UI's utility costs skyrocket due to poor conservation

By Lisa Legge
The Daily Iowan

The UI may have the dubious honor of using proportionally the most utilities in the Big Ten. The UI used 309,459 British thermal units per gross square foot of UI buildings in fiscal year 1985, according to a report comparing utility use of major Midwestern universities, UI Physical Plant Director James Christenson said Thursday.

The figure is slightly less than Purdue University's usage of 314,396 Btu per square foot, but Christenson said the UI may have taken the lead last year.

"It's a leadership we don't want to have," Christenson said. The UI's utility budget is $21 million of the $212.4 million general university budget.

Purdue University concentrated on utility conservation in the past year, Christenson said, and may have decreased its usage for that fiscal year.

"WE HAVEN'T GIVEN adequate attention to energy conservation," Christenson said. "The price of oil went down. The price of coal is low. Everyone thinks the energy crisis is over, but the bucks are still going into the utilities."

"This is wasted money that could be used for other purposes like higher salaries, new facilities and maintenance," he said. "It's better to use the money that way than to burn it up in the smoke stack."

This year the UI's annual utility consumption increased approximately 4.5 percent, Christenson said.

"It's a natural increase if we don't do anything about it," he said. "We apply more lasers and buy more and more equipment and demand increases."

UI ENROLLMENT IS probably not a factor in the increased utility consumption. Enrollment has declined slightly in the past three years, and although enrollment figures are not yet available for 1987-88, this year's enrollment is expected to also decline slightly.

"Students are bringing more items with them to the residence halls — stereos, televisions, personal computers — that contributes (to consumption)," UI Residence Services Director George Droll said.

The Residence Hall Guidebook asks that students voluntarily conserve utilities by taking shorter showers, turning off lights and using stairs instead of using the elevator when possible.

More computer terminals have been installed throughout campus, which may have contributed to the increase, but according to Bob Ontjes, business manager of Weeg Computing Center, improvements in the UI's main frame have reduced energy usage.

"Compared to previous power consumption, we're using less," Ontjes said.

ANOTHER ADDITION to campus, the UI Boyd College of Law Building, completed last spring, is probably more efficient than the old law building, Assistant Dean of Law Tom Seneff said.

"This building was constructed to be very energy efficient," he said. "It makes use of solar heat and more efficient office lights. I would think it uses a lot less energy than the old building."

Water consumption is another concern for the UI, Christenson said.

Currently, the UI has a capacity to produce four million gallons of water per day but has adapted equipment in order to allow production of six million gallons per day.

"We're producing the absolute maximum," he said. "We're straining the plant."

THE STATE BOARD of Regents is considering a project to upgrade the water plant, but until then Christenson is discouraging waste.

Christenson, who has been at the UI since April, offered suggestions for conserving utilities at the UI.

"When running equipment or lights, turn it off when you don't use it. We don't do that because it seems too insignificant," he said, adding that lighting makes up $2 million of the $21 million utility budget at the UI.

LASA: Grant voting right to EPC student

By Paula Roesler
The Daily Iowan

A student member on the UI College of Liberal Arts Educational Policy Committee may be given voting privileges if a proposal making its way through the college is eventually approved.

In a special meeting Wednesday, the College of Liberal Arts faculty members will consider a proposal made last semester by the UI Liberal Arts Student Association. LASA proposed that the student member of the EPC be given voting privileges.

"It's something we've been kicking around for some time," LASA President Gordon Fischer said.

THE 10-MEMBER committee — made up of a College of Liberal Arts dean, three faculty members each from the humanities, natural sciences and social sciences, and one student — evaluates courses and programs within the college and makes recommendations to maintain a consistent educational policy.

LASA Vice President and student EPC member Paul Oetken said he plans to briefly present the merits of the student vote on the EPC at the faculty meeting.

"LASA is not doing this with the intention of setting the curriculum," Oetken said. "We don't have any illusions about that."

"We just want to have a tangible voice in the proceedings," he added.

IF THE FACULTY at the special meeting approve the proposal by one-third, ballots will be mailed to the entire liberal arts faculty, Liberal Arts Administration Program Associate Marcia Lindgren said.

And if three-fifths of the faculty mark their ballots in favor of allowing an EPC student vote, the

Gordon Fischer

EPC will make a recommendation to the Faculty Assembly, she said. "I have no way of knowing if it will pass, but I think it has a good chance," Lindgren said.

Faculty members are elected to the EPC. The EPC student member and student alternate member are appointed by LASA, Lindgren said.

"I guess that's why some faculty members feel that students shouldn't be on faculty committees," Lindgren said.

SHE SAID SOME faculty members might think one student representative wouldn't adequately represent the entire liberal arts student population. But the EPC didn't want to expand the number of members, she said.

Oetken said he doesn't think adequate representation will be a problem.

"Voting decisions will be left to the discretion of the student on the EPC, but that person is committed to the Liberal Arts Student Association," he said.

Pilot clings to door after fall from plane

By Ellen Matava
United Press International

PORTLAND, Maine — An airline pilot who fell through a door that popped open as his plane flew 5,000 feet high at 190 mph and hung on through an emergency landing was "just glad to see the sunrise" Thursday and asked to be left alone.

When the plane touched down — moving about 100 mph — pilot Henry Dempsey's head was six inches off the ground, said Steve Mason, Eastern Express Airlines sales manager.

Dempsey, 46, of Cape Elizabeth, survived Wednesday's ordeal with only a cut hand and told his bosses it was a harrowing experience.

"He's asked to be left alone. He was just glad to see the sunrise," Mason told a news conference at Portland International Jetport. "He was very grateful the first officer was able to complete the flight and land the way he did."

MASON SAID Dempsey praised co-pilot Paul Boucher's ability to land the 15-passenger Beechcraft 99 as Dempsey clung to the cable railings on the door-stairway, which popped open and down when he made an in-flight check.

"The pilot thanked him for making a nice landing," said Capt. Edson

Fletcher, who headed the Portland Fire Department's crash crew at Portland International Jetport when the plane made its emergency landing late Wednesday night.

Boucher was startled to see Dempsey still was alive. "He had a rather startled look on his face, a surprised look," Fletcher said. "He was real happy to see him."

Tests on the door were completed Thursday at Eastern Express headquarters in Bangor, Mason said, and showed no mechanical trouble. The plane returned to service Thursday.

"THERE WAS NO 'door-ajar' indication light, and the door latched properly after landing," he said. "There have been no previous problems with these doors."

The Federal Aviation Administration and Eastern Express were investigating whether human error may have caused the door to rattle during flight, he said, adding it is the co-pilot's responsibility to close the door after passengers board.

Any passengers would have been strapped in their seats, Mason said, and could not have bumped the door.

But Dempsey and Paul Boucher had no passengers and were flying from Lewiston to Boston when

Preliminary Sites for Armory Replacement

Rec Services cites possible replacements for UI armory

By Scott Hauser
The Daily Iowan

Two preliminary sites have been named as possible replacements for the UI Field House Armory, scheduled for demolition in 1989, when a new psychiatric hospital is planned to be built on the location, UI Recreation Services Director Harry Ostrander said Thursday. Ostrander said early plans call for a new 35,000-square-foot recreation area to be built either adjacent to the existing Field House on the parking lot immediately south of the present main building or a recreation area to be included in the proposed Bloomington Street parking ramp.

The Bloomington Street ramp is intended to replace the parking lot north of the Union when the UI Laser Science and Engineering Building is built there. "All of that is preliminary," he said. "I haven't seen anything final."

ALSO THURSDAY UI Student Senator Jenö Berta said he plans to co-sponsor a senate resolution asking the senate to endorse a petition opposing the armory demolition unless alternative space is available for UI students to play basketball.

"My only concern is I wish the

from DI staff reports

Area offices close Monday

All UI offices will be closed on Monday, Sept. 7, for the Labor Day holiday. UI Campus will also not run on Labor Day.

All UI libraries will be closed on Monday except for the UI Main Library, which will be open from 7:30 to 2 a.m., and the Health-Sciences Library, which will be open from 7:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. The Main Library will have reduced hours on Sunday, from 10 a.m. to midnight.

Iowa City government offices will also close for the holiday. In addition, no public transit will run on Monday. Parking meters will not be enforced, and parking in city ramps will be free.

In addition, the Iowa City Public Library, senior center, recreation center and landfill will be closed all day Monday.

Board approves markings

More than 100 miles of Johnson County secondary roads will be getting more visible pavement markings, the Johnson County Board of Supervisors decided Thursday.

The supervisors decided to purchase 1,350 gallons of paint from Quad State Industries, of Orange City, Iowa, at a cost of $8.75 per gallon for paint and labor, in preparation for the project.

Quad State was given the contract over Century Fence Co. of Waukesha, Wis., for the board's paint purchase.

In other business Thursday, the supervisors appointed two new members to the Johnson County Compensation Board, which recommends salaries for elected county officials.

F.X. Cretzmeier III, of 409 Sierra Trail in Coralville, and Ervin Gjoivig, 50 Wakefield Court, were appointed to positions on the seven-member board.

The board recommends county salaries by making comparisons of the salaries of elected officials in similar positions in other Iowa counties and in Iowa City.

Iowa City sponsors fair

The Iowa City Chamber of Commerce will be sponsoring a community fair on Sept. 12 with the theme "Celebrate Iowa City."

The events for the fair begin at noon and run until 6:30 p.m. The fair will feature pig races, a petting zoo, kids' pedal tractor pull, hayrack rides and music from Bob Dor's Blue Band.

Food for the fair will be supplied by the Iowa Beef and Pork Producers and the Amana Society. The Iowa City and Coralville Transit systems will be offering half-price bus fares on the day of the fair.

This year's celebration will serve as the official kick-off to the World Agricultural Fair, which will be held in the Amana Colonies in September 1988.

Lake sponsors activities

The Coralville Lake Visitors Center will be sponsoring several activities and events over the Labor Day Weekend.

On Saturday, at 9 p.m., Coralville Lake Ranger Brenda Bell will be leading a hike in honor of the upcoming full moon in the park. The hike will begin at the West Overlook Campground Shelter and proceed across the park.

On Sunday, the center will be offering tours of the Coralville Dam at 11 a.m., 1 p.m. and 4 p.m. In addition, a puppet show will be presented at 2 p.m.

On Monday, the center will present a program on reptiles at 11 a.m. and a program on water rescue equipment at 12:30 p.m.

Hawkeye Express starts up

The Hawkeye Express route will be started up again by the Iowa City Transit Department to serve UI Family Housing students.

The Express route will leave the family housing area every half-hour from 6:53 a.m. to 8:53 a.m. It will leave the downtown Iowa City area every half-hour from 4 p.m. to 5:30 p.m.

2 city schools honored for excellence in English

By James Cahoy

and United Press International

Two Iowa City schools are among 133 institutions throughout the United States and Canada named Centers of Excellence by the National Council of Teachers of English Thursday.

Roosevelt Elementary School, 611 Greenwood Drive, and Iowa City High School, 1900 Morningside Drive, were honored by the council for high-quality teaching programs in English language arts.

Roosevelt Elementary was cited by the council for its literacy program, and City High School was cited for its language arts program.

Three other Iowa schools were honored by the council, including Bettendorf Middle School, Bettendorf; Pleasant Valley Community High School, Pleasant Valley; and Centerville High School, Centerville.

COUNCIL PRESIDENT John Maxwell said the council's second national effort to highlight excellence in the teaching of English "has confirmed our belief that outstanding programs exist in schools across the continent."

"As in our first search two years ago, our goal is to spread the word about effective teaching approaches in hopes they will be more widely adopted," Maxwell said.

The 133 schools last spring were chosen as semifinalists by council members, who observed their English language arts programs in action, Maxwell said. Iowa City Schools Superintendent

David Cronin declined comment on the awards Thursday, citing a request made by the council to hold off commenting on the honor until a formal release of the list of schools is made by the council next week.

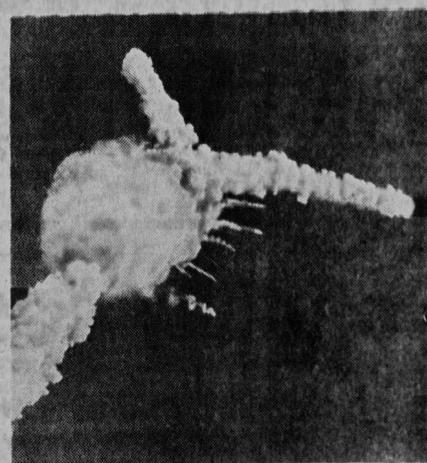

BUT OTHER Iowa City School administrators praised the selection of the two schools.

