National, local groups oppose Contra aid

White House fights growing signs of Congressional defeat

By Tom Kenworthy and Bill McAllister
Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The White House searched anxiously Monday for a way to give Congress a greater say in determining whether more lethal aid will be sent to the Contras in Nicaragua amid growing signs from Capitol Hill that the request will be defeated Wednesday.

House Majority Leader Thomas Foley, D-Wash., usually the most cautious member of the leadership, said flatly that the opponents would defeat President Ronald Reagan's request for more aid.

"We're going to win," Foley said. President Reagan is to outline that request tonight in a television speech, but as of Monday afternoon only Cable News Network had agreed to carry the address live. The three major networks were not expected to decide until later today whether to carry the address, and Democrats were reported to be demanding equal time to answer the president.

WHITE HOUSE strategists consulted Monday with congressional leaders over prospects for the request as the president went before a convention of religious leaders. See Reagan, Page 8A

UI groups rally for strong support of Arias Peace Plan

By Paula Roesler
The Daily Iowan

The Arias Peace Plan is not a panacea for the problems of Central America, but the United States should support it and oppose further aid to the Contra rebels in Nicaragua, UI graduate student and Central American Solidarity Committee member Pat McNamara said at a forum concerning Contra aid Monday in Shambaugh Auditorium.

"We should support the agreement because it's a Central American agreement," McNamara said. "It comes from Central America itself. To a certain extent we have to trust the Central Americans for being in touch and solving their own problems."

The Arias Plan, a peace accord named after Costa Rican President Oscar Arias, was signed Aug. 7, 1987, by the leaders of Costa Rica, El Salvador, Guatemala, Honduras and Nicaragua. The plan calls for a cease-fire in civil conflicts, an end to outside funding of Contra rebels and democratic reforms.

"THE PLAN doesn't even come close to addressing the problems of Central America anyway," said McNamara, who from 1984 to 1986 worked for the Institute for Cen- See Speech, Page 8A

President Ronald Reagan addresses the National Religious Broadcasters convention Monday in Washington D.C. Reagan spoke on the need for keeping the U.S.-backed Contras in existence to keep the pressure on the Sandinista government in Managua.

UI dental student doubles as artist

By Cathy Jackson
The Daily Iowan

Ardeshir Salem looks at dentistry as an art. Ellen Gundrum, art coordinator and assistant manager at Iowa City's Great Midwestern Ice Cream Co., looks at Salem's art and sees promise.

In his premiere showing, Salem, a fourth-year UI dental student, is displaying 24 of his artworks at Great Midwestern, 126 Washington St., until Feb. 12.

"One of the reasons I got into dentistry is that it's a form of art for me," Salem said. "I like science and working with my hands — dentistry offered a combination of the two."

"He has a natural gift for putting emotion in his works without being overdramatic," Gundrum said. "A lot of the images our other shows have put across have been very safe, 'white-bread' images, but this is people, emotion, calligraphy. It makes the show more daring and exciting."

SALEM SAID working on his art, which consists of watercolors, oils, prints and etchings on a variety of mediums, has also helped him get through the rigors of dental school.

"My art has brought some of the stress and emotion of school out on paper so I can look at it," he said.

Salem's art has a decidedly Middle Eastern flavor — due in part to the Iranian calligraphy decorating many of his works.

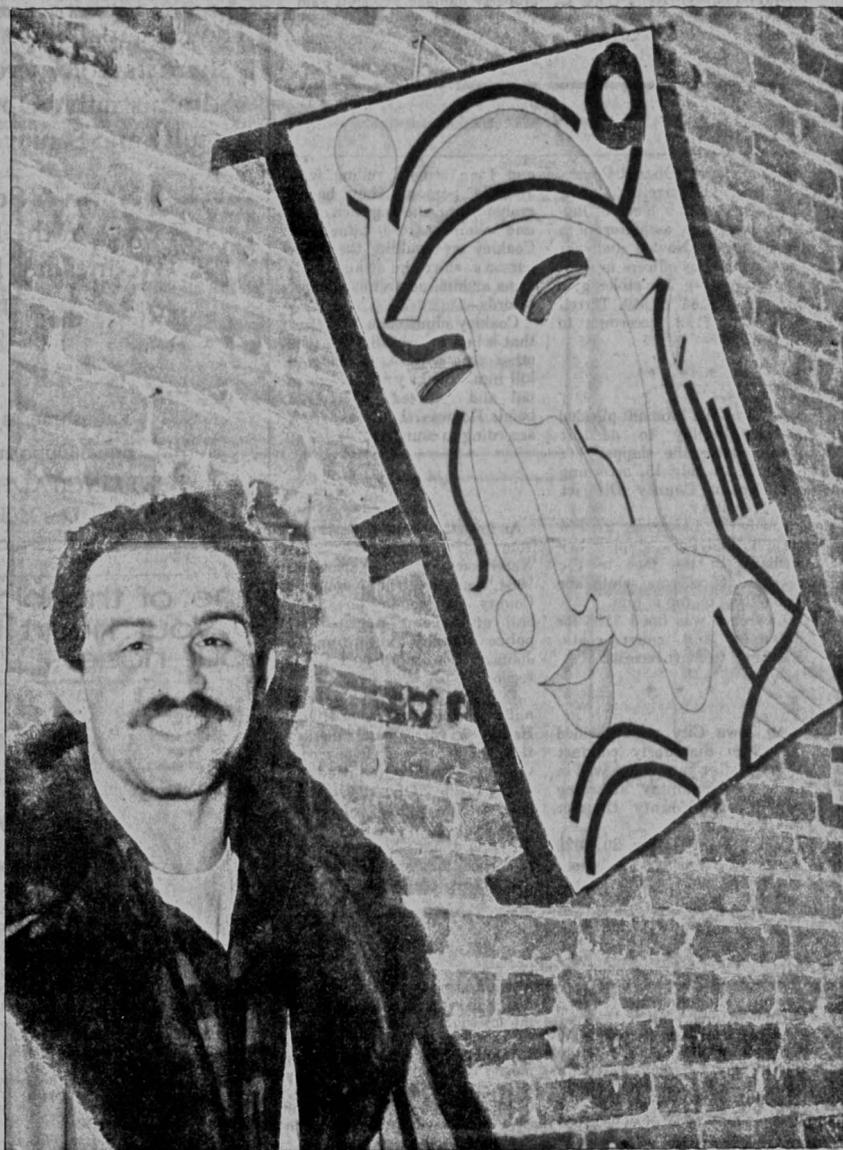

The words and letters come from Farusi, the language Salem speaks at home.

