County farms may see budget relief

By Craig Sterrett
The Daily Iowan

Rural county residents who are paying taxes on farmland and property will get some relief from the proposed Johnson County fiscal year 1989 budget, discussed at the Johnson County Board of Supervisors meeting Thursday.

The preliminary figures in the 1989 budget project a 2.4 percent increase in the total budget over last year while the property tax picture looks much brighter for county farmers for fiscal year 1989.

Property taxes on farm buildings and land are projected to be reduced about 10 percent in the coming year while property taxes for city residents will increase by as much as 10 percent, according to a preliminary document released by the Johnson County Auditor's Office.

Discussions about last year's budget became heated as rural Johnson County citizens, who were angered over 12 percent increases in rural property taxes, demanded that the supervisors make budget cuts.

Johnson County Supervisor Dick Myers attributed the county's tax situation to the area having a broader real estate tax base and to a decrease in court and insurance costs during fiscal year 1988.

HE ATTRIBUTED lower agricultural property taxes to the devaluation of farmland.

Taxes on commercial, industrial, railroad and utility property will increase slightly, according to the auditor's office.

"I don't think we're going to see much of an increase (in taxes) regardless," Myers said.

Taxes on farmhouses will increase by about the same rate as those on houses in the city, but Myers said taxes for most farmers would still be lower.

"Chances are the farmer's land would go down more than the house," Myers said. "It would take 40 acres to offset the taxes on even the most elegant house."

According to the auditor's office records, the budget for fiscal year 1989, which begins July 1, 1988, is approximately $18.9 million — up about $177,000 from last year.

THE AUDITOR'S office also said there would be a carryover of 19.4 percent of funds from this year's budget to the fiscal year 1989 budget.

The Johnson County Board of Supervisors must certify the 1989 budget by Mar. 15. Preliminary reports from the auditor's office indicate the following budget increases:

- County ambulance service budget will increase about 3 percent to $640,000.
- County attorney's office budget See Budget, Page 15A

Poll: Dole, Gephardt lead Iowa

By George Skelton
Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES — Propelled by the farm vote in a state unhappy with President Ronald Reagan, Sen. Bob Dole has widened his lead over Republican rivals and Rep. Richard Gephardt has vaulted into strong Democratic contention as the Iowa caucuses near, a Los Angeles Times Poll has found.

Both Dole of Kansas and Gephardt of Missouri, representing neighbor states but different political ideologies, are attracting Iowans to their presidential candidacies with down-home, middle-America, populist themes, the survey indicated.

But Vice President George Bush, who scored a dramatic upset over Reagan in the 1980 Iowa caucuses, seems in this campaign to have suffered politically in the state from his seven years as the president's loyal understudy.

Dole led Bush in the Times poll by 13 points, 41 percent to 28 percent. Trailing far back were former television evangelist Pat Robertson, 10 percent; New York Rep. Jack Kemp, 9 percent; former Delaware Gov. Pete du Pont, 6 percent, and former Secretary of State Alexander Haig Jr., 1 percent. Undecided amounted to 5 percent.

BY CONTRAST, the Democratic field was tightly bunched. The hard-charging Gephardt, who has made a dramatic comeback from the bottom of the pack in recent weeks, was preferred by 23 percent of those surveyed. Running virtually neck-and-neck with Gephardt was Illinois Sen. Paul Simon at 21 percent, followed by Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis, 15 percent; former Colorado Sen. Gary Hart, 12 percent; former Arizona Gov. Bruce Babbitt, 11 percent; the Rev. Jesse Jackson, 8 percent, and Tennessee Sen. Albert Gore Jr., 1 percent. Undecided totaled 9 percent.

Hart, who angrily abandoned his frontrunning campaign amid a sex scandal last May, now is slipping in popularity after having reentered the race in December and being immediately thrust to the head of several polls on the strength of wide name identification. A mid-December Iowa poll by the Des Moines Register, for example, had Hart with an 11-point lead, at 29 percent. Gephardt was a distant fifth at 6 percent.

ALSO IN mid-December, Dole and Bush were in a tight race in Iowa, according to the Register's poll, with the Kansas senator See Poll, Page 15A

Reagan presses for support of his arms control policies

By Bill McAllister
Washington Post

WASHINGTON — President Ronald Reagan Thursday began his last year in office by pressing for support for his arms-control policies on both domestic and international fronts.

The president, who will leave office Jan. 20, 1989, enlisted the help of former Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, to help him guide through the Senate ratification process the recently signed treaty that would eliminate U.S. and Soviet intermediate-range nuclear missiles. Arms control also will be one of the major themes of the president's State of the Union speech Monday night.

Separately, the president raised the arms control issue yesterday with West German Foreign Minister Han Dietrich Genscher, who was visiting in his role as president of the European Economic Community, and an international group of labor leaders. He also announced the dates for his previously disclosed trip to confer with NATO leaders.

BOTH THE WEST GERMAN government and the labor leaders have endorsed the INF treaty and Tower told reporters after his 15-minute meeting in the Oval Office that he, too, believed it would be ratified by the Senate. The president's major concern is See INF, Page 15A

UI to interview laser scientists for new facility

By John Gilardi
The Daily Iowan

Laser scientists will be in Iowa City next week to interview for the three endowed chairs for the proposed UI Laser Research Center, UI Interim President Richard Remington said following the annual State of the University address to the Iowa City Rotary Club.

"We are not discouraged by the fact that occasionally, an individual we see shows somewhat questionable judgment and goes somewhere else," Remington said, referring to the three laser scientists who declined offers to head the Laser Research Center.

"Before long we will be filling these open positions with top level scientists. We have not lowered our sights one millimeter. We are aiming high and we will score," he said.

Remington also addressed the current dispute between the UI and Iowa City over sewer rates.

"I THINK MOST of us recognize that our excellent town and gown relationship is too important to both parties to be allowed to go down the drain over this issue," Remington said.

Remington told the audience the UI will not drop its lawsuit against the city over sewer rates.

In his address to about 300 people, Remington also outlined four leading indicators for new growth in 1988: The recommendation of the UI self-study committee that the UI push to become one of the top ten public research universities in the country, gains made through re-allocation procedures, initial success of the Iowa Endowment 2000 campaign and the determination to achieve greater cultural and ethnic diversity.

HE SAID AN EFFORT to increase affirmative action and cultural diversity at the UI is currently being stressed by Opportunity at Iowa, a program headed by UI Vice President for Academic Affairs Philip Hubbard and UI

Richard Remington

Assistant Dean for Academic Affairs Nancy "Rusty" Barcelo.

"We still have far too few minority faculty members and far too few minority students," he said. "We simply offer too few programs to enhance educational opportunities for heretofore neglected groups in our society. This is not good for the university and it is not good for society."

Remington cited a study "demonstrating a clear positive correlation between diversity and academic excellence," calling on the intensification of searches for faculty members and outreach programs to minority high-school students.

FOLLOWING THE SPEECH, Remington said despite the intended UI programs, "We need to focus on results and outcomes. We've got to really note the fact that the processes in place have not gotten us there."

Remington said compliance with federal and state affirmative action guidelines does not necessarily ensure the diversity the UI needs, but are only the "minimum levels" the university must meet for accreditation.

Remington said the UI will "continue to move forward" and "pre- See Speech, Page 15A

Sandinistas call for direct talks with rebels

By William Branigin
Washington Post

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica — A Sandinista delegation Thursday issued new proposals to soften the conditions for a cease-fire and to give Nicaraguan rebels "irrevocable guarantees" of political rights under international supervision after they lay down their arms.

The proposals were issued in a written statement by Nicaraguan

Vice Foreign Minister Victor Hugo Tinoco after a day of intense maneuvering by both sides over the resumption of cease-fire negotiations.

Tinoco's delegation, which arrived here unexpectedly last night, called Thursday for immediate direct talks with leaders of the Nicaraguan rebels known as Contras. Rebel leaders rejected the idea and issued a counter-proposal for talks next week between working delegations of both sides.

THE MANEUVERING CAME as each side accused the other of insincerity and duplicity in what was seen as a round of one-upmanship leading up to a crucial vote on U.S. aid to the rebels in Congress Feb. 3 and 4.

Tinoco and Sandinista military intelligence chief Maj. Ricardo Wheelock brought with them the same cease-fire plan that Nicaraguan President Daniel Ortega announced in Washington Nov. 13 and that has been rejected by the Contras as a proposal for their "orderly surrender."

Later, however, Tinoco issued two new proposals "to enhance the prospects for achieving a cease-fire with the Contras and incorporating them into the political life of the country with irrevocable guarantees that they will enjoy full political rights and civil liberties." His statement said the guarantees would include "the right to organize a new political party, or join existing parties, and participate fully in free and fair national and municipal elections."

TINOCO PROPOSED establishment of "a special international commission to assure that these rights and liberties are fully enjoyed by all Contras who elect to See Contras, Page 15A

from DI staff reports

Dukakis to visit Iowa City

Democratic presidential candidate Gov. Michael Dukakis of Massachusetts will be appearing at 10 a.m. today at Iowa City High School, 1900 Morningside Drive.

Dukakis' lecture is free and open to the public.

Libertarian candidate visits

Libertarian presidential candidate Ron Paul, a former congressman from Texas, will be appearing in the lobby of Burge Residence Hall today at noon to answer questions about his party and its stance on issues.

The Libertarian Party is one of the bigger third parties in the nation, having won 1 million votes in the presidential election of 1980. The party's platform includes the abolition of the federal income tax, the CIA and federal anti-drug laws.

Regents approve director

The state Board of Regents approved the appointment of Robert Ludke as acting director of the UI Center for Health Services Research, effective immediately, at its meeting Wednesday in Ames.

Ludke, associate professor of hospital and health administration in the UI College of Medicine, has been on the UI faculty since 1977. He received a bachelor's degree, a master's degree and a doctoral degree from the University of Wisconsin-Madison between 1968 and 1980.

Ludke replaces Samuel Levey, head of the UI graduate program in hospital and health administration, as acting director of the Center for Health Services Research.

The Center for Health Services Research is the UI's interdisciplinary unit for research on health care. Faculty and staff from colleges and departments throughout the UI investigate the organization, delivery, efficacy and financing of health-care services.

The Center's work promotes links among health organizations throughout the Midwest and embraces disciplines as diverse as economics, geography, psychology, sociology, and preventive and clinical medicine.

New TIC tenant approved

The state Board of Regents approved a lease for a new tenant at the UI Technology Innovation Center at its meeting Wednesday in Ames.

Cottle Industries Inc., owned by William Cottle of Fairfield, Iowa, will refine and market a transport device for the handicapped at the center. The firm will lease space at the center for 12 months, effective Feb. 1, 1988.

The addition of the firm means the center is now home to 13 businesses.

Chapter holds write-a-thon

The Amnesty International chapter of Iowa City will take part in the "1987 Amnesty International Write-A-Thon for Human Rights," by setting up tables Friday in the Union and Saturday at the Iowa City Public Library.

During the event, Iowa City residents are invited to join members of the group at the tables in writing letters to governments on behalf of prisoners of conscience from around the world. Each completed letter will raise money for Amnesty International from pledges gathered before the event.

For more information, contact Kent Klindera at 338-3605.

Energy posters displayed

The Resources Conservation Commission of Iowa City will be holding Energy Conservation Week Feb. 1-7. The week is designed to stimulate public awareness of the need to conserve community energy resources.

In conjunction with the nature of the week, all kindergarten through sixth grade-aged children are being asked to participate in a poster contest. Posters will be displayed in three Iowa City malls during the week.

Iowa high court dismisses case involving phony IDs

By James Cahoy
The Daily Iowan

The Iowa Supreme Court ruled in favor of a UI student Wednesday whose case was appealed by the state of Iowa after it was thrown out of Johnson County District Court.

The court unanimously decided to dismiss the case of David Ortega, 1114 E. College St., who was accused of printing phony Oregon driver's licenses on his computer in the fall of 1986 when he lived in Burge Residence Hall.

Ortega was originally charged in December 1986 with falsifying public documents after he reportedly was found by Campus Security police with 10 phony driver's licenses in his residence hall room.

But Johnson County District Court Judge Paul Kilburg decided to dismiss the case on the grounds that Ortega was printing blank forms which could not constitute driver's licenses because they were not filled in with information.

ORTEGA'S LAWYER, Leon Spies, said the decision was appealed because the state thought its "intention in guarding the public welfare was placed in jeopardy. They felt it would harm the state's prerogative in the making and issuing of licenses."

Spies said the Supreme Court's decision to reject the county's appeal was based on essentially the same grounds as the district court's.

"It was essentially the same as the district court's opinion," Spies said. "They also agreed with some new arguments that I introduced, but basically it was the same."

Spies said he did not anticipate any more appeals in the case.

Pro-choice advocates discuss abortion issues during forum

By Jay Casini
The Daily Iowan

The Reagan administration's restrictions of funding to international groups that perform or condone abortion came under fire Thursday night at a forum commemorating the 15th anniversary of the Supreme Court's 1973 Roe vs. Wade decision.

The forum, titled "Women Reclaim Their Bodies: The Global Struggle for Reproductive Rights," attracted more than 100 people to Shambaugh Auditorium to hear a panel of pro-choice advocates discuss the importance of Roe vs. Wade, a Supreme Court decision that legalized abortion, and the implications of the Reagan administration's policy.

Before introducing the three panelists, moderator Carol deProse opened the forum by warning those in the audience that the event was not intended to be a debate and that panelists would not address opposing views to abortion.

THE FIRST PANELIST, Charles deProse of UI Hospitals and Clinics, addressed "Public Health Impacts of Legal Abortions." deProse said attempts to further restrict legal abortions, if successful, would result in a return to more dangerous illegal abortions.

"There will not be fewer abortions, there will be more morbidity from illegal abortions," deProse said. "Women will resort to desperate and even illegal measures to terminate an unplanned and unwanted pregnancy."

The second panelist, UI Law Professor Adrienne Wing, spoke on "Reproductive Rights: An International Perspective." Wing said current Reagan administration policies have further restricted funds to organizations and governments that perform or condone abortions as a legiti-mate method of population control.

"The Reagan administration policy will ensure that illicit, unsafe abortions will increase worldwide," Wing said. "Third World women don't have the right to control their own bodies and destinies."

GAYLE SAND, a co-founder and current director of The Emma Goldman Clinic for Women, was the final panelist. Sand spoke on "Public Health Impacts of Legal Abortions."