Iowa City School Board Member David Wooldrik said he was "pleased" with the honor.

"I think it continues a tradition of excellence," Wooldrik said. "It shows the quality of Iowa City Schools."

Board Member Orville Townsend said he was not surprised by the award, saying it was just a way of saying "good job."

"I think it reflects the excellence of the efforts our teaching staff and our administration," Townsend said.

More than $11,000 of building materials were reported missing Tuesday morning from a construction site at the UI Recreation Building, according to UI Campus Security reports.

Merit Construction Co. of Cedar Rapids reported $11,332 in wooden decking was missing from the site. The company began re-roofing the Recreation Building in April.

UI Campus Security has no suspects in the incident. Theft of more than $10,000 is considered first degree theft under Iowa law, and can be punished by a jail sentence of up to 10 years and a fine of up to $10,000.

Report: An elderly woman asked Iowa City police Thursday to be on the lookout for a man who was allegedly sleeping in the laundry room of an apartment complex at 108 S. Linn St., according to police reports.

The complainant, who lives in the complex, told police that the man has been urinating in the hallway, according to the report.

No charges were filed in connection with the incident.

Report: Members of the Theta Xi fraternity house, 1002 E. College St., received a written warning Tuesday night for being excessively loud, according to a police report.

A woman who lives near the house said noise from the fraternity penetrated her house even with the windows shut, according to the report.

Theft: A bag containing $650 in medical instruments was taken Tuesday night from a locked vehicle belonging to an Iowa City man, according to police reports.

The vehicle, which was not damaged in the incident, was parked in the VA Hospital's parking lot when it was burglarized, according to the report.

Theft: An Iowa City man was charged with fifth degree theft after he allegedly stole a picture and frame from Rocky Rococo, 118 S. Dubuque St., according to police reports.

Robert G. Selby, 20, of 409 S. Johnson St., was also charged by Iowa City police with public intoxication in connection with the incident, according to the report.

Gore's father visits Iowa City Saturday

Former Tennessee Senator Albert Gore Sr., the father of Democratic presidential candidate Sen. Albert Gore Jr., D-Tenn., will be in Iowa City Saturday to campaign for his son.

Gore will be visiting the Iowa City Senior Center, 28 S. Linn St., from 11:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. to participate in a luncheon promoting his son's candidacy.

Gore was a senator from Tennessee from 1948-1970 and was known for his support of civil rights issues and his vocal opposition to the Vietnam War.

Dukakis makes local appearance Sunday

Democratic presidential hopeful Gov. Michael Dukakis, D-Mass., will make a return visit to Iowa City on Sunday for a reception at the home of William and Barbara Buss, 747 W. Benton St., at 5 p.m.

Dukakis will proceed from the reception to the Iowa City Fall Fun Festival at Regina High School, 2150 Rochester Ave., at 6:15 p.m., where he will "probably play some softball afterwards," according to Dukakis campaign aide Lorraine Vohls.

Aides say Robertson will meet goal

CHESAPEAKE, Va. (UPI) — The Rev. Pat Robertson, who said he would run for president if he collected 3 million signatures of support, will meet his goal and make an announcement about his candidacy Sept.

17, campaign officials said Thursday.

Constance Snapp, senior spokeswoman for Americans for Robertson, said she is "confident" the television evangelist will reach his goal of 3 million signatures by his self-imposed deadline, The (Norfolk) Ledger-Star reported.

"The petitions are literally coming in by the hundreds of thousands every day," Snapp said. "There are so many coming in that we can't keep up with counting them."

Wednesday, another Robertson aide, Barbara Gattulo, estimated Robertson had collected only 2 million signatures and might extend his deadline, set for Sept. 17, 1986.

But Snapp told the newspaper Thursday that Robertson, who founded the Christian Broadcasting Network, has no intention of extending his deadline to enter the race for the Republican presidential nomination.

He has scheduled a news conference in Chesapeake Sept. 17. During the September 1986 rally in Washington, Robertson said he would seek the nomination if he collected 3 million signatures in a year.

Since then, however, petition gathering has lagged, and Robertson has begun accepting phoned, as well as written, pledges of support, the newspaper said.

Snapp told the newspaper she would announce next week an update on how many pledges of support Robertson has received.

Americans for Robertson is Robertson's exploratory committee.

Next president should be honest, say voters

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Voters want the next American president to be honest and a strong leader — two qualities they say they do not see in Ronald Reagan, a survey by pollster Peter Hart showed Saturday.

Hart said his survey of 1,201 registered voters in mid-June found the No. 1 quality voters want in the next president is honesty and a commitment to play by the rules. Some 56 percent picked honesty, with 46 percent identifying strong leadership as important. Respondents were allowed to make more than one choice.

About 29 percent said being compassionate and caring about people was important; 20 percent picked patriotism; 18 percent said being forward looking was important; 9 percent chose optimism.

Only 9 percent said they thought honesty characterized Reagan, while 49 percent said it was missing in the president. About 24 percent said Reagan was a strong leader, while 22 percent said he was not. In an earlier 1984 survey, Hart said being a strong leader was Reagan's greatest strength.

Hart, who does considerable polling for Democratic candidates, conducted this survey for KidsPac, a political action committee interested in early childhood issues.

The poll also showed that 39 percent of the voters said the nation should change to a Democratic president in 1988, while 30 percent said the nation should stick with a Republican.

Tomorrow

Saturday Events

Iowa City Fall Fun Festival will be held Friday through Sunday at the Regina High School grounds, Rochester Avenue. All proceeds go to support Regina High School, Regina Elementary School and the Regina Religious Education program.

Drink law fails to de-stode

By Franc Contreras
The Daily Iowan

Many UI students are drinking a new semester to party.

And despite a law made by the Iowa Legislature making 21 the legal drinking age, things apparently haven't changed that much.

Most UI freshmen are legally not allowed to drink, but many of them are partying. But many of the freshmen aren't keeping their drinking.

"It's no problem a freshman who declines to drink. I just use my money to get into bars."

A special provision in the law — called the "grandfather clause" — allows liquor licenses for 19-year-olds who were 21 or older before Sept. 1, 1987.

Article may deter industry from Iowa

DES MOINES (UPI)—Gov. Terry Branstad said Thursday an article in this month's issue of Forbes magazine saying Iowa has high income taxes may prevent industries from locating in the state.

In an article titled "Bait and Tax," Iowa is listed as having the highest individual income tax rate for 1988 — 13 percent on a joint return's taxable income above $76,725.

Branstad said he is disappointed the article's author did not stress that the 13 percent rate is offset by other factors. He said when he was interviewed for the story, he was careful to elaborate on the factors so business executives who read it would not discount Iowa as a possible industry location.

He said he is relieved the article and a footnote under a tax chart did note that Iowa rates are offset by federal deductibility, which means Iowa taxpayers deduct federal taxes on their state income-tax returns.

THAT FACTOR reduces the state's 13 percent rate to about 8 percent for taxpayers in the highest federal bracket.

Branstad said perceptions among businesses outside the state that Iowa's tax rates are too high always are a detriment. But he said the tax rate has not prevented the state from succeeding in its economic development efforts.

The article summarizes tax action taken in the wake of last year's federal tax reform. Iowa legislators and Branstad were unable to agree on a plan to change state taxes, so the state's top rate remained the same while other states with higher rates put forth reduction efforts.

The article said the states with the 10 highest top tax rates are Iowa, 13 percent; Montana, 12.1 percent; Connecticut, 12 percent; California, 11 percent; Hawaii, 10 percent; Maine, 10 percent; Massachusetts, 10 percent; the District of Columbia, 9.5 percent; Oregon, 9 percent; and Kansas, 9 percent. As in Iowa, factors in many of those states offset the high top tax rates.

Iowa inmates get speedier paroles

DES MOINES (UPI) — Average prison time served before parole by Iowa inmates dropped to 14 1/2 months last fiscal year, but parole officials said Thursday violent offenders are being kept behind bars.

A report released by the Iowa Parole Board for the year that ended June 30 indicates the average time served in Iowa's prison system has been dropping the last three years. It was 16 months in fiscal year 1986 and 18 months the year before.

A total of 1,529 Iowa prison inmates won parole last fiscal year, an increase of 5 percent. Burglars, thieves, drunken drivers and forgers comprised nearly 70 percent of the parolees, the report showed, but among the freed offenders were 38 convicted murderers.

Parole Board Chairman Walt Saur said the most significant figures from the report show offenders who hurt people spend substantially more time in jail than property criminals.

SAUR NOTED THE average time served by inmates convicted of crimes against people remained around 25 percent of the total sentence, minus honor and work time, while prisoners serving time for property crimes remained behind bars about 15 percent of the total sentence.

"We're not doing badly holding on to Class B felons and people who commit crimes against people," Saur said.

As far as future risks, the parole board report shows 16 percent of last year's parolees were rated as likely repeat violent offenders while 26 percent were rated as poor risks to commit further property crimes.

But compared with last year, there was a 10.4 percent reduction in the number of paroles granted to offenders assessed as poor or very poor violence risks.

Increases in average time served were observed for offenders convicted of second-degree murder, first-degree robbery, second-degree sexual abuse, first-degree burglary and voluntary manslaughter.

The length of prison terms served by parolees last year ranged from 1.4 months to 27 years.

The parole board interviewed 5,123 inmate cases last fiscal year and out of that group granted either paroles or work release to 41 percent.

Record pork expo to be held in Iowa

DES MOINES (UPI) — Organizers of the World Pork Expo said Thursday they hope to lure more than 25,000 producers to what is being billed as the largest pork-related gathering ever.

The convention, scheduled for June 12-15 at the Iowa State Fairgrounds in Des Moines, is expected to attract 75,000 visitors and pump more than $3 million into the local economy.

National Pork Producers Council (NPPC) spokesman Ernie Barnes, general manager of the Expo, said the council crafted the convention after it was suggested a national gathering of producers would help improve pork production, sales and standing in foreign markets.

Barnes acknowledged the pork industry is doing "very well" in Iowa and across the country, but said producers know it's wise to be prepared for a market that has been known to be fickle.

"Even when things are going well we don't want to stand around," Barnes said. "If we don't find ways to keep improving, we'll get stagnant."

BARNES SAID the primary goal of the World Pork Expo is to promote the efficient production of high quality pork and to provide producer education through trade and product exhibits and seminars.

NPPC spokesman Charles Harness said the fairgrounds was the most logical location because it provides 10 acres of grounds, ample parking and more than 1,000 camping sites for visitors.

Among the numerous events scheduled for the expo is what organizers say will be the "world's largest meat cooking cook-off," a contest that will offer more than $44,000 in prize money.

Special international trade sessions also are planned, Harness said, in hopes of providing a meeting ground between producers and foreign purchasers.

Catholic schools set for 'Fun'

Organizers hope to reap $65,000 from fall festival

By Joseph Levy
The Daily Iowan

Organizers of the Iowa City Fall Fun Festival said Thursday they hope this weekend's extravaganza will attract 10,000 people and raise more than $65,000 for Catholic education.

The eighth annual Fall Fun Festival — the biggest fundraiser of the year for the Iowa City Catholic School System — takes place this Saturday and Sunday at Regina High School, 2150 Rochester Ave.

Festival Coordinator August Kray said the event will help supplement the budgets for Regina High School, Regina Elementary School and the religious education program for non-Regina Students.

"Sixty-five thousand dollars is a pretty big dent," he said, adding the proceeds should amount to 5 or 6 percent of the annual budget for the schools and the religious education program.

"THE EVENT IS held to keep tuition increases to a minimum," Publicity Director Teresa McLaughlin said. "It's helped us with our budgets in the past. We're run entirely on donations."

The festival, according to Kray and McLaughlin, will include carnival rides, arts and crafts events, games and several athletic events.

The popular beer and bratwurst tent is only the beginning of the festival's menu, Kray said, but added "it's definitely not the only thing happening."

Other activities scheduled for the festival range from dances to softball games. The Regina High School graduating classes from 1959 to 1987 are scheduled to compete in a double-elimination softball tournament both days.

"WE GET VERY strong participation from alumni that have come back into town," Kray said.

One mile, five kilometer and 10-kilometer runs and walks are also scheduled for the weekend.

A garage sale, live music in the evenings — mostly pop and mild rock — and roast beef and chicken dinners should be the most attractive to UI students, Kray said.

The garage sale, featuring items such as furniture donated by church supporters, will run all day Saturday and Sunday, he said.

