City teacher contract talks near agreement

By Cliff Verrett
The Daily Iowan

Negotiators for the Iowa City Education Association and Iowa City Community School District said Wednesday they are close to reaching an agreement on the 1988-89 Iowa City teachers contract.

Following a closed session Tuesday night which lasted into early Wednesday morning, negotiators from both sides said they should reach a final agreement on the contract within the next two weeks.

"We met last night and are very close," Iowa City Community School District Chief Negotiator Al Azinger said Wednesday. "We anticipate a voluntary settlement."

Azinger said more details of the contract will be released once a final settlement is reached.

Iowa City Education Association Chief Negotiator Pete Muir affirmed the two parties were very close to an agreement.

"We tentatively agreed on a number of language items," Muir said. "We are very close on a number of issues, including economic issues, and very confident we are close to a voluntary settlement very soon."

MUIR SAID THE negotiated package will probably include an increase in total salaries for teachers.

"We are reaching a total package including a total increase in salary, while addressing some concerns of faculty," Muir said.

But Muir said the contract increases will not equal the across-the-board pay increase the ICEA requested three months ago.

The two sides have been negotiating since Oct. 16, when the ICEA asked for an 18 percent increase in teacher salaries. The district offered the teachers a 1.2 percent increase on Oct. 30.

Azinger said in October that an 18 percent increase would cost the district $1.5 million and would force the district to make cuts in other areas.

He said such an increase would be too much for the district to afford when it only has a 3 percent budgeted growth for the 1988-89 school year.

IN ADDITION TO salary increases, some items that have been discussed during negotiations are increased insurance coverage, implementing a "sick leave pay bank" so teachers who have exhausted their sick leave may borrow other teachers' unused sick days, and reducing the work loads of elementary art, foreign language and physical education teachers.

This year's negotiations process contrasts with last year's negotiations, in which the two sides were far enough apart that they were forced to call in an arbitrator for the first time in district history. The arbitrator eventually ruled in favor of the district.

"We feel really good that we are reaching a voluntary settlement," Muir said.

This year the union and the district have agreed upon an "evaluation instrument" — the way teacher performance is evaluated. Last year, disagreement over the evaluation instrument was the main issue which forced the district and the union to go to arbitration.

Regents OK plans for new UI buildings

Replacement for Armory is approved

By Anne Kevlin
The Daily Iowan

AMES — The state Board of Regents Wednesday approved a design for the UI Field House Armory replacement facility, scheduled to be completed before the Armory is demolished in December 1988 or January 1989.

The razing of the Armory will make room for a psychiatric pavilion extension of the UI Hospitals and Clinics, a project the regents approved at its September meeting.

But regents asked UI officials to seek alternatives to a current proposal to move the UI ROTC program from the Armory to South Quadrangle Residence Hall — a proposal that has been criticized by some UI student groups.

South Quad currently houses participants of the UI Foreign Language/International House, a program that would be relocated to Hillcrest Residence Hall if the proposal were finalized.

UISOPHOMORE Caroline Scalise represented the Foreign Language/International House in addressing her concern to the board.

"If we were to move into a facility that was part of a bigger dorm, the attractiveness for grad students would be lost and it would be intimidating for foreign language students to be housed with other students," Scalise said. "It would break up the family atmosphere."

The architects for the replacement facility — Bussard Dikis Associates of Des Moines — unveiled the design they said would replace the Armory's basketball and volleyball courts while maintaining the architectural character of the connecting Field House.

The structure would be elevated on columns above a parking area.

"IT'S PLENTY SAFE, and we made sure of that by over-designing with steel and concrete," architect Ken Bussard said.

Regents viewed a slide presentation and examined a cardboard mock-up of the planned building, which will have an interior walkway connecting it with the swimming pool wing of the Field House.

An east-west pedestrian walkway between the planned structure and the Field House will maintain the heavy crowd flow that occurs during football season, architects said.

"We approved it and now that the regents approved it we're moving right along," UI Planning and Administrative Services Director Richard Gibson said.

Construction of the new facility is scheduled to begin this spring.

In other regents action:

- The regents approved the UI proposed tuition and fee schedule for the school year 1988-89. They deferred a decision on a proposed schedule for miscellaneous services fees until its February meeting at the suggestion of UI Interim President Richard Remington and student representatives from the UI Collegiate Associations Council

Laser center set to proceed as planned

By Paula Roesler
The Daily Iowan

AMES — Despite concerns about high costs, state Board of Regents members Wednesday voted to proceed with design plans for the $25.1 million UI Laser Research Center.

During the first review since preliminary plans were unveiled last month, California architect Frank Gehry showed regents revised plans for the 141,000-square-foot structure to be built north of the Union.

The original model included a low rectangular base building with three and four-story wings jutting at 45 degree angles toward the river. The revised model depicts a building with one wing shortened and built perpendicular to the base.

After reviewing the revision, some regents voiced dissatisfaction with the plans.

Regent John Fitzgibbon said the design's appearance was satisfactory, but he said there should be a greater effort to make the building more cost-efficient.

"I DON'T HAVE the solution," he said. "I'm not going to even try. That's the architect's job. But I do think we should try to cut costs. I don't want to get boxed in (to a project that is not economically feasible)."

Fitzgibbon said equipment and funding should be the most important considerations.

"Once we have equipment and funding — and that's already taken care of — we don't have to worry about how many lumps and bumps are on the building," he said.

But Regent Percy Harris said the building's appearance could help attract top laser scientists to the UI.

"I like the building," Harris said. "I would not change it one bit. I can see it on that river bank beautifying an already beautiful campus."

"I think what we need here are the right scientists, really, personally, not the bricks and the mortar," Regent Charles Duchon said.

"ACTUALLY, what we're hoping to achieve is a great scientist and a great building — both, not one or the other," Board President Marvin Pomerantz said.

Regent Jackie Van Ekeren said it is "frustrating" for regents to balance aesthetic and financial considerations.

"It's difficult for us to tell the architect about his art," Van Ekeren said. "We liked the plans, but we can't spend too much money. We have a duty to be fiscally responsible. It's a Catch-22."

Van Ekeren also said some regents are concerned about finding laser scientists by the spring of 1990 when the facility is scheduled for completion.

"But I'm still convinced they'll find somebody to come," she said. "The university is still out there looking for quality people."

Reagan will seek $50 million in 'non-lethal' aid to Contras

From Daily Iowan wire services

WASHINGTON — President Ronald Reagan said Wednesday that "the majority" of a new aid package for the Nicaraguan Contras that he will seek from Congress will be "non-lethal" assistance, and a senior administration official said the request is likely to be "in the ballpark of $50 million."

An official familiar with administration deliberations on the package said that only about 10 percent of the request would be for weapons and ammunition but that the non-lethal portion of the aid includes funds for such items as helicopters and spare parts.

The official said the main purpose of the aid request would be to "keep the Contras in the field, in existence" for several months to see if the leftist Sandinista government of Nicaragua completes steps toward democratization.

THE PRESIDENT acknowledged in a White House speech to Contra supporters that the Sandinistas had made concessions, but he contended that "it's clear that it's the freedom fighters and only the freedom fighters that have brought the Sandinistas to the negotiating table and have wrung from them the limited reforms they've made."

The Sandinistas officially ended a six-year state of emergency in Nicaragua Tuesday that had given the government extraordinary powers in dealing with political and media opposition.

Reagan heaped scorn on Nicaraguan President Daniel Ortega, saying he had repeatedly broken promises and sought to create "a Soviet base camp in Central America."

WHILE THE president and other White House officials were stepping up their rhetoric against the Sandinistas and Democrats who oppose further Contra aid, the administration was scaling down the aid request that the president plans to submit to Congress Tuesday.

Administration officials, talking last week about an aid package of as much as $100 million, said Reagan instead will make a request that one official described as "more modest and realistic."

This official said the precise amount of the package has not been set but probably would be announced Monday, when Reagan is to give his State of the Union address.

Officials who discussed the aid request on condition that they not be identified said the lower figure is likely to be more palatable to Congress.

THEY SAID THAT since the Contras, who have scored recent military successes, were given a significant amount of weapons last year, the current military effort could be maintained with reduced funding.

Under a compromise reached with Congress last month, the aid request

9 die in Colorado crash after Continental airliner hits ridge

United Press International

DURANGO, Colo. — The death toll rose to nine Wednesday in a commuter airliner crash on a ridge during a snowstorm in southwest Colorado, and one survivor who hiked out through waist-deep snow said he thought the pilot was flying too low.

Pilot Steve Silver, 36, co-pilot Ralph Harvey, 42, and seven passengers were killed when the Continental Express Metro III turbo-prop plane crashed about five miles east of the La Plata County Airport Tuesday night. Eight other passengers survived, including seven who waded 1 1/2 miles through the snow to get help.

One passenger, Lee Vollmer, 25, of Longmont, Colo., who survived the initial crash, died of injuries Wednesday at Mercy Medical Center.

Robert Johnson of the National Transportation Safety Board said seven investigators were at the scene Wednesday. He said one possible cause to be studied was weather conditions at the time, with 1-mile visibility in light snow and fog. There was no wind, he said.

Weather

It's winter in Iowa and I'm soooooo happy. Today's forecast isn't too bad, though. Mostly sunny with highs in the upper 20s. Tonight, clear with lows in the lower teens. Perfect weather to go out on the town, roll of quarters in hand, and socialize with the gang.

Report calls 1987 'strong'

A UI economist Wednesday said 1987 was "truly the strongest year we've had this decade, and the state's economy did very well in terms of employment and income growth."

The report by Jerald R. Barnard, director of the UI Institute for Economic Research, said for the first time in the 1980s, Iowa's non-farm employment growth outstripped the national level.

In the forecast, the institute said Iowa's non-farm employment in 1987 grew at an annual rate of 2.6 percent compared to the U.S. rate of 2.4 percent. Contributing to the increase were strong gains in manufacturing, 4.8 percent; construction, 7.6 percent; and transportation and public utilities, 2.6 percent.

Barnard prepares a quarterly forecast jointly with UI Research Assistant Rodney Raehsler.

UI establishes project

Using an approach pioneered in Sweden and $60,000 in seed money from the Iowa Legislature, the UI is establishing a pilot project for an agriculture health and safety service at two Iowa community hospitals.

The Marshalltown Medical-Surgical Center and Sartori Memorial Hospital in Cedar Falls have been chosen as sites for the Iowa Agricultural Health and Safety Service Pilot Project, according to Kelley J. Donham, director of the program and a professor at the UI Institute of Agricultural Medicine and Occupational Health.

The two-year pilot project will assist the hospitals by providing consultation and special training for physicians, nurses, physical therapists and health educators in the treatment, education and prevention of agriculture-related illnesses and accidents. The UI pilot project will also initially provide the services of an industrial hygienist and a safety specialist from Iowa State University.