Sand said the main opposition to the Supreme Court decisions comes from the Reagan administration, U.S. Congress, and state and local governments, which Sand said are all "male-dominated organizations."

The forum was sponsored by UI New Wave/Progressive Student Network, Women's Resource and Action Center and The Emma Goldman Clinic for Women.

Courts

The Daily Iowan

Sixth District Judge Van Zimmer dismissed UI football player Keaton Smiley's application for post-conviction relief Thursday in Johnson County District Court.

Smiley was released from jail Thursday after having been granted time off for good behavior by Zimmer, according to the Johnson County Jail.

Smiley applied for post-conviction relief Dec. 23, which would have resulted in his release from jail Jan. 18. The request was based on new evidence filed by Smiley's lawyers Dec. 28 regarding his June 9, 1987, assault on former Iowa volleyball player Cheryl Zemaitis, according to court records.

The evidence was based on a signed deposition by William

Perkins, an acquaintance of both Smiley and Zemaitis, which stated that Zemaitis never mentioned anything about a knife or serious injuries to Perkins as she had testified in the trial.

But Zimmer said in an order filed Jan. 8 that Perkins' testimony did not add anything new to the case and therefore he filed the rejection for early release, according to court records.

A UI student pleaded guilty Thursday to charges of fifth degree theft after he was observed taking property from UI Hospitals and Clinics, according to Johnson County District Court records.

Robert H. Escarza, 19, N155 Hillcrest Residence Hall, was found taking three pairs of hospital scrubs on Dec. 7. The clothing was valued at less than $50 and Escarza was fined a total of $135, according to court records.

An Iowa City man pleaded guilty Thursday to fifth degree theft charges after he stole mail from a mailbox on Dec. 7, according to Johnson County District Court records.

David M. LaBahn, 20, 302 S. Gilbert St., took mail not belonging to him from a mailbox in his apartment building and used it for his own purposes, according to court records.

LaBahn admitted to taking $40 in cash. He was charged a $135 court fine and ordered to make restitution to the victim to be paid within 60 days, according to court records.

An Iowa City man was pronounced dead at the scene of an accident on Mormon Trek Boulevard early Thursday morning, according to Iowa City police.

Kevin Ray Nissley, 23, 17 Sunrise Village, reportedly was traveling southbound on Mormon Trek at about 12:04 a.m. Thursday at a high rate of speed when he lost control of the vehicle and failed to make a curve in the roadway, according to the release.

The car went off the side of the road in the 2200 block of Mormon Trek Boulevard and rolled several hundred feet. Nissley was ejected from the vehicle and it rolled over him several times, causing a severe head injury that led to his death, according to Johnson County Coroner T.T. Bozek.

The accident remains under investigation, according to police.

Theft: Apple computer equipment worth an estimated $1,496 was reported stolen Thursday from Shimek School, 1400 Grissell Place, according to police reports.

A computer, two disc drives and a monitor, valued together at $907, and a printer valued at $589 were reported stolen at about 6:50 a.m. Thursday by a janitor employed by the school, according to the report.

Report: A UI student was arrested by Campus Security at about 12:30 a.m. Thursday and charged with unlawful possession of traffic control devices, according to Campus Security reports.

UI sophomore Kirk E. Gustafson, 21, 5116 Daum Residence Hall, reportedly had in his room a barricade and two traffic control signs belonging to Iowa-Illinois Gas & Electric Co., according to the report.

Gustafson allegedly said he had purchased the items but had no proof of the purchase, according to the report.

Report: An Iowa City man was charged with interference with official acts after he drove away from an Iowa City police officer who had informed him that his vehicle would be towed unless he paid $38 in delinquent fines, according to police reports.

Michael P. Gordon, 18, 33 Lakeview Drive, had parked in a prohibited zone in the 100 block of South Linn Street and was issued a ticket by a police officer. After the officer notified Gordon that he owed fines for unpaid tickets and that his car would be towed unless he paid them, Gordon allegedly drove away from the scene, according to the report.

I-CARE dance will benefit AIDS services organization

By Karyn Riley
The Daily Iowan

The Iowa Center for AIDS Resources and Education hopes to raise between $3,500 and $5,000 at a benefit dance to be held Friday evening at 8 p.m. in the Iowa City Holiday Inn Ballroom.

I-CARE, a non-profit organization started in June 1986, provides AIDS-related services and support groups for AIDS patients, their families and friends, according to I-CARE Coordinator Rick Graf.

"It's the only organization in Iowa City solely devoted to AIDS issues," Graf said. "We saw a need in Iowa, and no one was providing it."

Proceeds from the dance will go toward expanding current services, such as support services and public education.

FUNDS WILL ALSO go toward developing new programs such as a telephone buddy service in which I-CARE would provide volunteers to be on-call for AIDS patients; a speakers bureau that would provide speakers on request to give talks on AIDS and HIV testing; a computerized AIDS information network that would bring the latest information directly to the office; transportation for AIDS victims; and a resource center for educational materials.

In addition, money from the dance will also go toward establishing an I-CARE office at 227 North Dubuque Street.

"We are not going to be overly ambitious about how much money we need because the organization is so little-known, people have not heard much about it," said Marcia Wegman, I-CARE supporter and co-owner of Things & Things & Things, 130 S. Clinton St.

BUT WEGMAN SAID she does believe that one day I-CARE will be the major AIDS support and education center for the state and will make a big difference to AIDS patients and their families and friends.

Graf said the need for a major AIDS center in Iowa, a state that had only 40 recorded cases last year, is great.

"People don't want to face the fact that it will affect them," Graf said. "It is not as critical as on the coasts, but we can't just wait till the situation gets worse and worse and then try to start these types of programs. We need to get information and help to people now."

Another reason for establishing an AIDS center in Iowa is to get more information into the small, rural towns where people don't understand AIDS and may be especially discriminatory toward the patients, Graf said.

"TOO MANY OF MY close friends have died from AIDS or now have it. It is affecting me too closely to not get involved," Graf said. "It's something that is very close to every gay man's life or soon will be."

Tickets for the dance are available at Things & Things & Things and Prairie Lights Books, 15 S. Dubuque St. They also will be available at the door.

Cosby performance Sunday to benefit Jackson campaign

Bill Cosby

By Kathryn Kempton
The Daily Iowan

Comedian Bill Cosby will perform a benefit concert for the Rev. Jesse Jackson's presidential campaign Sunday at 4 p.m. in Carver-Hawkeye Arena, according to Jackson campaign officials.

"Cosby's been trying to coordinate an appearance in Iowa for some time," Jackson press secretary Kathy McShay said.

"Iowa City is an important area of the state to us. A benefit appearance there seemed like the best way for him to help," she said.

Campaign finance reform laws prohibit an individual's contribution to a candidate to be less than $1,000. McShay said by performing for Jackson, Cosby is helping to raise "much more than that."

McShay said Cosby also helped raise funds for Jackson's campaign early in the Democratic presidential race by performing at an August benefit performance at the Apollo Theater in New York.

The UI Student Commission on Programming and Entertainment will produce the Cosby concert and will receive a percentage of ticket sales, plus a guaranteed arena rental fee, SCOPE Director Chris Werner said.

Tickets for Sunday's performance are $17.50 for adults and $12.50 for children. Tickets can be purchased at the University Box Office in the Union and at local ticket outlets.

Iran-Contra committees find fault with Bush contentions

By Sara Fritz
Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — The Iran-Contra investigating committees found no evidence to support Vice President George Bush's contention that he expressed a number of reservations about U.S. arms sales to Iran, a top committee attorney said Thursday.

Arthur Liman, chief counsel for the Senate committee, also challenged Bush's assertion that he was under the impression that the United States had been dealing with Iranian moderates.

In an interview on ABC-TV's "Good Morning America," Liman was asked about Bush's statement Jan. 13 that he expressed a number of objections to the Iran arms sales "in settings with others present," including: "How will it be interpreted if the cover is blown? Will lives be lost? Will our credibility be damaged?"

"If he had reservations, he certainly did not express them at any of the meetings with the National Security Council principals," Liman said. "The only record reflecting the vice president's view was one in which he was described as being solidly in support of the sale of arms."

THE TERM "National Security Council principals" refers to President Ronald Reagan, Secretary of State George Shultz, former Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger and the late CIA Director William Casey. Bush has made a point of noting that he never was present at an NSC meeting when the Iran arms sale was discussed, although he may have attended at least one ad hoc meeting involving many of the same persons Jan. 7, 1986.

In response to Liman, Bush spokesman Peter Teeley questioned why the New York City attorney, a Democrat, is speaking out about the matter just two weeks before the election caucuses in Iowa. "It looks terribly partisan," he said. He also suggested that the House-Senate investigation had failed to uncover all of the evidence of Bush's role.

"This may be a reflection on Liman," said Teeley. "He had every opportunity to conduct a thorough investigation."

College students query Hart on extra-marital activities

By Ken Cafarell
United Press International

BOSTON — Democratic presidential candidate Gary Hart appeared Thursday at Boston University to urge students to participate in national service programs, but was forced to address the issue of extra-marital activities.

Hart — who re-entered the race last month after dropping out last May in the midst of a scandal over his admitted relationship with Miami model Donna Rice — turned catcalls to applause with his aggressive answers.

In a question-and-answer session after his 20-minute address to the packed auditorium, Hart was asked by a student: "How do we know that you will pay more attention to your oath of office than you did to your marriage vows?"

"First of all, my marriage vows are none of your business," the former Colorado senator shot back.

"I would not have the bad judgment or character to sell arms to terrorists," he continued.

"I would not shred documents that were public documents that held me accountable. No illegal funds are going to change hands in a Hart administration," he concluded, referring to the Iran-Contra scandal.

UNLIKE MOST OF his appearances since rejoining the race, Hart was not accompanied by his wife, Lee — whose presence, some have said, has dissuaded such questions. His son, John, however, sat beside him on stage.

Campaigning at breakfast stops earlier Thursday in Laconia, N.H., Hart for the second day was asked about alleged 1984 campaign finance irregularities reported this week by the Miami Herald.

"I'd like to challenge them to put as much effort into covering my budget, my policies as they do questions like this, and we'll see whether or not they're willing to report to their readers serious issues as well," he told reporters.

Responding specifically to Miami Herald reports that Hart volunteer Dennis Walto was paid $3,000 a month in 1986 and 1987 by southern California video producer Stuart Karl, Hart offered an ignorance defense.

Simon attacks Gephardt's tax stand

By Scott Sonner
United Press International

DES MOINES—Illinois Sen. Paul Simon Thursday repeated criticism of Missouri Rep. Richard Gephardt's votes to cut taxes for the rich as Simon's staff declared Iowa's presidential caucuses a two-man race between those two Democrats.

"It looks like it will be us and him," said Patrick Mitchell, Simon's Iowa campaign coordinator. "Our numbers show we are doing well. Gephardt clearly has made up some ground, but it looks like it will be the two of us."

Gephardt aides said their internal polling shows the race still up for grabs between Simon, Gephardt, Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis and former Colorado Sen. Gary Hart.

Dukakis staffers said their candidate is "still very much in the race" and pointed out Mitchell earlier declared the race a contest between Simon and Hart. Jesse Jackson's camp said only Hart and Sen. Albert Gore Jr. are out of the running in Iowa.

Paul Simon

Richard Gephardt

DURING A NEWS conference

at the Iowa Statehouse Thursday, Simon stepped up his attack on Gephardt as a backer of President Ronald Reagan's 1981 tax bill, which lowered tax rates for the highest income bracket.

"I got into this race because I sensed there was a void," Simon said. "I felt we needed a candidate who would stick to the traditions of our party, that would fight for a nation that cares and fight for working men, working women and the less fortunate and someone who didn't support the Reagan tax package of 1981."

Gephardt said earlier Thursday Simon is "in some ways an ideologue while I take the peoples' views."

Simon responded: "Those tax cuts lowered the tax on the wealthiest Americans. I don't think I am an ideologue if I say that is not the direction we should go."

SIMON SAID voters trying to decide who to support in Iowa's first-in-the-nation caucuses Feb. 8 "deserve an accounting of which candidates have stood up against the skewed Republican priorities of the past seven years . . . too many in our party have bought into the Republican mindset."

Jackson claims racism fogs campaign message

By George Lobsenz
United Press International

WASHINGTON—Jesse Jackson claimed Thursday his support among whites is growing, but persistent media questions about whether a black can be elected president are creating a "fog factor" that obscures his campaign's message.

But Detroit Mayor Coleman Young, the dean of the nation's black mayors, said he did not believe Jackson would be able to overcome racism to win the Democratic nomination.

Young, who has not yet endorsed any candidate, said he liked much of Jackson's message, but added, "The thing he lacks is the ability to win."

Jackson might want to believe he has a chance, Young said, but "wishing is not going to make it (racism) go away."

Appearing at the midwinter conference of the U.S. Conference of Mayors, Jackson expressed confidence that he was making progress among white voters.

"THERE IS A GROWING RESPONSE to my campaign across lines of race and region," he said at a news conference. "I see growth, for example, among family farmers in Iowa and Georgia, a tremendous response in Minnesota, New Hampshire, Vermont and Maine."

"Whether it's the mayor of Aspen, Colo., or the mayor of Dubuque, Iowa, or the mayor of Decatur, Ga., we sense more white support amongst elected officials and rank-and-file workers and family farmers."

Still, Jackson voiced concern that, whatever his success in winning white support, the repeated assertions in the media that he cannot win because he is black could become a self-fulfilling prophecy.

"If it's said often enough, it does create a fog factor that becomes X percentage points," he said.

"Let me run to the public," he told reporters. "Let me be rejected based upon my ideas or lack thereof, on my direction or lack thereof, on my boldness or my timidity."

FAA announces tighter rules

Officials place value on pilot experience as safety measure

By Laura Parker
Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The Federal Aviation Administration, citing concern over the experience levels of the pilots in the crash of a Continental Airlines jet at Denver's Stapleton Airport, asked airlines Thursday to avoid assigning inexperienced pilots to the same flight.

The agency also announced it was tightening rules regarding aircraft maintenance and released statistics showing a huge increase in the number of near-collisions last year.

In an advisory to major U.S. airlines, the FAA recommended that captains make all takeoffs and landings in bad weather when teamed with a copilot with less than 100 hours experience in that aircraft type.