"The writing style is influenced by Persian calligraphy," Salem said. "Sometimes I just use it as part of the design and it doesn't say anything in particular, other times the words contribute to the meaning of the painting."

Salem grew up in Iran and moved with his family to California 11 years ago. He went to the University of California-Santa Cruz as an undergraduate majoring in biochemistry with a minor in art, and came to the UI College of Dentistry in 1984. He has also taken two art classes at the UI.

SALEM SAID many of his works, though not the ones displayed at Great Midwestern, have political backgrounds.

"Some of my strongest works are about the war in Iran and the influence it's had on the people in and outside the country," he said.

Gundrum said the Great Midwestern couldn't hang Salem's more political paintings because they weren't appropriate for a restaurant.

"The images, especially in the war paintings, were really strong, and we have a policy: no nudity and no partisan politics in our shows," Gundrum said.

About some of his other works, Salem paraphrased artist Pablo Picasso: "Don't ask me what my paintings mean; it's like asking the birds what their songs mean."

"EACH OF MY works has a lot of meaning for me," Salem said. "My art is a form of diary. I do it because I enjoy it and each piece reflects a period or a change in my life."

Salem said he couldn't put his art into any one category.

"My cultural background and changes in my life have caused my art to be influenced by many conditions and environments — I don't have one particular style," he said.

Salem's art showing at Great Midwestern has received praise from customers, according to Gundrum.

"People have come up to me and said, 'It's about time you got a decent show.' The inquiries about purchasing his work have been the largest yet," she said.

But Salem said art is still just his hobby.

"I don't want to sell many of my works because I feel like some of them are a part of me and I can't put a price on them. I like to give my pieces away to special people for different reasons," he said.

After he graduates, Salem said, he plans to go back to California to start a dental practice.

"My dream is to have a place in San Francisco with an art gallery upstairs and a dental clinic downstairs," he said.

Breast cancer rate reaches all-time high

By Marlene Cimons
Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — The incidence of breast cancer — the leading cause of cancer death in women — has reached its highest rate in history, while the incidence of lung cancer among men declined to its lowest rate this decade, the National Cancer Institute reported Monday.

The institute, in its annual report on cancer incidence and survival, also reported an increase in the breast cancer death rate in 1984 and 1985 for the first time since 1970 among white women younger than 50.

Edward Sondik, chief of the institute's surveillance and operations research branch, attributed the breast cancer rate increase in part to earlier screening and detection of the disease. However, he said, "the fact that the mortality rate hasn't changed downwards says either the screening is ineffective or it's just not taking place."

"IF WE WERE screening to the fullest extent possible," he predicted, "we would see a decline in mortality of at least 30 percent in women over 50, and we'd see it soon."

The incidence of lung cancer continued to rise among women, according to the report, but Sondik said that "in the dubious race" between the two cancers "breast cancer is still ahead" as the leading cancer killer of women.

In 1985, he said, there were 40,090 breast cancer deaths among women and 38,641 lung cancer deaths among women. The cancer statistics for the institute's annual report are available only through 1985.

The incidence of breast cancer among all races has risen steadily by about 1 percent each year since 1973 to an all-time high of about 102 cases per 100,000 women in 1985, the report said. The report said a dramatic jump from 82.3 cases per 100,000 women in 1973 to about 94 cases per 100,000 in 1974 could probably be attributed to "earlier disease detection

Telegram links Austrian president to war crimes

By William Tuohy
Los Angeles Times

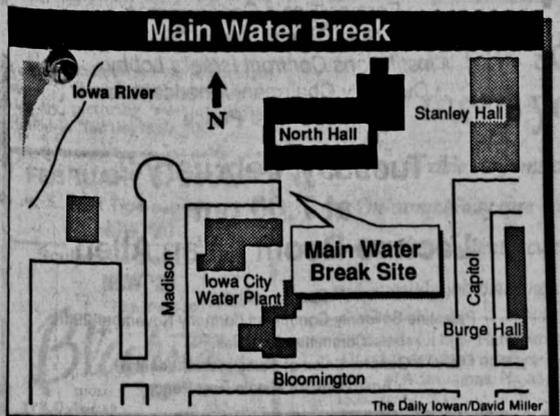

BONN, West Germany — A West German military historian flew to Yugoslavia Monday in an effort to authenticate a World War II telegram said to link Austrian President Kurt Waldheim with Nazi war crimes, but if such a telegram exists it seems to have disappeared.

The historian, Manfred Messerschmidt, a member of a commission set up in Vienna to review Waldheim's service as a lieutenant in the German army, flew from Vienna to Zagreb hoping to see the telegram, even though he told reporters that "at present, no one knows where it is."

According to Der Spiegel, a West German news magazine, the telegram was found by a Yugoslav military historian, Dusan Plenca, who was quoted as saying that it "seriously implicates" Waldheim in war crimes.

Major water main severed, boiling drinking water urged

By Lisa Legge
The Daily Iowan

Iowa City officials are suggesting city residents boil cooking and drinking water for the next few days after a major water main was severed Monday near the Iowa City Water Treatment Plant, 330 N. Madison St.

Iowa City Water Treatment Plant Assistant Supervisor Ed Moreno said shifting water pressure due to the break stirred up mineral sediments and caused them to flow through city water pipes, discoloring the water.

Moreno said boiling water is especially important for children, sick or elderly people in their homes.

"Our primary concern is safety," Moreno said. "We want people to be aware of the precautions."

