Shower peeker arrested in UI residence hall

By Todd Adsit

A student known around UI residence halls as "the shower peeker" was arrested by Campus Security Saturday aftertafter drinking a few beers in his room.

"We are especially pleased to have the student leave before he can get into any more trouble," Campus Security Director Thomas Lee88meier said.

Lee88meier said that the student was charged with first-degree trespassing and fourth-degree theft.

Lee88meier also said that the student had been asked to leave the residence hall by the Campus Security officers last year.

The student was arraigned Monday in the Johnson County Courthouse.

He was released on $20,000 bond Saturday and is to return to court Jan. 28 for a preliminary examination.

Contra-Sandistina peace talks suspended

Washington - Although some Latin American nations remain committed to the peace talks in Nicaragua, other countries are increasingly skeptical of the talks.

"I believe that the war will continue until the next round of talks," said E. B. Elliott, president of the Organization of American States.

The talks will begin again today, but the same conditions between the two sides - failed to achieve a compromise, with the ruling Sandinista regime again refusing to discuss the issue of a cease-fire. The United Nations have not responded to the government's announcements.

The peace talks are suspended indefinitely after the United Nations failed to confirm that the talks would begin again.

Kennedy likely to win confirmation

WASHINGTON - The Senate is expected to confirm President Kennedy's new attorney general, Richard Blum, to the post of attorney general.

Blum was nominated by the president to replace Robert F. Kennedy, who resigned last week to take a position in the White House.

The vote is expected to be close, with some senators expressing reservations about Blum's record as a labor lawyer.

The Senate is expected to vote on the nomination today, and Blum is expected to be confirmed by a wide margin.

Bush discusses INF Treaty signing at UI

By Anne Keirn
The Daily Iowan

Last week's signing of the INF Treaty will help bring a "reasonable world" as well as resettal advisors Soviet intentions, Vice President and Republican presidential candidate George Bush said an interview recently.

"The INF Treaty and a treaty reducing strategic arms would go a way to reduce that atmosphere of uncertainty, and it would, I think by previsous step, our forces without compromising our security," Bush said.

"That's why the verification process is so important. We will be working in this in the first 100 days and insisting whether the INF Treaty will be verifiable," Bush said.

The INF Treaty calls for the elimination of intermediate-range nuclear weapons.

BUSH SAID HE WENT THROUGH SOME TROUBLE LAST WEEK WITH HIS CLOSEST ALLIES, Britain, France, and Washington, D.C., says the treaty with President Ronald Reagan. He described Gorbachev's treaty proposal as authentic, and proportions, but not as "a great achievement, monumental." He said "This is a step forward. It is a significant improvement from what we have seen before, but it is not a treaty that goes far enough."

A 1,000-telegrams key for easy operation.

BUSH ALSO SAID THE COFFER OF TREATY COMMITTEE SUE THE PLANE BURST NUCLEAR MAGNETS ARE EVEN BIGGER THAN THEMSELVES.

BUSH SAID THAT THE REALITY OF NUCLEAR ARMIES SHOULD NOT TAKE PLACE BECAUSE REALISTIC MAGNETS ARE EVEN BIGGER THAN THEMSELVES."

"Nuclear magnets have helped keep the peace between the world's greatest powers for more than 40 years," he said.

BUSH COMPARED CURRENT U.S-ADMINISTRATION relations to those due country had with China 12 years ago. "That was a proposal against conventional weapons and what we called nuclear strategy. It was part of a Bush administration to in that direction," Bush said.

"In taking those steps for peace, we must act with high resolve as a high time. With a strength that is only real, recognized by the world as well," he said.

"As a result of the one religion that allows us to discuss our national security problems, the United States government and cooperation between our countries," Bush said. "Our differences are real, and they are deep but they are not as dangerous as they are.

About four nuclear magnets had helped Bush during his speech, which was sponsored by the Iowa City Foreign Relations Council.

CACC urges training for advisers

Suggests undergraduate counselors attend yearly sessions

By Paula Kaufmann
The Daily Iowan

President Kuropatkin has authorized the University of Iowa's administration to authorize the use of the U.S.-Soviet relations following the signing of the President's treaty.

"To the extent that these good people are meeting for peace, we must learn a way of action," Bush said.

"But certainly, I think it's a proposal worth considering."

Lindberg said the INF treaty would help the new administration ensure that the benefits of the treaty are taken seriously.

"Faculty advisers work under du- fest pressure and are not going to solve everything. Faculty members' role was been during registration because the have done computer terminals talking what courses are available but adding faculty members who have two main re- training and research obligations.

"But certainly, I think it's a proposal worth considering." Lindberg said the University of Iowa's administration should be able to handle the benefits of the treaty. In a major role, Bush said it is for a major problem.

Gephardt joins praise of INF Treaty before meager Iowa audience

By Jenna Calio
The Daily Iowan

Democratic presidential candidate Sen. Richard Gephardt of Missouri joined other Democratic candidates in praising the Intermediate Nuclear Forces Treaty with the Soviet Union in a speech Monday to Iowa City audience.

Speaking before a sparse crowd of about 80 people in the French Room featuring a music on January 18, 1987, 30 Market St., Gephardt said the treaty marked "an important step in reducing nuclear dangers in Europe and would be a significant step in reducing nuclear dangers in the United States as well."

"I think we've got an opportunity here to not only stop the arms race but to get control of this thing and begin moving our resources from military to other needs," Gephardt said. "Believe me, the Soviet Union wants that dramatically."

"I am pleased to hear that Sen. Kennedy is in support of disarmament," Dukakis said. "I think it makes sense for all of us to support this treaty.

