Alfred Landon

Alf Landon dies at 100 in sleep Oldest living presidential candidate active to the end

Los Angeles Times

Death came Monday to Alfred M. "Alf" Landon, the plain-spoken Kansas Republican who lost the 1936 presidential election in an unprecedented landslide but won the enduring respect and affection of his countrymen with his grace and dignity in defeat.

Landon was 100 years old. He died at his home in the elegant Colonial-style mansion he built on the outskirts of Topeka, Kan., in 1937.

Physically vigorous until well-advanced in his 10th decade, Landon had been in declining health since the spring of 1979.

He was hospitalized for several days in May 1979, after experiencing an irregular heartbeat, and in January 1980, after experiencing a slight dizzy spell. In March 1980, he was afflicted with a painful skin condition called shingles but remained active around his 14-room home, kept a hand in his oil and radio enterprises and maintained his lifelong and lively interest in politics.

HE WAS LAST hospitalized in September for treatment of a gallstone and bronchitis and released on Saturday.

At least part of his interest in politics was very personal and familial — his youngest daughter, Nancy Landon Kassebaum, was elected to the U.S. Senate in 1978. He maintained that he played no role in her election — in fact discouraged her because of the physical strains of campaigning — and that he had little political influence with her, never offering her political counsel.

But he was obviously proud of his Republican daughter, the only woman currently in the Senate. "Nancy," he said shortly after her election, "was a whole lot better campaigner than I was."

It was precisely that kind of human and humorous style that endeared Landon to public and politicians alike.

AND, ALTHOUGH he had not been a political power for years, he was sought out by politicians and reporters for advice and analysis right up to the last months of his life.

Reading as many as a dozen newspapers daily, listening to radio and watching television, he was always up on the latest political developments and liked nothing better than discussing them with reporters or politicians by the hour.

111 hurt in Amtrak train derailment

Mistake in switching suspected

By Lisa Byrd
United Press International

RUSSELL, Iowa — A wrongly opened railroad switch may have caused an Amtrak passenger train to veer onto the wrong set of tracks and derail Monday injuring up to 111 passengers and crew members, a Federal Railroad Administration spokesman said.

Amtrak spokesman Cliff Black said 11 of 14 cars on the east-bound California Zephyr derailed along with both engines. There were 248 passengers and 22 crew members aboard the train when it derailed at 11:30 a.m. CDT Monday, he said.

National Transportation Safety Board and FRA investigators arrived at the scene late Monday afternoon to probe the crash site beside a horse pasture, while many of Russell's 600 residents looked on.

"WE UNDERSTAND that a switch may have been left open, we're looking into that. If indeed a switch was left open we will determine why," said Tom Simpson, an FRA spokesman in Washington.

"Our investigators have been there and will remain there until the investigative work is done. We're looking at the operation of the railroad at the time of the accident, interrogating crew members, eyewitnesses, passengers and those injured and we're examining the severity of injuries," he said.

He added all 22 crew members were tested for drug use after

Rescue workers walk beside the wreck of Amtrak's California Zephyr Monday in Russell, Iowa. Up to 111 passengers and crew members were injured in the derailment, which Federal Railroad Administration officials believe may have occurred because of an open switch.

the accident, under a FRA policy requiring drug testing of employees involved in any accident resulting in damages of more than $500,000. Results of the tests will not be available for about three weeks, Simpson said.

Another Amtrak spokesman, John Jacobson, said none of the passenger cars overturned, but he said the train struck a Burlington Northern railroad bridge crane.

"IT'S NOT CLEAR whether it struck the crane after derailing, or whether striking the crane caused it to derail," Jacobson said in Washington.

Nicholas Creo of Denver, who suffered a bump on the head in the accident, said he was awakened from a nap by a loud grinding noise.

"I threw myself down in the seat in front of me and wedged myself in as hard as I could," Creo said. "I was waiting for the train to turn over, which fortunately didn't happen. You could hear the train scraping on the rocks. You could tell it was off the tracks."

Sheriff's officials said most of the injured were taken by ambulance to hospitals in Chariton and Des Moines but only five people were admitted to hospitals.

"Most of the injuries were broken bones, mostly broken legs," said Rich Ruble, a member of the Lucas County emergency-response unit.

DON MUSELMAN, another member of the emergency-response team, said the most severe accident he noticed was "a girl (who) was messed up pretty bad — she had injuries of the calf and thigh and had a lot of pain."

Local woman wins in Lottery Spins to $5,000 after cashing in losing tickets

By Joseph Levy
The Daily Iowan

Sometimes it pays to be a loser. Just ask Iowa City resident Patty Reuter.

She won $5,000 in the Iowa lottery last week by cashing in on five losing lottery tickets.

"A couple of years ago I told somebody I was going to win some money doing this," Reuter said.

"My husband always told me the odds of losing were so much greater than winning. I told him, 'but mine aren't.'"

Reuter was one of four Iowans who "spun the wheel" on the Iowa Lottery's Jackpot Show Thursday Oct. 8. Each week, four contestants are chosen by a drawing. Reuter and about 225,000 others entered the drawing by mailing in five losing instant lottery tickets.

Top prize on the wheel was the lottery jackpot of $2.2 million, but Reuter said she was still happy to accept the smallest possible prize of $5,000.

"I'm not really disappointed," she said. "Five thousand dollars is still a lot of money to me, but I guess you don't think about only winning $5,000."

"I had the $2.2 million spent," she said. "I had a new house built and I had my resignation written up."

REUTER IS A systems coordinator at Crouse Transfer and Storage, 3001 Industrial Park Road.

Her husband, Gene Reuter, said he has no plans for spending the money.

"It's $5,000 we didn't have before," he said. "As far as spending, I'll leave that to her."

Bush declares candidacy; promises no raise in taxes

By Robert Shogan
Los Angeles Times

HOUSTON — Vice President George Bush officially declared his candidacy for the Republican presidential nomination here Monday, calling on Americans to "remember who we are," vowing not to raise their taxes, and promising them "a taxpayer's bill of rights."

Addressing about 2,000 applauding supporters here where he launched his political career two decades ago, Bush, flanked by his wife, children and grandchildren, touched only briefly on specific problems confronting the nation. For the most part he sought in the sober, 30-minute speech to establish a lofty tone for his candidacy, an objective that appeared to reflect his status as the front-runner in the struggle to become the GOP nominee.

THE SPEECH, which Bush read almost word for word from a text prepared for a TelePromter, also reflected the 63-year-old Bush's reputation as a pragmatist and centrist since nearly every specific point he made was balanced by a counterpoint.

"We must continue — and accelerate — our efforts to cut the federal budget deficit," he said. But he also told his audience that he would not try to break the impasse over the budget deficit "by breaking you. I am not going to raise your taxes — period."

Similarly Bush declared that he did not hate government and was proud of his own long career in public service.

But he complained that "for too

Forum to be held Thursday

The candidates for the Nov. 3 Iowa City Council election will participate in a forum sponsored by the League of Women Voters, The Iowa City Press Citizen and The Iowa City Senior Center from 7-8:30 p.m. Thursday in the Assembly Room at the Senior Center.

Each candidate will give a two-minute opening statement and will have one minute to respond to each question. Members of the audience may submit written questions addressed to specific candidates. The questions will end at 8:10 p.m. to give each candidate a chance to make a three-minute closing statement.

The public is invited to attend the forum. The program will be videotaped for later use on a local cable channel.

Japanese scientists to visit

Twenty-one members of the Japan Antibiotic Research Association will visit the UI College of Medicine today as guests of the UI Department of Internal Medicine Division of Clinical Epidemiology.

Morimasa Yagisawa, editor of The Journal of Antibiotics, and the other scientists will tour the epidemiology and computer facilities, as well as the hi-tech inpatient units and diagnostic centers in the UI Hospitals.

The visiting members have diverse backgrounds in clinical medicine, chemical engineering, microbiology and molecular biology, pharmacology and organic chemistry.

UI Division of Clinical Epidemiology and Professor of Medicine Richard Wenzel will meet the Japanese delegation and host their visit.

The delegation has just attended international infectious diseases and antibiotic meetings in New York City and will visit three other American medical centers before returning to Japan.

Resident joins directors

Iowa City resident Larry Betenbender was elected to the board of directors of Families, Inc., the agency's executives announced this week.

Families, Inc., of West Branch, Iowa, is a home-based family counseling agency, providing service to about 300 families in 10 Iowa counties, including Johnson County, each year.

Betenbender is a systems programmer at UI Weeg Computing Center.

UI conducts hearing tests

The UI Department of Speech Pathology and Audiology will conduct free hearing screenings from 8 a.m. until noon on Saturday Oct. 17 at the Wendell Johnson Speech & Hearing Center, Hawkins Drive. The hearing screenings are open to the public.

The hearing screenings will indicate whether or not a person's hearing is within normal ranges. People with hearing problems will receive appropriate referrals for additional testing. For more information, call Diane Niebuhr at 335-8743.

Kemp to visit Iowa City

Presidential candidate Rep. Jack Kemp, R-N.Y., has changed his schedule of appearances in Iowa City Wednesday morning and afternoon.

Kemp will address UI students and faculty members from 11:30 to 12:15 p.m. in Phillips Hall Room 100.

Kemp will also tour the Proctor and Gamble Company, 2200 Lower Muscatine Rd., and address company employees from 1:30 to 2:30 p.m.

Local firm in truck rodeo

Hawkeye Food Systems, Inc., Highway 6 West, Coralville, is one of 36 firms whose drivers will compete in the "Rodeo" Truck Driving Championship in Chicago next weekend.

Sponsored by the National-American Wholesale Grocers' Association and Ryder Truck, the event is designed to promote safety in food distribution trucking.

Hawkeye Food Systems employees Scott Karr and Randy Loan will represent the company in the competition.

Grant allows youth shelter to institute new program

By James Cahoy
The Daily Iowan

A $70,000 grant awarded to an Iowa City youth shelter will be used to establish a new program for juvenile offenders in the area, city officials announced last week.

Youth Homes Inc., an Iowa City organization which provides emergency shelter for battered and abused children, will use a grant awarded to it by the Juvenile Justice Advisory Council in Des Moines to set up an in-house detention program for Johnson County and surrounding area youths.

Youth Homes Director Bill McCarty said the program is designed to provide supervision for under age children who violate the law, but who the police do not want imprisoned. An under age child is considered to be 18 years old and under, according to the Iowa Code.

"IT'S BASICALLY for kids who are picked up by the police and have not appeared in court yet," McCarty said. "If the police don't feel the person needs secure detention, but see a need for more supervision, they would come under our program."

McCarty said the program consists of assigning a staff person from Youth Homes to monitor the juvenile through daily contact.

"The staff person will make about a half-a-dozen calls every day to make sure the child is home when they are supposed to be or in school," McCarty said. "It's basically a way to make sure they aren't doing anything they're not supposed to."

The program will be administered by Youth Homes, according to McCarty, but will be operated on a day-to-day basis by Johnson County United Action for Youth, 410 Iowa Ave. The organization subcontracted with Youth Homes for the program.

United Action for Youth will establish contracts with the youths and outline rules for them, McCarty said, adding he expects the program to serve about 50 kids every year.

The program was inspired, McCarty said, by a change in Iowa law which makes it illegal to hold youths in jail overnight, and by the lack of juvenile detention space in the area.

