they hoped to sell at least 16,000 buttons, dressed as these characters Monday to kick off sales of the buttons, which will be available until Homecoming weekend, scheduled this year for Oct. 23-24.

The buttons went on sale Monday with a special, day-long 10 percent discount. They feature this year's homecoming theme, "A Time to Celebrate," which is written on the button along with a drawing of a hawk and the words "Homecoming '87" in gold and black letters.

Homecoming '87 buttons and T-shirts are currently available at the University Bookstore and at the Union. The T-shirts are available at several downtown businesses as well.

ACCORDING TO Homecoming '87 Executive Director Mary Rae Durband, the theme was decided on through a contest last spring.

"It was open to the public; anyone could submit a design with or without a theme," she said. "I think we had about 10 designs come in, and we (the Homecoming Council) narrowed it from there."

The design which was chosen is a combination of contest entries submitted by UI senior Cammie Jensen and UI junior Marc Brechwald.

"'A Time to Celebrate' is a really workable theme," Durband said. "The celebration theme is a really versatile idea."

In addition to the buttons, the Homecoming Council will also be selling T-shirts, which will also have the words "A Time to Celebrate" with a fireworks background.

Money earned from the button sale will be used for Homecoming expenses, Durband said.

"It takes care of all our expenses, like advertising, security, equipment setup, contests that we have, the faculty reception — just basic expenses that we incur while we're trying to get set up," she said.

DURBAND SAID THE 18-member Homecoming Council is working very hard to make this year's homecoming special.

"The Council has really made an effort this year to get things going early," Durband said. "This homecoming really will be a time to celebrate."

Home schools coming to terms with districts

DES MOINES (UPI) — At odds over Iowa's compulsory education laws, home schoolers and local school districts are showing signs of cooperation as the 1987-88 school year begins, according to James Mitchell, deputy director of the Iowa Department of Education.

Mitchell said there is evidence more and more parents are successfully negotiating agreements with local districts to teach their children at home and still meet laws requiring all students to receive instruction from state-certified teachers.

"The problem at the state level is very hard to get a grasp on, but from the calls I am getting there seems to be a lot more cooperation between the so-called home instruction and the local school districts. They seem to be working out compatible situations and procedures for schooling in the local districts," Mitchell said.

Mitchell said a recent state Supreme Court ruling will have no impact on the department's approach to compulsory attendance laws, home schools or private Christian church schools.

Fujitsu gift aids Asian center

Japanese language word processor will ease workload

By John Bartenhagen
The Daily Iowan

Two Japanese language word processors recently donated to the UI by Fujitsu Ltd., a Japanese computer manufacturer, will make the workload for staff members of the UI Center for Asian and Pacific Studies a bit easier.

Department Chairman Thomas Rohlich said the use of word processors represents a great change in the preparation of documents written in Japanese.

Because Japanese typewriter keyboards contain thousands of characters, which make them inefficient for office use, all material prepared for Japanese classes at the UI has been written by hand, Rohlich said, adding that even large Japanese businesses correspond via hand-written messages.

But the implementation of word processing units should eventually speed up the production of material for classes, he said.

"UNTIL YOU'RE USED to the machine, it takes a little longer than writing by hand," he said. "But it's also got the advantages of a word processor in that you can print a final, clear copy."

UI officials said the Fujitsu Oasys Lite K20 word processors are of great practical and symbolic value, and also a sign of the growing prominence of the UI's Center for Asian and Pacific Studies.

The center was established in May 1986 with a $2 million gift from the Stanley Foundation, UI Liberal Arts Dean Gerhard Loewenberg said.

"This is an example of the kind of cooperation the university enjoys from private businesses, the state government and Japanese business and industry in promoting the Japanese language," he said. "It's a sign of the fact that the UI is becoming very conspicuous to Japanese business."

But Rohlich said the units are not intended to replace the writing of assignments by hand for the nearly 100 UI students studying Japanese.

"WE CAN'T PROMISE that all students will have one of these units in front of them," he said. "But we want every student to be accustomed with these machines."

UI Center for Asian and Pacific Studies Acting Director Robert Leutner said the computers, which cost about $500 each, should be appreciated beyond their practical value.

"This is a smallish gift, but I think its symbolic value is great while the practical value to the program is very general," he said.

Goldmine explosion kills 8 in S. Africa

WELKOM, South Africa — An apparent explosion in a South African gold mine Monday killed at least eight miners and left 42 missing and feared dead as workers across the country returned to work after a 21-day mine strike.

The accident occurred as a high-speed elevator was taking miners to work in the No. 10 shaft of the General Mining Corporation's St. Helena gold mine, 160 miles southwest of Johannesburg, for the first full morning shift since the nation's costliest strike ended, mine officials said.

Mine director Gary Maude, who was supervising rescue operations, said a specially-trained rescuer lowered on a rope reached a pump station 2,300 feet underground in the mine shaft 13 hours after the accident.

The rescuer found the bodies of eight men, and pulled five others who survived to the surface one by one, Maude said.

"Five miners are alive," Maude told reporters. "The death toll there appears to be eight."

"I do not think there is much chance of any survival if the cage went to the bottom," Maude said.

Pilot killed as helicopter, plane crash

OPA-LOCKA, Fla. — A helicopter and a small plane collided Monday at Opa-Locka Airport as the student pilots in both crafts were making practice landings, killing the chopper pilot, authorities said.

The plane, a Cessna 152, apparently glided to a landing and a student flyer and his instructor walked away uninjured from the damaged aircraft.

The collision occurred within a few feet of a busy highway clogged with rush-hour traffic but there were no reports of injuries on the ground.

Police identified the victim as Keiji Nakajima, 27, a student pilot.

UAW targets Ford Motor Co. in strike

DEARBORN, Mich. — The United Auto Workers union Monday picked Ford Motor Co. over General Motors Corp. as its strike target in case current contract negotiations should fail, but UAW President Owen Bieber said he was confident that — with hard work — a walkout could be avoided.

The union's 23-member executive board decided to focus on the No. 2 automaker after a three-hour meeting in suburban Detroit. "After a thorough review of the state of negotiations at both companies, the (UAW) board has concurred with my recommendation that we concentrate on reaching a settlement at Ford Motor Co. first this year," Bieber said at a news conference.

Separate contracts covering 470,000 workers at Ford and General Motors expire at 10:59 p.m. CDT Sept. 14.

Illegal immigrants line up for permits

WASHINGTON — Hundreds of illegal immigrants lined up Monday at Immigration and Naturalization Service offices around the country in a last-minute effort to obtain legal work permits.

Under an INS ruling, aliens who were hired for jobs after Nov. 6, 1986, had until Tuesday to obtain the work permits, which will be used by employers to validate employment and will be needed by those seeking legal U.S. residency.

Those aliens hired for jobs before Nov. 6, 1986 — the day President Ronald Reagan signed the latest immigration bill — will be entitled to apply for legal U.S. residency without the work permit.

Haitian sets himself ablaze in Boston

BOSTON — A Haitian national apparently despondent over family problems and the government of his homeland, set himself ablaze Monday and died on the Statehouse steps before horrified rush-hour commuters.

Antoine Thurel, 56, of Boston, doused himself with a flammable liquid and torched himself with a cigarette lighter shortly after 6 a.m. CDT, Capitol Police Chief Daniel Skelly said. He was pronounced dead at the scene.

"The government deplors this action," said a Haitian Embassy official in Washington who declined to be identified.

"As everybody knows, the democratic process in Haiti is open to everybody. Since the fall of Duvalier there has been a lot of democratic openings. But everybody should also understand that the path to democracy is a long, difficult and complicated one."

Group says U.S. soldier alive in Laos

WASHINGTON — A prisoner-of-war group said Monday it had unimpeachable evidence that a U.S. serviceman shot down over Southeast Asia nearly 19 years ago was alive in captivity in Laos earlier this year.

The American Defense Institute said the Defense Department gave the parents of Lt. Morgan Donahue, who would now be 43, conclusive evidence that their son was alive earlier this year at a Laotian camp.

In sending the evidence to the family, however, the Defense Department concluded that it was insufficient proof that Donahue was alive and it termed portions contradictory and hearsay.

Regional

Population dips in Midwestern states

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Three Midwestern states — Iowa, Michigan and Ohio — lost population since 1980, and the rest of the region is lagging behind the national average despite having more residents, the Census Bureau has reported.