The break occurred about 2 p.m. Monday when water plant employees working in the area struck the 20-inch pipe outside the water plant, according to Moreno. The main plant was forced to close for most of Monday as backup water tanks were used to supply water for the city.

HOMES LOCATED on the outskirts of Iowa City and on hills had no water pressure, while others experienced lower water pressure, Moreno said. Workers isolated the break by early evening and the water line was expected to be fixed by midnight Monday.

from DI staff reports

Candidates visit UI today

Democratic presidential candidate and Missouri Rep. Richard Gephardt will give a foreign policy address today at 9:30 a.m. in Van Allen Hall Lecture Room 1 on the UI campus.

Gephardt's lecture is free and open to the public.

Another Democratic presidential candidate, former Arizona Gov. Bruce Babbitt, will also present a speech today in the Union Ballroom at 4 p.m.

Babbitt's speech is also free and open to the public.

Education focus of hearing

Excellence in teaching in higher education will be the focus of a public hearing scheduled for the afternoon of Feb. 12 at a yet undisclosed location on the UI campus. The hearing, to be conducted by Iowa Sen. Richard Varn, D-Solon, will address specific ways the quality of teaching can be improved in post high-school education.

Varn, who is currently serving his first term in the Iowa Senate, is chair of the Senate Appropriations Subcommittee on Education.

Professor presents lecture

A University of Nebraska professor will present a lecture entitled "Caring and the Student Personnel Professional: Replacing Old Myths with New Perspectives" Feb. 6 at 10 a.m. in the Union North Room.

Robert D. Brown, a distinguished professor of educational psychology, has written more than 100 journal publications on student life, housing, counseling and program evaluation. Brown is currently the editor of the Journal of College Student Personnel.

A panel discussion with UI Associate Professor Barbara Kerr, UI Professor Al Hood and UI Dean of Student Services Phillip Jones will follow the lecture at 12:30 p.m.

V.A. Hospital given grant

The U.S. Congress last week approved a $690,000 award for the installation of telephone conduit at the Iowa City Veterans Administration Hospital.

The federal funds will also help pay for other telephone site preparation projects at the hospital, which is undergoing major renovation.

Hospital offers screening

As part of a statewide cardiovascular awareness program, cholesterol screening will be offered Feb. 8 through Feb. 12, between 2 p.m. and 7 p.m. at Mercy Hospital, 500 Market St.

The cost for the screening will be $5. Participants need not fast before the test and results will be mailed to participants' homes along with information about cholesterol and diet.

Signs at the hospital will direct participants to the private dining room of the Mercy Hospital cafeteria.

Anti-nuclear activist to visit

An address, "Presidential Politics — The Road to Peace on the Road to the White House," will be presented Feb. 5 by William Sloane Coffin Jr., arms reduction activist and president of the anti-nuclear group SANE/FREEZE.

The address, sponsored by the Iowa City Foreign Relations Council, will be held at noon at the Iowa City Congregational Church, 30 N. Clinton St.

'Contragate' forum held

A forum titled "Contragate and the 1988 Elections — The Unanswered Questions" will be held tonight at 7:30 in Old Brick, 26 E. Market St.

The forum will be conducted by Rusty Martin of the Christic Institute, a public interest law firm that helped expose the private Contra supply network by filing a federal anti-organized crime lawsuit against Richard Secord, Albert Hakim, Oliver North aide Rob Owen and 26 others in May 1986.

The lecture is sponsored by the UI Global Studies Program and Lutheran Campus Ministry.

Iowa City man leads fight against Class C fireworks

By Sara Anderson
The Daily Iowan

An Iowa City man will lead the fight against a bill which would legalize the sale and manufacture of Class C fireworks in Iowa by presenting a petition to state legislators on Wednesday.

John Nesbitt, chairman of the Committee Against Legalizing Class C Fireworks in Iowa, will present an anti-fireworks petition signed by approximately 1,700 Iowans to Sen. Lee Holt, R-Spencer, at a news conference in Des Moines Wednesday.

The petition is being presented in an attempt to stop a bill currently before the Iowa Legislature which would legalize Class C fireworks. The petition includes signatures from Johnson, Linn, Des Moines and Louisa counties, Nesbitt said.

Class C fireworks includes a group of 25 explosive devices such as bottle rockets, cones and Roman candles, according to the committee. The devices can contain no more than 50 milligrams of gunpowder.

"THE BILL WILL legalize Class C fireworks, which are illegal right now," Nesbitt said.

"Our committee's objective now is a unanimous disavowal and repudiation of this bill by the Senate Judiciary Committee. We hope the entire House and its leadership and the Senate and its leadership will encourage the Senate Judiciary Committee to unanimously vote no."

Holt — one of the leaders against the fireworks bill in the Iowa Senate — cites the danger to users of fireworks as a major reason for his opposition to legalization.

"It's putting many people in danger," he said. "There is much concern with the safety of people and the serious burns and sometimes death which can result from fireworks."

Other documents to be presented to Holt Wednesday by the committee include resolutions against the legislation by groups such as the Iowa League of Municipalities, Professional Fire Chiefs and Hawkeye State Safety.

THE COMMITTEE URGES continuation of the 1938 Spencer-Remsen-Oyens Class C Fireworks Ban Law, which was adopted after a fire which razed the town of Spencer, Iowa.

Explaining his position on fireworks safety, Holt said the bill presents a dangerous paradox.

"Frankly, I think it's ridiculous to legalize something like this, which could hurt people, when we normally make laws designed to protect them," he said.

A bill making sale and manufacture of Class C fireworks legal in Iowa was introduced last year and passed by the Iowa House of Representatives. The bill was also passed by the Iowa Senate Judiciary Committee but did not come to the Senate floor.

The result of a vote on the bill is difficult to predict, Holt said. "I think it's going to be a very close vote," he said. "I'd like to think it would fail."

Accidents involving fireworks account for 12,500 accidents annually nationwide, according to the committee.