"The program was viewed as a good idea because of the change in the law," McCarty said. "Also, the closest juvenile detention center to Iowa City right now is Marion, and that is almost always full, as is our shelter. This provides police with another alternative."

Two Iowa City attorneys vie for District Court seat

By Joseph Levy
The Daily Iowan

Gov. Terry Branstad will appoint one of two Iowa City lawyers to sit on the bench of the Iowa Sixth District Court within the next month.

The two nominees for the judge position, Kristin Hibbs and Tom Hobart — both of whom are practicing Iowa City attorneys — were selected by a standing commission earlier this month to fill the vacancy of outgoing Judge Harold Swales of Belle Plaine, Iowa. Swales retired today.

The appointment, according to Sixth District Court Administrator Rick Clymer, will make Iowa City home to two of the 11 court judges. Judge Vern Robinson is also from Iowa City.

The sixth district consists of Johnson, Linn, Iowa, Benton, Jones and Tama counties.

Seven of the 11 judges reside in the Cedar Rapids metropolitan area, while the remaining judges represent the other four counties.

SIXTH DISTRICT Court Senior Judge William Eads said county representation is not an issue because the judges travel frequently from county to county.

"We travel back and forth," Eads said. "I am as much a Johnson County judge as I am a Linn County judge."

Eads, by virtue of his senior status in the court, headed the 11-member nominating commission.

The commission, under state law, consists of five attorneys selected for six-year terms by the bar association of the district and five laymen appointed by the governor.

One of the attorneys, L. Jay Stein of Iowa City, is a legal partner with Hibbs, which some government officials said could possibly represent a conflict of interest.

But Phil Stanhope, administrative assistant to Branstad, said it was questionable whether it was a conflict of interest.

"It's really up to interpretation," he said. "It isn't necessarily a conflict of interest."

STEIN SAID HIS affiliation with Hibbs did not inhibit his function on the commission because although Hibbs applied to be considered for the position, the commission had no say in choosing the 11 applicants.

"If I had thought it to be a conflict, I would have removed myself," he said.

Clymer said because most of the commission members reside in the Iowa City-Cedar Rapids area, the possibility of such a relationship between applicant and commission member is great.

"It happens fairly frequently," he said. "In a district this size that's going to happen more often than not."

A 34-year-old woman was found dead Sunday in her apartment in the 600 block of South Van Buren Street, according to police officials.

Cynthia Leaverton was found by Iowa City firefighters and the Johnson County Ambulance Service Sunday afternoon. She apparently suffered from epileptic seizures, according to police reports.

Leaverton lived in an apartment owned by Systems Unlimited, a group that provides services for the developmentally disabled.
Johnson County Coroner T.T.

Bozek was not available for comment on the cause of the death.

Report: A man was arrested Monday in the 2000 block of South Broadway Street after a woman told police that he was in her apartment and was "tearing up the place," according to police reports.

William Chamber, age and address unknown, was taken to Johnson County Jail after Iowa City police discovered there were four warrants for his arrest issued by Henry County officials.

Chambers was wanted in connection with four counts of fifth degree theft. He was released Monday after he posted $500 bond, according to a jail official.
Report: Members of the Kappa Sigma fraternity house, 724 N. Dubuque St., were charged Sunday with keeping a disorderly house, according to police reports.

The charge was brought after police observed subjects on the fraternity's roof discharging fireworks toward Dubuque Street. The incident occurred at 3:19 a.m., according to the reports.

Report: Two Iowa City men were arrested Sunday after a complainant told police that "someone broke into his apartment" in the 800 block of West Benton Street, according to police reports.

Patrick D. Moreland, 23, 1014 Oakcrest, was charged with criminal mischief, and Chuck Winston, 20, 716 Burlington St., was charged with public intoxication in connection with the incident.

An Iowa City man was charged with fourth degree theft Saturday in Johnson County District Court Monday in connection with an incident Oct. 10.

Stan Mayner Huston, 21, 79 Bon Aire Trailer Court, was caught allegedly taking five compact discs valuing about $80 from the K-Mart store on Hollywood Boulevard, according to court records.

Huston was released after posting $500 bond. A preliminary hearing was set for Oct. 29.

An Iowa City man was charged in Johnson County District Court with interference with official acts, public urination and public intoxication in connection with an incident which occurred Friday.

Christopher C. Tapper, 20, 800 W. Benton St., was observed by police urinating next to a parking lot near Mumm's and McDonald's at the corner of Riverside Drive and Benton Street. Tapper attempted to flee police, but fell in the McDonald's parking lot and was arrested, according to court records.

UI campus safety scrutinized

Areas with heavy brush, dim lighting examined

By Paula Roesler
The Daily Iowan

A safety walk last Friday night sent about 15 members of the UI Collegiate Associations Council and the Liberal Arts Student Association around campus in search of areas with heavy brush and dim lighting.

Four groups of walkers covered campus to find areas where visibility could be improved to enhance pedestrian safety.

LASA Executive Associate Tiffany Stimson, the organizer of the walk, said pedestrian safety has been a CAC concern for a long time, adding the walk resulted from her personal safety concerns and her work last year with the now-defunct University Lighting Committee.

Some areas on campus are in desperate need of better lighting, Stimson said, especially those along the Iowa River by the English-Philosophy Building.

"By EPB there was one area where we had to use a great big flashlight just to see in front of us," she said.

LASA Treasurer Eric Sanders said his group found several places around Hillcrest, Slater and Rie-now Residence Halls that need better lighting.

THE PATH ON the west side of Riverside Drive is dark and heavy with brush, Sanders said, adding many students use the route as a short cut from one side of campus to another rather than using the footbridge on Burlington Street and Riverside Drive.

Sanders said his group dubbed the pathway "a three-star" area.

"There were a zillion places where someone could just jump out at someone," Sanders said. "I went with three women and I pretended

I was the assailant. I tried to hide and said, 'Okay, could you see me if I were hiding?'"

CAC University Environment Committee Chairwoman Kristi Holcomb said there are several places on campus where bushes or brush obstruct vision, sometimes covering lights, and where lamp lightbulbs need to be replaced.

"When students are walking on campus and it's dark, it affects how safe they feel," Holcomb said.

The CAC plans to ask UI Physical Plant administrators to investigate the possibility of cutting the brush and replacing lightbulbs in the areas the council cited, she said.

PHYSICAL PLANT Campus and Custodial Services Manager Gerald Costello said plant workers replace lightbulbs regularly, but bushes aren't usually cut unless someone complains about them.

CAC resolves support of campus safety task force

By Paula Roesler
The Daily Iowan

The UI Collegiate Associations Council Monday passed a resolution to support the creation of a University Task Force composed of students, faculty, and staff members to address campus safety.

University Environment Committee Chairwoman Kristi Holcomb said the task force concept emerged last week when she asked June Davis, assistant to the vice president for university services, how the CAC could persuade administrators to support an emergency phone system on campus.

UI administrators last year rejected CAC's proposal for such a system.

"When I approached June Davis it was with the specific intention of finding out how my committee could most effectively work to propose changes," Holcomb said. "Her immediate suggestion was that changes would be most positively received by the administration if it was perceived that they were being dealt with by many different areas on campus, from the administration, from faculty, from students."

HOLCOMB SAID the University Environment Committee will present the task force proposal to UI Vice President for Student Services Philip Hubbard this week, adding that Davis said Hubbard's office would seriously consider a proposal for emergency phone systems by such a task force.

Davis was unavailable for comment Monday.

"My committee has been working to compile information about (emergency phone) systems on other campuses," Holcomb said, adding the next step is to present a proposal to the UI administration. "It would be most helpful if we could be working on an equal level with these other members of the university on a task force instead of having to approach them (about every detail)."

The CAC has not formulated any specifics regarding the proposed task force, Holcomb said. The task force would ideally include members from the various security staffs on campus, faculty members, administrators and students, she said, adding UI Rape Advocacy Program Director Karla Miller would also be a likely task force candidate.

CAC PRESIDENT Mike Reck said the university task force would be a cost-effective means of getting approval for an emergency phone system and other safety measures.

Thirty-five assaults were reported to police last year in the Iowa City area, Reck said. Only one in 10 assaults are reported, he added, which demonstrates the real need for an emergency phone system.

"It was not, in my opinion, rejected on the merits of the program," Reck said, referring to the emergency phone system proposal presented by CAC last year. "It was rejected on where it came from."

Greeks demonstrate talents, raise money for charities

By Jay Casini
The Daily Iowan

UI Greeks had several chances to show off their athletic skills and other talents during three philanthropy events throughout the last two weekends.

The Tau Kappa Epsilon/Kappa Alpha Theta Tennis Classic, Zeta Tau Alpha Hoop-n-Holler Basketball tournament and Kappa Day at the Races were all major annual events to raise money for charitable organizations.

The TKE/Theta Tennis Classic was held on Oct. 4 at the UI Klotz tennis courts, raising money for the Wendell Johnston Speech and Hearing Center, the National Institute for Logopedics and St. Jude's Children's Hospital.

Kappa Alpha Theta member Jeni Dowell said the two houses expect to contribute about $500 of the proceeds to each of the charities.

Twenty-one fraternities and 12 sororities participated in the event. Phi Delta Theta won both the tennis tournament and the overall point competition among the fraternities. Delta Gamma won both for the sororities.

"This year's event went really well," Dowell said. "There were more fraternities involved this year and more teams in the tournament."

THE ZETA TAU Alpha Hoop-n-Holler Basketball tournament was held Oct. 10-11. Twenty men's teams and six women's teams participated in the tournament which benefits the Association for Retarded Citizens.

Although proceeds have not yet been tabulated and T-shirts from the tournament are still on sale, Zeta Tau Alpha member Sheila Fleming said she expects this year's tournament profits to exceed last year's.

"We're in our fourth year so we're still pretty new as a philanthropy, but it is definitely growing in popularity," Fleming said. "We had a lot of teams entered this year and we'll probably do even better than last year."

An independent team sponsored by Fitzpatrick's bar, 525 S. Gilbert St., won the men's division and Delta Gamma won the women's division of the basketball tournament.

KAPPA DAY at the Races event was also this past weekend. The philanthropy included an airband competition at The Fieldhouse bar, 111 E. College St., on Oct. 9 and a track meet at the UI track facility on Oct. 10.

Kappa Kappa Gamma member Lisa Stoker said she expects profits from this year's Kappa Day, which benefits Iowa City Geriatrics, to surpass last year's totals.

"We had more fraternities and sororities participating this year than ever before, we had better attendance than ever before and we probably made more money than ever before," Stoker said. "This was probably our biggest Kappa Days ever."

Kappa Sigma won both the overall and the track competition and Tau Kappa Epsilon won the airband and finished second overall among the fraternities. Alpha Phi won the track and the overall competition for the sororities.

Du Pont wants to debate Gephardt

DES MOINES (UPI) — GOP presidential hopeful Pete du Pont Monday challenged the Iowa Farm Unity Coalition to sponsor a debate between himself and presidential candidate Rep. Richard Gephardt, D-Mo.

The former Delaware senator, who has proposed farm subsidies be phased-out over a five-year period, said the debate is needed to decide which plan would be best for farmers in the long run. Gephardt has sponsored legislation to allow farmers to vote on mandatory production controls.

Du Pont told a news conference outside the coalition's Des Moines headquarters he believes the Gephardt proposal — which is co-sponsored by Sen. Tom Harkin, D-Iowa — would reduce the gross national product $5 billion and phase out more than 315,000 farm sector jobs.

