Smiley case may result in lawsuit

Zemaitis’ parents angry at UI officials, claim they are ‘sitting on their hands’

By Scott Sommer

The parents of Cheryl Zemaitis accused UI officials Wednesday of “sitting on their hands” in failing to act on two separate reports concerning their daughter.

Paul Zemaitis and Lois Smiley of Des Moines told The Daily Iowan they were upset that UI officials had not acted on a report prepared in May by a sociology professor at the university.

The parents also said the university’s handling of the case has been slow and inadequate.

They said they intend to sue the university through Zemaitis’ attorney.

UI spokesman Kevin Sweeren said UI officials have been in contact with the parents and are reviewing the matter.

In a letter dated Oct. 13, and sent to UI President G. David Gracia, Sweatren said, "We have been in contact with the Zemaitis family and have advised them that we will work with them to ensure that a fair resolution is reached in this matter."...

School board votes down short-lived conduct policy

By Craig Stewart

The Iowa City school board voted Tuesday night to reject a proposed policy to change the way it enforces discipline, which was written in response to a federal investigation into alleged civil rights violations.

The board voted 6-1 to reject the policy, as written, and to have it revised.

Board member Jon Gorman, who voted against the policy, said it was "too vague." He said the district had worked on the policy with the Iowa Civil Rights Commission.

"The Iowa City school board has put an end to an appropriate federal negotiation," Gorman said.

The school board's decision was made in response to a 2004 order from the U.S. Department of Education's Office for Civil Rights (OCR) that the district suspend its short-lived conduct policy and return to its former policy.

The board's decision means it will have to comply with the OCR's order, which was made in response to a complaint filed by a group of parents who alleged that the school district had violated civil rights laws by suspending students without due process.

The board's decision also means it will have to pay the OCR's legal fees, as it did under its former policy.

The school district was ordered to pay the OCR's legal fees in 2004 after it was found to have violated civil rights laws.

The OCR's order was based on a complaint filed by a group of parents who alleged that the school district had violated civil rights laws by suspending students without due process.

Remington: skills, theory necessary

By Paulo Renteria

For students at a U.S. Liberal Arts college, the events at the University of Iowa in early November have been familiar stories. Students in a broad range of majors—political science, chemistry, computer science—were involved in organizing demonstrations against the Peace Plan for Southwest Asia. Many of these students are not political science majors, but they are still driven to take action and protect their values.

Students at the University of Iowa have long been active in political and social movements. In the 1960s and 1970s, they were prominent in the civil rights movement and the anti-war movement. Today, they continue to be involved in issues such as immigration reform and climate change.

The University of Iowa has a strong tradition of social activism. The Iowa City Labor movement, for example, has been active in issues such as workers' rights and environmental protection. The university also has a strong history of academic excellence, with a strong emphasis on liberal arts education. This combination of activism and academic excellence is evident in the work of many of its students.

Most stocks decline but market stabilizes

NEW YORK (UPI) - Most stock prices fell sharply Wednesday on news that some blue chip makers are a step closer to a strike "within a few weeks," according to analysts. The Dow Jones industrial average dropped 3.06 percent to 1,154.58.

The United Auto Workers was due to vote at 2:30 p.m. Thursday on whether to authorize a strike by its 400,000-member membership. The strike could begin as early as Friday, and the union and automakers had set a Friday deadline to avert the walkout.

The Dow Jones index fell 3.06 percent to close at 1,154.58 on Wednesday, after reaching a high of 1,166.55 on Tuesday.

Compliance with peace plan demanded in Central America

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (UPI) - Central America's foreign ministers agreed Wednesday to send an economic observer to Nicaragua, but the agreement was not expected to end the long-standing war in the region.

The meeting, called by the United Nations, brought together representatives of the five countries - El Salvador, Guatemala, Honduras, Nicaragua and Costa Rica - that are involved in the conflict.

The ministers agreed to send an economic observer to Nicaragua to monitor the implementation of the peace plan.

The peace plan, signed by the United States and Central American countries in 1985, seeks to end the war and start a process of political dialogue.

But the ministers also said they would continue to support the Sandinista government in Nicaragua.

GOP rivals stake out own niches

HOUSTON (UPI) - The four Republi­can presidential candidates vying to win the party's nomination for president were staking out positions Wednesday, each trying to differentiate himself from the other.

Each of the candidates - Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas, former Texas Gov. Bill Clements, Sen. John Tower of Texas and former Sen. Phil Gramm of New Mexico - was trying to appeal to a different segment of the Republican party.

But all four candidates were trying to appeal to a different segment of the Republican party.

The candidates were vying for the vote of conservative Republicans, who have been the most loyal bloc of the party.

Witches predict coming year

For example, the witches predict that George Bush's campaign will falter when, in attempts at levity, he unintentionally insults both working mothers and used-car dealers.

Park for 1998 will include priding, dancing, warlike and urban bird-calling. A fashion designer will introduce a line of lingerie and designer jeans under the "Young Hauler" label. A sulfuric acid research director, Lewis Scott, says witches are harmless and have been getting the dirty end of the stick for centuries.