The roast beef dinner is scheduled for Saturday from 4 to 7 p.m. and the chicken dinner is Sunday from noon to 7 p.m.

Sorority reorganization gives late hopefuls chance to rush

By Jay Casini
The Daily Iowan

Although Greek rush at the UI finished for most participants last week, the UI chapter of Sigma Kappa sorority is currently informally rushing interested women.

The sorority is undergoing a period of reorganization under the direction of its national office. Since the decision to reorganize was made last spring, volunteer representatives from that office have been directing the new membership drive.

Sigma Kappa National Rush Director Judy O'Daniel said the need to reorganize resulted from a number of reasons, including the graduation of house leaders and financial demands caused by renovations in the chapter house at 811 E. College St.

O'Daniel said the original members of the UI Sigma Kappa chapter were given two choices by the national office.

"LAST SPRING national came in and gave the girls the choice of either alumni status or an extended leave of absence," she said. "Those women who chose the leave of absence will be eligible to become part of the new group."

Sigma Kappa participated in fall formal rush with a handful of volunteers from the national office running house tours and parties. The sorority presently has 33 formally pledged women who are now working with the national delegation in a series of informational meetings, parties and personal interviews for prospective members.

Sigma Kappa's first official pledge in the reorganization, UI senior Mary Rae Durband, says she is excited about the prospects of her new sorority.

"Getting involved in the Greek system has always been in the back of my mind," Durband said. "Now that I'm a senior it would have been hard to get involved with some of the other sororities, but this is a great opportunity to get involved and maybe provide some leadership."

SINCE SHE BECAME involved with Sigma Kappa through an interview during formal rush week, Durband has been impressed with the sorority's progress.

"Formal rush was a tremendous start and we've seen a really good turnout for informal rush," she said.

According to National Secretary Linda Bardach, Sigma Kappa's goal is to have membership comparable to other sororities on campus by next fall.

Bardach said the reorganization offers an opportunity of joining a house to women who have wanted to rush but haven't.

"Freshmen don't always understand what they are missing by not going through formal rush, especially if they are from a family without any fraternity or sorority members," Bardach said. "I've heard a great variety of reasons why some girls missed rush and that they wished they had the opportunity and don't want to wait till next year."

"We're really excited about this campus," Bardach added. "We've been very impressed with the school and with the students."

When the national reorganization group leaves Sept. 4, new chapter consultant Janey Boulear will supervise throughout the initial installation period.

from DI wire services

Wright: U.S. works to block peace plan

WASHINGTON — House Speaker Jim Wright charged Wednesday that the Reagan administration is "dragging its feet" on the Central American peace effort and may be working to block the peace plan signed by five Central American presidents last month.

The Texas Democrat said he has seen "signs of good faith" from both Nicaragua's leftist government and the U.S.-backed rebels who are fighting to overthrow the regime, but not from the Reagan administration.

"It all adds up to a conclusion which I am reluctant to make — that the administration is trying to keep this from happening," Wright said in a telephone interview from his Texas office. It is "dragging its feet."

Firefighters battle Western fires

Nearly the nation's entire army of forest firefighters toiled Thursday against the West's worst outbreak of brush and timber blazes as spreading flames threatened to force more evacuations and destroy millions of dollars worth of wilderness.

At least 1,600 separate fires rampaged for a fifth day over more than 300 square miles in seven Western states, including parched California and Oregon where more than 5,200 people were driven from their homes.

Lightning-sparked fires have blackened more than 275,000 acres — 204,000 in California; 52,000 in Oregon; and 25,000 in Idaho. Small blazes burned in Arizona, Nevada, Washington and Wyoming.

New AIDS test provides quicker results

WASHINGTON — A new blood test detects AIDS virus infection sooner than tests already on the market and may improve the safety of the donated blood supply as well as speeding diagnosis of people at risk for the deadly disease, researchers said Thursday.

The new, experimental test identifies antigen, or protein, from the core of the AIDS virus, or HIV. Other tests detect antibodies, the body's response to AIDS virus infection. These might not appear for six weeks or more after exposure.

"The presence of this antigen is an indication, we think, that the virus is present in the serum of the patient," said Howard Kessler.

Salary gap between sexes narrows

WASHINGTON — For the first time in a generation, women's wages have increased sharply relative to those earned by men, substantially narrowing the earnings gap between the sexes during the last seven years, the Census Bureau reported Thursday.

The bureau said that, in the first significant change in pay ratios in decades, the average wage for full-time women workers jumped from 62 percent of what men earned in 1979 to 70 percent in 1986.

"The figures show that women have made tremendous progress in the 1980s," said Gordon Green, assistant chief of the bureau's population division.

Walsh preparing to question Reagan

WASHINGTON — Independent prosecutor Lawrence Walsh said Thursday his Iran-Contra investigators will likely question President Ronald Reagan but first they will fine tune the inquiry so they do not "waste the president's time."

In an interview, Walsh also said his 8-month-old probe is progressing well and still expands into new areas despite the frequent and sustained legal attacks he is taking on many fronts.

"I think it's a reasonable speculation that at some point we would have questions we would like the president to answer," the independent prosecutor said. "And we don't want to do that until we have boiled those questions down to the greatest extent possible."

21 Aquino soldiers killed by rebels

MANILA, Philippines — Communist rebels, exploiting disarray in the military after last week's coup attempt, mounted a nationwide offensive that has killed more than 80 people, including 21 soldiers gunned down in an ambush, officials reported Thursday.

The ambush by about 200 rebels Wednesday in Quezon province, just 50 miles southeast of Manila, was the bloodiest communist attack this year.

Meanwhile, President Corazon Aquino's political supporters and relatives began a campaign Thursday to persuade her to dismiss her two closest aides and withdraw an amnesty program for Communist rebels.

President of Burundi deposed in coup

NAIROBI, Kenya — The pro-Western president of the central African state of Burundi, Col. Jean-Baptiste Bagaza, was deposed in a military coup Thursday as he attended a summit of French-speaking countries in Quebec, the Burundi national radio said.

The reports said a "military committee for national redemption," led by Maj. Pierre Buyoya, took power and that Bagaza was "relieved of his functions," but gave no further details.

A spokesman for the military group, speaking on Burundi radio monitored in Nairobi, urged the 6 million inhabitants of the small, mountainous country to remain calm.

S. Korean auto workers protest wages

SEOUL, South Korea — Thousands of industrial workers demanding steep wage increases stormed a company hotel and burned vehicles Thursday in a second day of violence at a provincial industrial complex as protests continued on college campuses.

Employees of Hyundai Heavy Industries Co., the country's largest shipbuilder, stormed a company hotel in Ulsan where foreign technical advisers are housed. They were dispersed by about 1,000 riot police firing tear gas.

Police also reported renewed unrest on the nation's college campuses. About 5,500 students, just back from summer holidays, staged rallies, sit-ins and demonstrations on 18 campuses.

S. Africa considers strict AIDS laws

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — The South African government announced Thursday that legislation would be enacted to provide for the "isolation and compulsory treatment" of all victims and carriers of the AIDS virus here.

If the legislation is carried out, South Africa will apparently be the first country to segregate and forcibly treat its own citizens who are found to carry the fatal disease.

Dr. Willie van Niekerk, the minister of health, told Parliament in Cape Town that the government was also preparing to deport all workers, mostly miners from Malawi, with the AIDS virus.

China plans to speed economic reforms

BEIJING — Paramount leader Deng Xiaoping told former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger Thursday that China plans to accelerate its policies of economic reform and political openness.

"Generally speaking, the reform and the opening to the outside world policy should be carried out at a faster pace," said Deng.

Deng told Kissinger that China planned to press "more boldly, yet in steady steps" with its economic reforms, the Xinhua News Agency reported.

Iran, Iraq continue attacks

By James Rupert
Washington Post

DUBAI, United Arab Emirates — Iran and Iraq continued attacks on ships in the Persian Gulf Thursday, as the U.S. Navy began escorting a new convoy of Kuwaiti tankers and the first deaths in the renewed "tanker war" were confirmed.

Iranian Revolutionary Guards ambushed a Japanese oil tanker with rocket-propelled grenades and fired bazookas at an Italian freighter overnight, while Iraq announced that it had bombed a tanker and oil rigs off Iran's coast.

There also were sharp reminders

Thursday that those who are at most risk in the 6-day-old flareup in fighting belong to an underclass of sailors, mostly from impoverished parts of south and east Asia. The first fatalities in the fighting were a Sri Lankan and a Filipino sailor whose small supply ship was sunk Tuesday by Iraqi jets, the ship's operator said. The planes struck the vessel during an attack on Iran's Kharg Island oil terminal, according to the shipping company, based in the emirate of Sharjah.

IN WASHINGTON, Pentagon spokesman Robert Sims confirmed that a new convoy of reflagged tankers left Kuwait Thursday, heading southward out through the gulf. Sims said the guided missile cruiser USS Reeves and guided missile frigate USS Hawes were escorting the Gas Queen and Gas Princess, 46,000-ton liquefied natural gas carriers, and the 290,000-ton supertanker Townsend. "It's the kind of routine escort that we said we were going to have when we began" the gulf reflagging and escort operation, Sims said.

Most of the Indian crew from a ship attacked by Iran Monday quit the vessel in port here to fly home rather than sail back into the gulf.

Today's attack by Iranian Revolutionary Guards on the Japanese tanker Nisshin Maru appeared to be a mistake, as the ship was carrying Iranian crude for export. The guards' speedboats rushed the tanker off the coast near here and fired three rocket-propelled grenades into the hull, a shipping agency here said.

Iranian commandos also struck an Italian container carrier, the Jolly Rubino, in the north of the gulf.

Shipping sources said the Japanese tanker had continued to head out of the gulf, while the Italian ship was said on its way to Dubai for an inspection.

Prosecutor: Put Rust in labor camp

By Gary Lee
Washington Post

MOSCOW — The prosecution mounted its case against Mathias Rust Thursday, with a parade of witnesses decrying the West German pilot's swoop over Red Square as malicious and the chief prosecutor demanding that the Soviet Supreme Court sentence him to eight years in a labor camp.

One by one, Soviets who had watched Rust fly by the Kremlin in May said what they saw was not a stunt, but a provocation that had wreaked fear and risked lives.

Countering the 19-year-old Rust's opening-day description of his flight from Finland to Moscow as a mission of peace, a policeman told the packed courtroom that the flight had put lives in danger. "Clearly," said Anatoly Buts, "it created a great threat to people's safety."

RUST OPENED HIS three-day trial Wednesday with an apology and a rejection of part of the charges against him. Thursday, the prosecution seemed to lay the groundwork for a heavy sentence. The three-man jury is expected to decide the case Friday.

Rust flew from Helsinki May 28 in a daredevil, five-hour flight through Soviet airspace that led to a senior military shake-up, including the dismissal of the defense minister.

Labeling Rust "a hooligan," chief prosecutor Vladimir Andreyev asked that he receive a sentence of eight years in a camp with a strict labor regime, the second most severe of Soviet penal institutions.

Andreyev specified how the sentence should be broken down according to the three charges against Rust, including eight years for violating international flight rules, four years for malicious hooliganism and two years for illegally crossing the border. Soviet law allows sentences to run concurrently.

"Although he is not yet 20," Andreyev said, "he understood that he was risking his own life and the lives of others."

"I underline that the law is the law in the Soviet Union as in West Germany," he added. "He is a hooligan."

The Daily Iowan

The Iowa City Community School District will hold elections for its Board of Directors Sept. 8. The polls will open at 7 a.m. Tuesday and close at 8 p.m.

Eight candidates are competing for three three-year terms on the board. The candidates are Connie Champion, Jay Christensen-Szalanski, Linda Dellsperger, Gary Fischer, Craig Gjerde (incumbent), Betsy Hawtrej, Randall Jordison (incumbent) and Kathy Penningroth (incumbent). District residents may vote at the following polling places:

- Precinct 1 — Northwest Jr. High, 1507 Eighth St., Coralville
- Precinct 2 — North Liberty City Hall
- Precinct 3 — Horace Mann School, 521 N. Dodge St.
- Precinct 4 — Lincoln School, 300 Teeters Court
- Precinct 5 — Horn School, 600 Koser St.
- Precinct 6 — Twain School, 1355 De Forest St.
- Precinct 7 — Longfellow School, 1130 Seymour St.
- Precinct 8 — Lemme School, 3100 Washington St.

• Precinct 9 — Hills Fire Station
FRANCES MALLOY will be the only name on the ballot for a one-year term.

Malloy, 1023 Kirkwood Court, will serve on the board next year finishing the remainder of Kathy Hiratzka's term. David Wooldrik, 929 Fairway Lane, took Hiratzka's place last year but did not run this year.

