Shower peeker arrested in UI residence hall

By Traci Auble
The Daily Iowan

A UI student known around UI residence halls as "the shower peeker" was arrested by Campus Security Thursday after Burge Residence Hall residents allegedly found him spying on women taking showers, according to Johnson County District Court records.

Second-year UI law student Barter Garrett Pace, 27, 715 George St., admitted during a court hearing Friday to entering women's showers in residence halls over the last six months in order to view females showering, according to court records.

Pace pleaded guilty to five counts of criminal trespass, according to court records.

The Orem, Utah, native was allegedly seen looking into women's showers in W100 Hillcrest, S200 Hillcrest, 1132 Hillcrest, 3300 Burge and 4000 Burge. The earliest incident occurred in July, according to court records.

Pace was arrested Thursday about one block away from Burge after residence hall staff and students saw him spying on the women's shower. Pace was seen lying on the floor outside a women's shower looking through the ventilation grate, according to court records.

CAMPUS SECURITY DETECTIVE MARY JO Lessmeier, who arrested Pace, said she has arrested two other men this semester on similar charges and believes most of the cases have been resolved. But female UI students should still be cautious, she said.

"I think this case will clear up the rest of the cases for now," Lessmeier said, "but the same cautions women use now should be kept up."

Lessmeier said women should keep shower doors locked 24 hours a day since no male students have keys. Men entered the shower room and waited in empty showers or toilet stalls for the women, she said.

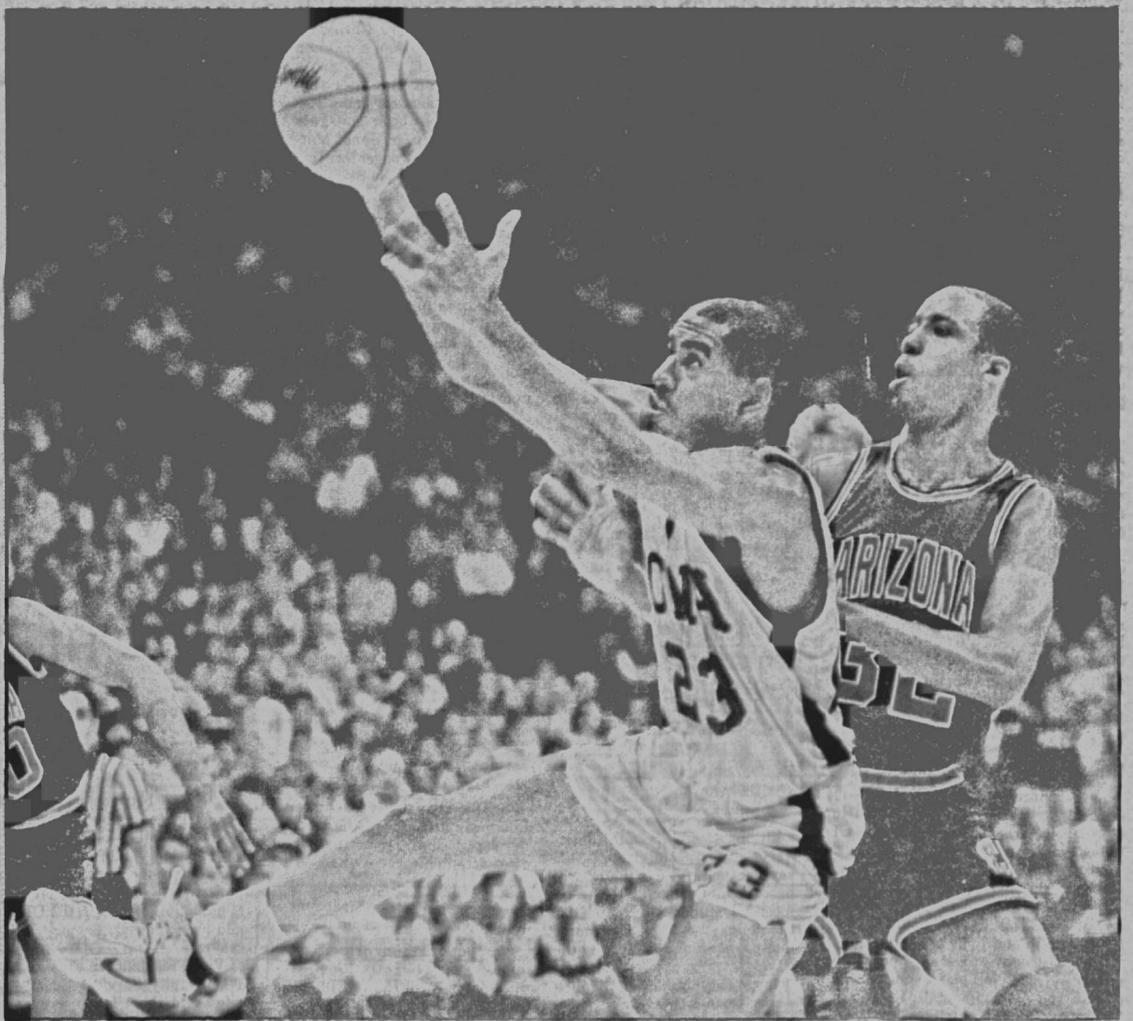

One student living in Hillcrest said after the peeker showed up on her floor they started taking precautions.

"We had a floor meeting and the hall coordinator told us to keep bathrooms locked at all times and to watch out for anyone strange," she said.

ANOTHER FEMALE STUDENT FROM BURGE said although the peeker was never inside the shower, he was seen twice looking through the grate on the shower door.

"I don't feel threatened by this," she said, "but I pay more attention to people hanging around. We were told by our resident assistant to check the showers when we go in to make sure no guys are in there."

She also said these incidents have made her more aware of rape and indecent exposure in libraries and on campus in general.

Contra-Sandinista peace talks suspended

By Oswaldo Bonilla
United Press International

MANAGUA, Nicaragua — A planned second round of talks seeking a cease-fire between the Nicaraguan government and the U.S.-backed Contras was "suspended" at the last moment, Radio Catolica said late Sunday.

The Rev. Ariel Ortega, an adviser to Cardinal Miguel Obando y

Bravo, who has acted as mediator in the negotiations, announced that the discussions that were to start Monday in Santo Domingo had been called off. He did not say if they would be rescheduled.

Neither Ortega nor Obando y Bravo, who mediated a first round of indirect talks with the Contras and the Managua government in early December in the Dominican capital, could be reached for comment.

"WE INFORM YOU that the meeting between the government and the resistance has been suspended," Ortega said over the radio, the voice of the Roman Catholic Church in Managua. He did not elaborate.

Earlier in the day, Obando y Bravo, who also heads his country's national reconciliation commission, announced in his Sunday homily that the second round of talks would begin today.

"We are going to put together face-to-face the advisers of the Nicaraguan government and the technical advisers of the Nicaraguan Resistance," the cardinal said.

The government did not respond publicly to the cardinal's announcement.

The talks two weeks ago — the first indirect negotiations between the two sides — failed to achieve a cease-fire, with the ruling Sandinistas rejecting Obando y Bravo's proposal for a Christmas truce.

THE U.S.-FUNDED rebels have battled the Sandinista government for the past six years.

The cardinal, who is archbishop of Nicaragua, said he will try to bring the two sides "face to face" in the new round of talks.

When the Dec. 3 and 4 talks failed, Obando y Bravo said he doubted a cease-fire could be achieved unless the two sides met face to face.

The cease-fire talks are among the provisions of a regional peace plan for Central America signed by five presidents, including Daniel Ortega of Nicaragua, Aug. 7 in

Chase ends in crash, violations

By Susan M. Wessling

An Ainsworth, Iowa, man involved in a high-speed chase that ended in a collision with another vehicle Friday on East Burlington Street posted $2,500 bond Saturday and was released from the Johnson County Jail after being arrested on nine different charges, according to Iowa City police reports.

Byron Douglas Linton, 23, R.R. 1, Ainsworth, was arrested Friday by Iowa City Police Sgt. Ron Fort after a chase through an alley and a yard and arrested on the following charges:

- Operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated.

- Unauthorized possession of an offensive weapon after police found a .20-gauge pump shotgun with a 16-inch barrel.
- Failure to post proof of financial responsibility for operating a motor vehicle.
- Eluding or attempting to elude a pursuing law enforcement vehicle.
- Driving while license revoked.
- Driving on the right side of the roadway.

- Failure to control a vehicle.
- Driving while suspended.
- Reckless driving.

Reports indicate Fort was driving south on Muscatine Avenue near Rundell Street at about 12:35 p.m. Friday when he saw a vehicle traveling at a high rate of speed that matched a radio description of a reckless driver suspected of drunken driving.

When Fort saw the vehicle, he turned around on Muscatine Avenue and followed an older-model green Buick LeSabre west on Burlington Street. Linton then allegedly turned right into a gravel alley to elude Fort.

AS LINTON WAS being chased, he drove through the backyard of a home at 1126 E. Burlington St. and

Kennedy likely to win confirmation

By Rita Cioli
Newsday

WASHINGTON — Although some questions remain about Judge Anthony Kennedy's legal views, the conservative jurist begins his Senate confirmation hearings today with little opposition and the strong presumption that he will be confirmed to the Supreme Court.

The reason for the calm following the tumult over President Ronald Reagan's two earlier failed nominations is the belief that Kennedy, 51, would bring little change to the court and would be much like Justice Lewis Powell, whom he would replace and who often provided the swing vote on the court.

"His is not the voice of a reactionary," said A.E. Dick Howard, a Supreme Court expert from the University of Virginia law school, commenting on the largely non-controversial career Kennedy has had as a lawyer, lobbyist and court of appeals judge. "He has many of the earmarks of Powell."

For Reagan, who campaigned on the promise to change radically the Supreme Court, Kennedy is a com-

Today, it may finally happen. As if finals aren't bad enough, there's a good chance it will snow today. The high will be in the low 30s. Tonight, snow continuing, low in the upper 20s.

All you students, forget about hunkering South Padre in March. Reconsider hauling out ski equipment for a tame week in the Rockies. And Daytona? Get a real life.

Because Fort Lauderdale is back. Glorified a generation or so ago in the 1960 film Where the Boys Are, the hip vacation spot had a 25-year heyday that ended in 1984 when rowdy crowds, a concerned group of citizens and some bad press prompted the Broward County Tourist Development Council to end spring break advertising.

The move didn't completely stop the exodus of college students to Fort Lauderdale, Fla., in February, March and April, but it did curtail it — last year, close to 100,000 fewer students visited the area during those months.

And Fort Lauderdale business owners weren't pleased.

FOR THE PAST 25 years, spring break has been so big that 50 percent of our revenue has been from those months," Merrimac Beach Resort Hotel owner Bob Motwani said.

Competition from Daytona Beach, Fla., the Padre Islands in Texas and some areas in the Bahamas have hurt business, he said.

"This year, 1987, was the worst one," Motwani said.

So Motwani and other hotel owners in October convinced the Broward County Tourist Development Council to direct $35,000 of its advertisement budget to college students.

"There were a lot of empty beds last year in Fort Lauderdale," council Chairwoman Nicki Gross-man said.

Grossman said greater Fort Lauderdale area tourist revenue from the nine-week season was about $100 million three years ago, but dropped to about $30 million in 1987. Area businesses felt the crunch, she said.

"THEY NEED THOSE kids' bodies right here in the city," Grossman said.

