UI officials hope for safe football weekend

By Monica Seigel
The Daily Iowan

Just use a little common sense, and nobody will get hurt. That's the message UI officials are hoping Iowa football fans receive before coming to the home opener Saturday against Kansas State at Kinnick Stadium.

UI administrators announced bans last month on throwing objects in or from the stands and "body passing" — handing someone from person to person above the crowd.

Since then, officials have been taking their "safe Saturday" campaign to student organizations, sororities and fraternities and UI residence halls.

"We're not trying to stop anybody's fun at the football games," UI Dean of Student Services Phillip Jones said. "We are simply trying to promote a safer atmosphere where everyone can have a good time."

JONES SAID BESIDES the safety hazards involved with body passing, the practice also raises the question of sexual harassment.

"You don't see boys being passed around," he said. "It comes down to exploiting women."

Other safety guidelines — besides the ban on throwing objects and body passing — continuing from last season include:

- No beer trucks, kegs or open bars in UI parking lots or ramps
- No open fires, amplified sound or alcoholic beverages in the two parking ramps near Kinnick Stadium

• Security officers stationed at stadium entrances to confiscate alcoholic beverages

• Security patrols inside the stadium to remove intoxicated, unruly or otherwise disruptive spectators.

• The discouragement of the shouting of obscenities

UI Campus Security Director William Fuhrmeister said people who pass bodies or throw objects will be escorted from the stadium.

"We will definitely file charges against individuals who throw objects, and charges may be filed against individuals who are seen passing bodies," Fuhrmeister said. "One thing is certain: They'll watch the rest of the game from outside the stadium."

But Fuhrmeister said security officers don't want to be the "bad guys" in enforcing the safety guidelines.

"We're going about this in a very positive way — with the assumption that fans are basically well-behaved," he said. "Our experience has been that once fans know what the guidelines are, they follow them."

Assistant Director of University Relations Tom Bauer said fans were receptive to the implementation of guidelines last year, and he expects improvements in fan behavior.

"Each year things have gotten a lot better," Bauer said. "We go into this expecting the best of the fans." The football game will begin at 1:05 p.m.

Defense secretary travels to Gulf

MANAMA, Bahrain — Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger traveled to Saudi Arabia at the start of a gulf tour Thursday as the Iran-Iraq war flared and Lloyd's of London reported a mine sank a survey ship hours before a U.S. attack on an Iranian mine-laying ship.

Four people aboard the Panamanian oil research-survey ship were listed as dead or missing by the shipping insurer, Lloyd's of London, in the incident early Tuesday south of an Iranian Revolutionary Guard base at Farsi Island. Three others reportedly survived.

It was the first ship to strike a mine since the sinking of a supply vessel in the Gulf of Oman Aug. 15 that killed five crewmen, including the British captain.

The survey ship was registered in Panama in 1984 for petroleum research, officials in the Panamanian Treasury Ministry's ship registry section said. The owner's local representative is the Morgan and Morgan company.

In Washington, Senate Democrats proposed Thursday to strip President Ronald Reagan of his authority to provide naval escorts to re-flagged Kuwaiti tankers in the mine-sown Persian Gulf unless Congress votes to approve the action.

Democrats sought to attach the proposal to the $303 billion defense authorization bill that Reagan has already pledged to veto.

A vote on the amendment could come as early as Friday, but Sen. John Warner, R-Va., indicated opponents will try to block consideration with a filibuster.

The proposal states that conditions exist to invoke the 1973 War Powers Act, which sets restrictions on a president's authority to order troops into possibly hostile areas.

Three other ships have struck suspected Iranian mines in gulf waters in recent months, including the American-flagged Kuwaiti supertanker Bridgeton and a Kuwait ship flying the Soviet flag.

The 181-ton survey vessel Marissa 1 broadcast no mayday signal before it went down about 20 miles northwest of Al Arabiyah Island near Farsi on its journey from Kuwait to Dubai at the northern end of gulf, the Lloyd's report said.

Iranian religious leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, in his first public comments since the attack on and seizure of the Iranian vessel Iran Ajr, acknowledged there were mounting "politico-military pressures" on Iran, but vowed that Islam would soon spread across the East and West.

In comments carried by the official Islamic Republic News Agency, Khomeini did not directly address

Future remains uncertain for Abbey's reconstruction

By Joseph Levy
The Daily Iowan

Nine months have passed since developers of Coralville's Abbey Inn promised that plans had been made for reconstruction of their fire-torn motel.

As of this week, the parched concrete floor of the structure, exposed since the Dec. 14 fire that destroyed two-thirds of the building, still sat roped off and unattended despite reports that other plans were being made.

One man with a vested interest in the matter, Eralm Loughry, of Iowa City, who, with his wife and his sister, owned the property the inn was built on, said last week rebuilding may not be the intent of the motel's owner.

"I heard it was being sold," Loughry said. "But it hasn't happened yet. It may be close."

Loughry sold his interest in the hotel and the land to David Steckling, a local developer, in March

Steckling died in January, but transferred control of the Abbey to Delbert Dickey, a Des Moines resident, on Dec. 4 — nine days before the fire.

A JOINT investigation by the Coralville Fire Department, the state fire marshal's office and the Coralville Police Department determined an overheated motor in the Abbey's basement maintenance

Poll shows support for Bork down

By Edward Walsh
Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Public support for the Supreme Court nomination of Judge Robert Bork has eroded to the point that a slight plurality of the public opposes Bork's confirmation by the Senate, according to a Washington Post-ABC News poll.

The poll, conducted during and after Bork's five days of public testimony before the Senate Judiciary Committee last week, showed 44 percent of those who are aware of the nomination approve of it and 48 percent disapprove. This is a shift from the last Post-ABC poll on Bork in early August, when 45 percent supported the nomination and 40 percent opposed it.

The results suggest that the public remains sharply divided over the Bork nomination but that undecided voters are joining the opposition to Bork as increased attention is focused on the confirmation battle.

THE POLL ALSO shows President Ronald Reagan's overall approval rating holding fairly steady at 52 percent. Approval of his conduct of foreign policy has increased to 47 percent, up from 42 percent in August. However, this did not translate into a boost in support for U.S. military aid to the Nicaraguan Contras. Sixty-one percent of the public opposes such aid.

The partisan and ideological nature of the Bork confirmation fight is evident in the poll results, which are based on interviews with the 70 percent of respondents who said they had heard or read of the nomination. In August, only 45 percent of poll respondents said they were aware of it.

Among Democrats, opposition to Bork's nomination surged to 71 percent, from 56 percent in August. Bork continues to enjoy support from about two-thirds of Republicans.

BORK'S OPPONENTS have tried to depict him as a rigid, conservative ideologue. Where they have succeeded, they have generated intense opposition. Among voters who see Bork as "very conservative," 83 percent disapprove of his nomination. In contrast, 86 percent of those who view Bork as a "moderate" approve of the nomination.

The poll also confirms the impressionistic assessment of lobbyists and senators engaged in the confirmation battle that Bork's opponents feel more strongly about the nomination than do his supporters.

Robert Bork

There was some good news for Bork in the poll. It showed a modest decline from August in the number of those who consider him "very conservative" and that six out of 10 respondents do not think that the high court would become more conservative if he is confirmed.

BUT BORK, WHO is being opposed by an array of women's groups, continues to suffer from a wide gender gap in the public perceptions of his likely impact on the Supreme Court, according to the poll. Opposition to the nomination among women rose from 44 percent in the August survey to 53 percent now. Among men, opposition rose from 36 percent to 44 percent.

In both these gender categories, as well as other subgroups of those polled, Bork's approval level remained fairly steady while there was an increase in the number of those who disapprove of his nomination as public awareness of the confirmation fight grew.

Bork suffered some erosion in all regions of the country, with one of the sharpest declines occurring in the South, which many consider the key battleground because of the large number of uncommitted southern Democrats in the Senate. In August, Bork had clear support in the South, where 47 percent

Branstad remarks on tuition

By James Cahoy
The Daily Iowan

Iowa Gov. Terry Branstad refused to say Thursday whether he favors the state Board of Regents proposed 9 and 12 percent tuition increases, but said the state would allocate more money for faculty salaries at regents institutions for fiscal year 1989.

"We intend to provide $27 million extra dollars this year for faculty salaries, a six-and-a-quarter percent increase over last year," Branstad said. "We want to make it easier on the regents to hold tuition increases down as much as possible."

Branstad made the comments at a meeting of the Johnson County Republican's Eisenhower Club in the Highlander Inn Thursday evening.

Saying he sympathized with the concerns of students, Branstad said the regents were in a difficult situation.

"I understand the needs of students. When I was a student at the University of Iowa, I was only able to stay in school because of financial aid," Branstad said. "We have to maintain accessibility, but at the same time we have to make it a top priority to improve the faculty.

"THE REGENTS have the difficult task to balance these concerns, and I understand the dilemma they're in," Branstad added.

Speaking before a crowd of about 70 people, Branstad also said he would be meeting Saturday with the Iowa House and Senate's Democratic Caucus to solve the impasse on the proposed revision of the state's tax code, a meeting he labeled historic.

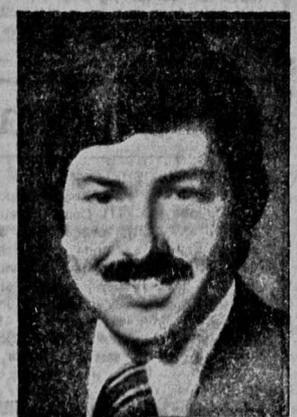

"I don't think this sort of meeting has ever been attempted under a Republican governor," Branstad said. "I think it's important we meet with the Democrats and come up with a tax system that is simpler and more fair."

Branstad said he favors a lower income tax rate than the state's current 13 percent, and said a 9.5 percent tax rate was a feasible possibility in the negotiations between Democratic and Republican legislative leaders.

BUT BRANSTAD said he wasn't sure a special session to solve the state's tax problems would be needed, and said he

Former UI professor dies

Former chairman of the UI College of Medicine's Division of Neurosurgery George E. Perret died in his sleep of a heart attack at his home in Iowa City Monday. He was 77.

The Swiss-born Perret joined the UI medical faculty in 1949 and served as a professor of surgery starting in 1958. He was named chairman of the neurosurgery division in 1963, holding that post until retiring in 1978.

Perret studied art at the Leipzig School of Art, the Chicago Art Institute and the UI School of Art and Art History. Recently, he had been teaching drawing at the Iowa City Senior Center.

A memorial reception will be held in Iowa City at a future date. Memorial contributions may be made to the Iowa City Senior Center or to the Iowa City Public Library Foundation.

Four run for council spots

Four incumbent members of the Coralville City Council are the only candidates to file nominating papers for four open seats in the Nov. 3 council election.

The Coralville city clerk's office reported that as of 5 p.m. Thursday, the deadline for filing for the election, the only candidates were current Coralville Mayor Michael Katchee, 924 14th Ave.; and current council members Allan Axen, 706 10th Ave.; Thomas Gill, 808 Eighth Ave.; and Diana Lundell, 819 14th Ave.

Bureau sponsors tax talk

The Johnson County Farm Bureau and the Johnson County Taxpayers Association will sponsor a public meeting to discuss the 1 percent local option sales tax Sept. 30 at 7:30 p.m. at Montgomery Hall on Highway 218 South.

Johnson County Farm Bureau President Anita Sehr said the purpose of the meeting was to educate people on the tax, and said she hopes mostly rural people attend the open meeting to express concerns and ask questions concerning the tax, which will be voted on Oct. 6.

College sponsors seminar

The UI College of Dentistry will hold its annual Dental Alumni Weekend Sept. 25-26, with a seminar Friday for alumni dentists and dental hygienists followed by an awards ceremony Friday night.

Miles Olsen, of Laurens, Iowa, will receive the 1987 Dental Alumnus of the Year award for his work in bringing flouridated water to small Iowa towns and the Dental Educator of the Year Award will be presented posthumously to William Tade, who died March 19, 1987.

The activities will also include several courses concentrating on the treatment of the elderly. Lectures on the subject will be given by UI Professor of Removable Prosthodontics Ronald Ettinger, UI Assistant Professor of Oral Surgery Karen Baker and UI Department of Operative Dentistry Chairman Wallace Johnson.

The programs will be held Friday beginning at 9 a.m. in the Dental Science Building, auditoriums B and C.

Law college honors court

The UI College of Law will welcome eight members of Iowa's Supreme Court to campus Sunday in observance of its annual Supreme Court Day tradition.

The day will feature the presentation of a moot case before the court at 9:30 a.m. in Levitt Auditorium. Third-year law students Eric Eide and Karen Ann Murphy will argue the case of a disputed diamond necklace before Iowa Supreme Court Chief Justice W. Ward Reynolds and Associate Justices James H. Carter, K. David Harris, Jerry L. Larson, Louis Lavorato, Arthur A. McGiverin, Linda Kinney Neuman and Louis Schultz.

Following the oral arguments, Hines will present a distinguished service award to Reynolds — a 1948 UI law school graduate — who will retire Oct. 1 after 16 years on the court, and nine years as chief justice.

Actor Gere will help out state's troubled farmers

By Adam Shell
The Daily Iowan

CEDAR RAPIDS — Actor Richard Gere, in Iowa shooting a film titled "Farm of the Year," has decided to help the state's beleaguered farmers in real life.

The award-winning actor will be a special guest at a fund-raising dinner to help save the financially-troubled Farmers Helping Farmers organization based here.

"The bottom line is that Richard thinks this is an important issue," Harvest Film Co. publicist Stuart Wolf said. "He is more than thrilled to come out and help what he feels is a real worthy cause."

Farmers Helping Farmers is a network of rural support groups which provides counseling services to farm families. The organization needs to raise $50,000 by the first week in October. If it doesn't, the organization will have to close their office Oct. 2.

"This fund-raiser is make or break for us," Joanne Dvorak of Farmers Helping Farmers said. "It has the potential to open our doors and keep us out in the countryside."

IN JUNE, Iowa Gov. Terry

Branstad vetoed more than $35 million in funds for several human service agencies; included in the cuts was $100,000 intended for Farmers Helping Farmers.

Wolf said Gere — who did not attend the press conference because of his schedule — wanted to emphasize the benefit dinner should focus on the work of Farmers Helping Farmers and not his appearance there.

"This is an opportunity to help pay back the community by helping out such a terrific organization like Farmers Helping Farmers," Wolf said.

DVORAK SAID the four main goals of her organization are to reduce isolation among rural families, increase communication, provide updated information and offer ongoing support services.

In 1986 Farmers Helping Farmers averaged 15 phone calls per day or a total of nearly 3,750 calls. In the first three months of 1987 they provided crisis counseling to 108 people, involved 250 people in support groups and provided educational services to about 1,550 individuals.

"We need urgently financial support, community support and participation in helping to continue to provide these services," Dvorak said.

Dvorak said the demand for services is increasing and at the same time staffing is decreasing due to budget constraints.

"We were at three staff positions at our peak, now we are just a one-person operation because of the cutback," Dvorak said.

SEN. TOM HARKIN, D-Iowa, will be the featured speaker at the benefit dinner, which will be held Sunday, Oct. 4 in the Stouffers Ballroom in Cedar Rapids from 7:30-9:30 p.m. A $50 donation per person is requested.

Wolf said Gere did not attend the news conference because "he works 12 hours-a-day, six days-a-week and when he's not on the set he's recuperating from being in front of the camera."

Some of Gere's movie credits include: An Officer and a Gentleman, The Cotton Club, Looking for Mr. Goodbar, American Gigolo and Breathless.