"A MONTH AGO the farm coalition did a rating between the presidential candidates on their agricultural policies and they found Dick Gephardt's policies best and Pete du Pont's the worst," du Pont said.

"If we debate our differences, common sense will win out and common sense tells us that phasing-out farm subsidies and giving the farm back to the farmer is the best approach," he said.

"Common sense tells us that more government regulation and control is the problem, not the answer." But David Ostendorf, spokesman for the coalition, said he believes du Pont was only "grandstanding," especially since the former Delaware governor chose the coalition's offices to issue the challenge.

HE ADDED CHANCES were

"slim to zero" the coalition's executive committee would agree to sponsor a debate between Gephardt and du Pont.

"This is just grandstanding on his part," he said. "I think perhaps du Pont is grasping at straws because the coalition neither endorsed Gephardt nor condemned du Pont."

"The coalition merely took a position which said . . . Congressman Gephardt's response was probably closest to our position, while Mr. du Pont's was probably farthest away," he said.

On a related matter, du Pont said he has not decided whether he'll accept an invitation from the coalition to take part in a candidate forum on agriculture. The forum is scheduled for Jan. 23, which is about two weeks before the state's Feb. 8 first-in-the-nation precinct caucuses.

Research risks

If the goals mapped out in a recent report from the UI Self-Study Committee are achieved, the UI will soon become a leading research university. The committee, in issuing its report called "Building on Strength," recommends luring more outstanding scholars to the UI, encouraging the research work of current faculty members and promoting vigorous growth throughout the university — all of which is designed to make the UI one of the top 10 public research institutions in the United States.

All of this is exciting. The dynamic environment that necessarily surrounds top-notch research facilities is well documented. Throughout the nation, "cutting edge" research institutions have been the catalysts for such positive developments as economic growth, job creation and cultural stimulation. If the UI could become one such center, the entire state of Iowa would stand to benefit.

The danger in committing a university to securing massive amounts of new research funding, as the recent UI report does, lies in the possibility of compromising the values and standards which form the very foundation of the institution.

For example, current economic and political realities dictate that a very large share of the available research money is in defense-related areas. If the UI, which now rejects all classified research projects (unless a specific exception is granted), were to change its policy in the hopes of winning lucrative Pentagon research grants, the impact on the UI would be detrimental.

Therefore, this is a time for proponents of a strong, vibrant UI to express their hopes and fears. Yes, a top-rated research university is wanted and needed, but it should not be built with the tainted money of the military/industrial complex.

A big mistake

Last week the Johnson County District Court ruled that UI wrestler Brad Penrith would not have to spend a week in jail for violating his probation. That ruling was a big mistake and Iowa Coach Dan Gable promptly made a bigger mistake: he reinstated Penrith to the team.

One might wonder why those are mistakes. After all, just last March Penrith came in second in the NCAA tournament and in 1986 he won a national championship. Throw in a couple of Big Ten championships and you come up with one heck of a wrestler. One would be crazy not to reinstate an athlete with a record like that.

But the problem is that Penrith has another record, too. The seven-day sentence he should be serving was requested by the Johnson County Attorney's office because he was publicly drunk and disorderly on June 16. This happened while he was serving probation for drunk driving convictions from August 1986.

Dan Gable might agree with those who say that it's better to have Penrith on the team, spending his energy in workouts under the coach's watchful eye. Better than having him out on the streets, beating up innocent people. But who died and left Dan Gable guardian of the people? Out on the streets, Brad Penrith wouldn't be a star athlete with a few problems. . . he'd be a criminal. And unlike Coach Gable, society might decide that a criminal deserves a harsher punishment than to be reinstated as part of a nationally prestigious wrestling team.

Sure, as a wrestler Penrith has succeeded beyond the hopes of most athletes. But as a student — and even as a responsible citizen — he has consistently failed. Despite his talent, he ought not to wear the UI's black and gold. He ought not to represent the UI in any way.

Opening doors

This past weekend Iowa welcomed the highest level Soviet official to visit the state since 1959 when Premier Nikita Khrushchev toured one of our exemplary farms. This visit represents a positive step for U.S.-Soviet relations and for Iowa.

Viktor Nikonov, considered by American officials to be one of the most powerful men in the Soviet Union, came here in his role as Soviet agriculture chief. He was given a two-day whirlwind tour that included a farm equipment manufacturing plant, a seed corn company's research facility and, of course, a model Iowa farm.

Nikonov was impressed by what he saw and expressed interest in making arrangements for visits by others who manage similar enterprises in the Soviet Union. His proposal may be the start of an exchange that will benefit both countries and the state of Iowa in particular.

In a speech to business, farm and political leaders, Nikonov spoke of the economic restructuring initiated by Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev: "It has vast potential for cooperation. . . There are possibilities for each and every one of you."

Such a statement should be taken seriously not only by American businessmen but also by government officials. Naturally, improved trade relations can lead to a better diplomatic relationship between the two countries.

While opening new trade doors is a good idea and one worth pursuing from both ends, the Soviets have yet to show how serious they are about glasnost reforms. Seeing borders opened to the flow of information and ideas, as well as commercial trade, would truly be an encouraging development.

Colorblind politicians

After days spent watching the Robert Borky Pig Show, I'm surer than ever that nothing's wrong with Congress a guillotine couldn't cure. Years of cable sports had dulled my memory of the U.S. Senate horror show: mouthy worms in blue suits, united in their whiteness and their deep love for their own voices, utterly dependent on staffers to generate each idea and word.

Metzenbaum, Hatch, Kennedy, Thurmond, Biden, Humphrey — the more you look at their shared material health and moral disease, the more they resemble stripes on the same tie. Which drove them to serve in office — more power or more money? And if this is twoparty "democracy," isn't it time to meet the new boss?

THE HEARINGS' best exchange saw William Coleman, a Philadelphia jurist and former Cabinet member under Gerald (Pardon) Ford, ask Sen. Gordon Humphrey, a New Hampshire conservative Republican (excuse the redundancies), to imagine being black, as Coleman is, to imagine living at the mercy of white legislatures, with only the hope that a Supreme Court decision would allow him to use the same toilet, attend the same school and hold the same job as a white person.

Humphrey shot back, "I can't, sir, I can't imagine that." That hurried denial, not just of imagination but of even attempting to imagine, is what the Bork hearings are all about. How can we place on the Supreme Court a man whose entire career has been a failure to envision justice as more than a head game, instead of the promise of hope to the suffering? The same failure of vision and imagination threatens to destroy this country.

IT'S GALLING to see senators (and others) prattle about a colorblind society, as senators did in support of Robert Bork. How cheery that so many white men now find colorblindness a fait accompli. What a coincidence, this instant enlightenment in the face of court decisions and legislative programs empowering blacks, browns, reds and women. And how untrue, to speak of the U.S.A. in 1987 as if centuries of injustice had been righted, as if opportunity, power and wealth are shared now.

Ignore life expectancy tables. Ignore unemployment figures. Ignore educational opportunity and attainment. Ignore infant mortality levels. Ignore proportions of income, stock and land holdings. Ignore crime rates.

Ignore truth, and, voila! A colorblind society. No need for no dang activist judge with no social agenda, no sirree. We given them people what they want. Now it's up to them.

WELL, GO ahead: imagine you're black. (Readers who are already black are excused from this paragraph.) Imagine being asked on a regular basis which sport you play. Imagine hearing the phrase "you people" everyday, from even the friendliest mouths. Imagine fellow students and instructors assuming you're in some special program and therefore better able to compete for grades, degrees and jobs.

Imagine you're the only one who looks like you almost everywhere you go. Imagine that it's news, something for them to brag about, when a frat house or sorority admits you. Imagine even your friends comparing you to other blacks they have known, trying to assess your alien life form. Imagine, not being different, but being thought of as different, and inferior, every day of your life.

Now imagine your country had an all-black Senate. Feel secure?

COLORBLIND? We'll see. I don't want to scare my brothers and sisters, but when you look around the world, white people are few and far between. Even at home, though, demographics do shift. Maybe these whites calling for a colorblind society have one eye on the birth rates and the other on the immigrant flow. Maybe they believe that a human cipher like Robert Bork can hold that line.

What they should worry about is that the new boss has learned her lessons well from the old one. Th-th-that's all, folks.

None of our business

Pat Robertson and I are from the same generation, are close in age and have some things in common.

Both of us served in the Korean War. Neither of us did anything particularly heroic or dangerous to the enemy.

Robertson has admitted that before he experienced a religious conversion, his two main interests in life were poker and women.

Looking back about 35 years, I'd have to admit that poker, women and beer were high on my priority list.

Both of us married in the same year, 1954. I was 22. Robertson was 24.

We both had kids. My first son was born in 1959. My wife and I waited because it was almost five years before my paycheck could support a small family.

ROBERTSON HAD his first child earlier — only 10 weeks after he was married.

I'm aware of this highly personal detail of Robertson's life because I happened to read it in The Wall Street Journal a few days ago. It then became a big network story.

This isn't something Robertson or his wife wanted anyone to know about. They don't believe it's anybody else's business.

It's not something I wanted to know about, because I agree with Robertson — it's none of my business. Or yours, or The Wall Street Journal's.

I know that we've somehow reached the point where a presidential candidate's life is supposed to be an open book, but I think that there are some limits.

And in this case, I think we've barged across that limit.

WHAT IS IT, exactly, that this revelation has told us about Pat Robertson?

It's told us that while a young man, and before he became a clergyman, he and his future wife had premarital sex.

I'm not interested in knowing

whether Robertson and his future wife engaged in premarital sex 33 years ago. I'm not interested in knowing whether Ron and Nancy did, or Jimmy and Rosalynn, Jerry and Betty, Dick and Pat, Lyndon and Lady Bird, Jack and Jackie, Ike and Mamie or any of them going back to George and Martha.

Nor am I interested in whether any of the presidential candidates, from both parties, had premarital sex with their wives. It's none of my business.

OBVIOUSLY, THE people who run The Wall Street Journal think otherwise. They think it is their business since they went to the bother of digging up the evidence. I assume that reporters looked up old public records that show when Robertson married and when the child was born.

And the Journal thinks it is our business, because they told us about what they found.

But what the Journal hasn't yet told us is why it is my business or yours.

Does it tell us something about Pat Robertson's character, that over-worked political word?

Well, I suppose it tells us that when he was a very young man, like most young men, he wanted to do it. Big deal. I'd be concerned if he didn't.

DOES IT TELL us he was a rogue? Not at all. He didn't wrong and abandon a woman. They married, have been together since, appear to be happy and their son seems like a fine young man.

Does it tell us that he's a hypocrite, because he now preaches against premarital sex? No, it doesn't. As he freely admits, he was a bit of a hell-raiser as a young man. But when he became deeply religious, his views and personal conduct changed. There's nothing unusual about believing one thing when you're young and the opposite when you get older.

As far as I can see, this doesn't tell me one thing that I really needed to know about Robertson.

This isn't in any way comparable to the Gary Hart case, in which a married candidate seemed to go out of his way to let the press corps know what a Romeo he was, then publicly challenged them to catch him.

IF ANYTHING, there's something almost quaint about the Robertson disclosure.

Here we are, in an era when hundreds of thousands of unmarried couples openly live together — including stars of stage, screen and the tube.

But here's Pat Robertson, having to go through the embarrassment of explaining something very personal that occurred between him and his wife back in the 1950s, a far more restrained and repressed decade.