Census Bureau figures showed that 88 percent of Iowa's 99 counties lost residents.

The largest loss in numbers of people was 10,400 in Black Hawk County, which includes the Cedar Falls-Waterloo area. The largest loss in percentage was 11.1 percent in Emmett County in northwest Iowa, dropping to 11,900.

The state's population has decreased 2.2 percent, or 63,000 residents, to 2.85 million. The largest growth was recorded in Polk County — Des Moines and suburbs — which grew by 12,600 people to 315,800.

The figures were contained in Census Bureau estimates of population changes in the 3,138 counties in America.

NORTH DAKOTA NOTCHED the best growth rate, 4 percent, in the Midwest, but it remains the least populous state in the region with 679,000 residents. Cass County had the largest growth, 9,200 people — 10.5 percent — for a total of 97,500.

Wayne County, Mich., where Detroit is located, led the country in losing 173,500 residents since the April 1980 census. Overall, the bureau estimated that Michigan lost 118,000 residents in six years with its population declining 1.3 percent to 9.14 million. Kent County had the largest population gain, up 33,000 people to 477,500.

Cuyahoga County, Ohio, home of Cleveland, was third on the list of counties losing population with a loss of 53,000 people. The bureau said Ohio's population is down 0.4 percent from 1980 to 10.75 million people.

Franklin County, where Columbus is located, showed the largest growth, gaining 34,000 for a population of 907,000.

In earlier reports, the bureau said that the U.S. population grew to 241.6 million in 1986, up 6.4 percent from the 1980 count.

West Virginia was the only other state to lose population, losing 31,000 people to total 1.9 million. The District of Columbia also lost population, dropping to 626,000 residents.

Iowa-Illinois users paid less in 1986-87

DAVENPORT (UPI) — Iowa-Illinois Gas & Electric Co. customers paid $28 million less for natural gas the past year because of short-term, spot-market gas purchases, company president Barry O'Brien said Monday.

"This is the largest 12-month reduction in natural gas prices ever recorded for Iowa-Illinois customers," said O'Brien, who attributed the savings to an ample supply of natural gas and competition from other fuels.

For the average residential customer using 100 therms of natural gas per month, the annual cost savings was about $115, or a 20 percent decline from the annual cost one year ago, O'Brien said. The utility serves 226,000 natural gas customers in 58 communities in Iowa and Illinois.

"We've taken advantage of those lower prices and are passing on those savings dollar-for-dollar to all customers," O'Brien said. No profit has been retained by Iowa-Illinois from such purchases, he added.

"CONTRARY TO claims by special-interest groups, these savings are passed directly and equally to all classes of customers — residential, commercial and industrial," O'Brien said.

"During the past 12 months, 73 percent of all gas sold by Iowa-Illinois to its customers has been obtained through low-cost, spot-market purchases," O'Brien said.

UNI professor: Hart is too smart to re-enter

CEDAR FALLS — Reports that Gary Hart may re-enter the Democratic presidential race are thinly veiled attempts at testing the nation's political climate and should not be taken at face value, a University of Northern Iowa professor said Monday.

UNI Political Science Professor Robert Ross said former Hart campaign director William Dixon, who has insisted Hart will rejoin the campaign, may be trying to rehabilitate Hart as a national commentator or political spokesman.

"Dixon's motivation is probably to turn Hart into a recognized political source rather than a candidate for president in 1988," Ross said. "Many people still recognize Hart's political knowledge and experience, and if he can establish himself as spokesman or commentator, it might be the first step on the road to a presidential comeback."

HART, THE FORMER front-runner among Democratic contenders, withdrew from the campaign in May amid reports he had spent a weekend with a Miami model.

Ross said he believes the former senator from Colorado is "judgmentally sound enough" to realize the futility of re-entering the race, and former staff members' remarks that he may do so are "easily seen as efforts to try out the political waters and not definite statements."

"My deep conviction is he will not re-enter" because he is smart enough to know it would be a painful and failing enterprise," Ross said.

83 perish as Thai airliner dives into ocean

By Paul Wedel
United Press International

BANGKOK, Thailand — A Thai domestic airliner with 83 people aboard Monday afternoon nosedived into a bay off the southern resort island of Phuket after dodging a jetliner approaching the same airport. All those aboard were believed killed, officials said.

Marine police in Phuket, 430 miles south of Bangkok, said there were no known survivors from the Thai Airways Boeing 737, which included two Americans who boarded the plane at the last minute.

By night, rescuers recovered 12 bodies and other remains. Officials said boats with searchlights continued rescue operations, but there was little chance survivors would be found, which would make the crash Thailand's worst air accident.

THE AIRLINE, in a statement issued nearly eight hours after the crash, said, "The latest reports from Phuket say it is believed all those aboard have perished."

Air Marshal Narong Tidhijpheng, manager of Thai Airways, told reporters in Bangkok the airline's jet swerved to avoid another Boeing 737 from Hong Kong's Dragonair airlines that was landing at Phuket at the same time.

"Phuket control tower said the Thai aircraft was trying to avoid a collision with a Dragonair flight as it was reducing altitude at 1,000 feet above sea level," Narong said. "The Dragonair plane landed safely but the Thai aircraft crashed into the sea."

He said the two planes should have landed 10 minutes apart, but a delay for one of the planes brought them to the airport at the same time.

OFFICIALS SAID THE Thai plane was carrying 35 Thai passengers, two infants and 37 foreigners to the popular resort island. There were nine Thai crew members aboard.

Phuket Gov. Chalerm Promlert said in a telephone interview that the Thai Airways jet crashed into Phangna Bay about 1 mile off the coast and about 8 miles from the Phuket airport.

The governor quoted two witnesses as saying the plane plunged nose first into the shallow bay. They said they heard a loud sound like an explosion as the plane shattered and sank, he said.

He said some of the wreckage was scattered more than 1,000 yards from the point of impact.

Speaking behind a model of the crashed Boeing 737, Thai Airways Managing Director Narong Dithipen briefs the media in Bangkok Monday afternoon on the accident near Phuket Island.

Juan Ponce Enrile

Enrile blames Aquino for rebellion

By Keith B. Richburg
Washington Post

MANILA, Philippines — Sen. Juan Ponce Enrile, still facing questions about his role in last week's bloody military coup attempt, Monday blamed President Corazon Aquino's government's "failure in national leadership" for prompting "young and idealistic officers" to try to overthrow her.

Meanwhile, authorities were investigating the possibility that the mutinous troops who rebelled may have established their own "provisional government" somewhere on central Luzon island and were set to wage their own private war against the government and communist insurgents. An unverified statement circulating here in Manila said the rebels had formed a "ruling junta" that was calling for new presidential elections.

In a combative speech before a meeting of Rotary clubs, Enrile, who has been widely suspected of having advance knowledge of the coup plot, said he offered "no apologies to anyone" for his refusal to "defend or to condemn" the soldiers who staged Friday's violent abortive coup. "History and our people will judge them," he said.

BUT ENRILE HAD harsh words for Aquino, accusing her of presiding over an apparent breakdown in public order. "Last Friday's event, my friends, is only a symptom of our national condition," he said. "This malady arises from a fundamental inability of this government to arrest the gloom and drift in the nation, its lack of statecraft and its unwillingness to carve a sound political direction."

While not specifically defending the mutinous soldiers, Enrile clearly trumpeted their theme. He said the young, reform-minded soldiers who overthrew deposed President Ferdinand Marcos wanted "a good, clean and efficient government."

"These young and idealistic officers and men of the armed forces need your faith, your confidence and your support," said Enrile, the former defense minister who is still thought to enjoy a wide following in the military.

Enrile was met with sharp questions about why he did not use his influence over "the boys," as he calls them, to stop their revolt and prevent bloodshed. Enrile said he made a personal decision not to become involved.

Threat to Alaska

What may prove to be one of the most important environmental battles of the decade is beginning to heat up as Congress moves toward a decision on whether or not to permit the development of oil and gas reserves in an isolated Alaskan territory.

On one side of the issue are the Interior Department and the energy industry, who want to open part of Alaska's 19.5 million-acre Arctic National Wildlife Refuge for oil and gas development. Battling the proposed exploration are a variety of environmental groups who claim such development would irreparably damage one of the world's only remaining arctic ecosystems.

