Smiley plea bargains on charges

May receive 90-day jail sentence as result of agreement

Keaton Smiley

By James Cahoy
The Daily Iowan

Iowa football player Keaton Smiley may face a 90-day jail term after pleading guilty to charges of aggravated assault in Johnson County District Court Friday.

Smiley, 20, a defensive back from Duncanville, Texas, entered the plea in connection with an incident involving Iowa volleyball player Cheryl Zemaitis on June 9. The plea was part of an agreement with the Johnson County Attorney's Office, which dropped the three other charges pending against Smiley and other charges stemming from an Oct. 27, 1986 incident with Zemaitis.

Aggravated assault is an aggravated misdemeanor punishable by a maximum of two years in jail and a $5,000 fine, but court documents stated Johnson County Attorney Pat White will recommend no more than 90 days in jail at the sentencing hearing for Smiley.

White will also recommend a work release program so Smiley will be permitted to leave jail for classes.

Among the charges dropped by the Johnson County Attorney's Office were assault with intent to commit sexual abuse — which is a felony under Iowa law — and false imprisonment and assault causing injury, which are serious misdemeanors.

A sentencing date for Smiley has not been set, but one of Smiley's lawyers, James Thomas of Anamosa, Iowa, said a hearing will probably be held in late November or early December. Thomas said he plans to ask for a deferred sentence and probation for Smiley, so that his record eventually could be cleared under Iowa law.

"I think he's suffered enough, and I insisted on being able to ask for that as part of the agreement," Thomas said. "I think he's handled himself very well. He's a tough kid."

But Zemaitis, who dropped out of the UI and returned to her home in Downers Grove, Ill., said Sunday she was very unhappy with the decision to allow Smiley to plea bargain.

"He's really lucky that Pat White offered him the deal that he did," Zemaitis said. "It's definitely not fair, it's too easy on him. What happened to me was really horrible. He deserves to be punished for what he did."

White said he would not elaborate on the decision by the attorney's office to plea bargain with Smiley until the sentencing hearing, but said Zemaitis had been consulted in the decision.

"The most I can say is that we thought it was the appropriate decision given the facts we had," White said.

Though Smiley still faces a charge of assault causing injury in connection with an incident involving UI junior Jennifer Lee on May 17, 1986, he said Friday he was ready to "get on with his life."

"I've lived for 20 years and messed up two days out of 20 years, and now I'm paying for it," Smiley said.

Thomas predicted Smiley would be reinstated on the Iowa football team. See Smiley, Page 10A

Hospitals honored for impact upon city

By Anne Kevlin
The Daily Iowan

In recognition of economic and civic contributions to Iowa City development, UI Hospitals received an Iowa Governor's Industry Award in Des Moines last week.

The Greater Iowa City Area Chamber of Commerce nominated UI Hospitals for the award, which was created by the Iowa Department of Economic Development. Gov. Terry Branstad presented 15 awards to industries around the state, according to Executive Vice President of the Greater Iowa City Chamber of Commerce Patrick Grady.

"It's important for people in this area and the state to know what this hospital contributes," Grady said. "We would like people to recognize what contributions they serve not only to the community, but to the state."

GRADY STRESSED the UI Hospitals' potential for development in areas like biotechnology and new product lines, and the impact development could make on the state's economy.

"If we're going to diversify our economy, the University of Iowa Hospitals and Clinics is where it's going to happen," Grady said.

"The opportunity is there to help attract new industry into Iowa City, acting Deputy Director of UI Hospitals John Staley said. "That really is the bottom line."

UI Hospitals is Iowa City's largest employer, with close to 7,000 employees. The hospital boosts retail sales to $79 million each year, and last year it generated $8.7 million in motel, restaurant and service station businesses, according to Chamber of Commerce figures.

UI HOSPITALS attracts health-related industries and patients from around the country, augmenting the Iowa economy, according to Director of Information for UI Hospitals Dean Borg.

"The real impact is that it pulls into the state millions of dollars," Borg said.

"We have patients who are served here from every county in Iowa, and 10 percent of our patients come from other states," Staley said.

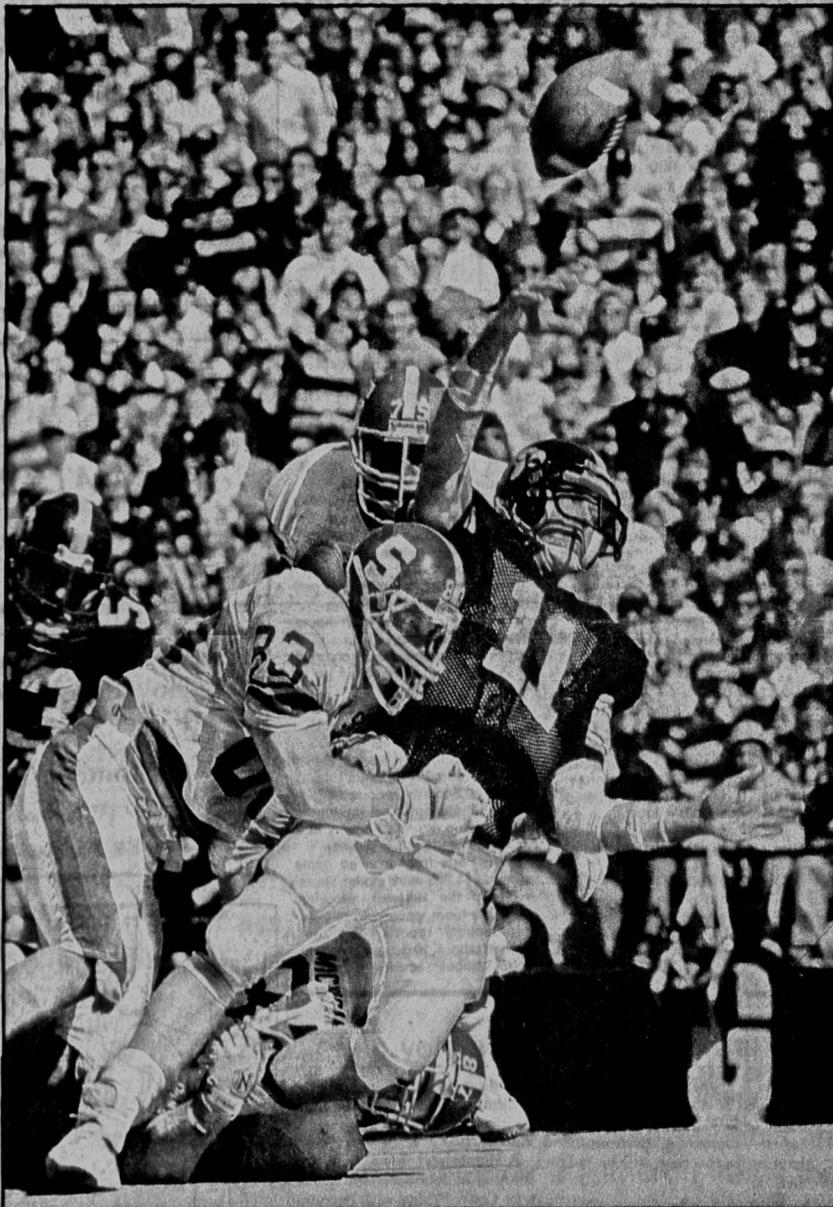

According to Staley, the quality of UI Hospitals makes it possible for patients from Iowa to remain in the state rather than seeking health care outside of Iowa.

Staley also said the hospital provides nearly 30 percent of all Iowa City salaries.

"What we're talking about is having a very substantial impact on the local economy," he said.

The use of state-of-the-art medical technology attracts businesses as well as patients, according to Staley. The market for new medical products is good in Iowa City, largely because of the UI Hospitals' use of current technology.

Staley said he was grateful to the Greater Iowa City Chamber of Commerce for the nomination of the award.

Supreme Court set to return to work

By David G. Savage
Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — An evenly divided Supreme Court returns to work today facing potential 4-4 deadlocks on a series of issues that have split its liberal and conservative members before.

While the Senate considers whether to fill the court's ninth seat with Judge Robert Bork, the eight remaining justices will hear cases on abortion regulations for minors, rent control, a required "moment of silence" in schools, the death penalty for juveniles and job rights for homosexuals.

If the justices split 4-4 on these cases, the high court will issue no decision, and the lower court's ruling will stand.

Many court observers say that they do not expect the court to make an abrupt change in law during this period of transition.

"I DON'T SEE a heck of a lot of great significance coming this fall," said University of California, Berkeley Law Dean Jesse Choper. Instead, he noted, the court has before it cases that test the middle ground on controversial, well-litigated issues such as abortion and school prayer.

That would give William Rehnquist little opportunity in his second year as chief justice to steer the court in a conservative direction. In Rehnquist's first year, he failed to secure a conservative majority on most issues except criminal cases. Instead, the court's senior liberal, William Brennan Jr., won most of the key civil rights and civil liberties cases.

Rehnquist was joined frequently last year by Antonin Scalia, who joined the court at the same time Rehnquist was elevated to chief justice, and by Byron White and Sandra Day O'Connor. Brennan could typically count on the sup-

Pennies pour in for student Newspaper plea generates 70,000 responses

ROCHELLE, Ill. (UPI) — Mike Hayes is saving pennies for college and by Sunday could count about $14,000 worth of them, all contributed by strangers trying to do the teenager a favor.

Mike's plea for pennies to help finance his college education has drawn about 70,000 responses. Volunteers and family members opening the letters have counted up $14,000 so far, said his father, Bill, on Sunday. And they still have 18,000 letters to open.

The average letter contains about 30 cents per response, Bill Hayes said. So the amount received so far should be close to $20,000 — and the mail continues to pour in from the United States and beyond.

When Hayes, 18, discovered he was ineligible for grants or scholarships to attend the University of Illinois where he is studying chemistry, he came up with another plan.

He wrote to Chicago Tribune columnist Bob Greene asking him to request that readers send him a penny, care of Many Pennies for Mike, Box 13, Rochelle, Ill.

"I DIDN'T ask for a lot of money," Hayes said. "I just asked for money from a lot of people — 2.8 million people."

Letters have included dollar bills and checks for $100. One respondent sent money in the memory of her youngest daughter, who died nine years ago of leukemia, and would have started college this fall. And an entire class at a school in Tennessee chipped in for Hayes.

One mother wrote that she would send her son to school with a sack lunch for a week in order to send Hayes some extra money.

Many who wrote are retired people who survived The Great Depression. See Pennies, Page 10A

Aftershock of quake shakes S. California

By Jay Mathews
Washington Post

ALHAMBRA, Calif. — A long overdue major aftershock from Thursday's strong earthquake jolted awake several million Southern Californians early Sunday, creating a short-lived wave of renewed panic and adding what one official called "significant" damage to Thursday's mounting of $108 million.

Seismologists at the California Institute of Technology measured the 3:59 a.m. earthquake at about magnitude 5.5, centered seven miles beneath the eastern Los Angeles County communities of Alhambra and San Gabriel. It was by far the largest of more than 100 significant aftershocks following Thursday's 7:42 a.m. earthquake, which at a 6.1 magnitude was the strongest to hit the Los Angeles area in 16 years.

"It just woke me up and I wondered what was happening. It is frightening when it's in the middle of the night," said Linda Sotello, assistant manager of a candy store on Alhambra's Main Street. Once the sun rose she went to survey her shop's broken front window, one of several that left glass scattered this morning on commercial area sidewalks in Pasadena and San Gabriel as well as Alhambra.

MICHAEL GUERIN, coordinator with the Governor's Office of Emergency Services, said broken water and gas mains in some communities would add a "significant" amount to the damage already suffered from earthquakes this week. His office Sunday estimated at least $1 million in private and $8 million in government property loss.

The unwelcome jolt knocked books off shelves, collapsed already weakened walls and chimneys, set off thousands of automobile burglar alarms and left many Los Angeles area residents standing on street corners, red-eyed and groggy as they faced another day of temperatures soaring over 100 degrees.

"It's shake and bake in Southern California," declared one caller to radio station KNX-AM.

AUTHORITIES blamed at least one fatal heart attack on the early morning quake, centered about nine miles northeast of downtown Los Angeles. Several hospitals reported treating cuts and bruises. Rock slides and falling concrete forced officials to close temporarily some roads and freeways. Thursday's earthquake had produced at least six deaths — three from heart

Professor chosen director

UI Internal Medicine Professor Janet Schlechte has been appointed program director of the federally funded UI College of Medicine Clinical Research Center.

Schlechte had been the center's assistant program director since 1986 and director of the center's core laboratory since 1985. She succeeds Reynold Spector, who took a position with Merck, Sharpe and Dohme Corp. in New Jersey.

"Dr. Schlechte is an outstanding physician, scientist and administrator," UI College of Medicine Dean John Eckstein said of the appointment.

The UI Clinical Research Center was one of the first established in the nation by the National Institutes of Health, which has continuously funded it for the past 25 years.

The center allows UI medical researchers to study disease processes under controlled clinical conditions.

Judicial nominees chosen

Two Iowa City lawyers were nominated Friday by the Sixth Judicial District Nominating Commission to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Sixth Judicial Court Judge Harold Swales.