Malloy, a clinical laboratory technologist at UI Hospitals, has an M.A. in education from the University of Wisconsin. Her teaching experience includes adult education classes, Catholic Bible school, Catholic pre-marriage classes and continuing education classes for medical technologists.

Because she has a three-year-old son, Malloy said she has a personal interest in education. But she said, "Even if you have no children, having an interest in education is our civic duty."

"I think I am good at communication and can listen," Malloy said. "I have the time to spend and I am dedicated to keeping the educational system where it presently is."

The following eight stories are a preview of the eight candidates for this year's election.

Kathy Penningroth

CONNIE CHAMPION, one of nine candidates for Tuesday's school board election, says two of her best qualities are her flexibility and willingness to listen.

Champion, 430 S. Summit St., decided to run for one of the Iowa City Community School District seats because of "unhappiness" in the district.

"My two main reasons for running are staff morale, support of classroom teachers and to insure effective communication," said Champion, who was PTO president at Longfellow Elementary last year.

"The teachers need to be supported and given a chance to teach," she said.

"I think there is a rift between district employees and the school board," she said.

Helping to narrow this rift is one of Champion's goals.

AS A 21-YEAR Iowa City resident who has eight children that have attended Iowa City Schools and 15 years experience in the PTO, Champion said she is very familiar with the district.

Champion received her degree in registered nursing from Chicago's Cook County School of Nursing.

She is the owner of Potpourri Inc., a gift shop in the Old Capitol Center. Champion is also a member of the Iowa City Chamber of Commerce and the Old Capitol Merchants' Association.

"The fact that I own a small business gives me a lot of organizational skills," she said. "The school board needs to document the problems within the district and give the problems a priority," she said. "The board should then direct the administration on what to do to alleviate problems."

Champion also acknowledged that there were communication problems between the administration and its residents.

"Effective communication is really difficult to define," Champion said. "It is the school board's responsibility to see that the public, teachers and rest of the staff all have a chance to talk."

Champion said that in order to alleviate communication problems and regain the trust of residents, the board should visit schools and attend PTO meetings.

JAY CHRISTENSEN-SZALANSKI is a candidate for Tuesday's school board election who wishes to make the campaign into an issue-oriented race.

Although he only moved to Iowa City last year, Christensen-Szalanski, 819 Wyld Green Road, does not believe his short residence in the area would hurt the school board.

"I believe I can be more objective," Christensen-Szalanski said. "It is complementary to the present board to have a new person on the board."

"I am interested in offering new ideas. With my experience I would be able to provide creative solutions to the problems in the district," Christensen-Szalanski said.

Christensen-Szalanski, a father of two children, is an associate professor of management sciences in the UI's College of Business.

Christensen-Szalanski is a 1975

Harvard University graduate who holds a Ph.D. in psychology from the University of Washington.

"I WANT TO make the campaign issue-oriented and not dwell upon vague campaign slogans such as: 'Let's improve communication,' or 'Ensure fair distribution of Phase III funds,' or 'Improve staff morale.'"

He offers many possible solutions to the issues of this year's election.

He offers three ways to help solve communication problems in the district. First, Christensen-Szalanski proposes that the school board create a position for an ombudsperson to receive questions or complaints from people.

"The message of this new position would be that the board represents the person's right to have opinions on policy," Christensen-Szalanski said.

HIS SECOND WAY to improve communications is to shorten the length of the board meetings by ending them at 10 p.m., and have each board member visit one school for an hour every two weeks.

"The message of this is that it is better to talk to people than to just read administrative reports," he said.

Lastly, Christensen-Szalanski plans to improve communications by seating a member of a different school's PTO next to the superintendent at each meeting. "This would send a message that the board values direct communication with the public."

Another thing Christensen-Szalanski wishes to accomplish if elected is to institute a bus schedule for extracurricular activities, because students being bussed to school are not provided with transportation to activities.

LINDA DELLSPERGER, a candidate for the Iowa City School District, said the best reason to vote for her was that she has the time and energy to devote to the school board.

Dellsperger, 22 Wakefield Court, now has time to devote to the school board after quitting her job last year to care for 15-month-old boy.

Dellsperger said she has experience with administrative work and working with people after seven years experience as the assistant director of central services at the American College Testing Program, Highway 1 and I-80, Iowa City.

"While at ACT, I dealt with budgets, repairs and purchasing," Dellsperger said.

Dellsperger also does volunteer work at the Ronald McDonald House, 730 Hawkins Drive, and is the treasurer of the Windshire Homeowners Association, where she resides.

THE 10-YEAR resident of Iowa City graduated from the University of Wisconsin-Stout with a bachelor's degree in dietetics.

Three issues that interest Dellsperger the most are improving communications within the system, proper allocation of the monies from the Phase III supplemental pay plan and determining what schools are chosen for improvements.

Although Dellsperger said communications have "gotten a little better," there is still a need for improvement. "The rumor mill runs rampant," she said. "Nobody is getting the right story," (about what occurs in the district.)

"We need some type of an outlet for people to voice their opinions without the fear of intimidation," Dellsperger said.

"I have the time and a vested interest in the system because my son will attend school here someday," Dellsperger said. "I believe I could do something to help maintain or improve the school system."

Having no experience working within the school district, Dellsperger said that would be a "real plus" because "I think I can bring an objective view to the school board."

GARY FISCHER, an associate professor of industrial and management engineering at the UI, moved to Iowa City last year, but said he is familiar with the workings of a school board.

Fischer, 1207 Oakes Drive, became acquainted with school boards while he was athletic boosters president at Pleasant Valley, Ia., High School.

During his three-year membership with the Pleasant Valley Boosters, Fischer participated in a bond to finance what he said was major overhaul of the school and its athletic facilities. While at Pleasant Valley he also participated in the staff evaluation process.

FISCHER SAID HE decided to enter the race because earlier this summer there were no candidates running for the four openings on the school board.

A Vietnam veteran and a father of two, Fischer lived in Iowa City from 1959 to 1969 while he was working on his Ph.D. in Engineering and Mechanics.

Fischer said one thing that must be looked at is the growth of enrollment in areas of the district and how to deal with growth.

Although he said he was not acquainted with specific communication problems, Fischer said, "there is a need to bring the district together.

"I think steps could be taken to correct communication gaps," he said. "The best way to deal with problems are one on one." He added that the staff should be allowed to participate in the decision-making process.

CRAIG GJERDE said his reelection to the school board on Sept. 8 would help to provide continuity to programs and policies in the district.

"I have been involved with schools all my life," Gjerde said. "I have been either a student or a teacher since I was six."

Gjerde, a father of an eighth-grader and a fifth-grader, holds a Ph.D. in psychology and has lived in the Iowa City Community School District since 1979.

Gjerde, who lives at 15 Ridgewood Lane, said the major issues of this year's election are improving communication and morale.

In order to improve communication in the district, more opportunities are needed for teachers, principals, board members and the community to work together to solve problems, Gjerde said.

"THE BOARD HAS to be held accountable from people coming to the meetings to see that the board is acting in a proper and ethical manner," he said.

He also said citizens need to get involved in order to improve communications.

To boost morale in the district, Gjerde said the hostility that is a part of the current negotiations and evaluation processes must be minimized.

"Negotiations drag on throughout the whole year and are accompanied by misinformation and gossip," he said.

"The teachers' union, public and the board are all going to have to develop some kinds of standards on how to handle negotiations and how to protect individuals from cruel attack," Gjerde said.

The current evaluation system is the biggest contributor to low morale, said Gjerde. "The evaluation system creates anxiety in many teachers."

Some attempts are currently being made to boost morale and communications. Coffees and climate meetings where people may meet district officials and school board members are good ideas, he said. But they do need to be controlled, he said.

BETSY HAWTREJ is a private cello teacher who decided to run for the school board because "parents and teachers do not feel what they say is valued."

Hawtrej, 715 S. Summit St., has previous experience in board of directors situations as well as experience in teaching.

She holds master's degrees from the UI in microbiology and in cello performance. She has served on boards of directors for the Episcopal Diocese of Iowa and for the Mississippi Valley Girl Scout Council.

A 28-year resident, she has four children who have all attended the Iowa City school system.

"My long-time perspective makes it possible to realize changes can occur," she said.

"I have always been interested in education, communication and better listening skills," Hawtrej said. One reason why she is running is that she has time to devote to the duties of a board member.

ONE DUTY Hawtrej would want to assume is boosting morale.

"Staff morale has been getting steadily worse," she said.

Besides being "kept too busy with paperwork, teachers can't speak out without it going down as a bad point on their record."

Hawtrej criticized the current situation with the climate meetings where staff members are given a chance to gather and voice their opinions.

She said the climate meetings were not really open meetings and people did not open up at first.

"The one time they did speak up it got out of hand, so they decided to make the meetings more controlled," she said. But she disagreed with having the meetings follow an agenda, because the whole purpose behind the meetings was to allow free speech.

"I would jump in there as a school board member and say 'No agenda,'" Hawtrej said.

"Several ideas on paper look like we are getting a chance to be heard," but she said that the school board members have not been hearing everything.

RANDALL JORDISON says he would like to see through to completion things that were put into place by the board during his last term.

Jordison, 2004 Rochester Court, said he believes "one can even better serve as a board member in a second term than in a first term."

"It takes time to understand the workings of the district and to recognize the issues," he said.

"I have a firm commitment to education and want to make some contribution to that process," Jordison said.

An Iowa City resident for the past 22 years, Jordison's three children are currently attending public schools here. Jordison, who has a bachelor's degree from the UI School of Pharmacy, is an administrator at the UI Department of Internal Medicine and said the experience has been beneficial in carrying out his duties on the board.

"I WORK IN A labor-intensive environment," Jordison said. "As a professional administrator I have expertise that can help with problem-solving, goal-setting, personnel management, financial management and communications."

Many things have been done to improve communications recently, Jordison said.

"We have gone to videotaping (and rebroadcasting on cable television) our board meetings," Jordison said. "We have taken time to make decisions more final. We have initiated climate meetings."

"Communications is a two-way street," Jordison said. He said that people have to use the vehicles for communication that are already in place.

One way communications in the district could be improved is if the board limited the number of issues it sets, he said.

"We need to focus on just three or four major areas," he said. "We are spreading ourselves too thin."

One thing Jordison said the board must look at in the near future is the role of the teaching staff.

KATHY PENNINGROTH said being a parent for the last 25 years may be her best qualification for one of the three-year positions in the school board elections Tuesday.

Penningroth, 225 E. Davenport St., has already seen three of her five children graduate from the Iowa City school system.

"I have accumulated a great deal of commitment to the district," Penningroth said.

In addition to her three years of service on the board, Penningroth said she has attained valuable experience through work as an aide at Grant Wood Elementary and practice teaching at Hoover Elementary.

"The experience prepares you to go on and work with the board further," she said. "I learned a lot from my three years in office — how to listen, what the issues were and what to look for in making decisions."

PENNINGROTH IS currently a graduate student in the UI History Department.

She formerly taught speech pathology at an army school in Fort Stewart, Ga., after graduating from the UI with a bachelor's degree in speech pathology.

"We need to determine better ways of communicating throughout the district," she said.

Penningroth offered some solutions to minimize communication problems in the district.

"I am in favor of having somebody at some level to have 'communications' as their job description," she said. "We need to have someone to look at newsletters, talk to people, look at problems and find out what they are."

Penningroth said she was not opposed to the teacher evaluations, but added the board needs to look at the procedures of the evaluation. Another thing she said may affect the school district is a possible change in curriculum of junior and senior high schools.

"We have some committees who are looking at the curriculum for at the secondary level," she said. "This may have some broad implications."

Biden: Bork is no moderate

Washington Post

WASHINGTON—A White House position paper on Supreme Court nominee Robert Bork "seriously distorts" Bork's record on the federal appeals court here, misstates his views and contains other "major inaccuracies" in its attempt to depict Bork as a moderate, according to a review released

Thursday by Senate Judiciary Committee Chairman Joseph Biden Jr., D-Del.

The 72-page response disputes the administration's characterization of Bork, contained in a briefing book distributed by the White House last month, as a "mainstream" jurist who, in succeeding retired Justice Lewis F. Powell Jr., would not alter the balance on the high court.

"The picture painted by the White House is inaccurate and incomplete," said the response, prepared by two Judiciary Committee consultants, Jeffrey Peck and Duke University Law Professor Christopher Schroeder. "Among the omissions are clear examples of Judge Bork's advocacy and implementation of conservative activism."