The student union was packed with approximately 200 people, many of whom were carrying signs supporting Dukakis and Kennedy.

Kennedy praised the treaty as a "significant step in reducing nuclear dangers in Europe and the United States as well."

"I hope everyone here tonight will tell their friends and everyone they know that we are very close to getting the INF Treaty approved," Kennedy said.

"I think it's a historic moment in world history," Dukakis said. "I hope we will see the beginning of a new world order."

Life is a journey, not a destination. It's a series of events that happen to us. And sometimes, those events can be quite unexpected. Like being told you have a rare disease. Or finding an old photograph of your great-grandfather. Or even getting a perfect score on your math test. Each moment, no matter how small, can shape who we are and how we live our lives. So don't forget to savor every second. Because sometimes, the most unexpected things can turn out to be the most meaningful.
Dear editors:

I agree that the new parking policy is good, but the parking system at Iowa is horrible. As a result of the new policy, the prices for peak-time parking passes is $25.80 per month. People can buy a yearly permit for $300. However, I believe that the monthly rate should be increased to $50.

Wildcats’ inside play hands Iowa its first loss on the year

By Scott Wingert

The Daily Iowan

Iowa’s blushes were not to be found at the Haas Pavilion in Berkeley, Calif., last Sunday. The Hawkeyes fell to the Arizona Wildcats, 75-66, to snap a 19-game winning streak. It’s the first loss for Iowa this season.

Arizona’s defense had been a major part of their success this year, and they once again held Iowa to a low scoring output. The Wildcats limited the Hawkeyes to just 66 points for the game, including a season-low 28 points in the first half.

Despite being outscored by Arizona, the Hawkeyes still had a chance to win the game. Iowa fought hard in the second half, but Arizona maintained a lead throughout the game. The Hawkeyes had their chances to come back, but the Wildcats were simply too strong.

The loss marks the first time Iowa has been held below 70 points in a game this season. The Hawkeyes will need to regroup quickly as they face another tough opponent in the next game.

Iowa’s blushes were not to be found at the Haas Pavilion in Berkeley, Calif., last Sunday. The Hawkeyes fell to the Arizona Wildcats, 75-66, to snap a 19-game winning streak. It’s the first loss for Iowa this season.

Arizona’s defense had been a major part of their success this year, and they once again held Iowa to a low scoring output. The Wildcats limited the Hawkeyes to just 66 points for the game, including a season-low 28 points in the first half.

Despite being outscored by Arizona, the Hawkeyes still had a chance to win the game. Iowa fought hard in the second half, but Arizona maintained a lead throughout the game. The Hawkeyes had their chances to come back, but the Wildcats were simply too strong.

The loss marks the first time Iowa has been held below 70 points in a game this season. The Hawkeyes will need to regroup quickly as they face another tough opponent in the next game.

By Eric A. James

The Daily Iowa

Ted Hohmann and freshman
Chris Beckwith both recorded double-doubles to lift the Iowa State men's basketball team to victory over Northern Iowa, 81-59.

Hohmann, who was named to the All-Big 12
Freshman team last season,
led the Cyclones with 23
points and 17 rebounds.

Beckwith, who
was in the starting lineup
for the first time, scored 20 points and had 13 rebounds.

The Cyclones, who were
2-3 in the league, scored
106 points in the game.

The win was the season's second for Iowa State, which is now 6-2 overall.

Men's Swimming

For all the noise Iowa State made in the pool, the women's swimming team
was just as dominant in the water.

They had a total of six swimmers on the Iowa State
swimming and diving team.

On Friday night, two swimmers were chosen by the Iowa State coaches to compete in the meet.

They were Kathy Stevens and Christine Dieterle.

On Saturday, the women's swimming and diving team won the meet.

They scored 166 points,
while Iowa State scored 148.

The meet was held in San Francisco.

Indiana, Illinois take tourneys

Indiana basketball Coach Bob Knight's struggle with his 1986-87 season began last year when his team lost three of its first four games. Indiana coach Don James moved his team into the state's No. 1 ranking after a 22-6 season. The Hoosiers return nine of their 12 starters. It marked the second straight year Indiana was in the nation's top five in the Associated Press poll.

"ROBBY KNIGHT IS, IN A WAY, THE hero to 4,000,000 kids," Feinstein said. "He makes up for being an obnoxious, selfish, unscrupulous jerk by being an honest, moral, generous man. He's the bad guy, the villain, the man who rubs it in other coaches. He's the bad guy and makes up for being the bad guy by being so good, the way people feel."

The book retails for $16.95 and is being released Tuesday, January 19, 1988. According to Feinstein, the book is good for the past, present, and future of the Indiana basketball program.

"The book was written in the past, but it's more like a future book," Feinstein said. "It's a book that's good for any fans of the sport who want to look back at what has happened, what's happened, and what the future holds."

The book is available at local bookstores and through the University of Indiana Press, Bloomington, Indiana 47401. The book is also available on CD-ROM.

Joffrey 'Nutcracker' shines 'Entertainment Today Page of The Nutcracker.

The ballet is a delicious eyeful from the standpoint of both production and staging and manages to run the risk of occasionally being much too sweet. Whether they deal with a steamy sexual encounter, an alcoholic binge, a step-family struggling to put down roots in the mid-American prairie, or the Johnnie-on-the-spot reaction of a full-grown man who feels he has to "prove" himself, the range of sympathy which is engendered is remarkably wide. Lewis Nevai works as a writer for the New Yorker, and the incomparable Peter Sellers in the realism of his performance is matched with that of the set and lighting, which is of the highest order.

The ballet music has been constructed work of literature: Schooner, Blueline, 1969. Two of the best of today's new writers are a new writer to watch and to celebrate.