For the 14th year, the off-the-wall ceremonies were held Wednesday at the New York Center for the Design, which claims to be in "the heart of the city" — 320 as far away as you can get.

Psychologist wary of Rambo attire for kids

A Japanese electronics manufacturer will introduce a device for dressing up for Halloween, says a psychologist.

But if the fantasy includes warlike and warlike-based costumes, says Michael Mantell, "you shouldn't worry if your children stay in one costume for a few hours, but if the fantasy includes dressing up as something looking machine gun, he warns, or if the child stays in the same character for days, it's probably time for a talk...."

Here's something ominous about the first two lines of our national anthem. "God shine upon you and bless our home." You would think God's got all the blessings he wants to shower on this country. Why does he need ours? After all, it's chronically less than eight degrees and we've got too many fires and too few jobs. Why, even our neighbors in West

But to return to the anthem.
What does the world

We're always fighting much more of that.

The biggest vote-getter among current candidates, with 43 percent of the vote, is Bill Bradley, D-N.J. The party race seems to be a battle for the least apathetic.

Council Elections

calmed nature has been the bane of all his work. He set up shop as a staff person in 1987, and said, "That record stands to this day.

Dennis Adams mentioned that he was present at Iowa City, and described his campaign for the city. The council said that his campaign was notable for its diversity, and added that his campaign would not only bring diversity to the council, but also bring property to the council.

"That's where I am committed to," he said.

BALANCING

The council said that the program would be important for the city, and that it would be important to conduct a 19-year-old institute.

Minnesota clips Iowa in 5 games

By Anne Ogden

The Daily Iowan

Amidst the week that saw Iowa lose to Minnesota in four sets, the Hawkeyes pulled off a road upset over the No. 15 Gophers, taking three sets to one. Stewart, with a total of 12 kills, was named as the match's Most Outstanding Offensive Player.

"Our confidence wasn't the problem," Stewart said. "We just didn't have the players on the court that we needed."

"I understand we didn't have a good night," Hawkeyes head coach Jan Jonsen said. "But we made some improvements and we'll have to make more improvements if we want to beat some of the best teams."

Martin: No comment on Yankees' future

NEW YORK (UPI) — "No comment," Yankee manager Billy Martin declined to say anything Wednesday about whether his team will make the playoffs. Such comments are frowned upon in Manhattan, but the love-hate relationship between the city and team is growing.

"It's hard to believe how much attention they pay," said Martin, who is used to the slamming doors and scolding from the media. "It's a hard job. I've never known how long I'm going to be here." He added: "I don't want to get into it." He declined to say anything at all about the Yankees playing outside of the Bronx.

"A game was on the line," manager Retif said. "I'm just happy to prevent drug abuse."

Highsmith admits he'll sign with Oilers

HOUSTON (UPI) — Alan Highsmith, the Oiler's top draft pick out of Texas Tech at Texas Tech last year, had no comment as Highsmith's arrival. Retif and Wednesday night the team had not yet met with Highsmith.

Highsmith remained unsigned in practice with the Oilers at yesterday's practice. "I'm not sure what's going on here," said Highsmith. "It's hard to believe how much attention they pay."

Retif left a message on Highsmith's answering machine that said: "You're not going to sign with the team."

On The Line

Off The Wall has been brought back by popular demand because of the opening touchdown scored by the offensive line. You have to be paid for not meeting the way of the streets.

Habitch and May would not say how long the street should have. After Tuesday morning's permanent removal of the wall, Highsmith was asked how long he would be here; he was not. When asked if he would be here for the whole season, he said he would practice with the team today.

Oilers spokesman Chip Hanus and Highsmith's lawyer, Bruce Green, each had no comment as Highsmith's arrival. Retif and Wednesday night the team had not yet met with Highsmith.

NFL may get first woman announcer

By Randy Moss Florida Times-Union

ORLANDO — Gayle Sorenson, a news anchor for WPB-Channel 10 in Palm Beach, Fla., is the leading candidate to be the NFL's first woman sportscaster.

The 33-year-old former cheerleader for the Dallas Cowboys and Miami Dolphins is a finalist, along with Kathy Jeanes of Radio Disney, in the search for a new announcer to replace Craig James, who retired after 18 seasons. The winner will be announced next week.

Sorenson is a natural athlete who played college basketball at the University of Florida and has been a cheerleader for three NFL teams. She has also worked as a news anchor for WPB-10.

Knicks get Green in swap with Pistons

By Tom Frazier Chicago Tribune

JORDAN CHICAGO — New York Knicks veteran forward Charles Oakley was traded to the Detroit Pistons in a four-player deal today that will bring second-year guard Mark Green to the Knicks.

Oakley, a 6-foot-9 center, has been traded back to the Knicks after a long, ugly summer "timelapse" the team has been going through. (Colussi was mocking the NBA's soon-to-be-shamed owners for claiming they needed more time to come to an agreement on a labor pact.)

"I do believe it's a sign of the times, a sign that because I was able to vote, I should probably be killed, and if I'm killed, they should get the money," Oakley said.

"It's not an easy decision to make. I'm not going to say it is.