Kristin Lucas Hibbs, 19 Woodcrest Lane, who practices law with the Iowa City firm of Stein, Hibbs and Russell, and Thomas Hobart, 1205 Seymour Ave., who practices law privately, were chosen by the commission from among the 11 candidates who applied for the vacancy.

The commission interviewed all applicants on Friday. Gov. Terry Branstad now has 30 days in which to choose one of the two for the position. Swales is retiring Oct. 13.

Democrats oppose tax

The Johnson County Democratic Central Committee, the governing body for the Johnson County Democratic Party, voted last week to oppose the 1 percent local option tax up for a vote Oct. 6.

A resolution passed by the committee calls the tax a regressive tax which will "fall more heavily on the poor and middle income people than the wealthy."

The Iowa City Federation of Labor also announced its opposition last week to the tax, criticizing the city for not having a specific plan for the revenue raised by the tax.

Military band plays today

The Strategic Air Command Band from Offutt Air Force base in Nebraska, under the direction of Alan Bonner, will present a free concert in Iowa City at Macbride Auditorium today at 9 p.m.

The concert is being sponsored by the UI Air Force Reserve Officers Training Corps Program. The concert is free and open to the public.

Lifesaving course to begin

The Iowa City Recreation Division is now taking registration for its fall Advance Lifesaving Course, which will meet on Tuesday and Thursday evenings for five weeks beginning Oct. 13 from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m.

In order to be eligible for the course participants must be at least 15 years old, be able to swim for 500 yards in good form, swim underwater for 20 feet, and tread water for one minute.

Those with current or expired lifesaving certificates can use this course to renew or recertify their certificates. For more information, contact the Recreation Division Office at 220 S. Gilbert St.

Support group to meet

The monthly meeting of the Iowa City SHARE support group will be held on Tuesday, Oct. 13, in the First Floor Conference Room at Mercy Hospital, 500 Market St. The topic for discussion will be "Getting Through the Holidays."

SHARE is a support group for parents who have experienced miscarriage, stillbirth or infant death. For more information, contact Pat Williams at Mercy Hospital's Family Centered Maternity Care Department.

Telemarketing company to open Iowa City office

By Craig Sterrett
The Daily Iowan

The president of a national telemarketing company announced Friday his firm's plans to open an Iowa City office which may create as many as 150 new jobs.

Dwaine Canova, president of Telephone Marketing Services, Inc., said the company, which is based in Pleasanton, Calif., chose Iowa City as an expansion site because of the size and quality of the labor force and because of the UI's relations with the local business community.

Located in a 3,200 square foot office on the third floor of the Paul Helen Building, 207 E. Washington St., the company has already hired 75 people and is continuing to do so, Canova said.

Employees are expected to be able to deal with data transmission and informative processing. Calls will be made to consumers to solicit products and credit cards and to follow up on sales, Iowa City Development Group President Ray Muston said.

"THEY DID SOME preliminary investigations and got some very positive responses from people who wanted to go to work," Muston said.

Besides the quality and availability of the labor force, Muston said the company was drawn to the area because of its strategic location in the central part of the United States.

The selection of Iowa City for the office location will help the city economically, Muston said.

"It's going to help expose the virtues of Iowa City as a place where telemarketing can succeed," Muston said. "It is going to create a number of employment opportunities — both full and part-time, and for students. "It's not a heavy industry sort of business, so it doesn't put a strain on the power and water systems of the city," he added.

Handling 120,000 to 150,000 calls a month, the office would have a monthly payroll of $50,000 to $75,000, Canova said.

Telephone Marketing Services employs 700 people and has offices in Hayward, Calif., Dallas, Philadelphia and Lombard, Ill.

Corporate clients include Discover Card Services Inc., Sears Roebuck Co., Montgomery Ward and J.C. Penney.

Lotto swells to $5 million after weekend without win

DES MOINES (UPI) — State officials determined over the weekend there was no jackpot winner in the Iowa Lotto drawing held Saturday night.

That means a record $4.1 million jackpot will grow even bigger to an estimated $5 million by the next Lotto drawing Wednesday night.

Lottery officials said lotto ticket sales last week topped the million-dollar mark for the first time. The estimated jackpot grew by $100,000 Saturday alone as lotto sales surged to 700 tickets per minute.

Officials say 55 people did pick five numbers correctly to win $500, 2,261 chose four numbers to win $20 and 30,081 lotto players won a free play.

The winning numbers were: 20-33-22-29-18-10.

Police

By Franc Contreras
The Daily Iowan

Iowa City police arrested a Waterloo man Friday at 8:20 p.m. on first degree murder charges after allegedly causing the death of a six-month-old Waterloo boy.

The Black Hawk County Sheriff's Department issued the warrant for the arrest of Dexter J. Hughes, age and address unknown, in connection with a Sept. 25 incident involving a child abuse case in Waterloo in which the child, Devrick Jennings, suffered brain injuries, according to Waterloo Police officers.

Jennings was taken to UI Hospitals and Clinics by Air Care where he was kept alive by life support systems for one week. He died Friday at noon, according to hospital officials.

Hughes was held at the Johnson County Jail until Friday night, when he was transported to Black Hawk County Jail, according to a jail official.

He is being held there on $500,000 bond and was scheduled for arraignment Saturday in Black Hawk County District Court on the murder charge, according to Waterloo police officials.

Iowa City Police Sgt. William Cook, who served the warrant, said Hughes "came along without a struggle." Cook said Hughes was arrested at a residence in Iowa City, but would not say where the residence was or why Hughes was there.

Report: Iowa City police raided several local bars during the weekend and charged 19 people with possession of alcohol while being underage, according to police reports.

The reports indicated more than half of the people involved were UI students. People were arrested at the following bars: The Airliner, 22 S. Clinton St., The Sports Column, 12 S. Dubuque St., College St. Club, 121 E. College St., and The Tycoon IC, 223 E. Washington St.

Report: Four rocks were thrown through a window of the offices of The Campus Review located in the Rebel Plaza in Iowa City Friday morning, according to police reports.

Campus Review Editor Jeff Renander told police that vandals did not enter the offices, but damaged at least two windows and scattered glass over the entire office.

Renander said he does not know who threw the rocks, but has asked UI officials and Campus Security police to investigate the incident.

Report: Three UI students were charged Sunday at 4:52 a.m. with defacing property in the 400 block of South Johnson Street, according to police reports.

David E. Boatman, 20, 707 N. Dubuque St.; Becky A. Johnson, 21, 443 S. Johnson St.; and Jamie Armstrong, 20, 363 N. Riverside Dr. were asked to scrub their "artwork" off the street before they were released, according to the report.

Report: Iowa City police charged the Central Bar, 203 N. Linn St., with dispensing liquor after hours after police responded to a call at 2:10 a.m. Sunday. Also charged with dispensing liquor after hours was Kevin D. Gibson, 729 Market St.

Report: Campus Security police are investigating an assault which occurred Thursday in Daum Hall.

Campus Security reports state a female UI student was hit in the mouth with a phone Thursday at 2 a.m. by an unidentified subject.

Theft: Parts from a video game valued at $1,225 were stolen Thursday from the Hillcrest residence hall game room, according to Campus Security reports. The theft occurred about 10:30 a.m., according to Campus Security.

Courts

By James Cahoy
The Daily Iowan

An Iowa City man was charged with fourth degree criminal mischief after kicking in an apartment door Friday morning, according to Johnson County District Court records.

Kenneth Blumberg, 19, 505 E. Burlington St., allegedly kicked in a door to gain entry into an apartment in the 800 block of North Dubuque Street. Blumberg allegedly broke a window while in the apartment, according to court records.

The residents of the apartment were not at home when Blumberg entered, but returned shortly thereafter and were confronted by Blumberg. Blumberg admitted to breaking the window "because he was mad," according to court records.

The property Blumberg damaged is estimated to have a value of $100 to $200, according to the report. A preliminary hearing in the case will be held Oct. 20.

An Iowa City woman was charged in Johnson County District Court Friday with third-degree theft in connection with an incident at a Coralville K-Mart.

Lille Mae Miller, 21, 2816 Lakeside Drive, allegedly wrote a check worth $110.55 to the K-Mart located on Highway 6. The check was later returned from a closed account, according to court records.

Since that time, Miller has acknowledged writing the check but has made no attempt to make the check payable, according to court records. A preliminary hearing in the matter is set for Oct. 20.

A Homestead, Iowa, man was charged in Johnson County District Court Friday with carrying weapons and driving while under suspension in connection with an incident which occurred Thursday.

Dion Lee Knapp, 24, was stopped for a routine traffic violation when police noticed a knife on the console of the car. After discovering Knapp was driving with a suspended license, police asked Knapp to hand over the knife, according to court records.

Knapp was arrested after the blade was found to be 3.5 inches long, according to court records. A preliminary hearing in the matter is set for Oct. 20.

UI faculty will be honored at convocation

By Scott Hauser
The Daily Iowan

The UI will honor the "life of the mind" and consider the state of the UI tonight as it recognizes the achievements and distinguished service of its faculty members at the annual Faculty Convocation award ceremony.

The purpose of the convocation is two-fold, UI Faculty Senate President Bruce Gronbeck said. "To remind the university community that its scholarly research mission is central to the university and secondly to recognize scholars who have done outstanding work."

"It recognizes the life of the mind and why it's important," he said.

Gronbeck will preside over the ceremony — held in Clapp Recital Hall at 7:30 p.m. — which will honor more than 30 UI faculty members with teaching, research and external organization awards and will include a keynote address by UI Interim President Richard Remington.

Remington said his address, entitled "A Season of Change," will outline his agenda for dealing with issues facing the UI and the importance of its teaching and research missions.

"It certainly is an opportunity to bring the university community together and comment on the state of the university from my point of view," he said. "And then to make specific comments about the relation between research and teaching."

REMINGTON, WHO IS UI Vice President for Academic Affairs and Dean of the Faculties, said he will address the changes affecting the UI, such as the search for a new president; the UI Foundation's Iowa Endowment 2000 campaign — the UI's attempt to raise $150 million by the year 2000—its 10-year accreditation evaluation and the UI's affirmative action programs.

He has emphasized the UI's need to improve its affirmative action programs — particularly in attracting faculty members from minority groups — in speeches to faculty this semester and has been criticized by campus activists for the slow pace of improvements in attracting women administrators.

UI Associate Dean of the Faculties Frederick Woodard will present the Burlington Northern Faculty Achievement Awards and the Amoco Senior Teaching Awards, both programs of the UI Council on Teaching.

HE WILL ALSO honor the holders of distinguished professorships and endowed chairs, the recipients of the May Brodbeck and James Van Allen fellowships, University Faculty Scholars and the three recipients of awards from external organizations who were nominated by the UI.

Gronbeck said the ceremony is an opportunity for the UI to recognize the "dual purpose" of its faculty to be teachers and researchers.

"It's important because there is a need to recognize that while a research university has an important duty to disseminate knowledge, it has an equally important duty to generate knowledge," he said.

In addition to award-winners, faculty members who were on developmental leave and who had collaborative grants will be recognized, he said.

The program will open with "Dankpsalm, Opus 145," by Max Reger, performed by UI Music Professor Delores Bruch.

A reception for the faculty members will follow at the UI Museum of Art.

Aid commission looks to help more students

By Monica Seigel
The Daily Iowan

and United Press International

The Iowa College Aid Commission, counting on a requested 64 percent budget increase next year, hopes to award an additional 7,000 scholarships and grants to college students during the next school year.

Commission Executive Director Gary Nichols said rising tuition costs and new federal rules limiting the number of student loans and grants has put more students in need of financial assistance.

Nichols said compounding the two problems is that the commission has never had enough money to help all of Iowa's qualifying students.

Changes in the Guaranteed Student Loan Program — which mainly assists middle-income families with college-bound children — have dropped Iowa's share nearly 18 percent since July. Also, the amount of money students received has decreased by about 10 percent since then.

THE COMMISSION has requested a budget increase from $33.4 million to $54.8 million, with all but $2.6 million to come from the state. The request must be approved by the Iowa Legislature next session.

Sen. Richard Varn, D-Solon, head of the Senate appropriations subcommittee in charge of education funding, said it is unlikely the commission will receive all the money it is requesting.

"They're asking for a $19 million increase in one year," Varn said. "There isn't that kind of money available for increases like that. They had some difficulty securing a 20 percent increase last year."

DOUG GROSS, an aide to Gov. Terry Branstad, echoed Varn's prediction, saying there will be serious budget constraints during the next fiscal year.

If even half of the budget increase is approved, private colleges in Iowa stand to gain the most because it would increase the amount available to them through the Iowa Tuition Grant Program to as much as $43 million, Nichols said.

UI Student Senate President Joe Hansen said although student leaders would welcome and will lobby for the commission's budget increase, he is concerned how much student financial aid money would be available to students at the state's public universities.

"I DO THINK that the private colleges have gotten their fair share," Hansen said. "Last year the public institutions were happy to get just $1 million for college work-study, while the private colleges received $24.5 million for the tuition grant program."

"We hate to be put in the position of going to the Legislature and arguing against money for private school students, but that's what it comes down to," he added.