Of course, I could be wrong. Maybe The Wall Street Journal was right in making this matter public.

If so, I wish it would run an editorial explaining just why it was important for you and me to know about the premarital relationship of the Robertsons.

And while they're at it, the editors of the Journal might also answer another question: Hey, guys, did you and your sweeties ever get it on?

Old hat

To the Editor:
 Did the police handle CIA demonstrators too roughly? No doubt, this was probably the case. Did the protesters expect different treatment?

By now, the "civil disobedience" routine has become just that — a routine. Protesters are ordered to leave, the order is refused, the police move in, the protesters go limp and the police drag them away.

Such "passive resistance" has long ceased to be very impressive. The organizers of the protest failed to mobilize any significant numbers of the student body to effectively stop CIA recruitment. Consequently, the local police were sufficient to break up the action.

On the other hand, only one person was allegedly escorted past the demonstration in to be interviewed. It could mean that the educational efforts of the anti-CIA activists was a huge success. In that case, maybe no attempt to prevent the CIA from recruiting was necessary.

More likely, most people already knew that the CIA does evil things and that the "spooks" in the agency were spooks prior to being hired.

Kick the CIA off campus? You bet! Nevertheless, let's not simply focus on recruiting. I do not know to what extent that the CIA has professors doing research for them at the UI, but if there are any and if it is possible, names should be known. Students could then have the option of boycotting professors with CIA connections.

In the meantime, I suggest that the so-called "progressive coalition" stick to educating students about the illegal behavior of the CIA and not commit itself to mass action until it has a mass to act. They probably scare away more students from the CIA Off Campus movement than those who join it.

Gerhardt E. Goeken

Bad business

To the Editor:
 Despite the claims of Young Americans for Freedom and Campus Review, I feel that most students who feel that the CIA has the right to recruit at the UI do not support the CIA's covert action. Because the DI has already addressed the arguments of the right wing, I would like to address this other belief.

First of all, these people believe that recruitment is part of guaranteed free speech. "After all," they say, "If we censored every unpopular view, soon all views would be censored to 'protect' us as listeners." Yet I must ask, who listens to the CIA when they're on our campus? Not the general public, but a carefully select few who want to join the CIA actually speak to the recruiters. Even these select few receive a distorted view of what the CIA does so what actually happens is more like the converted preaching to the converted. Hardly the free exchange of ideas pictured when we say "freedom of speech."

At New Wave wouldn't mind if the CIA sent a person to publicly speak about the CIA's activities and answered questions from the public. Such an exchange would be very educational for all. Instead, the CIA chooses to hide itself from public view. Even when a recruiter approached us at a 1984 rally, he refused to talk as we asked our questions about the CIA. Freedom of speech refers to the free exchange of ideas and CIA recruiting has nothing to do with the free exchange of ideas. It is a business practice.

This leads to the next question of "freedom of choice." "So recruiting is a business practice," they might say, "but don't we have the right to choose where we want to work?" Our answer would be yes. You do have that right, even to work for the CIA. But our question is should the UI pay for that right? The UI has already decided that companies that discriminate on the basis of sex and race cannot at the UI, but what about organizations that engage in murder and torture?

The UI should end its business relationship with the CIA. The American people do not support covert action and neither should the UI. That is why New Wave calls for the end of CIA recruitment.

U.S. military requests right to strike back at attacking vessels Iranian-protected ship blasted; Kuwaiti tankers continue trek

By Patrick E. Tyler
Washington Post

DUBAI, United Arab Emirates — The U.S. military command in the Persian Gulf is seeking approval from Washington to attack any Iranian gunboat firing on merchant vessels that then call for assistance, regardless of their national flag, according to western sources.

The request for greater military latitude to strike Iranian forces originated, the sources said, with Rear Adm. Harold Bernsen, commander of the Middle East Force that has responsibility for protecting U.S.-flag ships in the waterway.

The sources said the Reagan administration is considering a broader role for the U.S. forces, allowing them to confront Iranian gunboats when they are detected stalking civilian oil tankers.

Such a move would effectively strip away the last vestige of U.S. neutrality in the 7-year-old Iran-Iraq war and would put U.S. forces in this troubled region on a virtual war footing with Iran.

U.S. helicopters attacked three Iranian gunboats last week, but only after the Iranians were reported to fire machine guns in their direction. One western military analyst pointed out that without this provocation, U.S. forces would have been powerless to intercede if the Iranian gunboats had gone on that night to attack non-U.S. merchant shipping.

"It doesn't make any sense," said a sympathetic western official, who quoted one Middle Eastern political leader as advocating that the United States target the source of shipping attacks in the gulf.

"If your house is flooding, you fix the leak, you don't mop up the water," the official said.

By Jack Reed
United Press International

MANAMA, Bahrain — Iraqi warplanes attacked a tanker sailing under Iranian protection Monday — killing a seaman and leaving an unexploded missile aboard — and the latest U.S.-escorted convoy of re-flagged Kuwaiti vessels steamed northward in the Persian Gulf.

Iraq kept up its blitz on Iranian inland industrial targets, striking two oil product factories and a radio station. Iran said at least six people were killed and wounded in the attacks.

In a statement released in Beirut, a Kurdish group said it kidnapped three Italian nationals in northern Iraq, demanding that Italian warships withdraw from the Persian Gulf. The Italian Foreign Ministry in Rome confirmed three Italians were held captive in Iraq, apparently by Kurdish guerrillas.

THE ITALIAN government, under pressure from communist and other left-wing factions to cancel Italian navy escort operations that began earlier this month, said efforts were under way to secure the freedom of the hostages.

Meanwhile, a U.S. Navy official, speaking on the condition he remain anonymous, said U.S. forces were working to recover a 42-foot Swedish-built Boguehammer patrol boat that Army helicopters sank during a firefight Thursday with the Iranians.

He said authorities were "very optimistic" about the recovery and believed the vessel was heavily armed.

The first U.S.-escorted convoy of re-flagged Kuwaiti tankers to enter the gulf since Thursday's clash sailed north toward Kuwait for loading Monday, with no incidents reported on the second day of its 550-mile journey.

Aquino hints at martial law as strikers and police clash

By Fernando Del Mundo
United Press International

MANILA, Philippines — President Corazon Aquino Monday raised for the first time the possibility she would declare martial law if it were "absolutely necessary" and "for the greater good of the country."

Aquino, who has survived five coup attempts, also showed a reporter the presidential bedroom to rebut claims by a columnist she hid under her bed during an Aug. 28 coup bid. She then filed a libel suit against the writer.

"I have always been a woman of courage," Aquino said Monday, the first day of a five-day strike by militant trade unions.

Corazon Aquino

February 1986, declared eight years of martial law in 1972.

"I WOULD LIKE to assure the Filipino people that this government will not resort to martial law unless it is absolutely necessary, unless it will be for the greater good of the country," Aquino said.

Military reports surfaced claiming renegade soldiers and right-wing politicians were planning a coup bid within a month. The last coup attempt, on Aug. 28, came two days after a crippling strike called by the unions that began another walkout Monday, demanding a 50-cent increase in the daily minimum wage of $2.70.

Strike organizers, including the May 1st Movement, which claims a membership of 500,000, said the walkout was a success, with 250,000 workers boycotting 500 factories.

BUT METROPOLITAN police command chief Brig. Gen. Alexander Aguirre said the strike call by left-wing trade unions was largely ignored. Most government and private offices were open in Manila and only about 1,000 to 3,000 workers attended rallies in six areas of the capital.

In the Export Processing Zone in the town of Mariveles in Bataan province across Manila Bay, 5,000 workers in 10 of the area's 23 factories boycotted their companies and held peaceful marches, officials said.

But in Manila's suburban Marikina, riot police fired shots in the air and used truncheons and fire trucks to disperse some 2,000 workers barricading a street in an attempt to paralyze transportation. Police said several demonstrators suffered minor injuries in a stampede, but denied a report by organizers that two workers were wounded by gunfire. "We fired in the air," said police patrolman Nelson Cruz.

Police arrested 25 workers in Marikina and other parts of the capital.

Police said a homemade bomb exploded in the toilet of a shopping mall in the Manila suburb of Quezon city, shattering a glass window. No injuries were reported and there was no immediate claim of responsibility.

Aquino filed a libel suit Monday and opened up her bedroom to reporters to refute claims she hid under her bed during the bloody August coup attempt.

Democratic amendments gain S. Korean assembly approval

By Sam Jameson
Los Angeles Times

SEOUL, South Korea — The National Assembly voted Monday to approve the framework for transforming South Korea into a democracy.

By a vote of 254-4, the assembly approved sweeping amendments aimed at stripping authoritarian powers from the constitution that President Chun Doo Hwan imposed under martial law in 1980.

For the first time in South Korea's 39-year history, the reforms were worked out in negotiations between the ruling party and the major opposition parties. When the constitution was overhauled on previous occasions, the changes were drawn up and approved unilaterally by the government.

THE AMENDMENTS approved Monday will be submitted to the voters in a national referendum scheduled for Oct. 27. Overwhelming approval is expected.

"The seed planted in the June 29 declaration has flowered," said Chung Suk Mo, secretary general of the ruling Democratic Justice Party. He referred to the announcement by Roh Tae Woo, the party's nominee for president, who put an end to 18 days of protest demonstrations across the country by promising to abandon authoritarian rule and to embrace democracy.

Approval of the constitutional amendments marked South Korea's first major step in the shift toward democracy. Authoritarian laws dealing with the press, labor and elections have yet to be changed, and as many as 1,000 political prisoners remain in jail.

LEE CHUL SEUNG, a long-time opposition lawmaker who is a member of the New Korea Democratic Party, led two other members of the tiny opposition group in voting against the amendments.

The three said that they favor the parliamentary system of government rather than the presidential system. A fourth legislator, Lim Choon Won, an independent, said he voted against the amendments because the government has not yet released the prisoners that it jailed for opposing the parliamentary system that Chun had insisted on until June 29.

Three assemblymen abstained and 11 were absent.

With the amendments, the constitution would provide for direct election of a president with dramatically curbed powers. The president would be limited to a single five-year term.

THE ELECTION, which would give voters their first chance in 16 years to cast ballots directly for a chief executive, is to be held by Dec. 20.

No longer would the president have the power to issue emergency decrees with the same legal power as the constitution. Nor would he have the power to dissolve the National Assembly and to appoint judges without approval of the National Assembly.

The National Assembly, a unicameral body, would be empowered to audit government expenditures and to investigate all functions of the administration.

Press censorship and licensing of publications, as well as arrest, search and seizure without a warrant issued by a judge, would be banned. Police would be required to inform the relatives of anyone they arrest. Suspects would be guaranteed the right of legal counsel and arraignment in court.

University autonomy, a minimum wage system and workers' rights to organize, engage in collective bargaining and strike would be guaranteed.

A preamble to the constitution declares that the government "succeeds to the ideology of the April 19, 1960, student revolution against dictatorship," and orders that the military, which twice in the last 26 years has carried out coups d'etat, "observe neutrality in political affairs."

In another development Monday, a group of respected leaders issued a statement supporting the establishment of a new daily newspaper.

Hurricane Floyd enters Florida like a lamb

MIAMI — Hurricane Floyd lulled Florida's Keys with a lamb-like entrance Monday, then lashed the island chain with its 80-mph tail and howled up the Overseas Highway toward Miami and the Atlantic Ocean.

Heavy rain and a stiff breeze heralded the advance of Floyd over Key West and the sun came out as the eye passed overhead.