County supervisors reject courthouse smoking ban

By Craig Sterrett
The Daily Iowan

A complete ban on smoking in the Johnson County Courthouse was rejected Thursday after a heated debate by the Johnson County Board of Supervisors.

The supervisors voted to designate a smoking area in the courthouse instead.

The designated smoking area is a landing area between the second and third floors. Smoking will no longer be permitted in the rotunda area outside the courtrooms.

Supervisor Chairwoman Betty Ockenfels proposed the motion to make the courthouse — which is undergoing renovation — smoke-free, but was opposed by other board members.

"I'm really in favor of no smoking," Ockenfels said. "I think it would help to make better employees. There is certainly time lost and an increase in health costs to the county because of employees' smoking."

BUT SUPERVISOR Robert Burns disagreed.

"I think this is a fascist mentality and it is unconstitutional," Burns, a pipe-smoker, said. "I'm totally against it. I'm trying to protect an endangered group of people here."

A new designated smoking area ordinance arose because the old one had become outdated. The old ordinance designated offices where smoking was permitted, but many of those offices no longer exist, because of renovation.

"I know what the status of the old ordinance is," Johnson County Attorney J. Patrick White said. "It's hopelessly outdated."

A district court official said people used to be allowed to smoke in the lobby outside the court room, in break rooms and in chambers.

IN OTHER BUSINESS Thursday, the supervisors approved funding for about $35,000 worth of shelving and filing systems for the county attorney's office.

Part of the $400,000 renovation of the courthouse, the $20,600 purchase and installation of the new shelving system passed in a 3-2 vote, and the purchase of the $15,000 filing system passed unanimously.

The shelving system will be purchased from Woodcrafters Inc., of Cedar Rapids and will be installed by Frantz Construction of Iowa City. The county will purchase the filing system from Walsh Equipment Inc. of Des Moines.

Ockenfels voted against paying for the bookshelves because in an earlier meeting she had said the county was spending too much money on the renovation. "I think it's something that could be done at a later time," Ockenfels said. "I want to make sure we do the necessary things right now."

"We always have change orders as the project is going along, and I want to make sure we have money for that," Ockenfels said.

Police

By Franc Contreras
The Daily Iowan

UI Campus Security police Thursday issued a warrant for the arrest of an Iowa City man who allegedly assaulted a medical doctor with a handgun in the 300 block of the UI Westlawn Complex, according to a police report.

Steve Snyder, no address or age listed, allegedly attacked the doctor, then fled on foot down the Westlawn hill and ran northbound across Highway 6.

Snyder is considered extremely dangerous and is reported to be carrying a small handgun, according to the report.

He was last seen Wednesday wearing a dark ski mask, an army jacket, a dark shirt and dark pants. If caught, Snyder faces charges of assault and being armed with intent to commit personal injury.

Theft: A $200 radar detector was stolen Thursday morning from a Coralville man's office, according to police reports.

The incident apparently occurred sometime since Sept. 18, and the owner said there was no sign of forced entry.

Report: An Iowa City man was arrested Thursday on a charge of indecent conduct after he allegedly urinated on an officer's squad car that was parked at Holiday Inn, 210 S. Dubuque St., according to police reports.

Michael J. Torner, 20, 830 E. Jefferson St. was also charged with public intoxication in connection with the incident. He was detained at the Johnson County Jail, paid a $35 fine and was released Thursday morning on his own recognizance, according to a jail official.

Report: Two Texas women were arrested Wednesday on a charge of soliciting without a permit after they were allegedly selling magazine subscriptions near Burge Residence Hall, according to police reports.

Dawn Bugge, 20, and Jean Velenage, 24, both of Tabor Bryen, Texas, were taken to Johnson County Jail at 7:35 p.m. They posted bond and were released later that night, according to the report.

Courts

By Sheryl L. Cohen
The Daily Iowan

A Coralville man was charged Thursday with possession of a controlled substance, according to Johnson County District Court records.

Samuel James Hall, 422 6th Ave., Coralville, was charged with possession of marijuana, according to court records.

Police officers observed Hall unconscious in the passenger seat of a car registered to him. Officers noticed a strong odor of alcoholic beverages, and observed that Hall appeared intoxicated. Hall was then arrested for public intoxication, according to court records.

At the Johnson County Jail, officers found Hall carrying a wooden container holding the marijuana, according to court records.

Hall was released on his own recognizance and a preliminary hearing was set for Oct. 8.

Photos, books keep record of UI's history, growth alive

By Rebecca Himschoot
The Daily Iowan

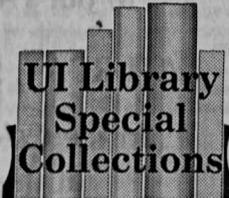

Covering 4,700 linear feet of shelf space in the UI Special Collections Library are the UI Archives, a collection of records and materials which trace the growth of the UI since it was founded in 1847.

One of the four parts which make up the UI Special Collections Department, the Archives house books, periodicals, photographs and departmental records, among other items from UI history.

Of the nearly 50,000 photographs stored in the Archives, most were shot by Fred Kent, a freshman at UI in 1911 who later founded the University Photography Service, UI Curator of Archives Earl M. Rogers said.

Rogers said many people use the Archives, including researchers from outside the UI. He said the Archives are also used by faculty, administrators and graduate and undergraduate students.

"WE HAVE CLIPPING files on both professors and buildings, mostly from The Daily Iowan, the

UI Library Special Collections
This is the last of four stories on the UI Library Special Collections.

Iowa City Press-Citizen and the Des Moines Register," Rogers said.

According to Rogers, the Archives also have a full set of The Hawkeye yearbook and copies of photographs of the Old Capitol taken in the 1850s. The oldest piece in the Archives are the minutes of a 1847 state Board of Regents meeting.

"Some materials are restricted, but most of our holdings are available to anyone seriously interested in the university's history," Rogers said.

According to Rogers, all the books and periodicals in the Archives are listed in the main card catalog on the first floor of the Main Library, but the manuscripts and other materials are not.

ROGERS SAID THE Archives are arranged according to subject matter.

"Their organization is basically by group — material from a specific department would be together, regardless of format," Rogers said. "Almost all of our holdings are in the closed stack area and we bring it to the Reading Room on request."

Rogers said nearly all the materials in the Archives come from UI departments after they have become outdated or difficult to store for the departments.

"About the only kind of material we would buy would be books, for example, if they have to do with the university but are published outside of the university," Rogers said.

The UI Archives are not open during regular Main Library hours, but can be used weekdays 9 a.m. to noon, and 1 to 5 p.m.

Virus in sushi, fish products can give tummy a 'raw' deal

By John Bartenhagen
The Daily Iowan

Sushi eaters might want to pick an alternative favorite seafood dish, according to information released this week by the Johnson County Health Department.

Fish products eaten raw, marinated or partially cooked may carry viruses or bacteria causing diarrhea, abdominal pain, nausea, vomiting and other painful gastrointestinal symptoms lasting from several hours to several days, the release stated.

In restaurants, menu items containing raw fishery products include Japanese sushi and sashimi, South American ceviche, Dutch green herring, Scandinavian gravlax, Hawaiian lomi lomi, poison crux and any lightly-cooked fillets, the release stated.

The species most commonly available raw, marinated or partially cooked include bonito, bream, cod, flounder, fluke, herring, mackerel, octopus, porgy, rockfish, salmon, scallops, sea trout, shrimp, squid, tilefish and tuna.

Marvin Klahn, public health sanitarian at the Johnson County Health Department, said the types of fish carrying such bacteria or viruses would most likely be available locally at Asian food stores.

"THESE FISH products would be the type of thing people cook at home," he said. "I don't believe any area restaurants carry these items on their menus."

Food poisoning related to raw, marinated or undercooked fish is not a new phenomenon, he said.

"It's the same concept as the salmonella chicken scare," he said. "Raw chicken has always had salmonella and it always will."

But food poisoning from tainted fish has not yet surfaced as a problem in the Iowa City area.

Emergency room records at Mercy Hospital show no cases of seafood-related food poisoning. While UI Hospitals and UI Student Health Service do not keep such records, Student Health Acting Director Mary Khowassah said she has not noticed any recent increase in the overall occurrence of food poisoning cases.

While Iowa City citizens have not been greatly affected by fish carrying bacteria or viruses, Klahn said the nation-wide increase in the consumption of fish products makes it necessary to educate people about possible dangers.

"I THINK THE rise in fish consumption comes from heightened awareness by the American public about health, fitness and eating right," he said. "More people are turning to fish as a part of their diet because it is low in cholesterol and high in protein."

While the symptoms are generally minimal, Khowassah said illness from food poisoning can occasionally be severe and even life-threatening in individuals whose immune systems are not functioning properly. People with impaired immune systems include cancer patients undergoing chemotherapy, AIDS patients, and patients taking steroids, she said.

"If a person has an illness, is taking medication, or undergoing treatment, then they are more susceptible to all infectious bacteria and viruses," she said.

And although resulting illnesses from food poisoning are usually not severe, Klahn said people should take precautions when preparing fish.

The bacteria and viruses carried by raw fish can only be killed by thorough cooking, he said, and they cannot be frozen or washed away.

"Follow the directions in your cookbook," he said. "When the fish flakes apart, it's done."

State's jobless rate remains at 4.6 percent

DES MOINES (UPI) — Iowa's unemployment rate held steady at 4.6 percent for the third month in a row last month, despite a drop in the labor force due to seasonal declines in agriculture, state officials said Thursday.

The August jobless rate compared to a national rate of 6 percent and an Iowa rate of 6.4 percent the same month last year, said Dick Freeman, director of the Iowa Department of Employment Services.

The number of unemployed Iowans fell from 67,200 in July to 65,800 in August, a drop of nearly 30 percent from the 92,600 level reported in August 1986.

On the negative side, the size of the state's labor force decreased 33,300 to 1.41 million in August.

"The size of the August labor force was affected by a seasonal decline in agriculture, and by students who left the work place to return to school," Freeman said.

The highest urban unemployment rates were reported in Clinton, 8.7 percent, and Waterloo, 8.2 percent. Ottumwa reported 7.3 percent, Davenport 6.8 percent, Cedar Rapids 4.7 percent and Des Moines 4.7 percent.

Freeman said total employment continued to compare favorably with figures reported over the past seven years.

"This is an indication that the economy is sustaining the employment growth that became evident during the second half of 1986," he said.

In the year to date, the number of payroll jobs has increased 2.1 percent for a gain of 22,100. Manufacturing industries have accounted for 10,600 of the new jobs.

Biden thanks campaign staff

Ex-candidate promises future presidential bid

WILMINGTON, Del. (UPI)—Sen. Joseph Biden thanked his tearful hometown campaign staff Thursday, admitting he "screwed up" the presidential bid he abandoned amid allegations of plagiarism but pledging to run again in 1992.

"My mother used to say, 'Joey Biden, someday your temper's going to get you in trouble,'" Biden told reporters after meeting with staffers. "It sure did."

Biden, 44, quit the Democratic nomination race with his credibility under attack after he admitted plagiarizing a paper in law school, using unattributed quotes from others in speeches and embellishing on his college academic record in an angry exchange at a campaign appearance.

Biden, who dropped out of the presidential race Wednesday, spoke in private for about 20 minutes with 100 staffers and friends in the Wilmington headquarters and then went to Iowa and New Hampshire for similar meetings with supporters.

State Democratic Chairman Samuel Shipley said Biden indicated he would be a candidate for president again in 1992.

"HE TOLD the staff he would be running for re-election in 1990 and he said he would be back to run for the nomination in 1992," Shipley said. "It was something the staff wanted to hear. I think what he meant was, if a Democrat is not elected he will seek the nomination in 1992."

In Des Moines, Biden was asked if he would have done anything differently if he had it to do over again.

"Yeah, I'd ask Neil Kinnock to come campaign for me," Biden replied.

His response was a joking reference to the British Labor Party leader whom he quoted without attribution during an Iowa debate last month, touching off the controversy over his plagiarism of other politicians' quotations.

Biden, unlike Gary Hart, another Democrat who withdrew in the early stages of the campaign, did not blame the news media for his downfall.

BIDEN, accompanied by his wife, two sons and sister, said he did not blame the media for his downfall.

"Look, I made a mistake. If you make a mistake you pay. I think you are zealous, but you are doing your job," he told reporters.

"Nobody did this to Joe Biden. There had to be something there to stitch together," he said in Des Moines.

Biden said Wednesday's speech announcing his decision to withdraw from the race was "relatively hard to do."

"I've never quit at anything. I'm not that good at it. I thought while I was giving the speech there were some who were afraid about half-way through I would say 'And I am going to continue to run.' I must admit to you that was there," he said.

Babbitt addresses arms in UI speech

By Lisa Legge
The Daily Iowan

Democratic presidential candidate Bruce Babbitt spoke in Iowa City Thursday in two different settings, stressing the need for nuclear weapon disarmament, revenue increases and the strengthening of social programs.

The former Arizona governor addressed general rhetorical campaign issues to a predominantly student crowd of 200 in Schaeffer Hall before focusing primarily on military issues in a speech to the Iowa City Foreign Relations Council.

Calling his priority to balance the budget "very high," Babbitt said social program budgets should not be cut to balance the budget, but rather certain consumption taxes should be increased to cover the costs of such programs.

"You can't balance the budget through expenditure cuts alone," he said. "I believe in a needs-tested approach to cutting expenditures."

"I PROPOSE A national consumption tax which ought to be set at about five percent in order to make it progressive, in order to protect low-income people through rebates, by interfacing with the income tax rates and by exempting certain articles," Babbitt said.

In his speech to the Iowa City Foreign Relations Council at the Congregational Church, 30 N. Clinton St., Babbitt said the Intermediate Nuclear Forces treaty, signed last week banning certain U.S. and Soviet nuclear weapons in Europe, is just a beginning.

Babbitt also restated his commitment to adhering to the Anti-Ballistic Missile treaty, limiting anti-satellite weapons and limiting testing and development of nuclear weapons.

Babbitt, who served two terms as governor of Arizona, outlined his priorities for social programs.

"IT IS AN absolute need for universal availability of daycare assistance for every working family in this land," he said.

Babbitt said a military draft is a possibility in the future.

"We have a baby boom which is now moving beyond conscription age, and behind them will be much smaller numbers (of those able to serve)," he said. "My judgment is it is likely we will return to conscription in the early 1990s."

Babbitt said he favors an expanded student loan system in which loan forgiveness is granted to people who join the military service, Peace Corps, VISTA or community action services.

Babbitt used his so-called "obligatory 15 minutes" to criticize the Reagan administration for its deregulation policies which he called "a regulatory Darwinism — everybody for himself or herself."

HE ALSO CALLED Reagan's policy concerning the Persian Gulf "a paranoid view" reminiscent of the 1950s. He called Reagan's Strategic Defense Initiative "a genie that needs to be stuffed back in the bottle."

Babbitt said his electability is evident in his ability to twice win gubernatorial elections in what he termed primarily a Republican state.

"What I managed to do is say to the sons and daughters of Barry Goldwater, 'We can have an honest agenda of economic growth and job creation,'" he said.

University Democrats Chairwoman Tara Sutton said students' reception of Babbitt was favorable.

"I think the students were very responsive to what Governor Babbitt had to say," she said. "There seems to be a great amount of interest among the students. It was an 11 o'clock event and the room was packed. That's very encouraging."

Democrats applaud arms pact

DAVENPORT — A trio of Democratic presidential candidates Thursday hailed the U.S.-Soviet agreement to eliminate medium-range nuclear weapons as a good first step that must be followed by a comprehensive test ban treaty.