Proponents of development cite an impressive list of arguments in favor of the venture: Preliminary investigations indicate that up to 29 billion barrels of oil and 64 trillion cubic feet of natural gas may lie beneath the frozen tundra of the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge; pointing to 15 years of oil exploration on the North Slope near Alaska's Prudhoe Bay, the energy industry says drilling can be conducted without harming area wildlife or vegetation; and, a major discovery of oil or natural gas would reduce America's dependence on unreliable foreign energy suppliers.

However, the voices calling for restraint offer equally compelling reasons to hold off on exploration. First, the likelihood of a significant discovery in the refuge is less than 20 percent, according to Interior Department scientists. Second, the wildlife refuge is an extremely fragile ecosystem — probably moreso than the Prudhoe Bay area — and any intrusion could easily upset the balance of nature. Finally, the issues of conservation of existing fuel and development of alternative energy sources have not been seriously considered by those lobbying for the exploration permits.

In the end, the risk of permanently damaging a truly unique tract of land far outweighs the possible benefits of temporarily relieving the nation's energy needs. A smarter approach would be to conserve the fuel we now have while researching alternatives to oil and natural gas.

Issue vs. innuendo

The rumors of Gary Hart's return to the Democratic presidential race at last seem to be dying out; Hart himself has categorically denied that he has any intention of resuming his candidacy. Suspicion that Hart's possible return was simply a means used by his supporters to test the political waters has also been denied.

But test or no test, the Hart rumors displayed one thing clearly: scandals and shocks are still too much the bread and butter of the average American voter, not to mention the average American journalist. Discussion of political candidates' personal lives is the focus of too much media coverage and public attention in a given election year, obscuring the important issues. And this year is no exception.

Last Thursday's debate between Rep. Jack Kemp, R-N.Y., and Rep. Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., in New Hampshire provided a good example of what should be of first importance in the short five months left before the Iowa caucuses. The two candidates centered on questions of foreign policy and agreed on virtually nothing.

The debate, though relatively low-profile, clearly paints two possible pictures of the future of U.S.-Soviet relations. There are similarly wide differences between candidates and parties on the whole range of domestic and international issues.

Voters have tremendous decisions to make in 1988, and there should be precious little time left over to pay attention to alleged sexual adventures and rumored comebacks, however entertaining such innuendos might be.

Tough legislation

Recently-released figures show that under Iowa's new domestic abuse law, assault arrests in spouse abuse cases have increased more than threefold. This tripling of arrests is astonishing, and it seems that the message is now coming across loud and clear: Domestic abuse is a serious problem and we have a law tough enough to deal with it.

In the past, police have been reluctant to make arrests and victims have often decided later not to press charges, sometimes fearing further abuse from their assailant. The mandatory arrests required by the new law have changed this. The police officer's job is simplified. If signs of abuse are visible, the abuser goes to jail. And the law lifts some of the tremendous pressure of being the bad guy from the victim.

Do mandatory arrests make a difference to the abuser? The magnitude of the law's effect as a deterrent is too nebulous to gauge, but perhaps we wouldn't be too far afield suggesting that there is some impact on potential offenders. Certainly, for the arrested abuser, the seriousness of the problem is made evident. And one would think the chances of recurrence are somewhat less likely.

It seems we may be making strides against an ugly social problem. One wonders whether mandatory assault arrests might have some benefit when applied to cases of child abuse.

Unfortunately, whatever good is accomplished by sending such a convincing message — that violence toward children is absolutely unacceptable — may be nullified by the disruption of family life. Since child abuse cases require selective judgment, family therapy continues to be the preferred route. Additional funding cuts in this area would be unwise.

The real issues of abortion

Scott Raab

I knew a man who had been a physician in Cleveland during the 1930s and 1940s. He began his career in association with an older doctor, whose patients included a number of wealthy women and their daughters who came for safe abortions. When the older doctor took time for a vacation, he asked his partner to look after this part of his practice.

The new M.D. found this sideline business lucrative and relatively undemanding, and built his own practice in large part upon abortion services. I never heard him raise the issue of morality, except to say that his patients would have found someone to perform the abortion if he'd refused. In his eyes, they were desperate and in need of professional medical attention.

Then someone turned him in, apparently a competitor, another M.D. He lost his medical license and spent a year in the federal prison at Lewisburg, Pa. That was in 1944 or so; when he got out, he moved to California. He lived another forty-odd years, occasionally returning to Cleveland when needed.

NEEDED FOR WHAT? For the granddaughters of some of his old patients, that's what. Because until the Supreme Court granted women the right to choose to abort pregnancies, what could the upper-class pregnant do? Back-alley butchers, like big families, are for poor people.

Now before all you pious Christians and imbecile ethicists grab your Crayolas to print outraged letters to the editor, try to think, just for a second, about the issues here. The issue is not when life begins. The issue is not pictures of mangled fetuses on billboards. The issue is not the morality of the women who want and need abortions.

The issue is whether poor and rich have equal access to good medical care, to safe medical care, to competent counseling and to the world of responsible birth control.

I'M NOT ARGUING that life begins at birth. I'm not sure when life begins. I'm certainly not saying that abortions represent responsible birth control. I don't think they do. I am saying that we live in a world where abortion predates Roe vs. Wade by thousands of years.

I am saying that if you think your "pro-life" label and crusade actually are going to save lives, you're mistaken. There will be no fewer unwanted pregnancies; no fewer abortions. Rich families will find good doctors to perform the service. Poor women won't: they will kill themselves along with their babies.

Of course, the poor shedding blood to honor the smug piety of the better-off is not exactly news. Nor is the subjugation of women and women's bodies to the will of men.

YES, THE ISSUE is also about women's control over their bodies. Pregnant women are not baby-machines whose reproductive systems belong to anyone but themselves. They are not sub-citizens whose choices about terminating pregnancy should be left to the morally "enlightened" screamers and clinic-bombers. They are human beings in trouble choosing among necessary evils. They need help and care.

If you're quick to condemn a pregnant woman to your idea of responsibility, you should lobby for laws to govern the circumstances under which men are allowed to disseminate bodily fluids.

And you could pledge a portion of your income to help a mother-to-be decide that her child won't be just another hungry reason to stop hoping for her own future.

If you're so worried about the "slaughter of the innocents," you need to stop thumping your Bible and take a look at the world around you, where the innocent are slaughtered everyday, outside of their mothers' wombs, often in the names of the Christianity and capitalism and cannibalistic morality you worship.

Try loving the born. And when they don't measure up to your standard of goodness, judge yourself first.

Viewers, stay tuned to vote

Introducing a different method of democracy

Washington — Here is an end-of-summer thought for you: "The ability to vote on public policy while snuggled under and electric blanket or munching on corn chips does not demean the system. On the contrary, the system can be enhanced and the American tradition honored."

The source of that remarkable thought is Richard S. Hollander, a Baltimore television broadcaster and author of the newly published Video Democracy (Lomond Publications, Inc.). He foresees — and embraces — a future in which local governments have been abolished. Citizens use two-way communication channels, through cable television linked to computers in their homes, to rule themselves.

In Mediaville (his imaginary, renamed Middletown), the city council was abolished and its "chamber converted to a TV studio... when the entire town had been wired for two-way cable. Each home had a computer which interacted with the cable TV system."

AND IN HOLLANDER'S example, Joe Citizen, bored with TV baseball and too broke for video gambling, punches the "public and civic affairs" button on his cable TV and finds the director of public works on his screen. On impulse, Joe walks to his computer and messages in a motion to require that all the potholes on Main Street be filled within 30 days. The proposal is put up for debate and quickly brought to a vote. Despite the grumbling of the department head, the watching citizens approve the instant referendum, 1,567 to 985.

Arguing that the needed technology is available, Hollander says the concept "is utterly practical and eminently democratic." State and national governments are still needed to deal with complex policy choices, he concedes, but small and medium-sized cities can adopt "direct democracy" and thereby cure official corruption, end public cynicism and gain "better, more efficient local government."

WELL, IT'S A wonderful dream but, as always, there's someone around to wake you to reality. The skeptic in this case is F. Christopher Arterton, dean of the Graduate School of Political Management in New York. His book — Teledemocracy: Can Technology Protect Democracy? — was published last month for the Roosevelt Center for American Policy Studies by the Sage Library of Social Research.

Arterton studied 13 local experiments in the use of interactive communications technology (including all the examples cited by Hollander) and came to a far more cautious conclusion: The new technology can improve citizen access to decision-makers and broaden participation in public-policy decisions. But it cannot bypass government to achieve direct democracy, Arterton says.