The move marks the first time the FAA has attempted to place a value on pilot experience as a means of measuring safety, and it comes midway through the agency's first review of pilot qualification standards in 30 years.

"WE'RE NOT PREJUDGING with respect to the Denver tragedy," said FAA chief Allan

McArtor, emphasizing that there is no indication the experience levels of the pilots had anything to do with the crash.

Despite their overall experience, the pilot and copilot of Continental Flight 1713 had relatively little flying time in the DC-9 model that crashed Nov. 15 while taking off in a Denver snowstorm. The copilot, Lee Bruecher, who was making his second flight as a DC-9 copilot, was flying the jet when it got into trouble and flipped onto its back, killing 28 of the 82 people on board.

"We're not suggesting an inexperienced pilot is not qualified," McArtor said. He said experienced adds "familiarity, confidence and proficiency" to the pilot's repertoire. "It's not that you don't have this, you increase this," he said.

THROUGHOUT THE industry, pilots who pass the qualifying exams are considered qualified to fly. Pairing of inexperienced pilots, particularly at expanding airlines, is an industry-wide practice.

"If they're saying his training isn't adequate to allow him to fly with any of the other pilots on that airline, then we say the training program is inadequate," said Henry Duffy, president of the Airline Pilots Association, which represents 39,000 airline pilots.

Duffy, however, praised the FAA for pushing the airlines to repair broken equipment on aircraft more promptly. In a letter, the FAA directed airlines to reduce the number of deferred maintenance items in a more timely fashion and set new deadlines, ranging from 24 hours to 10 days.

Aircraft are built with redundant systems, which are designed to get the aircraft home safely in case something goes wrong. FAA rules allow aircraft to continue operating with certain items malfunctioning until the plane passes through an airport where the repairs can be made conveniently.

AIDS fear prevents theatrics

United Press International

RADFORD, Va. — School officials refused Thursday to change their decision barring a traveling theater company from performing before students because the troupe performed with AIDS patients in Florida last year.

Superintendent Michael Wright said he stands by what he said in a letter to Dana Gregory, president of the group sponsoring the Cornerstone Theater Company's visit to Radford.

In the letter to the Council for Community Enrichment, Wright wrote, "The reason the Jan. 11 request was not approved was my belief that the community would not support the use of school facilities by people who have worked with individuals who have AIDS, as described in the Sept. 21, 1987, edition of Newsweek."

Wright was referring to an article in the weekly news magazine about the McLean-based theatrical troupe. Cornerstone Theater often includes local residents in its productions and allowed some AIDS patients to perform with the company in Miami.

His letter of refusal, written after he conferred with the school board, noted that none of the performers had undergone AIDS testing since the Miami show.

Wright asked that the Radford sponsors seek medical advice before he made his decision. The opinion stated there was "no risk of AIDS transmission from this theatrical group to students in the casual-contact setting . . ."

Mother is sentenced for child's suicide

By Jeff Hardy
United Press International

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. — A district judge sentenced Theresa Jackson to one year in jail and two years of house arrest Thursday for driving her underage daughter to suicide by forcing her to dance nude in nightclubs.

At the end of a one-hour sentence hearing, Broward County Circuit Judge Arthur Franza also sentenced Jackson, 41, to three years probation. The judge said she must continue therapy for what one psychiatrist called a "personal disorder."

Jackson was convicted Oct. 30 of procuring sexual performances by a minor, child abuse and forgery for changing her daughter's birth certificate to show she was 18 and old enough to dance nude.

She was the first parent convicted in a child's suicide. The landmark conviction of mental child abuse in a criminal trial also marked the first use of a psychological autopsy in such a case.

Theresa Jackson is led from the courtroom Thursday in Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., where she was sentenced on three counts surrounding the suicide of her daughter, Tina Mancini.

tenced on three counts surrounding the suicide of her daughter, Tina Mancini.

DURING THE hearing, Jackson wiped tears from her cheeks, but appeared calm as she stood listening to Franza announce the sentence.

"Miss Jackson, I don't think your conduct was acceptable as a mother," Franza said. "I don't think taking your daughter to a nude dancing parlor — you did procure sexual performances — is acceptable as a mother."

Jackson testified at the hearing that she missed her daughter, Tina Mancini, very much. Mancini was 17 when she died.

"I don't know how to put it into words, it's such a terrible thing to be going through that I don't want to impose my feelings on other people," she said.

Garfield dolls are 'hot' item

United Press International

LOS ANGELES — Detectives are baffled by a new crime spree in which burglars are smashing out car windows late at night — not to steal expensive stereos or the cars themselves, but instead going for Garfield dolls.

Four to five of the furry likenesses of the popular cartoon character complete with suction cup feet are being stolen from cars along residential streets every week, police Detective Patrick Green said Thursday.

"Can you believe it? In all my years on the force I've never seen anything like it. They never broke into cars to steal pet rocks," Green said. "Stealing Garfield dolls has become the latest fad."

Family, trucker sight UFO in Australia

United Press International

SYDNEY, Australia — An Australian family told police Thursday a "huge bright glowing object" chased their car down a remote desert highway and sucked it into the air.

Police Sgt. James Fennell in Ceduna, 370 miles away, said authorities took the report seriously because the vehicle was covered with black ash and its roof was damaged.

Fennell said four people — Fay

Knowles, 48, and her sons — Sean, 21, Patrick, 24, and Wayne, 18 — told authorities they were in the car when it suddenly was sucked into the air and then dropped back onto the highway, blowing out the rear tire.

"The family was extremely distraught," Fennell said. "They said their voices became slurred and abnormally slow."

"Apart from the family's report, a truck driver reported being followed by a UFO on the highway, a tuna spotter aircraft said it spotted a bright light near the highway and later a fishing trawler in the Australian Bight reported a hovering UFO," Fennell said.

Mrs. Knowles, who was driving, said she swerved to miss "a huge bright glowing object" stopped on the road in front of them.

SEAN KNOWLES told police: "It was a weird-looking thing and we stopped to go back and have a look. We became scared and ran back to the car to get away, even though we did not get a close look. It chased us and mum was flooring it along the highway.

"We were doing about 110 kilometers an hour (68 mph) when it came over us and suddenly lifted the car off the road. We felt the thump on the roof and then it started lifting us. We were frightened and began to yell, but our voices had changed."

Mrs. Knowles said: "It was like we were in a time warp. I reached out of the window and touched the hood. It was soft, warm and spongy and I pulled my hand back into the car."

Trident-2 missile test ends in malfunction

By William Harwood

United Press International

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — A deadly Trident-2 submarine missile was blown up on radio command early Thursday after a malfunction less than 3 minutes into a spectacular predawn test flight that marked the first failure in nine launches.

The three-stage Trident-2 blasted off from a ground pad at the Cape Canaveral Air Force Station at 4:08 a.m. CST and majestically arced east over the Atlantic Ocean, trailing a spectacular stream of brilliant flame from its solid-fuel, first-stage motor.

The initial phases of the launch appeared normal to the unaided eye, but the 44-foot missile disappeared from view seconds after the third-stage appeared to ignite. It was at this point the self-destruct signal apparently was sent, ripping the missile open and ending the flight.

A WITNESS SAID that through binoculars, "It looked weird. I thought something was wrong" just before the rocket disappeared.

"We had an unsuccessful launch this morning of the Trident-2," an Air Force spokesman said. "The cause of the malfunction cannot be determined until telemetry has been studied. There were no personnel casualties and no damage to the launch facilities."

He said when the malfunction was detected, "a destruct signal was sent" to the rocket by range safety officers two minutes and 43 seconds after launch as a routine safety precaution.

All rockets launched from Cape Canaveral, including the manned space shuttle, are equipped with self destruct systems to make sure they cannot endanger populated areas in the event of a major malfunction that throws them out of control.

THE $23.7 million missile, built by Lockheed Missiles and Space Co., was carrying less than eight dummy warheads, according to Pentagon sources.

It was the first known failure in nine Trident-2 test flights since January 1987. The Navy plans to testfire 20 Trident-2s from the ground and 10 from submarines before deployment aboard Ohio-class nuclear submarines begins in late 1989.

The Trident-2 is the deadliest weapon system in the Navy's inventory and it has been a frequent target of protest by peace activists since test flights began last year.

The most recent flight came Dec. 11, the day after the end of a superpower summit that resulted in a treaty banning intermediate-range ballistic missiles.

Sources said that firing, originally scheduled for the last day of the summit, was delayed at the last minute to avoid political embarrassment. Its launch a day later was uneventful.

Trident-2s are capable of carrying 12 independently targetable warheads.

WASHINGTON—Ex-presidential aide Lyn Nofziger warned White House counselor Edwin Meese it would be a "blunder" not to award a $32 million Army contract to one of his lobbying clients, evidence showed Thursday.

Nofziger is accused of illegally cashing in on his White House connection to win millions of dollars in business for two defense contractors and a maritime union less than a year after leaving government office in January 1982.

In an April 8, 1982, note, Nofziger reminded Meese of the president's 1980 campaign promise to revitalize the South Bronx section of New York City and suggested awarding the $32 million Army contract to the New York firm Welbilt Electronic Die Corp., now known as Wedtech Corp.

"Ed, I really think it would be a blunder not to award that contract to Welbilt. The symbolism either way is great here," he wrote in the note, which the prosecution introduced into evidence at Nofziger's trial.

Nofziger faces four counts of illegal lobbying, but the most politically sensitive charge involves the April 1982 contact he made with Meese, now attorney general.

WEDTECH, which eventually won the no-bid contract, has become the focus of state and federal probes into allegations of widespread bribery and fraud used to win millions of dollars in government contracts.

In November 1982, Nofziger sent another note to White House aide Michael Deaver to thank administration officials for their help with the Wedtech contract and to suggest the president visit the South Bronx factory.

"I think that it would be a big plus for the president to go up there. I think, too, that we probably need to get a few other things done there in the next year-and-a-half," he wrote.

"I certainly don't want some Democratic candidate for president standing where the president stood two years ago and charging that he has done nothing."

Earlier Thursday, ex-White House aide Ed Rollins testified that Nofziger frequently met with Reagan and other officials months after he left government to open a consulting business with fellow Californian Mark Bragg.

"PEOPLE THOUGHT Lyn was very much part of the Reagan group," said Rollins, who replaced Nofziger as Reagan's political director. "Nofziger was not only a close adviser of mine but a close adviser to many people in the White House ... including the president."

To convict Nofziger of illegal lobbying, the government must prove the former aide lobbied old colleagues during a one-year ban on contacting officials about areas of "direct and substantial interest" to the agency.

In his questioning of Rollins, independent counsel James McKay tried to show that as far back as 1981, White House officials were interested in Wedtech, the now-bankrupt defense contractor.

ROLLINS, chairman of the Lyn Nofziger Defense Fund, said he vaguely recalled a few White House discussions that year about the South Bronx and Wedtech Corp. but did not remember talking about the firm with Nofziger.

McKay, however, introduced into evidence a memo Nofziger sent in October 1981 to Elizabeth Dole, then head of the White House Public Liaison Office, that praised the "South Bronx idea" — a possible reference to Wedtech.

When McKay suggested that Rollins had been less candid on the stand than he had been before a grand jury last April, Rollins shot back, "Whether I take an oath or not, I would always tell the truth."

Mecham to plead innocent on charges

By Lori K. Weinraub
United Press International

PHOENIX — Embattled Gov. Evan Mecham will plead innocent to felony charges that he concealed a $350,000 campaign loan and then lied about it, his attorney said Thursday.

Mecham, 63, who was indicted Jan. 8 on six felony charges of perjury, fraud and filing false campaign contribution and expense reports, is to be arraigned Friday in Maricopa County Superior Court.

The governor's brother and campaign bookkeeper, Willard Mecham, 67, was indicted on three counts on the same charges and is to be arraigned with his younger brother.

"Obviously we'll plead not guilty," said Murray Miller, who represents the brothers.

Trial dates will be set during the arraignment, but it was not clear whether the Mechams would be tried together or separately.

ALSO ON FRIDAY, a state House select committee will resume hearings on the possible impeachment of Mecham. During the committee's first session Wednesday night, Arizona's top police officer testified he disobeyed Mecham's order not to cooperate with the attorney general's investigation of an alleged threat made by one Mecham aide against another.

Col. Ralph Milstead, director of the Department of Public Safety, said he refused to violate his oath of office or tamper with a witness.

Milstead was the first witness to testify before the 10-member select committee. The committee is charged with gathering evidence to determine whether Mecham should be impeached.

Mecham, who is expected to testify before the committee later, declined to comment on Milstead's testimony.

Milstead, during an appearance that lasted nearly three hours, said he was "almost speechless" when Mecham told him he should not talk to Attorney General Bob Corbin about the threat.

The DPS director quoted Mecham as saying, "The attorney general is out to hang me and I'm not going to help him in any way. I don't want you to help him get me. Don't tell the attorney general anything," Milstead said.

"I said ... I can't do that," he said, "Tell them the matter has been taken care of. It was only a little spat in the governor's staff."

'War Games' scenario detailed

By Robert Mackay
United Press International

LONDON — For six minutes in 1979, a real life "War Games" scenario occurred at a U.S. defense center when nuclear-armed B-52s readied for takeoff in response to a missile attack a computer said was in progress.

The incident was one of a number of nuclear accidents and near accidents detailed in a report released Thursday by the University of Bradford's School of Peace Studies.

The report, titled "A Handbook of Nuclear Weapons Accidents," said on Nov. 7, 1979, "a technician accidentally loaded a computer test tape programmed with simulated attack scenarios on the United States into the real early warning computer. The tape should have been loaded into a simulation computer."

"For six minutes, the error was undetected" while nuclear-armed B-52s readied for takeoff in response to the "nuclear attack," the report said.

THE MOVIE War Games had a similar premise, where a teenage computer whiz taps into a U.S. military computer and triggers a war profile.

In another U.S. incident described by the report, a Titan II nuclear missile crew was performing a routine launch drill in November 1980 at McConnell Air Force Base in Kansas when a real launch sequence suddenly began, threatening to fire the 9-megaton weapon.

Scrambling, the crew managed to prevent the launch by hastily disconnecting the main power supply.

"It was," a launch control officer said, "the only way to keep it from taking off."

THE RESEARCHERS SAID nuclear accidents are inevitable, because of either human or computer error. The simplest of computer errors can have grave consequences, they said.