The council will try to attract older, more mature college students by hosting a job fair during the spring, she added.

"They can take advantage of the beautiful beach and at the same time, they can meet with heads of major companies," Grossman said. "They can both unwind and do something for their careers as well."

UI students are not among those likely to be beaching it at Fort Lauderdale this spring, according to local travel experts.

University Travel Financial Director Terry Cameron said that organization doesn't offer travel packages to Fort Lauderdale — only to South Padre Island and Daytona.

Judge receives award

Senior Judge Ansel Chapman of Iowa City received the first annual Award of Merit of the Iowa Judges Association at a judges' conference in Des Moines last week.

Chapman was born and raised in Iowa City and graduated from the UI in 1936 and from Yale Law School in 1939. He served as a district court judge from 1968-85. He has taught in the UI College of Law since 1985.

The Judges Association award is presented to a judge who has made extraordinary contributions to the association and has been a role model for new judges.

Nursing professor honored

UI College of Nursing Professor and Research Director Toni Tripp Reimer has been named a fellow in the American Academy of Nursing. She and 16 other registered nurses were inducted into the organization of nursing scholars and leaders during AAN's mid-October annual meeting in Washington, D.C.

Only 500 of the nation's approximately 1.5 million nurses may hold AAN membership during any given year. Criteria for selection of fellows include outstanding professional leadership in an area of nursing practice, nursing education, health planning and administration, research or media communication.

Tripp Reimer holds a master's degree in nursing and master's and doctoral degrees in anthropology from Ohio State University at Mansfield. She investigates the relationships among ethnicity, aging and health care issues. Two of her projects focus on self-care practices in four ethnic groups and patterns of alcohol use and abuse.

Lecturers receive grants

Four lecturers in the UI College of Nursing have been granted funds to pursue doctoral studies in the UI College of Education.

Nearly $31,000 from the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services Division of Nursing will be shared by Perle Slavik, Martha Carpenter, Margaret Rankin and Rojann Alpers.

Their respective research fields are: parental knowledge of children's growth and developmental patterns as a factor in child abuse; ethical decision-making in nursing education and practice; the effect of chronic pain on cognition; and adolescent females' health education needs during their first pregnancy.

UI registry established

A regional registry of information about dementia and Alzheimer's disease in east central Iowa will be established by UI and state researchers, with a grant from the National Institute of Aging.

The new registry, which will use the facilities and resources of the State Health Registry of Iowa, will give researchers access to information about the disorders. The state registry currently keeps track of cancer and birth defects.

With the new registry, researchers have proposed a variety of studies, including: quality control measures in registry management; the use of results of previous studies of the rural elderly to examine the process and features of dementia registration; an evaluative study of identifying the disorder in chronic care institutions; a pilot study of continuing medical education to improve diagnosis and reporting; and the establishment of a system of physicians to monitor the disorder.

The project's co-investigators are: Frank Kohout, associate professor of preventive and community dentistry; Geri Hall, clinical nurse specialist in geriatrics; Daniel Tranel, assistant resident scientist in behavioral neurology; Jon Lemke, assistant professor in preventive medicine; and Neill Graff-Radford, assistant professor in behavioral neurology. Kathleen McKeen, director of the state health registry, is also a researcher on the project.

Corrections

In a court brief (DI, Dec. 11), it was incorrectly reported that Mercy Hospital of Iowa City was involved in a lawsuit filed in Johnson County District Court Dec. 20. The suit was actually filed against St. Joseph's Mercy Hospital of Mason City, Iowa. The DI regrets the error.

Sweaters, electronic toys are hot Christmas items

By Joseph Levy
The Daily Iowan

Sweaters and electronic toys are the biggest sales items this Christmas shopping season, Iowa City downtown merchants said Sunday.

Cathy Gordy, an employee at Radio Shack in the Old Capitol Center, which specializes in electronic gadgets, said sales of radio-controlled robot dinosaurs and cars have been especially high this year.

"We can't keep them in stock," she said. "I bought three of them myself."

The store has the extinct reptile representations literally stacked in boxes on the floor.

But the high demand for electronic toys hasn't spread to Radio Shack's more traditional sales — computers and stereo equipment.

The store has sold about six computers this holiday season, which Gordy said is "a little bit better than last year."

DAVID WAGNER, another Radio Shack employee, said overall sales so far have been slow. "Saturday night — just a couple of weeks before Christmas — it was deadlier than a doornail in here," he said.

Variations on the "laser tag" game, an adolescent game featuring harmless laser guns, are hot items this year, Janet Martin, assistant manager of Toy-Riffic, 1951 Broadway St., said.

Martin added other non-electronic games, such as Pictionary — a word game — and Scruples — an adult truth-or-dare game, are also selling well.

JC Penney in Old Capitol Center reported selling sweaters in highest volumes right now. Merchandise Manager Kevin Rose said.

"Sweaters are always a hot item," he said, adding store sales are up slightly from the same period last year.

SOME NOVELTY ITEMS — such as Coca-Cola and Mickey Mouse watches — are also selling well this year, he said.

"Your jewelry department is usually really strong during Christmas," Rose said.

But Brian Lewis, manager of Zales Jewelers in the Old Capitol Center, said the rush of Christmas shoppers hasn't hit his store yet.

"You haven't seen the flood that you usually see the day after Thanksgiving," he said, adding a lot of shopping was done before Thanksgiving this year. "A lot of people have shopped a lot earlier than in normal years."

Lewis said if this season progresses like previous years, there will be a rush Dec. 15-24.

Employees at Susie's Casuals, a women's shop located in Old Capitol Center, said sales of sweaters and scarves are topping their lists this year.

"A lot more people are looking for scarves this season," Susie's employee Jamie Janda said.

Formal dresses are also selling well, she added, explaining many husbands attempt to buy the dresses for their wives without knowing what size to purchase.

"A lot of men will look at you and say, 'Well, she's a little like you,'" Janda said.

UI sewer service to be cut Dec. 28 unless bill is paid

By Joseph Levy
The Daily Iowan

The UI's sewer service account with Iowa City became delinquent Friday, and city officials say sewage service to the UI will be cut around Dec. 28 — when most UI students are gone for the holidays — if the UI ignores late-payment notices sent by the city.

Iowa City Manager Stephen Atkins sent a letter to UI Business Manager Michael Finnegan last week, stating the city will not give in to UI demands that consideration be given to rates charged to the UI.

The UI's complete proposal, offered to city officials at a Dec. 3 meeting, states that:

- The UI will pay for sewer services under current rate structures until Dec. 31, 1989.

- The city will agree to enter into negotiations with the UI to develop a contract for the services acceptable to both parties.

- The UI's rate proposal will be based on an independent study by a private consultant.

- And, in the event of an impasse in negotiations, a third-party arbitrator will be utilized.

ATKINS SAID THE city will continue to send late-bill notices to the UI, but doesn't know whether the UI will pay the bill in time to save its sewage service.

"We're going to give them all of the notice in the world," he said.

Police

Two women were arrested by Iowa City police officers early Friday morning after they drove away without paying for gas at Kum & Go, 513 S. Riverside Drive, according to police reports.

Catherine L. Hoyt, and Lonnie D. Rogers, both of Nichols, Iowa, but were apprehended by police officers on Highway 1 within the Iowa City city limits after they drove away from Kum & Go at about 1:21 a.m. Friday, according to the report.

Hoyt and Rogers were charged with possession of open containers of alcohol and fifth degree theft. Hoyt also was charged with OWI, and Rogers was charged with public intoxication, according to the report.

Report: An Iowa City woman was arrested by Iowa City police officers Saturday morning after she reported domestic trouble in her home at 1225 S. Riverside Drive, according to police reports.

Cindra Lu Behnke, 34, reported the situation to Iowa City police at about 2:50 a.m. Saturday, and was arrested and charged with domestic abuse and assault causing injury after officers came to investigate the incident, according to the report.

Report: A man was arrested and charged by Iowa City police Friday morning after a woman reported an incident of reckless driving, according to police reports.

Bradley Lauren Marolf, 20, 510 E. Sixth St., Wilton, Iowa, allegedly was seen driving recklessly and later standing by his car while it was parked at 923 E. College St., according to police reports.

He was arrested and charged with public intoxication, public urination and possession of an open container of alcohol, according to the report.

Report: An unidentified man allegedly took his car from Grand Prix Motors, 733 S. Capitol St., for a test drive last week to determine if a repair job was adequate and never returned, according to police reports.

Jim Fordice, owner of Grand Prix Motors, reported Saturday morning that the man had taken the car on Dec. 9, but failed to return. He also said that he had information that the man was going to take the car to Baltimore in order to ship it to Puerto Rico, according to the report. Then Dec. 11 the man called the garage and claimed he would return the car today.

No description of the man or the vehicle was available.

Theft: Items valued at more than $150 reportedly were stolen from an Iowa City woman's unlocked car as it was parked in the rear lot of 521 S. Johnson St., according to police reports.

Jamie Treacy, 2532 Bartlett Road, reported that between 3 a.m. and 3:30 a.m. Sunday, an unidentified individual entered her car and took her purse, $5 in cash, checkbook, backpack, two books worth $90, a TR55 calculator worth $50, and a Sears and JC Penney's credit card, according to the report.

Courts

By Traci Auble
The Daily Iowan

An Iowa City man pleaded guilty Friday to assault, interference with official acts and public intoxication after he struck police officers at Kinnick Stadium on Oct. 24, according to Johnson County District Court records.

David Lee McDowell, 21, 816 S. Gilbert St., admitted to being publicly intoxicated at the stadium and refusing to take a breath test. While being arrested, McDowell struck a police officer, according to court records.

It then took six officers to handcuff McDowell as he was kicking and punching them. Continually resisting arrest, McDowell had to be carried from the stadium, according to court records.

McDowell originally entered a plea of not guilty to these charges, but reversed his plea on Friday. He was fined $290, according to court records.

Vice president George Bush answers questions Saturday concerning U.S.-Soviet relations following his speech at Clapp Recital Hall.

Bush discusses INF Treaty signing at UI

By Anne Kevlin
 The Daily Iowan

Last week's signing of the INF Treaty will help bring a "measurably safer world" as well as reveal unknown Soviet intentions, Vice President and Republican presidential candidate George Bush told an audience of about 200 Saturday morning at Clapp Recital Hall.

"The INF Treaty and a treaty reducing strategic arms will give us a way to measure those intentions more concretely, and to reduce, step by cautious step, our forces without compromising our security," Bush said.

"That's why the verification process is so important. We will be breaking down the Soviets' wall of secrecy and observing whether the reality matches the rhetoric," he said.

The INF Treaty calls for the elimination of intermediate-range nuclear weapons.

BUSH SAID HE MET SEVERAL TIMES LAST WEEK with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev, who was in Washington, D.C., to sign the treaty with President Ronald Reagan. He described Gorbachev as being intelligent, self-confident and gregarious, but also an "orthodox, committed Marxist."

"He is a formidable and determined competitor for world power," Bush said. "This guy is tough. It's like wrestling Dan Gable."

Steps to reduce strategic arms should be taken carefully, without the assumption that world power is no longer a Soviet foreign policy objective, Bush said.

Bush also said the reduction of nuclear arms should not take place because nuclear weapons "are evil in and of themselves."

"Nuclear weapons have helped keep the peace between the world's great powers for more than 40 years," he said.