Then 80-mph winds in the back of the wall of the eye uprooted trees and knocked out power and telephone service to much of the island city.

No injuries were reported, however, and damage appeared to be minor.

Gay leaders see new militancy, strength

WASHINGTON — Organizers of Sunday's National March on Washington for Lesbian and Gay Rights said Monday that the demonstration dramatized the nationwide strength and new militancy of a growing political constituency that is determined to achieve equal rights under the law.

"We've come to Washington to show our visibility, but also our strength, our anger, our resilience and our hope," said Kay Ostberg, organizer of the event. "This civil rights movement has come of age politically, and we are not going back to the days of silent suffering. We are here to demand an end to discrimination now."

Koop asks doctors to urge condom use

WASHINGTON — Surgeon General Everett Koop, in his most explicit public comments on the prevention of AIDS, has asked the nation's physicians to recommend condom use for all sexually active patients unless they are certain their sex partners are free of the infection.

"My moral and religious background has made it difficult for me, as it may be for you, to discuss sexual issues in public," Dr. Koop wrote in an editorial to be published in this week's Journal of the American Medical Association.

Church urges AT&T halt sales to S. Africa

WASHINGTON — The Episcopal Church, convinced the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. is not honoring its pledge to halt sales of AT&T products in South Africa, said Monday it will seek shareholder action and may ask the government to investigate.

The church decision to act follows a story in the Sept. 28 issue of AT&T Reports, an authoritative industry newsletter that covers the telecommunications giant, showing photographs of the newest AT&T computer being marketed at a Sept. 8-12 Johannesburg trade show by Olivetti and Olivetti resellers.

AT&T, which owns 22.3 percent of Olivetti, is the largest single shareholder in the Italian company.

Indian troops encircle Tamil rebel hideout

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka — Indian troops encircled the hideout of a Tamil rebel leader Monday in northern Jaffna peninsula, where 48 hours of fierce fighting has left more than 250 people dead, including 18 soldiers, officials said.

The incidents were the latest in violence since Oct. 8, when Indian troops, dispatched to Sri Lanka to enforce a July peace accord aimed at ending the island nation's 4-year-old ethnic war, pressed an offensive against the rebels who broke a 10-week-old cease-fire.

Tutu: U.S. lacks anti-apartheid stand

CAPE TOWN, South Africa — Anglican Archbishop Desmond Tutu has suggested that the United States and other countries that have failed to apply adequate anti-apartheid pressure on South Africa be held accountable through punitive trade measures, assuming power is eventually transferred to the black majority.

Tutu, a Nobel peace laureate who has been in the forefront of advocating sanctions against South Africa, said that strategic minerals could be withheld from countries with a poor "preliberation" stance toward Pretoria.

"In the end, we are going to be free. We are going to have to take account of who assisted us and who impeded us," Tutu said.

Five killed by blast at Spanish festival

MADRID, Spain — Five persons were killed at a Spanish village festival Monday when a crate of compressed gunpowder was accidentally ignited by a spark from an antique cannon.

About 30 people were injured by the blast at Cambello, near Alicante on the Mediterranean coast.

The historic festival marked the 1492 expulsion of the Moslem Moors from Spain, and attracted about 2,000 Spaniards from surrounding villages.

Cooks scramble to fry record omelette

BOURG-EN-BRESSE, France — A group of 40 French amateur cooks have prepared what they claim to be the world's largest omelette, using 61,020 eggs, 110 pounds of butter and almost 4 gallons of oil.

The beaten eggs were cooked for one hour Sunday in a huge frying pan nearly 24 feet in diameter at the village of Meximieux near Bourg-En-Bresse in the southeast of France.

The previous record for the biggest omelette was held by a team who used 60,000 eggs on the island of Reunion in the Indian Ocean.

Treaty summit expected, but officials say it needs work

GENEVA (UPI)—American senators monitoring the U.S.-Soviet arms talks Monday predicted a superpower summit in December for signing a treaty on elimination of medium- and shorter-range nuclear missiles.

But the five senators also warned after meeting with negotiators on both sides that there is still "a substantial amount of work to be done."

They said it is unlikely that a final treaty text will be ready in time for the Oct. 22-23 meeting in Moscow between Secretary of State George Shultz and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze.

Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., told a news conference that the Senate observers "hopefully" expect a December summit between President Ronald Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev, with congressional ratification hearings beginning in January.

Pell said "the main bulk" of the pact has been drafted while Sen. Ted Stevens, R-Alaska, said it was "80 to 85 to 90 percent" ready.

Oklahoma Republican Don Nickles at the same time cautioned that "there is still a substantial amount of work to be done."

Outstanding issues, he said, include agreement on exactly how many missiles are involved on each side, where they are based, and how their destruction should be verified.

"My guess is that there will still be a substantial amount of work for Secretary Shultz and Foreign Minister Shevardnadze," Nickles said.

Reagan wants vote on Bork this week

By Norman D. Sandler
United Press International

WASHINGTON — President Ronald Reagan invited the Senate Monday to vote this week on the doomed nomination of Robert Bork to the Supreme Court as he readied a last-ditch bid to derive some political benefit from a damaging defeat.

Senate leaders hoped to begin debate as early as today on the nomination for which Bork decided last week to fight to the bitter end — even in the face of rejection — as a matter of judicial principle and personal integrity.

White House officials, some of whom would have preferred to see the nomination withdrawn, embraced Bork's decision as an opportunity to use the floor debate to denounce the tactics used against him and the politicization of the confirmation process.

RETURNING TO the White House from Camp David after a weekend that saw his advisers map strategy for the last act of the Bork drama, Reagan was asked if he would like to see a final vote this week and replied, "Yeah, sure."

On ABC's "This Week with David Brinkley," Senate Republican leader Robert Dole of Kansas and Assistant Senate Democratic leader Alan Cranston of California agreed that they also would like to see a vote this week.

But Cranston said debate probably would not begin until next week, after Republicans on the Senate Judiciary Committee turn in their report on the Bork confirmation hearings last month.

When the curtain opens, the nation will be treated to a replay of the debate before the Judiciary Committee: Arguments from the left that Bork would tip the high court's fragile ideological balance to reverse decisions in areas such as abortion and civil rights, matched by arguments from the right that Bork's record as a brilliant, fair-handed jurist has been obscured by the "lies" and "distortions" of critics.

MIT biologist honored with Nobel for medicine

By Rolf Soderland
United Press International

STOCKHOLM, Sweden — Susumu Tonegawa, a Japanese biologist at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, won the Nobel Prize for Medicine Monday for his work on how the human immune system defends against disease — research useful in the fight against AIDS.

Tonegawa, 48, won the prize for showing that humans are not born with every gene necessary to produce the proper immune response to disease. Instead, genes rearrange themselves appropriately to produce the response.

In announcing the award, the Swedish Karolinska Institute cited Tonegawa's "series of ingenious experiments" that are helping unravel the "unsolved puzzle" of how hundreds of millions of antibodies can be ready in humans to react against infection.

TONEGAWA, CHOSEN from among 200 researchers or research teams nominated this year, will receive the $340,000 prize. His work should help scientists better understand the body's immune system.

While his work was not aimed specifically at helping treat patients with acquired immune deficiency syndrome, which destroys the immune system, Tonegawa said his work could eventually be applied in research into the deadly disease.

"What we have done or even the work we are doing now is not designed specifically to solve the problem of AIDS, but it is quite possible and in fact probable the information we get will be useful in understanding the problem of AIDS," he said at a news conference at MIT in Cambridge, Mass.

The institute said Tonegawa's discovery of "the genetic principle for generation of antibody diversity" opened new possibilities in the field of immunology, to deal with allergies and diseases attacking other internal organs, including the thyroid and intestines.

Sanctions

"THESE REGULATIONS shall apply only where a student's misconduct has adversely affected some university process or function or some other distinct and clear interest of the university as an academic community," the code states.

General conduct regulation 10 states that "assaulting, threatening, physically abusing, unduly harassing, or endangering in any other manner the health or safety of any person on the campus or at any university-sponsored or supervised function or event," may result in disciplinary sanctions.

An administrative hearing officer has the authority to impose any one or a combination of the following sanctions: disciplinary warning, disciplinary probation, restitution for property damage, negotiated sanction, disciplinary suspension and expulsion, according to the code.

"Our code of student life really isn't designed to punish," Jones said. "I look at the student code as a covenant with the university."

MEYER SAID THE code is not clear and does not provide victims of physical abuse with the information they need to begin university proceedings against an attacker.

But UI Assistant to the President Julia Mears said it is impossible for an all-encompassing policy to be written, adding a more flexible statement allows for interpretation of the policy that is essential to the fairness of case-by-case decisions.

"I have a lot of sympathy for folks who want this to be stated more clearly," she said. "It's not an easy problem to solve."

Iowa football player Keaton Smiley has pleaded guilty to the assault of a UI student, but UI officials have said they cannot comment on the possibility of disciplining him until his case has been decided by the court because the assaults did not take place on university property.

Landon

One of his last observations on international political affairs, made in an interview with the Los Angeles Times in February 1980, was that in invading Afghanistan, the Soviet Union had engaged itself in "a religious war," adding, "No nation has ever won a war against religion." In the same interview, he would not predict who would win the 1980 presidential nominations but made it clear that he considered former President Jimmy Carter and President Ronald Reagan the front-runners.

THIS ROLE OF STUDY, observation and commentary on the political scene had been Landon's for more than four decades. He always insisted, however, that politics was not his vocation but his avocation.

Indeed, although trained at the University of Kansas as a lawyer, he never practiced as an attorney and worked full-time as a politician for only four years. Like his father before him, he earned his comfortable living primarily as an independent oil man. Late in his career, he also owned and operated four radio stations in Kansas and Colorado.

Landon's last formal political outing was at the 1978 Republican National Convention in Kansas City, 60 miles east of his Topeka home. It was strictly a ceremonial ritual, but he was given a rousing ovation.

CHARACTERISTICALLY, his response was hearty and humorous: "You warm the cockles of my heart — whatever that means."

Although Landon won in two of his three runs at political office, it was as the landslide loser to President Franklin Delano Roosevelt that he earned his place in history.

That was in 1936 in the midst of the worst economic depression in American history. But the electorate perceived it as a crisis that was being beaten by the free-spending New Deal measures of the Democrat they had elected four years before.

Lottery

Reuter received a check for $4,750 at the television studio. A state tax of $250 was assessed on her prize.

But $4,750 was still enough money for Reuter to purchase a new stereo system and still have enough to put away for future investments.

"We're trying to save up to buy a bigger house," she said.

The Iowa Lottery notified Reuter about her chance to spin the wheel on Oct. 3 — just one week before her date with destiny.

"It's real nerve-racking to have a whole week to think about it," she said. "I had a dream that I would only win $5,000."

As it turned out, her dream was a premonition.

REUTER SAID her television appearance was in some ways a less-than-memorable experience.

"I don't even remember what happened," she said. "You are only up there 15 seconds. They're asking you where you work. You're just thinking, 'Where is that wheel going to stop?'"

The wheel itself, Reuter said, was somewhat of a surprise.

"They told us it weighed 75 pounds," she said. "But it's not that hard to spin. I got up there and it must have gone around 30 times."