"If we have this law to legalize Class C, in the first year we can expect 178 injuries, 500 fires and about $500,000 worth of property damage," Nesbitt said. "We'll also have about 1,500 police responses to fireworks-related vandalism."

Courts

By Traci Auble

A Coralville man pleaded guilty last week to two counts of willfully failing to file Iowa withholding tax returns in Johnson County District Court.

Dodge T. Fielding, 41, 2040 Stratford Drive, was sentenced by Sixth District Judge L. Vern Robinson to a suspended sentence not to exceed two years and was placed on one year probation for each count, according to court records.

The amount of tax owed on each count was between $500 and $5,000. Fielding, president of Worldview, Inc., has now filed the returns and paid the full amount of taxes owed, according to court records.

Fielding was originally charged on Nov. 17, 1987, with a third count of tax evasion for failing to file withholding tax for the period ending June 30, 1987, but the charge was later dismissed, according to court records.

A Swisher, Iowa, man who was charged with assaulting Iowa football player Keaton Smiley in November, was found guilty of fifth-degree theft Monday in Johnson County District Court.

A former Iowa City councilor was issued a ticket Monday afternoon for carrying a concealed weapon at the Iowa City Civic Center, 410 E. Washington St., according to police reports.

Max Yocum, 63, RR 4, Iowa City, said he was issued the ticket at about 12:05 p.m. Monday when he brought out the handgun as evidence regarding a theft.

Theft: A keyboard synthesizer, accessories and a piano, valued together at approximately $1,800, were reported stolen Thursday at 12:14 a.m. from the Union Main Johnson County District Court. Richard G. Terrell, 38, was observed taking a piece of luggage down the escalator of a local mall on Nov. 4 and was then stopped by officers in front of a candy store. The stolen gym bag was valued at $49. Terrell was fined $112, according to court records.

A Coralville woman pleaded guilty Monday to assault charges after she slapped her husband on July 15, according to Johnson County District Court records.

Marilyn L. Lawrence, 27, F-9 Coral Trailer Park, slapped her husband in the face in the presence of officers while she was sitting on top of him.

Lawrence was fined $106 for damages and court costs, according to court records.

An Iowa City man pleaded guilty to disorderly conduct Monday after he was involved in a fight on Saturday, according to Johnson County District Court records.

Matthew J. Coakley, 20, 1628 Wilson St., was observed near the intersection of Burlington and Linn streets yelling with another person. They began grabbing and shoving each other and then started punching. Coakley was pulling the other person's shirt and swinging his arms at him, according to court records.

Coakley admitted to the officer that when he was fighting the other person he was "ready to kill him." Coakley was taken to jail and released on a $115 bond. He was then fined $77, according to court records.

An Iowa City man who escaped from the HOPE House, 1916 Waterfront Drive, on Nov. 3, 1984, was being held in Johnson County Jail Monday on $5,000 bail after being arrested by police Sunday, according to Johnson County District Court records.

Dale E. Anderson, 46, was originally admitted to the HOPE House, a correctional institution, for a previous felony conviction. Anderson failed to return to the HOPE House at 12 p.m. on Nov. 3, 1984, according to court records.

A preliminary hearing in the case is set for Feb. 11, according to court records.

One of the biggest threats to your heart is right under your nose.

"Great," you say to yourself. "Here they come with more bad news." Okay, so we do have some bad news for you. But you need all the facts you can get when it comes to making a decision about smoking. Like the fact that if you smoke, you're twice as likely to have a heart attack as a nonsmoker. And if you do have a heart attack, you're more likely to die. Suddenly. But here's the good news. Regardless of how long or how much you've smoked, your risk of heart disease will begin dropping rapidly the day you stop. Which means that 10 years after quitting, it can be almost the same as if you had never smoked at all. So take the good with the bad, but take our word for it: it's never too late to quit.

Hart lectures 500 on budget plan at Union stop

By Ma Legge
The Daily Iowan

Instead of delivering his traditional campaign stump speech, Democratic presidential candidate Gary Hart lectured about 500 people about his budget plan Monday afternoon at the Union Ballroom.

The former Colorado senator solicited responses from the audience of mostly UI students, writing the answers on a chalkboard near the podium after taking off his jacket.

Hart said the separate roles of the president call for investment, reform and engagement. As an investor, Hart said, the United States must spend more on energy research and production, infrastructure and education.

"We have to make policy changes that would cut spending and we have to raise taxes, and at the same time have enough dollars to reinvest," Hart said.

IN ADDITION to cutting the defense budget, Hart called for reform of military strategy, including better use of military personnel and less military unit rotation.

"We're educating, promoting and advancing our officers for the wrong reasons and for the wrong qualifications," he said. "We've got to identify, educate and advance military commanders and not bureaucrats."

Hart advocated retaining, not rotating, personnel in military units. "Being able to fight with the people you know best causes people — if you have to fight — to win," he said. "Rotating our forces has nothing to do with the budget. We're educating our officers for all the wrong reasons and we're not prepared for combat."

HART CALLED for a new foreign policy he terms "engagement" to replace a current U.S. policy of containment of communism.

"It means we are going to turn our energies and talents to the Third World of Latin America, Africa and Asia," he said, "and engage that Third World to help elevate their standard of living, create open societies and democratic forms of government and economic promise to their people, and they will contain communism because they don't want it."

During his speech, Hart touted his proposed national budget for fiscal year 1989 and challenged other presidential candidates to submit proposed budgets.

"This is heavy stuff. It's not sexy," he said, adding the only other candidate to propose a budget has been former Arizona Democratic candidate Bruce Babbitt. "The Miami Herald wouldn't be interested in this."

Gephardt widens lead, but criticized

By Matthew C. Quinn
United Press International

DES MOINES — Rep. Richard Gephardt was harshly criticized by two Democratic presidential rivals Monday as a new poll showed him widening his lead in the Iowa caucuses one week away.

Republicans George Bush and Bob Dole concentrated on New Hampshire, where another poll showed the vice president leading the Senate GOP leader by better than a 2-to-1 margin in the primary held there eight days after the Iowa caucuses.