BUSH COMPARED CURRENT U.S.-SOVIET relations to those this country had with China 12 years ago.

But he proposed vigorous negotiations in what he said is the Soviet's advantage in conventional and chemical weapons, as well as nuclear weapons. A top priority under a Bush administration would be to eliminate biological and chemical weapons, he said.

"In taking these steps for peace, we must act with high resolve as well as high hopes, with a strength that is not only real, but recognized by the world as real," he said.

"We need a relationship with the Soviets that allows us to discuss our differences honestly, yet work together to build better understanding and cooperations between our countries," Bush said. "Our differences are real, and they are deep, but we can still do business."

About four audience members heckled Bush during his speech, which was sponsored by the Iowa City Foreign Relations Council.

CAC urges training for advisers
 Suggests undergraduate counselors attend yearly sessions

By Paula Roesler
 The Daily Iowan

The UI Collegiate Associations Council last week passed a resolution urging UI administrators to consider requiring all undergraduate faculty advisers to attend annual training sessions to ensure they keep abreast of current graduation requirements and registration procedures.

"We've heard horror stories about students being sent to the wrong place to register or being misinformed about graduate requirements and having to take an extra semester," CAC President Mike Reck said.

Reck said students have complained to him that advisers are often misinformed and give students faulty information.

UI UNDERGRADUATE Advising Center Director Juliet Kaufmann said the UI Self-Study Committee, which reviews the UI's accreditation every 10 years, last year suggested the UI implement an adviser training program. But she said the UI has not yet begun to review the committee's report.

A training program may be helpful to some faculty advisers Kaufmann said, but it would not resolve all the obstacles faculty advisers face.

"Faculty advisers work under difficult conditions and a workshop is not going to solve everything. Faculty members typically do not have access to up-to-date information during registration because they don't have computer terminals telling them what courses are closed," she said, adding faculty members also have time constraints due to teaching and research obligations.

UI Liberal Arts Dean of Academic Programs James Lindberg said some students complain about getting wrong information from their faculty advisers, but he said it is not a major problem.

"BUT CERTAINLY, I think it's a proposal worth considering," Lindberg said of the CAC resolution. "Certainly anything that helps students should be looked at."

UI Communication Studies faculty adviser and Associate Professor Randy Hirokawa said most faculty advisers probably do not need to go through a training program.

"I think the university does a good job of notifying us of policy changes," Hirokawa said. "I never had a problem of not being informed of a policy change."

New faculty advisers should be put through training, but there's very little a training program would tell most advisers that they don't already know, he said.

"I don't think there's a need for the program in this department, but that's just speaking from my personal viewpoint," Hirokawa said. "I could be wrong."

If the UI administration instituted a faculty adviser training program it would probably have to be organized on a department-by-department basis and it would take a considerable amount of time to organize, Kaufmann said.

Secretary of State George Shultz gestures during a press conference in Copenhagen, Denmark, Sunday before leaving for Norway.

Shultz urges Denmark to increase defense

By Norman Kempster
Los Angeles Times

OSLO, Norway — Secretary of State George Shultz rebuked Denmark Sunday for spending only 2 percent of its gross national product on defense and warned that a proposed Baltic Nuclear Free Zone cannot protect the area from Soviet missiles.

Shultz chided the Danish government in response to a question by a Danish journalist who asked at a press conference why the United States does not support the idea, proposed by several Scandinavian Social Democratic parties and endorsed by Moscow, to ban nuclear weapons from the Baltic region.

"For the last 40 years there hasn't been a war in Europe," he said. "Why? It's because NATO got organized, had a deterrent capability and that deterrent capability included most importantly a nuclear deterrent. That is what has kept the peace."

HE SAID THE UNITED STATES AND ITS North Atlantic Treaty Organization allies are prepared to negotiate with Moscow on cuts in both nuclear and conventional forces. But he said the Western Alliance must enter the talks from a position of strength.

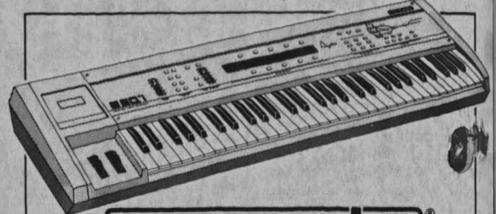

"Denmark ought to do better than spend 2 percent of its GNP on defense," he said.

"We want to reduce the level of nuclear weapons — we want to reduce the nuclear threat," Shultz said. "But we want to do it carefully because we don't want to throw away what has kept the peace."

Most of Shultz's 24-hour stay in Denmark was resolutely non-confrontational. The left-leaning newspaper Politiken carried on its front page Sunday a slightly bemused story remarking that Shultz had met opposition leader Svend Auken on Saturday without giving him a dressing down for the Social Democratic Party's opposition to increased Danish defense spending and support of the nuclear free zone proposal.

Dukakis praises INF Treaty at UI

By Lisa Legge
The Daily Iowan

Democratic presidential Michael Dukakis praised the INF Treaty after a breakthrough in U.S.-Soviet negotiations.

The Massachusetts governor's most of his time answering questions from a crowd of about 100 at the Union Triangle Ballroom, a brief speech to rouse activity among young people. "This is the first time we have arms control agreement, genuine verification and inspection and that is a breakthrough," he said. "The stage for a new process to negotiate deep cuts in nuclear weapons, a test-ban treaty and on chemical war reductions in convention in Europe as well."

ANSWERING questions, Dukakis said the move as president if he passed the INF Treaty would mean a 50 percent reduction in nuclear weapons.

By James Cahoy
The Daily Iowan

Democratic presidential candidate Gephardt of Missouri joined dates in praising the Nuclear Forces Treaty.

Speaking before a special session of the First Floor Conference at 500 Market St., Gephardt said it was a significant step in reducing nuclear weapons. "I don't agree with (President Reagan's) position, often, but I think this is a good step," Gephardt said. "It's a historic agreement, one that we should all be proud of."

GEPHARDT ALSO said the move was a significant step in reducing nuclear weapons, pointing out that it would mean a 50 percent reduction in nuclear weapons.

"I see the forces of the a stranglehold on the Republic," Gephardt said. "We need to have cut missiles and we need to have weapons," Gephardt said.

Saying they would like to see the INF Treaty, engage in further arms control negotiations if he became president.

"We need to have cut missiles and we need to have weapons," Gephardt said.

Dukakis praises INF Treaty at UI talk

By Lisa Legge
The Daily Iowan

The Daily Iowan/Carlos M. Trevino

Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis speaks to UI students at the Union Triangle Ballroom Friday afternoon during a four-hour campaign stop in Iowa City.

Democratic presidential candidate Michael Dukakis praised the signing of the INF Treaty Friday afternoon, calling it a major breakthrough in U.S.-Soviet relations.

The Massachusetts governor spent most of his time answering questions from a crowd of about 225 at the Union Triangle Ballroom, after a brief speech to rouse political activity among young people.

"This is the first time we've got an arms control agreement that has genuine verification and on-site inspection and that is a major breakthrough," he said. "It will set the stage for a new president to negotiate deep cuts in strategic weapons, a test-ban treaty and a ban on chemical warfare and reductions in conventional warfare in Europe as well."

ANSWERING AUDIENCE questions, Dukakis said his first move as president if Congress passed the INF Treaty would be a 50 percent reduction in strategic nuclear weapons.

and that's why Gorbachev's at the table and that's why he's making the proposals he's making," he said. "Let's take advantage of that opportunity."

THE CANDIDATE WAS criticized for evading a question about where he would cut spending during a Dec. 1 nationally televised debate.

"Where would I cut spending? Mostly on the defense side," he said. "Why? Because the domestic side of the budget has been taking terrible hits for seven years."

"On the defense side, I'd cut Star Wars back to where it was in 1983," he said, giving specific examples such as the "midgetman missile" and the "Orient Express," which flies investment bankers to Japan from the United States in three hours.

"On the domestic side we could make cuts in the domestic budget that improve the quality of life at the same time," he said. "We need a real commitment to national welfare reform that would provide real training for real jobs for welfare mothers, take care of their kids so they can go into those training programs and get off of welfare."

Dukakis addressed the INF Treaty earlier in a similar speech to the Iowa City Foreign Relations Council, the fourth candidate to do so.

UI graduate student Chuck Baumann said he thought Dukakis distinguished himself from the crowded field of other Democratic presidential candidates.

"Just the way he conducted himself, he set himself apart," he said. "He seemed comfortable, honest and very straight forward."

"Deep cuts in strategic weapons now are not only possible but probable if we stop this romance with Star Wars."

In addition, he said agreements with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev on bans on testing and chemical warfare and reductions of conventional warfare in Europe would be possible because of the treaty.

"I think we've got an opportunity here to not only stop the arms race but to get control of this thing and begin moving our resources from military to non-military uses," he said. "Believe me, the Soviet Union needs that desperately."

"They're a country in very deep trouble, particularly economically

Gephardt joins praise of INF Treaty before meager Iowa City audience

By James Cahoy
The Daily Iowan

Democratic presidential candidate Rep. Richard Gephardt of Missouri joined other Democratic candidates in praising the recently signed Intermediate Nuclear Forces Treaty with the Soviet Union in a speech in Iowa City Sunday.

Speaking before a sparse crowd of about 25 people in the First Floor Conference Room at Mercy Hospital, 500 Market St., Gephardt said the treaty marked "a significant step in reducing nuclear arms."

"I don't agree with (President) Ronald Reagan very often, but I think this time he has done something good," Gephardt said. "I think this was a truly historic agreement, one that we can all support."

GEPHARDT ALSO criticized the stands taken by Republican presidential candidates against the treaty, pointing out that four out of six of them openly oppose it.

"I see the forces of the far right, which seem to have a stranglehold on the Republican party, opposing the treaty," Gephardt said. "I think they want to take a step back to the cold war."

Saying they would like to see America go further than the INF Treaty, Gephardt said he hoped to engage in further arms negotiations with the Soviet Union if he became president.

"We need to have cuts in intercontinental ballistic missiles and we need to stop all testing of nuclear weapons," Gephardt said.

He also proposed a ban on flight testing for ballistic missiles, talks with the Soviet Union to reduce conventional forces and agreements to stop shipments of arms by the Soviet Union and the United States to Third World nations.

"IT WOULD BE good if we respected the agreements we've signed against nuclear proliferation," Gephardt said, adding that he thought the Reagan administration was allowing the circumvention of anti-nuclear proliferation agreements with regards to American allies such as Pakistan.

Gephardt reiterated his stand against Star Wars, saying he did not want to see weapons deployed in space.

"The heavens must never be turned into the final battleground," Gephardt said. "When I become president, I (will) stop the senseless rush to deploy Star Wars."

In other foreign policy matters, Gephardt criticized the support by the Reagan administration of Third World dictators, saying the United States should be a "force for change" in the Third World.

"Ronald Reagan is always saying there's no freedom in Nicaragua, but as much I hate to say it, the Sandanistas are better than Somoza," Gephardt said. "Where was the U.S. when Somoza was in power?"

Gephardt also spoke on economic policy, saying he wanted to provide clear leadership for America in creating jobs and reducing the trade deficit.

"We need an economy where there can be good jobs for everyone," Gephardt said.