"It's an important step in the right direction," said Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis. "It certainly sets the stage for the next president of the United States to negotiate deep cuts in strategic weapons and a comprehensive test ban treaty."

Dukakis' comment during a Marycrest College appearance was directed at last week's announcement that the superpowers have agreed in principle to eliminate ground-launched, intermediate-range nuclear missiles in Europe.

Several hours later at an arms control forum, Sen. Paul Simon, D-Ill., said the proposed agreement makes a minor dent in the world's nuclear arsenal that will shift, but not end, the arms race.

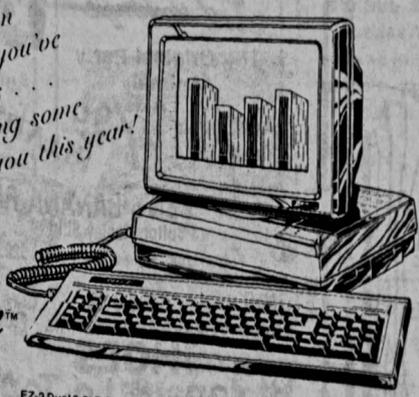

The forum also include Rep. Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., and former Sen. Albert Gore Sr., appearing on behalf of his son — also a candidate for the 1988 Democratic presidential nomination.

Simon said one of his first acts as president would be to inform the Soviet Union that the U.S. government was willing to agree to a mutual test ban treaty.

Despite its reputation, garlic may have real medical value

By John Bartenhagen
The Daily Iowan

While medical experts have been unable to substantiate its value in treating high blood pressure, cancer, fungal disease, or as a charm warding off vampires, garlic has been a common ingredient in home-care remedies for more than 5,000 years.

And according to UI Nursing Professor Toni Tripp-Reimer, there is evidence to support some of the claims made for garlic's curative powers.

Roman scholar Pliny the Elder, in his Historia Naturalis, lists 61 remedies using garlic, including cures for snake bites, dog bites, convulsions, scorpion stings, tumors, asthma and madness.

IN THE 16TH century, Europeans wore garlic around their necks to ward off the plague. Some 300 years later, French scientist Louis Pasteur experimented with garlic as an antiseptic.

And belief in garlic as a treatment for a wide range of ailments is not restricted to other centuries.

According to a 1979 New York Times magazine article, Eleanor Roosevelt took three chocolate-coated garlic perles every morning to improve her memory. The article also stated that a type of garlic called ajo macho is commonly used in Mexico to cure colic, whooping cough, wasp stings and sibling rivalry, and added that during a flu epidemic in the 1960s, Russian newspapers advised citizens to chew raw garlic to protect themselves.

While many garlic cures cannot be proven medically valid, Tripp-Reimer, director of research at the UI College of Nursing, said studying self-care practiced by Iowans of Norwegian, Czech, Greek and Amish heritage has led her to believe garlic does have many uses, some of them medical.

FRESH GARLIC CAN be used to fight common parasites such as pinworms, to slow the growth of fungi and bacteria and to reduce the risk of high blood pressure, Tripp-Reimer said.

"In World War II, American medics used an antiseptic solution of fresh garlic and alcohol to inhibit gangrene," she said. "In present-day India, water with garlic is used as an antiseptic handwash."

Garlic contains a natural antibiotic, allicin. While not as strong an agent against bacteria as penicillin, allicin is effective against a wider range of organisms.

Sulfur compounds are responsible for garlic's strong odor, Tripp-Reimer said, and make it a useful repellent against fleas, mosquitoes and chiggers without harming other insects or larger wild and domestic animals.

BUT GARLIC'S GREATEST contribution to the medical world may be as an anti-coagulant. Anti-coagulants are agents that prevent blood platelets from sticking to blood vessel walls, thus reducing blood pressure.

This property has U.S. health food distributors touting garlic as prevention against circulatory problems, a claim that needs clarifying, Tripp-Reimer said.

"Garlic may be as effective as aspirin in reducing the risk of high blood pressure and heart attack," she said. "But eating garlic will not prevent hypertension or heart attack."

And because garlic may act as a blood thinner, Tripp-Reimer said people with clotting disorders might not want to eat too much garlic.

Although there are more garlic remedies than superstition, Tripp-Reimer said patients should still review eating habits and self-treatments with health professionals.

"Folk remedies frequently do have pharmacological properties that need to be considered by health professionals when preparing a treatment plan," she said.

Odor-free garlic to hit U.S.

By David Butts
United Press International

TOKYO — The ever-polite Japanese have developed a "high-tech," odor-free garlic they plan to begin selling in the United States in November, the inventor said Thursday.

Kotaro Sakai says his garlic retains its full, spicy flavor without the lingering aftereffect of bad breath.

"It's really delicious," Sakai said. "And with my garlic it's OK to kiss."

The garlic, which a Japanese sales agent dubbed "high tech," is made by soaking garlic cloves in Phytin, a calcium supplement, and other food additives.

Sakai, 62, would not reveal how he came up with the technique, but said it became so popular when he took it to a small Korean restaurant near his house that he decided to market it.

"LOTS OF CUSTOMERS" started coming, and everyone said it tastes good," he said.

Sakai said he has signed a contract with Jewel Rina Co. of North Bergen, N.J., to process and sell 10 tons of the inoffensive garlic each month in the United States beginning in November. The company will use American garlic, he added.

At the same time, Mitsui and Co., a leading trading house, will market 10 tons a month in Japan.

"Japanese are especially sensitive about the smell of garlic," said Mitsui spokesman Kiichi Se. "Americans and Europeans eat more, four times as much garlic as the Japanese. Koreans eat 10 times as much."

Soviets, U.S. unified on cease-fire

UNITED NATIONS — The United States and the Soviet Union agreed Thursday to try to maintain a unified front in efforts to bring a cease-fire in the 7-year-old Iran-Iraq war.

The United Nations announced late Thursday that the Security Council will meet today at noon in closed-door consultations on the war.

Against a background of rising tensions in the Persian Gulf, Secretary of State George Shultz and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze met for 90 minutes at the U.S. Mission to the United Nations Thursday.

Describing their session as "productive and worthwhile," they said they had agreed it is important for the two nations to work together on solving problems in the gulf.

Site of summit meeting still not settled

MOSCOW — A Soviet spokesman said Thursday that the site for this fall's meeting between President Ronald Reagan and Communist Party chief Mikhail Gorbachev has not yet been settled, putting in question assumptions that it would be in Washington.

At a press briefing, Boris Pyadyshev of the Foreign Ministry noted that a joint communique on the summit released last week in Washington did not specify where the meeting would be held. "This issue has to be addressed and has to be solved," he said.

One Soviet official said later that the Kremlin is still reviewing the U.S. invitation to hold the summit in Washington, which he said is now a "50-50" possibility.

Bork accused of favoring 'big business'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Supreme Court nominee Robert Bork almost always sides with "big government and big business" over the rights of citizens, a leading Bork critic said Thursday.

Ralph Neas, executive director of the Leadership Conference on Civil Rights, also said the effort to block Bork's nomination may be as important as a presidential election.

Bork gives "extraordinary deference" to the executive branch of government, said Neas, who is coordinating anti-Bork lobbying by several hundred labor, civil rights and religious organizations.

"He virtually always chooses the rights of big government and big business over the rights of individuals," Neas said. "He is a statist."

Dinosaur fossils found, raise questions

WASHINGTON — What were believed to be bones of mammoths found in Alaska 26 years ago have turned out to be dinosaur fossils, raising new questions about a theory that says dinosaurs were wiped out when an asteroid smashed into Earth 65 million years ago.

Geologist Elizabeth Brouwers said in a report released Thursday that these are the first remains of dinosaurs found so far north — where there is winter darkness for weeks or months at a time.

The increasingly accepted asteroid theory suggests a globe-girdling cloud of dust and smoke from such a catastrophic collision blacked out the sun for weeks or months, lowering temperatures and killing the vegetation that fed the giant reptiles.

"Our point here is that darkness and cold alone can't explain the extinction of dinosaurs because here we've got large numbers of dinosaurs living under fairly cold, and in the wintertime, dark conditions," she said in a telephone interview.

Possible AIDS treatment announced

WASHINGTON — Two independent researchers announced Thursday a possible new AIDS treatment based on standard typhoid vaccine, but public health officials said there were too many questions to know if it would benefit victims of the deadly disease.

The researchers, a laboratory technician and a physician in private practice, said at least one seriously ill AIDS patient given the vaccine showed an 80 percent improvement, including increased stamina and lowered fever, and was able to return to work full-time.

Fifteen to 18 others were showing signs they would experience the same improvement, and perhaps remission, by November, said the researchers.

Mass grave of 18 Filipinos uncovered

CAGAYAN DE ORO, Philippines — Government troops have uncovered mass graves with the remains of 18 Filipinos tortured and murdered in communist "killing fields" on Mindanao island, military officials said Thursday.

Brigade commander Brig. Gen. Manuel Dizon said in a statement a former communist rebel led soldiers Wednesday to the mass graves in the sugar-producing municipality of Dangcagan 500 miles south of Manila.

He said most of the victims were farmers executed because communist rebels suspected them of being "government informers or deep penetration agents called zombies."

U.S. conducts 12th atomic test in 1987

From DI Wire Services

PAHUTE MESA, Nev. — U.S. scientists detonated a nuclear weapon at the strikebound Nevada Test Site Thursday, less than three months before the Reagan administration has promised to open talks on a global atomic weapons test ban.

Ground motion from the 8 a.m. explosion, the nation's 12th announced nuclear test this year, swayed high-rise hotels in Las Vegas, but no damage was reported. The jolt also was felt at Scotty's Castle, a tourist attraction in California's Death Valley.

"The test was a success, and all of the radiation was contained," Department of Energy spokeswoman Barbara Yoerg said from a control point 28 miles from ground zero. She described the ground motion as a "shudder."

MEANWHILE IN Washington, the Senate, wading through a long list of amendments to the $303 billion defense bill, killed a proposed two-year moratorium Thursday on most superpower underground nuclear tests.

On a 62-35 vote, members turned aside a proposal by Sens. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., and Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., to halt all but the smallest of nuclear tests for two years, provided the Soviet Union also restricted tests and agreed to on-site monitoring. The House defense bill proposes a one-year limited testing moratorium.

The nuclear weapon, detonated at the bottom of a 2,000-foot shaft beneath Pahute Mesa, had an announced yield of 20 to 150 kilotons. It registered a 5.6 on the Richter scale at the Earthquake

Information Center in Golden, Colo.

AN EARTHQUAKE of that magnitude is capable of causing moderate damage. The 1906 earthquake in San Francisco measured 8.3 on the Richter scale.

A 150-kiloton weapon, equivalent to 150,000 tons of TNT, is almost 12 times greater than the weapon dropped on Hiroshima in World War II.

The test was the 12th announced by the United States this year. The Soviet Union has announced 11 weapons tests and five tests for peaceful purposes, such as mineral exploration, since ending a unilateral moratorium in February.

The U.S. weapon test, code-named "Lockney," came on the 10th day of a strike by culinary workers at the Nevada Test Site that is being honored by some 90 percent of the facility's union workforce of some 3,500.

THE TEST also was conducted at a time of promises by the Reagan administration that discussion of a global nuclear weapons test ban will be placed on the negotiating table by Dec. 1.

Scores of striking workers and three anti-nuclear protesters paraded near the Nevada Test Site gates at last time about 45 miles from ground zero.

"They felt it, all right," Yoerg said.

It took less than one minute for ground motion to reach Las Vegas, 105 miles from ground zero. Observers said a swaying motion was felt in highrise hotel-casinos including Circus Circus, the Sahara, Golden Nugget, Riviera and the Flamingo Hilton.

EPA discovers dioxin in fish, soil, paper pulp

By Elmer W. Lammi
United Press International

WASHINGTON — The EPA said Thursday it has found the toxic chemical dioxin in soil at more than 100 chemical facilities, in fish from more than 100 sites, in municipal waste-burners and in paper pulp.

The Environmental Protection Agency gave the results in its National Dioxin Study, a nationwide project begun two years ago with a congressional order.

Dioxin contamination at Love Canal, N.Y., Times Beach, Mo., and other sites have resulted in health problems, animal deaths and costly clean-ups and relocations.

While dioxin is a suspected carcinogen, EPA officials said this has not been proved. Mike Cook, director of EPA's Office of Drinking Water, said studies have shown it "definitely" causes cancer in animals, but that there was "no conclusive evidence" that it does so in humans.

COOK SAID THE number of contaminated sites found was "considerably less than we expected."

The EPA also said, "In most cases, the dioxin... has not migrated off-site" from where it was produced or dumped by leaching through soil or water.

But the dioxin study turned up traces of the toxin in the flesh of fish from 112 of the 395 sites it tested, including 23 of 29 Great Lakes sites.

"Outside of the Great Lakes, fish contamination was primarily found in major river systems, such as the Ohio and Mississippi rivers, or in waterways with significant industrial activity," the report said. States have already issued warnings against eating contaminated fish and the EPA said it would be issuing additional advisories.

Jack Moore, EPA's assistant administrator for pesticides and toxic substances, said the finding of dioxin-contaminated fish near pulp and paper mills was "unexpected," but said it was not proof that paper products are unsafe.

ONE OF THE MOST significant problems appears to be in the waste dumped into streams by pulp and paper plants, and the agency has ordered a study of the waste from 90 paper mills.

The agency also "began an inquiry into the possible contamination of bleached kraft pulp and pulp products."

Finished products made from the pulp include writing paper, paper towels, napkins, coffee filters, diapers, tissues, toilet paper and feminine hygiene products.

President Ronald Reagan confers with Vice President George Bush in the Oval Office Thursday before Bush was to leave on a 10-day swing through Europe to meet with government leaders.

Bush to consult U.S. allies on Gulf tensions, arms pact

Norman D. Sandler
United Press International

WASHINGTON — Fresh from the campaign trail, Vice President George Bush donned the hat of candidate-statesman Thursday and prepared to head for Europe to consult with U.S. allies and mark a thaw in U.S.-Polish relations.

Bush met with a group of foreign policy advisers hours before flying to Rome, the first stop of a 10-day trip intended in part to highlight his foreign policy credentials and brighten his political prospects at home.

The trip will see Bush become the highest-ranking U.S. official to visit Poland since President Carter in 1977. He will also touch base with allied leaders in five West European capitals at a time of tension in the Persian Gulf and general relief that a superpower arms accord is all but in hand.

AFTER THE AMERICAN attack Monday on a mine-laying Iranian ship, Bush is expected to find the volatile situation in the gulf at the top of the agenda in talks today with Italian officials.

With an eight-ship Italian armada en route to the gulf, the government has reaffirmed its determination to help protect shipping in the area, despite fears in some circles that Italy could be drawn into a shooting war provoked by the massive military buildup in the region.

In Rome and later in Bonn, Paris, London and Brussels, Bush "will express satisfaction that we are no longer going it alone" in the gulf, a senior adviser to the vice president told reporters.

At the same time, he said, "I think the question we all have to ask is: 'When is enough enough in the Persian Gulf?'"

ONE CONCERN Bush may hear aired in talks with Prime Minister Giovanni Goria at Chigi Palace is that the Italian forces lack air cover to protect against possible attacks in the gulf.

France has provided air cover for its own forces in the area, while Britain has extended its air coverage to Dutch and Belgian forces as well. Bush could be asked about a similar arrangement of American protection for the Italian ships in the gulf.

Also in Rome, Bush is expected to receive assurances of Italian support for a U.S.-Soviet agreement to eliminate intermediate-range nuclear missiles. Italy is one of four West European countries where NATO has deployed U.S.-built Pershing II or cruise missiles that would be scrapped under the pact expected to be signed later this year by President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev.