The Iowa farm health and safety project had its origin in two separate visits to Sweden, first by Donham in 1984-85 and then in 1986 by Rep. David Osterberg, D-Mt. Vernon. There they observed the operation of the Swedish Farmers Preventive Health Organization (Lantbrukshalsan), which for the past 10 years has provided comprehensive occupational health and prevention services to Swedish farmers and farm families.

UI Press publishes books

Two books on the ancient world and modern archeological studies of it will be released by the UI Press this month.

Early Settlement and Subsistence in the Casma Valley, by Shelia and Thomas Pozorski, challenges traditional views on the development of civilization in the Andes Mountains in Peru.

The book details preliminary results of excavation and survey at 15 sites, including Pampa de las Llamas-Moxeke, the earliest planned city in South America. The authors' documentation of an advanced civilization at the site without the benefit of maize — generally considered a vital staple in the American continent in the years before Columbus — represents a significant first in Andean research.

The 160-page, hardbound book includes 39 black-and-white photographs, nine drawings and 15 maps. The book can be ordered from the UI Press at a cost of $20.

The Cyclades in the Bronze Age, by R.L.N. Barber, is described as the first complete guide to all aspects of Bronze Age culture in the Aegean Cyclades Islands in Greece.

The author describes the history of exploration in the area, its settlements, cemeteries and burial customs, pottery, marble figures and metal objects.

The Cyclades in The Bronze Age is available for $35 in a 283-page hardbound edition from the UI Press.

UI football player Smiley released from jail early

District judge grants 20 percent reduction in prison sentence

UI policies will be scrutinized by new joint task force

By Traci Auble
The Daily Iowan

UI football player Keaton Smiley will be released today from the Johnson County Jail after being granted a 20 percent reduction in sentence Wednesday for good behavior, according to Johnson County District Court records.

Smiley's original jail sentence of 57 days was due to expire Feb. 2, but Smiley applied for the reduction for good behavior on Jan. 13. The request was approved earlier by the Johnson County Sheriff.

Sixth District Judge Van Zimmer considered Smiley's request and granted him early release beginning today, according to court records. In granting Smiley early release, Zimmer noted the defendant's application was not resisted by the state of Iowa.

Smiley was originally sentenced to one year in jail with all but 60 days suspended and placed on probation for two years in connection with the June 9 assault of former Iowa volleyball player Cheryl Zemaitis. Smiley reported to the Johnson County Jail on Dec. 7 to begin his sentence after Zimmer handed down his ruling.

DURING THE ZEMAITIS trial, Smiley admitted to grabbing Zemaitis tightly by the arms during the assault and pushing her over a chair. He said he was sorry for what he did to her during the incident and testified his anger stemmed from having learned of an affair Zemaitis was allegedly having with another football player.

Zemaitis testified that Smiley slammed her against the wall and flung her across the room causing her to hurt her back. She said he also threatened her with a knife and pushed her through a window during the incident.

Smiley's lawyers had asked for a deferred sentence, but in handing down his ruling, Zimmer said he thought Smiley had to be held accountable for his actions.

Smiley was also acquitted on Dec. 22 of assault charges filed by former UI student Jennifer Lee. According to Lee, Smiley struck her in the nose causing pain and bleeding at the Fieldhouse Bar, 111 E. College St., on May 17, 1986.

DURING THE INCIDENT, Lee, who had previously dated Smiley, allegedly tossed ice cubes at Smiley from the main floor of the bar, according to testimony delivered at the trial on Nov. 16. After being provoked with the ice cubes, Smiley went to where Lee was standing.

Testimony as to the alleged assault was found contradictory at best by Judge Zimmer who then ruled Smiley was not guilty of the assault charges.

In the wake of several incidents of violence involving UI students, a newly established task force is examining UI policies on student violence for both on and off campus.

The objectives of the task force, consisting of UI officials, professors and students, as well as members of the community, are to examine existing policies for needed additions or changes and to educate the public on the policies, according to UI Vice President for Student Services Philip Hubbard.

"The safety of people on campus gets a great deal of media attention," Hubbard said. "There are people criticizing the university policy who don't even know what the policies are or the reasons for the policies. Unless the violent act has an effect on the university as an institution we cannot penalize them."

FORMATION OF THE task force follows the trial of UI football player Keaton Smiley, who was convicted in November of assaulting former UI volleyball player Cheryl Zemaitis in a well-publicized incident which occurred off campus.

Both Zemaitis and her parents have repeatedly criticized the UI for not doing enough about the problems of violence involving UI students.

But Hubbard said the Smiley case was only one incident among many which prompted formation of the task force.

"It has to do with the Smiley case only to the extent that we're looking at our role in handling misconduct off campus," Hubbard said. "But it also includes cases where members of the marching band go to a football game and get into mischief in Madison, Wisconsin."

MEMBERS OF THE COMMUNITY serve on the task force, Hubbard said, to get input on student violence occurring in the community. The task force will also examine the possibility of counseling students who commit acts of violence off campus.

"I'm really encouraged because one of the things the task force is struggling over is what to do to encourage (students) to be better citizens and not to commit violent acts," First Assistant Johnson County Attorney Linda McGuire, a community representative on the task force, said.

"The new policy will not just be a reliance on the criminal justice system," said UI Rape Victim Advocacy Coordinator Karla Miller, also a representative on the task force. "We're looking at a more comprehensive policy."

In addition to physical violence, the policy will also cover sexual harassment, threats and violence against property, Hubbard said.

Force in obtaining blood tests from drunk drivers OK'd by court

By Scott Sonner
United Press International

DES MOINES—Police officers may use physical force to obtain blood tests from drunken driving suspects involved in fatal traffic accidents, the Iowa Supreme Court ruled unanimously Wednesday.

The high court issued the decision while upholding the Polk County manslaughter conviction of Daniel Ray Owens, found guilty of causing a June 1986 traffic death in Des Moines.

An initial breath test showed Owens' blood-alcohol content to be within the legal limits, but he refused a blood test and later showed an illegal alcohol content in a urine test.

Owens argued a police officer's threats to obtain the blood test with physical force violated his due process rights and should have made the urine test inadmissible at his trial.

Justice Louis Lavorato, in the 5-0 decision, said drivers can choose to forfeit their license instead of taking a blood test in most cases, but not when a traffic fatality is involved. He said police have the right to forcibly obtain the tests from unwilling suspects.

"Contrary to Owens' interpretation... we think, for several reasons, the Legislature intended to permit the use of force under our implied consent law in a case such as this one," Lavorato said.

"The permissible use of force to execute a search warrant is by no means a novel concept in the law," he said.

Lavorato said the law leaves no doubt a police officer must respect a driver's refusal to take the blood test when no fatality is involved.

"But when a fatality is involved in a potential drunken driving situation, we think the Legislature believed it should authorize force and impose stringent penalties in addition because it considered the chemical test crucial evidence in such a case," he said.

City parents, students make bus request

By Craig Sterrett
The Daily Iowan

Iowa City School officials are considering a new busing alternative for Iowa City's west side schools to ease transportation problems for students involved in extra-curricular activities.

The West Side Athletic Advisory Committee (WSAAC), a group of parents, teachers and coaches, is requesting the Iowa City School Board create two new evening bus routes for Northwest Junior High and Iowa City West High students involved in extra-curricular activities at a cost of $18,300 a year.

The committee members would like to see the service start March 1 on a trial basis.

Members of the committee say the buses would provide an easier way to get home after activities and allow more students to stay after school to talk to teachers, to study or to use computers. The bus also would free parents from picking up their kids after practices and give some students who previously avoided activities the chance to participate.

IOWA CITY Schools Superintendent David Cronin said the school board would address the busing issue during one of its meetings in the next month.

Committee member Greg Ripley said the $101.70 cost per day for the service of the two buses — provided by Iowa City Coach, Inc. — would be well worth the price.

"If you service 100 kids a day, that's only a buck a day," Ripley said. "That's pretty cheap for the school board to pay."

Committee members said there has been a need for late bus service for a long time, but the item had not yet been brought before the school board for approval.

"I have been thinking about this since my son was in seventh grade at Northwest. He is now 19," WSAAC member Chris Ostrander said. "We've known there has been a need for an after-school bus for some time. We just hadn't got the wheels rolling yet."

MANY WEST HIGH and Northwest Junior High School students are currently bused in from areas outside Iowa City including Coralville, Hills, University Heights, North Liberty and Riverside.

"Eighty percent of our kids are bused in, so busing has always been a pressing need," Iowa City Northwest Junior High Assistant Principal and Athletic Director Bob Davis said.

According to a survey conducted by the WSAAC, 48 percent of students in grades seven through ten are interested in a late bus. More than 68 percent of their parents who were surveyed said they were in favor of the bus.

Under the proposed plan, the first of the two buses would depart from Northwest Jr. High, 1507 8th St. in Coralville, and proceed to West High School, 2901 Melrose Ave., dropping off students there. Other students could get on at West High. The bus would then proceed south, stopping at the Iowa City Regency Trailer Court midway between Iowa City and Hills. The bus would make its final stop at Hills Elementary School.

Another bus would start from West High and load all the students from Coralville and North Liberty schools. It would drop off students at Northwest Junior High and allow North Liberty students from the junior high to board. The bus would make its final stop at Penn Elementary, 230 N. Dubuque St. in North Liberty.

UI forum observes Roe vs. Wade case

By Jay Casini
The Daily Iowan

A forum entitled "Women Reclaim Their Bodies: The Global Struggle for Reproductive Rights" will be held tonight at 7:30 p.m. in Shambaugh Auditorium.

The forum will commemorate the 15th anniversary of the Roe vs. Wade Supreme Court decision granting a woman the right to have an abortion.

Moderator Carol deProse said the Supreme Court's decision is commemorated annually across the nation.

"Generally something is done across the country to commemorate the event, but this year will probably be bigger since it is the 15th anniversary," deProse said. "Women are feeling increasingly threatened by challenges to the decision, particularly because of the move to a more conservative Supreme Court."

The forum is sponsored by New Wave/Progressive Student Network, Women's Resource and Action Center and The Emma Goldman Clinic for Women.

SCHEDULED PANELISTS include Charles deProse of the UI College of Medicine who will speak on "Public Health Impacts of Legal Abortion" and Gayle Sand, a founder of the Emma Goldman Clinic for Women, 227 N. Dubuque St., who will present "Political and Legislative Developments in Reproductive Rights."

UI College of Law Professor Adrienne Wing will address "Reproductive Rights: An International Perspective" and the effects of U.S. funding restrictions on women of Third World countries.

"Roe vs. Wade continues to be an important precedent with an impact both nationally and internationally and we must not let it die," Wing said. "The Reagan administration has actually had more success internationally than domestically in restricting foreign women from having abortions by their denial of funding."

CAROL DEPROSE said she anticipated some opposition to the event, but said the forum is not designed to debate abortion.

"This will not be a forum to debate the merits or non-merits of abortion," Carol deProse said. "Rather, it will get up a dialogue on issues that threaten access to abortion and present arguments as to why abortion should remain legal."