The experiments, held in various locations from Hawaii and Alaska to Reading, Pa., were interesting and, in their own terms, heartening. Whether they took the form of electronic town meetings, newspaper-ballot referenda after televised discussions or regional forums on health policy and planning issues, these ventures broadened participation, helped spread information and gave government officials a clearer sense of public attitudes.

BUT ARTERTON finds two big problems with all of them. It takes a lot of work (and cost) to bring government decision-making into living rooms or scattered meeting halls through cable TV or leased phone lines. The people who pay the costs or make the arrangements naturally want to have a big say in setting the agenda. Net result: What purports to be an exercise in democracy ends by being an operation manipulated by some elite.

"ALL OF THESE," he notes, "are political... problems of plebiscitary teledemocracy, but I found no instances that offered hope that they could be mitigated by technology."

The second problem is apathy. A large proportion of us simply don't want to shoulder the daily burdens of making public policy from our homes. Reviewing the local experiments, Arterton says, "I found little support for the notion that citizens have the interest necessary to sustain near universal participation; in practice, too few are interested enough in politics to make plebiscites a feasible means of policy-making... Most citizens, probably around two-thirds, will not participate."

Hollander acknowledges the problem. "The bottom-line question in a direct democracy concerns participation," he says. "Obviously, government cannot be effectively run by a small cadre of dedicated activists. It demands mass popular support. In many communities, citizen participation in public affairs is an embarrassment."

He holds out the hope "that people do care and that they want to participate in decision-making that affects their lives." But in the mythical Mediaville referendum, he has only 2,552 of the city's 50,000 residents voting. Some participatory democracy! Where were all the others? Probably snuggling under their electric blankets or munching corn chips.

S. Koreans finish constitution draft

By David Holley
Los Angeles Times

SEOUL, South Korea — The ruling and opposition parties agreed Monday on the rough draft of a new constitution intended to bring democracy to South Korea.

The draft constitution provides for election of the president by direct popular vote for a single five-year term. Direct presidential elections were a key opposition demand in the student-led, anti-government June riots.

A detailed version of the document is to be drawn up within the next 10 days by a bipartisan subcommittee of the National Assembly and sent to the full assembly for approval. It would then be submitted to a national referendum in October, with presidential elections planned for December.

"I AM DELIGHTED and my heart is full of deep emotion," Roh Tae Woo, president of the ruling Democratic Justice Party, said of the agreement. Roh is also his party's candidate for president.

Despite the agreement, political tension remained high. Kim Young Sam, head of the opposition Reunification Democratic Party and a potential presidential candidate, called off a meeting with Roh scheduled for Monday to protest what the opposition says is the continued detention of about 330 political prisoners.

"We are concerned that the government has launched a major suppression of moderate elements in the opposition," Kim told reporters in announcing his decision to postpone the meeting with Roh.

for this afternoon at Seoul National University. Student organizers said that they will demand the immediate release of the student body presidents of Seoul National University, Yonsei University and Ewha Women's University. All were arrested in August for alleged anti-government activities or statements.

TALKS BETWEEN Roh and Kim — they have yet to exchange views directly — are seen as important in preparing for elections for president and the National Assembly. Monday's announcement of agreement on the draft constitution may set the stage for them to meet later this week.

Elsewhere, more trouble threatened. University students are to return to campuses today from summer vacation, and a demonstration is already scheduled go on strike today in a bid for higher wages and better working conditions.

A police spokesman said that formal charges have been filed against 52 people arrested in riots Friday in Seoul and nine other cities. The riots, the worst since the massive June riots that persuaded the ruling party to promise democratic reforms, were to protest the death of a striking shipyard worker killed by a police tear gas grenade.

LABOR STRIFE ALSO continued. Tens of thousands of workers have gone on strike in recent weeks, and about 700 strikes across the country were still unsettled Monday.

About 15,000 unionized drivers for taxi companies in Seoul are set to Prime Minister Kim Chung Yul charged last week that leftists were trying to use the strikes to spark a violent revolution. He said that the government will maintain law and order at any cost.

Lavi bump fuels Israeli protest

By Carol Rosenberg
United Press International

JERUSALEM — Hundreds of angry aeronautics workers burned tires and snarled Monday morning traffic on Israel's main highway to protest a government decision to scrap the Lavi fighter jet.

Workers for the private Israel Aircraft Industries brought traffic to a one-mile, two-hour standstill along the Tel Aviv-Jerusalem highway outside Ben-Gurion International Airport.

They threw tires onto the roadway and set them ablaze, racing from one spot to another as police moved in to stop the demonstrations against a Cabinet vote Sunday canceling the warplane after seven years and $1.5 billion of development.

IAI PRESIDENT Moshe Keret announced between 3,000 and 4,000 members of its 20,000-member work force would be laid off as a result of the tight 12-11 Cabinet vote with one abstention.

"With one gesture, 12 people created destruction," a furious protester sputtered over state-run Israel Radio. "They didn't understand what exactly the Lavi is and what it does for this country."

No injuries or arrests were reported in the strike, but El Al Airline officials postponed five flights to Europe for nearly an hour in order to give passengers time to reach the airport.

Many travelers paid off their taxi drivers along the main highway and, carrying their luggage by hand, hiked nearly a mile to reach the terminal, an El Al spokesman said.

ACLU vows anti-Bork campaign

By Wendy Zentz
United Press International

WASHINGTON — The American Civil Liberties Union broke its 36-year tradition of neutrality on Supreme Court nominees Monday and said it would oppose the elevation of federal appeals Judge Robert Bork to the high court.

The group warned the ordinary rights of Americans would be threatened by Bork and vowed to wage a nationwide campaign to block the confirmation of President Ronald Reagan's "radical" nominee to the court.

"If Robert Bork's views were to prevail, the most critical function of the Supreme Court — the protection of individual rights — would atrophy and the system of checks and balances that protects such rights would be upset," said ACLU President Norman Dorsen.

THE ACLU'S BOARD of directors met over the weekend in New York and voted 47-16 to change its neutrality policy on Supreme Court nominees and 61-3 to oppose Bork.

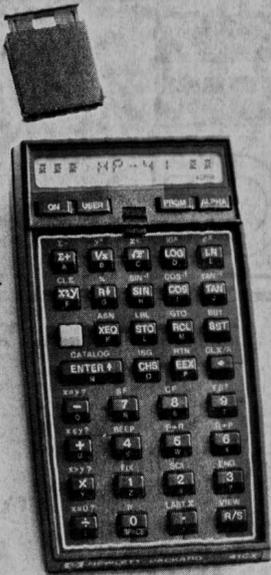

In the past, the group has taken no official position on Supreme Court nominees but has evaluated their records on civil rights and liberties issues and delivered its assessment to the Senate. The group made one exception in 1971 when it opposed the Supreme Court nomination of William Rehnquist but it never changed the ACLU's policy.

"We plan to reject Judge Bork through his own words," said ACLU Director Ira Glasser. "Those words reveal what America would be like if his views prevail. It is a harsh and frightening picture which we believe most Americans will reject."

Students 'hooping' mad that basketball courts may go

By Tom Dickerson
The Daily Iowan

A year ago, USA Today ranked the UI Field House as the best place in Iowa to find a pickup basketball game.

Its editors may have to revise that ranking if the UI Armory is destroyed, an action which would mean the destruction of six of the eight basketball courts at the Field House, as they would be turned into the proposed UI psychiatric hospital replacing the Armory.

"I think that sucks; where else are you going to get some exercise," said UI senior Darren Willingham.

"If they only have two courts, I'm going to gain 40 to 50 pounds. I guess I'll take up racquetball."

Most users of the Field House had not yet heard the announcement; but those who did were shocked.

"I CAN'T BELIEVE that," Maria Paulsen said. "This is a real convenient location for most people. There's really no other place in town to go."

The courts in the Armory are also used for intramural activities, sport camps and tournaments.

"They just put this place up," said UI sophomore Doug Wright, referring to the recreational facilities. "I think it's a mistake to put it (the psychiatric hospital) here. It's a great facility."

Many regulars said they don't have any idea where they will play once the basketball courts are removed, especially during the winter.

"A lot of people come here to stay in shape," Willingham said. "It doesn't make any sense at all. Why take the courts out when they're being used so much?"

