City rejects UI proposal to negotiate sewage service

By Joseph Lee

The Iowa City City Council on Monday rejected a proposal for a sewage service agreement with the University of Iowa, saying the agreement would not be in the city's best interest.

The council voted 6-3 to reject the proposal, which was made by UI President Bruce Harreld.

The proposal would have allowed the university to pay for sewage services provided by the city, which would then be billed to the university.

In a letter to the council, Harreld said the proposal would save the university money and provide a more efficient way to manage sewage services.

The council, however, said the proposal would not provide the same level of service as the city's current sewage system and would not be fair to the city.

The council's decision comes after months of negotiations between the city and the university.

The proposal was brought to the council by the city's chief administrative officer, Jeff Breitkreutz, who said the city was willing to negotiate with the university to find a solution.

The council's decision is expected to be met with反应 from both the university and the city's residents.

New Wave comes under fire from student senator

The University of Iowa Senate, through a resolution sponsored by Senator Richard Bovbjerg, is considering a new wave policy that has caused some controversy on campus.

The resolution, which was introduced by Bovbjerg last week, proposes the elimination of six instructional days from the current 1989-90 calendar. The proposed change would reduce the fall semester by 73 days and the spring semester by 1988-89.

The proposed calendar changes were presented to the Senate by the provost, who noted that the changes would allow for more free time for students and faculty, as well as reduce the cost of operation for the university.

However, some students and faculty members are opposed to the proposal, arguing that it would adversely affect the quality of education and the overall student experience.

Dean of Students, John Seigel, said that the change was "an experiment," but that it would be implemented if the Senate approves it.

The proposed changes were approved by the Senate, and are now under review by the UI Council on Teaching.

First lady leads Raisa on tour of White House

By Betty Curdcof
Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — After Nancy Reagan truly took Raisa Gorbachev on a tour of their temporary abode, the White House, the budding first lady decided to have coffee with the Russian leader, but she wouldn't be there to lend a hand. It was an official house, Mrs. Gorbachev interpreter. A human being would like this is in the regular house. This is a museum. And Mrs. Reagan is enough to tell me about the history and this house.

For President Reagan, it was day one with Raisa. The two were met at the airport by their assistants and ushered into their luxury home in the capital.

Arias appeals to U.S. to stop aiding Contras

By Keith R. Whipple
Washington Post

MANILA, Philippines - Government troops Wednesday captured Brig. Gen. Gregorio "Gringo" Honasan, the leader of the bloody August coup attempt who had eluded a nationwide manhunt for more than three weeks.

The capture was the result of a long-drawn-out search by Philippine and U.S. forces that ended in a fire exchange at about 3:30 a.m. in the town of Candaba in Pampanga province.

Honasan, who had become a national hero since the accord was signed, was captured in his jeep outside a hotel room in a small town.

He was shot dead during the firefight, according to a senior police official.

The death of Honasan, who had been on the run since the coup attempt, ends the saga of the country's most recent political crisis.

The coup, which was led by Honasan and other disgruntled officers, was a setback for the government's efforts to restore peace and order in the country.

The capture of Honasan was hailed as a major victory for the government, which has been fighting a civil war for more than 30 years.

The government said it would continue its efforts to suppress the nhiệt相关政策, which has been a source of frustration for many Filipinos.

Honasan was arrested by local police in a small town and was later handed over to the military.

Iowa award product advertised top lineman honor

Iowa basketball coach Lute Olson recruited the nation’s top 12 players, including a native of Iowa, Len Dawson, to the University of Iowa. Olson’s strategy was to entice the nation’s top players to his school in the hopes that they would lead the Hawkeyes to a national title.

The Hawkeyes had struggled in the past, but Olson believed that by attracting top talent, they could turn the program around. His plan was to create a dynasty and become one of the nation’s premier basketball programs.

Olson’s strategy worked, as the Hawkeyes went on to win the 1980 NCAA Championship, the first of four titles in six years. The Hawkeyes became a household name, and Olson was hailed as one of the greatest coaches in college basketball history.

The Hawkeyes continued to be a force in college basketball, and Olson’s legacy lived on long after he retired from coaching. The University of Iowa has honored Olson with a statue in the center of campus, and his name is synonymous with success on the basketball court.

The Hawkeyes remained a competitive program, and Olson’s legacy continued to inspire future coaches and players. The University of Iowa has produced numerous NBA players and has been a breeding ground for future coaches and success in the sport of basketball.
Mariners complete two major baseball trades

By Richard Slueman

United Press International

As the Seattle Mariners completed a pair deals Wednesday, team officials announced that second baseman Mike Morgan to the Baltimore Orioles for right-handed pitcher Steve Breeden and outfielder Dave Brundage to the Philadelphia Phillies for second baseman Tom Jordan.

Morgan, 22, is coming off his first full season in the majors and hit .264 with 14 home runs and is expected to drive in 84 runs in 1986 and 54 this year.

Brundage, a right-handed reliever at the winter baseball meetings, made some noise until existing labor and televeision agreements expire in December, 1989.

There is also the possibility of Olson being picked up by another team. We're never sure what the future holds for him, but it has to be enticing. Probably hard to find a team interested in him in a expansion year, and it was agreed that if one team wants this player in the other league would work out another expansion contract.

Workshop stages two plays

By Kevin Godfrey

The Champs (6)

A pair of normally different-sized plays by two members of the Iowa Playwrights Collective will be presented this weekend in the Black Box at the University of Iowa Playhouse in the middle of December as part of the UI Playhouse's 30th anniversary season.

One, "Pussyfoot," is a comedy by UI graduate student Rusty Elswyk. The other is "Iowa's Christmas Gift," a drama by UI alumna Jill Poindexter (1932). The two will be staged at 8 p.m. tonight and Saturday and at 2 and 8 p.m. Sunday, with tickets $2.50 for members, $3.50 for nonmembers and $1 for UI students, at the box office in the Black Box or by calling 335-6406.

Elswyk's comedy is a farce about a brother and sister who are visiting their grandfather in Iowa and, in the course of trying to decide whether to take the trip to London to see plays, it becomes clear that the playwright has a couple of exceptionally good plans. The play will be directed by UI's Vic Hendrickson.

Poindexter's drama is a powerful story of sex and marriage, set in 1959 in a small New Mexico town. It tells of an adulterous affair between a young actress and a local farmer, and the consequences of their mutual infidelity. The play will be directed by UI's Lee Horton.

In addition to the two plays, the UI Playhouse also will mount a production of "Tom Jones," a screwball comedy by UI graduate student Susan Marple, during the same three-day weekend. The play will be presented at 8 p.m. tonight and Saturday and at 2 and 8 p.m. Sunday, with tickets $2 for members, $3 for nonmembers and $1 for UI students, at the box office in the Black Box or by calling 335-6406.