Varn said he also was upset the commission neglected to ask for more money for a state-funded college work study program, saying he doesn't understand why the commission seems to feel obligated only to private school students.

About 12,000 private college students received grants of up to $2,350 this year. About 15,000 students now receive scholarships and grants through the commission and about 24,000 received guaranteed loans, Nichols said, adding that some students receive both.

UI eyes moving ROTC to Westlawn

By Scott Hauser
The Daily Iowan

The UI branches of the United States Army and Air Force Reserve Officer Training Corps programs will probably be moved to Westlawn before the UI Field House Armory is demolished in 1989, the director of UI Military Science said Sunday.

"They've made the decision to move me there, but they haven't figured out the details of how to move me there," Lt. Col. Steven Fredericks said.

The location of the UI's two ROTC programs had not been included in plans to relocate the Armory on the south side of the current Field House.

The Armory is scheduled to be demolished in 1989 when a $19.9 million Psychiatric Pavilion is built adjacent to the John W. Colloton Pavilion.

CURRENTLY BOTH programs are housed in the Armory. At a meeting of the UI Campus

Planning Committee last week, UI Planning and Administrative Services Director Richard Gibson said the UI did not plan to relocate the ROTC programs in the armory replacement facility, but did not say where they would be located.

Gibson was unavailable for comment Sunday.

The committee approved the site immediately south of the Field House to replace the 35,000-square-foot Armory because the location would allow the UI to keep its recreational services in one general location.

Fredericks said the decision to move the programs to Westlawn was put to him as an alternative, but said he considers the move "pretty much definite."

He said both programs are scheduled to move into Westlawn and said the change will hamper military science's ability to provide its programs.

"I'M GETTING a lot less than I'm giving up," he said. "I lose a space to do my leadership laboratory and my space for drills."

He said the Westlawn location will also have less classroom space and does not include space for a rifle range.

The current armory includes a 10-line rifle range and has an open area comprising six of the Field House's 10 basketball courts.

The two ROTC programs enroll about 400 to 500 UI students a year.

Westlawn is located between the UI Nursing Building and Highway 6.

Vote No October 6th

On October 6th, (this Tuesday), you will have the opportunity to vote yes or no on a very important issue. The issue is whether or not Johnson County will implement a 25% increase in our sales tax. The members of the Student Senate at the UI urge you to exercise your right to vote, and vote against the proposed increase.

There are several reasons why we urge you to vote against the proposal:

- 1. The tax is regressive. In other words it is going to hit the underprivileged in Iowa City—including students—the hardest. This happens because students and poor Iowa City residents use a higher proportion of their income on items that are subject to sales tax than do residents in higher income brackets. Therefore we will spend a higher percentage of our income on this than will the wealthy in the community.
- 2. This tax will not increase services. Half of the money raised by this tax is designated for debt service, not for increase in services. There is no guarantee that human services will see one extra dime. The city bus system will not go back to full service after the cut-backs this spring. There is no provision in the bill that will make the library re-open on Fridays. None of the money generated by this sales tax increase is slated for improvements.
- 3. If we defeat this tax, it will not mean drastic decreases in services. Proponents of the local option sales tax are using the prospect of drastic cuts in local services as a scare tactic to make you vote for it. Iowa City is the only community with more than 50,000 residents that has not reached the state mandated cap on property taxes. And a property tax increase is not our only option—better ones exist. A temporary property tax increase for two years to maintain service levels, and take care of our debt, has been recommended. This would give us the breathing room necessary to go to the state legislature to ask for a more fair local option income tax.

Gere lends farmers support

Actor speaks before 240 at fundraiser

By Adam Shell
The Daily Iowan

CEDAR RAPIDS — Saying he has not forgotten the memories of growing up on a rural farm in Pennsylvania, actor Richard Gere told a crowd of 240 people Sunday night he understands the plight of the American farmer in the 1980s.

Gere spoke at a fund-raising dinner at Stouffers Hotel to help save Farmers Helping Farmers — an organization which provides counseling to farmers — from extinction.

"It's meant a lot to me to have that in my lineage, in my heritage, and it's that part of me that feels what you're going through here," Gere said.

Gere, who will finish filming Farm of the Year later this month, said many farmers place too much blame on themselves for their failures on the farm.

"PEOPLE ARE SUFFERING out there, they need help," Gere said during his 15-minute speech. "It is our responsibility to help them."

Joanne Dvorak, program director of Farmers Helping Farmers, said the organization was forced to close its office Friday due to a lack of state-provided operating funds. Gov. Terry Branstad's June budget cuts included $100,000 intended for the organization.

The program, Dvorak said, is designed to help farmers cope with the emotional, psychological and financial stress due to the crisis.

"The program has been an integral part of my life for the last three years," Dvorak said. "We must continue the type of outreach that we've been involved in for two years."

The bond between farmers and their land is extremely strong and many farmers find it difficult to abandon their land — regardless of their financial troubles, Dvorak said.

"When you walk those fields and you ride that tractor ... it is a piece of you," Dvorak said. "And to walk away is not something that is easy."

THE $50-A-PLATE benefit dinner was an effort to raise money to help finance an independent agency created this month to replace Farmers Helping Farmers.

Despite optimistic economic reports about the farm recovery, Dvorak said the farm crisis is still an issue and that there are many farmers who are still in serious financial trouble.

Iowa Democratic Sen. Tom Harkin was the guest speaker for the benefit. The Senate Agriculture Committee member said he believes the farm crisis can be reversed in the future.

"We've reached the point now where the helpers need some help," Harkin said. "We're going to keep those doors open as long as there are farm families in Iowa that have pain and who need help."

Joan Mondale, wife of 1984 Democratic presidential candidate Walter Mondale, also attended the benefit: "I hope there will be a day when family farmers can get a fair price for their crop and can earn a decent living."

Business must be 'creative'

Exxon president says business belongs in the liberal arts

The Daily Iowan

Business belongs among the liberal arts and is truly among the other liberal arts because business leaders must strive to be the "most creative, inventive, economic activists" they can, Randall Meyer, president of Exxon Co., U.S.A., and a 1948 UI graduate, told a group of 280 of the state's business leaders, UI faculty and students Thursday.

"Business ought to be situated among the liberal arts," Meyer said. "It must always be practiced in the context of the humanities — I don't mean only in the universities, but in life."

Meyer made the remarks as keynote speaker at the Iowa Business Leadership Banquet, sponsored by the UI College of Business Administration, at the Highlander Supper Club.

The Mount Vernon, Iowa, native joined Exxon 39 years ago after graduating from the UI with a B.S. degree in mechanical engineering. He has been president of Exxon Co., U.S.A. since 1972. Based in Houston, the company is a division of Exxon Corp. and is responsible for the corporation's oil and gas interests in the United States.

The event also included the presentation of the Oscar C. Schmidt Business Leadership Award to James L. Churchill, president of the Cedar Rapids-based Avionics Group of Rockwell International Corp.

"A BUSINESS LEADER must keep his eye on the whole range of life around him," Meyer said. "Economic activities can't be conducted in a vacuum. They depend on the political system around them. They depend on the educational system, the media, churches, families and vital associations of all sorts." Meyer said that for business prosperity and stability, history shows that democracies are best. He added that such beneficial prosperity "needs a moral-cultural system that defends the dignity of the human person, that respects the liberty and creativity endowed in every free person by the Creator."

Meyer told the audience that business life is part of a three-cornered system that he likened to the pyramid pictured on the Great Seal of the United States on the back of a $1 bill.

"AT THE TOP of the pyramid is the eye of reason or Providence — in short, the moral-cultural system," he said. At the base of the pyramid, as Meyer envisioned it, are "political economy" — the political system on one side and the economic system on the other. Under the pyramid, the words "Novus Ordo Seclorum" — meaning "The New Order of the Ages," describes this three cornered system.

"All three systems are interdependent," Meyer said. "It's important that no one of the three systems ever gains too much power. It's important that the three systems contest one another, and keep one another in check. That's what preserves the liberties of all of us. But it's also important that the three systems cooperate and work in the best sort of harmony they can achieve."

Meyer continued, "In order to be of service to the society that nourishes us — this New Order — business leaders have to be humanists and good citizens, as well as good economic activists. We're going to be held responsible for the moral and cultural life of our generation. We had better meet all our responsibilities to morality and culture. Otherwise, we're undermining our strength."

Reagan resolute on Bork nomination

WASHINGTON — Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, relayed President Ronald Reagan's resolve Sunday on the Supreme Court nomination of Robert Bork and said on the eve of the court's new term that Reagan will not withdraw Bork's name.

"The president has authorized me to say on this program . . . that he is going to press this through to conclusion to a vote on the Senate floor," Hatch said on NBC's "Meet the Press."

Hatch, a member of the Senate Judiciary Committee, also said Reagan would continue to pursue the nomination if the panel produced an unfavorable report and a majority of the full Senate expressed its intention to vote against Bork.

Another member of the committee, Sen. Howell Heflin, D-Ala., said in a broadcast that he remains undecided on Bork.

Canada, U.S. reach historic trade pact

WASHINGTON — The United States and Canada early Sunday announced an historic free trade agreement that would eliminate tariffs over 10 years and cut restrictions on commerce crossing the border of the two North American neighbors.

President Ronald Reagan hailed the agreement and said it "will provide enormous benefits for the United States" and "over time create thousands of jobs," but a Canadian official warned the pact could "easily unravel" over the next six months.

The United States and Canada are the world's largest trading partners, exchanging $124.5 billion in goods and services in 1986.

Violent crime rate hits new low in 1986

WASHINGTON — America's rate of violent crime, not counting murder, dropped 6.3 percent in 1986 while the number of all crimes studied declined for the fifth straight year to the lowest level in 14 years, the Justice Department announced Sunday.

The violent crime rate was approximately 20 percent lower than its peak in 1981 and about 14 percent lower than the rate in 1973, the first year the survey was taken by the Bureau of Justice Statistics, according to figures compiled in the report, "Criminal Victimization 1986."

In 1985, there were 30 violent crimes per 1,000 persons age 12 and older or per 1,000 households, compared with 28.1 per 1,000 in 1986, for a drop of 6.3 percent, according to the survey.

Peace talks resume in El Salvador

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador — Leftist rebel leaders arrived in the capital Sunday for a third round of negotiations with President Jose Napoleon Duarte on ending the country's 8-year-old civil war.

The two sides were still deeply divided on key issues and diplomats believe there is little chance of a breakthrough in the talks, the first since negotiations deadlocked three years ago.

"The best they can hope for is to agree to continue meeting, given their polarized positions," said one veteran Latin American diplomat. "The worst scenario is that neither side shows any flexibility and they walk out, closing the option to a negotiated settlement for many years."

Mexico's ruling party names nominee

MEXICO CITY — Mexico's ruling party Sunday chose an ebullient Carlos Salinas de Gortari, a Harvard-educated technocrat who carried out the government's economic restructuring, as its presidential nominee in next year's election.

"I belong to a new generation, the one of the national renovation, the one that is modernizing Mexico," said Salinas de Gortari, 39. He delivered an acceptance speech before 100,000 people.

Salinas de Gortari, minister of budget and planning under President Miguel de la Madrid, would become Mexico's second youngest president if he is elected in July.

Few foresee any other conclusion. The PRI has won every major election since its founding in 1929.

Soviets mark 30th anniversary of Sputnik

MOSCOW — The Soviet Union Sunday marked the 30th anniversary of the launch of the Sputnik I satellite and the birth of the space age with a flood of media tributes and calls for more international cooperation in planetary exploration.

Sputnik, a 184-pound basketball-sized pod, became the first man-made satellite to orbit Earth when it was launched from Baikonur in Soviet Central Asia on Oct. 4, 1957.

The event triggered boasts from then leader Nikita Khrushchev about Soviet technical superiority and warnings of the danger of the West stealing Soviet rocket secrets.

President Dwight Eisenhower was reportedly stunned by the news the United States had lost the first heat of the space race.

Honasan ignores U.S. threat to end aid

MANILA, Philippines — Col. Gregorio Honasan, leader of a bloody coup attempt in August, Sunday dismissed threats by Secretary of State George Shultz to cut off U.S. aid to the Philippines if the government is overthrown.

The remarks by Honasan, who has been a fugitive since the failed Aug. 28 coup that left 53 dead and more than 300 wounded, appeared in the latest segment of an interview conducted last week and published in daily installments in the Bulletin and its sister newspaper, Tempo.

The coup leader said he did not believe Shultz's warnings, relayed by U.S. Ambassador Nicholas Platt. "No, he's lying through his teeth," Honasan said.

Colombian ready for drug trial

By Robert L. Jackson
Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — A man alleged to be the most influential drug dealer ever seized abroad and brought to the United States, is scheduled to go on trial Monday, and federal officials are hoping his case will send a clear message to other major narcotics traffickers that they cannot escape.

Carlos Lehder Rivas, a broad-shouldered, curly-haired man of 38 who authorities say was the kingpin in a huge Latin American drug operation, was trapped last February when Colombian national police and U.S. Drug Enforcement Agents joined in a dramatic pre-dawn raid on his Colombian jungle headquarters. From there, he was spirited to Florida in the first use by Colombia's new government of a 6-year-old extradition treaty with the United States.