U.S. clarifies stand on arms to Afghans

WASHINGTON — Senior administration officials have moved quickly to reaffirm a U.S. commitment to stop supplying arms to rebels in Afghanistan once the Soviet Union begins a troop withdrawal, apparently in an attempt to clear up confusion caused by President Ronald Reagan's comments suggesting there would be no such cutoff. The reassurances were conveyed to the Soviets during the summit meeting here between Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev, according to Undersecretary of State Michael Armacost.

Little room for space in the budget

WASHINGTON — Public expectations for redeeming America's pioneering future on the space frontier are headed for collision, probably this week, with a reality as hard as a moon rock: An aggressive space program is a luxury the country is not willing to pay for. For the foreseeable future, the strapped federal budget in its current outline does not accommodate even the basic space program now on the books, much less any bold new vision. This will be graphically demonstrated in the next few days when the centerpiece of U.S. space policy meets the iron-fisted imperative of deficit reduction.

Soviet rocket's re-entry lights sky

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. — A disintegrating Soviet rocket lit up the night sky from Montana to Texas, fooling witnesses who thought a plane crashed and meteorologists who called it a meteor shower, officials said Sunday. The rocket re-entered the atmosphere about 7:45 p.m. Saturday. U.S. Space Command officials had tracked it since it was used to launch a Soviet communications satellite Dec. 10, said Maj. Alex Mondragon, a spokesman for the space command.

U.S. blames Haitian army for massacre

WASHINGTON — The State Department has evidence that a senior Haitian army commander with ties to deposed dictator Jean-Claude Duvalier organized recent election-day violence in Haiti, department and congressional sources said.

A U.S. official, who asked not to be identified, said "numerous" reports filed with the department allege "the central involvement" of Col. Jean-Claude Paul, commander of the Haitian army's largest battalion, in the Nov. 29 violence.

Sinatra 'Claus' helps burglary victim

MIAMI — A burglary victim was "flabbergasted" and near tears Sunday after Frank Sinatra offered to help replace her four young children's Christmas presents, which were stolen from under their Christmas tree. "If I didn't know the meaning of Christmas before ... I definitely know now," Emelia Coleman said. "I'm, like, ready to cry. I cannot believe it — Frank Sinatra of all people." Sinatra, performing in Atlantic City, N.J., was one of several Good Samaritans who offered to help Coleman replace the gifts.

Iranians say Khomeini is healthy

NICOSIA, Cyprus — Iran said Sunday the health of spiritual leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini is "better than ever" and described as "utter lies" reports that he was hospitalized. A spokesman at Khomeini's personal bureau in Jamaran, a north Tehran suburb, told United Press International, "By God's grace, the imam's (spiritual leader's) health is better than ever." The spokesman, reached by telephone from Nicosia, was commenting on reports from Iranian exile sources that the ayatollah, who is 87, has been moved to a hospital. "This is utter lies," Khomeini's spokesman said.

Poles protest anniversary of martial law

GDANSK, Poland — Riot police Sunday — the sixth anniversary of the imposition of martial law — dispersed a chanting crowd of 1,000 Poles who unfurled banners saying "Solidarity is alive" and "Communism to the garbage heap of history." Leaders of the outlawed trade union Solidarity warned in speeches before the demonstration that government-imposed price hikes next year could spark food riots like those that toppled the government in 1970.

Memoirs reveal attempt to oust Stalin

MOSCOW — Communist officials unsuccessfully tried to replace dictator Josef Stalin at a 1934 party congress, according to a long-suppressed section of the memoirs of late Politburo member Anastas Mikoyan published Sunday in the Ogonek weekly magazine. The attempt to replace Stalin as described by Mikoyan was seen as a possible explanation for Stalin's great purges of 1934-37. Of the 1,966 delegates to that 1934 party congress, 1,108 were arrested and later killed, imprisoned, sent to labor camps or exiled.

S. Korean officials guard against fraud

United Press International

SEOUL, South Korea — Opposition officials agreed Sunday to jointly guard against a rigged Dec. 16 election, while a ruling party spokesman criticized their presidential candidates for not voting to abide by voting results.

A spokesman for the ruling Democratic Justice Party accused opposition candidates of trying to foment chaos after the election by refusing in advance to accept the outcome if the ruling party is victorious in Wednesday's voting. It will be the first direct presidential election in South Korea in 16 years.

Campaign managers of opposition presidential candidates Kim Young-sam of the Reunification

Democratic Party, Kim Dae Jung of the Party for Peace and Democracy and former Prime Minister Kim Jong-pil of the New Democratic Republican Party said they agreed Sunday to join together in an effort against election fraud.

"We will form a joint struggle committee against rigged elections, exchange information on election-related irregularities and assign joint observers to voting and ball counting stations to watch for fraud," spokesmen for the three parties said.

Kim Jung-wee, a government party spokesman, said opposition candidates Kim Dae Jung and Kim Young-sam are trying to stir post-election confusion with fabricated charges of election fraud.

Something You Should Know About..

NECK PAIN

Almost everyone suffers from neck pain at some time or other. The neck is a delicate structure that has the difficult job of supporting your head—no easy task. It can get injured in many ways such as getting bumped on the head or having your head suddenly thrown around as it is in a car accident or fall. A sudden turn in the wrong direction can result in neck pain and stiffness. Sometimes you just wake up with neck pain from sleeping the wrong way. Poor posture and general stress and tension can also lead to neck problems.

Kennedy

promise choice. His opinions and speeches depict him as a cautious jurist who would not dramatically push the equally split court in a more conservative direction but who appears less likely to rule favorably on some civil rights claims than Powell was.

"There is no basis in his prior work and background that suggests he would move with any sharpness from the current plurality on the court," said William Van Alstyne, a constitutional law professor at Duke University.

Patrick McGuigan, a conservative legal commentator, admits that he is doing "some hand-holding" with some administration groups, reassuring them that Kennedy will be a strong voice for judicial restraint, the view that judges should have a limited role and not make public policy.

"He may represent a more moderate approach than Reagan's previous choices for the seat, but I am confident that he is to the right of Powell and O'Connor," said McGuigan, referring to Sandra Day O'Connor, Reagan's first appointment, who has occasionally disappointed the White House, particularly by her failure to advocate the reversal of the court's landmark abortion ruling. "The liberals will lose ground with Kennedy."

Although the Sacramento jurist is expected to consistently provide a fifth vote for the conservative wing, he is not expected to become an intellectual leader, as Robert Bork most certainly would have been if his nomination had not been rejected by the Senate in October.

Reagan's second choice, Douglas Ginsburg, a judicial unknown who became engulfed in controversy over his ethical standards and past marijuana use, withdrew nine days after his selection.

Unlike the preludes to the Bork and Ginsburg nominations, there is little enthusiasm by most Democratic senators and liberal interest groups for mounting a strong challenge to Kennedy. This is partially because so little is known about Kennedy's views in such controversial areas as abortion, affirmative action and separation of church and state.

Despite his more than 400 written opinions in his 12-year tenure as a judge on the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals, Kennedy's approach to cases is so narrow and cautious that few clues to his philosophy can be discerned.

"The hearings are going to be very important," said Emily Sack of the Nation Institute, a liberal research group. "Kennedy uses much different language than Bork. But if it turns out that he has much the same ideology, then some groups will decide to formally oppose him."

But there is concern among liberals that the Senate Judiciary Committee hearings, scheduled for a single week as the Senate rushes to adjourn for the holidays, will not serve adequately to examine his positions.

"I'm very apprehensive about the hearings," said Ralph Neas, executive director of the Leadership Conference on Civil Rights. "There is a tremendous distinction between Bork and Kennedy in what we know about them."

"So little is known about Kennedy that he will be by far the most important witness," said Neas, an architect of the campaign against Bork. His group has not taken a formal position on Kennedy but has expressed concern about his civil-rights record.

It is Kennedy's civil rights record that has spurred much of the opposition against him from women's and Hispanic groups.

In a 1976 housing-discrimination case, Kennedy ruled against community activists who charged racial steering by real estate brokers in Los Angeles.

The activists had sent white and black couples, posing as home buyers, to the brokers. Kennedy said that such "testers" had no standing to sue, and that such cases could only be brought by actual home buyers who were discriminated against.

Such reasoning was rejected in 1979 by Powell, who criticized Kennedy's ruling.

LEON, Iowa (UPI) — The oldest man in Iowa, who attributed his longevity to a dislike of physicians and a diet that included a limited consumption of meat, has died at the age of 109.

Officials with the Leon Care Center said Charles Ridgway died last Thursday following a recent stroke. Family members said he had remained alert until a few weeks ago, when the effects of the stroke took his ability to communicate.

Ridgway, who was born near LeRoy in 1878, lived in Decatur County for all but a few years when he farmed in Canada and worked construction in Oregon.

Ridgway's wife, Lucy, who he married in 1900, died in 1946. Survivors include a daughter who lives in the Des Moines area, seven grandchildren, 22 great-grandchildren and more than 50 great-great-grandchildren.

Iowa's oldest resident is Theresa Emanuel, 110, who lives in an Ottumwa nursing home.

matema. Obando y Bravo, a frequent and harsh critic of Nicaragua's Marxist-led government, also has led unsuccessfully to get the Sandinistas to hold the next round of cease-fire talks in Central America, preferably Nicaragua.

IN HIS SUNDAY homily at the Santa Paz Church in Managua, the cardinal said that in the second round of talks, "We're going to position the advisers of the government of Nicaragua, the technical advisers, face to face with the technical advisers of the Nicaraguan Resistance."

He asked the congregation to pray for peace because "the sounds of cannons are still heard in the mountains."

The cancellation of the talks came day after Defense Minister Humberto Ortega said Saturday the Sandinista government plans to arm 600,000 Nicaraguans by the year 1995 and is willing to discuss limits on military force with its Central American neighbors, but will "never" give up the right to use sophisticated weapons.

The force of 600,000, up from 250,000 currently, would include civil defense, militia and reserve forces, in addition to the army.

BUT PRESIDENT Ortega sought to soften his brother's announcement, calling it a "proposal" to the government that had not been accepted.

President Ortega stressed in an interview with The Washington Post that the Sandinista government was respecting a Central American peace accord and was willing to negotiate arms reductions with its neighbors and the United States.

"We have talked of having all our population learn to handle arms to be ready to defend the country, but not of organizing an army of 600,000 men, because this would not make sense," he said.

Sunday, on ABC's "This Week with David Brinkley," Lt. Gen. Colin Powell, U.S. national security adviser, said, "I think one has to look at why a nation of 3 million people would want to have 600,000 people under arms."

"I think this presents a direct threat to their neighbors," Powell said. "It also is a good way to keep control of the political situation when you put most of the military-age males under military control."

Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., chairman of the Senate Armed Forces Committee, said, "It confirms what we already suspected was happening there. It makes the situation more difficult there and I think it puts a premium on the United States and the Central American countries really insisting that as part of any Central American peace plan there be a severe restraint on the Sandinista military buildup."

back onto the street, according to police reports.

Linton then apparently lost control of the car, crossed the center line of Burlington Street and collided with a vehicle driven by Daniel Dietrich, 32, of Cedar Rapids.

Dietrich said he tried to get as far to the right as possible but was unable to avoid the crash, adding he was driving through Iowa City on his way back to Cedar Rapids in a red 1983 Chevrolet Z-28 Camaro from a business meeting in Muscatine, Iowa.

"Linton was flying down the road, trailing all over the place, and the police car was chasing right after him," Dietrich said.

"I just took my chances and slammed on the brakes and hoped that he had control of the car," he said.