During a hastily arranged campaign visit Wednesday to Iowa, where he was working overtime to recover from a third-place finish in a GOP straw poll Sept. 12, Bush suggested the Euromissiles agreement will be a political plus for his presidential bid, which formally gets under way Oct. 12.

Pass it on

If UI officials have their way, the only passing which will take place in Kinnick Stadium Saturday afternoon will involve a pigskin, Chuck Hartlieb's arm and Quinn Early's hands. In other words, no young bodies will be seen moving about, supported on the hands of rowdy fans.

This year, the time-honored — and dangerous — practice of "passing up" fans has been banned by university officials concerned about safety. And their concern is justified. Too often, students (usually young women) being passed through the crowd at Kinnick meet an unhappy fate: An intoxicated football fan forgets or neglects to support the elevated individual and a painful lesson in gravitational pull is quickly completed.

The ban on body passing is just one of the new regulations to be enforced at this year's home football games. In addition, throwing objects in or from the stands will be prohibited. These rules, combined with the measures taken last fall to cut down on excessive alcoholic consumption at the games, are clearly in the interest of all those trying to enjoy an afternoon of football.

These regulations are only common sense rules and certainly should not infringe on the ability of enthusiastic fans to express their support for the Hawkeyes. Anyway, when it comes right down to it, a pass from Hartlieb to Early makes a prettier sight than a pass from one drunk guy in row 65 to a fellow drunkard in row 60.

Executive explanation

White House officials have claimed that the recent skirmish between the American helicopter and the Iranian landing craft has helped restore the confidence of our allies, confidence which had been damaged by the Iran-contra affair. If this is the case, our allies are an extremely credulous lot.

Defense department officials barely restrained their jubilation when reporting the exchange. They dismissed instantly the three deaths, calling the attack "totally justified" because of "incontrovertible proof" of hostile intent. Remembering the "proof" of Libyan involvement in the terrorist attack which precipitated our bombing of that country, one could be forgiven for skepticism. It turns out a Syrian group was then responsible.

Though the films of the Iranians allegedly mining the Gulf did not turn out, we can still be thankful that the administration is not again playing fast and loose with the truth. It appears that the Iranians were indeed caught in the act. Why they should be doing so on the eve of Iranian President Ali Khamenei's address to the U.N. is a mystery. Nonetheless, it is quite likely that they will exact a penalty for our intervention, whether it was "justified" or not.

Meanwhile, in the Senate a move has been proposed to force the president to account for his Persian Gulf policy or face the cutoff of funds for the operation after 90 days. President Reagan says this would be a "great mistake." That he — who so likes to make his own "mistakes" without being held accountable by anyone — should feel this way, is not surprising. Given that the president is singularly inept at dealing with his own policy failures, Congress should not shrink from oversight of those policies.

Death tower reminds us of nuclear threat

Some have wondered what it does. Others haven't even noticed it there amidst the cornfields. A few know exactly why it was built, however, and they don't like it.

What is it? — The Ground Wave Emergency Network tower (commonly known as GWEN). Located two miles east of Mechanicsville, Ia., this 300-foot structure is causing many Iowans great concern. And with good reason.

Although the structure looks no different from a radio or television tower, it does not carry KRNA, K101 or KGAN across the airwaves. Instead, the tower stands waiting... waiting for a nuclear war to begin. Erected in 1985 by the United States Air Force, the tower is part of a Pentagon-planned communications system that will be used in the event of a nuclear war. In simple terms, this tower will enable military officials to communicate with the nation's bomber fleet after nuclear weapons have wiped out conventional radio systems, after most of us are dead.

FARMERS, FAMILIES, students and social activists have met at the GWEN tower the third Saturday of each month to speak out against its presence. Many, such as Olin resident John Tinker, see in the tower a frightening reminder that the next war may be fought with nuclear weapons.

"To me, the tower is a local symbol of the arms race," Tinker says.

By Suzanne McBride

Digressions

Government officials plan to build more than 130 such towers by the early 1990s. But such a goal may not be reached; congressional approval of funding for additional towers has been slow. And public outcry against the towers has been considerable. People object to the GWEN towers for a number of reasons.

First, the tremendous amount of money spent to build and maintain the GWEN towers could be used to finance social and education programs on both a local and national basis. According to initial government estimates, each GWEN tower will cost taxpayers $1.4 million. This sum angers farmer Robert Lam.

"TO THE DEFENSE budget, $1.4 million is nothing. But here in Cedar County it's a lot of money," Lam says. "Farmers all around here need loans to stay afloat, and the high school just east of the tower recently eliminated the principal's position. Why are we spending all this money on exotic defense equipment when other areas need it?"

Others question the environmental effects the towers have upon the land around them. Last September, opponents of several other GWEN towers built in the East testified before a congressional committee about the adverse effects on the environment. Some scientists believe that the copper wires located underneath the towers may contaminate nearby drinking-water supply areas.

AND FINALLY, the message the government is sending Americans by building the towers despite strong public criticism is wrong. By continuing to pour money into this system, government officials are telling the American people that a nuclear war can somehow "be won." The towers will be used after a nuclear war has destroyed all other means of communication and killed most inhabitants of the United States. As one minister said about the eastern Iowa structure, "The tower will tell the dead they are dead."

Lam best sums up the futility of the towers: "(The tower) isn't a protection, because if we don't need it we've wasted money building it, and if we do need it, it won't matter anyway. We'll all be dead."

The next vigil will begin at noon Oct. 17. Don't be a tower and proclaim your message when it's much too late to matter — come and show your support for ending the nuclear madness in eastern Iowa.

Bork and Biden — chums?

A couple of weeks ago, I was walking around, minding my own business (something new I thought I'd try), when a young fellow approached me. "Don't you write a column for the DI?" he asked rhetorically. "Yes, you loathesome vermin, I'm Scott Raab," I snarled, "as if its any of your business. Out of my way." A look of awe and wonderment crossed his face (although I suppose that would actually be two looks; I wish my face was that supple) and he exulted, "Then you really exist!" I'd been having my doubts about that lately, so I thanked him for the reaffirmation and apologized for having knocked him down.

It is a heavy burden we writers bear in existing more fully than do lesser beings. It has its advantages, of course — the financial rewards, the parties, the luncheons with power brokers and the women... ah, yes, the women. I wonder why none have ever shown up. Yes, it is a heady ether one breathes by writing one's own material. Too bad nobody ever told Joe Biden that.

MAYBE THERE'S something funny in the water out in Delaware. Maybe growing-up in the nylon-haunted wastelands around Wilmington does something to a man's spirit. Maybe the guy just has a photocopier where his brain should be. But what with the current fad for character politics, when Gary Hart was mistrusted almost as much for having changed his last name as for getting vigorously womanized on occasion, when Jack Kemp is plagued by nebulous rumors that he might actually know some homosexuals personally, when even a leaden drone like George Bush is subject to whispers that he's been stepping out on the old lady, Joe Biden should have known indulging in any funny business whatsoever was like taking the black bottle. And transparent, easy to discover funny business, funny business that isn't even sexy, like plagiarism or lying about one's academic record, doesn't just show a lack of character, it proves that where Biden is concerned, the old noodle might not exactly be al dente.

THIS PLAGIARISM rap does prove one good thing about Biden: At least you know the guy reads. Where the Varicose Vaquero we've got in the Big White Ranchhouse is concerned, I've got my doubts on this count.

On the other hand, you can take it from me and Judge Bork that generating original material has its down side. Bork's collected legal writings fill quite a tidy little shelf, and since he has now been nominated for the Supreme Court, certain senators want to know if, after being confirmed, he'd walk the walk the same way he's talked the talk. But lo and behold, on a whole range of questions, from the right to privacy to women's rights to civil rights to abortion to open housing to equal protection of the law, Bork says he no longer thinks those bad, negative things he once did, he's completely changed his opinions, his mind must have been fixed some-where else when he fixed that stuff, yessiree. And they said this guy wasn't flexible! Flexible, hell, he's double-jointed at the waist!

But really, even with their varying philosophies concerning creative writing, Biden and Bork aren't all that different. Whereas Biden hasn't written any of the things he says he believes in, Bork says he doesn't believe in any of the things he's written. I am surprised they don't get along better.

Luck is nothing new

Washington — What people call "Ronald Reagan's luck" has been amply demonstrated again this past week. And once again, as so often in the past, it is the character of his adversaries that enables the president to look so good.

The latest volunteers include Sen. Joseph Biden and the top Democrats on the Senate Judiciary Committee, the television networks' White House correspondents and the right-wingers in his own party. The president did his own part, but playing off people like that he didn't have to be terrific to look terrific.

That's the way it's been throughout Reagan's political career. When he first ran for governor of California in 1966, he came up against Edmund (Pat) Brown, the two-term Democratic incumbent... After eight years in office, his administration had run out of gas and the voters had exhausted their patience. Enter "citizen-politician" Reagan, triumphant...

In 1980, as the Republican presidential nominee, Reagan faced a Jimmy Carter battered by inflation, Iran hostages and repeated demonstrations of executive uncertainty. Result: a landslide. In 1984, he had Walter Mondale, carrying the burden of the Carter record and a personal antipathy to television campaigning. The Reagan landslide was even larger.

On his own, these last three years have been far from easy for Reagan. But once again in recent days, he has benefited from the shortcomings of those he faced.

CONSIDER THE scene in the White House briefing room last Friday. The president of the United States has just announced an "agreement in principle" with the Soviet Union on the first arms-control treaty of the 1980s.

He pauses at the podium to answer questions. What does the television audience see and hear? Three grown men, certainly among the most prominent and presumably professional journalists in the land, start screaming separate questions — "What about the shooting?" "What about the evil empire?" — and none will stop long enough to let Reagan answer.

Some scene. Some journalism. I hold no brief for the White House news-management techniques: the habit of parading Reagan out to read from his script on such occasions and indicating he will leave before reporters have reasonable time to question him.

BUT WHEN THE TV reporters the public knows best act like 5-year-olds, cranky because they missed their naps, it makes it all too easy for those watching to conclude that the president is well-justified to avoid such encounters.

And what of the agreement the president announced? It is a modest achievement, affecting about 3 percent of the nuclear weapons in the U.S. and Soviet arsenals. But it is an achievement, and it opens the way for accelerated negotiations on the far more difficult and vital question of long-range nuclear missiles.

It is also a political gift from Reagan to the Republican party... It gives the administration a diplomatic victory large enough to eclipse — if not erase — the damage of the Iran-Contra affair.

THE MAJOR GOP candidates for the 1988 nomination — George Bush and Bob Dole — recognize this. But those scrambling for a foothold in the right wing of that party — Jack Kemp, Pete Du Pont, Al Haig and Pat Robertson — have decided to describe the proposed agreement as a threat to the West. Lacking the courage to challenge Reagan directly, they blame it on George Shultz.

With critics like these, Reagan looks magnificently moderate, a veritable statesman.

And just to make the symmetry perfect, the liberal Democrats on the Senate Judiciary Committee did a similar job on themselves while attempting to derail the Supreme Court nomination of Judge Robert Bork.

In the crucial week of Bork's appearance, Biden's plagiarism problem drew almost as much attention as Bork's testimony — and far more derision. If you look at the other senior Democrats on that committee — Edward Kennedy, Robert Byrd and Howard Metzenbaum — and reflect on the well-publicized incidents in their past academic, personal, political or business lives, you have to wonder who is in a position to cast the first stone. What the committee lacked was a man of Sen. George Mitchell's stature.

The senator from Maine, the conscience of the Senate's Iran-Contra hearings, a former federal judge intellectually competent and politically prepared to go toe-to-toe with Bork, is not a member of the Judiciary Committee.

Just Reagan's luck. So what else is new?

Abbey

area ignited the blaze. "There was nothing exposed," Coralville Fire Chief Gary Kinsinger said. "It was no fault of anybody's."

The motel did not have a sprinkler system, which could have prevented some of the damage, but state law didn't require the Abbey, a two-story structure, to have one.

Four days after the fire, Heritage Systems President Neil Trott announced the Abbey Inn would be rebuilt using the superstructure of the remaining part of the building. Smoke-damaged parts of the structure, he said, would be gutted and improved.

Trott said reconstruction of the Abbey Inn would begin as early as Feb. 1.

Last week Trott admitted his original statement is no longer applicable, and said new plans for the Abbey may be in the making.

"Something's in the mill," Trott said. "It's confidential."

BOTH TROTT and Dickey

declined comment on reports that a mini-mall development might be constructed on the location.

But negotiations may be taking place with a prospective buyer of the property, Dickey said.

"The possibility exists," he said. "We haven't made any definite plans."

Dickey added it would be a conflict of interest for him to discuss any meetings with prospective buyers.

Iowa City Area Development Group President Ray Muston said while he had not heard of plans for the Abbey Inn property, he hopes something is done with the property.

A mini-mall would be good for the infrastructure of the community, he said.

"I would welcome the idea of an investor who is interested in the community," Muston added.

But for now, specific plans for the property are being kept quiet.

"If negotiations are going underway, it's difficult to discuss them," Dickey said.

Bork

approved his nomination and 32 percent disapproved.

BUT IN THE latest poll, the South was evenly split, with 46 percent favoring Bork's confirmation and 46 percent opposed.

This trend could be particularly troubling to White House strategists who, like Bork's opponents, see conservative southern Democrats and a handful of moderate Republicans as the key to the outcome of the battle on the Senate floor. The poll showed that opposition to Bork among southern whites rose from 25 percent in August to 41 percent now.

Moreover, the key southern Democrats include four freshmen who, according to ABC News exit polls last November, owe their election victories to black voters.

In the latest poll, eight of 10 black respondents said they disapprove of Bork's nomination to the high court.

ONE OF THE freshmen southern Democrats, Sen. John Breaux, D-La., said this week that "the people who most strongly supported me are the most strongly opposed to Bork. That has to be a factor — not a political factor but a representative factor."

Describing himself as undecided, Breaux added that if he votes to confirm Bork, "I better have a hell of a good reason."

Informed of the poll results Thursday, Will Ball, chief White House legislative liaison, said the erosion in support for Bork in the poll is small and that the administration remains confident he will be confirmed.

"There ain't but one vote that counts on this one. And that's the (Senate) roll call, we hope in early October," he said.

Ralph G. Neas, executive director of the Leadership Conference on Civil Rights, which is coordinating opposition to the Bork nomination, noted that Bork's supporters had predicted that the force of his intellect and personality in public testimony would be the "secret weapon" that won confirmation.

Gulf

the incident, but the same dispatch repeated Iranian vows to avenge the attack and resist the United States' "teeth and claws."

The New York Times reported Thursday that a Times-CBS News poll showed more than three-fourths of Americans approve of the U.S. attack and seizure of the Iranian ship as it was laying mines in the gulf.

The poll said a smaller but solid majority of Americans favors the use of U.S. Navy ships to protect foreign oil tankers in the gulf although most feel the policy is like to lead to war.

President Reagan told Congress Thursday the attack was conducted under authority of the U.N. charter and did not require notification of lawmakers under the War Powers Resolution.

At the United Nations Thursday, Secretary of State George Shultz and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze met for 90 minutes and agreed "to work with unity" for a cease-fire in the 7-year-old gulf war, Shultz said.

But for a ninth day Thursday Iraqi warplanes bombed Iranian industrial targets, pressing its campaign to cripple Iran's economy.

Iranian artillery shelled the southern port of Basra and three towns on the 750-mile front. Twelve people were killed in Baghdad, Baghdad radio reported.