In the midst of a pickup game, UI senior Kelvin Burton shouted what he thinks the effect of not having the extra courts will be. "It's going to make a bunch of fat, smart students."

Armory

exercise facility."

PLANNING AND administrative Services Director Richard Gibson was unavailable for comment Monday.

"We basically use this facility from six in the morning until nine at night every day," Army ROTC Director Lt. Col. Steven Fredericks said.

Fredericks said the armory location is an "ideal" location for ROTC because the building houses everything the 225 students enrolled in military science classes need in one central location.

He said the armory houses six offices, three classrooms and a 10-line firing range for the Army ROTC.

"This place is going to be missed if it's torn down," he said. "The university is concerned about the displacement of us and Rec Services, but I hate to move."

Fredericks said he has not been given formal notice that the armory facilities will be moved.

Borg said the new psychiatric hospital has been part of the hospital's construction plans since 1972.

"The psychiatric hospital is now the oldest building on the west campus that still has patient care," he said, adding the 1919 building no longer meets patient needs.

He said the present hospital — east of the Health Sciences Library — had about 1,000 inpatients and treated about 13,800 outpatients last year.

Gulf

resumption last week of air raids against Iranian oil facilities.

Kuwait, in particular, has been singled out as a target by Iranian forces because it provides financial aid to Iraq and permits war material for Baghdad to pass through Kuwaiti ports.

The Iranian position was reiterated over the weekend by Foreign Minister Ali Akbar Velayati, who said that Iranian retaliation would include attacks on "facilities which equip Iraq and beef up its war machine."

IRAQ'S RESUMED ATTACKS on the Iranian facilities came after a six week de facto truce in the tanker war. The truce was initiated by a U.N. Security Council resolution ordering both parties to stop fighting.

But Iraq, which had accepted the Security Council's cease-fire order, grew increasingly impatient with Iran for failing to formally accept the plan.

In announcing that its fighters were in operation over the gulf again Monday, Iraq said that it hit the fifth tanker to be attacked since resumption of the air strikes Saturday. Gulf shipping officials have confirmed three of the five Iraqi claims against shipping. In addition, Iraqi fighter bombers have attacked Iranian oil loading platforms and offshore terminals.

IN WASHINGTON, a State Department spokesman criticized Iraq's resumption of attacks on Iranian targets in the Persian Gulf, but reiterated the administration's expressions of understanding about Baghdad's frustration at Iran's failure to heed the U.N. cease-fire order.

Iraq has been told about Washington's deep concern at its new attacks on offshore Iranian oil installations and ships, State Department spokesman Phyllis Oakley said.

Prosecutor

said he would "talk to anyone necessary" in the executive branch to secure the information he needed.

Indictments are now expected in late October or November at the earliest. In addition to the work still to be done by his office, the sources said Walsh and his prosecutors have decided to wait until after the Senate-House Iran-Contra committees make their final report. Committee officials say they hope to do this by early October, but they say it is "a massive job" and could take a bit longer.

BEFORE WALSH ASKS the grand jury to return any conspiracy indictment, however, sources say it is virtually obligatory for him to try to question the president about what he knew of the alleged misdeeds. Otherwise, the prosecutors risk being blind-sided later on by defense claims of presidential authorization.

In its court brief and in other statements Monday, the Justice Department asserted that it was firmly committed to investigating wrongdoing by high government officials and that it had taken pains to ensure that the existing independent counsel probes would not be derailed by offering the prosecutors "backup" appointments by Meese.

would be a single-digit increase.

THE BOARD APPROVED a 12 percent tuition increase for resident undergraduates last fall, raising tuition for a full-time, resident undergraduate to about $1,500 for the current academic year and approved a 20 percent increase for non-resident undergraduates, raising tuition to $4,900 for a full-time, non-resident undergraduate student.

According to regent policy passed this summer, the board must consider tuition increases at its September or October meeting held at one of the three regent universities.

Reck said the board will hear Richey's recommendations to the board Sept. 16 in Iowa City and will vote on the proposal at its October meeting in Ames.

"They told us to be prepared to make our presentation in September," Reck said.

As executive secretary, Richey presents the recommendation of the board office for the 9-member board to consider.

The board makes the final decision concerning the increase.

Richey said he would have his final recommendation to the board by the middle of next week.

hit the cable and cut it. "Cables get hit all the time, but it rarely happens that the cable is this large," Tomas said. "I can't remember an accident like this happening for about 10 or 12 years."

The cable, which contained more than 5,400 wires and serviced about 2,400 local homes and businesses west of the Iowa River and south of Interstate 80 — mostly in Coralville — was one of the main phone cables in the area, said Tomas.

"This is one of the main runs for the phone system," Tomas said.

The size of the cable is making repair difficult, Northwestern Bell Supervisor Sharon Bohlen said. Tomas said each of the 2,700 lines must be sorted and connected by hand.

"IT'S GOING TO be very time-consuming to fix it," Bohlen said. "Right now we're telling customers it might be Sept. 2 before we can completely repair it."

Northwestern Bell Eastern Iowa Supervisor Dan Gerken said the Northwestern Bell repair numbers were swamped with calls Monday afternoon and night as customers tried to get their service restored.

"There have been quite a few calls for repair service," Gerken said. "It is terribly unusual that an accident of this magnitude occurs. Cables get hit through digging all the time, but generally there are only 50 or 60 customers affected."

Gerken said the company has not been able to offer much comfort to people concerned about having their service restored.

"All we can tell people is that we're working on the problem," Gerken said.

St. Louis holds on to upset Chicago

By Kent McDill
United Press International

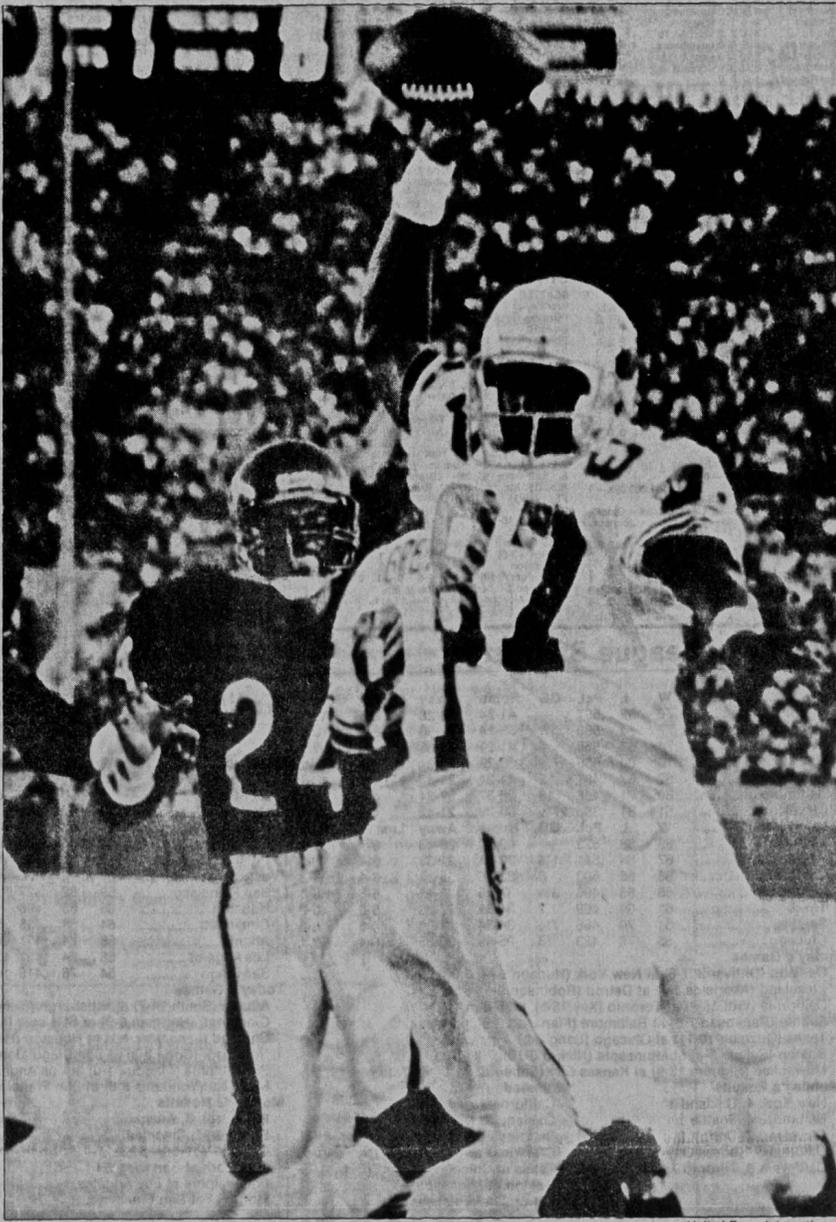

CHICAGO — Don Holmes caught two touchdown passes on his back, one from Neil Lomax and the other from Cliff Stoudt as the St. Louis Cardinals held on Monday night for a 20-16 preseason triumph over the Chicago Bears at Soldier Field. The victory gave the Cardinals an 8-0 record against Bears Coach Mike Ditka, with six of the wins in preseason and two in the regular season. The Bears were without quarterback Jim McMahon, who has not played in the preseason because of shoulder pain. Holmes, a second-year receiver from Mesa Junior College, caught a twice-deflected 38-yard pass from Lomax in the end zone with no time remaining in the first half, giving the Cardinals a 13-2 lead. On the Cardinals' first possession of the second half, he caught a 31-yard pass from Stoudt while falling onto his back at the 1-yard line, then rolled into the end zone to increase the margin to 20-2.