Michael Dukakis, governor of neighboring Massachusetts, led his closest rival, former Sen. Gary Hart of Colorado, by a margin of nearly 3-to-1 in New Hampshire, according to the poll by the Manchester Union Leader.

A CBS News-New York Times presidential poll also released Monday showed Bush leading the GOP field in New Hampshire, with 42 percent support compared to 20 percent for Dole. Rep. Jack Kemp of New York had 16 percent support from GOP voters.

AMONG NEW Hampshire Democrats, Dukakis is leading with 40 percent support compared to 16 percent for his closest challenger, Sen. Paul Simon of Illinois, the poll said.

Gephardt, leading Dukakis in Iowa 28 percent to 18 percent in the poll of Iowa Democrats by the Boston Herald and Boston television station WBZ, was the target of attacks by former Arizona Gov. Bruce Babbitt and Sen. Paul Simon of Illinois. Both criticized Gephardt for supporting the 1981 Reagan tax cut.

"One of the things you have to think of to make a decision on whose judgment in these tough situations is sound: On whom can you depend?" Simon told a Rotary Club luncheon in Waterloo. "He voted for the 1981 tax bill that created most of the trade deficit and the budget deficit we have today. It was a popular vote at the time."

BABBITT, STAGING "candidate-a-day" attacks against front-running Dukakis, Simon and Gephardt, said the Missouri congressman's anti-establishment claim does not jibe with his congressional record. He also challenged Gephardt's opposition to aid to the Nicaraguan rebels.

"Where I come from, Dick Gephardt is the establishment," Babbitt told students at Des Moines Area Community College in Ankeny, Iowa. "Those who criticize what they epitomize run the very real risk of losing their bearings."

Gephardt cancelled most of his Iowa campaign appearances because snow prevented his chartered plane from landing at rural stops.

Candidates hone media messages

By Matthew C. Quinn
United Press International

DES MOINES — Television viewers are getting a heavy dose of Sen. Paul Simon's bow tie, Rep. Richard Gephardt's $48,000 Hyundai and Sen. Robert Dole's Depression upbringing as the presidential candidates hone their media messages for the final week before the Iowa caucuses.

In other TV ads, Vice President George Bush runs against Congress and former Arizona Gov. Bruce Babbitt campaigns against the timidity of his Democratic rivals.

Jesse Jackson is airing his first ads now, and Simon, D-Ill., plans new ones touting his endorsement from the Des Moines Register.

Though the campaigns will not disclose exactly how much money they will spend on their final blitzes, Gephardt, D-Mo., is thought to be spending the most.

MANY NEW ADS are being produced and held in reserve for more message shifts in the days before the Feb. 8 precinct caucuses.

Bush is pictured with a 2-foot-high federal budget. "This is the federal budget Congress gives us," he tells viewers, urging support for presidential authority to veto specific items.

Dole also emphasizes budget issues, telling viewers, "I'm Bob Dole. I grew up during the Depression in the small town of Russell, Kansas, where I learned that you can't spend what you don't have."

Jackson has spent $24,000 on ads — a 12th as much as Gephardt — and they are being carried on cable television, not on broadcast outlets like the other campaigns.

BABBITT, IN A new ad Monday, makes a strident attack on his rivals for failing to say how they would cut the deficit.

"They're afraid to tell you the truth because you might not vote for them," he said.

Gephardt is credited with waiting until the new year to begin his blitz. A Gephardt ad, on the air for weeks, promises to leave the South Koreans "asking themselves how many Americans are going to pay $48,000 for one of their Hyundais" if tariffs are not lifted on American imports.

A Simon ad seeks to steal some of Gephardt's populist thunder by picturing workers saying Simon is "for the little guy."

Soviet, U.S. set to discuss new summit

MOSCOW — Secretary of State George Shultz will confer in Moscow Feb. 21-23 with Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze to prepare for another Soviet-American summit meeting, it was announced Monday.

It will be the first in a series of talks between Shultz and Shevardnadze in advance of President Ronald Reagan's first visit to the Soviet Union for his fourth conference with Kremlin leader Mikhail Gorbachev.

Shultz and Shevardnadze will focus on prospects for a 50 percent reduction in strategic nuclear weapons by the time Reagan and Gorbachev meet, probably in the last week of May or the first week in June.

Carlucci warns against treaty rejection

WASHINGTON — Defense Secretary Frank Carlucci warned Monday rejection of the INF Treaty could result in removal of U.S. nuclear missiles from Europe anyway.

Carlucci said NATO government leaders had shown "great courage" in standing up to their peace movements and to Soviet criticism in allowing deployment of the U.S. Pershing 2 and land-based cruise missiles in Western Europe in 1983.

But now, Carlucci said, after the NATO governments have agreed to support the INF Treaty that would remove such missiles, Senate rejection of the pact would make it politically difficult for NATO to upgrade its conventional forces or to allow the United States to continue to deploy missiles on European soil.

Mecham refuses to answer questions

PHOENIX — Indicted Arizona Gov. Evan Mecham refused Monday to answer questions from House attorneys, halting a hearing to decide whether he should be impeached on charges he tried to hide a $350,000 campaign loan in 1986.

Mecham refused to answer questions from the committee's two attorneys after giving a 35-minute statement denying any wrongdoing, and asking the House not to impeach him and let the public decide his fate in a May 17 recall election.

Stalin's successor Malenkov, 86, dies

MOSCOW — Georgi Malenkov, who succeeded Josef Stalin as Soviet leader but lost power in 10 days to become one of history's forgotten men, died in obscurity in Moscow at age 86, it was announced Monday.

"Yes, Malenkov died Jan. 14 and was buried Jan. 19 in one of Moscow's cemeteries next to his wife," Foreign Ministry spokesman Gennady Gerasimov said. He gave no cause of death but said Malenkov was "an old man, 86."

The former top Stalin aide became Communist Party general secretary when the dictator died March 5, 1953, but was forced out as party leader 10 days later by Nikita Khrushchev in the post-Stalin power struggle.