DIETRICH WAS TAKEN to UI Hospitals and Clinics after complaining of head pains. He was treated and released. He said Sunday evening that he still had a "stiff neck," but said he was "not seriously injured."

Fort said the Iowa Highway Patrol was still investigating the accident Sunday, adding it is standard procedure for a state agency to investigate an accident involving a police officer involved in a chase that results in personal injury.

Fort also said the state police were waiting for test results on material believed to be marijuana taken from Linton's vehicle.

"If the test is positive for marijuana, they might charge him with that (possession of a scheduled substance)," he said.

Fort said the charges filed were not excessive due to the nature of the chase, Linton's "previous problems with alcohol" and "driver's license problems."

Kim Stern, owner of No. 1 Sun & Linn, 100 S. Linn St., said only one student has asked about spring break travel in Florida. Most are interested in vacationing in Mexico, she said.

THE KIDS ARE getting kind of fed of the Florida scene," Stern said.

But Cindy Healey, the assistant manager of the Fort Lauderdale Eco Confetti, said she hopes the '88 spring break season will bring in students, especially those Florida's legal drinking age — 18 years and older.

"I think that the city and the restaurants and bars have learned a lot from past years, and this year could be a lot of fun," she said.

Some area nightclub owners are advertising policies allowing students 18 and older in the clubs to dance, but not to drink alcohol.

"The kids who just want to raise hell for ten days will probably find somewhere else to go," Grossman said.

"We are doing everything we can to let the business community to let students know that this is the most beautiful beach in the world," Stwani said.

Iowa's Bill Jones glances to the floor at Carver-Hawkeye Arena as he pulls down a rebound against Arizona. In a highly defensive grudge match, the Wildcats defeated the Hawkeyes 66-59.

Wildcats' inside play hands Iowa its first loss on the year

By Scott Wingert
The Daily Iowan

Iowa fans can be unforgiving at times, but they do not forget easily either.

A sell-out crowd graciously received former Hawkeye coach Lute Olson when he returned Saturday night to Carver-Hawkeye Arena for the first time since 1983. Olson waved warmly as the crowd gave him a standing ovation.

When the accolades ended, Olson's second-ranked Arizona team whipped third-rated Iowa, 66-59. The Hawkeyes suffered their first loss in seven decisions while the Wildcats remained undefeated with a 7-0 record.

ARIZONA KEYED ITS victory with strong inside play and some timely outside shooting from guard Steve Kerr. The Wildcats' Jud Buechler sealed the win with four straight free throws and a slam dunk in the final minute.

"They had us back on our heels," Iowa Coach Tom Davis said. "I think it was clear that Arizona was far superior in terms of experience, ballhandling, execution. We couldn't get our running game going."

Both teams were shaky at the outset. Kent Hill scored Iowa's first field goal nearly seven minutes into the game and the score was 9-3 midway through the first half.

OLSON SAID HE had trouble fooling his players that the game did not carry any special significance.

"When (Anthony Cook) had a two-footer and missed it by six feet, I knew he was a little tight," Olson said. "The big games will do that. I attempted to downplay the game, but I didn't fool them (the players) for a second. They knew it was an important game."

Arizona's defense dominated play for much of the game, clogging the passing lanes and forcing Iowa into a half-court game.

The result was a 35.5 percent shooting night for an Iowa team which had been averaging over 93 points a game. Roy Marble again led the Hawkeyes with 16 points,

'Big ol' tough guy' keys win

By Hugh Donlan
The Daily Iowan

Arizona center Tom Tolbert delivered Lute Olson a Christmas present Santa never could — Saturday night's 66-59 victory over the Iowa Hawkeyes.

The 6-foot-7, 242-pound senior poured in 14 points in the last 11 minutes of the second half as the visiting Wildcats pulled away from a 35-35 deadlock. Tolbert displayed his shooting touch with eight points on short and medium jumpers and 6-for-6 shooting from the free throw line during the game-deciding stretch.

"He wanted this one real bad and he said this was the best Christmas present we could have given him. He scouted this game real well and I think it's an extra special victory for him," Tolbert said of Olson after the game.

"TOM'S A BIG, OL' tough guy," Arizona Coach Lute Olson said about his center. "He's not the biggest jumper, he's not the quickest guy in the world, but he's got great shooting touch and in the big games, he's played really well for us."

After overcoming opening-minute butterflies and very little scoring by both teams, Arizona began to play like it knew this was a big game.

"(This was) a game that maybe their ol' coach wanted to win a little bit more than some of the other games we play," Olson said.

A jubilant Tolbert agreed with his coach.

"If I wasn't so tired, I'd jump up and touch the ceiling right now and show you how happy I am," he said after the game. "But I played a lot of minutes and I'm tired and I'm just happy. It's a great feeling."

TOLBERT, WHO SCORED a game-high 18 points and pulled down seven rebounds in 36 minutes of playing time, said the former Iowa coach was one of the critical factors in the victory.

Fans cheer loud for Olson but louder for Iowa's Davis

By Marc Bona

He arrived with almost the same pomp and extravagant surroundings of the Pope.

He walked amid the hoopla, strolling into Carver-Hawkeye Arena Saturday night to the cheers that lasted as long as a minute. Fans chanted "Lute! Lute!" as he walked to his team's bench and shook the hands of a virtual entourage of coaches, officials, announcers and VIPs along the way.

It was Lute Olson, coach of the Hawkeyes from 1975-1983. It was his first time back to the arena since 1983. And the fans knew it.

"You don't spend nine years at a place, know all the people that you know and have all the great memories that you have without coming back and feeling a very special kind of feeling," Olson said. "I can't tell you how much I appreciated the fans' initial reaction when I came out and when our team came out. I thought they were kinder than they should have been, and needed to be."

BUT THE RECEPTION ended soon enough. The eerie-sounding rendition of the theme from "Halloween" played by the Iowa pep band sparked the crowd into clapping in unison and the arena fans showed their true allegiance when Iowa Coach Tom Davis walked onto the court with his team. Cheers of "Go Hawks!" erupted.

But the reception was special for Olson: "I had no idea. The largest part of our correspondence at Arizona is still from Iowa, so I knew that there were still some people here that didn't think I was the worst thing that ever walked the face.

"I think the fact (is) that they've got the great coach that they've got right now with Tom. I mean, first of all they should be happy that I've left, with the opportunity left to him. I mean, what he's done is fantastic. So I thought with that they know they've got the best guy they can have here right now, and it's a little bit easier to accept the fact that I've gone somewhere else.

"THERE ARE CERTAIN times when you feel like you do what you have to do, and I felt we had to do what we did. And I'm really appreciative of the response."

Stringer's squad remains unbeaten

Vivian Stringer may have seen an omen before her team took the floor at Carver-Hawkeye Arena Friday night.

Minutes before tip-off the Iowa women's basketball coach met with her assistant coaches outside the Hawkeye dressing room and bit her fingernails. As it turned out, the fifth-rated Hawkeyes had to hold off a late second-half surge before notching a 68-58 win over Nebraska.

"The thing that we have to be happy about is that we did the things we had to when we had to," Stringer said. "We had some difficult times but this is the kind of

Gable's grapplers top Northern Iowa

Iowa continued its wrestling dominance at home Saturday, but the victory was only in numbers.

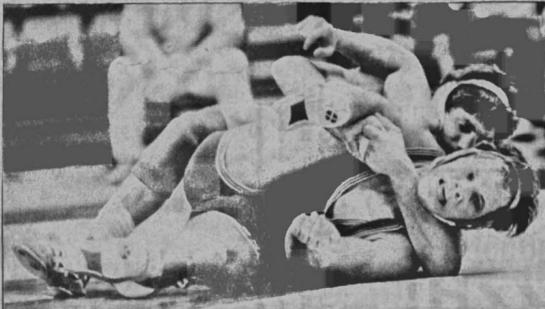

The second-ranked Hawkeyes turned back upset-minded Northern Iowa, 24-14, before 4,250 fans at Carver-Hawkeye Arena.

Iowa Coach Dan Gable was less than pleased with the victory, the Hawkeyes' 41st straight at home since the arena was opened Jan. 3, 1983.

"I'm looking for 10 guys to go the whole way," Gable said. "We have to learn to stand in there toe-to-toe and mix it up. A few guys wrestled hard, but most of them just stood around."

With Iowa idle until the Midlands Tournament Dec. 29-30, Gable said the situation is particularly difficult for the wrestlers who did not compete well. They must now wait a long while for another chance to rectify themselves in match situations.

"IT'S HARD ON you — not getting it going," Gable said. "I'm concerned about it. We shouldn't be seeing this dancing around out there."

At 118 pounds, Iowa's Steve Martin started fast against Olympic hopeful Mark Schwab, securing the two first takedowns. But Schwab scored twice with takedowns in the final 40 seconds of the second period, surging to an 11-7 lead and holding on for the victory, 14-10.

"I'm tired, just going through the motions," Schwab said. "I'm breaking for a couple of weeks now. But I have no doubt I'll be ready at the right time."

Brad Penrith scored a major decision at 126 pounds, rolling to an 11-2 victory over Mike Schwab. Then Iowa pulled off a small surprise, inserting last year's 118-pound Big Ten champion John Regan into the 134-pound slot.

REGAN RESPONDED WITH a victory over Northern Iowa's Marty Anderson, scoring a dramatic single-leg takedown with 33 seconds left to win, 6-4.

"I'm just fortunate for the chance to help the Hawkeyes," Regan, who is planning at staying at 134 for the year, said. "I know this was a good opportunity for me. I have to hit the weights hard and keep progressing."

Northern Iowa's seventh-rated Kurt Shedenhelm dominated Iowa's Eric Pierson at 142 pounds, scoring five takedowns enroute to a 12-4 victory.

150 pounds. He was in control from the outset against the Panthers' Pat Hogan, who had defeated Wisconsin standout Jeff Jordan Wednesday night.

Carpenter scored two takedowns in the first period, one more in the second period and was still pressing for points late in the match while winning 6-4.

"CARPENTER HAS BEEN surprising me all year," Gable said. "He didn't even practice last week. If he'd have been healthy, it could have been a major decision."

John Heffernan continued his slump at 158 pounds, losing a 5-3 decision to the Panthers' Chris Lembeck, who scored a takedown with 1:12 left in the match to run his record to 11-1.

With the meet tied 10-10, Iowa's Royce Alger scored a 25-10 technical fall over Northern Iowa's Keith Massey at 167 pounds in 6 minutes, 12 seconds. Alger scored 12 takedowns, seven in the first period, in pushing his record to 16-0.

team that somehow will get it done."

CORNHUSKER COACH Angela Beck had a similar reaction to the outcome of Friday's game.

"The bottom line was that Iowa did it when they had to get it done and that's what good teams do," Beck said. "At the critical point, the last four minutes of the game, we didn't make good decisions."

Iowa had a 47-36 lead with 12:15 left in the game before Nebraska snapped back to take a 49-48 lead with just under seven minutes to play.

Nebraska had a 51-50 lead with 5:44 left in the game when Iowa's Jolette Law made both ends of a one-and-one to put Iowa up 52-51. Iowa then got a fast-break basket from Shanda Berry and two tur-

Hartlieb, Cook, Haight share team MVP

Eastern Michigan wins California Bowl

The Eastern Michigan Hurons defeated the San Jose State Spartans, 30-27, in the seventh annual California Bowl Saturday at Fresno, Calif.