Each of the contestants was also given two practice spins with the wheel, but lottery officials stopped the wheel before it stopped on its own so contestants would avoid "near-suicidal" situations, Reuter said, seeing what they might have won if the spin was valid.

long the rules of the game," including the authority of the Internal Revenue Service "have been cloaked in deliberate ambiguity."

HE ASSERTED THAT the time had come for "a bill of rights that spells out explicitly what the limits of IRS power are," and he promised to "put the force of my presidency" behind the proposal.

Looking abroad, the vice president hailed the anticipated agreement with the Soviet Union limiting intermediate-range nuclear missiles as historic, and called for further talks on "strategic arms, conventional weapons, chemical weapons, biological — all those things."

But he cautioned that in dealing with the Soviets the proper U.S. attitude should be: "Praise God — and keep your guard up."

For the most part though, Bush seemed determined to use the speech to demonstrate his fitness to take advantage of what he described as "the incomparable opportunity" offered by the presidency to exercise moral leadership.

miles from the accident scene, said 77 passengers and crew members were released from the hospital after treatment for injuries ranging from cuts and bruises to broken bones. Two others were admitted overnight for observation and were in satisfactory condition, she said.

Another passenger, Forice Messamaker, 48, of Pella, Iowa, was airlifted to Iowa Methodist Medical Center in Des Moines, where she was listed in good condition after suffering cuts and bruises, hospital officials said.

TWO AMTRAK employees, Richard Dillon, 38, and Mayme James, 59, both of Chicago, were airlifted to Mercy Medical Center in Des Moines suffering from abdominal injuries. Dillon was listed in serious condition, while James was in satisfactory condition, Mercy spokesman Bill Maurer said.

Bonita Webster of Monterey, Calif., said the accident happened shortly after the train switched tracks.

"It was like all of a sudden they just slammed on the brakes. I saw people flying off their seats. One woman bumped her head and bit her lip," Webster said.

Monday's accident capped a terrible vacation for Joyce Irgang and her husband, who were returning to New York from the West Coast.

"It was a horror. We were in the earthquake in Los Angeles, the forest fire in Yosemite (National Park) and now this. It's quite a week — a terrible vacation," Irgang said.

Elizabeth Tyus, who on Monday marked her first day in the United States, said she "had a feeling something bad would happen because I had three bad dreams before we crashed."

"I believed something would happen, but I didn't know it would be like this," said Tyus, a Philip, the native who was traveling with her new husband to his hometown of Memphis, Tenn. "It was scary. It was bad. But we had accidents in the Philippines too. It can happen anywhere."

Former Hawkeye crosses picket line

FOXBORO, Mass. (UPI) — Former Iowa linebacker Andre Tippett, the New England Patriots' All-Pro linebacker, said Monday he will defy the union's strike and return to play this week.

"Things are getting crazy and it does not seem like anything is being done," said Tippett, 27, a six-year player. "I talked to a few of my teammates and told them my position."

Tippett would become the eighth Patriot to cross the picket line. The strike by the NFL Players Association entered its 21st day Monday. Replacement games with non-union personnel have been played the past two weekends.

Tippett, who earned three letters with the Hawkeyes from 1979-81, was named first team all-American in 1981.

New England has a 1-1 record with replacement players, losing to Cleveland Oct. 4 and beating Buffalo last Sunday. Both games were at Sullivan Stadium and drew record low crowds.

Tony Collins, a starting running back, was the first Patriot to return to action. He was followed by veterans Ron Wooten, Guy Morris, Sean Farrell, Raymond Clayborn, Tony Franklin and rookie Daryl Holmes.

"I think it is good news," Patriots General Manager Patrick Sullivan said about Tippett's decision. "He is an important part of the team and I am glad he decided to make up his mind and come in."

Although the Edmonton Oilers resolved three contract disputes in time to open the season, they still began their quest for a fourth Stanley Cup in five years with a roster quite different from last season's.

Glenn Anderson, Mark Messier and Mike Krushelnyski settled with owner Peter Pocklington and played Thursday. Still missing was All-Star defenseman Paul Coffey, whose holdout could be long. Talks have broken off between Coffey's agent, Gus Baldi, and Oilers Coach General Manager Glen Sather.

With Kent Nilsson and Reijo Ruotsalainen playing in Europe, and goalie Andy Moog and defenseman Randy Gregg on the Canadian Olympic team, the Oilers' roster contains new names.

Daryl Reaugh backs up goalie Grant Fuhr. Reaugh, a member of Nova Scotia in the American Hockey League last season, played one game with the Oilers in the 1984-85 season. Rookie Jim Ennis from Boston College is starting on defense.

"I find it a bit down and think about it. I can't believe I'm here," said Ennis, the only Edmonton starter to have played college hockey. "So I try not to think about it."

The Oilers also started rookie forward Kelly

Buchberger on a line with Messier and Anderson. Rookie forwards Scott Metcalfe and Steve Graves were with the team, but did not dress.

Turning a New Leaf
At Toronto Saturday night, the Star-Spangled Banner was played for the first time in 61 years in Maple Leaf Gardens before the start of a hockey game. Owner Harold Ballard at first resisted the NHL bylaw mandating both the American and Canadian national anthems be played and said he would play the American anthem only an hour before gametime.

On The Line

Tonight's a big night. The National League Championship Series moves back to Busch Memorial Stadium in St. Louis with the powerful San Francisco Giants leading the Cards 3-2 in the best-of-seven series.

The series has been a good one, and should get even better starting tonight. During the season the Cardinals were the better team. Now the Giants are stronger after acquiring good pitching late in the season. It's too bad either team has to lose because both are winners. So who will win?

Exactly two weeks ago, Mr. O.T. Line stated the Cards would capture the National League East (that was after the New York Mets had closed within two games). They captured the crown four days later.

WHEN WEDNESDAY is over, the St. Louis Cardinals will be the National League champions after defeating the Giants two games in a row to win the series, 4-3. Why? Because St. Louis has the intangibles.

The Cards won the World Series in 1982, and should have won it in 1985. They know how to win — especially when the "cards" are stacked against them.

The Giants are an outstanding and confident team. They have proven they are a fine ballclub. But they should have put the Cards away Friday night at Candlestick Park in Game 3, but they blew a 4-0 lead late in the game.

Then the Giants went on to win Games 4 and 5 — so what? Now San Francisco has to go back to 55,000 screaming Cardinal fans, the organ man who plays the Budweiser jingle everytime the Cards score and JACK CLARK.

"THE HEAT IS ON" as Glenn Frey would say, and hopefully all of us baseball fans can enjoy a couple great games. The Giants are supposed to win, while O.T. Line thinks the Cardinals will take it. Now let's sit back and enjoy the game.

Whoever wins the National League pennant will have to face the most impressive team of the playoffs so far — Minnesota. The Twins are going to be tough to beat in the World Series.

The previous bias and slanted view of the baseball playoffs does not reflect all the views of those nuts on The Daily Iowan sports staff. The views represented here show how twisted O.T. Line really can be at times.

By the way, let's not forget the college football games this weekend. There are some dandy ballgames, so all you OTL pickers get your ballots (no more than five) in to Communications Center Room 111 by noon Thursday. And, please, don't forget to circle and predict the score of the tiebreaker. This week's OTL winner will receive a keg donated by the Super Spud, Old Capitol Center. All sportswriters hang out there for good food and great brew, so stop in anytime.

NFL players eye mediation

ROSEMONT, Ill. (UPI) — The NFL Players Association said Monday it would end its strike immediately if owners agree to submit the dispute over the collective bargaining agreement to mediation and, if needed, binding arbitration.

If the owners refuse the union's offer, NFLPA Executive Director Gene Upshaw said, players will continue the strike "for the duration."

Gene Upshaw

Upshaw and the 28 player representatives met for more than six hours Monday, the 21st day of the work stoppage. The meeting was called after negotiations broke off Sunday between the union and the owners' Management Council.

IN THEIR PROPOSAL, the players want all striking personnel to be reinstated to the active rosters and the rosters frozen until a new agreement is reached. The 1982 collective bargaining agreement, which expired Aug. 31, would remain in effect until a new agreement is reached, the players arbitration.

Upshaw said striking players could be ready to compete Sunday if the owners agreed to the proposal. Replacement games have been played the last two weekends.

"But all the points must be met," Upshaw said. "If the owners refuse to accept this proposal, we are out for the duration."

UPSHAW SAID THE idea of mediation and arbitration came from the player representatives gathered at a suburban Chicago hotel Monday.

"They have given me those instructions," Upshaw said. "We see this as a fair way to end this dispute, and we are willing to take our chances."

Earlier, Upshaw said if the NFL owners were fully informed on the strike's issues, the walkout could be settled in "a matter of hours."

Before the meeting with player reps, Upshaw released copies of a letter he sent Sunday to each club owner. He said the obstacle to a settlement has been management's chief negotiator, Jack Donlan.

"To put things in simple terms, it appears either the owners are trying to bust the players or that a majority don't realize what is really happening at the table," he wrote. "If they did know and wanted to make a deal, it could be done in a matter of hours. The only thing that can prevent a settlement is the continued intransigence of your leadership at the table."

TALKS ON A NEW collective bargaining agreement broke down after six days Sunday in Tysons Corner, Va., and no new negotiations were scheduled.

"It's time to reassess the situation," said Management Council spokesman John Jones in New York. Jones declined comment on Upshaw's letter and was then unavailable for comment on the players' proposal.

NEW YORK — Six Southern schools lined up behind the nation's top two college football teams — Big Eight powers Oklahoma and Nebraska — in Monday's voting by the UPI Board of Coaches.

No. 1 Oklahoma and No. 2 Nebraska were followed by a bloc from below the Mason-Dixon Line: No. 3 Miami, No. 4 Auburn, No. 5 Louisiana State, No. 6 Clemson, No. 7 Florida State and No. 8 Tennessee.

Oklahoma earned 43 of the 50 first-place votes cast and 741 of a possible 750 points. Nebraska earned two top ballots and 685 points. Miami was close behind with 655 points and five first-place votes.

UPSETS SATURDAY shook the Top 20. Auburn, LSU, Clemson and Florida State advanced a notch thanks to Pittsburgh's triumph over previous No. 3 Notre Dame. Tennessee climbed two positions, taking advantage of Indiana's na's shocking victory over previously No. 9 Ohio State.

"People in the South love their football and there are tremendous teams in the Southeast," Tennessee Coach Johnny Majors said. "There are good athletic facilities throughout this part of the country. A lot of the teams we go up against are taught fundamentals as far as executing tackling and blocking as good as any team I've ever met."

"Historically, when I coached in the Big Eight in the late '60s and early '70s, I thought that area was very dominant with Oklahoma, Nebraska and Colorado. But the South part of the country now is as good as I've seen in the United States through the years."

Retail king is richest American

NEW YORK (UPI) — Forbes magazine, in its annual survey of wealthy Americans, said Monday retail king Sam Moore Walton finished No. 1 for the third consecutive year with $8.5 billion salted away.

The founder of Wal-Mart stores had nearly twice as much money as he did a year ago and three times as much as in 1985 due to the rising value of Wal-Mart stock.

But Walton, 69, of Bentonville, Ark., is only the third-richest person on the planet, according to the business magazine. His wealth is exceeded by that of two Japanese billionaires: Yoshiaki Tsutsumi, with $20 billion, and Taichi Mori, with $15 billion.

John Werner Kluge, 73, of Charlottesville, Va., finished No. 2 at $3 billion. The German-born salesman parlayed a Washington, D.C., radio station into Metromedia.