Enough exercise

The four semester hour physical education requirement liberal arts student must meet may become a thing of the past for some 17,000 students. The UI Liberal Arts Student Association will soon be making a proposal to the UI Faculty Assembly to abandon this requirement. Currently, all students enrolled in the College of Liberal Arts must take four physical education classes or pass four exemption tests in order to earn a bachelor's degree from the UI.

LASA is trying to drop this requirement, and with good reason. While the basis of a liberal arts education is to encourage students to develop all parts of themselves, the current requirement is neither necessary nor advantageous for many students.

First, all students who have graduated from an Iowa high school have already sufficiently met a physical education requirement before they even begin classes at the UI. According to one state education official, Iowa students are required to participate in some sort of physical education program beginning in first grade.

"Physical education must be taught in every Iowa elementary and secondary school," said Clifford Stokes, an accreditation consultant for the Department of Public Instruction. "And once students get to high school, a great majority of them must take P.E. two or three times a week each of those four years."

But will students continue to exercise? Some have argued that dropping this requirement will result in students developing unhealthy habits, such as avoiding any type of physical exertion. Granted, some liberal arts students may completely avoid physical education classes once they are no longer required.

But many students who do not have to take physical education classes now, do so anyway. Students who graduate from the College of Business, Engineering, Nursing or Pharmacy do not have a physical education requirement. Yet many of the 3,000 students enrolled in one of these four colleges take P.E. classes as electives. And many liberal arts students take more than the four required physical education classes because they need one or two more hours to complete their class schedule.

Finally, in this day and age of fitness and wellness, it is highly unlikely that many liberal arts students will completely stop exercising simply because this general education requirement is dropped.

According to one local fitness club owner, business is booming in Iowa City. And many of the consumers are students.

"Fitness is here to stay," said Nautalis Health Spa owner Ron Miller. "I know it's not going to be something that comes and goes. People are more aware of the rewards that can be gained from being fit."

Physical education classes provide students with the opportunity to exercise, but because such occasions are readily available and taken advantage of, the current liberal arts requirement should be dropped.

Lax laws

In April, after years of protests and delays, scientists in Brentwood, Calif., carefully released a genetically altered bacteria into the environment, in what was believed to be the first outdoor test of a man-made microbe. Now, it appears those pioneering scientists were beat to the punch — by about three years.

According to the Environmental Protection Agency, Gary Strobel, a plant pathologist at Montana State University, has tested several genetically engineered organisms out of doors since 1984. The unauthorized tests involved the introduction of a gene-altered microbe into fields in California, Montana, Nebraska and South Dakota with the intention of producing improved crop plants.

Tentatively, most scientists believe Strobel's renegade experiments pose no real health threat. Nevertheless, the secret field tests should serve as a reminder of the possible hazards of lax regulations on genetic engineering. At this time, the National Institutes of Health monitor genetic engineering research at American universities, but scientists complain that the rules governing their investigations are unclear and open to various interpretations.

Obviously, biotechnology research is a sensitive — perhaps even dangerous — venture and field testing of exotic strains certainly should not be left to the discretion of individual scientists. The benefits of this type of research promise to enhance human life in the future, but if uncontrolled experimentation continues, the promise may quickly become the nightmare.

Primary plans may backfire

The morning after Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., announced he would not seek the Democratic presidential nomination, that other notable non-candidate, New York Gov. Mario Cuomo was on the phone to this reporter. No, Cuomo was not reconsidering; far from it. His message was that even without Nunn, the Democrats had terrific candidates running. "An embarrassment of riches" was his phrase, and he said it without laughing.

The governor said "it is not fair" for the press to keep characterizing the Democratic contenders as "the seven dwarfs." He's right. It's a dumb phrase, which gains little from repetition. And it overlooks the fact that each of the seven contenders has some solid credentials and shows growing campaign skill.

Cuomo is also correct, in my book, when he says the speculation about a "brokered convention" picking someone outside the field of active candidates is "silly ... not only unlikely but undesirable."

BUT WHAT REALLY caught my ear was his almost offhand remark that he would probably announce his own favorite, "sometime in February." That's the period — right after the Feb. 8 Iowa Caucus and the Feb. 16 New Hampshire primary — when the AFL-CIO is also likely to take another look at its delayed endorsement decision. Would it not be interesting if the Democratic Party's most prominent governor and its largest interest group both threw their weight behind the winner of the New Hampshire primary, where Michael Dukakis is the early favorite, just as he heads into the March 8 super-primary involving 14 deep-south and border states?

The gurgles you hear in the background come from the designers of the super-primary, choking on their own naivete. They persuaded all the Dixie legislators to set up primaries on March 8, in the hopes of diminishing the importance of Iowa and New Hampshire and reducing the influence of the party's interest groups and leaders.

IT WAS ALWAYS a dubious idea, as at least one prominent Dixie Democrat, South Carolina's veteran national committeeman Don Fowler, kept saying. Now, with Nunn's non-candidacy, it is likely to backfire on the moderates-conservatives who planned it.

By picking a date soon after New Hampshire, they enhanced the "halo effect" surrounding the winner of that primary. That might have been all right, had there been a Southerner who could, as Jimmy Carter did in 1976, sneak off with the plurality victory in New Hampshire. But the architects of the "Southern strategy" neglected the single most vital ingredient. They failed to secure a candidate.

IT IS LATE in the game for anyone else to get into the race, so the power brokers of the south will have to make due with three border-state contenders: Sens. Albert Gore, Jr., of Tennessee and Joseph Biden of Delaware, and Rep. Richard A. Gephardt of Missouri, all of whom more than once have lapsed into liberalism.

Odds are that many of the conservatives in the south are going to inspect the Democratic field and find they'd have a better chance finding their kind of president in the Republican primary. In eight of the Dixie states, they're free to take that walk on March 8.

The more of them that leave, the higher the percentage of blacks and liberals remaining in the Dixie Democratic primaries — and that portion is high already, as Fowler unwillingly pointed out to the designers of the super primary. That should help the candidate Cuomo and the AFL-CIO find in New Hampshire. But he will be hard put to beat Jesse Jackson, the Greenville, S.C., native who is assuredly the one southerner the designers of the southern super-primary were not aiming to assist.

JACKSON IS WAGING a non-racist George Wallace campaign, blasting multi-national corporations and greedy Wall Street operators, appealing to the sense of injustice and insecurity among farmers, textile and steel workers, taxi drivers and beauticians who will join the blacks in that day's democratic primary.

With those folks voting, Jackson's populist rhetoric and appeal to blacks give him a real shot at zooming into the lead of the Democratic delegate race next March 8. The southern primary will not finally settle the identity of the Democratic nominee. But its designers have to reflect on the flaws in their scheme which are likely to boost Jackson, the candidate with the least chance of carrying Dixie in November.

Life makes a mockery of some Life mocks me. Life calls me in the middle of the night and hangs up when I answer and I don't even have a phone. Life tells me I didn't earn every one of my gray hairs, I just had them coming. Life makes faces at me behind my back and puts up two fingers behind my head whenever we have our picture taken together. Life taught my cats to do that, too. The contemptuous, mocking laughter of a cat is a horrible thing. It's Life's fault that I have cats in the first place. I wanted a goat. I was going to name it Lyle and feed it tin cans and garbage so I would never have to waste anything. But instead I have cats, and I feed them dead meat out of tin cans, and I have nothing to feed the tin cans to, so I'm usually up to my sternum in tin cans. Life owes me one.

Michael Humes

I KNOW HOW Gary Hart feels. Life mocks him, too. Once he was riding high, the leading contender for the presidential nomination of a major party, the world was his oyster. But maybe he had too many oysters since he couldn't keep his belt buckled, liked to twist the night away and kept doing the antler dance in the wrong part of the forest. I've heard oysters do that to some people. He has all these new ideas but all anyone will ask him about is whether he has ever committed adultery. Never loitering, littering, harboring a fugitive, tax evasion, spitting on the sidewalk, creating a public nuisance, creating a private nuisance or letting a dog run free, just adultery. Nobody asks me if I ever committed adultery. I'll bet they would if Life didn't mock me.

And now Gary Hart is thinking of getting back in the race. For someone whose political philosophy is summed up in that immortal volume "How To Pick Up Girls", the guy's got guts. And if he gets back in the race, Life's going to take them out and show them to him. Mocking him won't be enough.

I KNOW HOW Ronald Reagan feels, too. Life mocks him big time. I don't think he owns a cat, just that wimpy little dog that acts like a polyester wig going through caffeine withdrawal, and I don't think anyone who goes on vacation that much has the stamina for adultery. But even though he's more popular than free beer on Clinton Street, everybody thinks he's lying through his teeth about the Iran-Contra arms deal. To be fair to Life, even though it doesn't deserve it, Ronnie helped it out on this one. First it wasn't an arms for hostage deal, then it was, then it was just a big coincidence; first it wasn't his idea or his fault, then it was his fault but not his idea, then it was his idea but not his fault, then it was his idea but nobody's fault; first he didn't remember, then he did remember, then what he remembered was the wrong thing so he didn't really remember at all. He gave Life an opening it could drive a truck through.

Physical argument

To the Editor:
 Once again my heated pen is called into action. This particular time it is in an attempt to save the UI's Field House.

For those not familiar with the UI's logic, let me fill you in. I've lived in Iowa City most of my life and know how the college works. In the not-too-distant past the UI heard the cry from students calling for more tennis courts, so they constructed some excellent courts where a combination asphalt basketball/tennis court once stood. Few remember these courts since they only lasted two years. Where were they, you ask. Well, do you see the bright shiny new Communication Studies Building? They are directly beneath it, buried by bulldozers hired by the UI.

Another interesting fact is the prospect of moving the new psychiatric wing to the lot adjacent to the Field House, just south of the University Hospitals complex. Oh yeah, bad idea — football parking generates revenue for four to six days a year. We couldn't cut into the athletic department source of funding.

The newly proposed site would call for a catwalk over the emergency road, unless they intend on closing it as well, which would cut off western access. Why not just destroy the presently outdated psychiatric hospital and rebuild on the same spot? It has been done before. Just tell the people working on the new Human Biology research facility to walk across the street when they are finished.

Finally, about the idea of replacing the facility with another of the same quality elsewhere on campus. Now when we arrive at the Field House searching for an open court, we'll have to get back into our cars and drive to the new facility. Why? It doesn't make any sense to destroy a useful structure where one already exists.

I hope UI Interim President Richard Remington understands there is more to a studio than an enriched mind. The mind can not exist if the body which houses it is weak and infirm ... Our bodies cannot grow strong searching for a new place to recreate.

We as students, faculty and staff — as users, cannot let UI Hospitals Director John Colloton overrun our prime facility. We must send a message today that the UI Hospitals and Clinics must look elsewhere for a sight to build a new wing. We will not allow our physical lifeline to be cut.

university would look at other options than tearing down the armory," Berta, a first-term Allied Student Advocacy Party senator, said, adding the petition would not be meant as opposition to the new psychiatry hospital, but as a measure of student feeling on the need for adequate recreational facilities. A resolution opposing the demolition of the armory unless replacement recreation facilities are in place was passed by the senate Tuesday night.

UI Hospitals and Clinics Director of Information Services Dean Borg confirmed this week the hospital's construction plans include building a psychiatry pavilion on the site of the armory as a replacement for the present psychiatric hospital, located on Newton Road.

— if approved by the state Board of Regents — would not affect the armory until 1989-90, he said. UI officials have said new facilities would be built to replace the armory space.

The armory — the southern addition to the Field House — houses the offices and classrooms of the more than 500 students enrolled in the UI's branches of the United States Air Force and Army Reserve Officer Training Corps and six of the 10 basketball courts in the Field House complex.

Ostrander said the Field House site plans call for a facility elevated above the parking lot so the main floor of the Field House would connect directly to the new facility and the parking lot could still be used.

would involve less disruption of the present Field House and its programs.

ONE OF THE main problems with the site on the east side of the river is it would require a separate supervisory staff and office space, he said.

He said Rec Services has found UI students prefer a large, multi-purpose facility like the Field House.

"They want a place where they can come and see immediately all the different options, a place where they can see if they can get in a pick-up game, where they can come and jog, lift weights, play racquetball or use the sauna if they want," he said.

Berta said the resolution calling for a senate-sponsored petition would be discussed next Tuesday.

THE PLANS FOR the east side

Plane

Dempsey turned controls over to Boucher so he could check a rattle in the door.

As he inspected it, the plane hit some turbulence and the door flew open. Boucher looked back, saw the door open, but could not see Dempsey.