On June 3 and June 6, 1980, a computer error caused by a faulty 46-cent microchip caused the U.S. Early Warning System to twice warn of incoming Soviet missiles, prompting American nuclear forces to go on high alert.

The report lists more than 200 American, Soviet and British nuclear weapons accidents and near-accidents that have occurred since 1945.

Another more recent example took place Jan. 10, 1984, at a Minuteman nuclear missile launch control center at Warren Air Force Base in Wyoming, when a computer indicated a Minuteman missile was about to launch itself.

Israeli troops use beatings, raids in efforts to quell riots

By Louis Toscano
United Press International

JERUSALEM — Israeli troops have beaten dozens of Palestinians in a new policy intended to crush rioting in the occupied territories without bullets and instill fear of the army, Israeli and other sources said Thursday. The United States sharply criticized the tactics as inhumane.

In the small village of Qabatiya near Jenin, in the occupied West Bank 50 miles north of Jerusalem, five people with broken limbs were brought to a hospital and said soldiers beat them for no reason.

In the Gaza Strip, several dozen patients at Shifa Hospital in Gaza City reported night raids and severe beatings by soldiers patrolling U.N.-run refugee camps under curfews, hospital officials said.

Authorities lifted curfews at two more Palestinian refugee camps in the coastal Gaza Strip to allow residents to shop and go to work as the number of disturbances in the occupied areas dwindled to scattered incidents of rock-throwing and tire-burning.

Defense Minister Yitzhak Rabin, touring the Gaza town of Rafah and the Deir el-Baleh refugee camp, described the level of Palesstinian violence as "down almost to nil." He said curfews may be lifted shortly on all Gaza camps.

AT THE SAME time, a senior Red Cross official, Michel Amiguet, disputed charges by U.N. relief workers and said there were no food shortages in the 27 refugee camps in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip. The policy announced Tuesday by Rabin is an attempt to substitute "force, might and beatings" for live bullets used by Israeli troops to quell disturbances in the occupied areas. Soldiers killed 38 Palestinians during six weeks of the worst rioting since Israel seized the territories in 1967.

Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir backed Rabin's decision, describing the policy as one of self-defense and saying the use of physical force over weapons has the full backing of the government.

Palestinian sources and hospital and relief workers in the territories said dozens of people have been beaten severely by soldiers since the new policy went into effect. The military said it was investigating the reports.

AN ARMY spokesman did not directly address the beatings but said in a statement that "local commanders are empowered to employ a range of methods to get through to the residents, to influence them to abide by curfew restrictions."

A senior military source said soldiers would not be permitted to use excessive force in putting down protests.

Egyptian president calls for peace

By Jim Hoagland
Washington Post

CAIRO, Egypt — Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak called on Palestinians and Israelis Thursday to halt all acts of violence against each other for six months to clear the way for a new effort to bring peace to the Middle East.

Terminating the current disturbances in the Israeli-occupied Gaza Strip and West Bank territories "an alarm that cannot be ignored," Mubarak said in an interview that he would launch "a new peace initiative" that would eventually lead to direct negotiations between Israel and its Arab neighbors if the six-month cooling-off period takes effect.

Mubarak unveiled his attempt to gain what would in effect be a cease-fire that would cover Palestinian guerrilla operations and rock-throwing demonstrations as well as Israeli military retaliation as he prepared to begin a 10-day trip to Western Europe and to the United States, where he will meet President Ronald Reagan next week.

The Egyptian leader has not visited Washington since September 1985. He said Thursday that his visit next week is a sign that the scars from the Iran affair "are fading."

Aquino makes staff changes

Resignation of defense chief spurs change

By Mark Fineman
Los Angeles Times

MANILA, Philippines—President Corazon Aquino announced Thursday the most significant changes in her armed forces since the military coup that swept her to power almost two years ago. She named Gen. Fidel Ramos, the armed forces chief, to be secretary of defense, and his deputy, Lt. Gen. Renato de Villa, to be the new chief of staff.

The changes, which were triggered by the resignation of Defense Secretary Rafael Iletto earlier in the day, strengthened Ramos' position in the government, politically and militarily, and weakened the voice of military dissidents who believe that Ramos and Mrs. Aquino have been ineffective in dealing with the Communist rebellion.

The changes also ended a philosophical dispute between Ramos and Iletto, who said in his letter of resignation that he was leaving the Cabinet because of fundamental disagreements with the Aquino government on its approach to ending the rebellion and reforming the armed forces.

The elevation of Ramos and De Villa, both of whom came up through the ranks of the national police, is also expected to deepen resentment of the government among members of the army, marines and air force.

It was resentment in the military that led more than 1,000 military men to attempt a coup against Mrs. Aquino Aug. 28, 1987. Dissident soldiers, mostly from the army and air force, seized four military camps in Manila, attacked Mrs. Aquino's residence and demanded Ramos' resignation.

During and after the aborted coup, Iletto, a combat veteran and former chief of the army, tried to serve as a conduit to Mrs. Aquino for the dissidents. This reportedly put him at odds with Ramos.

In an apparent effort to blunt the military resentment, Mrs. Aquino took pains to praise Iletto in Thursday's announcement, which was nationally televised.

She lauded the 67-year-old retired general as "a living example of the virtues of soldiering for a democracy, virtues such as the utmost honesty and integrity, unquestioned personal courage, a severe devotion to duty and the most jealous regard for the honor of country."

She called him "the guiding light of the armed forces," and, reacting to his statement that he was leaving to allow Mrs. Aquino to follow another man's vision of how the military should be run, she said, "There is only one vision of the armed forces, and it is that which... his distinguished career is the best example."

Iletto's departure was the second change in the defense post under Mrs. Aquino. In November 1986, Mrs. Aquino fired Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile after the government said it discovered a coup plot among his followers.

Nobel laureates to investigate abuses

By Stanley Meisler
Los Angeles Times

PARIS—An unprecedented conference of 75 Nobel Prize winners announced Thursday that it plans to send committees of Nobel laureates to investigate violations of human rights and other urgent problems throughout the world.

Elie Wiesel, the 59-year-old American organizer of the conference, who won the Nobel Peace Prize in 1986, said that they will send out a small group whenever they believe that a problem is urgent enough to warrant their investigation.

Wiesel cited as examples the deadly leakage of methyl isocyanate gas from a Union Carbide plant in Bhopal, India, in 1984 and the disaster at the Chernobyl nuclear power plant in the Soviet Union in 1986.

In private, he has talked about Nobel Prize winners visiting the Soviet Union to investigate the plight of dissidents and refuseniks and of the good that might have resulted if they had investigated the disappearance of people in Argentina during the 1970s.

THE CONFEREES, who included such well known laure-ates as former U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, former West German Chancellor Willy Brandt, British novelist William Golding, Nigerian playwright and novelist Wole Soyinka, and French novelist Claude Simon, decided that they will meet again in two years.

Wiesel acknowledged the enormous difficulty of the writers, scientists, economists, former government officials and others trying to come to grips with some of the world's problems.

"How could we resolve in three days the problems that humanity in 50 years or in the 5,000 years since Cain and Abel has failed to do more than ignore or just start discussing?" he said. "While giving the laureates worldwide glory, the Nobel Foundation has still not found the secret of bestowing universal wisdom on them as well."

The conference came up with a long series of principles and recommendations, and President Francois Mitterrand of France, who was host for the conference, immediately endorsed one of them: a call for an international conference on the problems of foreign debt in the Third World.

Give peace a chance

From the sound of the rhetoric coming out of the White House these days, one can only infer that this administration will go to great lengths to ensure Central America never finds peace. The Sandinistas apparently can do nothing to please the president and his men.

No matter that Nicaraguan President Daniel Ortega recently offered to end the state of emergency, release political prisoners and negotiate a cease-fire directly with the Contras. No matter that Honduras and the United States are breaching the peace accord by continuing to assist the rebels. Only the Sandinistas, apparently, are at fault.

The Reagan administration is about to ask Congress for $50 million in "non-lethal" aid to the Contras. Aside from the laughable euphemism — even better than "humanitarian" — the fact is that nearly every Latin American leader has asked the U.S. government to quit sending aid. Unequivocally.

The Reaganites talk about "keeping up the pressure" on the Nicaraguan government. But their military and economic pressure on the Sandinistas continues to be just a poor substitute for diplomacy. Five months of political pressure and negotiations among the Central American nations have achieved more than seven years of Contra war.

Last August the president said he agreed with House Speaker Jim Wright on three U.S. objectives in regard to Nicaragua: no Soviet or Cuban military base; no military threat to its neighbors; and government respect for the basic rights of the people. Rather than help achieve these objectives, more Contra aid will only undermine the peace process.

Congress must rebuke the administration one last time. In a region that has known mostly dictators and death squads, the Sandinistas have done surprisingly well. Give them a chance.

More censorship

Today, the 15th anniversary of the Supreme Court decision granting women the constitutional right to an abortion will be a day of emotional debate. As always, the commemoration of Roe vs. Wade sparks a heated response from both advocates and opponents of abortion, proving that the issue remains one of the most divisive in American culture.

On this particular anniversary, however, the debate will likely be even more contentious than usual due to the fact that President Ronald Reagan will soon issue new rules restricting federal funds to clinics which provide abortions or abortion information. The president's motive, according to the administration, is to bring government policy into compliance with Title X of the 1970 Public Health Service Act, which forbids federal funding "in programs where abortion is a method of family planning." This restriction applies even to clinics which provide abortion counseling and referrals, according to Reagan.

But operators of family-planning clinics claim the new guidelines are both unfair and unconstitutional — and the operators are correct. If federal funds are denied to clinics offering counseling and referrals, millions of women will lack the information necessary to make an informed decision about abortion. Also, the new rules pose constitutional problems since they will limit the free speech of those counselors who work with pregnant women.

The abortion issue is one which continues to separate much of the nation and the unwillingness of either side to compromise appears to preclude the possibility of an immediate resolution. However, continued debate is essential if a solution is ever to be reached. Therefore, the Reagan administration's approach, which seeks to reduce the number of abortions simply by limiting access to information, is ill-conceived.

Enforcement needed

Sen. Thomas Mann, D-Des Moines, and Rep. Jack Hatch, D-Des Moines, have both introduced bills to the Iowa General Assembly which would criminalize hazing at fraternities and sororities. Not only should some synthesis of those bills become law in Iowa, but this law should become national.

Here's why: The nature of sororities and fraternities has changed in the last 20 years, from a tradition of secret-society gimmicks, like member handshakes and hazing initiation rituals, to a greater emphasis on scholastic excellence and community service.

It follows, then, that with such a change should come the elimination of embarrassing holdovers like hazing. Deaths resulting from hazing still occur each year. Think about that: young people forced to saturate themselves with alcohol, or expose themselves unprotected to the elements, or risk physical injury in inane initiation stunts.

Physical hazing admittedly isn't a problem here at Iowa — not nearly to the extent it reaches at other schools. But there are other dimensions to the problem. Forcing pledges to scrub floors with toothbrushes or deliver embarrassing messages to other houses causes more of a mental ordeal than a physical one. And that kind of hazing is still the Hell Week of choice at the UI.

Of course it's difficult to clearly define what constitutes mental humiliation. One pledge's humiliation may be another's idea of good, clean fun. But regardless of what legislation ensues, it's the responsibility of the UI Interfraternity Council and the Panhellenic Association to restrain and educate their houses on a regular basis, both pledges and actives.

Legislation should not be necessary to end abuses in organizations so vocal about their own maturity.

Abortion must remain legalized abortion must again be outlawed

Guest Opinion

By Gayle Sand

abortion?

It would help, but it would not prevent all unplanned pregnancies. Even if all women used the Pill or the IUD, the two most effective methods of contraception, a minimum of 450,000 unplanned pregnancies would occur each year. This does not take into account women who cannot use the most reliable means because of health risks.

Would a total ban on abortions prevent them from occurring?

No. Before states began to liberalize their abortion laws in the 1960s, illegal abortions in the United States were estimated at more than one million yearly, according to the National Abortion Federation.

Why do women obtain abortions? The reasons women give for having abortions are as individual as the women themselves. Many did not intend to get pregnant. They speak of not being ready to be parents, being too young or too old, having too little money, feeling that another baby would make it harder to raise the children that have already been born, needing to finish school or not having supportive companions. The decision is rarely simple or selfish. However, it is intensely personal and private.

Public opinion today shows a majority of people support the right of women to choose legal abortion 15 years later. As we look to the next 15 years, we should be aware of the public and private benefits of a woman's right to choose whether to continue a pregnancy or not. The freedom of choice guaranteed by Roe vs. Wade will be truly meaningful only when women can obtain accurate information about their options and receive high quality, affordable medical services. Women will continue to have abortions and it is in the best interests of the public and private good to continue to provide them in a medically safe environment.

Guest Opinion

By Jim McNeish

There is nothing special about today. It is merely the day after yesterday and the day before tomorrow. Today my fellow proliferators across America will march and mourn because it is the 15th anniversary of Roe vs. Wade, the Supreme Court decision that legalized abortion. But it fails to underscore the cruel reality that 4,000 unborn babies were killed yesterday, and 4,000 more await their deaths tomorrow.

The abortionists and their apologists attempt to soothe their hardened consciences by the spouting of nonsensical phrases about the baby being part of the woman's body and being only a "blob of tissue." Oh, really? Then what amazing tissue it is: its heart begins to beat only 24 days after conception. At eight weeks every human organ is present. At nine weeks it sucks its thumb!

SOMETIMES THAT tissue even tries to breathe after it is expelled from its mother's womb. A California physician testified that a fellow doctor tried to choke to death a baby girl who was born alive following a saline abortion. "I saw him put his hand on the baby's neck and push down," the doctor testified. When the abortionist couldn't find the trachea, he cursed and then complained, "This baby won't stop breathing." Another piece of tissue was found in the snow beside an incinerator by a hospital custodian. He had heard it crying. This tissue, too, was found to be aborted, and the case is well-documented in British medical journals.

The pro-abortionists have already lost their argument as to the humanity of the unborn child. They have lost to the depictions of ultrasound and to the legs, arms, fingers and toes obtained from the garbage bins in the abortionists' alley. Neonatal physicians are pushing back the barriers of viability. Now hospitals are faced with the sad irony of saving premature infants on one floor, but killing others of the same age and weight on another. And the American Medical Association has the nerve to condemn professional boxing as being "morally wrong."