LOMAX ALSO THREW a 13-yard TD pass to Troy Johnson in the first quarter. Lomax played the first half, completing 12 of 21 passes for 128 yards. Stoudt was 6 of 14 for 88 yards.

Mike Tomczak, who started for the Bears, completed 15 of 23 for 132 yards and one interception. Doug Flutie was 5 of 10 for 75 yards and one touchdown in the second half, and Jim Harbaugh completed 1 of 15 passes for 25 yards.

The Cardinals took a 6-0 lead on Lomax's pass to Johnson, who caught the ball at the 8-yard line, slipped a tackle by Wilbur Marshall and jogged into the end zone. The extra-point attempt by John Lee was blocked by Dan Hampton.

Chicago scored a safety with 1:18 left in the first half and then marched to the St. Louis 18. Kevin Butler's 36-yard field-goal try was blocked by Leonard Smith with 14 seconds left, and the Cardinals took the ball at the Chicago 38 with three seconds left.

Lomax's desperation pass into the end zone bounced off two Chicago defenders and into the hands of Holmes, who was lying on the ground.

The Bears came back from the 18-point deficit with two touchdowns in six minutes. Running back Thomas Sanders scored on a 13-yard run late in the third quarter, and Flutie threw a 5-yard touchdown pass to Riley Walton with 9:30 left in the game.

Iowa eyes move out of cellar

By Scott Wingert
The Daily Iowan

In what must be the greatest challenge facing an Iowa athletic team this fall, first-year cross country Coach Larry Wiecek will try to pull his team out of the all-too-familiar Big Ten cellar.

Unfortunately, with only two runners on scholarship, three more with only limited experience and we can realistically have a goal yet," Wiecek said. "I will emphasize the individual aspect until we have a team component. We want to accentuate the positive and develop what we have."

This year's team is led by sophomore Rod Chambers of Chicago's Mendel High School and junior Sean Corrigan of Hoffman Estates, Ill. The pair finished 55th and 59th, respectively, in last season's Big Ten meet.

"Both have the ability to compete in the Big Ten in both cross country and track and field," Wiecek said. "I feel both can crack the top 20 in the conference this year."

"I'd like to think I could improve that much," Corrigan said. "Things started going well at the end of track season last year, and I've worked pretty hard over the summer. I'm ready to get started."

THOUGH ONLY IN HIS first full year as head coach, Wiecek speaks with a tone of experience when it comes to long-distance running. He captured the Big Ten cross country title twice for Iowa in 1966 and 1967.

"I can't tell people we're going to be an outstanding team and then go out and compete on positive talk," Wiecek said. "It is important we gain some development in the fall, both with our strong runners and our new runners. We'll improve, but it's going to take a while."

That is the philosophy that brought Wiecek over from the track team to take over for former boss Ted Wheeler. With Wheeler released from cross country duties two others who literally just walked in the door, the prospects of this squad finishing last in the conference for the fifth straight year are probably better than Wiecek would like to admit.

But despite the numbers, Wiecek is long on optimism and eager to build a foundation to work Iowa back to Big Ten respectability.

Heisman candidate White drives Spartans

By Mike Trilk
The Daily Iowan

CHICAGO — When George Perles took over the helm of the Michigan State football program, he told Spartan alumni it would take five years to bring the program back to national prominence.

This is the year Spartan fans find out if Perles will hold true to his promise.

The former Pittsburgh Steelers defensive coordinator is entering his fifth season at Michigan State and has yet to put Michigan State on top of the Big Ten, let alone the nation. But in 1987 expectations run high in East Lansing, Mich., as nine starters return on defense and

This is the seventh of a nine-part series previewing the Big Ten. Today: Michigan State eight starters return on offense, including a healthy Heisman Trophy candidate in Lorenzo White.

"LORENZO WHITE IS

healthy," Perles said at the Big Ten kickoff ceremonies last month. "His knee is fine. His ankle is fine. He doesn't have an agent. He didn't take any money, and he'll be playing football this fall. For our football team Lorenzo is a very important part."

Last year Lorenzo was a preseason favorite to win the Heisman but was slowed by injuries and a rookie line. This time around the hype isn't as intense but as far as White is concerned things will be just as difficult.

"I don't think any of the pressure is off," White said. "The hype is just in the media. That's not going to stop the opponent from saying 'Lorenzo White, he really stunk last year so he's not going to do anything.' Once the season starts I'll have just as much attention as I had last year."

BECAUSE LORENZO is healthy don't think the Spartans are going to rely on the senior tailback. Perles has a crop of talented performers including returning all-American punter Greg Montgomery.

"If Lorenzo stays healthy we have a chance to have a very fine year," Perles said. "But it is a little different than last year. We have some other people to talk about offensively like our punter (Greg) Montgomery. We all like to talk about the quarterback position. We

Players' union sets deadline for NFL strike

By Will Dunham
United Press International

WASHINGTON — The NFL players' union Monday set a strike deadline and decried the "lack of progress" in stalled talks with management.

The nine-member executive committee of the NFL Players Association met privately for 5½ hours and voted unanimously on the deadline. However, union executive director Gene Upshaw would not disclose the date until a Sept. 8 vote by union representatives from the 28 NFL teams.

The collective bargaining agreement between the league and the 1,600 players was to expire at midnight.

"I wish I had better news, I wish I could say that we have made a lot of progress because over four years ago I started down this road hoping to reach an agreement short of a work stoppage," Upshaw said at a news conference.

"TODAY, I'M NOT SO optimistic that that will occur because of a lack of progress. We intend to bargain with the other side, we intend to reach an agreement with the other side and eventually the other side will have to bargain with the players."

The current five-year agreement settled the 57-day strike that erased seven weeks of the 1982 season. It was the first strike to interrupt a regular season, although preseason players' strikes were also held in 1968, 1970, 1974 and 1982. The NFL's regular season opens with a full slate of games Sept. 13.

The union and NFL Management Council, the league's negotiating unit, have not met at the bargaining table since Aug. 14 in New Orleans. Union spokesman Frank Woschitz said talks will begin again sometime before Sept. 8.

MANAGEMENT COUNCIL Executive Director Jack Donlan criticized the union for not announcing the strike deadline.

"If their attempt was to put pressure on negotiations, I would think they would have announced a date," he said in a statement. "If we had a date 30 days hence, we could see the light, but if their date is a couple of weeks down the road, I don't think a Herculean effort could get us there. If that's the case, they're still playing games."

He also said if the union intends a short strike to gain management's attention, the owners would adjust their bargaining positions to compensate for lost revenue.

The union gave its mandatory 60 days' notice of a possible strike to the National Labor Relations Board and the league's 28 teams July 15, meaning the earliest strike date would be Sept. 15.

Navratilova, Lendl lead Open's field

By Martin Lader
United Press International

NEW YORK — Defending champions Ivan Lendl and Martina Navratilova enter the U.S. Open today with a possessive drive to defend what they consider their personal property.

Lendl has won the Open the last two years and appeared in the final five consecutive times. Navratilova has captured the women's tennis title three of the last four years.