THE CO-PILOT immediately radioed the Portland tower for instructions to make an emergency landing and asked that the Coast Guard be informed, as he thought Dempsey was lost at sea.

"The captain opened the cabin door and got sucked out somehow," Boucher radioed to air traffic controllers.

Mason, noting the craft was flying between 4,000 and 5,000 feet altitude at around 190 mph when the incident occurred, said he was not sure whether Dempsey actually was sucked out of the unpressurized plane or whether he fell.

Dempsey fell face down on the door as it opened, his body half in and half out of the craft. His feet were tucked inside the door jam, and he was clinging to cable railings with both hands, Mason said.

Portland firefighter Mark Thomsen, on the airport crash crew, said co-pilot Boucher was stunned when he realized Dempsey was on the plane's door and still alive.

THE PILOT and co-pilot hugged each other, Thomsen said, and Dempsey said he was glad that Boucher was the one co-piloting the plane.

"It just was a miracle how he ever held on for that distance," Thomsen said. "It's got to be the most unusual call we've ever had."

Dempsey was prone on the stairs when Thomsen reached him, still clinging to the stairway's cable railings.

"He held there for three or four minutes. He didn't want to let go. He had a death grip on them," Thomsen said.

Fletcher said Dempsey held on for about five minutes in flight.

Energy

Centralized temperature control may be a possibility for reducing consumption, along with lowering temperatures of certain UI buildings at night.

Replacing obsolete equipment with more modern, efficient equipment is a long-term goal, Christenson said. The money saved by gradual conservation can be reinvested to cut down costs in the long run.

"We can use the money to invest in energy conservation to amplify the savings," he said. "But we have to get the seed money first."

Delta crew faulted for near-collision

WASHINGTON — The Delta Air Lines pilots who strayed off course over the North Atlantic and came within 30 feet of colliding with another jumbo jet in July were flying without oceanic charts and had made no attempt to verify their location, federal investigators said Thursday.

The National Transportation

Safety Board said that the Delta crew had performed only one of six possible navigational procedures available to pilots who make trans-oceanic flights.

The incident occurred July 8 when the Delta L1011 jet, en route from London to Cincinnati, flew 60 miles off course and almost collided with a Continental Airlines 747 flying from London to Newark. The two jetliners were carrying nearly 600 people.

William Berry, a Delta spokesman, told The Associated Press that Delta procedures were not observed "in certain elements of the flight," but declined to elaborate.

Berry said, however, that it was his understanding that Delta flight crews are supplied with plotting charts and also have a "very in-depth, detailed flight plan."

The airline suspended the crew without pay. The captain, who was making his 11th ocean crossing, was suspended for a year, the copilot for three months and the flight engineer for two months.

Defending national champs set for opener

By G. Hammond-Kunke
The Daily Iowan

Iowa's field hockey team opens defense of its first outdoor national championship under 10-year Coach Judith Davidson this weekend with two inexperienced foes at Kinnick Stadium.

If Iowa was 'floating like a butterfly' on Cloud Nine, after winning it all last year, under Davidson the Hawks better be ready to 'sting like a bee' against Miami of Ohio at 4 p.m. today.

Sunday, Iowa plays Northern Illinois at 11 a.m. Miami, and Northern Illinois hook up at 2:30 p.m. on Saturday. If it rains on Friday, Iowa's game would move to another time slot.

"These games will give us a chance to use some different combinations of players to see what works and get out any first game jitters," Davidson said.

"I DON'T KNOW if they feel any pressure, I've been trying to play it (winning the national championship) down," Davidson said. "Last season is over — this team has to prove itself."

Despite losing three of her top five scorers from last year in RosAnna Salcido (two-time all-America), Patti Wanner and Frederique Koch, Davidson said, "not by any means" will Iowa be weaker. "Liz (Tchou, the 1986 co-Big Ten MVP) and Michelle (Murgatroyd, 8 goals, 10 assists) get stronger everyday. I look for Melissa Sanders (6 goals) along with Erica Richards (5 goals) to score much more this year," Davidson added.

"You'll see some different scoring on the field. Barbara deKanter (freshman mid-fielder) could be a real threat. And we may do some different things tactically, but we'll still use the 3-3-3-1-1 system, usually attacking down the right side," Davidson said.

ONE AREA THAT concerns Davidson is the losses of defensive players Deb Robertson (1986 Big Ten Defensive Player of the Year), out for the year with a knee injury and Carolyn Bartley, who Davidson hopes can return by the end of the month. Sophomore Aileen Trendler moves from her forward spot to the center-back position to help out.

Perhaps Iowa's most gifted player is goalkeeper Karen Napolitano, who Davidson called, "one of the three best goalkeepers in the world." Last year the senior native from Selden, N.Y., registered 12½ shutouts on her way to being named first-team all-America and first-team all-Big Ten.

Other key players for Iowa include juniors Bernadette Demers (defense) and Diane Loosbrock (backer) and sophomores Cherie Freddie (forward) and Erin Walsh (defense). First-year help may come from Silke Meier and Cindy Skordason on defense, with Andrea Wieland backing up Napolitano.

MIAMI OF THE Mid-American Conference finished in third-place for the fourth straight year. The Redskins had reeled off nine consecutive winning seasons under Coach Lil Fesperman, who enters her 11th season at Miami with a 121-57-10 slate.

"Iowa didn't win the national See Field Hockey, Page 3B

Football not just a rough game

For football fans, this is the best time of year. Professional and college teams are just beginning their seasons, and backers of every club can be optimistic. But as has all too often been the case in this decade, a dark cloud hangs over America's favorite form of semi-violence.

On the professional level greedy owners are battling with bitter players over free agency, wages and other issues, and another strike seems just around the corner.

On college campuses there are other problems. Questions of morals and ethics swirl around collegiate football as the NCAA and the media continue to expose some of the cheating and dishonesty that pervades the game.

In the midst of these controversies, something very important is being lost. It's something that is difficult to describe but a joy to feel.

IT'S THE EXPERIENCE of working together, literally side-by-side, striving toward a common goal. It's something that can and does happen to athletes every fall, and it is one of the beautiful things about the sport of football.

Much maligned for its violence and primitive qualities, there is something special about the sport for those who play it. Ask an Iowa player to describe it and he'll stumble through a confusing explanation — not because he lacks intelligence, but because the experience can't be properly put into See Millea, Page 3B

Hawkeyes eye Classic competition

By Anne Upson
The Daily Iowan

Iowa's volleyball team will get their first real competition in the Carousel-Mazda Classic today and Saturday.

The competition offered in the Classic, sponsored by Carousel Motors, is Nebraska, Oregon and Miami of Ohio. Iowa will play against Oregon in the first match tonight at 6:30 while Nebraska plays Miami in the second match at 8:30 in Carver-Hawkeye Arena.

Oregon, who finished fourth last year in the Pacific Ten Conference, has six returning players, one of whom, Michele Krebsbach, is an honorable mention all-American. Oregon, is 0-2 after playing Northwestern and Illinois.

Sandy Stewart, Iowa's volleyball coach, expects Oregon's team spirit to be "either really down or really hungry for a win."

IOWA "IS READY to play," Stewart said.

"I think that we can take them out of their offense. I think that we have some real strengths that will go against their weaknesses," Stewart said. "The thing that I understood with Oregon is that they are a Jekyll-and-Hyde team. They can look great, and when you think you've got them beat, they come back. We are shooting to beat Oregon and get in the finals."

Nebraska, favored over Miami of Ohio according to Stewart, is a team that Iowa would like to play against because of their team record. Nebraska, who finished first last year in the Big Eight conference, has a top returning player, Kathi DeBoer.

Tourney giveaway will 'fly'

By Marc Bona
The Daily Iowan

The 1987 Iowa volleyball season is getting off to a flying start at home.

Flying, as in paper airplanes. Saturday night in Carver-Hawkeye Arena, between the consolation and championships games of the Carousel-Mazda Classic, a 1987 black Mazda RX-7 automobile will be given away to the fan who lands a paper airplane in the car's open sun roof.

The promotion is the "biggest giveaway" in the history of Iowa women's athletics, according to Kevin Grothe, an assistant in the Iowa sports promotion office. And the only promotion that tops this one, he said, was a 1985 Iowa women's basketball game between the Hawkeyes and Big Ten rival Ohio State, when See Mazda, Page 4B team two years ago and has had her spikes clocked at about 68 m.p.h. Besides DeBoer, Nebraska also has Lori Endicott, a setter. Endicott, who was a right side player last year, acquired setting experience this summer by playing in Olympic Festival.

Iowa trading cards promote athletics

By Tom Dickerson
The Daily Iowan

The Iowa athletic program not only excels on the playing field but also in the promotional department. Take for example the success of the football trading cards.

That's right, trading cards, just like the bubble gum cards of major league baseball players. For $4 one can pickup a set of cards featuring the Iowa football team at the Iowa Hawk Shops in Carver-Hawkeye Arena. The set includes over 50 cards of the players and contains various other cards, including Hayden Fry and even Herky the Hawk.

Iowa is the only Big Ten school that has the football trading cards. Indiana put out a set of all-time basketball player cards last season, but that's it as far as the rest of the Big Ten goes.

THIS IS THE fourth year the football cards have been done, according to Doug Goodfellow, president of Goodfellow Company Inc., who have published the cards each year. Goodfellow said the idea for the cards came from Iowa strength Coach Bill Devrich.

"We got talking about major league baseball cards," Goodfellow said, describing how the idea came about. "It started out as sort of a joint venture four or five years ago and has evolved into what it is now."

Goodfellow said the main purpose of the cards in the first year or so, was to serve as a promotional tool.

"It first came out as a recruiting aid, and it's turned into a different direction now," he said.

THAT DIRECTION IS memorabilia for Iowa fans who wouldn't dare miss out on more Hawkeye collectibles.

"There are certain people who will collect anything with the Hawkeyes," Iowa's Merchandising and Licensing Director Dickie Van Meter said. "We got a lot of calls by people who wanted to make sure they could get an order."

Van Meter added that she's heard of people who've made collages of the cards and then framed them.

Iowa Promotions Director Rick Klatt said the university has done a "significant mail order business" with the trading cards. See Cards, Page 3B

'Pioneer' Lee helps spikers

By Anne Upson
The Daily Iowan

It's quiz time. Who became interested in coaching because of an infatuation with a second grade gym teacher and was one of the original draftees of the inaugural Major League Volleyball? Sorry, time's up. It's Claudia Lee, assistant coach of the Iowa volleyball team.

Lee became interested in coaching because she was in love with her second grade gym teacher.

"He was so cute!" she exclaimed. "I thought that I wanted to be just like him. He made an impact on me along with all my other coaches. And I decided that I wanted to do that, too, but I wanted to work with the elite athlete."

Lee is considered a pioneer in women's volleyball because she was a utility player for the Dallas Belles, one of the first professional volleyball teams.

"IT WAS THE greatest experience of my life," she said. "It was really neat to be out there. It was a first time ever for it to happen and to know that you were getting paid to play, that was my dream."

"It was something that I really enjoy doing, and it didn't feel like a job at all. You're keeping yourself in shape; you're out there playing for your fans. It was just great." The impact that Lee refers to is self-development through sports. This includes the formation of morals, including competitiveness off and on the court and growing as an individual. Lee stresses these points through her coaching and interaction with players.

"It was a first time ever for it to happen and to know that you were getting paid to play, that was my dream," Iowa assistant volleyball Coach Claudia Lee said of her experience in the professional ranks.

Freshman Ruth Spethman said Lee has done just that. "I liked Claudia when I first met her at a volleyball camp in Kentucky. She is a good coach and offers us a lot," Spethman said.

BUT COACHING ALSO has its down points. Lee said the travel involved in recruiting doesn't give her a good opportunity for a family life.

"You're pretty much involved in traveling around for recruiting," she said. "It would be really hard to be female and have a family."

Lee, who was drafted by her coach at Houston, Ruth Nelson, said will still be able to compete professionally in the spring season if she is not restrained by proposed NCAA rules which may not allow coaches to compete in professional ranks.

Lee decided to come to Iowa because she had worked with Iowa volleyball Coach Sandy Stewart before. Lee played at Louisiana State when Stewart served as an assistant coach in 1982.

Lee said she liked Iowa because of the school's "access to a competitive arena, the team rooms, the central location and the money funded to the department."

LEE'S LOVE for athletics seems never-ending: "I feel that athletics is very good for young people to get into because it keeps them off the street, it gives them a chance to find out about the real world from the competition and it is something fun which you enjoy doing."