"I certainly would encourage anyone who is in support of a woman's right to abortion to attend," Carol deProse said. "It will certainly be a very informative meeting."

Allegations of secret 1984 campaign funds plague Hart

United Press International

WASHINGTON — A California producer, who made a fortune doing Playboy and Jane Fonda workout videos, secretly — and perhaps illegally — pumped thousands of dollars into Gary Hart's 1984 campaign, it was reported Wednesday.

The Miami Herald, which last year first reported Hart's involvement with Miami model Donna Rice, said that in addition to aiding Hart's cash-starved 1984 campaign, Southern California video producer Stuart Karl also paid a $3,000-a-month salary to Hart aide Dennis Walto in 1986 and 1987.

Campaigning in Keene, N.H., Hart described Karl as a "friend and supporter," who contributed in 1983 and 1984 but said he was not sure what role Karl played in his campaign. Hart said he has made every effort to comply with laws regarding campaign contributions.

Stuart Karl

been raised. I don't know the details of the story or the accusations involved," Hart told reporters.

Hart said Walto "has helped in the campaign and continues to help. . . . We will find out what his capacity was earlier. If we're not in strict compliance . . . we will see that they do comply."

Both Hart and Karl declined to be interviewed Tuesday, the Herald said.

IN AN INTERVIEW with Cable News Network Wednesday, Walto said he was a Hart campaign volunteer at the time he was being paid by Karl and that the payments from Karl were not improper.

"I'm still a volunteer, always been a volunteer," Walto said.

Asked if the payments to Walto from Karl were appropriate, Walto said: "Yes, I had a job and I did it. OK?"

Hart, also interviewed by CNN, said "there weren't" any illegal contributions from Karl to his campaign. Hart said "everything was accounted for" and that his campaign would try to document that later Wednesday.

Federal law prohibits a candidate from accepting any money from corporations or more than $1,000 per election from any contributor. The limit also includes professional services.

Federal Election Commission spokeswoman Sharon Snyder said a failure to report the kind of help cited in the Herald story would be regarded as a "backdoor contribution" that violates federal campaign laws.

"I WILL HOLD myself responsible for whatever happened and not shift any blame to anyone else," said Hart, explaining that it was impossible for a candidate to know everything about his campaign. "I'm going to find out."

Dole and Du Pont vow no tax hike but disagree on spending freeze

By Bill Brewer

United Press International

DES MOINES — Republican presidential candidates Robert Dole and Pete du Pont Wednesday pledged not to raise taxes but sparred over a proposal to freeze federal spending.

"I happen to believe a spending freeze is something whose time has come," Dole, the Senate minority leader, told members of Iowans for Tax Relief. "I say we should start off the next administration with a spending freeze. Once we get that, then we should start cutting on a program-by-program basis."

However, du Pont told the group in a separate appearance, a spending freeze would preserve government programs that have outlived their usefulness.

"I don't like freezing everything in because you freeze the good with the bad," du Pont, a former governor of Delaware, said. "A spending freeze freezes in the status quo. I can understand why Bob (Dole) likes it because he's the status quo candidate."

DU PONT SAID although he might impose a spending freeze "for 100 days," he favors cutting individual programs.

"I'd like to take an agricultural subsidy program that isn't working and phase it out," he said.

The two candidates said they would like to reinstate federal income tax deductions for state and local sales and property taxes that were repealed under the Tax Reform Act of 1986, but said the treasury currently cannot afford the loss of revenue.

"When you start lowering tax rates you've got to find the money to do it," Dole said. "You can't have it both ways. You can't have lower rates and all the deductions you'd like."

Dole and du Pont said they support proposed constitutional amendments to require balanced budgets and to give the president the line-item veto, but said it would take at least three or four years before either of them could submit a balanced budget proposal to Congress.

"You could do it in the first year. You might be run out of town, but you could do it," Dole said.

"I think if we get a spending freeze in the first year and send a signal that we mean business . . . I think it would be a great help."

Democrats condemn Reagan

Candidates decry administration's record on civil rights

Bill Brewer
United Press International.

DES MOINES — Five of the Democratic presidential candidates pledged Wednesday to work to end racial discrimination against crime suspects and to appoint Hispanics to the Supreme Court and top administration posts.

The candidates, appearing at a debate sponsored by the Iowa Brown and Black Coalition, showed few disagreements among themselves, but took turns accusing the Reagan administration of turning its back on Hispanics and blacks to benefit the wealthy.

"There's a racial factor in the judicial system," said Jesse Jackson, whose late arrival forced organizers to delay the debate by 25 minutes.

"When they're poor, they go to San Quentin. When they're rich, they go to San Clemente."

Sen. Paul Simon, D-Ill., said one of the proudest votes he ever cast in the Senate was his vote to deny confirmation to Attorney General Edwin Meese, who has "not enforced civil rights laws."

JOINING JACKSON and Simon in the 90-minute debate were former Arizona Gov. Bruce Babbitt, Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis and Rep. Richard Gephardt of Missouri.

"I would want my appointments ... to reflect the diversity of the American people," Gephardt said. "I don't see how the American people can look at their leaders and see people who don't look like them."

The candidates also were unified in their criticism of the Reagan administration's new proposal to provide up to $100 million in aid to the Contra rebels fighting to overthrow the government of Nicaragua.

Jackson said the money Reagan proposes for Contra aid should be used to restore funding cut from the Coast Guard's drug enforcement programs.

THE CANDIDATES ALSO pledged to provide more money for education and student loan programs targeted for minority students, including the establishment of pre-kindergarten programs in low-income neighborhoods.

"If these universities, Iowa State and Iowa, can recruit young blacks to play ball so they can entertain us, they can also recruit young blacks to teach and to coach," Jackson said.

All five of the candidates also promised to expand job-training programs to reduce the nation's welfare rolls.

"What we need is leadership that cares and breathes and acts," Simon said.

But Babbitt said the government will be unable to expand housing, education and jobs programs until it reduces the budget deficit.

"Our silence on that deficit guarantees that none of these programs will even happen," said Babbitt, who has proposed a national sales tax to cut the deficit.

which was televised nationally on a delayed basis by the cable television channel C-SPAN, was the first of three scheduled Democratic forums in Iowa this week.

On Saturday, the five candidates will appear individually before delegates to the Women's Agenda Conference in Des Moines, and will be joined by former Sen. Gary Hart of Colorado in a debate on agricultural issues in Ames.

The three events are the last scheduled joint appearances of the candidates before the Feb. 8 Iowa caucuses.

Wayne Ford, co-chairman of the Brown and Black Coalition that hosted Wednesday's debate, said although Iowa has only a 2.2 percent minority population, the debate will have a huge impact on the 21 presidential primaries and caucuses in the South on March 8, known as "Super Tuesday."

President Ronald Reagan is applauded by Suitland High School Student Body President Robin Hicks, left, and Secretary of Education William Bennett prior to a speech.

Reagan promises hike in grants to establish more magnet schools

By Ira R. Allen
United Press International

SUITLAND, Md. — President Ronald Reagan, impressed with the academic achievements of a predominantly black suburban Washington high school, said Wednesday he will ask Congress to increase by more than 50 percent federal grants to establish magnet schools.

Addressing students at one such school, Suitland High, which offers university-style seminar teaching and a performing arts program as its magnets, Reagan said that "money isn't the answer" to educational improvement.

But with Education Secretary William Bennett at his side, Regan announced he will seek an increase in grants to magnet schools from $72 million a year to $115 million.

The Prince George's County school system, of which Suitland is part, received $4 million last year.

Reagan chose the school because of its dramatic turnaround in recent years from a nest of drugs, crime and low achievement to one with higher test scores and programs that resulted in parents standing in line for three days to win a slot for their children.

REAGAN SAID he would like to see "the same transformation in schools across the country" but that the $300 billion in annual federal, state and local spending on education "becomes meaningless" without merit incentives for teachers, strong leadership by principals and involvement by parents.

The student body appreciated the president's appearance and was attentive, but did not give him the rousing applause at certain stock exhortations that usually bring down a house, such as his anti-drug message and his pride in restoring respect for the flag throughout the country.

The new auditorium in which he spoke was festooned with signs of greeting, such as "Welcome Mr. President, the Darwin Biology Club" and "Class of '90. Tomorrow's leaders welcome today's Top Gun, President Reagan."

Branstad rejects AFDC hike

Governor says more welfare erodes incentive to work

By Scott Sonner
United Press International

DES MOINES—Gov. Terry Branstad said Wednesday he opposes an increase in Aid to Families with Dependent Children benefits because the fatter paychecks would encourage some poor people to choose welfare over jobs.

His comments outraged some Democratic lawmakers backing the AFDC boost, including Rep. Rod Halvorson, D-Fort Dodge, who called the statement "asinine."

Branstad indicated during a Statehouse news conference he would veto a bill the House Appropriations Committee approved Tuesday which would spend $1.8 million to boost AFDC payments 6.5 percent.

The Republican governor said increased AFDC benefits would erode incentives for the unemployed to work and clash with his welfare reform proposals designed to cut 12,000 Iowans from the welfare rolls in the coming year.

"IF YOU RAISE the benefit level it can be counterproductive because it makes taking a job even less attractive," Branstad said.

Halvorson said the people remain on welfare because they cannot afford child care and health care, not because of the potential to collect more AFDC money.

"Some jobs are for minimum wages and are not enough to support a family. It does not have anything to do with the support levels for AFDC benefits. These benefits are supporting people below the poverty level," he said.

"Everybody is willing to take a job if they can find decent child care and health care," Halvorson said.

Rep. David Osterberg, D-Mount Vernon, said the increase is needed because the average monthly payment of $324 has failed to keep up with the rate of inflation over the past 10 years.

"You want to have incentives for people to get off welfare, but you also want to make sure people eat in the meantime," he said.

Branstad said in Davenport Tuesday Iowa is "already well above the national average in our welfare benefits."

Dick Vohs, Branstad's press secretary, distributed statistics prior to Wednesday's news conference which showed Iowa AFDC levels rank fourth in the six state region.

New test may help alcoholics

United Press International

BOSTON — Government scientists have developed a simple blood test to diagnose alcoholism that may also offer a way to screen people to see if they have inherited a risk for becoming an alcoholic, it was reported Wednesday.

The test, which measures two enzymes in the blood, could also help researchers understand what makes some people prone to becoming dependent on alcohol and possibly lead to improved treatment, researchers said.

"It provides guideposts as to what we should study," said Boris Tabakoff, scientific director of the National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism in Bethesda, Md.

Theodore Reich of the Jewish Hospital of St. Louis said the test holds "great promise for the development of convenient specific laboratory measures of alcohol abuse and dependence."