PRO-ABORTIONISTS have also lost the battle of logic. Often they are relegated to hysterical attempts to discredit the pro-life movement by harping about the "violence" of a few towards bricks and mortar. The vast majority of us condemn property damage of any kind. To denigrate the entire pro-life movement because of the actions of a handful is as absurd as condemning the Civil Rights movement because some Black Panthers advocated violence.

The pro-death people drone on about keeping abortion safe and legal. But that so-called safety didn't extend to the mother of five who died in a Tulsa abortion mill last year. Nor to those like her. Nor to the women who have been emotionally damaged by abortion; many of them are unable to run their vacuum cleaners because the noise reminds them of the suction machine used in the abortionist's chambers.

THE PRO-ABORTIONISTS love to claim that pro-lifers are unconcerned with the baby once it leaves the womb. Even if that were true, it is a silly reason to kill. But it is not true. If they'd like to quit talking and start giving, there are plenty of homes and programs for unwed mothers and their babies, enough to break their bank accounts.

They would also love to believe that abortion is opposed by "wild-eyed fundamentalist moralists." But the latest issue of Christianity Today lists such religiously and politically diverse groups as National Organization of Episcopalians for Life, Choose Life (a Jewish organization), Black Americans for Life and — oh, get this — Feminists for Life.

We're winning.

Humes demands a pay raise

Michael Humes

There comes a time in the career of every columnist when he and/or she pauses, reflects on past accomplishments, tries to peer through the inky murk that shrouds the future, realizes that his and/or her reservoir of ideas is full of silt and sets about writing a column trying to explain why any person in their right mind would enter upon a career in columnistry. And since no person in their right mind would, these columns are mercifully short if a tad incoherent. But even though I've manned my post here since the waning days of the Eisenhower administration, I've never assayed to explain what makes the columnist in me tick, besides the self-winding watch I swallowed once on a dare. So here goes:

I'm a showoff, they pay me here for being one and my cats like to see their names in the paper.

I KNOW WHY Scott Raab writes a column, too. In a pathetic attempt to shore up his feeble self-esteem, he pays Editorial Page Editor Suzanne "Funkier Than She Looks" McBride in cash to print his meandering columns. This is called vanity publishing, and it's a little sad if you ask me. You're living a lie, Scott. Get some counseling, fast.

And on the issue of who pays whom, I haven't had a raise in eight years. I mean, Carter was president then, for crying out in the night. You know how much the cost of barrel whiskey, massage parlors and black leather nun's habits has gone up in that time? The inflation is killing me. If the injustice inherent in this situation riles you, you might vent your spleen in a little note to Editor in Chief John "Opie With A Mean Streak" Gilardi. By the way, don't use big words.

NOW THAT I'VE got that out of the way, I'd like to tell you about a nightmare I had recently. I dreamt that The Powers What Am were going to let me have either all the sex I wanted for the rest of my life or all the food I wanted for the rest of my life. I chose food and woke up screaming. But I was immediately calmed by the sight of a familiar face, that of my cat Rose, her variegated muzzle 1 1/2 inches from my nose.

"Feed me or die," she said in a dangerous, quiet voice. "And what the hell does 'variegated' mean?"

"Look it up in the dictionary, I get kickbacks from Webster's for using words like that," I said. "If I got paid more, I wouldn't have to stoop so low just to scrape by. I suppose I did sleep in a bit this morning. My, look at the time, it's all of 5 a.m. Oh, by the way, thanks for not playing with my eyelids while I was in REM sleep, I always wake up cranky when you do. Now let's see what's in the larder for the old Bitch Queen of Crazed Weasels."

"DON'T SWEET talk me, Bozo," she snarled.

Trying not to rouse the eight Finnish stewardesses who had spent the night, I tiptoed across the snow leopard pelt that cover the floor, gingerly opened the rosewood double doors of the master bedroom and padded over to the walnut-paneled elevator.

Riding it down to the ballroom, I was on my way to the walk-in meat locker when someone sounded either the 13th century bronze Tibetan temple gong I use as a doorbell, or the doorbell I use as a 13th century bronze Tibetan temple gong. I can never tell them apart.

"Now who could that be at the hour?" I asked rhetorically.

"Richard Remington, interim president of the You of Eye," Rose answered just as rhetorically.

"Why would he come to my house at this hour?" I asked.

"HE WOULDN'T, you're just making this up," Rose replied. "John Gilardi mentioned something about a raise if you launched an ad hominem attack on him, and you agreed since you couldn't think of anything else to write about anyway. By the way, it shows."

"Oh, all right let's get this over with," I sighed, fetching Rose up in my arms. Waving off a awakened servant who was approaching the door, I opened it and began to abuse my unsuspecting victim.

"You're stupid, you're ugly and your mama dresses you funny," I said. "Is that a moustache or did you inhale two spaniels? If brains were gun powder, you couldn't blow your nose. Your sister smokes hams. Cream rises to the top and so does slag. Which are you? There, I'm through. Now don't try any reprisals because of this. I've got a Siamese cat here and I know how to use it."

"Yeah," said Rose. "I'm variegated, so watch it."

"And I don't mean anything personal," I said, "I'm getting paid for this."

"My God, man," said Remington between racking sobs. "Isn't there anything you won't do for money?"

"Mmmm, no, nothing springs to mind."

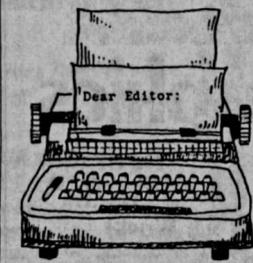

"Want to be head of fund raising?"

"Let me check with Gilardi first."

compete for power politically rather than militarily." He said the commission would be made up of representatives of the United Nations, the Organization of American States, Latin American countries and several international political groups including the U.S. Republican and Democratic parties.

"These organizations would serve as guarantors that Nicaragua's commitment to full democratization, as set forth in a Central American peace plan, will be fulfilled, and that all Contras who renounce the use of military force will enjoy the benefits."

IN ADDITION, TINOCO said the Nicaraguan government now is willing to allow the Contras in agreed cease-fire zones to receive humanitarian aid from other governments, including the United States, after a cease-fire takes effect, provided the aid is delivered through international organizations such as the Red Cross. By humanitarian aid, Tinoco said he meant food, clothing, shelter and medicine. He said Nicaragua continued to maintain a "strong objection" to assistance by governments in the absence of a cease-fire agreement.

The Sandinista delegation said it had decided to take advantage of a trip here by the Nicaraguan mediator in the truce talks, Cardinal Miguel Obando y Bravo, to make its surprise proposal for direct talks with rebel leaders. Six directors of the Nicaraguan Resistance, the political alliance of the rebels known as Contras, flew in Wednesday for a meeting with Obando to discuss their next moves in the negotiating process.

FOR THEIR PART, the Contras were understood to have discussed with Obando new proposals under which additional U.S. aid would be held "in reserve" during a cease-fire. The proposals linked a cease-fire to a general amnesty and democratic reforms in Nicaragua, and the Contras endorsed demands by opposition parties in the country for 17 constitutional reforms.

In a news conference after meeting with Obando at a Roman Catholic school, the Contra leaders said they had agreed to face-to-face talks with the Sandinistas here Jan. 28 and 29.

"The only meeting planned for Thursday was our meeting with the cardinal," said Adolfo Calero, one of the six directors of the Nicaraguan Resistance.

Poll

holding only a slim four-point lead, 37 percent to 33 percent.

This was the first time the Los Angeles Times Poll, directed by I.A. Lewis, has conducted a substantive survey of Iowa during the 1988 campaign. A random sample of 5,176 Iowa adults was telephoned for five days ending Wednesday night. Lengthy interviews were conducted with 1,129 voters regarded as likely to attend the Feb. 8 precinct caucuses, generally considered to be the first major contests in the races for the Republican and Democratic presidential nominations.

In all, 619 Democrats and 510 Republicans were interviewed. The margins of error for all those interviewed was 4 percent. For just Democrats or Republicans it was 5 percent.

MORE OFTEN than not, agriculture plays a potentially decisive role in Iowa politics and the issue clearly is having an impact on the presidential contests. Although only roughly 10 percent of Iowans actually work the land, 70 percent hold jobs linked in some way to agriculture.

The depressed land values, bankruptcies and foreclosures that plagued America's heartland for the first half of this decade now have been checked, in some significant degree because of a 1985 farm bill pushed by Dole. "My father ran a cream and egg station, later a grain elevator — wore his overalls to work every day for 42 years and was proud of it," the senator constantly reminds Iowans.

Iowa's economy is booming and the "farm crisis" is over, according to most experts. "Tell that to an Iowa farmer," Gephardt likes to tell farmers as he stumps the state and promotes a landmark agriculture bill he is co-authoring.

to prevent any crippling amendments or reservations" that would force the United States to reopen negotiations with the Soviets, Tower said.

White House officials said that they want the treaty, which Reagan signed at last month's summit with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev, to clear the Senate by a large margin, signaling to the Soviets that the administration worked to back its commitment to reduce nuclear arms.

TOWER, WHO ONCE chaired the Senate Armed Services Committee, led opposition to President Carter's SALT II treaty that provided further limits on long-range nuclear weapons and that never was ratified by the Senate. Administration officials said Tower's major role will be to ease the fears of conservatives that the United States cannot verify Soviet compliance with the INF treaty.

Overwhelming ratification would also help propel the Soviets to move quickly toward an agreement on strategic arms that Reagan hopes to sign at a spring summit in Moscow, administration officials said. A large margin also would lessen the chances that Senate opponents would attach major reservations to the long-range arms treaty, the officials said.

GENSCHER WAS TOLD that prospects are good that agreement on the second treaty could be reached during the arms control talks underway in Geneva, Fitzwater said. "Both sides have a spirit of cooperation and intention to try to get an agreement by the May-June time frame," Fitzwater said Thursday.

pare for a new era of growth and self-renewal" during the time a UI president is being sought.

"The element of uncertainty in this interim period will prove more exhilarating than unsettling," he said.

After the speech, Remington said he was "looking forward" to an interview with the UI Presidential Search Committee, but declined to answer any other questions about his candidacy and the search process.

Search Committee Chairman Sam

Becker said the committee also discussed identifying more candidates.

"We have never stopped taking applications and encourage people to still nominate those people who are really outstanding individuals," Becker said.

The search committee will also review the applications of those who have declined to be interviewed and determine whether additional information about the UI will make them reconsider, he said.

Iowa City's morning newspaper is also Iowa City's largest newspaper, with an editorial staff of more than 50 young professionals, an editorial budget of over $200,000 and a circulation of 20,500. The Board of Student Publications Incorporated and the publisher of The Daily Iowan will soon interview candidates for the position of editor for the term beginning June 1, 1988 and ending May 31, 1989. Salary for the year will be $8,500 to $10,500 depending on experience.

The editor of the DI must have strong journalistic abilities and dedication, as well as skills in management and a clear sense of editorial responsibility. The board will weigh heavily such factors as scholarship, previous newswriting and editing experience (including work at the DI or other daily newspaper) and proven ability to lead, organize and inspire a staff engaged in creative editorial activities.

Applicants must be currently enrolled in an undergraduate or graduate degree program at the U. of I. Deadline for submission of completed application is 4 pm, Friday, February 27, 1988.

Marble tops team with 26 in rout

By Anne Upson
 The Daily Iowan

Thursday's win over Illinois was more than just a team victory for Roy Marble.

With a season- and game-high 26 points, Marble scored a victory of his own. It was apparent by half-time that Marble, who led all scorers at the time with 12 points, was on the road to having a superior game, as were the Hawkeyes, who shot 54 percent from the field.

Iowa Coach Tom Davis called his junior forward from Flint, Mich., "dangerous" to ignore.

"The opponents laid off him and gave him some very good shots. I think he is a very dangerous guy to lay off. You give him the first stride step, then he is tough," Davis said.

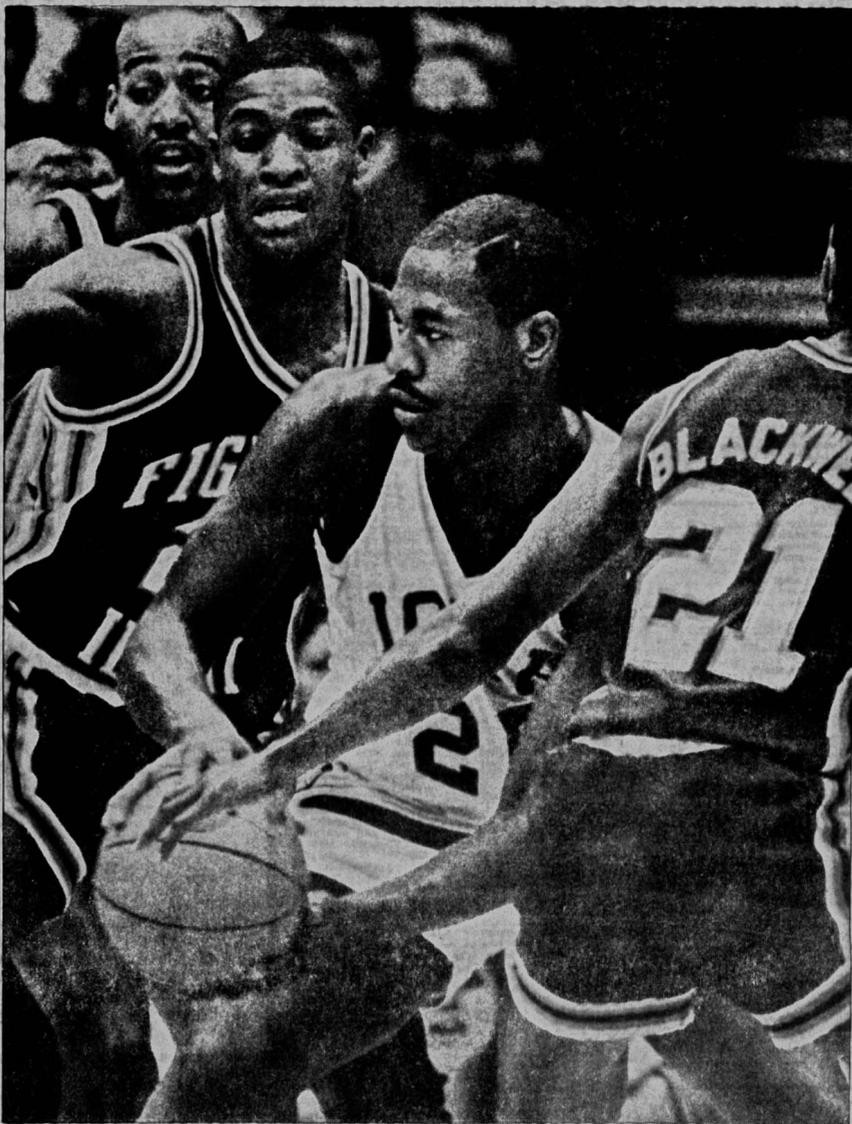

ILLINOIS COACH Lou Henson said the Illini's Nick Anderson was not prepared to guard Marble.