LEHDER, A REPUTED billionaire, will enter a heavily guarded courtroom in Jacksonville, Fla., to face charges that he smuggled and distributed 3.2 million tons of cocaine as a leader of Colombia's notorious Medellin Cartel.

Federal officials contend that Lehder's cartel has been responsible for 80 percent of all cocaine smuggled into the United States in recent years.

Robert Merkle, the U.S. Attorney for the Middle District of Florida who will prosecute Lehder, said that the case signifies "the emergence of a national will" in Colombia to cooperate with U.S. authorities in cracking down on the unbridled power of drug traffickers and their murderous activities.

Iranian guns pulverize Iraqi city

By John Phillips
United Press International

MANAMA, Bahrain — Iranian forces pounded the southern Iraqi city of Basra with heavy artillery fire Sunday in retaliation for a wave of Iraqi raids on Iranian oil targets. Iraq said many people, mostly women and children, were killed.

Iran claimed several other attacks on Iraqi cities and also announced its elite Revolutionary Guards had conducted naval "maneuvers" in the Persian Gulf Saturday.

It was Tehran's first explanation for why Iranian speedboats raced across the gulf Saturday toward an oil platform off the coast of Saudi Arabia. The action prompted Saudi forces to go on alert and the La Salle, flagship of the U.S. task force in the gulf, to race into the area before the flotilla dispersed.

TEHRAN RADIO said Iranian Revolutionary Guards shelled several areas of Iraq Sunday, inflicting "heavy damage" in Basra and two other district centers in flood-prone land at the northernmost end of the Persian Gulf.

The radio said Iranian forces rained artillery on the railway station at Shoabiya and the industrial area of Zubair, two districts south of Basra and less than 20 miles from Kuwait.

Artillery also rained down on Qalat Diza, a district capital in the north along the western border with Iran, it said.

Iraq confirmed the attack on Basra, but did not comment on the other strikes claimed by Iran.

Vote no to tax

In Tuesday's referendum, Johnson County residents may vote for or against tacking a 1 percent local sales tax onto the state's 4 percent tax. If passed, consumers will pay 5 cents on every dollar spent instead of 4 cents. The tax will be applied to the purchase of almost everything except food and medicine, including utilities.

Proponents of the sales tax have pointed to the $900,000 deficit which Iowa City is running this fiscal year and made dark suggestions about cuts in basic services. They inferred that the tax is necessary to keep the police and fire departments operating. In fact, there is no real threat of curtailed services just as there is no guarantee that the proposed tax revenues would be used to increase or upgrade existing services.

The only alternative to the sales tax, its proponents suggest, is increased property tax. But the sales tax would be no guarantee against hikes in the property tax. It might postpone them, but the immunity is likely to prove temporary. Very soon residents may be paying increased property taxes and sales tax.

But there are other options. The Iowa City Council has barely considered some alternatives. For instance, a wheel tax levied on each of the almost 40,000 vehicles which clog the streets of Iowa City might go far towards alleviating the deficit. Considering the vast portion of the city's resources which go towards vehicular accommodations, this seems a more appropriate revenue source. Another possible source of revenue is a landing fee for visitors using the Iowa City Airport.

Even if increasing the property tax should be the only way to cut the local deficit and maintain services, it is still preferable to a sales tax. Property taxes can be deducted from one's federal tax, sales taxes cannot. Thus, by funding local government through property taxes the citizen exercises a higher degree of control over how his or her tax contribution is utilized. It can be seen at work in the city or poured into the federal money pit.

The proposed sales tax should be voted down and the council should be more imaginative in its search for revenue alternatives.

Slip of tongue

While political analysts and Republicans sit back and musingly watch the apparent collapse of the field of Democratic presidential hopefuls, an old yet meaningful adage comes to mind — what goes around comes around. And although he probably lacks the intelligence and perceptiveness to take it, Vice President George Bush stands to benefit the most from this advice.

While many people feel Gary Hart was ousted from his presidential aspirations due to immorality and alleged adulterous behavior, the statement closer to the truth is that people instead questioned his lack of discretion in how he conducted his personal life. Not so much what he did, but rather how he did it is the key here.

Joe Biden was another casualty of doing acceptable things in an unacceptable manner. Using others' words and ideas as a means to expound and articulate your own views is common practice. Improperly citing your inspiration is not. Granted, not a cardinal sin, but nevertheless — end of campaign.

In light of the apparent ease in which a candidate can fall from grace in the scrutinizing eyes of the American public, Vice President George Bush should watch his step — or more accurately — his mouth.

Several months ago Bush was criticized for justifying the death of an American engineer who was murdered by Contra rebels for his role in bringing electricity to an impoverished area in Nicaragua. Bush, speaking to a group which included the victim's brother, basically said Ben Linder chose sides by aiding the Nicaraguan peasants and his death should neither surprise nor shock anyone.

You're right Mr. Bush, the death of a 27-year-old American engineer who was shot in the head by U.S.-funded rebels does not come as any surprise. This is probably one of the reasons that the majority of Americans do not support continued aid to the Contras.

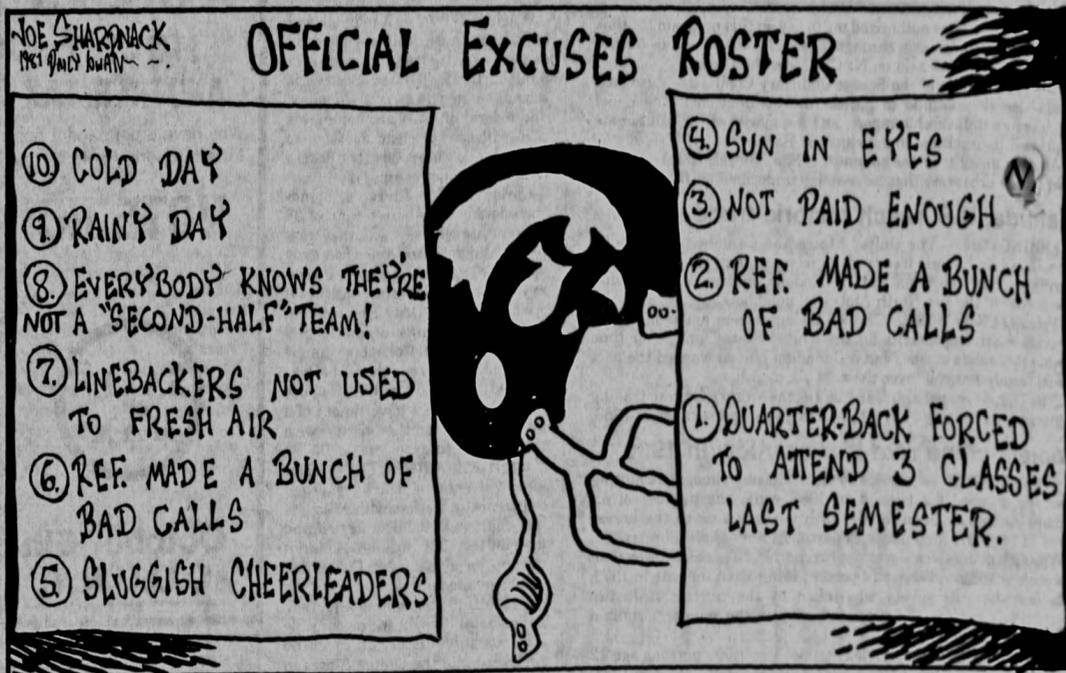

Bush, apparently not learning from his crass denial of American accountability in Linder's death, recently offended another large segment of the American people — the United Auto Workers. When asked what his recent trip to Europe yielded in terms of things learned, he shot down the quality of the UAW and the blue-collar worker in general. Commenting on 350 Soviet-built tanks that failed to display a single mechanical problem, Bush said, "Hey, when the mechanics who keep those tanks running run out of work in the Soviet Union, send them to Detroit because we could use that kind of ability."

Bush later commented, "I wish I'd never said it because it's controversial and I have to explain it..." Yes, you should have to explain it, Mr. Bush. You should also tell us why you apparently don't want to say anything that's controversial or needs explaining.

If the focus of the current presidential race is going to continue to be on non-issues and breeches of "integrity," then the idiocy and insensitivity of Bush's recent comments should qualify as more than acceptable testimony to his own presidential inability. What goes around comes around, Mr. Bush.

UI must be accessible to all

By Rachel Brimmer

Guest Opinion

just get on an elevator to go back up are just a few examples. But taking offices housed in accessible buildings and moving them to inaccessible locations is absurd.

THE UNIVERSITY Counseling Service, which used to be in the Union, has been moved to Westlawn. In order to use this facility, a wheelchair user must enter at the northwest end, go through the building, take the elevator to first floor and then stop at the main desk. Here, the person must inform the person at the desk of his/her destination and be accompanied to the UCS office. So much for confidential counseling.

Both the Office of International Education and Service and the Center for Credit Programs have moved to the International Center. According to information provided by the Office of Facilities Planning and Utilizations, this building is not accessible to a wheelchair user without physical assistance. First, getting to the building means going up a very steep incline. Then the building's elevator is a mechanical freight elevator. Once inside, the person needs "good working knowledge" of the building to get to the desired location. This doesn't fit into my definition of accessible. The renovation isn't scheduled to be done for one and a half to two years.

ALL THREE of these offices were accessible before moving. I had been to all three places. Moving these facilities in this way is practically equivalent to canceling their services for people using wheelchairs. I would have thought that when changes are made here, university officials would use some forethought. But forethought implies thinking about and being aware of the ramifications of proposed changes. Either there was a lack of both or they just didn't care.

The current situation is intolerable and I, along with others, am being discriminated against. The UI's policy on nondiscrimination states "The University of Iowa does not discriminate in its educational programs and activities on the basis of race, national origin, color, religion, sex, age or handicap. The University also affirms its commitment to providing equal opportunity and equal access to University facilities without reference to affectional or associational preference." It is time that UI officials implement this policy.

Rachel Brimmer is a UI graduate student.

Recent survey is Shere hype

J.L. McClure

"shocking" findings. It seems that 84 percent of the women queried are "not satisfied emotionally" with their marriages or romantic involvements. Of the women married for at least five years, 75 percent are having affairs. Eighty-three percent do not believe that men understand the essential factors involved in making intimate relationships work.

But before all of us already sexually frustrated men start slinking about in suspicion of what our sexually frustrated partners in love are really thinking of us or doing without us behind our backs, let's take a closer look at how these apparently damning percentages came to be.

FIRST, IT is a rule of thumb never to trust studies (such as Hite's) that claim to measure dissatisfaction with some specific area of life. The truth is (she could have phoned me about this, too) people who are dissatisfied with life in general tend to blame any and every aspect of life as a source for their dissatisfaction. I wonder if the women in this study who express dissatisfaction with their relationships would display any satisfaction for, say, their children. Or neighbors. Or even the weather. My hunch is that most of them, perhaps with reason, are down on the world at large and responded as they did in Hite's survey because they weren't given adequate opportunity to let fly their full arsenal of disaffection.

MOREOVER, there appears to be a problem with Hite's method of choosing respondents for her survey. In an effort to guarantee anonymity, she mailed her questionnaire not to individuals, but to various groups around the country, including church groups, women's political groups, women's rights organizations and counseling centers for women. Except for perhaps the church groups, these sound to me like groups formed for the very purpose of organizing generally dissatisfied women. Doesn't that tend to skew the results just a tad? Aren't the respondents from the counseling centers, for example, drawn to those centers precisely because they've had some emotional problems in their relationships? To ask them if they're dissatisfied in those relationships strikes me as stacking the statistical deck.

MOST PROBLEMATIC of all, though, is the number of women involved in Hite's survey. Not the number of respondents, which was 4,500. That seems to me enough of a sample to perhaps draw valid conclusions. But Hite sent out 100,000 questionnaires. That means 95,500 women (or 95.5 percent) didn't respond at all. Maybe they were dissatisfied but didn't have time in their dissatisfaction to fill out what Hite described as a "long" questionnaire. But what if — just what if — a goodly number of the non-respondents didn't bother with the questionnaire because they had no emotional ax to grind, because they were satisfied in their relationships, because they were too busy going out to dinner with their husbands or "significant others," and maybe to a movie after that, and then back home for some really terrific sex? What if, in short, they found the whole thing too silly to fool with?

Now that would be a survey worth conducting.

Letters

A correction

To the Editor:
 A letter written by me appeared in the Sept. 23 Viewpoints section of The Daily Iowan. I wrote the letter merely to correct the incorrect usage of the term "minor." In the letter I quoted from the Iowa Code. The DI incorrectly printed what I had written, and quoted the Iowa Code to read, "The period of minority extends to the drinking age of 18 years..." This is not what the Iowa Code says, and it creates understandable confusion. The Iowa Code, Volume III, Chapter 599, Section 599.1 reads, "The period of minority shall extend to the age of 18 years." The drinking age has absolutely no legal connection to the age of majority, that is, the age of adulthood. At age 18 all persons become legal adults. It is therefore legally and linguistically incorrect to refer to any person aged 18 years or more as a "minor."

Campaign '88

Gore admits 'inaccuracies'

Exaggerated claims as an investigative reporter

Albert Gore

By Jim Williams
United Press International

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Sen. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., whose presidential campaign has so far avoided a major controversy, said in an interview published Sunday he exaggerated his record as an investigative reporter.