Nicaragua hopes to renew peace talks

MANAGUA, Nicaragua — The Nicaraguan government, citing a regional plan for peace in Central America, called on 14 opposition parties Monday to reopen a suspended dialogue on political reforms.

The proposal to begin new talks today was accepted by some of the opposition groups, but at least one attached conditions on resuming the dialogue suspended Dec. 15 when the government refused demands to change the constitution.

According to the official newspaper of the ruling Sandinista front, the government called for the renewal of talks to comply with the Central American peace accord signed last Aug. 7 in Guatemala by the five regional presidents.

Meese defends his role in Iraqi project

By Lori Santos
United Press International

WASHINGTON — Attorney General Edwin Meese, defending his role in a questionable $1 billion Iraqi pipeline project, said Monday his contact in the deal "was extremely limited," and he fully expects to be cleared of wrongdoing.

At a news conference at which he read a five-page statement, Meese rebuffed new allegations that he may have known of illegal attempts to bribe Israeli officials to support the classified project and did nothing to stop them.

He gave no indication that he intended to step aside.

"I did not initiate or promote this particular project," the attorney general said. "I remain fully confident that on a fair evaluation of the facts and the law, the independent counsel and his staff will conclude that my limited contact with the Aqaba pipeline project was entirely lawful, proper and responsible."

AFTER CANCELING a speaking engagement to meet with his attorneys most of the morning, Meese delivered the statement on camera but declined to take any questions or give any indication of his plans.

But the attorney general denied he played either an important or a sustained role in promoting the pipeline project in which his long-time friend and former attorney, E. Robert Wallach, had a financial interest.

When asked at the White House whether he thought Meese could remain in his job, President Ronald Reagan replied: "No comment. I'm not going to talk about it."

Last week, it was disclosed that Wallach wrote a memorandum to Meese in 1985 suggesting that payments be made to Israeli officials to win their support of the project. The pipeline, which was to have run from Iraqi oil fields to the Jordanian port of Aqaba, was never built.

2 Palestinians killed in West Bank protest

By Louis Toscano
United Press International

JERUSALEM — Two Palestinians were shot to death, possibly by Israeli civilians, during a protest Monday in a West Bank village as unrest swept across other parts of the occupied territory with clashes between soldiers and anti-Israeli demonstrators.

The deaths, the first protest-related fatalities in more than two weeks in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip, brought to at least 40 the number of Palestinians killed by Israeli gunfire since the violence erupted almost eight weeks ago.

At least three people were wounded in the clash in the village of Anabta, 40 miles northwest of Jerusalem.

The army said it was unclear whether the victims were shot by soldiers, police or Israeli civilians whose vehicles were attacked by rock-throwing protesters who blocked the main road through town.

JEWISH SETTLERS living in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip are permitted to carry weapons for self-defense.

Palestinian sources said at least 19 other people were wounded by army gunfire or injured by rubber bullets and tear gas during rioting Monday in towns and U.N.-run refugee camps in the West Bank.

The army said four Palestinians were wounded by live fire and a fifth by a rubber bullet, and three soldiers were injured when they were struck by rocks.

The unrest coincided with the reopening of schools in the West Bank after a three-week winter recess. Protests broke out at many schools, and officials said few students showed up for class.

The violence in the West Bank came on a day of relative calm in the Gaza Strip, although the Bureij refugee camp in Gaza was placed under curfew after soldiers and youths clashed. There were no immediate details released on the clash.

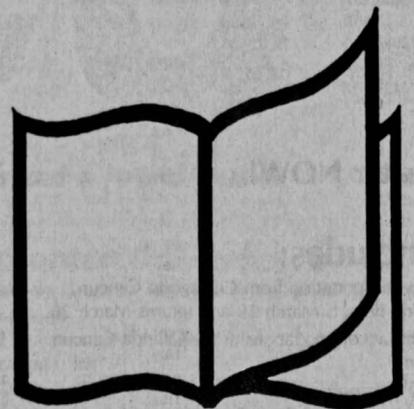

Israeli and Arab sources said the violence protesting the Israeli occupation of the territories seized in the 1967 Six-Day War was aimed at keeping the Palestinian issue in the headlines as the United States, Egypt and Jordan explored a possible new Middle East peace initiative.

A place to be proud

The Jan. 25 issue of Time magazine did not go over like financial gangbusters, and the low sales have been attributed to its cover story on our beloved state of Iowa and its role in selecting a president.

According to a financial manager in Time's circulation department, the magazine's newsstand sales plummeted nearly 25 percent with last week's issue, whose cover sported a comfy-cozy farmhouse and rustic brick silos.

Oh, the shame is too much to bear.

Now, some city slickers are undoubtedly assuming that hundreds of farmers, tractor mechanics and general-store owners are flooding into their local taverns to cry into their beer over this huge media embarrassment.

The fact is that Iowans — or most of them, anyway — derive pleasure from avenues that don't have anything to do with hosting the first-in-the-nation caucuses. Believe it or not, many are simply satisfied with the state's educational system, high literacy rate and progressive attitude. And get this — for some Iowans it is enough that they live in a state with a relatively low unemployment rate and ever-growing business climate.

Iowans would probably not deny that it has been rather fun watching the likes of Alexander Haig holding a pig or Jesse Jackson milking a cow. But we are able to separate fun from fact. And we realize we are a political pawn. The candidates used us, we used the candidates, etc., etc. But soon these same candidates will move on, to rope longhorns with the Texans and make speeches in front of Mount Rushmore.

And while this roping and rhetoric commence elsewhere, the farmers, tractor mechanics and general-store owners (and the doctors, lawyers and teachers) will have to console themselves with thoughts of great schools and steady jobs and insightful people. Let's hope people in the Super Tuesday states are as lucky — and patient — as we are.

Finishing up

In his State of the Union address a week ago, President Ronald Reagan declared the work of his administration was not yet finished. And, judging by the regularity with which his administration is investigated for legal improprieties, it's clear Reagan's people are continuing their "work."