However, Navratilova finds herself in a peculiar predicament. For the first time since June 1982 (except for five months in 1985), she no longer holds the world No. 1 ranking, a loss which galls her more than she admits. During that stretch she was a fighting champion, winning 70 tournaments.

SO IT WILL BE with the twin objective of retaining what she believes is hers, and reclaiming what she lost, that Navratilova begins defense of the Open championship today against Kate Gompert of Rancho Mirage, Calif.

Navratilova, ranked No. 2 behind 18-year-old Steffi Graf, will be second on Center Court following the match between Lendl and South African Barry Moir that touches off the $3,979,000, 13-day championship. Top prize in men's and women's singles is a record $250,000.

"I'm just calling it a temporary setback," Navratilova said. "I don't think the rankings will stay that way forever. If Steffi wins the Open, then she'll be No. 1. If I win, I should be No. 1."

Navratilova fell from the top by losing her first six tournaments this year before gaining her only success in 10 months by winning Wimbledon. Graf, meantime, has won 50 of 51 matches, the only defeat coming to Navratilova at Wimbledon.

GRAF, WHO withdrew from a tournament at Mahwah, N.J., last week because of a dental problem, plays her first match Wednesday against Bettina Fulco of Argentina.

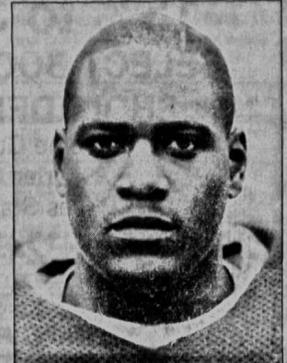

In last year's Open, Navratilova survived three match points to beat Graf in the semifinals, then routed Helena Sukova in the final.

Lendl, like Navratilova born in Czechoslovakia but choosing to live in the United States, has been playing well of late, winning hard court tournaments in Washington and Montreal. He won the French Open before losing the Wimbledon final to Pat Cash.

A couple of the fan favorites face difficult opening tests today. John McEnroe, a four-time Open champion, meets Matt Anger in the third match on Center Court and fourth seed Boris Becker takes on Tim Wilkison in the featured night match starting at 6:30 p.m.

McEnroe, who is seeded eighth, has not won a tournament this year, although he has reached five finals. He was beaten in the first round of last year's Open by Paul Annacone.

Becker has had a disappointing year for him, winning three tournaments but none a Grand Slam. Wilkison was the only American man to reach the quarterfinals at the 1986 Open, and he promised to give Becker a good tussle.

Lorenzo White

THE SPARTANS WILL be able to balance a potent offense with a loaded defense.

"What Michigan State needs most is to go to the Rose Bowl," Perles said. "But to do that we need defense. We return eight starters to the defense that are bigger, stronger and faster than a year

N.C. State guard switches to Big Ten

EVANSTON, Ill. (UPI)—Northwestern announced Monday that junior guard Walker Lambiotte of North Carolina State has signed a national letter of intent to play basketball at Northwestern.

Lambiotte, a 6-foot-7, 203-pound guard, will enroll this fall at Northwestern and become eligible for the 1988-89 season, Northwestern Coach Bill Foster said.

A year ago, Lambiotte and former Iowa women's tennis player Michele Conlon were the only two student-athletes in the nation to serve on the NCAA's Long-Range Planning Committee.

Johnson sets 100 meters world record

ROME (UPI)—Ben Johnson became the new world record holder for 100 meters Sunday with his time of 9.83 seconds. But Johnson said Monday he is considering a "sprint double" in the 1988 Olympics at Seoul.

Johnson said he would likely also run the 200 meters in Seoul. Until now, he has rarely run the distance, at which his best performance is a fairly modest 20.39 seconds.

Ohio State will not petition NCAA

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Ohio State refused Monday to petition the NCAA to restore the eligibility of All-America receiver Cris Carter.

Ohio State President Edward Jennings announced the school would not change its decision on Carter, who was thrown off the team July 15 for accepting a $6,800 loan from a New York sports agent.

Carter now goes back into the pool for the supplemental draft by the NFL this Friday. Several teams, including the Cleveland Browns, have said they will not draft him. Only one team, the St. Louis Cardinals, sent a scout to a workout by Carter in Indianapolis last week.

Arbitrator will rule on collusion charges

NEW YORK (UPI)—The arbitrator for major-league baseball will rule Sept. 21 on charges club owners have conspired to restrict free agency, it was announced Monday.

Arbitrator Tom Roberts discussed the issues Monday with the players' union and management. The parties said a resolution would be announced in three weeks.

The crux of the dispute concerns two sentences at the end of the free-agency rules in baseball's Basic Agreement:

"The utilization or non-utilization of (free-agency) rights is an individual matter to be determined solely by each player and each club for his or its own benefit. Players shall not act in concert with other players and clubs shall not act in concert with other clubs."

Ueberroth suspends Orioles' Wiggins

NEW YORK (UPI)—Baseball Commissioner Peter Ueberroth Monday suspended Baltimore Orioles second baseman Alan Wiggins indefinitely for "improper behavior."

Ueberroth's office refused to elaborate on the suspension and the Orioles organization declined comment.

"The suspension is the result of improper behavior by Wiggins and is effective immediately," the commissioner's one-paragraph statement said.

Michigan quarterback forgoes final year

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI)—Chris Zurbrugg, who was expected to contend for the starting quarterback position this season at Michigan, has decided to forego his fifth year of eligibility, Wolverine coach Bo Schembechler announced late Monday.

Schembechler said Zurbrugg left the team during the weekend. The 6-foot-1, 207-pound Zurbrugg played in 20 games at Michigan and completed 70 of 134 passing attempts for 859 yards and six touchdowns.

Falcons' Andrews announces retirement

SUWANEE, Ga. (UPI)—William Andrews, the Atlanta Falcons' career rushing leader, retired Monday, a little more than three years after suffering a knee injury that wrecked his stellar career.

Andrews, who rushed for 5,772 yards and 29 touchdowns in his NFL career, damaged the nerve in his left knee during a preseason practice session Aug. 21, 1984, and doctors questioned if he'd ever play football again. He missed the entire 1984 and 1985 seasons.

Iowa sailing club to take on East Coast waters, squads

By Hugh Donlan
The Daily Iowan

An improved Iowa sailing club's racing team will challenge for the Nevin's Trophy at the prestigious King's Point Regatta Sept. 12 on Long Island, New York.

The regatta is sponsored by the U.S. Merchant Marine Academy and will feature many of the East Coast's best racing squads.

"The competition will be tough," Coach Bob Woodward said. "The East Coast teams are generally a lot better than Midwestern teams. They have nicer water to sail on and are more experienced."

Skippers Bill Vickers and Gunther Lubben and crew members Amy Baltzer and Joey Grandgenett will represent the sailing club in New York.

"Bill and Gunther have got the experience," Woodward said of his racers. "Their records have proven them to be our best skippers."

The quality of the club's racing team has been improved by the addition of some new members.

Sportsclubs

Amy Baltzer, a transfer from Stanford, freshman John Vratisnas and sophomore Liz Churchwell give the sailing club a deeper, more experienced roster.

This gives captain Bill Vickers good reason to be optimistic about the season. "We could be one of the top teams in the Midwest," he said.

There will be a membership meeting Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in EPB Room 428. Anyone interested in the sailing club is encouraged to attend.

The Iowa rugby football club opens its 22nd season with a match against Western Illinois Sept. 12. The fall season will conclude with the Big Ten Championships in Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 7-8.

There will be an organizational meeting Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the Harvard Room in the Union. This is the time for new or interested players to become acquainted with the game of rugby.

Practice will be today at 4:30 p.m. on the field near Hawkeye Apartments. For more information call 338-7907.

The Iowa women's rugby club will practice today at 5:30 p.m. on the field near Hawkeye Apartments. No experience is necessary, interested persons should contact Trudy Grout at 351-1271.

The Iowa lacrosse club will practice Wednesday from 4 to 6 p.m. on Melrose Field. There will be an organizational meeting Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the Colonial Room of the Union. Interested players should contact Scott Vogt or Keith Wienck at 351-9272.

The Iowa water polo club will hold an informational meeting Thursday at 7 p.m. in the Field House Room 302. For more information, contact Marty at 338-5281 or Dave at 353-0353.

Sportsclubs is a weekly Tuesday feature in The Daily Iowan. To have information published contact Hugh Donlan at the DI sports desk, 335-5848.