Weinberger's itinerary in the gulf called for his arrival in Dahrhan, the capital of Saudi Arabia's oil-rich Eastern Province where the United States once maintained an air base.

Sources in Riyadh said the Pentagon chief would meet Saudi Defense Minister Prince Sultan Bin Abdul Aziz and King Fahd before visiting three U.S. ships in the gulf and stopping in Bahrain and, on his return home, Egypt.

Caspar Weinberger

A Weinberger aide said the focus of the trip was not on diplomatic talks with Arab leaders but on meetings with the American commanders and sailors in the gulf. There are at least 10 American warships in the Persian Gulf and another 18 in the adjacent Gulf of Oman.

As Weinberger flew to the gulf on his first mission since the United States began building up its naval forces in the region, 26 Iranians captured after attack on the mine-laying ship Iran Ajr were being prepared for repatriation.

Officials in Washington said all 26 prisoners, including four wounded, were being transferred by helicopters to the assault ship USS Raleigh from the U.S. command ship LaSalle and the helicopter carrier USS Guadalcanal.

The officials said the captives will be ferried aboard the Raleigh to Oman where they will be handed over to the Islamic Red Crescent Society, the equivalent of the Red Cross, for repatriation.

Three other Iranian crewmen were killed and two left missing in the attack.

U.S. Sea Stallion mine-sweeping helicopters Thursday resumed a second day of searching for mines planted by the Iranian ship Iran Ajr before its capture. Weinberger said on his departure from Washington Wednesday that three of at least six mines sown by the ship had been recovered.

A 50-square-mile area some 50 miles off the coast of Bahrain where the mines were reportedly dropped has been cordoned off by U.S. forces. The channel, where U.S.-escorted convoys of re-flagged Kuwaiti tankers normally pass, has been declared unsafe to international shipping pending completion of the mine-sweeping.

A re-flagged Kuwaiti tanker, the Gas Prince, was handed over to the U.S. Navy in international waters early Wednesday but apparently was waiting at another anchorage off Kuwait until all the mines are cleared before proceeding on the 550-mile voyage down the gulf.

would avoid calling one unless it was necessary.

Speaking on the efforts the state is making to attract new businesses, Branstad singled out a visit by 75 representatives of major corporate heads to the UI and Iowa State University campuses Tuesday as an example of what needs to be done to solicit new investment.

"We got two or three very good prospects out of that visit," Branstad said. "I think it's an example of the cooperation that's beginning to build between the universities in this state, which can only be good in encouraging companies to invest in Iowa."

It brings out the best in all of us.

THE UNIVERSITY OF IOWA POLICY ON SEXUAL HARASSMENT AND CONSENSUAL RELATIONSHIPS

Division 1. Sexual Harassment

Section 1. RATIONALE.

(a) Sexual harassment is reprehensible and will not be tolerated by the University. It subverts the mission of the University and threatens the careers, educational experience, and well-being of students, faculty, and staff. Relationships involving sexual harassment or discrimination have no place within the University. In both obvious and subtle ways, the very possibility of sexual harassment is destructive to individual students, faculty, staff, and the academic community as a whole. When, through fear of reprisal, a student, staff member, or faculty member submits or is pressured to submit to unwanted sexual attention, the University's ability to carry out its mission is undermined.

(b) Sexual harassment is especially serious when it threatens relationships between teacher and student or supervisor and subordinate. In such situations, sexual harassment exploits unfairly the power inherent in a faculty member's or supervisor's position. Through grades, wage increases, recommendations for graduate study, promotion, and the like, a teacher or supervisor can have a decisive influence on a student's, staff member's, or faculty member's career at the University and beyond.

(c) While sexual harassment most often takes place in situations of a power differential between the persons involved, the University also recognizes that sexual harassment may occur between persons of the same University status. The University will not tolerate behavior between or among members of the University community that creates an unacceptable working or educational environment.

Section 2. PROHIBITED ACTS.

No member of the University community shall engage in sexual harassment. For the purposes of this policy, sexual harassment is defined as unwelcome advances, requests for sexual favors, or other verbal or physical conduct of a sexual nature when

(a) Submission to such conduct is made explicitly or implicitly a term or condition of an individual's employment or status in a course, program, or activity;

(b) Submission to or rejection of such conduct is used as a basis for an employment or educational decision affecting an individual; or

(c) Such conduct has the purpose or effect of unreasonably interfering with an individual's work or educational performance or of creating an intimidating, hostile, or offensive environment for work or learning.

Section 3. EXAMPLES OF SEXUAL HARASSMENT.

Sexual harassment encompasses any sexual attention that is unwanted. Examples of the verbal or physical conduct prohibited by Section 2 above include, but are not limited to

(a) Physical assault;

(b) Direct or implied threats that submission to sexual advances will be a condition of employment, work status, promotion, grades, or letters of recommendation;

(c) Direct propositions of a sexual nature;

(d) Subtle pressure for sexual activity, an element of which may be conduct such as repeated and unwanted staring;

(e) A pattern of conduct (not legitimately related to the subject matter of a course if one is involved) intended to discomfort or humiliate, or both, that includes one or more of the following: (i) comments of a sexual nature; or (ii) sexually explicit statements, questions, jokes, or anecdotes;

(f) A pattern of conduct that would discomfort or humiliate, or both, a reasonable person at whom the conduct was directed that includes one or more of the following: (i) unnecessary touching, patting, hugging, or brushing against a person's body; (ii) remarks of a sexual nature about a person's clothing or body; or (iii) remarks about sexual activity or speculations about previous sexual experience.

Section 4. ISOLATED AND INADVERTENT OFFENSES.

(a) Members of the University community who, without establishing a pattern of doing so, engage in isolated conduct of the kind described in Subsections 3(e) and (f) or who exhibit a pattern of engaging in such conduct but fail to realize that their actions discomfort or humiliate demonstrate insensitivity that necessitates remedial measures. When University administrators become aware that such activities are occurring in their areas, they should direct that those engaged in such conduct undertake an educational program designed to help them understand the harm they are doing.

(b) If, after participating in the educational program or failing to participate after being directed to do so, a person continues to engage in the conduct described in Subsection 4(a), he or she will be deemed to have engaged in a pattern of conduct intended to discomfort or humiliate the one at whom the actions or statements are directed.

Division 2. Consensual Relationships

Section 5. DEFINITION.

As used in this division, the terms faculty or faculty member mean all those who teach at the University and include graduate students with teaching responsibilities and other instructional personnel.

Section 6. RATIONALE.

(a) The University's educational mission is promoted by professionalism in faculty-student relationships. Professionalism is fostered by an atmosphere of mutual trust and respect. Actions of faculty members and students that harm this atmosphere undermine professionalism and hinder fulfillment of the University's educational mission. Trust and respect are diminished when those in positions of authority abuse or appear to abuse their power. Those who abuse or appear to abuse their power in such a context violate their duty to the University community.

(b) Faculty members exercise power over students, whether in giving them praise or criticism, evaluating them, making recommendations for their further studies or their future employment, or conferring any other benefits on them. Amorous relationships between faculty members and students are wrong when the faculty member has professional responsibility for the student. Such situations greatly increase the chances that the faculty member will abuse his or her power and sexually exploit the student. Voluntary consent by the student in such a relationship is suspect, given the fundamentally asymmetric nature of the relationship. Moreover, other students and faculty may be affected by such unprofessional behavior because it places the faculty member in a position to favor or advance one student's interest at the expense of others and implicitly makes obtaining benefits contingent on amorous or sexual favors. Therefore, the University will view it as unethical if faculty members engage in amorous relations with students enrolled in their classes or subject to their supervision, even when both parties appear to have consented to the relationship.

Section 7. CONSENSUAL RELATIONSHIPS IN THE INSTRUCTIONAL CONTEXT.

No faculty member shall have an amorous relationship (consensual or otherwise) with a student who is enrolled in a course being taught by the faculty member or whose academic work (including work as a teaching assistant) is being supervised by the faculty member.

Section 8. CONSENSUAL RELATIONSHIPS OUTSIDE THE INSTRUCTIONAL CONTEXT.

Amorous relationships between faculty members and students occurring outside the instructional context may lead to difficulties. Particularly when the faculty member and student are in the same academic unit or in units that are academically allied, relationships that the parties view as consensual may appear to others to be exploitative. Further, in such situations (and others that cannot be anticipated), the faculty member may face serious conflicts of interest and should be careful to distance himself or herself from any decisions that may reward or penalize the student involved. A faculty member who fails to withdraw from participation in activities or decisions that may reward or penalize a student with whom the faculty member has or has had an amorous relationship will be deemed to have violated his or her ethical obligation to the student, to other students, to colleagues, and to the University.

Section 9. FILING OF COMPLAINT.

A complaint alleging violations of Division 2 may be filed by any person, or the process may be initiated by the vice-president for academic affairs.

Division 3. Procedures

Section 10. INFORMAL COMPLAINT.

(a) At the complainant's option, a complaint that one or more provisions of this policy have been violated may be brought to any appropriate member of the University community, including any academic or administrative officer of the University such as the director of affirmative action; the vice-president for student services; the associate dean of the faculties; the associate vice-president for finance and university services; any collegiate dean, director, supervisor, department head, ombudsperson, or adviser; and departments or organizations like the Women's Resource and Action Center and the Rape Victim Advocacy Program.

(b) The person to whom the complaint is brought will counsel the complainant as to the options available under this policy and, at the complainant's request, (i) may help the complainant resolve the complaint informally and/or (ii) help the complainant draft a formal complaint if the complainant decides to follow that route.

(c) The person to whom the informal complaint is brought will not inform the accused of the complainant's action without the consent of the complainant.

Section 11. INVESTIGATION PRIOR TO FORMAL ACTION.

(a) A complainant wishing to make a formal complaint and have it pursued should file it with the Office of Affirmative Action, which will consult with the appropriate administrative officer to determine the method by which the investigation will be conducted.

(b) The purpose of the investigation is to establish whether there is a reasonable basis for believing that the alleged violation of this policy has occurred. In conducting the investigation, the appropriate administrator may interview the complainant, the accused, and other persons believed to have pertinent factual knowledge. At all times, the administrator conducting the investigation will take steps to ensure confidentiality.

(c) The investigation will afford the accused a full opportunity to respond to the allegations.

(d) Possible outcomes of the investigation are (i) a judgment that the allegations are not warranted; (ii) a negotiated settlement of the complaint; or (iii) institution of formal action described in succeeding sections of this policy.

Section 12. PROCESS OF TAKING FORMAL ACTION.

(a) If after reviewing the report of the investigator the appropriate administrative official, as described in Subsection (b) of this section, concludes that there is a reasonable basis for believing that the alleged violation of this policy has occurred and a negotiated settlement cannot be reached, formal action will be taken.

(b) The decision to take formal action in cases in which

(i) a faculty member, graduate assistant, or other instructional personnel has been charged will be made by the chief academic officer of the University, currently the vice-president for academic affairs or that person's designee;

(ii) a staff member has been charged will be made by the vice-president responsible for the unit employing the person charged or that person's designee;

(iii) a student has been charged will be made by the chief administrative officer of the University in charge of student affairs, currently the vice-president for student services or that person's designee.

Section 13. FORMAL ACTION.

Except as specifically modified by other provisions of this policy, formal action involving allegations of

(a) Violations of this policy by faculty members will be governed by the General Faculty Dispute Procedures (see University Operations Manual Sec. 20.260) and the portion of the procedures dealing with faculty ethics (Sec. 20.265).

(i) Upon motion from one of the parties made before the start of the hearing process, the hearing panel shall close all or part of any hearing held under this policy. Upon motion from one of the parties after the hearing has started or from some other interested party, the hearing panel may close all or part of a hearing held under this procedure.

(b) Violations of this policy by staff members will be taken by the vice-president (or designee) responsible for the unit employing the accused staff member. Appeals from any formal disciplinary action against a professional and scientific staff member are governed by Section 20.311 of the University Operations Manual. Organized merit staff have access to a contractual grievance procedure, and nonorganized merit staff have a procedure available under Regents Merit System rules;

(c) Violations of this policy by graduate assistants will be governed by the procedure for dismissal of graduate assistants (University Operations Manual Sec. 20.230);

(d) Violations of this policy by students will be governed by Judicial Procedure for Alleged Violations of the Code of Student Life. (Both the Code of Student Life and the Judicial Procedure are published and distributed to students annually in "Policies and Regulations Affecting Students.")

Section 14. PROTECTION OF COMPLAINANT AND OTHERS.

(a) Investigations of complaints will be initiated only with the complainant's consent. The complainant will be informed fully of steps taken during the investigation.

(b) All reasonable action will be taken to assure that the complainant and those testifying on behalf of the complainant or supporting the complainant in other ways will suffer no retaliation as the result of their activities in regard to the process. Steps to avoid retaliation might include

(i) lateral transfers of one or more of the parties in an employment setting and a comparable move if a classroom setting is involved, and

(ii) arrangements that academic and/or employment evaluations concerning the complainant or others be made by an appropriate individual other than the accused.

(c) In extraordinary circumstances, after consulting the presiding officer of the Faculty Judicial Commission, the vice-president for academic affairs may, at any time during or after an investigation of a sexual harassment complaint, suspend from teaching responsibilities any faculty member or teaching assistant accused of sexual harassment if, after reviewing the allegations and interviewing the accused, the complainant, and, if it seems appropriate, some others enrolled in the class, the vice-president finds that it is reasonably certain that (i) the alleged sexual harassment has occurred and (ii) serious and immediate harm will ensue if the person continues to teach the class.

Section 15. PROTECTION OF THE ACCUSED.

(a) At the time the investigation commences, the accused will be informed of the allegations, the identity of the complainant, and the facts surrounding the allegations.

(b) In the event the allegations are not substantiated, all reasonable steps will be taken to restore the reputation of the accused if it was damaged by the proceeding.

(c) A complainant found to have been intentionally dishonest in making the allegations or to have made them maliciously is subject to University discipline.

Section 16. PROTECTING BOTH PARTIES.

(a) To the extent possible, the proceedings will be conducted in a way calculated to protect the confidentiality interests of both parties.

(b) After the investigation, the parties will be informed of the facts developed in the course of the investigation.

(c) The parties will be informed promptly about the outcome of the proceedings.

Division 4. Educational Programs

Section 17. EDUCATION AS A KEY ELEMENT OF UNIVERSITY POLICY.

Educational efforts are essential to the establishment of a campus milieu that is as free as possible of sexual harassment (Division 1) and in which high standards of conduct in consensual relationships (Division 2) are observed. There are at least four goals to be achieved through education: (1) ensuring that all victims (and potential victims) are aware of their rights; (2) notifying individuals of conduct that is proscribed; (3) informing administrators about the proper way to address complaints of violations of this policy; and (4) helping educate the insensitive about the problems this policy addresses.

Section 18. PREPARATION AND DISSEMINATION OF INFORMATION.

(a) The Office of Affirmative Action is charged with distributing copies of this policy to all current members of the University community and to all those who join the community in the future. An annual letter from the Office of Affirmative Action will be sent to all faculty and staff to remind them of the contents of the University's Human Rights Policy, including the provisions added to it by this policy. A copy of the Human Rights Policy will be included in student orientation materials, including those distributed to students in professional schools. In addition, copies of that policy will be made continuously available at appropriate campus centers and offices.

(b) The Office of Affirmative Action will develop a series of training sessions for persons who are likely to receive complaints that this policy has been violated, including, but not being limited to, such persons as residence hall resident advisers, academic advisers, supervisors, and University and collegiate ombudspersons. Academic departments are encouraged to provide training sessions for graduate assistants and other instructional personnel.