In an interview published last Sunday by the Des Moines Register, Gore was quoted as saying he "got a bunch of people indicted and sent to jail" while working as a reporter for The Tennessean in Nashville in the 1970s.

But while campaigning Saturday night in North Carolina, Gore acknowledged no one had gone to prison as a result of his reporting.

Gore's disclosure was first reported in Saturday's editions of the Memphis Commercial-Appeal.

Gore's disclosure follows two other embarrassing incidents for Democratic presidential candidates. Sen. Joseph Biden, D-Del., withdrew from the race because of reports he exaggerated his law school record and used parts of speeches by other politicians.

Former Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo., dropped out of the race after The Miami Herald reported he spent the night with model Donna Rice in his Washington townhouse.

IN THE INTERVIEW with the Iowa newspaper, Gore referred to an incident in which two people were indicted after an investigation into alleged corruption on the Nashville-Davidson County Metropolitan Council during the time Gore was covering the council.

Councilman Morris Haddox was indicted on bribery charges and was acquitted in 1976. Councilman Jack Clariday was convicted of bribery and sentenced to three years in prison in 1975, but never served time on the conviction and was put on probation.

Gore said in an interview published in Sunday's editions of The Tennessean that while a newly elected congressman in 1977, he read a story about Clariday's probation and wrongly assumed Clariday had gone to prison.

"IT WAS JUST a cursory reading of the story on my part," Gore said. "I made a mistake because I mistakenly believed that at the time he was put on probation, he had begun serving his term."

"I made an honest mistake and I apologize for the inaccuracies," Gore said. "I should have paid more attention to the news story 10 years ago."

John Seigenthaler, chairman, editor and publisher of The Tennessean, said of Gore, "He was an outstanding investigative reporter — one of the best we ever had."

"He spotted the corrupt alliance among members of the Metro (Nashville) Council and those who wanted zoning changes," Seigenthaler is quoted as saying in Sunday's Tennessean.

Gephardt looks to the future

Confident candidate ready to capitalize on others' mistakes

DES MOINES (UPI) — Democratic presidential hopeful Richard Gephardt, who was once suspected of campaign dirty tricks himself, during the weekend called on Democrats to forget about the charges and revelations that forced one candidate to withdraw and crippled another.

A confident-sounding Gephardt, who campaigned in Iowa on an upbeat tone while Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis spent the day in western Iowa apologizing for his campaign staff, said he could "feel" the race for the Democratic presidential nomination turning his way.

Just two weeks ago the campaign staff of Sen. Joseph Biden eyed Gephardt as the chief perpetrator of a spate of revelations about Biden's plagiarizing other politicians' speeches.

But this week Dukakis admitted it was his staff that released to the media a videotape showing Biden borrowing from a speech by British Labor Party leader Neil Kinnock.

Gephardt was conciliatory in a speech to supporters Saturday night, but clearly relishing the shot of energy that Dukakis' problems are giving the other Democratic candidates.

"THE LAST few weeks have been very hard for Democrats," the Missouri congressman said. "It's time to close the chapter on what's happened. We should not look back but look forward."

Gephardt claimed his own campaign had suffered from the accusations by the Biden staffers but the broadly-grinning politician did not seem like a man who had suffered a fatal blow.

"This is fun," he roared to a sign-waving crowd in Des Moines' Savery Hotel. "I'm beginning to feel this thing, it's coming together."

Gephardt repeated the standard assertion of Democrats that it is not enough to win the nomination but the party's standard-bearer must go all the way to the White House.

He touted his support among 80 House colleagues and said "if this were Britain I'd be halfway to being prime minister," referring to England's parliamentary system.

Gephardt also said Americans "want a cut of the action" in government and pledged to listen to among other people, Washington bureaucrats.

He also took a shot at President Ronald Reagan, calling him "just plain darn incompetent."

The hardest thing about breaking into professional music is — well, breaking into professional music. So if you're looking for an opportunity to turn your musical talent into a full-time performing career, take a good look at the Army.

It's not all parades and John Philip Sousa. Army bands rock, waltz and boogie as well as march, and they perform before concert audiences as well as spectators. With an average of 40 performances a month, there's also the opportunity for travel — not only across America, but possibly abroad.

Most important, you can expect a first-rate professional environment from your instructors, facilities and fellow musicians. The Army has educational programs that can help you pay for off-duty instruction, and if you qualify, even help you repay your federally-insured student loans. If you can sight-

Experts: Aftershock could continue for several weeks

By Kenneth Reich
Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES — The U.S. Geological Survey warned Sunday that the "aftershock sequence (that) has developed just east of Los Angeles" after Thursday's 6.1 earthquake "is likely to extend over several days and possibly weeks."

Eight hours after Sunday morning's strong aftershock, the Reston, Va.-based agency issued a statement which, in part, said:

"Individual earthquakes in this sequence may (continue to) cause moderate to strong, widely felt ground shaking, similar to that experienced Sunday morning. This shaking may in turn cause some additional damage, particularly in already weakened structures."

AFTERSHOCKS, THE statement noted, are a common occurrence after a sizable earthquake, and are caused by strain and instabilities introduced in the Earth's crust by the main shock.

The Survey cautioned that "it is impossible to predict when aftershocks will occur."

But, the agency said, it would not be unusual for an earthquake of magnitude 6 to be followed by more than one aftershock in the magnitude 5 range and many of magnitude 4 or less. It added that they tend to decrease in magnitude and frequency with time.

Sunday morning's aftershock registered 5.5 on the Richter scale at the California Institute of Technology's seismology lab.

Despite the assurance in the statement that such aftershocks as Sunday's are common, the agency's senior seismologist in the Los Angeles area, Lucille Jones, said the actual timing of aftershock activity subsequent to Thursday's quake has been "extremely abnormal."

"THE AVERAGE energy release after the main shock is usually a significant fraction of the energy of that shock, perhaps a third to a half," Jones explained in an interview. "Up until (Sunday) morning, in this quake it had been 1 percent or less. That's really strange."

Sunday's aftershock, she added, coming after two and a half days without many aftershocks, caused her to feel "somewhat relieved," because "the energy release is now somewhere in the normal range."

"There may now be more aftershocks," she said. "We can't predict, but we would expect to continue to have aftershocks, perhaps moderately large, that will do damage."

Generally concurring in this assessment was Cal Tech seismologist Kate Hutton, who said, "It's certain that we can have more aftershocks in the 3 and even 4 range, and we can't rule out those in the 5 range."

Hutton said prudent Los Angeles area residents "will be very wary of damaged buildings and be careful dealing with bookcases" in coming days.

Meanwhile, as teams of government and private quake experts continued to investigate Thursday's temblor and its aftermath, Jones said that a horizontal fault — of a type that has only in the last 10 to 15 years come to be appreciated by seismologists — may have been responsible.

"These earthquakes have been off the end of the Whittier Fault," Jones said. "Perhaps the most we can safely say is that they are in the Whittier Fault zone."

Unlike the known, vertical orientation of the Whittier Fault and other mapped faults in the Los Angeles area, the slippage in Thursday's main shock and Sunday's aftershock was not so much a noticeable offset on different sides of a surface fault line as it was an up-and-down thrust from a shallowly dipping plane extending well beneath ground surfaces, Jones said.

According to this scenario, the land to the south and southeast of epicenters of the quakes of the last several days, such as the area of Whittier and the Puente Hills, was thrust upward, while areas to the north and west, such as Alhambra and Pasadena, may have sunk.

Jones said that such thrusts occurring in the distant past may have been responsible for building hills, known as anticlines, in the vicinity of the present quake activity.

Quake

attacks — and more than 100 injuries.

Caltech senior seismologist Kate Hutton said major aftershocks usually occur within a day of the original temblor, so the nearly three-day delay was a surprise. The largest aftershock before this morning's occurred within an hour of Thursday's quake and registered 4.4 on the Richter scale, which meant it produced only one-tenth the ground motion of this morning's jolt.

SUNDAY'S 5.5 magnitude aftershock was the 22nd measuring more than 3.0 on the Richter scale since Thursday morning. It was followed by aftershocks of 3.0 magnitude at 4:09 a.m. and 4:56 a.m. and a 3.6 magnitude aftershock at 7:05 a.m., adding to the difficulty of getting back to sleep.

Thursday's earthquake and aftershocks have all originated in a hitherto unknown, underground extension of the Whittier Fault.

Until now the fault was thought to end in the 70,000-population suburb of Whittier, where former President Richard Nixon once attended college and practiced law. But Thursday's quake and Sunday's major aftershock occurred some distance northwest of Whittier, the apparent result of an underground, nearly horizontal extension of the fault that was undetected until now.

WHITTIER, celebrating the hundredth anniversary of its founding as a small Quaker community, suffered extensive damage to homes and shops in Thursday's quake and was further shaken this morning. A water main broke beneath the intersection of Beverly Boulevard and Painter Avenue, causing a section of pavement to collapse. Some already weakened chimneys, walls and windows suffered further damage.

In San Gabriel, within a mile of the quake's suspected epicenter, a 30-foot bell tower that was part of a facade at the old San Gabriel Civic Auditorium collapsed, a police spokesman said. The prized example of mission-style architecture in California had suffered extensive damage in the Thursday quake and was expected to be pulled down anyway. A three story commercial brick building was also 60 percent destroyed.

More masonry fell off of the 216-year-old Mission San Gabriel Archangel, closed Thursday because of suspected structural damage.

Churches in affected areas appeared to be full of worshippers this morning. "We just changed the location," said Philip Lee, part of a predominantly Chinese-American protestant congregation in Alhambra which held services in an American Legion hall while its own building was inspected for structural damage.

team, and might be able to play as early as next year. Smiley is currently red-shirted for this season.

"It was my understanding from talking to the athletic department that if the case is handled this way, he would be reinstated on the team," Thomas said.

But Iowa Men's Athletic Director Bump Elliott said Sunday there was no guarantee Smiley would be reinstated.

"I think it would be very premature to say that now," Elliott said.

"We are going to wait and see what develops in other matters before we make any decisions."

UI administrators have said they will not comment on Smiley's status until the cases pending against him are resolved in court.

Court

port of Harry Blackmun, Thurgood Marshall and John Paul Stevens.

THE NINTH JUSTICE, Lewis Powell Jr., provided the key swing vote on many issues. But Powell retired at the end of the court's term June 26 and, until someone replaces him, court observers expect 4-4 splits to prove common on sensitive issues.

Even if Bork gains Senate confirmation — and that appears to be an increasingly unlikely prospect — he will miss some of the cases to be argued early in the new term. And if he is defeated and President Ronald Reagan must find a new nominee, the delay could leave the court unable to decide its toughest cases throughout its 1987-1988 term.

Senate leaders say that they do not expect a floor vote on whether to confirm Bork until late October or early November. Thus even if he is confirmed, he probably would miss the 40 cases to be argued by Nov. 10.

IN AN AVERAGE year, the high court decides about 160 cases, and 20 or 30 of these are typically decided on 5-4 votes. The voting in several cases to be heard this fall are expected to split the court along these lines:

• Can Illinois require a minor girl to wait 24 hours after she notifies her parents before she can get an abortion?

A federal appeals court in Chicago said no, concluding that the required delay was an undue burden that was intended to dissuade girls from having abortions. The state appealed, arguing that the delay allows for "meaningful consultation" between the girl and her parents.

The California Legislature recently passed a similar measure, which has not yet been tested in court. O'Connor probably holds the key vote on the Supreme Court, since she has suggested in past cases that women have a right to an abortion but that the state has some authority to regulate the practice as well.

• Can New Jersey require its public schools to open each day with a "moment of silence" for "private contemplation or introspection"?

AN APPEALS COURT in Philadelphia said no, ruling that the law had no other purpose than a religious one. The former speaker of the state Assembly appealed to the Supreme Court, arguing that the law does not mention prayer or religion.

In 1985 the high court rejected an Alabama law calling for a moment of silence for "voluntary prayer," but five members also said that a clearly non-religious law could be approved. This case could be dropped without a decision, however, because the court could conclude that the former speaker has no legal standing to bring the appeal.

• Can Oklahoma execute a man who committed a murder at age 15?

A state appeals court said yes, but his attorneys contend that imposing the death penalty for a crime committed as a juvenile is "cruel and unusual punishment" banned by the Eighth Amendment.

THE HIGH COURT majority has repeatedly upheld capital punishment, but it has also limited its application. Two years ago, the court ruled that insane persons could not be executed.

• Does a city rent-control law amount to a government taking of private property?

The California Supreme Court, arguing that it does not, last year upheld a San Jose rent-control law and concluded that it allowed landlords reasonable rate increases.

ion and have a strong respect for the value of a penny.

"I'm 76 years old," wrote one respondent. "Here's a penny. If you use it to buy drugs I hope a bolt of lightning strikes you dead."

"A LOT of letters come from old ladies who cherish a penny," Hayes said. "They all seem to think I'm a really nice guy."

If he goes over his goal of $28,000 necessary for four years of college,

Hayes will prove he is a nice guy. He plans to put the rest of the money into an existing scholarship fund or start a new one.