Team USA splits with Soviets

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (UPI) — Kevin Miller and Tony Granato each recorded a hat trick and Todd Okerlund scored two goals Sunday night to lead the U.S. Olympic Team to a 13-2 victory over the Soviet Selects.

Corey Millen added a goal and three assists for the USA, which took a 2-1 lead in the eight-game series that continues Tuesday at St. Louis. The Americans are 24-13-4 overall, 7-4-3 against international competition, in their pre-Games tour.

The U.S. Olympic hockey team had to settle for a split with a touring Soviet Union squad in the Ohio portion of their eight-game exhibition series.

After opening the tour with an 8-5 win Thursday night in Cleveland, the U.S. team lost 6-4 to the Soviet Selects in Cincinnati Saturday night.

The Soviets, a bit lethargic because of jet lag on Thursday in Cleveland, skated smartly Saturday in Cincinnati and erupted for four goals in the final period to disappoint an American flag-waving crowd of 13,423.

The game was extremely hard-hitting and a brawl broke out among several players — with a few wild punches thrown and four players penalized — with four minutes remaining. The brawl lasted only a few seconds, as officials quickly calmed tempers.

Remaining games on the tour: Dec. 15 in St. Louis, Dec. 17 in Bloomington, Minn., Dec. 19 in Detroit, Dec. 20 in Indianapolis and Dec. 22 in Lake Placid, N.Y.

Drake triumphs in own tourney

DES MOINES (UPI) — Tournament MVP Walter James and Bart Friedrich each scored 21 points to lead the Drake Bulldogs to an 88-77 victory over the Northern Iowa Panthers in the championship game of the Heritage Drake Classic over the weekend.

Joining James on the all-Tourney team were Doug Spradley of Gonzaga, Sam Roark of Drake, and Jason Reese, James Parker and Maurice Newby of Northern Iowa.

Drake improves to 3-3 and will host Nichols State Tuesday night. Northern Iowa falls to 3-3.

Tway, Hulbert win Team Championships

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Bob Tway and Mike Hulbert shot a six-under-par 66 Sunday and held on for a one-stroke victory over Mike Donald and Fred Couples in the $600,000 Chrysler Team Championships.

Tway and Hulbert, who had shot rounds of 61, 59 and 64 to finish at 250, collected the $100,000 first prize despite their worst round of the event. They began the last 18 holes at the Palm Beach Country Club's 7,050-yard South Course five strokes in front of Donald and Couples, who received $57,000 for second place, and Gary Hallberg-Scott Hoch.

Tway, last year's Player of the Year but winless in 1987 until Sunday, sank an 85-yard sand wedge at the 531-yard par-five eighth hole for an eagle.

Czechoslovak duo wins Masters

LONDON (UPI) — Tomas Smid, one of the oldest players on the men's Grand Prix tennis circuit, and Miloslav Mecir, who is one of the best, combined at London's Royal Albert Hall Sunday to carry off the biggest doubles prize in the sport.

The Czechoslovak Davis Cup duo beat Wimbledon champions Ken Flach and Robert Seguso of the United States, 6-4, 7-5, 6-7 (5-7), 6-3, to win the Nabisco Masters title and a Christmas pay packet of $90,000 from them.

The final, which lasted three hours and five minutes, would not rank as a classic because both pairs made too many unforced errors.

Mecir's service return gave the Americans a worrisome time throughout the match and Smid, who has now won 49 major singles and doubles titles in his long career, showed all his hard-earned know-how by working his opponents out of position and frequently producing the point winner.

Football Almanac

Today is Monday, Dec. 14. The Jan. 1 bowls are 18 days away and Super Bowl XXII is 48 days away. Marshall, 10-4, will play Northeast Louisiana, 12-2, Saturday at Pocatello, Idaho, for the Division I-AA national title.

Matchup
A game that many believe is an early preview of the NFL title game and one that likely will decide home-field advantage in the NFL playoffs will take place at 8 p.m. at Candlestick Park when the Chicago Bears, 10-2, play the San Francisco 49ers, 10-2. Bears quarterback Jim McMahon injured his hamstring last week and his status is doubtful.

Quote of the Day
"At this point, I'd like to be optimistic, but I don't want to risk injuring this thing further. I'd rather be healthy for the playoffs. (Backup Mike Tomczak is a good quarterback. He's played well when he's had to. He did a great job for us last week."
— Bears quarterback Jim McMahon on whether he'll play Monday night.

The Bonus Round
Buccaners owner Hugh Culverhouse criticized the NFL owners' Super Bowl XXII bid to award San Francisco players playoff bonuses, calling the proposal "against our management strategy." Under DeFuria's plan, other rostered players will be paid at least a $6,000 bonus for making the playoffs as a wild card. If San Francisco wins the NFC West, the players will earn an extra $10,000.

Revolving Door
The Browns waived rookie punter George Winslow. Winslow was signed to replace Jeff Gossett, who was released and then signed by Houston. Cleveland acquired Lee Johnson on waivers from Houston last Friday. The Oilers waived Johnson when they signed Gossett.

Judgment
Two Minnesota freshmen — receiver Scott Redd and quarterback-defensive back Eric Cherry — are to appear in court Monday after having been charged with unauthorized use of a credit card. They were arrested Friday after being chased through a department store by four security guards. The pair allegedly used a stolen credit card to buy $400 worth of merchandise.

Reversing Trends
The Pacific Coast Athletic Association champs had beaten the Mid-American Conference titlist by a combined 118-77 in the last three California Bowls. But MAC champion Eastern Michigan ended that poor record by beating San Jose State of the PCAA 30-27 in the seventh California Bowl.

Twins pitcher Bert Blyleven, 36, plans to meet with team executive vice president Andy MacPhail Tuesday to ask for a guaranteed one-year extension of his contract. Blyleven, 18-13 last year for the World Series champions, said he wants a commitment from the organization so he can make a decision whether to move his family from California to Minnesota.

Former Minnesota Coach Jim Dutcher, now a broker in Minneapolis, met with NCAA investigators last week to discuss his 11-year Gophers tenure. "I really don't know what they're looking for or what they want," Dutcher said. "They must have something or they wouldn't have spent nearly 2 1/2 years looking at the program when we had it. They've committed a lot of time and money to find something."

Hawks power past Panthers

By Eric J. Hess
The Daily Iowan

John Linxwiler and freshman Chris Beckwith both recorded three victories as the Iowa men's swim team rolled to a 77-33 victory over Northern Iowa.

Friday's meet at East Pool in Cedar Falls, Iowa, gave Iowa Coach Glenn Patton a chance to see how his young swimmers would perform in a competitive environment.

"It was a great opportunity for our younger swimmers to compete," Patton said.

The Hawkeyes won every swimming event, losing only the one-meter and three-meter diving events to Northern Iowa's Thad Sullivan.

Patton said the Hawkeyes took only the swimmers who did not make the traveling team for the Crimson Tide National Invitational Tournament last week in Tuscaloosa, Ala.

BECKWITH, A FORMER high school state champion from Bettendorf, Iowa, won the 1,000-meter freestyle, the 200-meter butterfly and was part of the victorious 400-meter freestyle relay.

Linxwiler, meanwhile, joined Beckwith on the winning relay and also won the 100 free and 200 free.

Linxwiler, a senior from Springfield, Ill., said a shoulder problem has kept him out of competition for about a month. Friday's meet was his first of the season.

"I didn't really know what to expect," he said. "When I got to Northern Iowa I said to myself I had nothing to lose and everything to gain."

The freestyler admitted he is not at full force yet but expected to be during the team's trip to Hawaii over the semester break.

IT WAS ALSO A special meet for Marc Long, who is a transfer from Northern Iowa. The junior from Cedar Falls enjoyed a victory in the 50 free and was the lead leg of the winning freestyle relay.

"He was excited about returning and swimming there," Patton said. Patton also received some other sparkling performances. Nigel Ali, a junior from Rochdale, England, was a winner in the 200-meter

Hawkeyes overwhelm Cyclones

By Brent Woods
The Daily Iowan

The Iowa State Cyclones came swirling into town Saturday afternoon, but the Iowa women's swimming team did better than weather the storm.

They smothered it. In what was billed as a meet that could go either way, the Hawkeyes destroyed Iowa State 177-89 to improve their record to 3-5 in dual meets.

"I expected it to be closer," Iowa Coach Peter Kennedy said. "We swam very well overall. But that's seniors for you — they pushed the magic button and came up with the kind of swims we needed."

The Cyclones, who were 2-3 in duals entering the meet, thought they had a shot to beat Iowa for the first time in five years. All their losses were to Big Ten teams, and all were close.

BUT ALL THE chanting, whistling and cheering they could muster didn't help Iowa State's cause, as the Hawkeyes did their talking in the water.

"Yeah, we thought it would be a lot closer," Iowa State Coach Ramsey Van Horn said. "The key thing was Pete's (Iowa's) depth. We could be right up there with one swimmer, but they would be taking most of the top positions. That really crippled us."

The Hawkeyes put pressure on Iowa State in the meet's first event, taking the medley relay — an event that was favored to go to the Cyclones.

"On paper, I would have given that one to Iowa State," Kennedy said of the event.

Then Iowa's Jane Keating, who didn't swim in Friday's 166-99 loss to nationally-ranked Nebraska,

Then Iowa's Jane Keating, who didn't swim in Friday's 166-99 loss to nationally-ranked Nebraska, dominated the field in the 1000-yard freestyle to win in 10:34.90.

IOWA'S KIM STEVENS then claimed the 200-freestyle, coming in in the final 50 yards to win in 1:52.93, and the rout was on.

Katie Van Verst kept Iowa's shut-out alive in the next event, winning the 100-yard backstroke in 1:00.12.

The Cyclones got their first win in the 100-yard breaststroke, as Jenni Adams won in 1:05.96. But by that time the meet score was 57-25.

Bernie Brandenburg won the 200-yard butterfly in 2:09.76 and Becky Anderson took the 50-freestyle in 24.46 to give Iowa an 82-34 margin going into the one-meter diving.

The Hawkeyes' Terri Millmeir dominated that competition, collecting 280.57 points. Iowa freshman Erica DeGlopper was second with 251.32.

Millmeir also claimed the three-meter diving with 256.35 points.

"I WAS PLEASED" with our performance all weekend," Iowa diving Coach Bob Rydzye said. "We won both boards against Nebraska and came back to win both against Iowa State. It's the best we've dived this year."

Stevens added another victory in the 100-freestyle in 52.39, Sheila Dempsey won the 200-backstroke in 2:12.34, Louise Keogh edged teammate Chris Dieterle in the 200-breaststroke in 2:23.06, Keating won the 500-freestyle in 5:07.12, Brandenburg took the 100-butterfly in 2:13.88 and the Iowa free-relay team of Anderson, Keogh, Stevens and Debbie Lynch won in 3:34.51.

"It was Stevens' best time in the 200-free in two years," Kennedy said. "And Louise's (Keogh) time today was almost as good as last year in the Big Tens. For Bernie (Brandenburg), today was her season-best performance."

"The seniors know when the money is on the table."

Quarterback enigma facing Bears, 49ers

By William D. Murray
United Press International

SAN FRANCISCO — The quarterback position will be the focus of attention tonight when the San Francisco 49ers face the Chicago Bears in a battle between the NFL's two best teams.

In the game's opening moments, the shape of the game could be determined when two key questions are answered. Will Jim McMahon start for the Bears and will the Chicago defense be able to harass San Francisco quarterback Joe Montana?