(c) The Office of Affirmative Action will develop a course designed to inform those who inadvertently violate this policy (Section 4) of the problems they create by their insensitive conduct. The course shall be mandated for those in violation of Section 4 and may be an element in the settlement of a complaint. It also may be mandated for persons found to have violated this policy.

It will be the top of the Big Ten vs. the bottom of the Big Eight when the Iowa Hawkeyes tangle with the Kansas State Wildcats Saturday at Kinnick Stadium. Kickoff time is set for 1:05 p.m.

"We think this is an ideal time to catch a team that hasn't enjoyed much success," Iowa football Coach Hayden Fry said at Tuesday's press conference. Kansas State enters the contest with an 0-2 record, dropping both games at home to Austin Peay, 26-22, and Army, 41-14.

"We know we should win based on the two games they've played, but we've still got to win it," Fry said.

"I think that's legitimate," he said. "I looked up and down Iowa's roster, and I don't think we have one player that could play for them."

Kansas State has 18 new junior college players on the team this season. Fry compared the Wildcats to Illinois, another team which employs many junior college players. Fry said it takes longer for a team with so many new players to work out early difficulties, and he hopes Kansas State won't have things worked out by Saturday.

Spikers host two Big Ten powers

By Anne Upson
The Daily Iowan

It's now official. The Big Ten women's volleyball season has started.

Defending champion Illinois won the first Big Ten match of the year, beating Purdue Wednesday night in Champaign-Urbana, Ill.

Iowa opens its Big Ten season this weekend against Wisconsin and Northwestern. The Hawkeyes meet Wisconsin tonight in Carver-Hawkeye Arena at 7:30 p.m.

In other season openers, Indiana meets Michigan, Ohio State faces Michigan State and Northwestern plays at Minnesota.

Usually optimistic, Iowa Coach Sandy Stewart is cautious about the Wisconsin match.

Volleyball

"We beat them easily last year and are ready for them. But we are not taking anyone lightly," Stewart said.

STEWART'S CAUTION may be well-founded. The Hawkeyes are coming off a victory against Western Illinois Tuesday night, but it took them five games to overcome the Westwinds — a disappointment for Stewart and her team. "We should have beat them in three games," she said at the time.

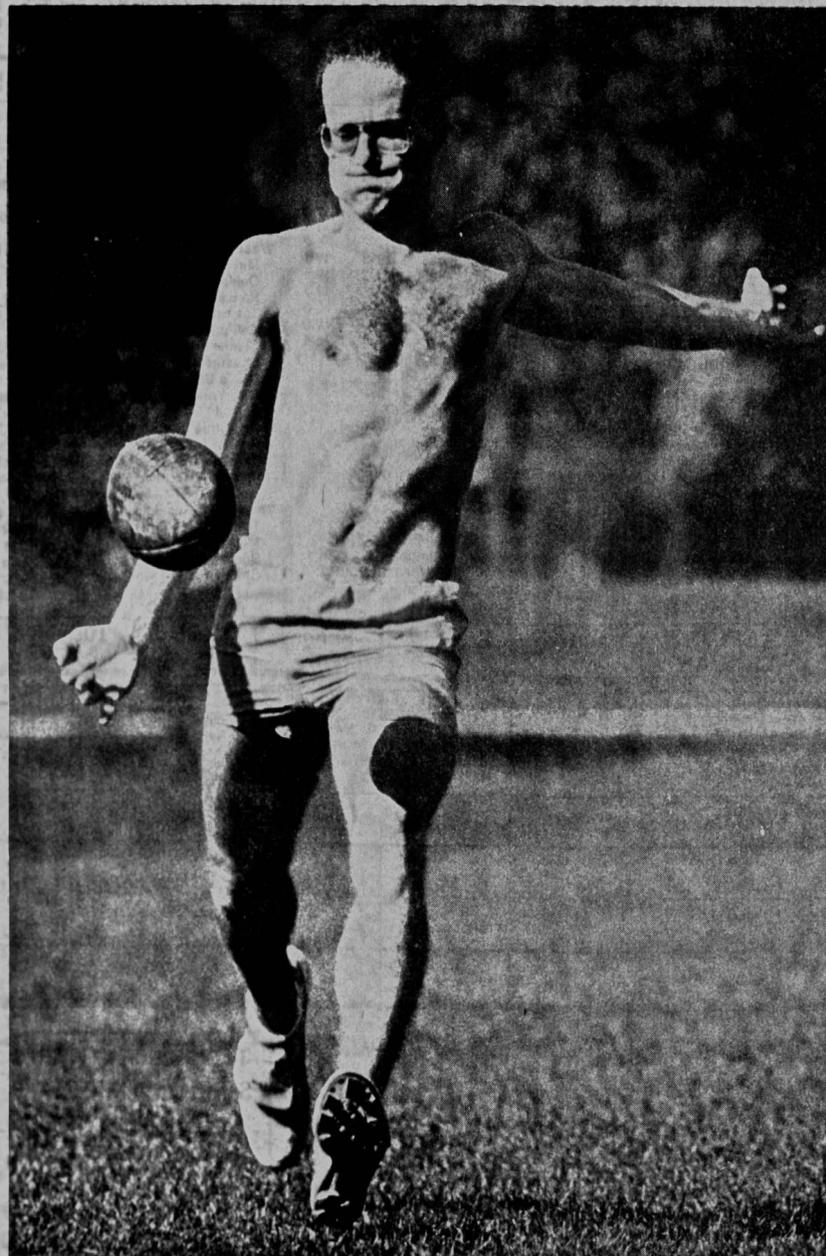

Wisconsin Coach Steve Lowe is excited about the season opener.

"We had an excellent pre-Big Ten season and we are eager to play Iowa," Lowe said. The Badgers have a 6-0 record going into the match.

Lowe said the Hawkeyes have strong serving and his Badgers will counter with the same.

"They will probably play outstanding like they did last year but it should be a good match," he said.

Hawkeyes face best of South in Norfolk, Va.

By G. Hammond-Kunke
The Daily Iowan

The fifth-ranked Iowa field hockey team, the defending national champions, will be in Norfolk, Va., for three games this weekend including a hookup with No. 1 North Carolina on Saturday.

"North Carolina is the team to beat this year," 10th-year Iowa Coach Judith Davidson said. "I'll be surprised if anyone beats them this year. Under the circumstances, I have to be concerned about playing them. North Carolina is the most experienced team in the country right now."

The 6-1 Hawkeyes will play with a regular goalkeeper — something they haven't had since the second game. Back-up goalie Andrea Wieland, a first-year player, will make her first collegiate start today against Old Dominion.

ERIN WALSH, NORMALLY a defensive player, played in goal the past five games, registering four shutouts.

"She (Wieland) looks pretty strong in practice. Her timing is pretty good. She has tremendous, tremendous potential," Davidson said. "She'll be really tested this weekend. She needs to work on angles and positioning."

"Against North Carolina we'll have to execute very quickly because they'll be all over us. We can't have any mental errors — no diagonal passes. Offensively, we'll need to attack down the right side and get the ball into the forward goal," Davidson said.

North Carolina finished third in the nation last year after losing in the semifinals to New Hampshire. Under seven-year Coach Karen Shelton (78-33-4 at Chapel Hill), the Tar Heels have finished third, fourth, sixth, 10th and 13th the past five years.

"WE'RE VERY EXCITED about the opportunity of playing the defending national champs," Shel-

Andrea Wieland

ton said. "It's always a good game against Iowa. This will be an NCAA tournament-type of game."

The Tar Heels, undefeated in four games, are a veteran club with plenty of fire-power on the offensive end. Forward Mary Ellen Falcone (4 goals) and mid-fielder Lori Bruney (1 goal, 5 assists) were first-team all-America last year. Right wing Julie Blaisse (3 goals) and mid-fielder Betsy Gillespie (5 goals) add punch to a potent North Carolina attack.

"We've got very good balance this year with a very strong forward line and steady backers," Shelton said. "I'm pleased with our effort in practice and our performance in the games."

Today Iowa plays against host No. 12 Old Dominion, which won three straight NCAA championships from 1982-85. The Lady Monarchs

Cross country faces uphill weekend battles

Doyle leads women to fast track in Ames

By Eric J. Hess
The Daily Iowan

Iowa women's cross country will get its first taste of top national competition Saturday when it meets Ames for the Iowa State Invitational at Veenker Memorial Golf Course.

Iowa Coach Jerry Hassard said his team will meet much different conditions than at its first meet at home two weeks ago.

"This will give us a chance to get a bearing on how competitive our team is," Hassard said.

The 11th-year coach said there are several things he will be looking for, including how the team runs in a large group, considering the 10:30 a.m. meet will feature 13 teams and approximately 160 runners on the 5,000-meter course.

HASSARD SAID IOWA'S toughest test will come from Arkansas, which finished ninth at last year's NCAA meet, Kansas State, which finished 10th at the NCAA meet and an improved Minnesota.

Cross Country

"Those three teams I expect will give us the best competition in the meet," Hassard said.

The Hawkeyes, led by junior Renee Doyle, will travel with their whole team minus junior Kris Watters who remains out with a stress fracture.

Hassard said junior Janeth Salazar returns after sitting out the last meet with an ailing knee.

At Iowa's season opener two weeks ago at Finkbine Golf Course, the Hawkeyes ran for a perfect 1-2-3-4-5 finish by Doyle, Rachelle Roberts, Kim Schneckloth, Jeanne Kruckeberg and Tricia Kiraly.

IN ADDITION TO the three teams it faced at the Hawkeye Open — Wisconsin-LaCrosse, Iowa State and Drake — Iowa meets Kansas, Minnesota, Northern Iowa, South Dakota State, South Dakota, Augustana and Central Missouri in Ames.

Iowa State Coach Dick Lee said his Cyclones will have some added strength as one of his top runners, Dawn Lentsch, returns. She was ill for two days before the Hawkeye Open and was unable to run.

Lee said he doesn't expect his Cyclones to take first at the meet. "The battle for the top two teams would be between Iowa and Arkansas."

Arkansas brings in a team which took first at the four-team Missouri Invitational. Senior Melody Syc, who finished 22nd at last year's NCAA meet, leads the Razorbacks.

Minnesota, which opened its season last Saturday with a victory over traditional Eastern power Penn State, will take a young team to Ames led by junior Eileen Donaghy.

Minnesota Coach Gary Wilson said Iowa, Arkansas and Kansas State should lead the pack. And Wilson certainly isn't coy when talking about his team in relation to Iowa.

"They're a good team," he said. "We're the new kid on the block. We've got to prove ourselves."

Coach sees fast race vs. solid teams

By Scott Wingert
The Daily Iowan

The Iowa men's cross country squad faces its toughest test of the season Saturday when it travels to Cedar Falls for a triangular meet with Illinois State and Northern Iowa.

"I'm anticipating a very fast race," Iowa Coach Larry Wiczorek said. "We're racing against two excellent teams on a course with very few hills. There are a lot of turns that tend to break a runner's rhythm, though."

Wiczorek said his team had a good week of practice and is on schedule for a good race this weekend. He said his runners will be hungry to race since they do not compete again for another two weeks.

THE HAWKEYES, 2-1, will face a

Cross Country

Northern Iowa team that is coming off a third-place showing in the 15-team Missouri Invitational last weekend. The Panthers also won their only dual of the year against Wisconsin-Lacrosse.

Dan Hostager is Northern Iowa's top runner, finishing 10th at Missouri with a time of 26:12 for 8,000 meters.

Illinois State, three-time defending champions of the Missouri Valley Conference, is 2-0 after victories over Bradley and Indiana State. Though they lost four of their top five runners to graduation last year, three blue-chip freshmen have the Redbirds back to the level they enjoyed last year.

"Some teams don't recruit, they merely reload," Wiczorek said. "Illinois State is one of those types of teams. They have a tremendous coach and a tremendous program."

"WE TAKE DISTANCE running seriously here," Redbird Coach John Coughlin said. "We recruit quality, not quantity. Our young kids just need a few races to establish themselves."

Illinois State nabbed one of the top Iowa preps last season in Darren Rippey of Des Moines Lincoln. Rippey captured both the 4-A mile and 2-mile titles at the Iowa state track championships last year.

In addition, the Redbirds have the Irish national junior champion of a year ago, Dave Wilson. The Donegal, Ireland, native is considered one of the top recruits in the country, according to Coughlin.

"We'll be running against more experienced teams, so we'll have to run a smart race," Coughlin said. "I know Iowa will be better this year because I know Coach Wiczorek. He'll be a breath of fresh air to that program."

The weekend triangular ends the first half of the Iowa season. The Hawkeyes do not race again until Oct. 10, when they travel to Bloomington, Ind., for the Indiana Invitational.

On The Line

Headlines, headlines, headlines everywhere about the infernal NFL players' strike. But nary a word concerning the teachers of Chicago, who were sick of being just below the White Sox on the Windy City's totem pole, and walked out, leaving hundreds of busloads of schoolchildren to learn their ABCs on the streets.

Veryl Switzer

Scuttlebutt making the rounds says Bears President Michael McCaskey is bussing the schoolkids to Soldier Field, where the heartier ones will take the field Sunday against the Lions.

But nobody wants to hear about that in On The Line, the space reserved each weekday during the college football season for inanities, inconsistencies and, occasionally, obscenities. Besides, as Bo Woody Lombardi Rockne could attest to, the real world has nothing over football, where winning isn't everything, it's the only thing, or something like that but that makes sense.

THIS WEEK, UNABLE to locate Brent Musberger under any rocks or Kansas State alum Paul Coffman toting any rifles in a striker posse, we settled for Veryl ("Mr. Virile") Switzer, Wildcat Class of '54 and a former professional football player with the Green Bay Packers, Calgary Stampeders (back when there really were stampedes in Calgary) and the now-defunct Montreal Alouettes. He makes his picks alongside stalwart seers Eric J. Hess, Marc Bona and Mike "Magic" Triik.

Not surprisingly, Switzer makes the obligatory alma mater choice. (If an Iowa City High School alumnus were asked to pick the winner of a football game between his alma mater and the University of Oklahoma, what do you think they'd do? Pick the Sooners?

C'mon!

The big hone of contention this week seems to be labor unrest — oops — the Louisiana State-Ohio State clash in Baton Rouge. Charges have been made that Big Ten blood is anemic, and if those charges are to be proved wrong, the Buckeyes must take home a Tiger pelt. Our man Switzer calls the Buckeyes, but our homegrown prognosticators differ in their opinions. Maybe it's a case of Buckeye envy. Then again, maybe not. Rumor has it next week's On The Line will include a bonus question: What the hell is a Buckeye? And is it possible to envy one?

Forget about envy. It's against the rules, anyway. Forget about Sunday. It's being skipped this week. Forget about everything. Just kick back and pound some brew, generously provided by The Fieldhouse, 111 E. College St., to everyone the winner of this week's contest invites over.

And the day after tomorrow, well, we'll mow the lawn, or play pinocle or settle the Chicago teachers' strike. Or something.

Sportsbriefs

Intramural program announces events

Deadline for signing up for the intramural field goal contest, which will be held Oct. 18th at Kinnick Stadium, is Oct. 14. Those interested should register at Field House Room E216.

Also, a coed walleyball competition will begin Oct. 7. Entry deadline is Oct. 5. Register at Field House Room E216.

Basketball benefit called off...

A basketball game between the Magic Johnson All Stars and the Isiah Thomas All Stars has been postponed because of scheduling conflicts. Proceeds from the game, sponsored by Students for Jesse Jackson, were to have gone to the Jesse Jackson Exploratory Committee.