"He (Marble) really played super," Henson said. "I thought he had a great game. We had a freshman on him. But of course, I think our freshman (Anderson) was taught a lesson. I think Nick found out how good players play. Nick is going to be a good player, but he was not experienced enough to play someone like Marble."

Although the 6-foot-6 Marble is short in comparison to some Illini players, he attributed his successful shooting to his jumpshot.

"I jump high enough where I can get up to their level, and then when I shoot to jump it's almost like I am their size," Marble said.

Iowa's Ed Horton looks for room to pass as he is guarded by Illinois' Glynn Blackwell, 21, and Nick Anderson during first-half action in Thursday's matchup in Carver-Hawkeye Arena. The Hawks' Bill Jones is looking on. Iowa won 93-79. Both teams are now 3-2 in Big Ten play.

Iowa upends Fighting Illini in a runaway

By Hugh Donlan
 The Daily Iowan

The Iowa Hawkeyes turned in their best performance of the season Thursday night and knocked off No. 14 Illinois 93-79 behind the scoring punch of Roy Marble and his season-high 26 points. B.J. Armstrong added 21 more in front of a sold-out Carver-Hawkeye Arena crowd of 15,500.

"We played pretty well, that's maybe obvious," Iowa Coach Tom Davis said. "I think that's a terrific Illinois ballclub. We just didn't give in to them. So I'm really pleased. (It was) probably the best game we've played this year by far."

With the victory, Iowa snapped the Illini's four-game winning streak and moved into a third-place tie in the Big Ten with Illinois at 3-2.

FORWARD MARBLE turned in his finest performance of the season with 26 points and five rebounds. He was 9-of-15 from the field and 8-for-8 from the free-throw line.

Armstrong echoed his coach's joy at the victory.

"I thought we played very well throughout the whole game," he said. "Defensively and offensively that was our best performance, but I think we can play better. We did show what we are capable of."

In the second half, Marble took over the game, scoring 15 of his game- and season-high 26 points. Armstrong was also a key with his ball handling and his defense against the Illini. He poured in 13 points in the second half.

The two Big Ten contenders were neck-and-neck for the game's first 10 minutes. Glynn Blackwell, who

Swimmers host Hoosiers, Olympic hopefuls

Patton goes for 100th win vs. Indiana

By Marc Bona
 The Daily Iowan

A coaching milestone and a rich, storied history may come together today at the Field House pool at 7 p.m.

The 12th-ranked Hawkeyes (4-2) will host the Indiana Hoosiers (5-0) in Iowa's final Big Ten home swim meet of the year. Indiana will bring the storied history; Iowa, a possible coaching milestone.

Iowa Coach Glenn Patton will be shooting for his 100th win at Iowa, something he's calling ironic now.

"We're seeking our 100th win at Iowa, since I came here in '75," Patton said Tuesday at a press conference in Carver-Hawkeye Arena. "I came in thinking no one was good enough to beat Indiana—that was my goal."

AND A GRANDIOSE goal it was. Distant and seemingly crazy, but it was accomplished.

See Patton, Page 5B

Men's Swimming

Iowa beat Indiana in 1981, snapping Indiana's 20-year reign as the conference's supreme swimming power and winning the Big Ten in the process.

Despite the defeat, the Cream and Crimson program has been highly successful. Indiana vaulted to the swimming spotlight more than a decade ago when a Hoosier named Mark Spitz won an unprecedented seven gold medals at the 1972 Summer Olympic Games in Munich. But Spitz didn't make the Indiana program; it had already been established.

The Hoosiers are led by 31-year Coach James "Doc" Counsilman, who earned his Ph.D. at Iowa in 1952 and who served as an assistant coach at the time. In addition to 20 straight conference titles, Counsilman has guided the Fightin' Hoosiers to six straight NCAA crowns from 1968-73.

Iowa men's swimming Coach Glenn Patton, shown at a recent press conference, will go for his 100th win tonight against Indiana.

Hawks meet traveling star squad Sunday

By Eric J. Hess
 The Daily Iowan

Nineteen of the United States' best hopes for Olympic gold medals in men's swimming will be at the Iowa Field House pool for the 1988 Gold Medal Challenge Series.

The event, sponsored by U.S. Swimming, begins at 2 p.m. Sunday. Admission is $2 for the public and $1 for students. A sellout crowd of 2,000 is expected.

The swimmers, made up of the best swimmers in each event, will compete against Iowa Coach Glenn Patton's team.

Among the swimmers expected to compete are 1984 Olympic gold medalist and two-time silver medalist Pablo Morales, 1987 Pan American Games gold medalist Todd Dudley, 1986 World Championships gold medalist Tom Jager, 1987 Pan Am Games two-time gold medalist Bill Stapleton, U.S. Short Course Championships gold medalist Mark "Mook" Rhodenbaugh and 1987 Pan American gold medalist and former Iowa standout Tom Williams.

PATTON SAID HIS swimmers and fans can profit from the meet.

Iowa's swimmers include John Davey, expected to be one of England's best hopes for an Olympic medal. Patton also said he hopes his swimmers take advantage of the "elite competition" and learn from it.

"It'll be like Larry Bird, Magic Johnson and Michael Jordan coming in," Patton said, comparing the team to some of the NBA's top talents.

He's also looking for his swimmers to pull a few upsets. Perhaps it's not a likely scenario against some of the world's best swimmers, but the chance is there.

"I want them to think they can do it," Patton said. "We want our athletes thinking they can beat these guys."

MICHIGAN STATE Coach Bill Wadley, an assistant at Iowa from 1984 to 1987, will be one of two

No. 1 Hawks face Big Ten foes with an 'empty bench'

By Michael Trilk
 The Daily Iowan

At 12-0 and No. 1 in the nation, one would think that the Iowa women's basketball team hasn't got a wobble in the world.

But the wobbles abound for the Hawkeyes as they take what Coach C. Vivian Stringer calls a skeleton crew on the road for games against Illinois and Purdue tonight and Sunday.

Both of Iowa's first two point guards are hampered by injuries. Sophomore Jollette Law, who has started at point this season, is suffering from bronchitis and is expected to see limited action at best and senior backup Pam Williams, who started last season, has been troubled with back spasms all season and hasn't practiced in three weeks.

Women's Basketball

AS IF THAT wasn't enough, freshman Rena McMillon Thursday was declared academically ineligible for the rest of the season. She will be allowed to practice with the squad, but she is unavailable for games and will not travel with the team. The 5-foot-10 forward played in seven games as a Hawkeye, and averaged 1.3 points and rebounds per appearance.

"We won't go into these games and steal a win like we have the past three Big Ten games," Stringer said. "We'll have to work hard for everything we get. This will be a real grow-up experience for this team. The kids won't be able to look over to the bench for help because it will be empty. They'll have to do it themselves."

Illinois will also be without a few key performers. Senior captain Jenny Johnson is recovering from nose surgery and will miss tonight's game. The Illini's leading scorer has been released from the team for disciplinary reasons. Those losses are the reasons that the Illini who were once ranked in the nation's top 20 are now 0-4 in Big Ten play.

"We were okay coming into the Big Ten," Illini Coach Laura Golden said. "Then all of this started to snowball. But we're not canning the season and starting to build for next year yet. We'll need to make a terrific adjustment if we are going to turn it around at this

Gable gains 200th; Gophers fall, 26-11

By Scott Wingert
 The Daily Iowan

MINNEAPOLIS—Iowa wrestling Coach Dan Gable notched his 200th career coaching victory Thursday night as No. 4 Iowa downed seventh-ranked Minnesota, 26-11.

"I don't think about those numbers," Gable said. "Those are the type of things my kids keep track of. I'm more interested in individual performances."

At 118 pounds, Minnesota's Keith Nix ran his record to 30-3 with a hard-fought 10-6 decision over Iowa's Steve Martin. Nix scored a key takedown at the second-period buzzer to secure the win.

Iowa's Brad Penrith survived a late third-period flurry from the Gophers' Jim Hamel, holding on for a 9-6 victory at 126 pounds.

Sports Digest

Baseball
Jimmy Williams, a veteran of 41 years in professional baseball, Thursday was named the Cleveland Indians' director of minor-league field operations. Williams, 61, a native of Toronto, will oversee Cleveland's entire minor-league operations and conduct spring training. He was the Orioles' third-base coach last season. Phyllis Merhige and Ann Mileo will receive the Guinness Stout Big "G" award at the annual New York Baseball Writers Dinner Sunday, recognizing their contributions to sports. Merhige is the director of public relations for the American League, the first woman to hold that position, and Mileo is secretary in the New York Yankees media relations department. . . . The St. Louis Cardinals signed four players to one-year contracts for 1988: pitchers Tim Lincecum and Lee Tunnell, outfielder David Green and infielder Geromimo Pena. . . . Veteran minor leaguer Dan Rohn has signed a one-year contract with the Texas Rangers' Triple-A farm club, Oklahoma of the American Association. Rohn, a 32-year-old utilityman, played last year with Oakland's Tacoma farm club in the Pacific Coast League, hitting .214 with four home runs and 25 RBI in 84 games. . . . The Minnesota Twins signed minor-league outfielder Brad Bierley to a one-year contract.

Hockey
Defenseman Denis Potvin of the New York Islanders, Larry Robinson of the Montreal Canadiens and Mark Howe of Philadelphia were named to the Wales Conference All-Star squad by Flyers Coach Mike Keenan for the 9 game at St. Louis. . . . The St. Louis Blues acquired left winger Scott Hawlow from the Montreal Canadiens for future considerations. Hawlow, 24, had been playing with Baltimore of the American Hockey League and was the Skipjacks' leading scorer with 24 goals and 27 assists. The Blues assigned Hawlow to Peoria of the International Hockey League.

Horse Racing
Cryptoclearance, a contender in all tree Triple Crown races last year, won his first race of the 1988 season, capturing a $26,000 allowance race at Gulfstream Park by 1 1/4 lengths over Full Courage. Alden's Ace shook off John's Crown early in the stretch before recording a 1 1/2-length victory in the $15,000 Roman Purse at Laurel Race Club in the Pacific Coast League, hitting .214 with four home runs and 25 RBI in 84 games. . . . The Minnesota Twins signed minor-league outfielder Brad Bierley to a one-year contract.

Track and Field
American record-holder Steve Scott is scheduled to run in the 28th annual Oregon Indoor track and field meet Saturday night against Olympian John Walker of New Zealand and defending champion Dave Canfield of California in the mile. Olympian Earl Bell is to defend his pole-vault title. Other Olympians entered are Dwight Stones, Mike Conley, Al Joyner, Roger Kingdom, Judi Brown-King and Chris Smith. Marcus O'Sullivan of Ireland, the only man to defeat Eamonn Coghlan in the Wanamaker Mile, and outdoor champion Abate Bile Soriano head the field for the 63rd running of the Millrose Game in New York Feb. 5. In the women's 800 meters, defending champion Joella Clark, a four-time winner of the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, boxer Sugar Ray Leonard and basketball star Michael Jordan. . . . Former State Superintendent Robert A. O'Neal has been named safety director for the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, succeeding his brother, Jack, who died in November. . . . Konstantin Andrianov, the oldest member of the International Olympic Committee and chairman of the Soviet committee for nearly a quarter century, died at age 77. Andrianov was the first vice president of the IOC, from 1962-74. The 1987 New York City Marathon generated $64.2 million, according to a study conducted by Boston-based Economics Research Associates. . . . Dr. James Leoff has been named director of sport science, and Dr. Paul Roeter will coordinate research for the U.S. Tennis Association.

Hearn leads finalists for award

NEW YORK (UPI) — Thomas Hearn, boxing's most prolific world champion, edged Heisman Trophy winner Tim Brown of Notre Dame in the fourth and final balloting to determine the Gordon's Gin Black Athlete of the Year for 1987.

Hearn, who became the only boxer to hold the championship in four divisions when he knocked out Juan Roldan for the vacated World Boxing Council middleweight title, received 240 points in the voting announced Thursday. Brown, a wide receiver, was runnerup with 231 points.

The other quarterfinal winners were Ben Johnson, the world-record holding sprinter from Canada, boxer Sugar Ray Leonard and basketball star Michael Jordan of the Chicago Bulls.

A panel of black media experts will choose the overall winner from the four finalists. The winner will receive a $25,000 cash prize and a hand-sculpted trophy.

Finishing third in the final quarterly voting with 187 points was Andre Dawson, the National League MVP from the Chicago Cubs.

Cooper names Buckeye coaching staff

Ohio State football Coach John Cooper has announced his list of nine assistant coaches, which includes three who accompanied Cooper from Arizona State and three who were at Ohio State last season.

The former Sun Devil assistants and their positions: Jim Colletto (offensive coordinator), Bill Young (defensive coordinator) and Gene Huey (wide receivers).

Gary Blackney (inside linebackers), Fred Pagac (outside linebackers) and Bob Palcic (offensive line) are the holdovers from Ohio State.

Larry Kirksey, who spent the past four years at Florida coaching running backs, will have the same responsibilities at Ohio State. Ron Zook will coach defensive backs for the Buckeyes. He previously was defensive coordinator at Virginia Tech. Bill Dudley, an assistant at UCLA, will direct the quarterbacks.

"The Greek" gives column a hiatus

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Jimmy "the Greek" Snyder, fired as a television analyst for CBS Sports after saying black athletes are genetically superior to whites, temporarily halted writing his syndicated newspaper column this week, a spokesperson at the syndicate said Thursday.

The column, which normally is offered three times a week to about 100 newspapers nationwide, was not written this week, but an accompanying daily sports betting line continued, said North America Syndicate spokesperson Ted Hannah.