Hayes says he wants to help out an average middle-class college aspirant whose grades don't quite qualify him or her for grants and whose financial standing isn't low enough to make financial aid a possibility.

Bill Hayes, a chemist and longtime owner of the Hayes Drug store, never believed the project could work.

"I thought he was nuts," the elder Hayes said. "I just couldn't believe that anybody would put a penny in an envelope and put 22 cents on it and mail it."

Not everyone did. A few letters chastized Hayes for asking for money.

"I don't see the logic behind the negative responses," Hayes said. "It's only a penny and I'm not forcing them to send it."

Game vs. Spartans called 'weird' by Fry

By Marc Bona
The Daily Iowan

Weird. That's the word a somber Iowa football Coach Hayden Fry used to describe the Hawkeyes' 19-14 loss to the Michigan State Spartans Saturday in both schools' Big Ten opener in Kinnick Stadium.

"The football game was one of the most weird football games I believe I have ever been associated with," Fry said. "Michigan State did a super job at the right time, sacking our quarterback or shutting down our running game."

"It just wasn't our day; we didn't play well enough to win."

The game's weirdness seemed to be appropriate excerpts for a "Ripley's Believe It or Not" comic strip. Some of the stranger plays:

● In the fourth quarter, Iowa attempted a fake punt on 2nd down and 13 from its own 4-yard line but was called for delay of game.

● On a 2nd and 14 play from the Iowa 17-yard line in the third, Michigan State quarterback Bobby McAllister rolled left and threw an incomplete pass which cleared the Spartan bench and landed about 10 rows into the stands.

● Defensive holding was called against the Hawkeyes in the third quarter.

● An offensive pass interference call negated quarterback Dan McGwire's pass to tight end Mike Flagg during the first quarter.

● A Greg Montgomery field goal attempt for Michigan State was so short it was run back 17 yards by Iowa's Kerry Burt to the Iowa 43-yard line.

"TRYING TO SUM IT up, it wasn't a total game for the Hawks," Fry said. "We made too many mistakes, and Michigan State did a great job when they had to. They overwhelmed us with the rush in the late ballgame and we got critical penalties."

It was a game marred by 20 penalties — seven for 50 yards by Iowa and 13 for 102 yards by the Spartans. Nothing much was working for either team.

Michigan State's running game was working, though. Running back Lorenzo White had his best game of the season, scampering for 166 yards on 39 attempts. The 39 carries tied a Kinnick Stadium record set in 1979 by former Iowa running back Dennis Mosley against Iowa State.

WHITE SHOWED HIS knack of making something out of nothing as he constantly had the Iowa defense clutching at air as he scored his 30th career touchdown — one shy of tying a school record.

"The line was blocking, and I just had to read them," White said. "You couldn't feel too good when you get air and then you know you're going to get hit."

"It seemed like everything went very bad for us from an execution standpoint," Fry said. "At other times, our defense was just super. We stopped Michigan State time after time — made 'em punt, forced a field goal — but right at the last we couldn't stop them.

"Obviously, we didn't deserve to win the ballgame," Fry said. "Our guys played real hard; they just didn't execute to win."

THE IOWA OFFENSE was like an old car — taking a while to warm up before it got going. Except this car seemed to lose an alternator, engine and battery along the way.

Iowa foreshadowed problems from the start as Quinn Early bobbled the reception of the opening kick-off.

Running back Kevin Harmon had a far-from-typical performance, rushing 12 times for 28 yards. Overall, Iowa's offense went into the red on the ground, generating, or degenerating, -16 yards.

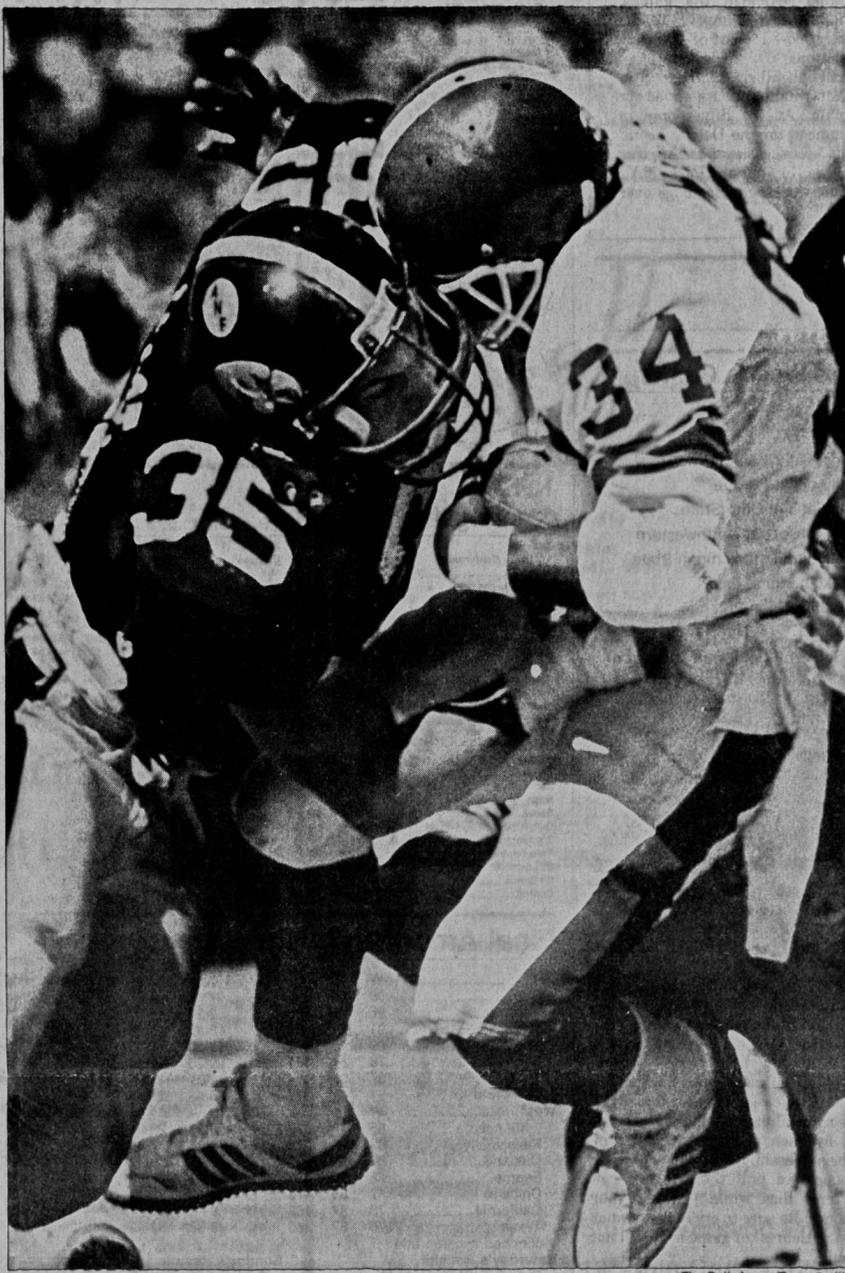

"We lost Harmon," Fry said. "He was injured and he played, and he got hurt bad and that didn't help us any." Fry added Harmon "has a bad ankle" but said he wasn't sure of the extent of the injury.

IOWA'S TOUCHDOWNS came on scoring strikes of 19 and 14 yards to Quinn Early and Travis Watkins, respectively. McGwire hit Early in the first quarter to put the Hawkeyes on the board first, but Michigan State tied it a little more than three minutes later when White soared over the middle from two yards out.

The scoring pass to Watkins came with 15 seconds remaining in the half. The sophomore split end broke free of left cornerback Derrick Reed at the line of scrimmage and tore for the far corner of the end zone where he made a diving catch.

But the two TD passes were the only scoring Hawkeyes managed in the game, which represented their lowest offensive output since a 31-10 loss to Ohio State last Nov. 1.

Watkins, McGwire connect again

By Anne Upson
The Daily Iowan

"It was a great throw, a great catch," said Michigan State football Coach George Perles about Travis Watkins' 14-yard touchdown reception Saturday at Kinnick Stadium.

Watkins was modest about the diving grab, which turned out to be Iowa's last score.

"That was nice. I'm just glad that he (Iowa quarterback Dan McGwire) saw my spot and that I was in position to catch it," Watkins said.

Watkins described the catch as a combination of luck and skill.

"IT WAS A KIND of a trip set, and we were sending it clear into the flat," Watkins said. "I got behind some defensive backs, and using zone coverage on the end zone they leave the back line open. I saw Dan looking around so I headed toward the corner and luckily he saw me. I was in a good spot."

Watkins, a sophomore from Claremont, Calif., was a high school teammate of McGwire. Watkins said he thinks McGwire's progress has been good despite his youth.

"A lot of people forget that he is only a sophomore," Watkins said. "I'd like to take a poll on the Division I major colleges of the sophomore quarterbacks who are starting right now, because I think there would be very few. Just because he has a great reputation, a good arm and a lot of potential, people think and expect that he should be always a great quarterback, but that isn't true all of the time."

McAllister finally gets his win

By Hugh Donlan
The Daily Iowan

For Michigan State quarterback Bobby McAllister, it was about time.

McAllister hit tight end Mike Sargent with an 8-yard touchdown pass in the fourth quarter that carried the Spartans to a 19-14 victory over Iowa in opening Big Ten action.

Although his performance was not pretty, the Michigan State quarterback was a key to the Spartans' victory Saturday over the Hawkeyes.

"How sweet it is," McAllister said of Michigan State's first victory over Iowa in three years. The senior quarterback's statistics are not impressive. He completed only 2 of 10 pass attempts and he ran the ball 9 times for 18 yards.

IN THE FIRST half, Michigan State's quarterback failed three times to convert on third down passing situations and twice trying to gain a first down rushing.

But a quarterback does more than pass and run, he hands the ball off. And he does that often when Lorenzo White in his backfield. The Heisman trophy candidate was the Spartans' offensive threat. White rushed for 166 yards on a Kinnick Stadium record 39 attempts to become the Big Ten's third all-time leading rusher.

"We rushed awfully well," Michigan State Coach George Perles said. "(Lorenzo) got a lot of yards. They didn't come easy, though."

MICHIGAN STATE'S defense and kicking coverage also helped the Spartans overcome early mistakes and Iowa's own strong defensive effort. One of the early mistakes was a fumble by White late in the first half that resulted in the Hawkeyes' final score of the day.

"It was a crucial mistake for us, but we overcame it," McAllister said of the fumble.

The performance of McAllister Saturday was nothing like the Spartans' game with Iowa in 1985, in which he threw for 275 yards. But the quarterback was not concerned with passing statistics, just victory.

"It just happened that way today, where the running game overcame the passing game," he said. "The run was working really well. We don't go for (statistics), we go for the win."

The Iowa defense keyed on McAllister and thwarted his offensive skills, however, it was unable to stop the rushing of White.

Michigan State looked like a new team in the second half. The Spartan defense allowed the Iowa offense only two first downs in the second half, and the offense scored the game-winning touchdown on McAllister's second completed pass of the game.

"We deserved this victory," McAllister said.

Ex-Olympian has a message

By Scott Wingert
The Daily Iowan

In a recent letter to Iowa wrestling Coach Dan Gable, former Iowa State teammate Ben Peterson closed with a simple line — "You still inspire me."

The pair became national heroes together at the 1972 Olympics in Munich, West Germany, capturing two of the United States' three gold medals in freestyle wrestling.

It was the culmination of two historic wrestling careers and for Peterson, the purpose had very little to do with takedowns and reversals.

"When I asked it (wrestling) to satisfy my needs, it didn't," Peterson said. "It was in junior high when I accepted Jesus Christ as my personal savior, and my faith grew as I learned wrestling."

PETERSON, 37, now coaches wrestling at Maranatha Baptist College in Watertown, Wis. He was in Iowa City this weekend to bring his message of faith and hope to parishioners and friends at Faith Baptist Church. He also worked out with the Iowa wrestling team Saturday morning.

Though Gable and Peterson do not see each other often anymore, Peterson said Gable's intensity and dedication in life still help guide his current pursuits. Gable also said his association with Peterson has had a great impact on his relationships with people.

"He inspires me, too," Gable said. "The way he runs his life, his discipline — it's had a bearing on my life."

"Ben has always been a sincere athlete and human being. It's very interesting to me how he's always been able to be so dedicated to Christ. The whole Peterson family is special to me."

PETERSON'S OLDER brother, John, captured a silver medal in Munich and won the United States' only gold medal four years later in Montreal. Ben just missed in Montreal, winning the silver medal.

"The experts said the Petersons weren't supposed to do that well at Munich or Montreal," Gable said. "They were not that experienced at the world level, but their intensity and dedication carried them."

"I think we were too naive to hear it (the predictions) or accept it," Peterson said. "I remember watching that flag and listening to the national anthem. Here I was, getting all this glory because I won those silly wrestling matches."

RAISED ON A FARM near Comstock, Wis., Peterson said his family lived by the principle that they would have to give an account of themselves to the Lord at some time. He said he felt empty and confused after his first national title, and that peace did not come until he resolved his internal conflict.

"When I truly believed," Peterson said, "I wanted to wrestle to thank him. I read the Bible to thank him."