It turned out there was a conflict," said Gertrude MacQueen, a member of the Jesse Jackson Exploratory Committee. "They set up the 27th of September as the date, then they found out they had conflicts." MacQueen said Johnson will be out of the country and Thomas is running for president of the NBA Players Association.

"It has been postponed and if possible will be rescheduled," MacQueen said. "The problem is we're getting so close to the beginning of the NBA season."

... but Iowa scrimmage will be held

An unofficial scrimmage among members of the Iowa men's basketball team has been slated for Saturday, Sept. 26, from 10:30 a.m. to noon at Carver-Hawkeye Arena. The scrimmage is free and open to the public.

Iowa volleyball game rescheduled

The Oct. 20 volleyball game between Iowa and Northern Illinois has been changed to Oct. 21 because of a scheduling conflict with the U2 concert.

Final Notice- Basketball Tryouts

The deadline to sign up for tryouts is Monday, September 28 in Room 240 of Carver-Hawkeye Arena (2nd floor).

The gray, or walk-on team, has been a tradition that originated during Coach Davis' days at Lafayette and has been continued at Boston College, Stanford and now Iowa. It is probably the only situation of its kind in major college basketball today and will provide a unique opportunity to those who participate.

1987-88 STUDENT BASKETBALL TICKET POLICY

- A student may order one full season ticket for the price of $60.00, or one 11 game ticket which excludes the holiday games for $44.00. If the number of orders exceeds the student allotment, split season tickets will be given to those with the lowest priority at the discretion of the ticket office.
- Students will receive a priority based on the number of consecutive years they have purchased or applied for basketball tickets at the University of Iowa with no loss in priority for off-campus student exchange programs or a bona fide illness. An individual who misses two or more consecutive seasons for reasons other than the above will lose all priority.
- A University student may order season tickets for a group no larger than eight. If not all group members are present when the order is placed, the members not present must provide to the student placing the order, either their personal checks with current address and ID number thereon or cash and their ID number. One student may not write a personal check in payment for another student's ticket.
- The lowest priority within a group will determine the location of the entire block of tickets for that group. That is, all students within a group will carry the lowest priority of any member of that group.
- Student season basketball tickets will be on sale commencing September 28 and ending October 3, 1987 at 4:00 p.m. These tickets will then become available for pick up beginning November 9, 1987.
- Each student must pick up their own ticket. The student must present their own student ID, current registration sticker and picture ID at the time of pick up. Currently registered students must be in "good standing" with the University business office regarding delinquent bills.
- A student ticket, to be valid, must be accompanied by a University of Iowa ID card with current registration sticker and picture ID. To use the basketball ticket during the 1988 games a student must be registered for the second semester. A student ticket may be used by the original purchaser or by any other University of Iowa student, but the original purchaser will be held liable for any violations of the student policy. If a non-student is found using a student's ticket, that student forfeits all future student ticket privileges. The penalty for a violation of the University policy involving ID and ticket will be the loss of the use of the ticket for two games.
- Amara Hawkeye Classic tickets will be available to students at $18.00 per seat for the tournament. This is a special event and is, therefore, not on the season ticket.
- Everyone, regardless of age, is required to have a valid ticket for admittance to all University of Iowa basketball games. This includes infants in arms.
- DUPLICATE TICKETS CANNOT BE ISSUED FOR LOST OR STOLEN STUDENT TICKETS.

are 2-2 after losing to Northwest-ern 3-0 and North Carolina 2-1.

"IOWA IS MORE powerful than we are this year, there's no doubt in my mind about that," Old Dominion Coach Beth Anders said. Anders returned to the Old Dominion helm after a two-year hiatus. "All of Iowa has a lot to be proud of — what Davidson has accomplished at Iowa," Anders said. "She always gets the most out of her players."

Iowa concludes the three-game trip against James Madison (0-3). The Dukes are led by senior Kim Crawford (three goals) and the teams' all-time leading assist player, Diane Buch.

"We just haven't clicked as a team yet," Coach Dee McDonough said. "We played well against Penn State earlier this year, despite losing by a goal (3-2)."

IOWA NOTES
• Iowa lost to North Carolina 4-1 early last season. "We didn't move the ball against them last year," Davidson said. "I'd like to see an offensive game against them this year."

• "We have a very young forward line (sophomores Erica Richards, Melissa Sanders and Cherie Freddie). Sometimes they make mistakes, and other times they show flashes of brilliance. By the time they're seniors they'll be unbelievable," Davidson said.

• Liz (Tchou) played well against Ball State," Davidson said. "She needs to look to her left more and use (Michelle) Murgatroyd."

• Tchou leads Iowa with 12 goals. She is followed by Richards (5) and Sanders (4). Barbara deKanter leads the Hawkeyes with 10 assists. Murgatroyd has eight assists. As a team Iowa has out-scored its opponents 24-3.

NFL to lose millions from TV

By Randy Minkoff
United Press International

CHICAGO (UPI) — The second installment payment by the television networks to the NFL likely will be smaller because no games are scheduled this weekend due to the players' strike.

The NFL Thursday formally scrapped the 14 games for Sunday and Monday night. A league spokesman said it was "uncertain" whether the games would be made up.

The NFL reportedly stands to lose up to $21 million if this weekend's games are not rescheduled.

The networks already paid the owners for one installment and the next one was due next week.

"SOMETHING WILL likely be reflected in the next one due the NFL," an NBC spokesman said. "If the $21 million figure is used, and the networks gets $25 million in ad money, there's a chance some time of compensation would have to be worked between the networks and the advertisers."

The networks will not say officially how much money the NFL will owe them for abandoning one game.

The networks Thursday formally announced their plans for alternative programming:

• NBC will air an expanded, one-hour NFL Live program followed by major-league baseball. Most of the country will get the Toronto Blue Jays-Detroit Tigers game with some of the nation receiving the St. Louis Cardinals-Chicago Cubs game.

• CBS will also show an expanded one-hour show, NFL Today, followed by the rebroadcast of the Super Bowl XXI game between the New York Giants and Denver Broncos.

• ABC, which was to have shown Denver at Cleveland Monday night, will televise the movie, "Star Trek III: The Search for Spock."

Volleyball

There are three players on the injury list — two Hawkeyes and one Badger. Iowa's Jenny Rees "is still playing despite her sore ankle because she is a real competitor," according to Stewart.

TONI ZEHR, WHO has been out due to a back strain, has been participating in practice, Stewart said, "But she might not play until Saturday in the match against Northwestern."

The Badgers' outside hitter, senior Liz Potempa, will not be competing in the match due to knee problems.

Stewart said Iowa is also preparing for the Saturday's match against 9-1 Northwestern (7:30 p.m. at Carver-Hawkeye Arena).

"We have had very intense practices. I know that they are a good team. But since they play a tough team on Friday we have an advantage on Saturday," she said.

Northwestern Coach Jerry Angle said he wants to "hopefully do well. We want to play a good defense. We need to worry about how we are playing — not how Iowa is," he said.

If the Hawkeyes are going to rank high in the Big Ten season this year, they have to get past these two powerhouses first.

Linksters eye 2nd at 'Big Ten' meet

By Dan Millea
The Daily Iowan

The Iowa women's golf team will find out just how strong it really is this weekend at the Lady Northern Invitational in Columbus, Ohio, a meet that includes the entire Big Ten.

After finishing seventh in the Big Ten meet last spring, the Hawkeyes have steadily improved this fall with the veterans maturing and two freshmen turning in key performances.

But the 54-hole Lady Northern, which begins today and continues through Friday, will be the best indicator to date of just how far Coach Diane Thomason's team has come.

"I'd like to finish in the top five at least," Thomason said of the tournament. "Hopefully we can be in the top three."

Jeannine Gibson

OHIO STATE, THE Lady Northern host team, appears to be the strongest conference team the Hawkeyes have faced this season. The Buckeyes easily won last week's Wisconsin Invitational, followed by Minnesota and Iowa.

Thomason said earlier this fall she believes with a consistent weekend of golf the Hawkeyes can outplay Minnesota, but may not have the strength to overcome Ohio State.

Iowa has already outscored five other league teams this fall and has yet to face Purdue and Indiana. Both of those clubs will be at the Lady Northern, as will Iowa State, Bowling Green, Ferris State and several other Midwestern schools.

"We're going to have to play three steady rounds," Thomason said. "If we can just be consistent we'll do well."

Freshman Stacey Arnold will play in the No. 1 spot for Iowa. Kelley Brooke is at No. 2, Amy Butzer No. 3, freshman Shirley Trier No. 4, Jeannine Gibson No. 5 and another freshman, walk-on Marne Miller, No. 6.

THE TEAMS WILL play 18 holes

each day, a format Thomason said is welcomed by the Hawkeyes, who have played in tournaments the last two weeks.

"I think the kids are getting a little tired," Thomason said. "They haven't had a break since the Iowa Invitational (Sept. 11-12), and it's a little easier to play 18 each day instead of 36 one day and 18 the next."

The Lady Northern is held on the Scarlet, Ohio State's university owned golf course.

"It's considered to be one of the finest collegiate golf courses in the country," Thomason said. "I told the kids it's a lot like Finkbine."

Thomason said there is both good and bad in the Scarlet's similarity to Finkbine, Iowa's home course. Both courses are long, and while the Hawkeyes are obviously accustomed to Finkbine, Thomason said the length of the Scarlet will be problematic for some of her athletes if their short games falter.

Strike talks stalled but violence rises

From DI wire services

The NFL's chief negotiator said Thursday contract talks with striking players could take two months with both sides stalemated on the key issue of free agency, while the union called management's contract offers "garbage."

The walkout by the league's 1,600 players completed its third day and the league officially called off this weekend's games.

Dallas Cowboys President Tex Schramm and Pittsburgh Steelers President Dan Rooney — the owners' key figures concerning free agency — quit the talks after reaching an impasse on the issue. The two executives, both members of the Management Council's Executive Committee, flew home, saying they would concentrate on fielding teams of non-union players.

"If this is the main and only issue that they're hinging their strike on, it could be a long strike," Schramm said of free agency.

JACK DONLAN, executive director of the NFL Management Council, suggested talks could last as long as two months.

"We've got six to eight weeks of real hard bargaining left on a lot of issues, and I honestly believe that we could get there on those issues except for the issue of free agency," he said. "We've got a lot of work ahead of us, but it doesn't mean the players can't be playing."

NFL Players Association Executive Director Gene Upshaw, who has said players will not resume playing without a contract, added that reaching an agreement "won't take that long." But he said of management's contract proposals: "What they've got on the table is still garbage."

"Hopefully we can reach an agreement, but the time is not now. But we'll keep trying, we'll keep meeting, we'll keep talking."

WHILE TALKS CONTINUED at the bargaining table, players continued to picket across the country and owners assembled their non-union teams that are to begin play Oct. 4 if a settlement is not reached.

In New York, NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle said the 14 games Sunday and Monday night would be called off. Jim Heffernan, the league's public relations director, said it was "uncertain" if the games would be made up.

The strike by the NFL players, with an average salary of $230,000, is the second in the past five years.

The players struck for 57 days in 1982, wiping out seven weeks of the season. The strike marks the fifth in the past two decades. Players also struck in 1968, 1970, 1974 and 1982.

Widespread violence has never been connected with any of the previous strikes, but the current one is becoming brutal.

IN FOXBORO, MASS., a beer bottle and three eggs were thrown Thursday at strike-breaking players as they entered their motel, while the striking New England Patriots picketed nearby.

In another incident, a rock was thrown through a window of the bus transporting replacement players to Sullivan Stadium in the morning. The rock-throwing happened on Route 1 about a half-mile north of the stadium in Foxboro. It is uncertain whether a Patriots player or one of a few blue-collar union supporters threw the rock. No one was hurt in either the morning or afternoon incidents.

Picketing has taken place at 22 of the 28 NFL sites since the strike was called early Tuesday. At Anaheim, Calif., Thursday, a Rams player shattered the window of a van carrying non-union players.

APPROXIMATELY 15 Patriots and a few blue-collar union supporters were picketing at the driveway of the Super 8 motel in Sharon, an adjacent town, when the beer bottle and eggs were thrown.

Irving Fryar was seen throwing one egg and Ronnie Lippett was seen carrying eggs and giving them to Fryar.

Because of the morning incident, general manager Patrick Sullivan said the team did not want to subject the buses to more damage. After practice, assistant coaches then shuttled the replacement players by car to the motel.

As one car, driven by backfield coach Bobby Grier, tried to pass through the picket line and enter the motel parking lot, Fryar jumped on a rear bumper and began rocking the car up and down.

The bottle and two eggs were thrown as Grier's car pulled up at the motel entrance. The third egg was thrown at another car. None of the objects struck a car or players, but two eggs hit the motel building.

Sullivan and Coach Raymond Berry both went to the motel after the afternoon incident but had no comment.

Proposition 48 hurting fewer

By Keith Drum
United Press International

Proposition 48 has hurt fewer players overall this season but is affecting the heart of college basketball's freshman class of more than a year ago.

Twelve of the consensus Top 50 high school recruits failed to qualify for Proposition 48, compared with eight of the Top 50 in 1986, the first year of Proposition 48. Overall, however, the number of first-year players affected dropped considerably, falling off more than one-third to 102.

College coaches apparently have become more selective in the second year of Proposition 48, the academic rule that requires recruits have a minimum test score and a "C" average in high school core courses in order to play as a college freshman. Of the prospects who don't qualify, most belatedly prepare for either the SAT or ACT and subsequently fail to score high enough.

"SOME OF THE KIDS have to see what happens to others before they will understand," said Ohio State Coach Gary Williams. "This year's group was already in their senior year when they saw players having to sit out last year. It was too late for many of them."

Williams said too many prospects still aren't serious about preparing for the academic requirements of college.

"They can do the job but they don't have self-motivation," said Williams. "It's been that atmosphere since 1973 when freshmen were made eligible and they've been catered to. It's going to take at least three or four years to change it."

Williams has two freshmen sitting out this year. They are Treg Lee and Eli Brewster, both from Ohio.

NCAA RULES ALLOW a player who fails to qualify and doesn't enroll in the school with which he signed to change schools without penalty. The majority of the top players have stuck with their first choice, however.

Of last year's eight Top 50 prospects only one switched schools. Anthony Pendleton moved from Iowa to Southern California so he could follow coach George Raveling. All eight are expected to be eligible this year.

Of this year's 12, nine stuck with their choice of college and will sit out the season. Larry Johnson, who signed with Southern Methodist, and Bennett Jackson, a South Carolina recruit, will play at junior colleges. John Pittman, a 7-footer from Texas, signed with Kentucky but enrolled at Oklahoma State. Top prospects sitting out the year are Marcus Liberty at Illinois, Brian Shorter at Pittsburgh, Jerome Harmon at Louisville, Thomas Jordan at Oklahoma State, Anthony Avent at Seton Hall, and Barry Young and Anderson Hunt at Nevada-Las Vegas.

A PLAYER WHO doesn't qualify can't even practice his freshman year. He forfeits a year of eligibility unless he pays his freshman tuition.

A few schools won't admit an athlete who doesn't reach the Proposition 48 requirements. Georgia turned down three recruits who didn't qualify. On the other hand, Nevada-Las Vegas, Illinois, Temple, Ohio State, Pitt, St. John's and DePaul are among schools which have admitted Proposition 48 casualties two straight years.

Strange will lead U.S. Ryder Cup team

By Mike Rabun
United Press International

DUBLIN, Ohio — The premier event in international golf opens Friday with a U.S. team captained by Jack Nicklaus trying to regain the Ryder Cup, a trophy lost by the Americans two years ago.