The FBI is the latest in the ever-growing list of Reagan administration agencies and/or officials to be investigated for apparent illegalities. Last week the FBI, complying with the Freedom of Information Act, released 1,200 pages of files documenting the agency's five-year, in-depth investigation of American citizens who were critical of U.S. policy in Central America.

These Americans committed no crimes; they were only exercising their Constitutional right to peacefully protest against government policy. But the FBI — in true J. Edgar Hoover style — launched a full-scale probe of these "subversives," including the nuns, priests and others who belonged to the Committee in Solidarity with the People of El Salvador. FBI agents infiltrated the group's meetings, took photographs of individuals at demonstrations and interviewed members' neighbors to gather information about possible "terrorist" activities.

Of course, domestic spying is nothing new. Hoover, the former FBI director, popularized the practice with investigations of civil rights activists and Vietnam War protesters in the 1960s and 1970s. Still, revelations of such systematic government intrusion is startling and disturbing. And, it is further proof that, as Reagan said, his work is not yet finished.

Time to bow out

One of the Reagan administration's biggest disgraces — Attorney General Edwin Meese — is under fire yet again, thanks to the diligence of special prosecutor James McKay.

On Sunday, both the New York Times and the Los Angeles Times carried front-page stories detailing McKay's investigation of Meese's involvement with an Iraqi pipeline project. The project was promoted by Meese's longtime associate and former defense attorney, E. Robert Wallach, who reportedly enlisted the attorney general to clear bureaucratic obstacles. Meese's subsequent advocacy of the project was clearly unethical and may also be felonious.

The special prosecutor discovered a memo from Wallach to Meese which reportedly details plans to bribe Shimon Peres, then Israeli Prime Minister, into an agreement not to attack the pipeline.

Such a plan would constitute a criminal violation of the federal Conflict of Interest Act. In addition, Meese, who may have violated conflict-of-interest laws because he promoted the pipeline, owed Wallach hundreds of thousands of dollars in legal fees.

Meese incurred the legal fees when Wallach defended him before Congress on the matter of interest-free loans he had accepted from office-seekers. Meese eventually managed to stick the taxpayers with that bill, and Wallach subsequently steered Meese to a very profitable investment in Wedtech, a defense contractor so crooked that many of its officers are now in jail or under indictment. Wallach himself is being prosecuted on bribery charges in connection with Wedtech.

Meese's well-documented tendency to finess the spirit of the law, and his talent for alchemical conversion of the illegal into the merely unethical better suit a Mafia "mouthpiece" than the nation's chief law enforcer. His indictment is overdue, and so is his resignation.

Evaluating committee's role

I am concerned about the presidential search. While my only connection with the search is as a member of the university community, I served on a presidential search when I was dean of Haverford College. I believe I know some of the issues of process. Let me say at the outset that my concern is only about process. I have, for example, no settled judgement on any of the candidates for president. In addition, I see no constructive end served by questioning anyone's motives.

I also respect and applaud the efforts at reconciliation being made by some members of the faculty and, I believe, some members of the state Board of Regents. But reconciliation is not appeasement. And while efforts at reconciliation show good faith and a willingness to go more than one extra mile, they still require plain-spokenness on vital matters.

THERE IS AN issue which I have not heard plainly enough addressed and which must not be sacrificed to a desire to get around the pain and embarrassment of the recent past. There is no question about who has the sole power to appoint a president of the university. The regents do. The manner in which they exercise that appointive power is of enormous importance to the future reputation and health of the university. That is particularly the case at a time when the university has committed itself to achieving a standard of excellence which will place it among the most outstanding in the nation.

By David Potter

Every college and university regarded as first-rate has an excellent faculty which is genuinely involved in serious matters affecting academic and general institutional governance. Provision is made for the participation of other constituencies, but it is the faculty which is at the center and which has the most weight. In matters of presidential selection at a first-rate institution, those who hold the power to appoint — be they trustees or regents — understand that they make the choice but only from those who have been found at least acceptable by the on-campus committee.

For that reason, the current situation in which the regents have invited UI Interim President Richard Remington to be interviewed without first requiring the endorsement of the presidential search committee is deeply troubling. The fact that on Jan. 6 Remington asked for a meeting with the search committee does not address the implications of the regents' action in inviting him to interview independent of committee review and endorsement.

THE REGENTS' action makes it clear that, for whatever reasons, they do not regard the faculty and other on-campus constituencies as having a central, though not final, role in presidential selection. The close of the quotation in the Jan. 10 story in the Des Moines Register attributed to board president Marvin Pomerantz appears entirely consistent with this action: "If the regents and the faculty committee work together, that's fine. But if the process doesn't work, there will be another president without the committee. It's that simple."

It is hard to imagine anyone of the stature needed to lead the UI in its renewed quest for greatness who would want to be a candidate for the presidency in the climate created by the regents' action and by such statements by their president. The open letter to the state of Iowa signed by Samuel Becker, chair of the presidential search committee, and Marvin Pomerantz (The Daily Iowan, Jan. 18) does not deal with the central question of process addressed here.

THE GOOD NEWS is that there is still time to set things right. In this area it doesn't cost anything extra to do things in a first-class way; this added effort would benefit the state's reputation and send the right signals to the university community and the larger academic world (from which we hope to increasingly attract first-rate faculty and students as well as presidential candidates).

Here are two simple suggestions:
 1) The regents and the search committee could affirm that all candidates will be treated in the same way and that the regents will not reach out to interview candidates who have not secured the endorsement of the search committee.

2) Remington could, on his own initiative, make clear his commitment to the process described here, thus submitting himself to the same process as all other candidates and affirming the central role of the on-campus search committee by expressing his willingness to be interviewed by the regents only if he is endorsed by the committee.

As matters now stand, apparently Remington's interview with the search committee may or may not be followed by the rest of the on-campus process which was used with previous candidates, and the regents will move forward with their interview no matter what advice they receive from the search committee.

There is still time to get it right. A commitment to excellence requires nothing less.

Crying for the poor rich guy

What would you do," asked Slat's Grobnik, "if you had 10 million bucks?"