H. ROSS PEROT, 57, founder of Dallas-based Electronic Data Systems, finished at No. 3. He sold the company to General Motors in 1984 for $991 million.

Rounding out the top 10: David Packard, a founder of Hewlett-Packard, at $2.87 billion, publishers Samuel Newhouse Jr. and his brother, Donald, at $2.35 billion each, industrialist Lester Crown, media magnate Rupert Murdoch, investor Warren Buffett and Limited founder Leslie Wexner at $2.1 billion each.

Sailors coast to third in regatta National

By Hugh Donlan The Daily Iowan

The cold and drizzle was not enough to disrupt the success of Iowa sailing at the Michigan Women's Regatta this weekend.

"It was not the best weather for sailing, but we're diehard sailors," Skipper Kara Lubben said.

Saturday's dreary weather did not hinder the performances of the Iowa sailors, who finished third behind Michigan and Miami of Ohio.

"WE'RE NOT HAPPY about it," Lubben said of the third-place finish. "We wish we could have done better."

The Michigan event was the first all-women's competition in which the squad has ever participated.

Sportsclubs

"We've got some women who can skipper really well," Coach Bob Woodward said. "They just don't get the chance. We're going to try and change that."

With four capable skippers, Kara Lubben, Joey Grandgenett, Tricia Combs and Liz Churchwell, the Iowa club is going to enter more all-women regattas and also use the female skippers in regular regattas, which are open to both men and women.

The sailing club will compete for the Sophie Cup in Southern Illinois' Hallowen Regatta Oct. 31 and Nov. 1.

The Iowa water polo club defeated Grinnell 16-9 Saturday at the Field House pool. Iowa was able to use multiple substitutions after taking a commanding lead in the third quarter.

"It was a good game for us. We got a lot of good practice and we won," club member Marty DeWitt said of the victory over a squad composed of Grinnell swimmers staying in shape for the upcoming season.

Rowan McDeid led the scoring with five goals, Dave O'Brien had four and Rich Guerra tossed in three more. Brian Szwyala played another strong game in goal.

"He did a real good job," DeWitt said of the club's starting goalie. "He held them to three or four points the first three quarters. Then we began the substituting."

Several players gained necessary game experience that will be valuable when the club travels to Evanston, Ill., to compete in Northwestern's water polo tournament on Nov. 16, 17 and 18. There will be 16 teams participating, including several Big Ten schools, Iowa State and Loyola of Chicago.

NBA Suns sold for record price

By Mike Rabun United Press International

DALLAS — The NBA Board of Governors Monday approved the sale of the Phoenix Suns to a group headed by Suns General Manager Jerry Colangelo for a record $44.5 million.

"The board unanimously approved the sale of the Phoenix franchise and we are all very happy about it," NBA Commissioner David Stern said. "And the expansion teams are happy about it because the sale price is well in excess of the price they paid."

Stern confirmed the sale price, and Colangelo said the new ownership assumed a debt of approximately $10 million. The price was the most paid for an NBA franchise. The most recent expansion franchises — Minneapolis, Charlotte, N.C., Miami and Orlando, Fla. — were sold for approximately $32 million apiece.

COLANGELO IDENTIFIED Greyhound Corp. and Eldorado Investment Co. as two of the limited partners in addition to a group of Arizona businessmen. The old ownership headed by Richard Bloch of Beverly Hills, Calif., will stay as a limited partner.

"The Phoenix Suns have been my life for the last 20 years," Colangelo said. "I believe in the NBA."

"We have had a couple of down years in Phoenix. It is not like Phoenix to have years like we've had. But I can assure you we will be back."

"This reflects the value of an NBA franchise," Stern said. "This has been a difficult time for the Phoenix franchise (with a grand-jury investigation into drug use and the indictment of five current and former players on drug charges). I'm glad it has ended."

STERN ALSO SAID he hoped a contract negotiating session could be held with the players' union this week, despite the fact the union has filed a lawsuit against the league.

NBA labor negotiations have been jumbled by a recent lawsuit by the union seeking to abolish the draft, salary cap and right of first refusal.

"The average salary and benefit package in the NBA is $535,000," Stern said, "and we have every reason to expect that to be in excess of $600,000 in the 1989-90 season."

"We have resolved to reach an agreement with the players. We have asked for a negotiating session this week."

"We are also mindful, and talked about this, of the football strike. We can't fail to take notice of the losses suffered by the players, the owners and the fans."

"A work stoppage in any sport is bad for all sports," Stern said. "We hope that situation is resolved soon and we hope ours is resolved sooner than that."

Cincinnati GM Bergesch ousted

By Rick Van Sant United Press International

CINCINNATI — The Cincinnati Reds Monday fired General Manager Bill Bergesch, who had been unable to make the kind of trades this season club officials believed were necessary to help the team in its race against the National League West-champion San Francisco Giants.

Although the Reds said they would have no announcement on the situation until 5 p.m. Tuesday, Bergesch confirmed he had been fired.

Bergesch said he was "shocked" to have been dismissed by Reds owner Marge Schott and called the move the "biggest disappointment" of his nearly 40 years in baseball.

"I was surprised because I thought everything was going along well," Bergesch said. "But, she obviously didn't see it that way and it's her prerogative to go another way if she chooses."

BERGESCH, WHO CLEANED out his office at Riverfront Stadium Monday, said he also was surprised because business operations, one of Schott's main concerns, had been going well the past three seasons.

"The last three years were very good ones for us financially, so I thought that fact would be in my favor," he said.

Bergesch was named the Reds' general manager in November 1984 and was promoted to executive vice president and general manager in July 1985. His biggest problem this season was his inability to make a trade with the Pittsburgh Pirates for veteran pitcher Rick Reuschel.

Both Cincinnati Manager Pete Rose and San Francisco Manager Roger Craig told their front offices at midseason acquiring Reuschel might be the key to winning the division. Giants General Manager Al Rosen was able to make a deal that landed Reuschel, who went on to help the Giants win the title while the Reds faltered down the stretch.

ROSE SAID LATE in the season he had believed the Reds had clinched a deal for Reuschel, and expressed surprise the Giants were able to beat the trade Cincinnati had planned. Rose even met with Reuschel a few days before the righthander went to the Giants, thinking he was about to become a Red. Reuschel himself said he was surprised when he went to the Giants instead of the Reds.

"I would hate to think it was specifically the inability to get Reuschel that led to my dismissal," Bergesch said. "I wasn't told any specific reason why I was let go, but I'd sure hate to think it was simply because of that."

Twins

the way you're supposed to do."

Detroit posted baseball's best record (98-64), then dropped two of three playoff games at home after losing Games 1 and 2 at the Metrodome.

The Twins led 4-0 in the second inning, then added five late insurance runs after the Tigers used three in the fourth to close within 4-3.

MINNESOTA, BEATEN by the Dodgers in seven games during the 1965 Series, finished 71-91 last year as Kelly replaced Ray Miller with 23 games remaining. In finishing sixth in the American League West, the Twins were just four games ahead of Seattle for the league's poorest record.

The remarkable one-year turnaround continued Monday as Bert Blyleven allowed five hits and three runs over six innings for his second victory of the season. Dan Schatzeder came on to start the seventh. Ex-Tiger Juan Berenguer, making his fourth appearance of the series, yielded Chet Lemon's two-out solo homer in the eighth to make it 6-4 before Reardon finished for his second save.

"I've got to figure out a way to share this MVP award with the rest of the guys," said Gaetti, who hit two homers off Alexander in Game 1 and batted .300 in the series. "There were a lot of things that were against us when you looked at this series on paper — the winning streaks by their pitchers and our poor record on the road — but those things actually helped drive us."

BRUNANSKY, WHOSE two-run double triggered the four-run second, homered in the ninth to put the Twins ahead 7-4. Brunansky's ninth RBI of the series left him just one shy of the major-league playoff record set by California's Don Baylor against Milwaukee in 1982. Baylor currently plays for the Twins.

Consecutive RBI doubles by Dan Gladden and Greg Gagne in the ninth capped Minnesota's 15-hit attack.

Minnesota went 29-52 away from home during the regular season and had won just nine of 35 road games since the All-Star break until Sunday night's 5-3 triumph.

The Twins' second straight road victory ended Detroit's season of comebacks. After an 11-19 start, the Tigers went 87-45. Detroit, which led the majors in runs and homers, overcame a 3 1/2-game deficit with eight games remaining, clinching the AL East by edging Toronto 1-0 on the final day.

THE TWINS BATTED around while scoring four runs in the second and knocking out Alexander, who was 9-0 with Detroit before losing Game 1. Gaetti led off with a single and Randy Bush walked. Brunansky lined an opposite-field double that landed just inside the right-field line and was thrown out trying for third as the Twins went ahead 2-0.

Steve Lombardozzi singled and reached second on a groundout. Gladden's RBI single made it 3-0 and Gagne was hit by a pitch before Kirby Puckett's single brought Gladden across.

In yielding six hits and four runs over just 1 2/3 innings, Alexander raised the ERA of Detroit's playoff starters to 7.94.

The Twins added a seventh-inning run against Eric King on Randy Bush's sacrifice fly. Gladden's double and an error by first baseman Darrell Evans made it 6-3 in the eighth.

Netters

Pat Donovan (14-1); No. 3 player Tawan Pratt (10-4); No. 4 player Cindy Marcial (12-2); No. 5 player Sue Hofer (8-6) and No. 6 player Dana Ford (7-3).

The only newcomer to the lineup is Marcial, who is a freshman. That could provide for an interesting match-up between freshmen standouts if Schilling puts Iowa frosh Catherine Wilson in the No. 4 singles position, which is what she's been playing lately.

SCHILLIG SAID The Iowa lineup is still tentative at a couple spots because of Pat Leary's illness. If Leary is able to go she will probably fill the No. 5 or No. 6 singles position for Iowa. If not, either Susan Evans, Colleen Nichols, Karen Muldowney or Tracey Peyton will get the call.

Pennie Wohlford, Liz Canzoneri, Madeleine Willard, Wilson and Patty DeSimone will comprise the Hawkeyes' top five singles positions for certain today, according to Schilling. As for the doubles teams, Wohlford and Wilson will be Iowa's No. 1 team, and Canzoneri and Willard will comprise the No. 2 team. The No. 3 team still hasn't been set.

According to Butterfield, Western Illinois will go with Gates-Pratt (13-1), Donovan-Marcial (11-1) and Ford-Hofer (2-4) as its three doubles teams. She said that playing a tough Big Ten team like Iowa today is coming at an opportune time for the Westwinds as they prepare for a Gateway Conference individual tournament this weekend.

"WE'VE BEEN UP against eight out of our nine conference teams and we didn't have much trouble there," she said. "I know that each one of the Iowa girls will give us a very good match."

Butterfield added that Iowa will be Western Illinois toughest test so far: "We have everything to gain and nothing to lose," she said. After playing in so many invitationals where individual play takes the spotlight, Schilling was asked if today's dual meet for Iowa is any different than an invitational.

"There's not really any difference, winning is winning and that's what we want to do and it doesn't matter if it's an invitational or a dual," Schilling said.

with the bat," he said.

HE HAS SHAKEN off an early error to defensively outplay Cards shortstop Ozzie Smith. He also collected the game-winning RBI in Game 5.

"I think it is great for me to show you guys and the world how I can do in the field and Needing only to split the next two games, the Giants look strong in every area — defense, offense and pitching. Reliever Joe Price pitched impressively in Game 5 and Craig has arranged to show the Cardinals plenty of left-handed pitching.

