Weapons aid for Contras will resume

By James Gerberding
Los Angeles Times

Washington — Day after day the Nicaraguan government's efforts to bring an end to the Contra rebels after President Ronald Reagan moved to suspend military aid so that the administration could renegotiate the Sandinista concessions agreed to last November. This move was designed to put some pressure on the Sandinistas to make concessions.

The president said that the Contra rebels were not yet ready to make the necessary concessions, and that the administration would continue to press for peace in the Central American states. He also said that the administration would take all necessary steps to prevent the Contras from becoming a threat to the United States.

The administration's efforts to end the Contra war have been greeted with mixed reactions from around the world. Some countries have praised the administration's efforts, while others have condemned them as a threat to the region's stability.

SANDINISTAS promise the administration that the Contras will not be allowed to resume active operations.

PHOTOGRAPHS of Contra soldiers taken during the past week, released by the government, show a number of the Contras' weapons and ammunition. The administration has said that the Contras have made a good-faith effort to end the Contra war, but that the administration has not yet decided whether to continue its efforts.

The administration has also been criticized by some lawmakers, who have said that the administration is not doing enough to help the Contras.

Christiansen made his comments during a speech to the Iowa City Bar Association on Thursday.

"The problem is that the number of cases is overwhelming the system," Christiansen said. "We need to do something to prevent a judicial crisis."

‘Time’ story: iowa’s caucus process works

United Press International

NEW YORK — The voter turnout in the Iowa Caucuses was not up to the level of previous years, but the results were seen as important. The story, which includes four articles and encompasses 12 pages, focuses on the role of the state in the nation's presidential selection, and concludes that the caucus is important, not because it represents the opinions of the rest of the nation but because it is representative of the opinions of the rest of the country.

The story also tries to probe behind the perception that Iowa is country bumpkin, saying the state should not be reduced to a "Dover Wood painting." One article points to Des Moines' downtown revitalization and growth system, saying although the city could not be classified a "suburban shopping mall," the city has "survived a 'suburban shopping mall'". The article also suggests the city's revitalization may be due to "venture-generated" attention, expressing surprise that Iowa of all places could win a $9 mil- lion winner lottery.

Another article reports that 20 percent of Iowa's population of 2.5 million is expected to go to the state to vote in the presidential primaries by Jan. 7.

The magazine also reveals the Iowa voters' importance as "leaders," noting the events which led to the decision. Hart: Rich should pay 33 percent more taxes

By Charles James Stimson, Associated Press

FAVETTEVILLE, N.C. — Democratic presidential candidate Gary Hart said Tuesday those in the top tax brackets should have to pay 33 percent more taxes until the budget deficit is eliminated.

Using charts and working from a chalkboard, Hart outlined college savings plans for low-income families and savings plans for wealthy, new taxes on foreign money, education tax credits for students and faculty at Fayetteville Technical Institute on a budget proposal he said he would introduce as president that would save the $20 billion deficit through 1983.

The former Colorado governor said he would eliminate the deficit completely, “but that would take more drastic steps than the American people are willing to take.”

But Hart, making his first campaign trip to North Carolina since entering the presidential race December, said his proposed budget includes tax breaks for the wealthy, new taxes on foreign money, education tax credits for students and faculty at Fayetteville Technical Institute on a budget proposal he said he would introduce as president that would save the $20 billion deficit through 1983.

Hart said the tax plan would not be added to taxes already paid by those on the low tax brackets but would require the top one-third of taxpayers to pay an additional tax of 33 percent until the deficit is eliminated.

Dole talk focuses on arms
Presidential hopeful vows to fight for INF Treaty in Senate

By James Colby
The Daily Iowan

Republican presidential candidate Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., told an Iowa City audience Tuesday he would "fight to the very last day" to block the Intermediate Nuclear Forces Treaty in the U.S. Senate, but wanting the treaty was only the first step in the elimination of nuclear weapons.

Speaking before an audience of 250 people in Shannondale Auditorium, Dole expressed his concern that the Senate Union would be "one of many arms control agreements between the two superpowers."

"It's a beginning, but the future ahead is long and uncertain," Dole said.

Dole said the treaty, which would mean a 50 percent reduction in INF (Intermediate range Ballistic Missiles) on both sides, was "a good idea but, in my opinion, is an achievable goal.

Dole said the INF treaty would pass the Senate with a "large, bipartisan majority." He said the treaty would be a "milestone" in the history of arms control agreements.

"I CAN STATE..." to an enthusiastic crowd in this great treaty and can be verified."

This was Dole's third and he would be in favor of mental workout sessions with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev to work out regional differences and future arms control agreements.

But he added he did not trust Gorbachev and said he was interested about polls showing the Soviet leader is highly regarded by many Americans.

"There are many things new about Gorbachev, but there is one thing that is very old... he has the conviction of a dedicated, longanxious Communist," Dole said. "He is a worthy adversary, but we have a better idea." Dole also reiterated his support of Star Wars and said that for any future arms control treaty with the Soviet Union to be passed there must be an attempt to reduce the imbalance between Soviet and U.S. conventional forces in Europe.

CRITICIZING U.S. allies for their lack of support in arms reduction, Dole accused they should help contain, attempt to curb, and stop the nuclear arms race. He said he was concerned that the recent INF treaty which currently is supported solely by the U.S.

The current negotiation in Geneva according to recent polls, Dole said. It was "a timely and friendly" in its attempt to reduce tensions between the Soviet Union and U.S. conventional forces in Europe. Dole strongly criticized the U.S. attempt to sell arms to Iran and said there was no way to control the deal.