Lee is not sure if she will continue coaching for the rest of her life, but she does want to continue being active with sports. But she shares a mutual respect with the Hawkeyes.

"I enjoy the team, and I feel that the team enjoys me," she said.

NEW YORK (UPI) — National League President Bart Giamatti Thursday suspended Houston Astros outfielder Billy Hatcher 10 days for using a corked bat and fined Manager Hal Lanier for being responsible.

Hatcher was ejected from Tuesday's game with the Chicago Cubs when the bat he was using broke and five inches of cork was detected. He has claimed the bat was not his, but said Thursday he did not plan to appeal the decision. The suspension began Thursday.

Black Hawks trade Secord, Olczyk

CHICAGO (UPI) — The Chicago Black Hawks Thursday traded left wing Al Secord and forward Eddie Olczyk to the Toronto Maple Leafs for right wings Rick Vaive and Steve Thomas and defenseman Bob McGill.

Secord, the only Black Hawk player since Bobby Hull to score 50 goals in a season, had 29 goals last season. His best season since joining the team in 1980 came in 1983 when he scored 54 goals, a team spokesman said.

Olczyk, 21, a Chicago native who was the Black Hawks' No. 1 draft pick in 1984, had 16 goals and 35 assists last season. He had 29 goals and 50 assists during the 1985-86 seasons.

Vaive, 28, is the only player in the Leafs' history to score 50 goals in a season. He did so in three seasons since joining the Leafs in 1979.

Soldier Field to become natural again

CHICAGO (UPI) — The Chicago Park District will meet the demands of the Chicago Bears and replace the artificial turf at Soldier Field with natural grass in time for next year's NFL season, city officials said Thursday.

Most NFL players and the Bears management favor grass over the plastic imitation, which they say is to blame for the rising number of player injuries.

Bears president Michael McCaskey asked the city to switch back to grass last year after 20 years of artificial turf at Soldier Field. The stadium was opened in 1924 with real grass.

Sims sues Lions for compensation

Former Detroit star running back Billy Sims, whose career was ended by a knee injury, has sued the team and its insurance carrier for workers' compensation benefits.

Football Almanac

Today is Friday, Sept. 4. The NFL season begins in nine days. The players' association is in its fourth day without a collective bargaining agreement with management.

$24,000 View
 Auburn is working to fix a reflection problem that impairs the view from about one-third of the 71 plush, new sky boxes at Jordan-Hare Stadium. Some of the boxes, which rent for $24,000 a year, have glass on their sides and fronts and have a reflection of the end zone seats.

Hot Seat
 Alabama Gov. Guy Hunt is being pressed to answer whether he is a fan of the Auburn Tigers or the Alabama Crimson Tide. Not only does he refuse to say, he also plans to be at both games Saturday.

Quote of the Day
 "He's the best football player on this team. He is the pinnacle of success as far as offensive linemen go. There are none better. And I don't think there ever will be. Management doesn't think he's worth it. I know he's worth it. He's worth more." — Quarterback Boomer Esiason on why the Bengals should give Anthony Muñoz the $633,000 salary he is seeking.

Capital Dome
 Redskins owner Jack Kent Cooke and Mayor Marion Barry plan to meet sometime next week to talk about Cooke's desire to build a domed stadium for his team.

Trainer's Room
 Bears tight end Tim Wrightman had arthroscopic surgery for possibly torn cartilage in his right knee and could be out for six to eight weeks.

College Football Predictions

UPI Sportswriter Joel Sherman's picks for this weekend's games.

Saturday, Sept. 5
 Florida (plus 8 1/2) over Miami — Steve Walsh has the difficult job of following Jim Kelly, Bernie Kosar and Vinny Testaverde as the Hurricanes' quarterback. Florida will rely on Kerwin Bell, among the top Heisman favorites. But Miami will be missing more than Testaverde. Two other first round picks, defensive tackle Jerome Brown and fullback Alonzo Highsmith, are gone. The Hurricanes also have to deal with distractions caused this week by reports Coach Jimmy Johnson is looking to leave for an NFL job. Florida, for the first time in three years, can go to a bowl and play on TV. These teams don't play again for five years and they don't like each other.
 Florida 27, Miami 26

East
 Texas Christian (plus 8) over Boston College — Horned Frogs are loaded with experience. This is the beginning of a tough non-conference schedule, but TCU prevails.
 Texas Christian 17, Boston College 14
 Maryland (minus 4) over Syracuse — New coach Joe Krivak gets the Terps off strong thanks to the passing of Dan Henning Jr. and Syracuse's inability to play consistently at home.
 Maryland 34, Syracuse 10

Baseball Almanac

Today is Friday, Sept. 4. It is the 152nd day of the season. The playoffs begin in 32 days. The crowd of 19,958 that saw Los Angeles lose its seventh straight game was the smallest at Dodger Stadium since Sept. 1981.

Today's Matchup
 San Diego's Eric Nolte, 2-2, faces Joe Magrane, 7-6, of St. Louis in a battle of rookie left-handers at Busch Stadium, 7:35 p.m.

Quick Quiz
 The Reds' Cal Daniels led off a game with a home run for the seventh time this season Wednesday night. Who holds the major-league record for most lead-off homers in a career? (He has the ability to play consistently at home. Answer below)

Quote of the Day
 "If he would've been in high school, I would have him running laps until dark." — California Manager Gene Mauch, angered by an error committed by Angels pitcher Jerry Rauss.

Basketball, not just football, has trading cards available.

Cards

He said that order forms were inserted into some 18,000 Hawk Talks, and that's where a lot of the response comes from.

"The package is normally a good sale; our younger fans enjoy those kind of things," Klatt said.

ACCORDING TO VAN Meter, it's not just the young people who buy the cards.

"I'd say more often it's adults and not children," Van Meter said.

So if the football trading cards are so popular here, why don't other Big Ten schools do the same?

"I think our promotion director was considering it for a while but not anymore," said Illinois Assistant Sports Information Director Steve Vanderpool. "I think it would work there in Iowa with all the great fans who concentrate on the Hawkeyes, in contrast to here where there are other things, like pro teams."

Denny Hoobler, director of marketing at Ohio State, said the Buckeyes have toyed with the idea a little bit, but nothing will happen in the near future.

"A COUPLE COMPANIES have come in and talked to us about it," Hoobler said. "But we don't have a merchandising business and outlets like the University of Iowa has."

The Assistant Sports Information Director at Purdue, Alan Karpick, gave the same reason as Hoobler's, citing a lack merchandising capabilities within the university.

"We have looked into it, but we would have to have somebody from outside (the university) do this," Karpick said.

That's how Indiana was able to market its basketball trading cards of all-time players, through a sponsor, which happened to be a bank which advertised on the back of all the cards.

Of the remaining Big Ten schools, Michigan State, Minnesota and Northwestern haven't considered the trading cards. And Wisconsin and Michigan have considered the cards but declined to take up the project.

"We've been approached a lot, but have never considered it because the philosophy of Michigan is that we don't market individuals," said Mike Palmisano, an administrative associate at Michigan.

Dom Perignon Giveaway

More than a dozen Iowa Citizens will be treated to a free bottle of the world's most famous wine this fall in a promotion for Claret & Friends, 323 E. Market, the state's first private wine store. Each week, customers who fill out entry slips will have a chance to take home a bottle of the incomparable Champagne to be given away every Friday afternoon.

Dom Perignon takes its name from a seventeenth century Benedictine monk who found some of his wine fermenting a second time in the bottle. Upon sampling this accidental concoction, he was so delighted he called up from the cellar for his assistant. "Come quickly," Dom Perignon shouted, "I'm drinking stars!"

Store owner John Gillespie says of the new promotion, "At Claret & Friends, we're crazy about wine. We're fanatics. We just received a huge shipment of wines exclusive to Claret & Friends and there's more on the way. We're simply awash in wine and I think it's gone to our heads."

championship by accident. This will be a very worthwhile, humbling experience," Fesperman said.

"Iowa is very fit, very well coached and a very skilled team. I'm expecting to see what's inside my kids — if we get down, will we fight or play defense?"

The Redskins will start seven freshmen, including three of four in the forward line. Maureen Lux, Miami's only senior, returns as the leading scorer with two goals. The skins lost their top four scorers from a year ago to injuries, academics or graduation. With two freshmen goalkeepers, Fesperman's primary concern is stopping the opposition.

LAST YEAR Northern Illinois had to stop the season after posting a 3-5 record because of the injury bugaboo. The Huskies played several games with 10 players instead of the 11 needed to start, but couldn't continue when even more players went down.

Second-year Northern Illinois coach Laurie Bell will field a young team with 13 of 18 players being freshmen. Nonetheless, Bell hopes she can direct the Huskies to the success they enjoyed in 1983 when they were ranked in the top 20 for four consecutive weeks.

"We've looked okay in practice," Bell said. "We're a very motivated team. We're very young, I don't think our players even realize the caliber of a team like Iowa. But we'll approach it like we would anybody else. I don't need to scare them off."

The strength for the Huskies comes from goalie Colleen Preston, who red-shirted last season because of a knee problem. Junior attacker Anne Zaleski is the team's sharpshooter, ripping the nets last year for 11 goals in eight games. Another solid player is defensperson Lisa Lodovico, the squad's lone senior.

IOWA NOTES

- Iowa has a seven-game winning streak entering the season; the last loss coming to Northwestern 1-0 last October.
- The Hawks are 7-1-1 vs. NIU and 1-0 against Miami. NIU has lost to Iowa the past seven games, including a 6-0 whipping in 1985. Iowa ripped Miami, 7-1, also in '85.
- Iowa's roster spans the globe. Totaling 16 players, it includes five freshmen and sophomores and three seniors and juniors. Five players come from California, four from New Jersey and one each from Georgia, the Netherlands, New Hampshire, New York, Pennsylvania, South Africa and West Germany.
- Michele Madison begins her sixth year as assistant coach under Davidson. Madison is a former standout goalkeeper at Rutgers.
- Beth Beglind begins her initial year as a graduate assistant.

Millea

Tonight, across the state of Iowa, thousands of high school boys will open the 1987 season and play the game for all the right reasons.

Most of those games, involving small schools, will attract only a handful of fans and the players will not be paid. They won't be signing contracts with agents after the game, they won't be filming endorsements for Taco Bell and a strike is highly unlikely.

They'll be lining up across from kids their own age and size, and finding out how much their hard work will pay off. Some will win, some will lose, but all will benefit from the experience.

If you're sick of the garbage surrounding professional and college football, do yourself a favor and go watch a high school game. And ask yourself what the sport is really all about.

WITH THE COMPLICATED and distracting issues surrounding professional and college football, cultivating that team experience may become impossible. It may in fact have already been lost. But there is one place it can still be found, a place where the sport is still pure.

Smith takes 200 meters gold Classic in come-from-behind victory

By Mike Barnes
United Press International

ROME — Calvin Smith stormed from behind to edge Frenchman Gilles Quenehervé in a photo finish Thursday and defend his 200 meters title at the World Track and Field Championships.

The fifth day of the meet concluded with decathlon competitors running four 400-meter heats in a driving thunderstorm that washed over an almost deserted Olympic Stadium.

Smith, who lost his 100-meter world record when Ben Johnson shattered his mark Sunday, rallied after a slow first half to catch early leader John Regis, then out-lunged Quenehervé at the finish to capture the United States' second gold medal of the day.

EARLIER, GREG FOSTER defended his crown in the 110-meter hurdles, giving the United States four golds after five days of competition.

The Americans, though, were upstaged by the East Germans, who collected the three other gold medals at stake. They lead all nations with six gold medals and 16 medals overall.

Silke Gladisch, the latest East

German sensation, added the 200 meters championship to her 100 meters crown in becoming the first to win two golds at the meet. Thomas Schoenlebe established a European record in the 400 meters, and Sabine Busch won the women's 400-meter hurdles.

Another East German, Torsten Voss, was seeking to hand defending decathlon champion Daley Thompson of Britain his first defeat in nine years. Voss led after five events and Thompson was third.

MOMENTS AFTER THE high jump discipline of the decathlon was completed, the downpour began. Athletes, officials and what was left of the crowd of 58,000 went scurrying for cover, with only the 400 meters remaining on the program.

Many of the runners sought shelter under officials' chairs or television cameras wrapped in plastic. After a 30-minute delay, the athletes took to the track awash with water and completed the heats.

No one fell or was injured, and Alain Blondel of France completed the last heat in a remarkable 47.91.

Earlier, with the dark clouds just beginning to roll in, Regis grabbed a sizable lead in the 200 with about 70 meters remaining. Smith and Quenehervé came on at the finish, with the American inches ahead.