Netters play host against tough foe

Home sweet home. The Iowa women's tennis team can ditch Willie Nelson's "On the Road Again" song today as the Hawk-eyes host Western Illinois at 3 p.m. on the Klotz Tennis Courts in their first home meet of the season. "It feels great," Iowa Coach Micki Schilling said about playing at home for the first time this fall. "It will make things a lot easier and since the weather report is good, I'm all psyched."

IOWA HAS PLAYED in three invitationals and only one dual meet since the season began, all out of town. The Hawkeyes enter the meet against the Westerwinds with a 1-0 mark in duals, while Western Illinois comes to town holding an undaunted 11-0 record. Whereas the brunt of Iowa's schedule comes in the spring — including all Big Ten Conference duals — Western Illinois splits its schedule evenly between the fall and spring. That's why Western Illinois, the defending champion of the Gateway Conference, has played in so many more dual meets than Iowa has.

The Westerwinds, 34-4 last year including a loss to Iowa, return five of six starters from last year's squad.

"It's just kind of a continuation from last year," Western Illinois Coach Judy Butterfield said about the team's tremendous success. "We didn't have any seniors last year, so we are really coming back on some very good wins and fine performances."

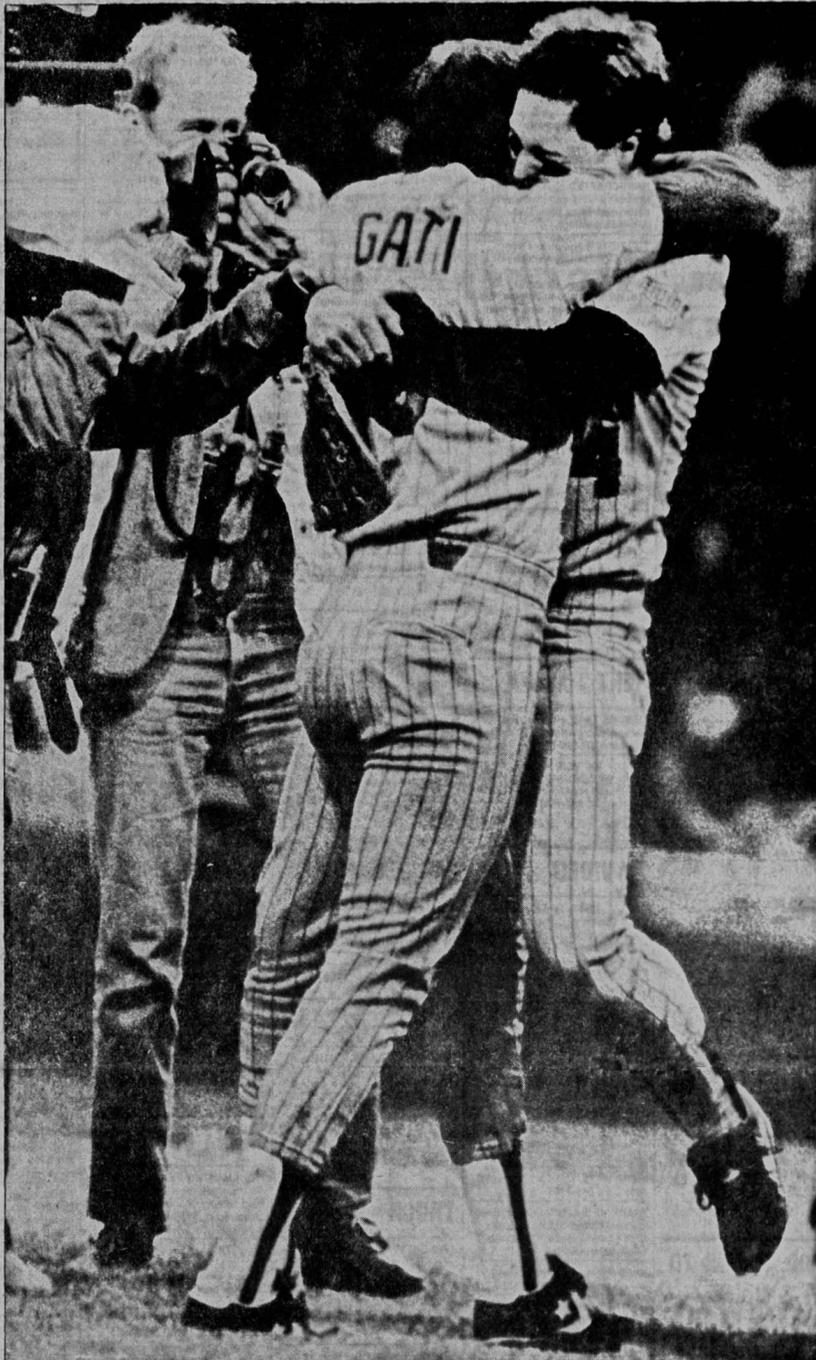

JUNIOR KATHY GATES (12-1 this year in singles) returns as the Westerwinds' No. 1 player, a position she's held since her freshman year.

"She's performed very well for us as the No. 1 player the last three years," Butterfield said.

According to Butterfield, the remainder of the Western Illinois lineup will be: No. 2 player Mary

Twins cruise into Series, 9-5

DETROIT — The Minnesota Twins ended the American League playoffs in the same dynamic manner they began — dominating the Detroit Tigers.

The Twins, Western Division patsies just last season, earned their first World Series berth in 22 years Monday with a 9-5 victory over the outclassed Detroit Tigers. Matt Nokes' game-ending bouncer to reliever Jeff Reardon sparked a delirious celebration as Manager Tom Kelly's underdogs rolled around gleefully in the infield dirt.

While a crowd of 47,448 filed out of Tiger Stadium for the final time this season, the Twins, armed with just five players owning previous postseason experience, frolicked with the field all to themselves.

TOM BRUNANSKY drove in three runs with a homer and two-run double, and third baseman Gary Gaetti won Most Valuable Player honors as Minnesota clearly outplayed an opponent with considerably more playoff experience. Nokes, who slugged a two-run homer in the fourth, was the only Tiger non-pitcher who had not played in a previous playoff or World Series.

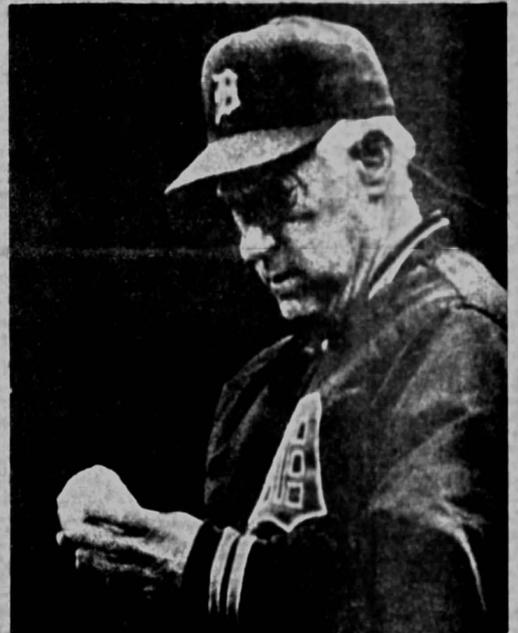

"I can't even feel the roof of my mouth anymore," said Kelly, who wiped champagne off his hair and tears out of his eyes. "I don't think the Detroit Tigers showed us a lack of respect, but maybe the rest of the country didn't give us much of a chance. Gaetti is an everyday player who gives you all he's got. . . You just write his name down and forget about it."

In eliminating the Tigers in five games, the Twins, 85-77 during the regular season, joined the 1973 New York Mets as the only division winner with fewer than 90 victories to advance to a World Series. Detroit Manager Sparky Anderson guided the Western Division Champion Reds in '73 when the Mets won the NL playoffs.

THE TWINS WILL open the World Series Saturday night against the NL champions with two games in the Metrodome, where Minnesota fashioned baseball's best home record (56-25) before adding two playoff victories.

"I told my guys to have a nice winter because they gave me everything they've got," Anderson said. "I've never seen a club come into a playoff with so much desire as the Twins, and that comes from Tom Kelly. I pay him all the tribute in the world. They beat on us

Penrith given OK to rejoin wrestlers

By Scott Wingert
The Daily Iowan

Brad Penrith, a two-time NCAA finalist for the Iowa wrestling team, was reinstated to the squad Friday.

Penrith, a senior from Windsor, N.Y., was suspended from the team by Coach Dan Gable in June after he pleaded guilty to charges of public intoxication and disorderly conduct.

Penrith was on a one-year probation at the time after convictions of driving while intoxicated in Johnson and Dallas counties. His probation officer, Connie Wilson, had earlier recommended revocation of the probation, meaning Penrith may have had to serve a jail term.

But Wilson changed her position at a hearing last week, noting Penrith's participation in two chemical abuse programs and his compliance with the community service portion of his probation. He has served 70 of the required 115 hours of community service.

LAST WEEK, JOHNSON County District Court Judge John Sladek declined to revoke the probation, meaning Penrith would not face a jail term.

"Brad has worked very hard to rehabilitate himself," Gable said in a statement released from Iowa sports information Friday. "He has convinced me in the last several months that he is very serious about getting his life in order."

Iowa Athletic Director Bump Elliott supported Gable's decision, the statement said.

Penrith, a two-time Big Ten champion at 126 pounds, was the NCAA champion at that weight in 1986. This past year, he reached the national finals before losing to Iowa State's Bill Kelly.

Brad Penrith

Neither Gable or Penrith could be reached for further comment over the weekend.

Giants hunger for pennant, lead experienced Cardinals

By Mike Tully
United Press International

ST. LOUIS — The San Francisco Giants have shown, in this year's National League playoffs at least, hunger means more than experience.

They lead the best-of-seven series 3-2 and, with a victory tonight, can reach the World Series for the first time since 1962.

The Cardinals have played in two of the last five World Series and are not showing the intensity necessary to reach a third.

"We better start hustling or we'll lose," St. Louis centerfielder Willie McGee said Sunday after San Francisco's 6-3 triumph in Game 5.

THROUGH FIVE GAMES, the Giants have stolen five bases to St. Louis' two. They have outthomered the Cardinals nine to one. They have recorded 10 double plays, including two by doubling a runner on a ball in the air.

"Giant baseball is aggressive baseball," San Francisco first baseman Will Clark said.

Dave Dravecky, who shut out St. Louis on two hits in Game 2, opposes fellow lefthander John Tudor in the possible clincher.

"We have one more game to play," said San Francisco Manager Roger Craig, not even considering the possibility his team might lose. "If Dave Dravecky can come near his job in Game 2, we'll win despite Tudor being a great pitcher."

St. Louis spent a needed day off Monday, trying to rest a battered pitching staff. The Cards entered the series with only eight pitchers, and since then two have suffered injury. Danny Cox developed a stiff

IF MANAGER Whitey Herzog could change one thing, however, he would start with his team batting average. Not only does injured slugger Jack Clark appear unlikely to start a game, the other hitters have failed to compensate for him.

"We know we're not going to have Clark in the lineup and we've just got to hope some of our guys start hitting better," Herzog said. "Our third, fifth and sixth hitters have got to start hitting better."

Giants shortstop Jose Uribe represents the contrast in attitude between the teams. An obscure player known mostly as a component of the Jack Clark trade two years ago, Uribe has created an