Suspension of the column, which has been in syndication since 1971, appeared to be temporary, but Snyder did not return calls to his New York office and could not be reached for comment.

Iowa's Foster will expand Arena league

CHICAGO (UPI) — Arena Football officials met with private investors from 10 cities Thursday to determine the makeup of the indoor football league for 1988.

Jim Foster, an Iowa graduate who is the founder and president of Arena Football Ventures, said the indoor football league probably will have eight teams for 1988. They had four teams representing Chicago, Denver, Pittsburgh and Washington, D.C., in its inaugural season last year.

The four original league cities were represented as well as New York, Los Angeles, Detroit, Minneapolis, Indianapolis and Providence, R.I. Foster said he would like to stay in the four original cities but said it was not yet determined whether they would have teams for the 1988 season.

Foster said he expects to select the final eight cities by Friday afternoon. Detroit is almost certain to be in the league and Los Angeles and New York have "good shots."

ESPN has signed on to broadcast 12 regular-season games, Foster said. The league is also negotiating with several sports broadcasting syndications for local television.

The saga of SMU continues

AUSTIN, Texas (UPI) — Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox said Thursday he will get deposit records crucial to an SMU theft investigation "one way or the other" from a Dallas bank where former SMU coach Bobby Collins is a director.

The attorney general's office in December subpoenaed the records of an SMU athletic department account at Dallas' Capital Bank as part of its investigation into the possible theft of at least $10,000 in school funds.

On Wednesday the bank notified Mattox it would need six more weeks to comply with the subpoena, which seeks deposit records from 1982-1987.

The scandal has cost SMU two years of its football program because of NCAA sanctions.

3 football coaches, 1 player honored

LARCHMONT, N.Y. (UPI) — Coaches John McKay, Jack Mollenkopf and Doyt Perry and tackle Marty Below were named Thursday to the National Football Foundation's College Football Hall of Fame.

Forsman overtakes Haas in Classic

INDIAN WELLS, Calif. (UPI) — Dan Forsman, playing the best round of his PGA career, concluded a 10-under-par 62 with an eagle Thursday to take a one-stroke lead over Jay Haas after two rounds of the $1 million Bob Hope Classic.

NFL owners discuss Patriots' future

NEW YORK (UPI) — NFL owners Thursday discussed the uncertain future of the New England Patriots and said they would give owner Billy Sullivan substantial time to sell the financially ailing franchise.

Commissioner Pete Rozelle said a committee including himself, Philadelphia Eagles owner Norman Bramman and Buffalo Bills owner Ralph Wilson reported to the clubs on the status of the Patriots after months of study.

pounds, utilizing a pair of powerful upper-body throws to defeat Minnesota's Jim Caughey, 8-2.

"It's been a while. I had a few butterflies," Melchiorre said. "I heard he was a Greco man, but I thought I could go upper-body with him anyway."

At 142 pounds, Iowa's Eric Pierson and the Gophers' Chuck Heise each missed great opportunities for third-period takedowns, settling for a 4-4 draw.

Freshman Mike Carpenter won his 13th match against three losses with a tough 3-2 victory over Minnesota's 19th-ranked Tim Manning at 150 pounds.

John Heffernan sealed the Gophers' fate at 158 pounds, driving a hard half-nelson into a first-period fall over the Gophers' Steve DuVall in 2:28.

AT 167 POUNDS, Minnesota's Rod Sande ran his record to 36-1 by wearing down freshman Bart Chelsevig, 8-3.

After a Minnesota forfeit at 177 pounds, Minnesota's Jeff Ziebol rallied for nine third-period points to defeat Iowa's Mike Traynor at 190 pounds, 10-5.

At heavyweight, Iowa's Mark Sindlinger used a second-period takedown to defeat Minnesota's Jeff Balcom, 4-3.

The Iowa wrestling team returns home Saturday to wrestle No. 9 Wisconsin at Carver-Hawkeye Arena. Meet time is 2:30 p.m. KCJJ radio will broadcast live.

Wisconsin, under second-year Coach Andy Rein, a former national champion, had a 28-11 dual-meet victory over Iowa State Dec. 12, but have stumbled after each competitive advance.

Rein has no illusions about the task in front of his squad. "Iowa has it going again," Rein said. "There's something about that place but we're not going to be intimidated by them. You have to be prepared for all types of surprises at Carver."

Big Green lie in waiting for Hawks

By Michael Trilk
The Daily Iowan

After Iowa's 93-79 win over Illinois Thursday night, one might wonder who the next Big Ten foe is for the Hawkeyes.

Wisconsin is Iowa's next conference opponent, but the Hawkeyes and Badgers won't meet until Monday. That leaves the whole weekend free, right?

Wrong. Iowa will play Ivy League leader Dartmouth Saturday night at Carver-Hawkeye Arena in a rare non-conference game during the Big Ten season.

Tip-off for Saturday's game is scheduled for 7:05 p.m.

"WE GAVE THIS date to the Big Ten office last year for a national television game," Iowa Coach Tom Davis said. "We told them that we would play anybody in the conference. But they did not schedule us and we were left in the middle of the summer with an open date. We phoned around the country and Dartmouth showed some interest and here we are."

Although Dartmouth isn't regarded as a major powerhouse in college basketball, Davis is expecting a good game that will help his team stay in tune when the league schedule resumes on Monday.

"We're excited about having them," Davis said. "They are a good team that is undefeated in the Ivy League and will probably end up in the NCAA tournament next March."

Davis also said that he won't have any problem getting his team ready for Dartmouth.

"THEY ENJOY PLAYING in games more than practice," Davis said. "So I'm sure they're ready for the game because they know that if we weren't playing, we would be practicing really hard."

Senior swingman Bill Jones said that he welcomes the Dartmouth challenge.

"It'll be a good game," Jones said. "It will help us keep our timing and things intact instead of us just having a few days off. This game won't do anything but help us."

Although the Hawkeyes will be heavy favorites going into the game, Davis thinks the matchup will do Dartmouth a lot of good just by showing up.

"This will help them tremendously," Davis said. "They don't have a conference tourney so they might only get one team out of their league in the NCAA field. A game like this will help toughen them up and help them play better in their league. If they make the tournament field and have to go up against one of the nation's best teams, then they won't be as overwhelmed because they have experienced that caliber of basketball."

Hawkeyes face ironies in meet vs. Michigan

By Brent Woods
The Daily Iowan

Sometimes there is an ironic twist in a sports event that adds to the excitement of the competition.

And sometimes, there is more than one twist.

When the Iowa women's swimming team faces the Michigan Wolverines at 4 p.m. today at the Field House pool, the ironies will abound.

The Wolverines — 2-0 in the Big Ten this year, last year's Big Ten champion and a front-runner for this year's title — are coached by former Iowa assistant Jim Richardson. He was on Iowa Coach Peter Kennedy's staff from 1982-85.

But there's more.

MICHIGAN'S ANN Colloton, the Big Ten record-holder in the 200-yard breaststroke, hails from, where else, Iowa City. Colloton did her high school swimming at Iowa City West, and her time of 2:16.67 in the 200 breaststroke is the fastest time in the nation this season.

And there's still more.

Michigan's Mary Fischbach, the Big Ten champion in both 1- and 3-meter diving, is also a resident of the Hawkeye State. She's from Fort Dodge, Iowa.

Women's Swimming

"We're really looking forward to coming back to Iowa City," Richardson said. "I have a lot of respect for Pete (Kennedy) and the Iowa program."

"A lot of the girls swimming (for Iowa) will be girls I helped recruit."

THE HAWKEYES BRING a 4-4 overall dual meet record into the meet, and after being tested by Michigan, Iowa will have to travel to Illinois State to face the Redbirds Saturday.

Despite the home-pool advantage against the Wolverines Friday, and despite the fact that Michigan will be without the services of last season's Big Ten Swimmer of the Year Gwen DeMaat, the Hawkeyes will be the underdogs.

DeMaat, who is ranked No. 1 in the nation in the 400-yard IM, is out indefinitely with mononucleosis.

"We just got that news," Richard-

Pete Kennedy
son said. "And I've had better news."

Richardson said he doesn't want to see his Wolverines rest on their laurels from last year.

"In some cases we've been swimming very well, but we haven't been aggressive enough," he said. "We really need to learn to challenge ourselves, and do that in hard training."

WITH DeMAAT HEALTHY, Michigan handled Ohio State easily. The Hawkeyes fell to the Buckeyes in a close meet.

"They (Michigan) beat Purdue and Ohio State pretty easily," Kennedy said. "They swam some real good times, and they have a real good diving crew."

Kennedy said he hopes his team will get valuable experience from the meet, but he's not certainly not conceding the contest.

"We're going with our best swimmers in their best events," Kennedy said.

DeMarco expects close meet against 2 Missouri teams

By G. Hammond-Kunke
The Daily Iowan

The going gets even tougher for the Iowa women's gymnastics team when it travels to Columbia, Mo., for a triangular meet with host Missouri and Southeast Missouri State tonight at 7:30 p.m.

Though Iowa has improved in practice this week, Coach Diane DeMarco's squad will be the underdog against the Tigers and the Otahkians.

"Both teams are very competitive and it should be a pretty close meet," DeMarco said. "We had three good practices this week and I look for our bars to improve. In order for us to win the meet we'll have to be consistent in each event."

Iowa lost its initial meet of the season last week against San Jose State because of a poor showing on the uneven bars. However, DeMarco said her team "is steadily improving" in that area.

FIRST-YEAR PERFORMER Susan Gorny from West Carrollton, Ohio, will be making her Iowa debut in the vault, bars and floor events. DeMarco will implement two other lineup changes with senior Jennifer DuBois starting on the balance beam and senior Stephanie Smith getting a start on the bars.

First-year gymnast Suzanne Watson has an ankle sprain and will not be ready for at least two more weeks.

Women's Gymnastics

Missouri has a 2-1 record after defeating Michigan State and Michigan and losing a close meet to powerful Nebraska, 184-to-182.50 last weekend. This is Missouri's strongest team under ninth-year mentor Jake Jacobson. Missouri has qualified for the NCAA regionals seven times under the Des Moines, Iowa, native.

"We had two real good meets," Jacobson said. "We'll be looking to defeat Iowa after our dismal showing against them last year." Iowa defeated Missouri 171.20-170.25 in Iowa City to start the season.

THAT WAS ONE of the poorest meets one of my teams has ever participated in. We're looking forward to seeing the Iowa gymnastics team again," said Jacobson, who received a masters degree from Drake in education.

Missouri's top performers are Julie Doren, in her first year, and junior Mary Houghton. Doren tied a school record against Nebraska with a 9.60 in the vault. Doren had a 37.55 in the all-around against the Cornhuskers to win the competition.

Southeast Missouri State is 2-0 after whipping Valparaiso, 170.45-140.55, and Illinois-

Susan Gorny
Chicago, 176.60-160.45.

The Otahkians are led by five-time all-American Diana Morris, who prepped in Clinton, Iowa. Morris scored a 9.6 in the balance beam against Illinois and had a 36.55 in the all-around.

NINE-YEAR SOUTHEAST Missouri Coach Bill Hopkins has an overall college record of 190-55-1. The Otahkians have been to the nationals the past eight years, winning five straight regional championships.

Though a Division II school, Southeast Missouri State has placed second in the NCAA's in 1984 and 1985 while finishing third in 1982 and '83.

Ex-Hawk Williams has eyes for Seoul

By Eric J. Hess
The Daily Iowan

Swimmer Tom Williams made a phone call before he left for the World University Games last July. He telephoned his father, Dick, to say goodbye before heading for Yugoslavia. Tom Williams also told him he didn't want to leave, that he wanted to be with his father at the hospital during his heart transplant.

But Dick Williams wouldn't agree to that. He said both he and his son had jobs to do.

"You go do yours and I'll do mine. And we'll talk about it later," he told his son.

"In the 11th hour I didn't think it was fair to the U.S. team (for Tom to remain behind)," Dick Williams said Thursday.

Men's Swimming

the best collegiate swimming teams.

TOM WILLIAMS, OF course, is thinking about the Olympics. More specifically, the gold medal is what he has in mind.

"When I sit down at night and turn out the lights, that's what I see," he said.

Williams' swimming career has progressed steadily over the past few years. While he had been finishing second, third or fourth a few years ago, now he is winning events.

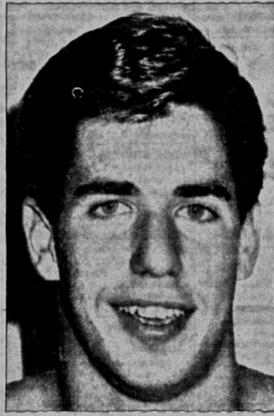

His college career has been filled with honors.

He won eight Big Ten titles between 1983 and 1986 and remains the conference record holder in the 50-yard freestyle with a 19.67.

Iowa Coach Glenn Patton said Williams is a great influence on his men's swimming team, comparing the relationship to what Iowa wrestling Coach Dan Gable has with many of his former national champions challenging his current wrestlers.

"TOM IS VERY knowledgeable," Patton said. "There's no doubt he's one of the reasons why the Iowa sprint program is one of the best in the country."

Williams' career as a sprinter has blessed him with many swimming friends across the nation. During the two weeks of the Pan Am Games, he said he got to know his three roommates very well. And all three, Scott McAdam, Todd Dudley and Jim Born, will be in Iowa City for the Gold Medal Challenge Series.

"They're good friends," Williams said, "but they're competition."

Williams also has a friendly competition with his brother, Rick, who is a backstroke for Iowa.

Rick Williams said his brother's confidence is catching.

"It's inspiring. I don't think I could do it without him," Rick Williams said. "He's always there when I need him."

What Tom Williams needs now is to shave his times in preparation for the Olympic Trials in Austin, Texas, in August. Then, with a little luck and a lot of heart, he'll be in the pool racing for an Olympic gold.

Dick Williams even teases him about the possibility of traveling to Asia to watch his son compete for about 22 seconds.

"It's going to cost us a lot of money per second," he said.

Patton

COUNCILMAN'S CREDITS include a slew of all-Americans, a host of all-conference performers and several Olympic competitors, with Spitz topping the list. Councilman has written five books about swimming and designed the Indiana Natatorium in Indianapolis.

Councilman also swam the English Channel in 1979 — the third oldest person to do so.

The question of whether the 65-year-old coaching mentor will ever stop coaching comes to light. "Eventually," he said, "but not in the immediate future. I like it too much. I'd probably coach even if they didn't pay me."