Spring Breakers:
BEWARE

When signing up for a Spring Break trip, beware of these traps:

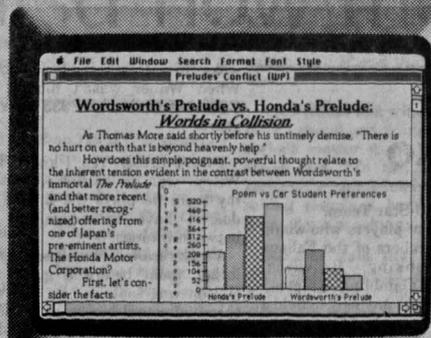

- Beware of the trips that don't know what bus company they are with. You could end up driving 28 hours in a school bus.
- Do not go with a company that doesn't tell you exactly what hotel you will be staying at. All the good properties have been taken. Why take a chance?
- Do not put your vacation in the hands of an inexperienced person who may or may not be around when there is a problem.
- Do not sign up with a company that disappears off campus as soon as the trip is over.
- Beware, a smaller price does not mean a better trip - you will pay for it in the long run.

Let students talk

Finally, the South Quadrangle Residence Hall rumors can be laid to rest, at least for now.

On Sunday, plans to move the 74 residents of South Quad to another building this coming fall were finally verified. Although detailed plans to build a new psychiatric pavilion were announced several months ago, UI officials did not get around to notifying the students of their impending relocation until this week.

Several residents have vowed to fight the move, but it appears likely that, come August, next year's official foreign language program will be housed in two wings of Hillcrest Residence Hall. UI ROTC offices will move from the UI Armory to the South Quad facility.

Expense is one reason South Quad residents should not be moved. Since the beginning of the 1986-87 academic year, Residence Services has spent about $100,000 to remodel South Quad. Now it looks as though much of that remodeling may not have been needed after all since the building will have to be altered to accommodate ROTC personnel.

The quality of the foreign language program itself is another reason not to move the residents. Currently, the program's 74 participants live in a two-story building located directly behind Slater Residence Hall. Administrators plan to move the program's residences to Hillcrest where they may have their own lounge. This drastic reduction in space could adversely affect the program's family-like atmosphere now prevalent in South Quad.

But the most striking reason for not moving the residents is student input, or the apparent lack of student input. It's bad enough that none of the residents, including the hall's two resident assistants, were told of the move until now. But what makes matters worse is that UI administrators have yet to ask for input from the very students affected by this decision.

Where would you like to be housed? How can we help you make the transition as smooth as possible? What can be done to preserve the quality of the program? None of these important questions have been asked of the residents.

It may be too late to halt the move, but UI administrators can begin to make up for their secretive actions thus far by turning to the residents. They deserve to be heard.

Facing facts

In an address written for a group of Sioux City senior citizens, Republican candidate Jack Kemp recently tried to capitalize on the fact that Iowa is one of the "grayest" states. He lashed out at other candidates for threatening the "sacred trust" of the Social Security system.

Kemp claims his opponents wish to raid the system to finance spending on other portions of the budget. He says proposals to reform the system, such as needs-testing and a freeze on cost-of-living increases in benefits, are unnecessary. The fund, he says, is running a surplus, and the system "has worked for current retirees and will work for future generations."

In a sense, the system does work for current retirees; it distributes a few badly needed dollars to the very poorest, but the system fails in that it sends the largest checks to those who need them least.

How Social Security will work in the future is a mystery, though. When the baby boomers reach retirement age their few children will be required to contribute approximately one-third of their incomes to support the system at its current level. On top of this, they will have to pay income taxes. Somehow this seems impractical.

The fact remains that almost all beneficiaries of Social Security withdraw far more than they've put in and more than their money has "earned" in the fund. The fund may be sacred, but it will require a miracle along the lines of loaves and fishes for Social Security to continue functioning as it does.

Kemp knows the elderly go to the polls in large numbers. Thus, he is making a cynical play for their support by denying the obvious and inevitable need for change in the national pension. If Social Security is not to become simply an Orwellian euphemism for the numbering of our citizens, someone with a little more foresight than Kemp must be in position to spearhead the system's reform.

Time to re-evaluate

Until December, the West Bank and Gaza seemed likely to smolder but not erupt. That assumption has been shattered by the depth and duration of Palestinian protests, which shattered another assumption too: that the United States can stand on the sidelines.

Last week, Yasir Arafat said publicly that the Palestine Liberation Organization would recognize Israel's right to exist if Israel and the United States included the PLO in an international conference on Middle East peace. That is a sharp change for the PLO, which most West Bank Palestinians consider their representative.

But the Israeli government refuses to deal with the PLO and dismissed Arafat's comments as double talk. In support of Israel, the United States since 1975 has similarly ruled out direct contact with the PLO. Israel's refusal to adapt to changed circumstances is no reason for the United States to maintain that outdated policy.

Tale of voodoo Reaganism

Massive trade deficit sign of U.S. strength, not frailty — President Ronald Reagan.
Des Moines Register, headline, Jan. 12, 1988.

It's taken 20 years, but I've finally come around. Ever since Ronald Reagan became governor of that state just to the left of Las Vegas I've been loathe to believe a word that comes out of that hole in his head, the one just south of his nose.

But suddenly, sipping morning coffee and reading the headline transcribed above, the scales fell from my eyes, a ray of light pierced through the darkness and I realized: this guy speaks the truth.

All my years of doubt, no, absolute rejection, of Reagan's utterances are past me now. The world suddenly became clear to me in a single pure, shining moment. Our massive trade deficit is a sign of strength. Star Wars will coat the heavens like a celestial Pepto-Bismol. Ketchup is a vegetable. The homeless are permanent campers who only go to soup kitchens because of the free grub and the Contras do resemble the Green Mountain Boys charging up

Bob Ivry

Pork Chop Hill, or whatever hill it was they charged up in that movie with John Wayne.

SUDDENLY THERE came a slicing pain inside my head, just north of my eyeballs. I dropped the newspaper and rolled to the floor in agony. A thousand thoughts flooded my mind. The MX missile is a peacemaker. Supply-side economics will bring prosperity. The bombing will begin in five minutes.

"This generation will likely see the end of days," said a voice. It was my brother, Deutsch Mark, the family Republican, squatting over me, laughing malevolently and sticking a pin the length of his forearm into the head of a rag doll.

"No!" I shrieked, and tried to take the doll away from him. "Stop!" Mark pulled the pin out of the doll head. The pain left my body.

"WHAT ARE YOU doing?" I demanded. "What is that?"

Mark snickered. He bounced the rag doll in his hand. "It's a gift," he said, "from the Duvaliers. I got it mail order, from a coupon in Soldier of Fortune magazine. It's a valuable item, especially in this, the campaign season."

"You mean, it really is voodoo economics?" I asked.

"Very funny," my brother rejoined. "Of course it is. Look here. The pin is from a hat belonging to Imelda Marcos. Supposed to be magical." He rolled it in his fingers. "And the gold chain around the doll's cute little neck. It's made of South African gold, a gift from P.W. Botha. Same gold kept the whites in power there a magically long time."

I got up, shook my head and went for the coffee cup. As soon as I touched it, my mind began to swim. Robert Bork is a moderate. James Watt is a conservationist. America can stand tall.

"WAIT A MINUTE," I cried. "What did you put in my coffee?"

Deutsch Mark grinned. "Oh, nothing," he said. "Just the blood, sweat and tears of Guatemalans and Hondurans under military rule, Panamanians under Noriega, Paraguayans under Schoessner, Salvadorans under Duarte and Nicaraguans under Somoza. Courtesy of United Fruit."

"What's going on?" I asked. "Why the voodoo doll and the coffee? What's the idea of this mind control? I thought 1984 was just a book."

"That's where you're wrong, you stinking liberal," he answered. "All you bleeding hearts care about is yourselves. It's been 20 years since Dr. King was killed, and still you blame hatred, racism and a lack of progress on us conservatives. When will you quit tossing rocks at one another and start working together? Never!" A laugh weaned in the depths of hell came out of his lungs and he plunged the needle into the middle of the doll's belly.

Instead of the spearing pain I expected, I heard a squeaky voice which seemed to emanate from just south of the void.

"I had nothing to do with the Iran-Contra affair. I believe in President Reagan's vision of America. I had no role in bringing the dictator Pinochet to power in Chile. And I am not a wimp. Not!"

Piety seldom won ball games

I've never understood what religion has to do with sports. Why should a coach who leads his football team in a locker room prayer think that a universal deity could have the faintest interest in whether his team can kick, stomp, gouge, bite and fracture its way to more touchdowns than the opposing leg-breakers.

At some major events, even the fans are asked to rise and join a clergyman in prayer for an event on which millions of dollars are being bet with the nation's bookies.

And now we are getting the pious preachings of a growing band of muscle-flexers called the Fellowship of Christian Athletes.

They keep popping up on TV and in the newspapers, big names from all sports trying to convince us that their spiritual beliefs have something to do with their having achieved stardom.

Then why do some deeply religious men wind up cleaning sewers all their lives, instead of becoming quarterbacks and marrying the homecoming queen?

These young athlete-preachers also talk about the importance of shunning vice — painted women, booze, wild living — while extolling goodness, honesty, purity, thrift, obedience and kindness.

These virtues, they say, also are factors in their ability to play a game well enough to make $1 million a year.

Well, I am a sports fan, but I don't see why somebody should preach to us just because he can throw a sweeping curve. And especially when he isn't telling the truth.

The fact is, religion or good character have nothing to do with athletic excellence.

In fact, I would argue that some of the greatest players of all time have been some of the greatest slobs of all times.

With the assistance of the late Bill Veeck, the flamboyant baseball executive, and George Vass, author and baseball historian, I once put together an All-Star Team.

It consisted of players who would qualify as members of the Fellowship of Drinking, Brawling, Wenching and Gambling Athletes.

And I challenge anybody to field a team of goody-goody players who could beat them on the ballfield. Or in the barroom or bedroom, for that matter. My lineup:

LEFT FIELD: You cannot have an all-time team of any kind without Babe Ruth, the home run king. And he is king of the crowd, too. As an admiring Veeck said: "He was a drunk, a braggart, a glutton, a brawler and a tireless lover. He went out to Hollywood once to appear in a movie. The status symbol among movie stars that year was whether they had gone to bed with Ruth. He tried to give them all status." And to think the man still had the energy to play for 21 years, hit 714 home runs, bat .342, and even win 93 games as a pitcher. You have to wonder how great he might have been if he hadn't wasted all that time playing baseball.

CENTER FIELD: And no team would be complete without Ty Cobb, the all-time batting champ (.367 for 23 years). How important is decency and goodness? Vass says: "Cobb was the meanest, most hate-filled man ever to play the game. And his temperament didn't get any better off the field."

"He would get in knife fights. He once got cut up but he still played the next day."

RIGHT FIELD: It is said that Paul Waner used to sip from a Coke bottle in the dugout. One day, while he was batting, a thirsty new bat boy snuck a deep swig. The kid woke up with a terrible hangover. When Waner wasn't hitting the Coke bottle, he hit .333 over 19 years.