Hawkeyes

to concentrate on track, Wiczorek feels the move will aid in both coaches' ability to get out and recruit some quality long-distance runners.

WITH NO NEW RECRUITS on the roster this year, Iowa will rely on three veterans from last year to round out the scoring. Seniors Scott Ventura and Louis English, along with sophomore David Brown, all competed in the Big Ten meet last year. Walk-ons Bruce Nie, a transfer from Eastern Illinois, and L.J. Albrecht are late additions to the team.

"The first week of the season will be a testing period for us," Wiczorek said. "It should show us where we're at and what kind of shape we're in. It will also give me some time to get to know the walk-ons."

As far as the Big Ten race goes, Wiczorek expects perennial favorites Wisconsin and Illinois, both NCAA qualifiers from a year ago, to again contend for the title with Indiana close behind. As for Iowa, anything above 10th would be something to cheer about.

"I just want the team to do better this year," Chambers said. "I've been putting in a lot of miles lately and am fired up for the season to start. I want us to place high — fifth or better."

Iowa opens the season Sept. 12 with a home triangular with Augustana and Drake at Finkbine Golf Course at 10:30 a.m.

Spartans NFL

ago. We are in a position where we should have a defense that will give the offense the ball in very good field position the majority of the time.

So with all of the talent returning to East Lansing this year, what stands between the Spartans and a trip to Pasadena, Calif.? The answer is a treacherous first five games. Michigan State's schedule opens next Monday night when Southern California visits Spartan Stadium. From there the Spartans go to Notre Dame and then come home for Florida State before opening the Big Ten season.

Should the Spartans survive the first games and Lorenzo White return to his sophomore form, things could be very rosy at Michigan State come January.

owners to play with substitute players if there is a walkout.

Upshaw visited the training camps of 10 teams the past two weeks, concluding this weekend in Seattle. In May, 94 percent of the players voted to authorize union leadership to call a strike if it believed a walkout was warranted.

The two sides are far apart on major issues. The union is demanding unrestricted free agency that would permit players whose contract have expired to play with other teams, bigger guaranteed contracts and greater contribution from the owners to the players' pension fund.

Management wants a restrictive rookie salary scale and mandatory random drug testing for all players.

Midget is suspected in robbery

BELLEVILLE, Ill. (UPI) — A midget from Texas who eats fire, walks on broken glass and makes doves disappear is suspected of stealing a carnival sideshow — including a tent, two stages, a ticket box and a bullhorn.

"Where do you look?" asked Don Staley, a St. Clair County sheriff's deputy. "Unless you see a little, 2-foot-8-inch guy running around someplace — I guess you'd notice him if you see him."

Police also want to question the midget's 30-year-old brother, who is 5-foot-10-inches tall, weighs 130 pounds and is toothless, the deputy's report said. The brother worked as the sideshow's master of ceremonies.

The names of the brothers were being withheld pending charges, Staley said.

James Dill, 48, of Cahokia, Ill., said he signed the midget cowboy several weeks ago to star in a coming tour of the eastern United States.

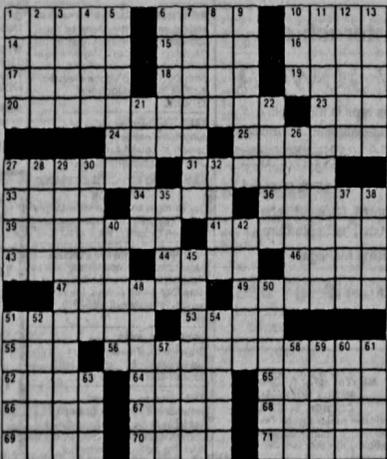

DILL REPORTED the theft to police Thursday, when he was supposed to meet the men to travel to the sideshow's next engagement. He told police a public address system, an electric circuit-breaker box and a red refrigerator also were missing.

The sideshow was between carnival appearances, and the two brothers were staying in a trailer Dill owns in Washington Park. He said the two also had stored equipment there for their act.

Soviets to sell trial film of young German pilot

By William J. Eaton Los Angeles Times

MOSCOW — The Soviet government is trying to sell a film documentary of the trial of West German pilot Mathias Rust to Western television networks for $100,000 or more, it was learned Monday.

The film, along with a 25-minute segment showing Rust in Lefortovo Prison, has reportedly been offered by Belka International, a little-known American company, to West European and U.S. television networks.

Rust, 19, has been in jail since he flew a light plane from Helsinki to Moscow through Soviet air defenses and landed May 28 in the shadow of the Kremlin at the edge of Red Square.

Defense Minister Sergei Sokolov and other high military officials were dismissed as a result, on grounds that the violation of Soviet air space showed a lack of readiness in the air-defense forces.

Rust, who is to go on trial Wednesday, faces a maximum sentence of 10 years in prison if convicted of charges of violating flight regulations, entering the country illegally and "malicious hooliganism."

An official of the Soviet TV network told a Western television representative that the film is to be provided not on a daily basis but after the trial's conclusion, which is expected Friday.

A SPOKESMAN FOR THE Foreign Ministry said that TV cameras will be barred from the trial except for a five-minute period each day at the opening of the proceedings. But an official of Gosteleradio, the state TV and radio organization, said that it was trying to get permission to have a camera in the courtroom throughout the trial.

The Moscow bureau chief of a West European TV network said that he had received a call Aug. 23 from a Russian who said that his company had exclusive rights to film the Rust trial and would sell a documentary on an exclusive, countrywide basis.

Cynthia Rosenberger, a spokeswoman in Moscow for Belka, said that the documentary would include an interview with Rust filmed in jail by a Soviet crew. She did not offer any additional details, but Western television sources said the asking price ranged from $100,000 to a figure "closer to $200,000" for an American network.

The Soviet attempt to cash in on the trial reportedly has found no takers yet, the sources said.

Caine again on spy chase

By Kevin C. Kretschmer
The Daily Iowan

More than 20 years ago, a relative unknown cockney actor named Michael Caine burst onto the international cinema scene as Len Deighton's secret agent Harry Palmer in a trilogy starting with The Ipcress File. The likeable and lately omnipresent actor has returned to familiar territory in The Fourth Protocol, a film scripted by spy thriller specialist Frederick Forsyth from his own novel.

Caine, who actually worked both sides of the camera (he shares credit as executive producer), stars as British security agent John Preston. Despite considerable success as an operative, Preston falls out of favor with his superior. Apparently, his off-beat methods and impertinence are not considered "cricket" and he is transferred to a less demanding post where he might learn to be "very British." No matter, he quickly becomes involved with a case where he must use his skills to make the world safe for democracy, i.e., NATO.

IN A TRULY bizarre twist of fate, failed James Bond candidate Pierce Brosnan ("Remington Steele") is cast as a Russian military officer who is the rising star of the Illegals Directorate. As Maj. Petrofsky and his counteridentity James Edward Ross, Brosnan displays a cool charm that gives way to a calculated ruthlessness with a blink of an eye.

Petrofsky/Ross is the principal agent designated to detonate a small nuclear device at a United States Air Force base, located outside London, that would coincide with an anti-nuclear arms demonstration. It is all part of a plan by the KGB head to turn Western opinion against NATO and resume the Cold War.

Director John Mackenzie shows a good degree of talent in handling the action sequences and adds a few nice camera setups (especially a couple of overhead shots), though they are barely enough to save the film from its flaws. Forsyth's script is filled with extraneous material that is totally or entirely unrelated to the plot. Character development is appreciated, meandering segments used for padding are not.

ONE SUCH SEGMENT involves a United States Air Force officer and his wife who invite their new neighbor to an evening on the town. Bowling and drinking competitions between the American officer and the disguised Russian agent are won by the latter. The American's wife then attempts to seduce the victor on the dance floor and in the car while her husband lies passed out in the back seat, but Petrofsky/Ross resists her advances. These characters are never seen again and no effort is made to explain their insertion into the movie.

Another obvious shortcoming is that no attempt was made by the actors portraying Russian characters to affect an appropriate accent. This would be less of a problem if all the actors in the cast were British, but the addition of Americans Ned Beatty (who only appears on screen for about five minutes) as a Soviet general, and Joanna Cassidy as a Russian bomb expert prevents even a minimum of consistency.

Fans of Caine and Brosnan may want to take in The Fourth Protocol, an average or slightly better film of its type. Fans of British spy thrillers, however, may want to rent The Ipcress File instead.