Accolades aside, 1986 was a down year for Councilman's Hoosiers, who finished third in the Big Ten — their worst finish since 1958. And heading into the Iowa meet, Councilman isn't exactly the most optimistic person in the world.

"THEY SHOULDN'T have any trouble with us," he said. "It would be a major upset if we would beat them."

Despite his rival's assurances, Patton is wary of the Hoosiers' strength.

Indiana matches the Hawks at several positions, according to Patton. The Hoosiers boast freestyler senior Juan Carlos Vallejo, senior Walter Braadt at backstroke and junior Jeff Oristaglio at breaststroke.

Vallejo recorded team bests in the 200 and 500 freestyle this season.

Iowa counters with senior sprinter John Davey, junior Rick Williams at backstroke and sophomore diver Tomasz Rossa.

Admission to the weekend meets is $1 for students, $2 for general public. "It's the best deal in college athletics," Patton said.

It will be a well-rested Iowa squad that hits the pool this weekend. Patton has cut practices down from 2½ to 1½ hours a day, with Thursday and Friday off.

The Hawkeyes have one swimmer who shaves for meets — sophomore Dave Kohmetscher. "We haven't shaved yet this year," Patton said. "Except for Dave Kohmetscher. We wanted him to experience fast, championship swimming."

Since their inaugural meeting in 1925, the two schools have met 23 times. Indiana holds a 15-8 edge in the series. Iowa beat Indiana, 70-43, last year at Indianapolis.

Iowa's holiday trip was to Hawaii while Indiana traveled to the Canary Islands and Madrid, Spain.

point and time. Losses like these hurt a team mentally as well as physically.

Stringer thinks that the Illini will be equally as tough.

"Their failures have been a real disappointment for them," Stringer said. "But we will have to look past those things. Illinois will be ready for us."

Purdue enters the weekend with a 3-1 record in Big Ten play — just one game behind Iowa. The Boilermakers are led by all-America candidate Sharon Versyp who is scoring at a 17.3 clip.

"THEY ALWAYS GIVE us fits," Stringer said about the Boilermakers. "They are playing extremely well. They have played a tough schedule and have played well against some top 20 teams. If they play well against us or should they beat us this would be the type of the game that could get them an NCAA berth come March. We'll have our backs against the wall."

This weekend's action will be Iowa's first real tests of the Big Ten season. And things won't get easier as Iowa returns home next week to take on Indiana and Ohio State, then travels the following week to meet Michigan and conference co-leader Michigan State.

Iowa

points on the night, and a layup by Jeff Moe, who added 10 points, knotted the score at 21.

Iowa's Al Lorenzen, who finished with 12 points, made one of two free throws for a 22-21 Iowa lead. The Illini's Blackwell dropped another medium jumper through to make it 23-22 in favor of Illinois.

Iowa countered with a Lorenzen three-pointer, his first of two on the night, and a driving layup by Marble gave the Hawkeyes a 27-23 lead, an advantage they never relinquished.

"IOWA REELED off 14 straight points for a 41-27 lead with little more than two minutes left in the half. After an exchange of jumpers and three-pointers the Hawkeyes were up 46-35 at the end of the first half.

Illinois Coach Lou Henson said it was his team's poor rebounding and turnovers that led to their demise. On the game the Illini had 20 turnovers, 14 in the first half, and they were outrebounded 35-30 by the Hawkeyes.

"We were very inadequate on the boards," Henson said. "We work on it all the time, but I'm convinced that's a lot like shooting, either you have rebounders or you don't and I'm about convinced that we're not going to rebound the ball. So that was the key — poor rebounding. Of course, you've got to remember this Iowa is a tremendous rebounding team."

"Iowa did a heck of a job on the press," Henson continued. "They killed us on the boards and we just didn't move the ball very well. I just never thought after the first eight, 10 minutes that we were even in the ballgame. I never thought we challenged them."

Hawks

ALTHOUGH MARBLE earned his season-high score, he said that he still has some improvements to make in his playing.

"I had it in my mind that it was one of my better games of the season," Marble said. "I felt good about it but I still have things to work on. I just wanted to make sure that I was being aggressive. I wanted to go out and shoot more and to play a better defense."

Marble said the 26 points was also a confidence builder.

"I haven't had a game like this in a while," Marble said. "It builds confidence but it also makes me realize that I can go out and play a lot better. There were a lot of things I could have done better. I could have been more aggressive. I can look at it as motivational and do it again."

Guard B.J. Armstrong said he was pleased by his teammate's performance.

"Roy had a great game tonight," he said. "It looked like they were playing him straight up. You can't play him one-on-one because he'll kill you every time."

Jetsetter cat ends odyssey

By Aurelio Rojas
United Press International

LOS ANGELES — Felix, the globe-trotting cat who began her monthlong odyssey in the baggage compartment of a 747 jetliner after pawing her way out of a traveling box, was flying home from London Thursday for a reunion with her owners.

The 2-year-old short-haired calico was found thin, weak and frightened in the Pan Am jumbo jet at Heathrow Airport on New Year's Day.

Airline staff concluded Felix had been in the hold for 29 days, flying some 179,000 miles through at least 64 stops on three continents, since escaping from her carrying box in the baggage compartment on a flight from Frankfurt to Los Angeles last Dec. 3.

Felix was to be reunited at Los Angeles International Airport with her owners, Air Force employee William Kubecki, his wife, Janice, and daughter Nadine.

This time Felix had a first-class seat on a Pan Am jet and was under the watchful eyes of her traveling companion, airline employee Jane Ford, who helped look after her since she was found.

The feline frequent flyer is believed to have survived on occasional scraps of food left by airport staff who suspected an animal was lost in the hold and drops of water condensation in the 747's cargo hold during the odyssey.

Beach Boy spews rude remarks at rock dinner

By Robert Hilburn
The Los Angeles Times

NEW YORK — Hopes that the three surviving Beatles would stage a mini-reunion at Wednesday night's third annual Rock and Roll Hall of Fame induction dinner were dashed by Paul McCartney. And that led to some bad vibrations from the Beach Boys' Mike Love.

Moments before the start of the dinner at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, a representative for McCartney distributed a statement in the press room that indicated McCartney would not be joining Ringo Starr and George Harrison at the ceremony, which also honored Bob Dylan, the Beach Boys, the Drifters and the Supremes. The reason: Long-standing business and legal problems involving the surviving Beatles and their former record company, Apple.

"I WAS KEEN to go to (the dinner) and pick up my award, but after 20 years the Beatles still have some business differences which I had hoped would have been settled by now," McCartney said in the statement. "Unfortunately, they haven't been (settled), so I would feel like a complete hypocrite waving and smiling with (Harrison and Starr) at a fake reunion."

"I think it is wonderful to be here tonight," said the Beach Boys' Love, following the other Beach Boys at the microphone as they accepted their awards. Remarkably on how sad it was that some performers could only be honored posthumously, Love continued. "But there are also... people like Paul McCartney, who couldn't be here tonight because he's in a lawsuit with Ringo and Yoko (Ono, Lennon's widow)... That's a bummer because we're talking about harmony... in the world."

AMID SIGHS OF disappointment over the news of McCartney's decision, there was also scattered applause in support of Love's remarks.

The applause apparently spurred the notoriously outspoken Beach Boy to further jabs, which generated additional nervous laughter and applause. "It's (also) a bummer when Ms. Ross can't make it."

On a roll, Love made some more sarcastic references to the Beatles, Bruce Springsteen, Billy Joel and Mick Jagger during a long, rambling speech.

The remarks were so pointed that when he left the stage, there was widespread booing from the audience.

Dylan, in making his induction acceptance speech a bit later, responded, at first humorously, then seriously. "I'd like to thank Mike Love for not mentioning me.... Peace, love and harmony is important indeed, but so is forgiveness."

A spokesman for Diana Ross reacted angrily to Love's equating of Ross and McCartney. Elliot Mintz, media consultant for Ono and Ross, said in an interview after the dinner: "If his speech was intended to be about harmony, it had totally the opposite effect."

Japanese percussionists put rhythm to work at Hancher

By B. Gordon
The Daily Iowan

Nothing is more elemental than a steady beat — one could say it is the essence of life. The first instrument may well have been a drum. The power of rhythm is an aspect of living that Kodo, Japan's "primal percussionists," understand very well. The unique troupe, which will appear at Hancher Auditorium this Sunday at 3 p.m., performs entire concerts solely with percussion instruments.

But the drums are unlike anything American audiences are used to. Kodo's largest drum, called the O-daiko in Japanese, weighs 900 pounds with a head 5-feet-wide. By comparison, Western tympany are virtually soprano-register toys. Kodo's art is based on traditional Japanese village rituals, so every movement is choreographed. The performances are as much folk dance as music.

Kodo's arduous daily regimen prepares its members for the task of creating and interpreting ancient ritual. For Kodo is much more than a group of performers, it is a way of life.

SINCE 1971 all of Kodo's drummers have lived on the remote island of Sado, a place of many historic Japanese political and religious exiles. Kodo members train every day as athletes and musicians. In 1975 they ran the Boston Marathon together and then presented a concert immediately afterwards.

"They're really going back to grassroots Japanese," said William Deal, UI professor of religion and a follower of Kodo. "The rituals they perform go back to long before Buddhism. But they also want to suggest that their music transcends Japanese tradition."

Kodo's Iowa City performance is part of its One Earth Tour, a name inspired by the original function of the taiko, or traditional Japanese drum.

"Most of the people in Kodo come from an urban environment, and have rejected contemporary values for more communal living," Deal said. "Their way of life is typical of Japanese Buddhist monasteries in that everyone works to provide for the entire group, but they do have families and make recordings and so on. They're a very idealistic group of people."

THE WORD "KODO" has two meanings: "heartbeat," for the first sound every human being hears, the pounding of the mother's heart; and "children of the drum," for the idea that the only way to play purely is to play with the heart of a child.

To say that world critics have raved about Kodo is to understate dramatically. "Their drums are veritable balls of fire, extraterrestrial suns, and the men who command them might be gods," exclaimed the critic of Le Monde in Paris. Another French critic said that "a resonant universe is born, explodes and dies, only to be reborn more triumphantly."

Tickets for the Hancher performance of Kodo are $15.50 and $13.50, with a 20 percent discount for UI students.

Buck pets to thrash at Gabe's

The Daily Iowan

Lately in the music industry it seems that who you are and what you play are not nearly as important as where you're from. Industry eyes are always open for regional rock and the hot new music scenes — the kind of musical nebulae that spawned R.E.M. from Athens, Ga., or Timbuk-3 from Austin, Texas.

One of the more recent discoveries is Deep Ellum, once the industrial center of Dallas, Texas, now a bohemian colony of artists and musicians. Tonight some of its more prominent sons, The Buck Pets, come to Gabe's Oasis to spread their particular brand of thrash and burn post-punk rock.

THE BUCK PETS appeared on last year's The Sounds of Deep Ellum (after all, what new music fan would buy The Sounds of Dallas?) and received praise as one of the most promising bands on the compilation. In an interview in Dallas Life Magazine, bass player Chuck Smith described The Buck Pets as "basic three-chord rock" and "distorted bar chords."

Music critics have had a little more trouble pinning down The Buck Pets. Critics have described them as "the Replacements meets Husker Du meets AC/DC" and "a Buzzcocks for the Nineties" and a "blend of Led Zep, Aerosmith and Soul Asylum."

However, the best description comes from Russel Smith of The Dallas Morning News who notes The Buck Pets "offer up big, blustery guitars spiced with bits of thrash and metal and skate it all over a shimmering haze of supersonic fuzz."

Matisse art shown through Feb. 28

By Kevin Goulding
The Daily Iowan

The UI Museum of Art is currently presenting an exhibition of 90 prints by French artist Henri Matisse. The exhibition will run through Feb. 28.

The Matisse print exhibition is free and open to the public.

Titled "Matisse Prints from the Museum of Modern Art," the works represent the artist's 50 years of printmaking.

During his career of 50 years Matisse produced more than 800 prints in a variety of media.

"He was a master at creating an entire subject, usually a figure, with a very few lines," said Jo-Ann Conklin, UI Museum Curator of Collections. "When people think of Matisse they usually think of his brightly colored Fauvist paintings, but he did an immense number of prints."

A LECTURE BY John Hallmark Neff, director of the art program and art adviser for the First National Bank of Chicago titled "Henri Matisse: Color and Light" will be presented Jan. 31 at the UI Art Museum at 2 p.m. A reception there Jan. 25 at 8 p.m. will mark the opening of the exhibition.

"Three Heads. To Friendship," an aquatint by French artist Henri Matisse, is one in a collection of prints from the Museum of Modern Art on display at the UI Museum of Art Jan. 16 - Feb. 28.

Entertainment Today

At the Bijou

Friday: All About Eve (1950) — Bette Davis at her crispest, playing an aging stage actress in the process of being upstaged by her protégée. 6:45 p.m.; Saturday at 9:15 p.m.

My Life as a Dog (1985) — A touching, wonderful foreign film about the vicissitudes of childhood. In Swedish. 9:15 p.m.; Saturday at 7:15 p.m.; Sunday at 8:45 p.m.

Hair (1979) — The Age of Aquarius is celebrated in this lavish collage of sight and sound. 7:15 p.m.; Saturday at 8:45 p.m.

Dr. Strangelove, or: How I Learned to Stop Worrying and Love the Bomb (1964) — A wildly hysterical dark comedy about U.S. and Soviet nuclear follies, this Stanley Kubrick comedy falls into one of the best Peter Sellers performances ever. 9:30 p.m.; Saturday at 7 p.m.

Sunday: The Legend of the Suram Fortress (1985) — Part fairy tale, part folk dance and part foreign, this is a weird tale of betrayal and sacrifice. In Georgian. 7 p.m.

Television

Friday: "Angling Iowa — Lake Catfishing" — Catfishermen Don Bonneau and Rick spend a night on Rathburn Reservoir trolling for ol' whiskers (8:30 p.m.; IPTV 12).

Saturday: "Fawly Towers" — The further misadventures of the staff and guests of England's craziest boarding house. Good stuff (10:30 p.m.; IPTV 12).

Sunday: "Nature — In Flight Movie/Birds of the Sun Gods" — Some stunning film footage of the only miracle in nature greater than the stars themselves: flight (8 p.m.; IPTV 12).