FIRST BASE: Yes, I know Hack Wilson was an outfielder, but on my team he plays the infield. He doesn't have to stagger as far between innings.

Veeck recalled: "I walked into the locker room before a game and Wilson was soaking in a tub with three 50-pound blocks of ice. They were trying to get him sober enough to play. He was in terrible shape, but he played. He hit three home runs that day. And in another game, he jumped into the stands and beat up a heckler. He later said he wasn't so much mad at the guy as he was anxious to get arrested so he could get his hangover out of the sun." Wilson still holds the National League record for home runs in a season (56) and runs batted in (196). And for beer steins, too. His favorite bars all provided a one-gallon stein just for him.

SECOND BASE: Rogers Hornsby (lifetime average .358) did not smoke or drink and seldom brawled. So what is he doing on this team? Horses and women, that's what. We do need versatility.

SHORTSTOP: Rabbit Maranville was one of the greatest fielders of them all. Veeck said: "He once staggered out of the team's hotel and got into a fight with a cabbie. He lost. So he picked a fight with the next cabbie and lost. He fought three more of them, and they all beat the hell out of him. So I asked him what he was doing. He said: 'I'm trying to find one I can whip.' He was still playing at age 42. Had he prayed and drank only butter-milk, he would have probably lasted until he was 41."

THIRD BASE: With Jimmy Foxx (534 home runs, .325 average) you never knew if he was sliding into a base or just falling down. Veeck said: "When he started a restaurant, he showed up for the grand opening four days late."

CATCHER: It was 3 a.m. when Veeck's phone rang. The police in Queens had Rollie Hemsley, the great catcher, in custody for drinking and brawling. Veeck got him out and took him back to the hotel. At about 8 a.m. the police in Brooklyn called. Now they had Hemsley in custody.

Veeck got him to the ballpark, thus depriving Hemsley of a chance to set a new all-time record of being arrested in every New York borough in the same day.

PITCHERS: No pitcher was ever more relaxed than the great Grover Cleveland Alexander when he came in as a relief pitcher during a crucial World Series game with the Yankees. He was so relaxed he was staggering. But he struck the man out, whether he knew it or not. And when Alexander isn't pitching, we could use the legendary Rube Waddell. The only things Waddell enjoyed more than throwing shutouts were fishing and drinking. Thus, when he died, they found him in a gin-filled bathtub with three drunken trout.

Who would be manager of this collection of free spirits? Who else but Leo Durocher, whose exemplary habits once got him kicked out of baseball. As their manager, all he'd need would be a corkscrew.

I should caution young ballplayers that I am not recommending that they pattern themselves after the above players. Sure, you might wind up a star, but it is more likely you would slide down the road to degradation and finally wind up as a sportswriter.

AIDS impact worries U.S. executives

WASHINGTON — Executives from leading U.S. corporations, saying "the potential impact of AIDS on corporate America can no longer be ignored," urged the nation's business community Wednesday to deal with AIDS just like any other catastrophic illness. "An approach which treats AIDS like any other disease and shows compassion for the person with AIDS is not only the right policy but is also legally required," said a report released by a coalition of corporate executives, meeting here at a forum sponsored by the Allstate Insurance Co.

Rights of handicapped students upheld

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court ruled 6-2 Wednesday that public school officials may not unilaterally take handicapped children out of their classes or schools even when those students may be disruptive or dangerous. Justice William Brennan Jr., writing for the court in a case affecting an estimated 8 million disabled children, said that did not mean school officials are powerless to deal with disruptive students. They could suspend an unruly student for up to ten days and then ask a court to allow them to take the student out of the class, he said.

Large bird caused B-1B bomber crash

WASHINGTON — The bird a B-1B nuclear bomber ran into last September, resulting in a crash killing three crewmen, was three times larger than the aircraft was designed to encounter without losing control, the Air Force said Wednesday. Even though the B-1B was designed to fly at low altitudes, 200 feet above the ground, as it approaches enemy targets at near supersonic speeds, its thin aluminum plate covering is only strong enough to protect against smaller, 5-to 6 pound birds found at higher altitudes, said Brig. Gen. James Meier.

Poll: Majority of U.S. supports abortions

WASHINGTON — A strong majority of Americans, including some usually considered anti-abortion, supports the Supreme Court's 15-year-old decision legalizing most abortions, the National Abortion Rights Action League said Wednesday. The poll of registered voters found that by 56 percent to 37 percent those surveyed support "keeping it legal for women to be able to have abortions when they decide to have one." An even larger group — 63 percent — said they oppose passage of a constitutional amendment that would again make abortions illegal.

Dow dives 57 points in active trading

NEW YORK — The stock market suffered a broad decline in active trading Wednesday as prices plunged when early weakness tied to a lower dollar accelerated into a wave of selling that took its greatest toll on the technology sector. The Dow Jones industrial average, which fell 27.52 Tuesday, plunged 57.20, or 2.95 percent, to close at 1879.14, the first close below the 1900 level since Dec. 11, when the index finished at 1867.04.

Soviet paper reports KGB in scandal

MOSCOW — In an unusual move, the official Communist Party newspaper Wednesday disclosed a scandal in the Ukraine involving the KGB, the police and the prosecutor's office. Pravda said that officials of the KGB — the national security agency — conspired with corrupt police officers and prosecutors in Odessa to send an honest police chief to prison as a way of silencing him.

cannot be amended but must be voted up or down by each chamber by Feb. 4. If the request is successful, Reagan could seek more funds for the Contras in six months under a similarly expedited procedure.

The term "non-lethal aid" was introduced by the administration late last year in what Democratic foes of Contra aid called an effort to circumvent partially a ban on supplying weapons to the Contras.

THE TERM USED previously, "humanitarian aid," was understood to apply strictly to items such as food, clothing and medicine that guerrillas needed for day-to-day survival.

Various administration officials have acknowledged privately that they deliberately substituted the phrase "non-lethal aid" to create a looser definition that would permit providing the Contras with items such as helicopters and military training such as instruction in communications and equipment maintenance.

While Reagan was denouncing the Sandinistas, White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater was accusing Sen. Christopher Dodd, D-Conn., an outspoken foe of Contra aid, of "surrendering" to the Sandinistas.

"THE DEMOCRATS, Chris Dodd and others, they want a surrender, and they think surrender is the best way to achieve peace," Fitzwater said at the daily White House briefing. "We disagree."

When a reporter asked Fitzwater if he was "redbaiting," the spokesman repeated his criticism of Dodd. "I mean, he was all over television last night saying we just don't want peace and we don't want the peace plan," Fitzwater said.

Dodd said later that Fitzwater's remarks were "typical, classic administration politics: When you can't win on the merits, attack somebody."

With the first vote scheduled in the House on Feb. 3, the issue is likely to dominate Reagan's schedule over the next two weeks.

Democrats in Congress opposing continued aid have said Ortega's moves to comply with the requirements of last August's Central American peace accord — reached with the presidents of Costa Rica, El Salvador, Guatemala and Honduras — stemmed from a Soviet refusal to supply Nicaragua with the aid needed to defeat the Contras militarily.

Impeachment hearings start for Arizona's Gov. Mecham

By Lori Weinraub
United Press International

PHOENIX — Arizona's top law enforcement officer, testifying in the first full day of House impeachment hearings, said Wednesday Gov. Evan Mecham tried to obstruct an attorney general's probe of an alleged death threat by one gubernatorial aide against another.

Col. Ralph T. Milstead, director of the state Department of Public Safety, was the first witness to appear before the 10-member select committee investigating whether enough evidence exists to impeach the first-term Republican governor.

The panel focused on an alleged death threat by former prison construction chief Lee Watkins against former legislative liaison Donna Carlson and whether Mecham interfered with Attorney General Bob Corbin's investigation of the incident.

Milstead, a 20-year law enforcement veteran and appointee of former Gov. Bruce Babbitt, said Mecham ordered him during a Nov. 15, 1987, telephone conversation to steer clear of Corbin in the probe.

"He (Mecham) said, 'The attorney general is out to hang me and I'm not going to help him in any way. I don't want you to help him get me. Don't tell the attorney general anything,'" Milstead testified.

"I said, 'I can't do that.' He said, 'Tell them the matter has been taken care of. It was only a little spat in the governor's staff.'"

"I tried to persuade him by saying we have to cooperate with the attorney general. He said, 'Never. Don't give them any help.'"

Milstead said he disobeyed the order because he refused to violate his oath of office or tamper with a witness.

Milstead, testifying he believed Mecham made the statements in an effort to protect Lee Watkins, said he considered the threat "very serious."

"Any threat to a witness, particularly a grand jury witness, is a very serious matter in my mind," Milstead said. "To me, it's akin to going on a commercial airliner and saying there's a bomb on board. Even if you're joking, it's serious."

Milstead said that contrary to what Mecham and his attorney have maintained, the conversation was not recorded.

Earlier Wednesday, Mecham challenged Milstead to produce a tape of the conversation during a television interview hours before the hearing began.

Crash

THE PLANE HAD been cleared for landing at about 7:30 p.m. when it was about 15 miles east of the airport, according to FAA spokesman Dick Meyer, who said there was no further contact between the controllers and pilot.

One of the survivors, Phil Brevik, 36, of Durango, said the first he knew something was wrong was when the pilot abruptly tried to pull the nose of the plane up.

"The pilot pulled the plane up, then it came down, spun three or four times to the right," said Brevik, who was treated for minor injuries and released from the hospital. "Both wings were dislodged from the plane, which made a hole that we could get out of.

Seven of us got out and walked to the road."

The first survivor out was Peter Schauer, 39, of Boonville, Mo., who trudged 1 1/2 miles through snowdrifts up to 5-feet deep, making a path for the others to follow. One of the survivors carried a 23-month-old child, Nicole Trujillo. Two feet of new snow fell in the Durango area Monday and Tuesday, closing the city's schools for the first time in 20 years.

Schauer got to the farmhouse of Thelma Tate, 79, whose home is on U.S. 160, and called authorities. Tate said Schauer, who was hospitalized with bruises, told her he thought pilot error caused the crash.

"THE PILOT TIPPED the wings and caught a tree and that flipped him around," Tate quoted Schauer as saying. "He said simply the pilot was just flying too low. He said as far as he could tell there was nothing wrong with the plane."

Schauer, who was in good condition, was not accepting telephone calls from his hospital room.

Sheriff's Sgt. Bill Barrow said Durango Police Sgt. John Ball was the first rescuer on the scene. Ball walked into the area by following Schauer's curving trail through the snow.

The wreckage was near the top of a pinon-pine and scrub oak covered ridge. The right wing had been knocked off the fuselage and the left wing was bent back. The nose of the plane was demolished.

"We tried to get snowmobiles in, but the snow was too soft," Barrow said. "People on snowshoes and skis had the best luck."

Keith Rausch of the La Plata County Search and Rescue Team, who used cross-country skis to reach the wreckage, said two passengers died while rescuers pulled them from the wreckage. It took more than two hours to get the survivors out, he said.