McMahon injured his hamstring last week in a victory over Minnesota and is doubtful for tonight's game. The Bears (10-2) have until 3 p.m. today before to decide whether to place McMahon on the inactive list.

Earlier in the week, McMahon said he doubted he would play.

"AT THIS POINT," I'd like to be optimistic, but I don't want to risk injuring this thing further," McMahon said in a phone interview with local reporters. "I'd rather be healthy for the playoffs. I think (Mike) Tomczak is a good quarterback. He's played well when he's had to. He did a great job for us last week."

With McMahon in the starting lineup, the Bears have rolled to an impressive 42-13 record. However, San Francisco Coach Bill Walsh said he was not overly concerned about who would be at quarterback for the Bears.

"It would not make any difference in our plans if either quarterback starts," said Walsh, whose team also comes in with a 10-2 mark. "I don't think their offensive approach would change."

McMAHON HAS completed 125 of 210 pass attempts for 1,639 yards, 12 touchdowns and eight interceptions. Tomczak, meanwhile, has completed 53 of 90 attempts for 654 yards, four touchdowns and four interceptions.

On the flip side, the Bears outstanding defense will be severely tested by Montana, who is at the top of his game. So far this season, Montana has completed 256 of 381 attempts for 2,900 yards, 29 touchdowns and 13 interceptions.

"Joe's having a hell of a year," McMahon said. "Right now he's probably playing better than anyone in the league. Offensively, the 49ers are better right now than they have been in the past."

If any unit is up to challenging Montana, it's the Bears defense, which comes in giving up just 83.2 yards rushing a game and with 56 sacks to its credit. But Chicago has to get to Montana before the half-time break. The most significant quarter will be the second, where the 49ers have outscored opponents by a 119-69 margin.

Author defends Knight book

By Marc Bona
The Daily Iowan

Knight was incapable of accepting failure. Every defeat was personal; his team lost, a team he had selected and coached. None of the victories or milestones of the past mattered. The fact that he could quit right then and know that his place in history was secure didn't matter. Failure on any level all but destroyed him, especially failure in coaching because it was coaching that gave him his identity, made him special, set him apart.

— John Feinstein, author of A Season on the Brink, writing about Indiana basketball Coach Bob Knight.

Washington Post college basketball writer John Feinstein, in town to cover the Arizona-Iowa men's basketball clash, autographed copies of his book, A Season on the Brink, Saturday afternoon at Prairie Lights bookstore.

The book, published last year by Macmillan, is a detailed account of Indiana basketball Coach Bob Knight's struggle with his 1985-86 Hoosier team, and about how his coaching wrath engulfed team members and coaches.

Bookstore owner Jim Harris said A Season on the Brink is "probably the best basketball book ever written."

Feinstein wrote about a man whose volatile temper equals his generous disposition. He wrote of a coach who would assault his players on the court during practice with the most negative and profane verbal siege, sometimes kicking the entire team out of practice.

"BOBBY KNIGHT IS, to me, the classic 'Do as I say, not as I do,'" Feinstein said. "He insists his players have discipline; he has no discipline. When his players curse in practice he yells at them; no one uses more profanity than him."

"He is a star, he knows he is a star, he revels in being a star. And sometimes he rubs it in other people's faces."

But Feinstein presents Knight as more than a chair-tossing, media-loathing, tantrum-throwing coach. While Knight's temper may put people off, his coaching doesn't — Knight's overall record in 16 years at the helm of the Hoosiers is 366-119 for a .755 winning percentage.

His integrity is rarely questioned, his honesty almost rude, Feinstein said, and only two Knight-coached Indiana players have not graduated. According to Feinstein, Knight's own academic demands weigh heavier on his players than those required by the school and the NCAA.

KNIGHT'S TIRADES HAD, as Feinstein states repeatedly in the book, one main goal: To get the best from his players.

Knight, who reportedly doesn't like the book, allowed Feinstein total access to closed Indiana practices, team meetings and pregame rituals.

"I told him the book had to show both sides, which to me means good and bad," Feinstein said. "I guess to him it means good and better... He said the book was supposed to be about the players. I spent a week in his hometown, he set up all the interviews. What did he think I was, a tourist?"

"A little of it is amazing, but those are the reasons why he didn't like it."

Feinstein also claims he told Knight the profanity had to stay in the book because it had to "sound" like Knight, who agreed but later said the profanity should have been removed.

The book retails for $16.95 hardcover and $4.50 paperback. The preface is written by former Marquette Coach Al McGuire, Knight's friend and a color commentator on college basketball games for NBC. A chapter on Indiana's 1987 NCAA championship season has been added.

Feinstein also took time out to predict Iowa's key to success this season.

"Keep (Roy) Marble healthy and keep B.J. Armstrong in the game," he said.

Indiana, Illinois take tourneys

By Randy Minkoff
United Press International

Indiana and Illinois, not accustomed to close calls in their own December classics, had tough assignments to remain masters of their own tournaments during the weekend.

While Indiana and Illinois were just getting by, several Big Ten teams posted lopsided victories in non-conference play.

The Big Ten did see the ranks of its unbeaten dwindle to one. Previously unbeaten Iowa lost to No. 2 Arizona 66-59, leaving Ohio State as the only club without a loss in the conference.

For the year, the Big Ten is 46-13 against non-league foes for a 78 percent winning percentage.

Indiana beat Washington State,

65-56, to win the Indiana Classic. It marked the second straight year the Hoosiers were tested in their own tourney. Last year, Indiana barely got by North Carolina-Wilmington 73-72 in the first round of a tourney in which it has never lost.

THE DEFENDING national champions are 5-1. Next weekend, the Hoosiers face Louisville on the road.

Illinois Coach Lou Henson and the Illini stretched their winning streak to 18 straight games in its own tourney, but it was a close call. The Illini edged Auburn 107-103 in overtime after seeing the Tigers score the final 17 points of regulation.

The Illini improved to 7-1 but face top 10 power North Carolina next Saturday. Illinois has scored more than 100 points in its last four wins, a school record.

Elsewhere, Michigan, 7-1, beat Eastern Michigan 115-63; Purdue walloped Ball State 91-47; Michigan State handled Texas Christian 69-52; Loyola of Chicago beat Wisconsin 78-75 and Rollins surprised Northwestern 70-68.

Ohio State is in the middle of an 11-day layoff that ends Wednesday when the Buckeyes, 4-0, meet the Gators.

Action this week resumes on Tuesday when Indiana hosts Eastern Kentucky and Michigan State hosts Illinois-Chicago. Ohio State's unbeaten streak will get a severe challenge when the Buckeyes face nationally-ranked Florida on Wednesday.

Panthers lose in NCAA semifinals

United Press International

MONROE, La. — Senior place kicker Teddy Garcia made the second time a charm as Northeast Louisiana advanced to the NCAA Division I-AA championship with a 44-41 overtime win over Northern Iowa during the weekend in college football.

The victory pits Northeast Louisiana against Marshall, which defeated Appalachian State 24-10 Saturday, in the division title game next Saturday in Pocatello, Idaho. Marshall is 10-4 on the year, while Appalachian State finished 11-3.

Garcia, a 5-foot-10 kicker from Louisville, Texas, booted his winning 41-yard field goal on the Indians' second possession in overtime for the team's seventh consecutive victory and its fourth this year in the final seconds of the game.

NORTHERN IOWA, which ended the season 10-4, rallied from a 35-14 deficit at the half to drive 77 yards in the last 3:48 of the game and tie the contest at 41-41 in regulation play.

Panther quarterback Mike Smith completed five passes in the drive to set up a five-yard touchdown run by Sherrod Howard with seven seconds remaining in regulation play.

Davis: Iowa has to learn from defeat

By Eric J. Hess
The Daily Iowan

Iowa will learn from mistakes it made in Saturday's loss to Arizona, Coach Tom Davis said during his Sunday teleconference.

Arizona's 66-59 victory over the Hawkeyes flaunted several Iowa's weaknesses and for the first time this season slowed the quick tempo games the 6-1 Hawkeyes had enjoyed before Saturday.

"I think every time you go through it, it's got to help you because you go through situations, and it points out where we have to execute better," Davis said. "I think every time you face it, you learn from it."

Arizona quieted the Iowa bench, which accounted for 10 points, seven from guard Michael Reaves. But that fact did not shock Davis.

"IT'S NOT SOMETHING that I would say I was totally surprised by. We've been getting good bench play... it has been somewhat erratic, so I guess I wouldn't say I was totally surprised," Davis said.

The Iowa coach said the bench has not gelled. One reason may be that players coming off the bench last season are now starters.

The Hawkeyes were out-rebounded for the second time this season against Arizona, 37-36. Stanford was the only other team to accomplish that feat.

"We're not the dominant rebounding team that we were," Davis said. "A key to the remainder of this season is whether we're going to be a real good rebounding team or just an average rebounding team."

Davis said there were positives which came from Saturday's loss and will likely be used in preparing for next Saturday's matchup with Iowa State.

"The biggest positive thing was the fact that given all the problems we had, both of our own doing and of Arizona's doing, we were still in position to have a chance to win the game."

Tolbert

Hawkeye team, Tolbert said, that he and his teammates knew what their opponents "were going to do, how they were going to do it, when they were going to do it and why they were going to do it."

The Wildcats succeeded in doing what only Stanford has forced Iowa to do this year — play defense. Only 12 points were scored in the game's first 10 minutes, nine of which belonged to Arizona, and the Wildcats took a narrow 26-25 lead into the locker room at the half.

The Arizona frontline of 6-7 Tolbert, 6-9 forward Anthony Cook and 6-8 skywalker Sean Elliott held Iowa's run-and-gun offense in check, forcing the Hawkeyes into the deliberate offense and defense required in a halfcourt game.

"THAT WAS ONE OF our major concerns," Tolbert said. "Taking away their inside game and taking away the break. And I thought we took away both of them very effectively. Especially the inside game."

Wrestling

"I knew after the first flurry, he was going to go belly-down the rest of the match," Alger said. "I've been working one side too much and everyone knows it. I have to find a new pinning combination."

Charlie Sherertz clinched the victory for Iowa with a 4-2 win over Doug Downs at 177 pounds. Sherertz' takedown with 20 seconds left in the second period was the difference in the match.

AT 190 POUNDS, Iowa's Brooks Simpson returned to lineup in stunning fashion. Back in the practice room only last week following minor knee surgery, Simpson pinned the Panthers' Darrell Long with a reverse headlock three minutes, 29 seconds into the bout.

The last match of the day epitomized Iowa's inconsistency problems. Mark Sindlinger, who won his last five straight matches at last week's Las Vegas Invitational, lost badly to the Panthers' seventh-rated Joel Greenlee, 8-0.

Greenlee scored a two-point tilt in the first period and a three-point cradle in the third period to down Sindlinger, the wrestler he lost to Arizona took away more than Iowa's inside game. The Wildcats' zone defense forced Iowa to run its halfcourt offense, something the Hawkeyes would have preferred to do without.

Roy Marble led Iowa in scoring with 16 points and B.J. Armstrong, on the strength of a three-for-six three-point shooting performance, followed with 15. But the rest of the Hawkeye team, which averaged 93 points per game prior to the Wildcat contest, was unable to penetrate the Arizona defense.

Iowa's leading scorer Jeff Moe was able to get off only one shot the entire game, which he missed.