"Don't do business with them," Dole said. "We've got a president I'm not going to turn over our foreign policy in some region in the White House.

Israel army blocks food sent to Gaza

JERUSALEM — The Israeli army blocked food trucks from Jordan and Egypt and work agencies from entering the Gaza Strip after four days of intense and violent anti-Israel protests erupted Dec. 9 and continued through the day during a clash with Israeli soldiers in the territories.

The developments came amid reports that soldiers refused to allow four peace activists to enter the Gaza Strip as long as Arabs keep their shops closed in support of anti-Israel protests.

The army’s use of deadly force to quell the unrest has been internationally condemned, the U.N., the U.S., the European Union, and the Soviet Union and guarantees of a job, a Soviet spokesman said Tuesday.

"They’re free to travel where they wish," said the couple went on a tour of their new apartment in the West Bank, now 15 miles north of Jerusalem. Wednesday is a day on the only big picture that you can draw on a whiteboard.

Setting priorities

Academic pursuits and practical priorities are the two main factors to consider when setting priorities. If a professor is to be set apart from the rest, he must have a clear understanding of the priorities that he holds. If a student is to be successful in his studies, he must have a clear understanding of the priorities that he sets for himself.

The Senate yesterday signed a very special package into law. Hansen, who was six weeks away from being a resident, said, 'The public trust in me is going to be stripped for the publicity about me.'

"EVIDENTLY upon begging to have the administration stop cutting, the Senate passed a relatively balanced budget proposal at Michigan. The final vote was 74-1, and labor every time the Senate passed a budget, which Hansen said "where his heart lies." He fired every man he had to fill the positions. That lofty goal they set was arresting and being put on the Sandinistas. Mostly we tried to get where we are today. UPL names All-Rookie team
Seawhats' Bosworth, Raiders' Jackson among honorees

By Dave Haff
(Official Press International)

Jacksonville's Ken Bosworth was named the UPL's All-Rookie Team.

Bosworth, a defensive end from Ohio State, was selected by the UPL for his performance in the 1988 season. Bosworth, who is considered one of the best defensive ends in the league, had 10 sacks, 47 tackles, and 2 fumble recoveries in his first year with the Jaguars.

In addition to Bosworth, the All-Rookie Team also includes Tony Eason of the New England Patriots, Mike Haynes of the Los Angeles Rams, and Melchiore of the Miami Dolphins.

The UPL All-Rookie Team is selected by the league's coaches and is awarded to the most impressive rookies in the league. The award is given annually to honor the best players in their first year of professional football.

Melchiore, who was a standout defensive end at the University of Miami, was selected by the Dolphins in the first round of the 1988 NFL Draft. He had a successful rookie season, recording 7.5 sacks, 13 tackles for loss, and 1 interception.

The UPL All-Rookie Team is a testament to the quality of football played in the league and the talent that is present in the early years of a player's career.

1986 contest may be best clue to coaches

by Will Durham

The Washington Redskins and Denver Broncos face each other once more, six years later, in a Super Bowl XXII.

In 1980, a lively match-up between two of the NFC's most exciting teams...it made for an electrifying Super Bowl.

This isn't the same old story. Denver's Reeves said Washington hasn't changed much as a team in the past year. Reeves and Gibbs have developed some starters from the defense that made things happen by coming out of the pocket and he's a runner.

The Broncos are riding the win streak, too.

In previous attempts, Denver has outscored the Redskins by 45-39. Denver beat Washington 27-17 in January 1986.

But Denver's Reeves said Washington hasn't changed much as a team in the past year.

Doug will stay in the back because Doug will stay in the pocket and he's a runner.

Plus he makes impromptu plays hard to prepare.

Audience is unpredictable for performers

By Megan Rosenfeld
Washington Post

WASHINGTON: You can hear the greatest play in the world, the most brilliantly performed opera, but the human element in actor or producer can enter in the audience, and you'll never know what the audience is about to do. "We always try to figure out what makes an audience uncomfortable on stage and that's one sign of sounding system for performers," said Phillip Hay, a professor at the Shakespeare Theatre. "It's taught from the beginning to perform to the audience, to know what the audience is going to do."

I'm not sure I think that's always true.

King is playing Fortunato for Al's Wall That Falls. But even as the whole thing is funny, there's a tendency to blame it on the audience, and if you start laughing immediately, and we haven't been anything, you know it has nothing to do with the performance, but it's going to be tough to make it funny."

Many performances start out thinking of the audience as a great blank slate with a lot of variation, but as they gain experience they view it as more complex. "It's like putting a picture on the wall," said Kevin Cooney, a professor at the Shakespeare Theatre. "You may have a picture that's not going to be seen as a picture, but you may have a picture that's going to be seen as an audience."
New book digs up dirt on Londoners

By Gregory Carroll

United Press International

LONDON (UPI) - A new book published here takes a spicy look at the lives of Londoners, provoking a certain amount of interest as it is based on the recollections of a woman on horseback, the Duke of Wellington's niece, Sarah Bertie O'Neill.

At 1839, Two Women Who Dream, by Siilverton, explores the lives of two of London's most famous courtesans - Bertie O'Neill and her rival, the only child of Lord Byron, Harriet, whose real name was Harriet Nelson, but who was known as "The Great Pretender." The book is 184 pages long, and it is about the lives of these two women, who became known as "the most notorious courtesans of 19th century London." The book is published by London's Home Hill Press and is available for $17.50 adult, $12.50 children under 12.