MOST OF THE SURVIVORS had been seated in the rear of the plane, he said.

Half the people suffering from unemployment aren't old enough to work.

and the UI Liberal Arts Student Association.

According to Remington, students had requested more time to consider the issue of increased fees for such services as transcript copies and late registration.

The board approved proposed admission requirements for the UI College of Engineering beginning in 1990. The new requirements will be nearly the same as those for the College of Liberal Arts, also approved to go into effect in 1990.

The regents reviewed a report by the regent Committee on Educational Relations concerning the effect of new admission requirements at regent universities. The report stressed the need to adequately inform high school students, staff and parents of the change in admission requirements.

The board reviewed annual reports of the three university public radio stations for 1987. According to the reports, funding has increased, listenership has grown and more opportunities for training were provided to students during 1987 at each of the three stations.

Islander warms to Iowa role

By A. Upson
The Daily Iowan

Iowa freshman gymnast Erik Heikkila is like wine. He improves with age.

Men's gymnastics Coach Tom Dunn described the Virgin Islands native as a developing athlete and a supportive part of his squad.

"He has some weak points to work on but he is improving rapidly," Dunn said. "He is making a big contribution to the program."

Heikkila said he left the tropical paradise of St. Thomas and ventured to the Midwest for the advantages that a big school could give him.

"I think that I had been confined to a small school for so long," Heikkila said. "I saw the opportunities to explore anything you want to do, any kind of club. This school has it."

THESE "OPPORTUNITIES" have made Iowa City interesting enough to keep Heikkila from missing the beaches and palm trees of his home.

"I like it here," Heikkila said. "It doesn't seem that far away to me."

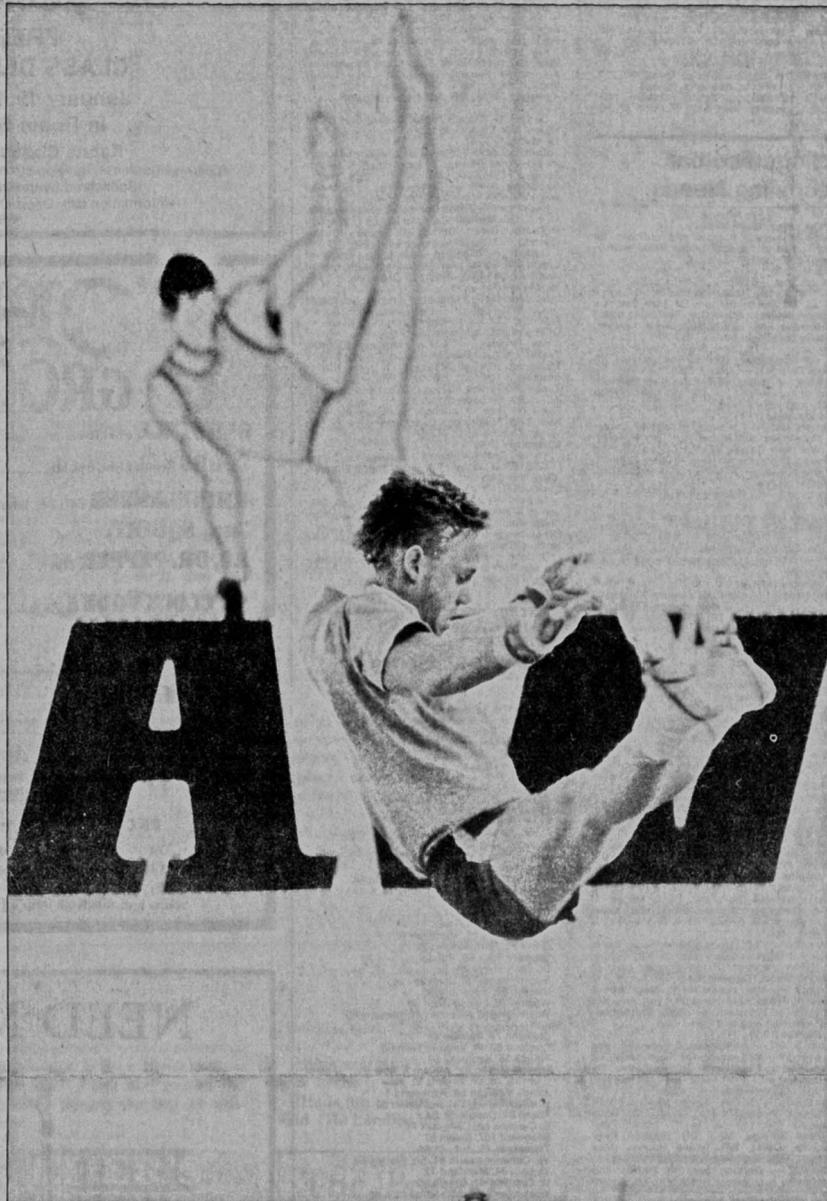

Around the age of nine, Heikkila began gymnastics at the urging of a neighbor.

"My next door neighbor saw that I was into doing cartwheels and stuff. She saw this ad in the paper one day for auditions for what would eventually be the Virgin Islands national team and she said I should go down and give it a try," Heikkila said.

"I went down and I had never had any experience in gymnastics before. I could do a cartwheel and a front flip and stuff I saw on T.V.," he said. "I auditioned and I came in last place but I made the team. But I have been doing it ever since."

AFTER THE FORMATION of the national team, Heikkila got the opportunity to perform in

No. 14 Illinois set to invade Arena tonight

Hawkeyes need win at home to stay in Big Ten title chase

By Michael Triik
The Daily Iowan

Ho, hum. Another Big Ten showdown between two of the nation's top 20 teams.

Tonight No. 14 Illinois comes to Carver-Hawkeye Arena to play No. 19 Iowa. The Illini will bring a 13-3 overall record and a 3-1 Big Ten mark into the Arena while Iowa will show up with an 11-5 and 2-2 record. Tip-off is at 7:05.

So what's it all mean?

It's getting closer and closer to the end of the season and the Hawkeyes can't afford a loss at home if they intend to contend for the Big Ten title. But Iowa Coach Tom Davis doesn't believe that a loss tonight would eliminate Iowa from the run at the conference title.

"THE MORE GAMES you lose, the more you run the risk of being eliminated from the championship race," Davis said. "But I don't think this is a must-win situation. If we lose we won't be out of the race. To win the title you have to win at home."

The two teams are not strangers to each other. Both opened the season at the Maui Classic. Iowa won the tournament by beating Stanford, Kansas and Villanova while the Illini finished third, losing to Villanova in the semifinals and beating Kansas in the consolations.

"They're a veteran team," Illini Coach Lou Henson said of Iowa. "We saw them play in Hawaii, and I thought they might have been the No. 1 team."

Davis said that his team respects the Illini more because of the Hawaii tournament.

"THEY'VE SEEN ILLINOIS in person and they have great respect for them," Davis said. "When you see a team in person you can see how physical they are. When you see a team on tape you really can't see how big they are."

Tonight's matchup figures to be a fast-paced one as the Illini have revamped last year's team to keep up with the rugged pace of the Big Ten. Illinois leading scorer Kenny Battle is averaging 16 points per game and will draw a great deal of attention from the Hawkeyes, but all five Illinois starters are averaging in double figures in Big Ten play.

Even with such scoring punch, Henson says the Illini are in a shooting slump and the 13th-year Illinois coach doesn't know what to expect when his team hits the Arena floor tonight.

"It's been a little frustrating simply because we haven't been relaxed," Henson said. "We aren't the same team in games as we are in practice. When two pretty good teams get together, it's sometimes not an up-tempo game."

Tonight's game kicks off a four-game schedule in nine days for Illinois.

Fry lands all-State Benton star Buch

By G. Hammond-Kunke
The Daily Iowan

Doug Buch, a first-team Iowa Newspaper Association selection at running back, Tuesday orally committed to play for Iowa football Coach Hayden Fry as a defensive back.

The Benton Community (Van Horne, Iowa) High School senior chose Iowa over Arizona State, which he visited this past weekend. He also visited Iowa State and received letters from Stanford, Minnesota, Air Force, Army and Navy. Buch cancelled a trip to Nebraska.

"I have some strong family ties here in Iowa, and there is such great fan support — those are the main reasons I'm going to be a Hawkeye," Buch said from his home in Keosauqua, Iowa.

"I LIKED ARIZONA State a lot. The campus is beautiful and the weather is awful nice. But my family wants to be able to see me play. Plus, the Iowa (coaching) staff really impressed me."

Buch, 6-foot-1½, 175 pounds, started at tailback and free safety for Benton. He also ran back punts and kickoff returns. As a senior

Hawks grapple Gophers next

By Scott Wingert
The Daily Iowan

Iowa wrestling Coach Dan Gable will be shooting for a milestone tonight.

Gable, in his 12th season at Iowa, is looking for his 200th career coaching victory against No. 7 Minnesota at Williams Arena in Minneapolis. Iowa is No. 4.

If history can be counted on, an Iowa victory should be academic.

Gable is 72-0 vs. league foes, 199-10-2 overall, and has won 11 straight Big Ten titles. Last year, the Hawkeyes thumped the Gophers, 34-6, in Iowa City. Minnesota last defeated Iowa in 1973, 18-16.

Minnesota is coached by J. Robinson, an assistant coach for the Hawkeyes from 1976 to 1984. In two short years with the Gophers,

Wrestling

Robinson already has his program among the nation's elite.

AND THOUGH ROBINSON is quick to point out the odds are still stacked against Minnesota when the opposition is Iowa, he said the gap is narrowing.

"We've already beaten (Iowa wrestlers Steve) Martin, (Eric) Pierson and (Bart) Cholesvig," Robinson said, "but we would have to wrestle extremely well to defeat Iowa. We're making progress. We were 36th (nationally) last year, but to beat Iowa all depends on how excited we are."

Both camps downplayed any special significance the meet carries from a sentimental standpoint.

"You can't spend 13 years at a place and not have a lot of special memories, a lot of friends that you think about," Robinson said. "But Iowa's just another nationally-ranked opponent."

"WE'RE NOT KEYING for Minnesota, we try to peak for everyone," Iowa assistant coach Mark Johnson said. "They've been an up-and-down team and they're certainly not one to be looking past."

The Gophers are led by senior Rod Sande, who boasts a 35-1 mark, mostly at 167 pounds. Robinson said he plans to move Sande up to 177 tonight to tangle with Iowa's Royce "The Fall Guy" Alger, 23-1.

Alger handed Sande his only loss of the year, 11-6, at the Northern Open in November when they both wrestled at 167 pounds. Alger is 3-0 vs. Sande in his career.

"I'll be up for match — like always," Alger said. "He's a phys-

Raiders Coach Flores resigns post

By Jeff Hasen
United Press International

LOS ANGELES — Tom Flores, who guided the Raiders to two Super Bowl titles, retired as the Los Angeles coach Wednesday amid reports maverick team owner Al Davis is considering hiring a black coach to fill the position.