Tolbert said he knew before the game the second-ranked Wildcats had what it would take to beat the third-ranked Hawkeyes. If Arizona could beat the Iowa press, they could beat Iowa.

"I knew if we didn't have trouble with the press we'd win the ballgame," he said matter-of-factly. "It's just great to come in here and get a victory."

Hawkeyes

but he was only successful on five of 17 attempts from the field.

"THIS ONE WILL open some of our eyes," said Marble, who became the 21st player in school history to score 1,000 points. "We were a little impatient, not ready for certain situations. We'll talk this one out and be ready next time."

"We tried to make the shooters drive and the drivers shoot," Olson said.

The Wildcat frontline of Cook, Sean Elliott and Tom Tolbert collected 24 rebounds and blocked five shots. The trio combined for 36 points.

Olson

Olson spoke of all the hand-shakers and friendly passersby at his side at the beginning of the game. "All of those people were there keeping score for the nine years that I was there. They're friends. It was nice that most of the administration was there to say hello. And that's what friendships should be all about."

"Good job, Lute," Davis said to Olson as the latter stepped up to the microphone at postgame interviews. "I warmed 'em up for you."

Olson proceeded to call the matchup a "fiercely competitive kind of ballgame," and said he felt a little more strongly about the contest than others.

"It was a fiercely competitive kind of ball game," Olson said. "There was not a time when that ball went up on the boards that you didn't see a great effort out of both sides."

Iowa failed to rattle Arizona with its pressure defense. On the other end, the Wildcats were quick getting back on defense, changed their zones and kept the crowd from becoming a factor by stopping Iowa's running game.

"I REALLY LIKE their (Arizona's) team," Davis said. "They take good care of the ball, change defenses, make good use of their talents. They disrupted our offense."

"You hate to get exposed and have around jumpers from Jolynn Schneider to go up 58-51, a lead the Hawkeyes never relinquished.

Neither team shot well from the floor. Iowa finished with a 45.9 shooting percentage while Nebraska shot at a 45.1 clip. Stringer said the cool shooting was due to the pace of the game.

"YOU SAW A game that was up and down the floor," Stringer added. "I thought we were into it. We didn't get frustrated with the fact that we were missing five-foot shots. If we would have been playing in Nebraska we would have been in serious trouble."

Iowa was without the services of point guard Pam Williams, who was in uniform but did not play due to a bad back. Stringer said that without Williams the Hawkeyes take on a different look.

"Without Pam in the lineup it causes us to sputter on offense because it forces us to use Michelle (Edwards) as a ballhandler," Stringer said. "Our other point guard, Jolynn Schneider, was playing with an infected foot so we were down at that position."

EDWARDS CAME INTO the game averaging 23 points per game, but because of the role switch, she finished with only 12 points Friday.

"This team has a lot more people than just Edwards," Beck said about the Hawkeyes. "Schneider stuck it in our face a couple of times down the stretch and (Franthea) Price really hits the boards. That's what makes them such a good team. I would kind of get tired just hearing about Michelle all of the time."

"This was a win for us no matter what the score was," Beck added. "We had a lot of fun. It's a great opportunity to play the No. 5 team in the nation and then to play them tough in their gym."

Berry and Price led the Iowa with 17 points apiece while Maurice Ivy had 22 for Nebraska.

The win ups Iowa's record to 6-0 on the year, the best start in Iowa women's basketball history.

IOWA, HOWEVER, scored just

Bakkers top list of boring celebrities

United Press International

MAPLEWOOD, N.J. — They may have lost their television ministry, their famed theme park and even their air-conditioned doghouse, but Jim and Tammy Faye Bakker have at least one consolation from 1987.

And for Alan Caruba, the world's self-appointed arbiter of boredom, that's more than enough to earn them the title of "The Most Boring Celebrities of the Year."

In addition to the Bakkers, Caruba's list of 1987's most publicized bores includes:

- Vanna White. "Even she can't figure out why anyone is interested and we agree."
- Lt. Col. Oliver "Ollie" North. "The 'Joe Izuu of national security.' He'll follow just about anyone up a hill and tell the biggest fibs you ever heard."
- Bruce Willis. "Here's a guy who built an entire career on a smirk."
- The Royals. "The most boring family in the world, thanks to the media. Di loves to dance, Charles likes to paint, Edward hates the marines, Fergie loves to fly, Andrew smiles a lot, Anne keeps falling off horses and the queen must be heavily sedated these days."
- Max Headroom. "From the cover of Newsweek to Nobody-in-Particular with the click of a dial. G-g-g-gooby, Max, you c-c-c-computerized f-f-f-fruicake!"
- Sean Penn and Madonna. "These kids give a whole new meaning to 'flash in the pan.'"

Joffrey 'Nutcracker' shines

By B. Gordon
The Daily Iowan

Amid a festive atmosphere of bright gowns and tuxedos, rich candies and flowing champagne, the Joffrey Ballet's Nutcracker made its triumphant debut at Hancher Auditorium Thursday night.

There are close to 200 Nutcrackers performed every December in this country, but the Joffrey's is undoubtedly in the very top ranks. The ballet is a delicious eye-ful from the standpoint of both production and staging and manages to provide food for thought as well.

After a brief section of the overture, the curtain rises to reveal a naively watercolored drop featuring a Christmas tree, toys and a giant toy soldier nutcracker in the center. The action begins in front of the drop during the overture as we see Dr. Drosselmeyer, a magician, arriving with his nephew laden with gifts for his godchild Clara's Christmas party.

THE PARTY SCENE seems to be where most of the recently discovered ballet music has been replaced in the score. The extension of this scene gives Joffrey an opportunity to expand the events that will operate metaphorically throughout Clara's dreams but runs the risk of occasionally becoming tiresome. There is little dancing here, although much fine character portrayal on the part of the dancers.

We see foreshadowings of the images in the past of the ballet right at the beginning, as in a well constructed work of literature:

Dance

Fritz, Clara's brother, frightens the girls with a rubber mouse which will attack the Nutcracker later that night; Clara sits with her dolls on a rocking horse that will take her to the Land of Snow; and many of the other children's gifts will come to life later in the "Divertissements" section of Act II.

CLARA IS SHOWN to be a girl on the verge of young womanhood when she plays with the children and dances with the adults. Many Nutcracker ballets choose to interpret Clara's Christmas Eve dreams as symbolic of a rite of passage into adolescence, but this reviewer has never seen that symbolism handled as lucidly or slipped in the realism of the first scene more easily.

In the next scene, after the partygoers have trundled wearily home and Clara comes down alone to play with the nutcracker her godfather Drosselmeyer gave her, giant mice, designed by Kermit Love of the Muppets, attack. Drosselmeyer transforms the toy nutcracker into the commander of a tin soldier army, which defends the home front.

The armored, glow-eyed rats and plump mice leap and twist as the soldiers march in stiff formation, and finally the King of the Mice duels the Nutcracker and defeats him. Clara throws her shoe at the mouse king, however, and he dies as well.

DROSSELMAYER REVIVES the Nutcracker with a pinch of fairy dust, and he comes to life looking remarkably like Drosselmeyer's nephew, the object of Clara's desire during the party scene. As all three are transported into the Land of Snow, Clara's parents in the form of the Snow Queen and Snow King greet the heroes and seat Clara on a life-sized rocking horse.

Clara's brother Fritz makes an exuberant appearance as the Snow Prince, winningly danced by Edward Stierle. Stage effects are extraordinarily well utilized in this section, from falling snow to fog streaming onto the stage to angelic snow trees carrying lit tapers.

ONE OF THE advantages of having a steady corps is that all the people in it are used to dancing in groups and can exactly mimic their fellow dancers' movements without drawing attention to themselves as individuals. One might think that a no-star policy such as Joffrey's would not lend itself to excellent corps work, but Thursday night his corps were as close to perfection as any grand old ballet company's.

Act II takes place in The Kingdom of Sweets, with the Sugar Plum Fairy and the Nutcracker Prince, no longer the same couple as in the Land of Snows although costumed similarly. The Prince dances equally with Clara and the Sugar Plum Fairy, suggesting that a transformation has already taken place within Clara.

THE "DIVERTISSEMENTS" are complimentary gifts from the Sugar Plum Fairy given life and character: chocolate from Spain, coffee from Arabia, tea from China, nougats from Russia, marzipan shepherdesses and a gingerbread family. This section of the ballet is a composer's and choreographer's showcase, and Scott Barnard's staging takes much care to give individual flavor to every piece. Kermit Love's Mother Ginger is sure to thrill every child who sees her, and the other soloists received enthusiastic, spontaneous applause.

The "Waltz of the Flowers" is the masterwork of the ballet, choreographically speaking. The stage is drenched with color, the movement rich and languid, each stage picture created with an eye to the purest lines of the human body. To watch this grand waltz is to rediscover the magic of the ballet, which relies on the appeal of a perfect surface.

IF THERE IS A small deficiency in the Joffrey Nutcracker, however, it is with the Grand Pas de Deux, or "dance of two," between the Sugar Plum Fairy and the Nutcracker Prince. The choreography is beautiful, but concentrates — as many of them do — solely on the strength of the female partner. Given the metaphorical structure of this production of the ballet, as well as the passionate music, a more equal duet might have been welcome. This would have served the function of demonstrating to Clara, a fledgling adult, the wonders of life-long love.

The UI Symphony as conducted by John Miner gave a worthy performance, as did the Iowa children who were featured as guests in the party scene, various toys and Mother Ginger's children. They showed true panache and talent.

The premiere ended with thunderous applause and a standing ovation from the Hancher crowd.

A/E Briefs

UI Press publishes a collection of 14 short stories by Lucia Nevai entitled Star Games. The book was selected as co-winner of the 1987 Iowa Short Fiction Award by writer Alison Lurie.

Lurie described the book: "The stories in Star Games are full of energy, invention, humor and feeling. Whether they deal with a steamy sexual encounter, an alcoholic spinster organist or a folk-art commune, the range of sympathy and generosity toward all the characters is remarkable. Lucia Nevai is a new writer to watch and to celebrate."

The collection pictures a cross-section of today — a reconstituted step-family struggling to put down new roots, women self-destructively caught in unfulfilling relationships with men and the changing relationships between friends.

Nevai works as a writer for advertising agencies and television in New York City. Her stories have appeared in Mademoiselle, Prairie Schooner, Blue Line, and the Great River Review. She received the 1986 PEN Syndicated Fiction Award.

The Iowa Short Fiction Award competition has been conducted by the Iowa Writers' Workshop since 1969. Two $1,000 prizes are awarded annually, and the UI Press publishes the works of the winning authors.

Hancher Showcase, the Hancher Auditorium gift shop, has a wide selection of gifts in conjunction with the Joffrey Ballet's production of The Nutcracker.

Imported nutcrackers, nutcracker tree ornaments and posters are available as are many other gifts.

Commemorative Nutcracker posters, designed by Gary Kelley of Waterloo/Cedar Falls, Iowa, depict Clara's dream and stress Iowa's important role in developing the Joffrey production.

Kelley has received world-wide fame for his previous posters for Iowa Dance Residencies, UI Opera Theater and the Iowa Shakespeare Festival. His poster for the 1982 UI residency of the Joffrey II Dancers won a gold medal from the Society of Illustrators and was featured in Idea, Japan's leading graphic arts journal.

Receipts from the sale of Kelley's Nutcracker poster will support the UI/Joffrey Nutcracker project.