"I've seen a lot of people sell themselves out to sports. I see our people empty, frustrated and struggling with the same things I did. When kids come to me, I tell them to ask themselves what their name (life) means — what have they gained."

Iowa grabs first at Minnesota meet

By Eric J. Hess
The Daily Iowan

The 20th-ranked Iowa Hawkeyes, sparked by strong race-ending performances, topped a 20-team field to win the Minnesota-GBS Invitational Saturday.

Iowa women's cross country Coach Jerry Hassard, with a half-relief, half-overjoyed tone in his voice, said the Hawkeyes won the 5,000-meter meet at Les Bolstad University of Minnesota Golf Course in the final 600 meters.

Iowa junior Renee Doyle slipped by Minnesota's Eileen Donaghy to finish in second place overall behind champion Sammie Resh of Nebraska.

"Minnesota really had us beat with 600 meters to go, and quite soundly," Hassard said.

Cross Country

JEANNE KRUCKEBERG and Rachele Roberts finished eighth and 10th individually, darting past as many as 10 runners within the last one-tenth of the race.

The Hawkeyes, with 56 points, defeated Minnesota (63), Nebraska (85), Eastern Michigan (121), Iowa State (196), Wisconsin-La Crosse (235), St. Thomas (250), Virginia Tech (252), Missouri (252), Wisconsin Parkside (265) and 10 other teams in the 224-runner field.

Stadiums near empty for scab games

NEW YORK (UPI) — Football fans gave "replacement" football a thundering no-confidence vote Sunday, leaving almost 700,000 seats empty in cheerless NFL stadiums across the nation.

The league scheduled 13 games in the 13th day of the players strike, putting teams largely composed of non-union players on the field. Play was often sloppy and chaotic, but the most dramatic absence was the roar of the crowd. Stadiums usually packed to capacity ranged from half-filled to nearly abandoned and some of the league's longest-running sellout streaks crumbled.

Based on the league's own announced figures, which sometimes seemed high, only 220,828 spectators attended the games, one-third of capacity, leaving 686,227 seats empty. Teams averaged only 16,987 fans per game as opposed to the 58,000 they averaged the first two weeks of the season.

Announced attendance ranged from half-filled Mile-High Stadium of 38,494 in Denver, where 126 straight sellouts ended for the Broncos, to 4,074 in Philadelphia. At the Silverdome in Pontiac, Mich., only 4,991 were announced for the Detroit Lions' home opener, leaving 75,719 empty seats. The Los Angeles Raiders had more than 81,000 vacancies. In Orchard Park, N.Y., the Buffalo Bills drew only 9,860, some wearing paper bags over their heads.

Bona both sucked wind at 7-3. North Carolina State Athletic Director Jim Valvano was up to Trilk's caliber this week and also went 8-2.

That brings us to this week's contest. For those of you simpletons who don't already know the rules or for some insane reason have forgotten them here we go. Drop off no more than five ballots at Communications Center Room 111 by noon Thursday. If they are not in by then, DI managing editor Chris Wessling will come to your house and pull the wings off of several flies while you eat your dinner. Be sure to cricle the winner of the tiebreaker game or it will not count.

As a parting shot, "Magic" Trilk has blessed us with his predictions on the baseball playoffs.

Davidson's Hawkeyes gain weekend sweep

By G. Hammond-Kunke
The Daily Iowan

The No. 8-ranked Iowa field hockey team had just enough to get the job done this weekend, notching two barnburner-type wins against Big Ten rivals Michigan and Purdue in West Lafayette, Ind.

The Hawkeyes squeaked past the Wolverines, winning 3-2 in two overtimes, and defeated the Boilermakers 2-1.

Iowa, 9-3, dominated play against 20th-ranked Michigan (Saturday) and Purdue (Friday) despite having to eek out both victories in thriller style.

Erica Richards

Davidson said. "The Michigan player beat two defenders and we had a series of errors in front of the goal."

Davidson, who wasn't exactly pleased with the two victories, would like to see Iowa shooting the ball with much more force.

"We can't rely on Liz (Tchou) to score all the goals," Davidson said. "She's the only person on the team with a hard shot. We need goals from our forward line. If we put in one-tenth of our shots it would be different. We have too many wimpy shots."

"In this situation winning is not enough. We were by far the better team, but we are not capitalizing on our opportunities. We need an awful lot of work in our (inexperienced) forward line. We missed open nets two or three times this afternoon."

Field Hockey

AGAINST PURDUE, Melissa Sanders netted two clutch goals in the final 6:20 to stun upset-minded Purdue. The second goal came with :20 left in regulation. Both scores were unassisted.

Iowa, which outshot the Wolverines 44-3 for the game and 13-1 in the first half, trailed 1-0 before Elizabeth Tchou knotted the match with a clean, hard shot early in the second half.

"It was an unbelievable type of game," Iowa Coach Judith Davidson said. "We totally dominated the game and then we make one mistake and they score a goal. We just couldn't seem to get our corners working, despite having plenty of chances."

Tchou's team-leading 15th goal of the year put Iowa ahead 2-1 with 8:30 remaining, but Iowa's defense collapsed late in the game, allowing the Wolverines to tie the score 2-2.

"OUR DEFENSE DID not play the ball well on the tying goal,"

DAVIDSON DID MAKE a switch in the front line by playing defense person Aileen Trendler at right wing.

"Trendler came on like gangbusters," Davidson said. "She's very potent, very fast and she brings the ball down the right side really quick. Her defense still needs to catch up with her attacking skills."

"Diane Loosbrock has also been playing very well for us and Michelle Murgatroyd was very steady. Michelle played really hard and took some tough hits from sticks and from the ball."

Wilson, Wohlford lead Hawks with doubles division crown

By Tom Dickerson
The Daily Iowan

Catherine Wilson and Pennie Wohlford of the Iowa women's tennis team combined to win the doubles championship bracket at the Midwest Invitational in Evanston, Ill., this weekend.

Wilson and Wohlford, not among the top four seeds before doubles competition began, upset the No. 3-seeded team from Kansas in the finals, 6-4, 1-6, 6-3.

"It was a really good win," Iowa Coach Micki Schillig said. "There was a lot of good tennis and a lot of good points (in the match)."

The doubles triumph was the second for Wilson-Wohlford in two invitational attempts, the other coming last month at the Iowa Invitational.

"We went out and played our game," Wilson said about the three-set victory. "I felt we were being really aggressive. We were really attacking the net."

AFTER DROPPING THE second set badly, Wilson said there weren't any major changes in the game plan going into the decisive set.

"I think we just lost our concentration in the second set; we missed a lot of serve returns," Wilson said. "We were very intense in the third set. It came down to who wanted it

Schillig said Wilson and Wohlford lost the second set because "they tried to close it (the match) out too fast." She said the team got back in the rhythm of the first set in the final set.

Wilson said the key to the win was just "cutting off the net and finding the openings." Wilson-Wohlford won five matches in the invitational and improved to 8-0 overall.

In other doubles action, Iowa's Liz Canzoneri and Madeleine Willard advanced to the semifinals before being defeated by a team from Kansas, 6-1, 6-4. Canzoneri-Willard won three matches to get to the semis, defeating teams from Notre Dame (6-3, 6-0), Tennessee (6-3, 4-6, 6-0) and another Tennessee team (6-3, 6-3).

THE HAWKEYES' OTHER doubles team — Susan Evans and Patty DeSimone — were ousted early, losing to a Kansas team in the first round of consolations, 7-6, 6-1.

"All of our doubles teams are really working well together," Schillig said.

In singles action, Iowa lost six of its seven entries in the first two rounds. Canzoneri was one of them, but was able to come back and capture the singles consolation by winning four consecutive matches. She swept a Tennessee player in the finals, 6-1, 6-2.

"She had some really good wins in that," Schillig said of Canzoneri's performance in the consolations.

Willard was the lone Hawkeye who survived the first two rounds of singles competition, beating Sabrina Cherinchella of Tennessee, 3-6, 6-4, 6-3, and Tanya Breitrag of Minnesota, 6-3, 6-4.

But Willard was beaten 6-3, 6-0, in the third round by the No. 1 seed, Cece Cahill of Notre Dame.

"I saw a lot of good, positive things," Schillig said of Iowa's performance. "There are a lot of things we still need to work on, though."

"We need to work on our put-away shots. We're doing fine setting up the shot, but when we have the cake shot, we're missing it."

Not to diminish what Iowa accomplished over the weekend, Schillig said, "I think people were pretty surprised by us."

Iowa will travel to Lincoln, Neb., Oct. 8-10 to play in the Nebraska Invitational.

Butzer fires 2-under-par 71 to boost Iowa to 12th place

By Dan Millea
The Daily Iowan

The Iowa women's golf team got a great final round from Amy Butzer Saturday to salvage a 12th-place finish in the 18-team Dick McGwire Invitational in Albuquerque, N.M.

Florida won the tournament with a 906 score, followed by Tulsa (908) and New Mexico (909).

The Hawkeyes started slow in the highly-competitive, three-day meet, lining up in 16th place after Thursday's opening round. But thanks mainly to Butzer's 2-under par 71 Saturday, Iowa jumped past several teams.

"The 71 round was the one that helped us that last day," Iowa Coach Diane Thomason said. "We wouldn't have done much without that."

It wasn't difficult to see the difference Butzer made. The team shot a 325 Thursday and a 323 Friday with Butzer turning in an 81 and an 83. But with her 71 Saturday the team score dipped to 312, and Iowa jumped past three schools.

"I FELT GOOD ABOUT that finish," Thomason said. "Going into the last day we had five strokes ahead of us by about six strokes, and we caught three of them."

Iowa's final round score was lower

Diane Thomason

Women's Golf

than Saturday's effort by Southern California, Brigham Young and Arizona.

Thomason said that was encouraging, considering the strength of those teams. But she pointed out that without consistency Iowa will not be able to compete with the likes of Florida and Tulsa.

"The last day, we beat teams like Arizona, USC and BYU. That's a confidence builder when you go out and prove to yourself that you can play with those people," Thomason said. "Hopefully now we can get to the point where we'll be able to put three rounds like that together."

BUTZER HAD THE BEST overall score for Iowa with an 81-83-71—235, good for 26th place individually. Stacey Arnold was next with an 82-78-81—241, a performance that satisfied Thomason.

"Week after week she's been in a situation where she's playing No. 1 or No. 2, and she's handled the pressure real well," Thomason said of Arnold.

Shirley Trier tied Arnold with a 79-83-79—241, followed by Kelley Brooke (83-79-81—243) and Kris Heatherly (83-83-88—254).

Complete team scores and standings from the meet were: Florida (906), Tulsa (908), New Mexico (909), Southern California (928), Brigham Young (937), Arizona (940), New Mexico State (945), San Diego State (945), Furman (949), Louisiana State (949), Texas Christian (957), Iowa (960), Iowa State (963), Texas Tech (968), Southern Methodist (973), Wyoming (993), Long Beach State (998) and Colorado State (1,070).

Hawkeye spikers lose twice

By Anne Upson
The Daily Iowan

Iowa Coach Sandy Stewart stressed this year is one of "learning and rebuilding" as her team lost twice this weekend.

Iowa faced Western Michigan Friday in front of 14,000 — the largest crowd on record for a college volleyball match — only to be defeated in three straight games, 15-11, 15-3, 15-4.

The Hawkeyes played well in the first game but faltered as the match progressed.

Volleyball

"We were neck and neck during the first game," Stewart said. "We showed great intensity. But we lost our intensity and were beaten easily in the second and third games."

THE BRONCOS ALSO had a height advantage over the Hawkeyes.

"Their middle hitter is six-foot and both of the outside hitters are above six feet," Stewart said. "We were intimidated."

Comparatively, the tallest Iowa player on the line was 5-foot-10.

Another factor to take into consideration is Western Michigan's setter Andrea Pedrick. Pedrick, a senior from Scarborough, Ontario, was a member of the 1984 Canadian Olympic team and a member of the 1986 Canadian National team.

She has more experience than Iowa's freshman setter Janet Moylan, who is new to Big Ten competition.

According to Stewart, the Hawkeyes played much better against Notre Dame despite losing in three games, 15-10, 15-8, 15-9.

IOWA HAD 70 DIGS in the three games; Ellen Mullarkey had 21 kills, Toni Zehr had 10 kills and Ginger Lorentson had a kill percentage of .667.

Despite the losses, Stewart said she is optimistic about the upcoming game against Drake Wednesday.

Tigers win 1-0; claim AL East

By Richard Shook
United Press International

DETROIT — The Detroit Tigers completed a dramatic week-long comeback to capture the American League Eastern Division title Sunday by defeating the Toronto Blue Jays 1-0.

The victory vaults the Tigers into the American League Championship Series against the Minnesota Twins.

Larry Herndon homered in the second inning and Frank Tanana pitched a six-hitter to give the Tigers a sweep of the three-game series.

Toronto's collapse was as remarkable as the Tigers' comeback. The Blue Jays, who led Detroit by 3½ games entering the final week of the season, lost their last seven games. All the losses were to Detroit and third-place Milwaukee.