"Our guys are aware they can be beaten," Nicklaus said. "So they are taking it a lot more seriously than they have before. They don't want to be beaten again."

The European squad captained by Tony Jacklin will be trying to reinforce its one-sided victory posted in 1985. Jacklin's squad beat the Americans, 16½-11½ two years ago in England, capturing the cup for the first time since 1957.

AMERICANS TOM KITE AND Curtis Strange were selected by Nicklaus to face Sam Torrance and Howard Clark in the opening match.

The other three matches will pit Hal Sutton and Dan Pohl against Ken Brown and Bernhard Langer; Lanny Wadkins and Larry Mize against Nick Faldo and Ian Woosnam and Larry Nelson and Payne Stewart against Seve Ballesteros and Jose-Maria Olazabal.

The 28-match competition begins with four "alternating shot" matches today beginning at 8 a.m.

Nicklaus honored Strange and Kite with the opening match pressure since Strange has played the best golf on the American tour over the past two months and Kite is one of the steadiest players on the PGA tour.

The American team is considered the likely winner because of its experience over the Muirfield Village course — site of the Memorial tournament each spring. The 12 members of the United States team have a combined 346 rounds of competitive play at Muirfield. The European team has 30 rounds.

The European team led by Ballesteros and Langer will be trying to win the cup on American soil for the first time since the matches were created 60 years ago. The European squad will test the Americans on the Nicklaus-designed Muirfield Village Golf Club course, a 7,114-yard layout which has gained the reputation as being one of the best in the world.

Hahn's mom angry over pictures

MASSAPEQUA, N.Y. (UPI) — Jessica Hahn's mother says her daughter is acting like a "bimbo" for posing topless for Playboy, and her teenage son has been pulled from school because he keeps getting into fights with taunting students.

"If I get my hands on her I'll spank her bottom," said Hahn's mother, Jessica Moylan.

Hahn, who also tells the story of her sexual encounter with fallen evangelist Jim Bakker in the magazine, has shocked and embarrassed her family, Moylan told reporters Wednesday at her Long Island home.

She said she has not talked with her daughter since a phone conversation after she read a newspaper article about the Playboy article.

"I screamed at her," she said. "She told me, 'I thought you knew.'"

"Now she's afraid to talk to me. She knows that if I get my hands on her I'll spank her bottom."

In the Playboy article, Hahn insisted that she is "not a bimbo."

"Nobody has to tell me that my daughter's not a bimbo, but she is acting like one," Moylan said.

She said her 16-year-old son, Danny, has been in several fights at Massapequa High School because of the Playboy article.

"I'm going to keep Danny home from school... loves his sister and thinks he's got to defend her every time somebody makes a remark," she said. "He's liable to get hurt."

UI Symphony shines with a polished performance

By C. W. Simons
Special to The Daily Iowan

The UI Symphony, under the direction of James Dixon, performed three exciting works for a near-capacity crowd in Hancher Auditorium Wednesday evening.

The concert began with the "Overture, Benvenuto Cellini, opus 23" by Hector Berlioz and was followed by "Appalachian Spring" by Aaron Copland. Kenneth Amada joined the orchestra for the final number, Rachmaninoff's "Concerto No. 2 in C Minor, opus 18 for Piano and Orchestra."

From the first notes of the overture, the orchestra played with confidence and precision. Where there was pizzicato in the lower strings it was executed with clarity while the upper strings soared in a beautiful melody. The woodwinds played with delicacy and feeling.

IN A SUDDEN CHANGE of mood, the music aroused a sense of urgency that never lost its momentum even in the soft passages, which were enhanced by a subtle percussion section. The grand finale — a grand pause, a sonorous cello statement and a broad crescendo — suited the energy of this well-chosen opening number.

"Appalachian Spring" provided a nice contrast to complete the first half of the program. The simplicity Copland is known for produced a transparency of texture that exposed the individual color of each instrument. This was first apparent in the very soft beginning by the second violins. Each successive entry by other instruments was a new treat. The crystalline tone quality in the strings had a warmth that showed an understanding of the music.

WITH THE SQUARE dance section the orchestra became crisp and executed the tricky rhythms with aplomb. Perhaps they were working too hard to have fun, but the audience clearly enjoyed it.

"Tis the Gift to be Simple," the Shaker hymn Copland used, was introduced by clear and lilting clarinets, repeated in variation by other sections and finally stated brilliantly by the trumpets with full orchestra.

A descending scale in the lower strings furnished a rich undergirding to the last loud passage in the suite. The piece ended in the same pastoral mood that it began.

In the Rachmaninoff concerto, Amada proved himself the master, skillfully playing with seemingly effortless strength and agility. Throughout the first movement the delicate shadings he achieved came across with good balance, whether in duet with the violas or with the whole orchestra.

THE SECOND MOVEMENT was the high point of the evening. A plaintive clarinet and bassoon duet prepared the way for the compelling theme that followed, first trading off with the piano and other instruments and finally surging into a full sound with strings carrying the melody over Amada's rich virtuosity at the piano.

Unity and varied tone colors characterized the third movement. The question-and-answer dialogue between the piano and orchestra was lively and precise. When the strings and woodwinds restated the theme it rang triumphantly and along with the whole orchestra and piano built to an exhilarating finale.

All in all, the UI Symphony and Kenneth Amada gave a polished performance that was well-received by the audience.

Iowa City theater set for opening of 32nd season

By Kevin Goulding
The Daily Iowan

The Iowa City Community Theatre opens its 32nd season this Friday night with The Foreigner by Larry Shue.

"We wanted a comedy, and we've done just about every Neil Simon play. This is a bright, topical and modern play — we're delighted with it," commented director Patti Mott.

The Foreigner will be an opportunity for Iowa City audiences to see theater-in-the-round, a change of pace from the proscenium-arch stagings seen in Hancher Auditorium and E.C. Mabie Theaters. Theater-in-the-round, with audience members seated on all four sides and in close proximity to the stage, requires different directing, actor movement and technical considerations than proscenium theater. It also demands more out of an audience.

"It's like old radio versus television," Mott explained. "If you're doing a good job the audience gets into it, the imagination begins to work and they become a part of the show."

Theater

PLAYWRIGHT SHUE, who currently has an off-Broadway show, The Nerd, receiving favorable reviews, developed The Foreigner in improvisational workshops. This is evident in the colorful and animated characterizations.

"The characters are wonderful; they're unusual," Mott said. "The redneck county sheriff is more than just that, the hero has a set of complications such as shyness, nervousness and the lingering problems of his wife's infidelity and illness — and we never even see her."

The Foreigner opens tonight at 8 p.m. and continues Sept. 26; Oct. 2, 3, 8, 9 and 10 at 8 p.m.; and Oct. 4 at 2:30 p.m. The Iowa City Community Theatre is located on the Johnson County Fairgrounds, Route 218. Ticket prices are $6 for general admission, and $5 for students and senior citizens. For show information call the box office at 338-0443.

Rich and successful, Cosby owes everything to sharing

By Joan Hanauer
United Press International
and The Daily Iowan

NEW YORK — The young street hustler, working against the rush hour traffic on New York's Sixth Avenue, tried to sell a package of wrenches to the passenger in the front seat of a chauffeured town car.

When he recognized the man smoking the big cigar as Bill Cosby, he apologetically backed off.

"Naw, that's all right. How are ya?" Cosby asked.

"Trying to make it," the street kid said with a shy grin.

"I see it," Cosby said with a warm smile. "And good luck to you."

The kid moved on and Cosby said, "Did you see his arms? From the needles. Look at his arms, how he's ruined his veins."

Cosby fans on the street and in cars smiled, waved, approached for autographs, as his car made its way uptown after an interview. They didn't just admire Cosby — they liked him. And he returned their courtesy and warmth.

THE SECRET of his success, he says, is sharing — Cosby zealously guards his private life but at the same time shares it.

He shares it with 63 million television viewers who watch NBC's "The Cosby Show," about an affluent black family with loving parents and five children — four girls and a boy. Cosby, 50, has been married for 23 years to his wife, Camille, 43. They have five children — four girls and a boy.

He shares more of his family life through his book, "Fatherhood," which sold 2.6 million hardcover and 2.5 million in paperback. His new volume, "Time Flies," about the view from age 50, has a first printing of 1.75 million.

"Do you like the line about, 'Grey hair is God's graffiti?'" he asked with the pride of a new author.

He has always shared his life with his concert audiences, and one of his performances — also on the agonies of middle age — has been released as a video, "49."

A RECENT MAGAZINE article said all these projects will earn Cosby $84 million for 1986-87. That includes his TV commercials for Jell-O, E.F. Hutton, Coca Cola and Kodak. He says the figure is wrong.

"My wife has been tearing up mattresses and everything looking for that money," he said with a slow smile. "And the IRS wants to know where it is. They have given us a couple of days to find it."

Why did he let the figure go unchallenged?

"You either accept what they say or you tell them what you really make. So we just let them have it," he said.

As for the $57 million the article said he will gross in 1987, making him America's highest-paid entertainer, Cosby said:

"WHEN YOU THINK about it, hey, you're a rich man — but I'm not as big as an industrialist. You know, I was on the cover of Time magazine, but on the cover of Newsweek is Donald Trump. There I am, Tramped again. Why, I'm not worth as much as even one of his buildings. He wouldn't even want to have a $57 million building.

"As for the $84 million, I don't know where the rest of that money is. Camille and I have to look for it."

For Cosby, living well may be the best revenge for a childhood in Philadelphia housing projects.

He has houses in New York, Philadelphia, Los Angeles, and his home base is a 265-acre estate near Amherst, Mass. He also owns 22 cars including two Rolls-Royces and a 1937 Aston Martin, an impressive collection of black American art, antique furniture, a vintage wine cellar that he offers friends — he does not drink — and a jet airplane.

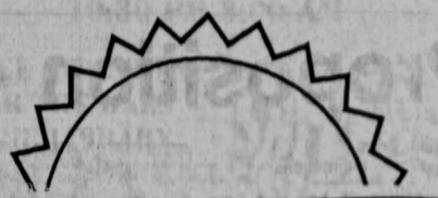

THE SECRET of his impressive success, he insists, is sharing.

"Sharing, that's what it is all about," Cosby said, leaning back in a wooden chair at the Cafe Figaro, a Greenwich Village coffee house around the corner from his first real job as an entertainer.

"It's a matter of Bill Cosby saying, I have something to share with you."

"That's why the show is well-liked, that's why '49' is liked, that's why 'Fatherhood' was liked. Because when you were reading it, it wasn't a guy who was telling you, but he is sharing something with you."

Fosse pupils vow 'show will go on'

By Greg Henderson
United Press International

WASHINGTON — The death of choreographer and director Bob Fosse on the opening night revival of the award-winning Sweet Charity brought sadness throughout the entertainment world Thursday, but cast members of the bawdy musical pledged to carry on his spectacular Broadway tradition.

"The show's going to go on," musical director Cy Coleman said. "They (the cast) will go up there and do their darndest because that's the way Bobby trained them."

Coleman said cast members took the news of Fosse's death Wednesday night "very hard" but would continue the show's scheduled run through Oct. 17.

Fosse, 60, whose talent, drive and diversity put him among the few who have won Oscar, Tony and Emmy awards, suffered a fatal heart attack just before the curtain went up at the National Theater.

THE CAST WAS NOT told of his death until after the opening night performance, which won rave reviews.

"I feel grateful and lucky to have worked with him in my lifetime and his," said Joel Grey, who co-starred in Fosse's smash-hit movie Cabaret.

"His commitment and vision was unique," said Grey, who was in Washington, starring in a stage production of Cabaret at the Kennedy Center.

Fosse is an "irreplaceable national treasure" and a "strange maverick of a genius who knew what made an actor tick," said Mariel Hemingway, who Fosse directed in Star 80, the biography of 1980 Playboy Playmate of the Year Dorothy Stratten. "I will miss Bob very much."

Sweet Charity producer Joe Harris: "We're devastated, simply devastated. He's been my friend for 35 years. I just don't know what to say."

JIM CARTER, an Atlanta businessman, came to the National Theater Thursday to buy tickets for the show, in part to remember Fosse.

"I don't think to stop the show would be a way to honor him," Carter said.

Fosse's body was to be taken to New York, but burial arrangements had not been completed Thursday, Harris said.

Fosse had open-heart surgery in 1974 after he collapsed of exhaustion while preparing the play Chicago at about the same time the movie Lenny about comedian

Choreographer Bob Fosse, shown here rehearsing with the cast of Big Deal, died Wednesday shortly after the curtain rose on a revival of one of his biggest hits, Sweet Charity.

Lenny Bruce was opening, which he directed.

His death was reminiscent of the fate of the hard-driven director and choreographer in his semi-autobiographical musical movie All That Jazz who died after a heart attack. The character, played by actor Roy Scheider, was known for his three-word philosophy — "It's show time" — to signify going on with the show despite life's obstacles.

FOSSE HAD rehearsed with the cast of Sweet Charity Wednesday. He collapsed at about 6:30 p.m. EDT in front of the Willard Intercontinental Hotel near the White House, while walking to the National Theater. Friends said Fosse's ex-wife, actress Gwen Verdon, was with him.

Fosse was pronounced dead at George Washington University Hospital at 7:23 p.m.

"He was in excellent health," Harris said. "He was feeling quite good at the rehearsals."

"He was just a remarkable human being," Coleman said. "Fosse will be remembered for everything; as a human being, as a sensational choreographer. We lost somebody who's unique."

In his 47-year career, Fosse won nine Tonys for his work on stage, three Emmys for television and an Oscar for best director in the 1973 film version of Cabaret, starring Liza Minnelli and Grey.

T.G.I.F.

At the Bijou

Malandaro (1987) — The musical spectacle is alive and well in Brazil. Ruy (Erendira) Guerra has refashioned The Beggar's Opera into this lush film filled with showstopping tangos and sambas. 7:15 p.m. Friday.

The Stepfather (1987) — Terry O'Quinn, formerly of the UI, stars in this perverse twist on the American dream. Jerry Blake (O'Quinn) marries into families to pursue middle-class happiness and then slaughters them when they disappoint him. 7 p.m. Friday; 9:15 p.m. Saturday.

Mishima (1985) — A portrayal of Japan's famous novelist Yukio Mishima. Despite the widow's restrictions, director Paul Schrader made a disturbing portrait of what can occur when life and art meet. 9:30 p.m. Friday; 6:30 p.m. Saturday.

Rebel Without a Cause (1955) — James Dean's intense performance as a youth pressured by his peers and misunderstood at home. Alienation is the word. If you want to see a portrayal of the attitudes that generated the '60s, see this film. With Natalie Wood and Sal Mineo. 9:15 p.m. Friday; 7 p.m. Saturday.

Fanny and Alexander (1983) — This film represents the artistic culmination of Ingmar Bergman's career. Taking autobiographical license, Bergman recasts his own past with a spirit of magical whimsy. This is the Bergman movie for those who don't like Bergman movies. 8:30 p.m. Saturday; 5:45 p.m. Sunday.

Under Fire (1983) — This film is an underrated political thriller concerning the overthrow of the Somoza regime. Fictional, the story incorporates many true incidents from this period in Nicaragua's history. It stars Nick Nolte, Gene Hackman, Joanna Cassidy, Ed Harris, Jean-Louis Trintignant, Richard Masur and Rene Enriquez. 9:15 p.m. Sunday.

Betty Blue (1986) — A tale of love and lust and madness, Betty Blue has become notorious for a shockingly steamy opening scene. Directed by Jean-Jacques Beineix. 7 p.m. Sunday.

Television