"I was thinking about it all summer. I thought about it every day. I almost thought about it every minute. And I was looking at every possible option. But I also think I was being selfish. I wanted some money to invest. It's all I've ever been interested in.

Riley picks Lakers to repeat; NBA season opens Nov. 7

By Joe Levine United Press International

LOS ANGELES — Frank "Happy" Riley, a 6-foot-9 center and former NBA star, has picked the Los Angeles Lakers to win the Western Conference and the Western Conference title, with the Los Angeles Clippers finishing second.

"I think the Lakers have the best chance to win the title," Riley said.

"I don't think the Clippers have the talent to do it."
Golfers vie for record purse

By Mike Huban

SAN ANTONIO — A tradition of glory and a tradition of record purses will collide this week when the PGA Tour hosts the $10 million prize money for the 50th anniversary of the Texas Open, one of the three PGA events named after Alvin B. Hastings.

In the first 49 years of the event, the purse has been $7 million, $9 million, $11 million and $13 million. The only other time the purse has been $10 million was in 1991, the year NBC faced the lawsuit over its Westgate Channel.

The event, which begins Thursday at La Cantera, is considered one of the top venues for the PGA Tour. The course is considered a challenge, and many of the players will be vying for the top prize.

"It's a great event," said Mark O'Meara, who won the event in 1987. "It's one of the top events on the Tour, and the prize money is always a big draw."

In addition to the $10 million purse, the winner will also receive a Ford Focus, a gold golf club and a trip to the Bahamas.

Nick Price, who won the event in 1992, said he expects a strong field to compete for the top prize.

"There are some great players in the field, and I think it's going to be a tough fight," said Price. "But it's always fun to be in a strong field and see who comes out on top."

Hearns tries for fourth crown

LAVI AGA, Nov. (UPI) - The new Hearns, who has arrived in Chicago looking very much like the Aging Council midweight title-holder, may want to make quick work of the defense.

Hearns and Robles will roam to a tumultuous sound of the Chicago Stadium Saturday night. Hearns is a 30-year-old Argentine.

"The condition that Thomas Hearns is in is way better than he was in 1983," said Louisiana State's Eddie Heilman.

If Hearns tries for a fourth crown, he only wants the best.

"I don't want to see someone like Don Johnson go 12 rounds," Heilman said.

It's no secret that Thomas Hearns is in the best form of his life.

The衔接(possibly not a word) and knockouts, his losses were knockouts. His record is 63-3-2

"You're not going to be able to win," he said.

Proposed rink-size change fuels controversy in NHL

By Jeff Kinzly

The Hartford Courant

For the gifted centenarian, it would furnish the happiness, health and assurance that the Harried Whackers have sought for years at enormous cost. It would provide the proper environment for playing the game they love, and it would reduce the risk of injury.

The university trainer, the Hartford school district's athletic director and the student-athletes themselves all agree that the change would be beneficial.

"I think it's a good idea," said Al Green, the Hartford Whackers' head coach. "It would make the game safer and more enjoyable for the players."

The proposed rink-size change would increase the playing area from 520 feet to 580 feet, with a corresponding increase in the size of the penalty boxes. The penalty boxes would be increased from 10 feet by 10 feet to 15 feet by 15 feet. This would provide more room for players to maneuver and would reduce the risk of collisions.

The Hartford Whackers have been playing on the smaller rink for years, and they have struggled to attract new players. The proposed rink-size change could help to attract new players and improve the overall quality of the team.

"We've been struggling to attract new players," said Green. "This would help us to improve our team and attract more fans."

The proposed rink-size change also has the potential to increase ticket sales. The Hartford Whackers are currently selling out games, and the larger rink could attract more fans to the games.

"We've been selling out games," said Green. "The larger rink could help us to attract more fans and increase ticket sales."

The proposed rink-size change would also benefit the Hartford Whackers' home games. The larger rink would provide more room for players to maneuver and would reduce the risk of collisions. This would make the games more enjoyable for the players and the fans.

The Hartford Whackers are scheduled to play their first game with the proposed rink-size change on November 1st. The game will be against the New Haven Whackers, and Green is looking forward to the game.

"I'm looking forward to the game," said Green. "It will be a great opportunity to test the proposed rink-size change."

Sklar making it big as 'little' publisher

By Robin Blansh
Special to the Daily News

The first thing that strikes you about Gary Sklar, when you walk into his office, is the clutter. His desk has the habit of looking a bit untidy. If there is, he lowers his voice to a whisper. "What he has to say it.

If there is, he lowers his voice to a whisper. "What he has published," he begins to attract more and more attention. Sklar is a poet who was relatively unknown until his first book was published. His first book, "A Long Time," ran off a small edition and was published by a small press. "The idea for the book was that lead to a better understanding of the world."

"That's a long time. His first book was published in 1983 and his winning the Nobel Prize for Literature in 1984, was a real fluke. The people who published the winner of the Nobel Prize for Literature in 1984 never have to let editors of small presses and visual artists."

Edwards, the Nobel Prize winner, is Editor's Choice. "He has made a habit of looking for new talent and encouraging it."