BOTH WERE TIMED IN 20.16 seconds, but Smith won after a photo examination of the finish. Regis clocked 20.18, and the top six finishers were separated by nine-hundredths of a second.

Smith did not begin celebrating until watching a slow-motion replay of the race on the scoreboard.

Foster, ranked No. 1 in the world, coasted to victory in the 110-meter hurdles, winning in 13.21 seconds over Britons Jon Ridgeon and Colin Jackson.

Gladisch, 23, registered a convincing triumph over American Florence Griffith and Merlene Ottey of Jamaica. Her time of 21.74 seconds was the fastest of the year and only three-hundredths of a second off the world record shared by countrywomen Marita Koch and Heike Drechsler.

Schoenlebe ran an evenly-paced 44.33 seconds to beat favorites Innocent Egbunike of Nigeria and American Butch Reynolds. That bettered his previous European record of 44.48 set two weeks ago in East Berlin.

and smart team," Stewart said of the Cornhuskers. "They were second in the nation in offense last year. If we play them, I think it will be a good match. Our team will be up for it. It is one of our programmed goals this year to beat a top 10 team."

Miami, with this tournament as their season opener, should be good competition for Nebraska. Miami finished second last year to Western Michigan in the Mid-American Conference. Two of its top returners are Karen Lepley and Renee Townley. Lepley, with a 2.28 record of kills per game, and Townley, with a record is 1.2 kills per game, should be two players to watch for. Although Iowa is excited about the Classic, Janet Moylan, the Hawk-eyes' lead setter, visited student health Thursday with symptoms of the flu. Ellen Mullarkey, a middle hitter, is one player concerned about Moylan's condition.

"I'm sure we will play well," Mullarkey, team Most Valuable Player in 1986, said. "But a lot has to do with what Janet is going to do. Kari Hamel, who would be Janet's replacement, is good but she just doesn't have the experience setting that Janet has."

Mullarkey said Oregon will be a competitive opponent.

"It will be a tough match against Oregon because we haven't been tested yet. This will be our first true competition."

Mazda

22,157 fans packed the 15,000-seat Arena.

THE PROMOTION IS the brainchild of Ken Williamson of Carousel-Motors. Williamson, who wanted to promote women's athletics in some way, thought originally of sponsoring the four-team tournament Iowa is competing in this weekend.

"I'm very excited," Williamson said. "I was interested in doing something with women's athletics and was going to sponsor the tournament. We were real lucky to get a major sponsor in Mazda."

We suggested the idea to (Iowa Women's Athletics Director) Christine Grant and (Assistant Women's Athletic Director) Paula Jantz. They were very excited about the idea.

The idea found its way to the office of Rick Klatt, Iowa's sports promotion director.

The car, worth about $18,000, will be stationed on the court as fans attempt to throw planes from their seats.

"We're encouraging people to be creative, to come there with 60 airplanes, if they want," Klatt said. "There's a lot you can do with it. I think it can be fun."

Iowa volleyball Coach Sandy Stewart, who said she hopes the promotion is an annual event, doesn't think it's too difficult of a challenge.

"I think it's going to be easy to win," Stewart said.

Rocker Mojo Nixon brings unique sound to Iowa City

By Jeff Rynott
The Daily Iowan

Looking for something a little wild and on the edge this weekend? Mojo Nixon would like to provide it.

Nixon and his partner, Skid Roper, will appear at The Central tonight with Pete Holm and Second Wind. It will be the second time Nixon has brought his unique blend of rock, blues, comedy and insanity to Iowa City this year.

"It was a wild freakout last time," Nixon recalled of his earlier visit in a phone interview Wednesday. "It was almost out of control, very close to fistfights."

That, it seems, is exactly how Nixon — who describes his concert expectations as "total delirium" — would like it. He has built his rising reputation on wild and weird live shows featuring such lyrical attacks as "Burnin' Down the Malls" and "Jesus at McDonalds" and his live act as leader of the Screamin' Church of the Epileptic Jesus. Nixon plays guitar and "sonic love jug" while Roper accompanies him on a washboard and stick drum.

THE DUO IS touring in support of their latest LP, Bo-Day Shus!!!, on the Enigma label. Nixon and Roper have completed five other cross-country tours and have been the opening act for the likes of The Pogues and The Beat Farmers.

"It's the greatest album of all time," Nixon said of the new LP. "It's a lot more produced by our standards, but it still sounds like a couple of pigs hollering in a field — it's primitive compared to a lot else on the radio now."

With increased critical attention and popular exposure, the duo is finding its audience changing as well.

"We're getting larger crowds," Nixon said. "Some are coming because of the college radio exposure, some heard about us, some saw us in other cities and told friends... Before we might have gotten 50 or 100 people, where now we've got 500."

"THE FRINGES of your crowd get less and less committed and more and more stupid," he added. "What we do live, we do real well. I control crowds real well, but there's always one bonehead who yells at the wrong times."

"Two-thirds of the shows have been sellouts," Nixon said of the current tour. "It's been real good... sometimes we have shows that are packed, but people — me — or the room works against the show."

Most of the music performed is original; Nixon estimates the duo has already recorded 60 songs. Musical influences on Nixon's work run from the blues (Howlin' Wolf, John Lee Hooker, Robert Johnson) to rock (Velvet Underground).

Recently, Nixon and Roper have found time to make a video for Bo-Day Shus!!!'s first single, "Elvis is Everywhere," and an appearance on The Late Show.

"It went real good, real quick," Nixon said of the live spot. "We were literally the last three minutes (of the show)."

Nixon is uncertain about the pair's plans for the immediate future. "Who knows what'll happen... maybe we'll make a movie or something," he said with a laugh.

At the Bijou

Salvador (1986) — A broke and jaded photojournalist (James Woods) and his decadent sidekick (Jim Belushi) head for El Salvador for high times and quick money that may come from being in a hot news spot. But their cynicism is no match for a land of death squads, guerrilla warfare and bishops murdered in cathedrals. Co-starring John Savage. 7 p.m. Friday, 8:45 p.m. Saturday.

Law of Desire (1987) — This is a bawdy, black comedy that follows the out-of-control life of writer/director Pablo, hot for one man and pursued by another, while filming Cocteau's The Human Voice, starring his sister, who was once his brother. The Law of Desire is a film where anything can and will happen. In Spanish. 9:15 p.m. Friday, 6:45 p.m. Saturday.

There are no Bijou films Sunday and Monday.

Television

Friday: UTV Friday Evening Film Classic presents I Cover the Waterfront, starring Claudette Colbert and Ben Lyon in a hard-hitting melodrama about a reporter who sets out to expose smuggling operations along the San Diego waterfront (7 p.m.; UTV 28). The Eagle Returns — This film tells the story of two bald eagles who were lucky enough to be given a second chance at life in the wild (8:30 p.m.; IPTV 12).

Saturday: UTV Saturday Evening Film Classic — Man on the Eiffel Tower, starring Charles Laughton and Burgess Meredith in a crime drama about a crazed killer who eludes authorities (8 p.m.; UTV 28).

The Glass Web — This 1953 murder mystery stars Edward G. Robinson and John Forsythe (9 p.m.; IPTV 12). Dead Drunk — A documentary, hosted and narrated by Tom Poston, focusing on the drunk driver (11 p.m.; IPTV 12).

Sunday: "King Penguin: Stranded Beyond the Falklands" — Two British cinematographers studying king penguins have their six-month stay unexpectedly lengthened when Argentina invades the Falklands (8 p.m.; IPTV 12). UTV Sunday Evening Film Classic — Sabotage, starring Sylvia Sydney and Oscar Homolka in an espionage thriller directed by Alfred Hitchcock (8 p.m.; UTV 28).

Monday: "The Murray with Russell Braddon" — Russell Braddon follows Australia's longest river from its source in the Snowy Mountains to its estuary in the sea (7 p.m.; IPTV 12). "Coming Up From Down Under" — This special looks at the rise of the Australian film industry (8 p.m.; IPTV 12).

Courtroom brawl in Tennessee

DECATUR, Tenn. (UPI) — Authorities Thursday ordered a curfew through the weekend to help curb a family feud that erupted into a bloody courtroom brawl when jurors found an Allen man innocent of killing an archrival Anderson.

Relatives of the victim, Eddie Anderson, 25, who was killed in a barroom shoot-out, tried to attack Meigs County Circuit Judge Eugene Elbern, jurors and lawyers as well as the rival Allen clan when the verdict was read Wednesday night, Sheriff R.L. McKenzie said.

JERRY ALLEN, 27, had pleaded self-defense in the shooting of Anderson but "everybody was stunned" in the courtroom packed with about 150 people by the innocent verdict in Anderson's death and the wounding of two other men last March, he said. "All hell broke loose in the courtroom," with members of both families hitting each other with chairs, McKenzie said. The scene reached a chaotic pitch with members of both families hitting each other with chairs, sending two people to the hospital.

"The dead victim's momma was hit over the head with a chair and she was taken to the Athens hospital," McKenzie said.

The trial was the latest in an "ongoing feud" between the Allen and Anderson families that began in the early 1980s when Jerry Allen and Eddie Anderson had a fist fight, Chief Deputy Jerry McKenzie said.

'Law' bogs itself down with overly intricate plot twists

By B. Gordon
The Daily Iowan

In this country we are used to slick packaging. Off-center, dramatic diagonals and eye-grabbing colors all compete for our attention. The MTV aesthetic — really no more than an extension of advertising poetics — now dominates virtually every aspect of American life.

Sometimes it takes brief immersion in a foreign culture to bring home just how well-dressed our society is. The Law of Desire, a Spanish film playing tonight and tomorrow at the Bijou, is about coke-snorting, filmmaking, jet-setting, self-centered homosexuals — the perfect bunch, one would think, for a movie with razor-sharp edges.

BUT IN SPITE of some clever cinematic techniques, a purely self-reflective theme and a lot of graphic gay sex, the movie remains oddly homely. Ultimately it may be the script that is at fault for the film's flatness, although one might be cautious about blaming a screenplay encountered only through subtitles.

The plot concerns Pablo Quintero, a famous director of such classics as Halitosis, Paradigm of the Clam and Remake, and his passion for young Juan. The movie opens on Juan's last night in Madrid, a black time for Pablo.

Juan, who for some unfathomable reason moves to an unnamed coastal town to work in a bar and live under a lighthouse, soon writes to Pablo about the beauty of his surroundings and their suitability for Pablo's next film. Pablo responds by instructing Juan to sign a love letter he will write to himself, then send it back to him.

THIS LOVELY, FUNNY symbol of self-love also becomes an important prop when another beautiful young man falls as deeply in love with Pablo as Pablo is with Juan. The young man discovers the letter and, furiously jealous, hops on his moped and races to ruin Pablo's intended visit.

If you are confused, don't worry. The film spends an hour answering these and other basic, expository questions. It is a coyness which does not serve the second half of the movie well. The Law of Desire tries to be a suspense thriller when Pablo's new lover murders Juan.

"Wildly unlikely" is a phrase that could connote a pleasurable weirdness, so I can't use it to describe the film's ending. This movie is billed as a black comedy, but — in spite of its occasionally successful attempts to comment humorously on the innate absurdities of movie-making — the ponderousness of the first half strains the supposedly funny plot twists of the second past the point of even generous credulity.

Gay-rights advocates of any sexual persuasion would probably approve of this film, however, as it treats the homosexual heroes and ingenues with the same lack of characterization as it would heterosexuals.

NBC tops ratings for 46th time in 49 weeks

NEW YORK (UPI) — The NBC juggernaut rolled on last week to notch its 46th ratings win in 49 weeks, prompting a prediction Tuesday that next season might already be in the bag.

"NBC Nightly News" with Tom Brokaw won the news race for the 19th time in 20 weeks, and NBC Entertainment claimed the weekly ratings win for the 31st straight week.

NBC's Thursday night slate — "The Cosby Show," "The Art of Being Nick," "Cheers" and "Night Court" — occupied the top four spots in the ratings. Even better news, according to NBC executives, was the performance of "Family Ties" in its new Sunday night time slot.

The top prime-time shows for the week ending Aug. 30, according to the A.C. Nielsen Co., were:

1. The Cosby Show (NBC)
2. The Art of Being Nick (NBC)
3. Cheers (NBC)
4. Night Court (NBC)
5. Growing Pains (ABC)
6. 60 Minutes (CBS)
7. Designing Women (CBS)
- (tie) Moonlighting (ABC)
9. 20-20 (ABC)
10. Newhart (CBS)