Reports circulated before an afternoon news conference that Dennis Green, wide receivers coach for the San Francisco 49ers, would replace Flores and become the first black head coach in modern NFL history. Green was head coach of Northwestern from 1981-85.

The Raiders said no replacement would be named Wednesday.

"I would hope the Raiders would have a new head coach by the league meetings in Phoenix in March," Davis said. "Other than that, I have not given it much thought and I'm not ready to discuss it."

OTHERS BEING mentioned for the position include Willie Brown, defensive backfield coach of the Raiders, and Art Shell, who coaches the offensive line. Both are black and used to be star players with the Raiders.

Davis has hired three coaches in his tenure as owner — John Rauch, John Madden and Flores — each coming from within the organization.

Flores, 51, will remain a consultant with the team. The club's 5-10 mark in 1987 marked the second straight year the Raiders failed to go above .500, the first time that has happened since 1961-62.

"Obviously, if we were in the (playoff) hunt, I wouldn't be here," Flores said. "You have to take the good with the bad."

"The timing is right for me to go about some other challenges in life. It's time for me to step aside. I'm not burned out. I'm tired. I will never be away from the Raiders."

PRESSURE TO NAME a black coach increased over the weekend when CBS football analyst Jimmy "The Greek" Snyder said last Friday there would be no room left in sports for whites if blacks moved into coaching positions. Snyder was fired by the network Saturday.

Green and Pittsburgh Steelers defensive coordinator Tony Dungy are considered the top black head coaching candidates.

"One characteristic of the Raiders is that race, color, creed and even sex has never interfered with the idea of winning," Davis said. "I want the best people. I want equal opportunity. And I'm going to choose the best person I feel can lead the Raiders organization."

The 1987 Raiders finished with the team's worst mark since Davis joined the organization as coach and general manager in 1963.

FLORES, THE CLUB'S head coach for nine seasons, guided the Raiders to Super Bowl titles in the 1980 and 1983 seasons. He also led the team to three AFC West crowns and had an overall 83-53 regular-season record.

Throughout his tenure as team owner, Davis has never fired a coach. Flores was a professional quarterback from 1960-70, spending six years with the Raiders. He rejoined the team as a coach in 1972.

"It is self-serving to say the following, but it is true," an emotional Davis said. "For three remarkable decades, the '60s, '70s and '80s, the Oakland and now Los Angeles Raiders have had the greatest coaches, greatest players and been in the greatest games in the annals of sports history."

"Tom Flores was one of those great assistant coaches. He ranks as one of football's great coaches."

"If this sounds like an enshrinement to the Hall of Fame in Canton, Ohio, it isn't. But someday it might be."

United Press International

Former Los Angeles Raiders Coach Tom Flores shakes hands with Raiders owner Al Davis shortly after Flores announced his retirement. The Raiders have not named a replacement for Flores.

Guthrie charges gender bias

United Press International

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Janet Guthrie, the first woman to race in the Indianapolis 500, says Winston Cup racing, governed by NASCAR, discriminates against women and blacks.

"It's exclusively all white male, with no blacks and no women," Guthrie, 50, said Tuesday during the Charlotte Motor Speedway media tour.

Guthrie, who said she still aspires to drive competitively but has spent recent years working on a book about her racing exploits, said several NASCAR drivers came to her aid on the Winston Cup circuit, but later were ridiculed by their peers.

"I LEARNED NOT to (divulge who helped her) because the next day they wouldn't talk to me," said Guthrie, who in 1977 became the first woman to drive in the Indy and in a NASCAR superspeedway race. "I later found out it was because the other guys would kid them. I think if a woman had continued to run Winston Cup (races), a lot of that attitude would have changed, but I think some of that attitude has crept back in."

The last woman to drive on the Winston Cup circuit was Robin McCall Dallenbach, wife of Wally Dallenbach Jr. She has not driven in a NASCAR event since the early 1980s.

Guthrie said she was speaking out because, "I have nothing to lose by saying this."

She said she once was treated rudely by Indy car driver Bobby Unser at Indianapolis.

"Bobby Unser told me he could take a hitchhiker and teach him to drive better than me," Guthrie said.

GUTHRIE WAS ON A panel that included four other female race drivers: Desire Wilson of Europe, who races Formula One cars; Karen Schulz, rookie of the year in 1986 in the Charlotte Daytona Dash Series; Patty Moise, who will drive on the Busch Grand National circuit this year; and Deborah Gregg, 1987 rookie of the year in the Sports Car Club of America.

Schulz, Moise and Gregg said they had not encountered chauvinism in professional racing.

Buch netted 1,238 yards, including 880 rushing (6.8 per carry) and 358 yards on 18 receptions (19.9 per catch).

Buch, who has been selected to play in the Iowa Shrine game in Cedar Falls in late July, also led the team in scoring with 18 touchdowns (108 points). He averaged 30.5 yards per kick return with one touchdown.

Defensively, Buch had five interceptions for 102 yards returned and one touchdown. He notched 43 tackles from his free safety slot.

"I THINK MY strongest asset is that my upbringing from my parents has made me a hard worker. I can keep things in perspective. You learn how not to get a big head when you work on the farm from seven in the morning until dark pitching bales," Buch said.

"Buch's strongest asset is his desire to play. He's a good, quality person," Benton Community High School football Coach Reese Morgan said on Tuesday afternoon, moments before Buch met with Iowa defensive line coach Dan McCarney and Morgan to announce the verbal commitment. "He's a great competitor."

Buch's best time in the 40-yard dash is 4.55. He said the Iowa staff might give him a chance to play wide receiver: "It's up to me, but I'm not worried about where I'll play. My goal is to just do well in school and make a smooth adjustment. I'm going to work my tail off and just do my best."

Buch, Benton's senior class student council president, plans to major in psychology at Iowa.

High school seniors can begin signing national letters of intent February 10-17.

cal wrestler which I like. We'll just see how it goes."

As of late Wednesday, Iowa was still waiting for the official paperwork from the Big Ten on 134-pounder Joe Melchiorre. The Iowa coaches said the matter is only a formality and expect Melchiorre to be in the lineup tonight.

IOWA HAS FIVE wrestlers ranked among the Amateur Wrestling News national top 12. Martin (11th), Brad Penrith (2nd), Mike Carpenter (12th), Alger (1st at 167) and Mark Sindlinger (6th) are the ranked Hawkeyes.

All of Minnesota's first five wrestlers own 20 or more victories already this season. Ranked Gophers include Keith Nix (12th), Jim Hamel (10th) and Sande (10th at 167).

KCJJ radio, 1560 AM, will broadcast the meet live. Meet time is 7:30 p.m.

such prestigious competitions as the Central American-Caribbean and Pan American games.

At the Pan Am games, Heikkila said, "we went for what our (national team) coach called an experience. We learned a lot but we didn't go into it with the attitude that we were going to win. We went for the experience and to see other gymnasts."

Since progress seems natural to Heikkila, it is no surprise that in the 1987 Pan Am games he finished among the top 21 athletes.

"I didn't make any individual finals, but I did as well as I could have hoped to have done," Heikkila said. "I did my personal best."

Dunn said Heikkila is adjusting well to the team.

"He is fun to have along," Dunn said. "He handles his own."

SHOULD YOU WORRY ABOUT GETTING AIDS?

Do Carriers of the AIDS Virus Have Symptoms?

A carrier of the AIDS virus may have no signs or symptoms of the AIDS disease and may not develop the disease. Carriers can infect someone else through sexual contact, or sharing needles or syringes for intravenous drug use, but not through normal casual contact.

AIDS IS HARD TO CATCH. This information is based upon data from the U.S. Public Health Service. For more information, call your local health department, the National AIDS Hotline (1-800-342-AIDS) or your local Red Cross Chapter.

Iowa's press box will be renovated

The state Board of Regents approved a $185,500 project Wednesday in Ames to renovate Kinnick Stadium's press box, built in 1958 at a cost of $490,000. The cost to build Kinnick Stadium in 1929 was $500,000. The project will be funded by the Iowa men's intercollegiate athletic department.

Olympic Center hoists flags

SEOUL, South Korea (UPI) — The flags of 161 member nations of the International Olympic Committee (IOC) began flying at the Olympic Center in Seoul Wednesday.

The flags raised in a ceremony at the center in eastern Seoul represent nations who have entered the 24th Olympic Games to be held Sept. 17 through Oct. 2. They will be lowered after the games close.

Of the 167 IOC member nations, six have failed to send in entries. They include North Korea, Cuba, Ethiopia, Nicaragua, Albania, and the Seychelles. North Korea said it was boycotting the Seoul Games because it was not allowed to be co-host.

Luncheon turns into race forum

NEW YORK (UPI) — The issue of minority opportunities followed the NFL to an exclusive Manhattan restaurant Wednesday, with a promotional luncheon becoming a forum on the lack of black coaches.

NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle and Chicago Bears President Mike McCaskey appeared at The 21 Club Wednesday, four days after CBS football analyst Jimmy "The Greek" Snyder was fired for remarks about race in sports.

Rozelle and McCaskey were at the restaurant to announce plans for an Aug. 13 preseason game between the Bears and the Minnesota Vikings in Goteborg, Sweden. The game, the third NFL game played in Europe, is being sponsored by Volvo.

Roland, Green lead coaching prospects

GREEN BAY, Wis. (UPI) — Johnny Roland and Dennis Green, black assistant coaches with Chicago and San Francisco, respectively, are among the candidates for the head coaching position with the Green Bay Packers.

Tom Braatz, executive vice president of football operations for the Packers, said Wednesday he has interviewed one black NFL assistant coach — believed to be Green — for the post and said he would talk to Roland in the near future.

Green, a receivers coach with the 49ers, also is a candidate to succeed Tom Flores as head coach of the Los Angeles Raiders. Roland is a running backs coach with the Bears.

SEC's Schiller returns after Olympic stint

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — Southeastern Conference officials announced Wednesday that Harvey Schiller was returning to his post as SEC commissioner less than three weeks after leaving to become executive director of the U.S. Olympic Committee.

Auburn President James Martin, who also serves as SEC president, said presidents from most of the 10 league schools voted in a conference call Wednesday to rehire Schiller.

Schiller officially stepped down from his position with the SEC Jan. 2, but he reportedly did not get along with Olympic officials as well as he did with SEC presidents.

Minnesota's Ciccarelli pleads guilty

EDINA, Minn. (UPI) — Minnesota North Stars right winger Dino Ciccarelli pleaded guilty Wednesday to a misdemeanor count of indecent exposure.

A second count was dropped as part of the plea agreement in Hennepin County District Court.

Judge David Duffy placed Ciccarelli on probation for one year and ordered him to pay $200 in court costs to the city of Eden Prairie. Also, he is to undergo counseling and follow his probation officer's recommendation.