"A LOT OF TEAMS would have given up," Tigers shortstop Alan Trammell said. "We didn't. We had our backs against the wall several times. We always came through. If we can pull the rest of this off, it'll be a great story."

Detroit, which won the World Series in 1984 under Manager Sparky Anderson, will begin the AL playoffs Wednesday at Minnesota against the Twins, who lost eight of 12 regular-season games against the Tigers.

"To put it in perspective, it's very tough," Toronto third baseman Rance Mulliniks said. "All I can say is the Tigers are a great ball club. They showed a lot of class."

"They outplayed us. When they needed a hit they got it. When they needed an out they got it. They're the better ballclub this year. They deserve to be in the playoffs."

HERNDON, A SHY man who dislikes talking about himself and his accomplishments, lined a 2-1 pitch from Jimmy Key, 17-8, over the left-field fence for the Tigers' lone run.

"It was a fastball right where I wanted to put it," Key said. "It got up in the wind and went out. If I had to, I'd do it again."

"It was a fastball inside," Herndon said. "I thought it had a chance, but I didn't watch it. I had my head down going around first base. I heard the crowd, and when I looked up, I didn't see Bell throwing it back in."

HERNDON HIT NINE home runs and drove in 47 runs this season, hitting almost exclusively against left-handed pitching. He appeared in 89 games.

Frank Tanana

Watkins

might want to throw a few more passes Watkins' way. But Watkins disregards that theory.

"If Dan's throwing the ball and it's getting caught I don't think it matters, just like the same situation of the ball being thrown to me. I don't care who's throwing it as long as it gets thrown," Watkins said.

"He's a friend of mine and I'd like to see him succeed. I hope he gets the job. Besides that, it's a team effort."

Watkins had a colorful high school career. He had more than 2,600 all-purpose yards as a senior, 165 career receptions and 1,703 career receiving yards.

He was also selected to the "Super 11" prep team by the Los Angeles Times, and was tabbed an honorable mention all-American by USA Today.

But his high school honors couldn't help the Hawkeyes get past the Spartans Saturday.

"Any time you play hard and come out with a loss is kind of frustrating," Watkins said. "Iowa played hard and played tough, but we just didn't execute some of the right plays."

Runners

weekend, but Hassard changed the plans, opting for the meet at Minnesota. Texas (75) eventually breezed to victory at the meet, with UCLA (114), Stanford (115), Brigham Young (123), California-Irvine (141) and Clemson (158) following.

THE CHANGE TO the Minnesota meet apparently paid off, with the Hawkeyes defeating the 17th-ranked Golden Gophers on their home turf and 18th-ranked Nebraska. In the process the team improved many of its times.

The fourth and fifth finishers for Iowa were Kim Schneckloth (21st) and Tricia Kiraly (22nd). Other Hawkeyes running were Janeth Salazar (40th), Wendy Bare (46th), Tami Hoskins (48th) and Jennifer Moore (146th).

"I thought Kim ran very well considering she has just returned to practice and competition," Hassard said. It was Schneckloth's first meet since Iowa's first meet on Sept. 12 at Finkbine Golf Course.

The Hawkeyes will now take two weeks off to prepare for one of the toughest meets in the country next to the NCAA meet in November — the Virginia Invitational in Charlottesville, Va.

"I still see room for improvement," Hassard said. But, he added, at least the team is on track.

Kruckeberg said the team is in the right frame of mind for the Virginia Invitational.

"With our win, we're going to be looking forward to going to Virginia," she said.

Spartans

"They had an excellent defense," Iowa offensive lineman Bob Kratch said. "Their schemes, twisting schemes, their stunts. They're just an aggressive team, and they probably wanted it more than we did."

IRONICALLY, IT was an Iowa player — linebacker Brad Quast — who led everybody in tackles with 17, while the Spartans' Timothy Moore registered 12.

One of Moore's tackles was a devastating 10-yard sack on McGwire, who threw a scare into Iowa fans as he lay on the ground for several minutes before being helped off.

Fry inserted quarterback Chuck Hartlieb, who proceeded to complete 6 of 6 passes for 71 yards in an attempt to bring Iowa back from a 19-14 deficit.

"It's a hip flexor," Fry said of McGwire's injury. "He got a helmet right on the hip." McGwire, though, said he would be ready to play against Wisconsin Saturday.

Hartlieb said going in on short notice didn't bother him.

"I want to be in the field any time I possibly can," he said. "I feel confident out there. If you give me time, I would have been able to move it down. The clock just ran out on me."

IOWA NOTES

• Statistically, the Hawkeyes led the Spartans in 10 team categories heading into the game, but Michigan State's play changed that... Iowa's streak of 14 consecutive games with at least one interception came to a halt Saturday as Michigan State quarterback Bobby McAllister went 2-10 for 13 yards with one touchdown and no interceptions.

Peterson

THE PETERSON brothers run a summer wrestling camp in Wisconsin, and eleven years ago they added a Bible study to the format. Peterson said he was unsure whether or not the kids would accept the Bible study, but found they were thrilled about it.

"We did it in a patient way and the kids took off on it," Peterson said.

Peterson is upset that more people fail to read the Bible, a book he calls "man's owner's manual". He said the nation's current laws regarding religious education strip teachers of the power to teach kids something they crave.

"I have this crazy idea that separation of church and state means separation of morals and standards of education," Peterson said.

Hopper featured at UI Museum of Art

After a long closing for remodeling that was complicated by a burst steam pipe, the UI Museum of Art will open its doors tomorrow with an exhibition of the paintings of Edward Hopper.

Hopper's work may not be in the mind's eye of everyone who reads this, but those who make the effort to see the exhibition will come away with a new set of images that may haunt them — the associations brought on by the paintings certainly won't leave.

Hopper was born in 1882 and died in 1967. He sold an oil painting in the famous Armory Show of 1913 and then didn't sell another for 10 years. He earned his living as a commercial artist.

After 1924 his paintings and etching had become popular enough that he could give up his commercial work and concentrate on his oils and watercolors. In 1955 he received the Gold Medal of the National Institute of Arts and Letters. This honor comes to very few.

IT IS A DEBATABLE question

— the response a work of art brings about in the person of the viewer. For many modern works such as those that often stand in front or behind buildings, I think the birds accumulating statement adequately expresses my own view.

Hopper? — I first saw his work during an early visit to the Art Institute in Chicago. It was one of those "don't get separated from the group, don't talk while Miss For-dyce is talking" visits. I was a fourth grade draftee being acclerated at the will of the adults.

conveniently near enough to study. Whenever I return, I seek out "Nighthawks" and renew our acquaintance.

"Nighthawks" looks in on an all-night diner with a large cigar on its sign, a counterman and a man in a gray snap-brim hat sitting with a woman. The picture is dark and empty, except for the warm yellow glow of the light from the interior of the nearly empty diner. It is a mystery why I like it.

Hopper's paintings concern the works of man with its buildings, highways, bridges, theaters, roads, gas stations, lunch stands, and lighthouses. People are mostly included. In his paintings he contrasts bright, hard light and the looming shadows as they fall across the planes and corners of dormers, porches and gables.

Arts/entertainment

The UI Museum of Art will open all of its galleries Tuesday, Oct. 6, at 10 a.m. Several exhibitions such as "Edward Hopper: City, Country, Town;" "American Regionalist Prints;" "Postwar Abstraction in America: An Exhibition from the Permanent Collection" and "Video and Language: Video as Language." The gallery was closed for an extensive renovation project which was complicated by a burst steam pipe.

Video and Language: Video as Language a three-part exhibition examining language and sign systems and exploring how video acts as a channel for these systems, is one of four exhibits on display at the UI Museum of Art. The exhibit is the work of Hans Breder. Most of the works in the exhibition use video's inherent ability to deliver visual and auditory information simultaneously.

Cellist Marcy Rosen will present a recital as part of Hancher Auditorium's Young Concert Artists Series at 8 p.m. Oct. 7 in Clapp Recital Hall. Rosen will perform "Bach's Suite No. 6 in D major" for solo cello, Schumann's "Fantasy Pieces" and Grieg's "Sonata in A minor." Pianist Susan Walters will join Rosen for the Schumann and Grieg performances. The recital is worth attending for the Bach alone.

The UI Playwrights Workshop will present Magician Reversed, a new play by workshop member Judy GeBauer, at 8 p.m. Oct. 8 and 9, and at 2 p.m. and 8 p.m. Oct. 10 in the Theatre Building, Theatre B. Spiritualism and obsession come together in this story that explores the conflict between the desire for power and the need for intimacy.

The Center for New Music will perform at 8 p.m. Oct. 11 in Clapp Recital Hall. Richard Hervig's "Chamber Music for six players" and John Cage's "Constructions in Metal" will be performed along with "Douze Notations" by Pierre Boulez and the world premiere performance of the "Quartet for Flutes" by Michael Eckert of the UI music theory faculty.

The New England Ragtime Ensemble will celebrate the music of Scott Joplin and other ragtime composers in a concert at 3 p.m. Oct. 11 in Hancher Auditorium. The ensemble has been greeted with sell-out crowds at Tanglewood, Blossom, Ravinia, Ambler, Wolf Trap, Meadow Brook, and other summer festivals and at major universities and arts centers from coast to coast.

Heart Answers

Cardiac Catheterization

Catheterization is a procedure commonly used to determine if coronary arteries supplying blood to the heart muscle are narrowed by atherosclerosis. During a catheterization, a team of doctors inserts the tip of a long, thin, sterile tube called a catheter into a small incision in an artery in the leg or arm and carefully pushes it in until the tip reaches the place in the heart or aorta the doctor wants to study. The aorta is the main artery carrying blood from the heart to the body. The coronary arteries branch off the aorta. Normally, dye is injected into the coronary arteries through the catheter, which makes it possible to determine through fluoroscope x-rays if coronary arteries have been narrowed by atherosclerosis.

Town goes nuts during goober fest

SYLVESTER, Ga. (UPI) — Troubled towns search for paths of departure to flee the turmoil and abandon their problems for at least a while. For folks in Sylvester, their escape route is paved with peanut butter and grape jelly. Lots of it.

But this is no school lunch run amok. Instead, it is billed as the world's largest peanut butter and jelly sandwich, a colossal concoction viewed as little more than a giant gooey mess anywhere but in Sylvester — the self-annointed "peanut capital of the world" — where it is discussed with a good bit of heartfelt pride.

THE GIANT SANDWICH, Sylvester's shot at international glory in the Guinness Book of World Records, is the most intriguing attraction of this year's 24th annual Georgia Peanut Festival. And this entire October week is an opportunity for a little fun for Sylvester, the seat of a county beset in recent years by high unemployment and weather-beaten crops.

"It's nice to put the bad things behind us for a week and just let the good things shine for a while," said Angie Hoover, a festival organizer. "We want people to see our good side."

"For a week each year, Sylvester turns into a real party town."

LANCÔME, PARIS, SAYS:

“DOWN WITH PUFFINESS. UP WITH AN IMPROVED LOOK AROUND YOUR EYES!”

INTRODUCING... FORTE-VITAL POUR LES YEUX FIRMING EYE CREME

PARIS

YOUR GIFT WITH ANY $10 LANCÔME PURCHASE.

ON THE BEAUTY CIRCUIT...THE LANCÔME "LA BEAUTY POUCHETTE" MAKEUP POUCH ZIPS OPEN TO REVEAL SIX WORLD-FAMOUS BEAUTIFIERS.

The Lancôme signature-style makeup pouch is a stand-out, designed in black-on-white rayon canvas. This piece de resistance goes the distance with six fashion-perfect Lancôme portables:

- Nutribel Nourishing Hydrating Emulsion, 4 fl. oz. Provides daily nourishment and moisture while renewing elasticity. Your skin will thrive on it.
- Effacil Liquid, 1.9 fl. oz. Non-oily eye makeup remover.
- Creme-Gel Fixant Protective Styling Gel For Hair, Net Wt. .65 oz. A 100% alcohol-free creme-gel, formulated with special sun filters that defend hair from sun damage. Acts as a superb, everyday styling gel—in the sun and out, all year long.
- Hydra-Riche Hydrating Creme LipColour, Net Wt. .02 oz. A creamy-rich, hydrating formula that moisture protects with every stroke of colour. Conditions lips with exclusive hydrating agents. Protects with sunscreen.
- Immencils Gentle Lash Thickener, Net Wt. .33 oz. Conditions as it thickens and colours. Gives lashes a full, luxurious look. Won't smudge, flake or clump.
- Magie Noire Pencil Dabber, 1.5 cc. The Source of Enchantment...at every pulse point.

Offer good while supply lasts.

At long last...realistic help in an eye creme so light, it can be worn day and night, under makeup or alone, to help reduce signs of ageing and puffiness.

FORTE-VITAL Firming Eye Creme, with its unique Bio-protectone complex, works from the outside in to firm and tone the delicate contours around eyes.

See Eyeproof:

- The area around the eyes looks and feels more firm.
- Undereye circles look less apparent.
- It protects delicate skin around the eyes which is more sensitive to fatigue, stress and environmental aggressions.

Ask a Lancôme Beauty Advisor about FORTE-VITAL POUR LES YEUX Firming Eye Creme*. A beautiful eye-opener for the best outlook possible. Only from Lancôme, Paris!