Ciccarelli was accused by a neighbor of exposing himself outside his Eden Prairie residence on several occasions. He was arrested Nov. 4, 1987, after police staked out his home and allegedly photographed him.

Ciccarelli, who leads the North Stars with 58 points, also is facing assault charges in Toronto for hitting an Maple Leafs player in the head three times with his stick. He is also serving a 10-game NHL suspension for that incident.

Payton's picture will grace cereal boxes

CHICAGO (UPI) — General Mills Inc. said Wednesday it will put a special Walter Payton commemorative Wheaties package on shelves in Chicago-area grocery stores this weekend.

General Mills is making 600,000 of the boxes of cereal with Payton's picture. A company spokesman said they are a tribute to the Chicago Bears' record-breaking running back who is retiring.

13 intramural sports offered Spring term

By Hugh Donlan
The Daily Iowan

For many, the onset of winter weather is an excuse to lounge around and become a couch potato. But for the recreational athlete, winter means the advent of the intramural season.

The Division of Recreational Services offers 13 intramural events, from basketball to frisbee, in which university students, faculty and staff can participate during the Spring semester.

Because of Iowa's climate, the recreational athlete is sent scurrying indoors seeking fitness. According to the Division of Recreational Services, there are more than 3,500 visitors to the Field House each day.

"FIELD HOUSE USAGE is at its all-time peak during the spring semester," said Dave Hall, Recreational Services graduate assistant. "Weather is always a factor. There just aren't a whole lot of things someone is going to do outside."

Because of the recent reopening of the Recreation Building, Hall hopes that the crowding that occurs during the Field House's peak hours will be lessened. The Recreation Building offers universal, hydro-fitness and nautilus weight equipment, as well as a running-walking track.

"It's a fine facility and people should feel free to use it as much as possible," Hall said. "Everything is the same except there are no basketball courts. We definitely recommend that people get out and use the facility. A lot of time and effort has gone into the renovation to make it as accessible as possible."

HALL ALSO NOTED that the Recreation Building is open from 8 a.m. until 10:30 p.m. daily, but the running track is closed from 1:30 p.m. until 5:30 p.m. for the purpose of intercollegiate athletic practices.

Intramural basketball begins Jan. 24 at the Field House at 11 a.m. Games will be played all day Sunday and Monday, Tuesday and Thursday evenings. Recreational

Intramurals

Services will accept late entries until Friday. Schedules are available and can be picked up in front of Field House Room E216.

• One-on-one basketball entries are due Jan. 27. Men and women are welcome to participate in this single-elimination event sponsored by Recreational Services and Miller Lite. A $100 scholarship will be awarded to the winners at the halftime of the Iowa-Michigan State basketball game at Carver-Hawkeye Arena February 6.

• Entries for the men's and women's Schick-Super Hoops 3-on-3 contest are due February 12. There is no entry fee, but a $10 forfeit deposit is required. Men's play begins February 17 and women's begins February 18.

• Entries for men's, women's and coed racquetball are due Jan. 29. The entry fee is $3, which includes one can of Voit Rollout balls, and play for men and women begins February 1. Coed play begins February 4.

• Men's and women's entries for table tennis are due January 29 and coed entries are due February 5. Women's play begins February 3, men's starts February 12 and coed action gets underway February 8. All games will be played in Field House Room S507.

Volleyball entries are due February 12 and play begins February 17. There is a $35 entry fee, including a refundable $25 forfeit fee. There will be men's, women's and coed recreational and competitive divisions.

Wrestling entries are due Jan. 25. Weigh-in is February 5 and matches begin February 8. Intramural champions will wrestle the Iowa State intramural champions before the Iowa-Iowa State meet in Ames February 21.

• If you have any questions regarding any of these events, please contact Recreational Services at 335-9292 or stop by Field House Room E216.

'Magic day' fuels Haas to Hope tourney lead

United Press International

INDIAN WELLS, Calif. — Jay Haas, taking advantage of a "magic day" with the putter, fired a nine-under-par 63 Wednesday to take a one-stroke lead after one round of the $1 million Bob Hope Classic.

Andy Bean eagled No. 18 to tie Scotland's Sandy Lyle for second at eight-under in the 90-hole, five-day event played on four desert courses. Keith Clearwater and Andrew Magee were another stroke back with 65s.

Tied for fourth at six-under were David Edwards and Steve Pate, the winner of last week's Tournament of Champions.

Haas, touring the 6,478-yard Indian Wells course on a sunny, almost windless day, rolled in nine birdie putts — including two from 20 feet, one from 18 and three from 15.

"IT WAS ONE OF those magic days with the putter," said Haas. The tournament, which concludes Sunday at Indian Wells, offers a first prize of $180,000.

Aykroyd, Matthau lie down on job in 'The Couch Trip'

By Locke Peterseim
The Daily Iowan

Welcome to Hollywood in February — that dead stretch when the big Christmas box-office and Oscar-possible films have been released, and all there is to do is sit around and wait for the Awards in March and the summer blockbusters in May. In the meantime, the studios clean their closets and pump out the theater fodder. Getting an early jump on the season is The Couch Trip, a comedy vehicle for Dan Aykroyd.

Aykroyd plays John Burns, an R.P. MacMurphy-type prisoner in a mental facility who escapes to California and through the usual mistaken identity stuff replaces a popular radio psychologist. Of course Burns' outrageous forms of therapy (taking 300 patients to a Dodger's game) are an instant hit and he becomes a media star.

The Couch Trip's biggest problem (and it has quite a few) is that Aykroyd can't seem to decide whether he wants to be Chevy Chase, Bill Murray or Robin Williams. Aykroyd has never had much success as a leading man. He's more of a comic tool — strong and reliable, but lacking the charisma to carry a whole film.

IN ADDITION to Aykroyd's multidimensional performance, The Couch Trip also wastes the talents of Walter Matthau. His performance is only OK, and like most of the movie's actors he seems to be reading his lines off the inside of his eyelids. "Push on through and get the paycheck" must have been the motto on the set.

Showing at Campus Theaters

Best of all is Donna Dixon. As Dr. Rollins, Burns' assistant, she receives prominent billing, wears a lot of tight dresses and has absolutely nothing to do in the movie. She strolls through almost every scene, speaking in a wonderful British-French accent that would place her homeland somewhere near the middle of the English Channel. Her presence in the film is a complete mystery. A mystery, that is, until you realize that she is the real-life Mrs. Aykroyd — but that's not saying she didn't get the part on her own considerable talents.

What it boils down to is that The Couch Trip is one of those comedies that throws a high concept at a bunch of "name" actor/comedians, slaps together a lame script and then appears and disappears in the lonely January/February months of movie wasteland. Get used to it — we'll be seeing a lot more of these dogs between now and May. Until then stay home and watch cable.

California rockers will play at Gabe's

The Daily Iowan

California rock band Game Theory will be performing at Gabe's Oasis tonight, bringing to Iowa City its peculiar hard-pop-metallic message. The band originated in Davis, Calif., and went through a previous incarnation before arriving at its present state of art.

The band was formed in 1982 by Scott Miller, the singer/guitarist/songwriter, and it debuted in Blaze of Glory. The next two albums were shortened efforts but they won the band a Features Artist of the Year Award (Best Undiscovered Talent) at the CMJ New Music Awards in 1984.

The following album, The Big Shot Chronicles, marked a new high-water mark for the band, a cleaner expression of its potential for producing effective, affecting rock numbers.

Their latest album, Lolita Nation, displays Game Theory's diversity and technical expertise better than any previous effort. This finely crafted piece of music-making proves that the band has learned from its spotted past and tangled history and ought now to be considered as something of a force in the industry.

The band's sound is reminiscent of '60s-style numbers, and its live performances are every bit as lively as its songs are cutting and insightful.

Penn's new dressing is big 'hit'

By Daniela Wild
United Press International

MALIBU, Calif. — Sean Penn, who plays a cop in his next movie, took the law into his hands for the second time this month Wednesday when he hit a suspected prowler in the head with a bottle of salad dressing, sheriff's deputies said.

The hot-tempered actor, who has had his share of problems with police, was confronted by five suspected prowlers shortly after midnight after he and his wife, rock star Madonna, returned to their estate from a market, sheriff's deputies said.

While Penn, 27, talked to the suspects, Madonna telephoned authorities.

"Penn told the deputies that as he attempted to detain the prowlers, suspect Richard Barcelo, 20, of Chino Hills, tried to punch him," Los Angeles County sheriff's Deputy Richard Dinsmoor said.

"PENN, in an attempt to defend himself, grabbed the handiest item and struck Barcelo with a bottle of salad dressing."

Barcelo suffered a superficial wound near his right ear, then waited quietly for deputies to arrive, Dinsmoor said.

Deputy Dan Cox said Penn and Madonna were returning home from the market about 12:30 a.m. when they saw two men standing near the front gate of their estate. They drove to the house, where Madonna went inside and dialed 911, he said.

Rock 'n' roll stars join Hall of Fame

By John Swenson
United Press International

NEW YORK — Bob Dylan, The Beatles, The Supremes, The Drifters and The Beach Boys joined the pantheon of legendary performers in the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame Wednesday.

Woody Guthrie, Leadbelly and Les Paul were among others honored as early influences on rock 'n' roll, while Motown Records' Berry Gordy Jr. joined the Hall's list of music business giants.

The performers were being honored at the third annual black-tie dinner at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel.

Presenters included Mick Jagger, Keith Richards, Bruce Springsteen, Little Richard, Joan Baez, Chet Atkins, Billy Joel and Elton John.

After the dinner, an all-star jam session featuring inductees, presenters and guests was planned.

LAST YEAR'S session saw Springsteen, Richards, John Fogerty and Sting joining hall of famers Chuck Berry, Bo Diddley, Smokey Robinson, B.B. King, Carl Perkins and Roy Orbison to play classics like "Blue Suede Shoes," "Roll Over Beethoven," "Going to the Sun" and "I Get the Selections a Tribute to Lasting musical value more than timeliness.

The Beatles were inducted in the first year of eligibility.

The British quartet exercised as profound an influence over 20th century popular music as any other group or individual.

In only a few years, they produced a monumental recorded output which is still winning over new fans today.

The Supremes, a vocal trio led by Diana Ross, virtually defined the Motown sound with a string of hits including, "Where Did Our Love Go," "Baby Love," "Stop in the Name of Love," "Nothing but Heartaches," "You Keep Me Hanging On," "My World Is Empty without You" and "You Can't Hurry Love."

The Drifters were a pioneering vocal group with hits that included "There Goes My Baby," "Up on the Roof" and "Under the Boardwalk."

Because the group has undergone so many personnel changes over the years, the inductees are specified as Clyde McPhatter, Ben E. King, Rudy Lewis and Johnny Moore.

The Beach Boys institutionalized surf music and developed a distinctive harmony sound that came to epitomize the southern California lifestyle. The group still tours actively, playing such hits as "Surfer's USA," "Fun, Fun, Fun," "I Get Around" and "California Girls."