I would put it into conservative tax-free municipal bonds which would earn me about $700,000 a year. I would move to a warm climate, buy myself an air-conditioned golf cart with a built-in bar and never again set foot in this saloon or engage in foolish conversations with you. Why do you ask?

"Well, I was just reading about this old politician in Texas, John Connally. Used to be the governor. Ran for president."

Ah yes, he has fallen upon hard times. Took a terrible beating when the Texas real estate market slumped. Most of his worldly possessions sold at public auction.

"Right, and it says in this story that he had tears in his eyes. And that the people who came to buy his stuff gave him a big cheer when he walked in."

IT DID TAKE courage for him to be present when his furniture, art collection and personal memorabilia were being sold.

"I dunno. Me and my old man and my mother and my brother Fats was present once when the landlord evicted us. Put our living room sofa right out on the sidewalk next to the fireplug. All the neighbors was looking but none of them said my old man was courageous for being there. Of course, he wouldn't have heard 'em anyway. He was soused and sleeping it off on the sofa.

What does that have to do with John Connally or your question about $10 million?

"Because it says here that the reason Connally went broke was because he wanted to get rich. And that's why he and another guy borrowed hunnerts of millions from banks to put together all these big real estate deals that flopped."

That's painfully true.

"THEN THE GUY must have been goofy."

How can you say that? Becoming rich is part of the American dream.

"Yeah, but it says here that before he jumped into all those deals, he was making big money as a Texas lawyer and that he was already worth 10 million bucks."

So?

"So this. If he was already worth 10 million, didn't that make him rich?"

By your standards or mine, yes. But such things are relative.

"Relative? It says here that they auctioned off his gun collection. He had 41 guns. There are underprivileged stickup guys in this city who have only one gun. Here's a guy who had 41 heaters and he wasn't even heisting gas stations for a living."

I SEE YOUR point. But you have to understand that in the social and business circles Connally traveled in, $9 million might be considered a mere trifle.

"Then he should have faked it. That's what I do. Before I have a party, I get a bartender pal to give me empty bottles with the best labels, and I fill 'em with cheap stuff, but nobody can tell the difference."

I don't think that would have saved Connally from bankruptcy. We're talking about millions of dollars in unpaid bank loans.

"Yeah, I wondered about that, too. How'd he get those bankers to let him have that much money? When I went to get a mortgage to buy a house, they almost stripped me down to my shorts. When I went for a loan to get my roof repaired, I almost had to leave my kids as collateral. So how does he get, what, a couple hunnert million? I didn't know they could type that many numbers on a check."

BECAUSE HE'S a man of reputation and substance.

"What does that mean? I been in the same job for 35 years and I never missed a payment at the credit union and I never bounced a check because I always pay by money order or cash. How come banks give me the old fish-eye and him all the millions he wants?"

It means banks have confidence in prominent people of considerable means and proven business judgment.

"Hah, so they have confidence in him and he sticks 'em for more than a hundred million they'll never see again. Then they got to jack up the mortgage rates on guys like me to cover what they blew because he gave them the old glad hand."

Nobody has infallible judgment.

"I guess so. But I see that even though he owes all that money and can't ever pay it back, he gets to keep his big house and 200 acres of his ranch. And he gets about 60 thou a year in pensions because he was the governor and he can still practice law and make money."

Yes, it's quite a step down for him, but he says that he's going to keep his chin up and start a new life.

"Put me in a big house on 200 acres with 60 grand a year, and I'll keep my chin up and start a new life, too."

Sometimes you lack compassion.

"Nah, if Connally came by tonight, I'd pour him a drink. Hey, you think he can tell the difference between Jack Daniels and Jim Beam?"

Reagan

broadcasters here to plead that the aid is essential to "keep the pressure" on the Sandinista government.

The broadcasters cheered the president's remarks and laughed when he slipped in his speech and told them that the Sandinista government had made some "hopeful confessions, concessions I should say" toward peace in Central America.

But as the group applauded the president, House Democrats were expressing confidence that they will be able to defeat Reagan's Contra aid request. They also said that even an 11th-hour pledge by the president to give Congress a greater role in triggering the release of lethal aid funds would not change the outcome.

"I DON'T THINK it would be credible," said Democratic Whip Tony Coelho, D-Calif. "They're playing with the trigger, hoping that the trigger will be the issue. But the reason they're in trouble is not the trigger. The reason they're in trouble is the military aid."

"There are a number of ways to approach this," said White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater, sounding conciliatory toward Congress. "But suffice to say, we do want to involve the Congress as much as possible."

Rep. David Bonior, D-Mich., who heads his party's task force on the Contra aid issue, said that congressional involvement in triggering the release of funds for lethal aid is less an issue with rank-and-file lawmakers than the administration's definition of "nonlethal" assistance and the growing feeling in Congress that the administration's request is incompatible with the Central American peace process.

"THE PROBLEM is with the administration's definition of nonlethal aid," said Bonior. "They have bastardized the language so much."

The $36.2 million package the House will vote on Wednesday includes $3.6 million specifically earmarked for lethal aid, and the remainder for nonlethal assistance, which the administration defines as anything but "weapons, weapons systems and ammunition." Under the president's request, the $3.6 million in lethal aid would be placed in escrow during March and then released if Reagan certifies that a ceasefire is not in effect.

It also provides for placing an additional $20 million into a fund for replacement of any leased aircraft that are shot down, and for the transfer of an unspecified amount for "passive air defense equipment" such as radar to ensure the safety of aid flights.

THE HOUSE Democratic Study Group estimates that the electronic gear could be worth between $4 million and $12 million, bringing the total cost of the package to between $60 million and $68 million.

The House Democratic leadership has been pushing the argument that the administration's request includes little true "humanitarian" aid of the sort that is favored by many lawmakers who do not object to providing additional food, clothing, medicine and shelter to the Nicaraguan rebels. Only $7.2 million of the administration package is for such aid, according to one congressional aide.

THE ADMINISTRATION'S definition of "nonlethal" assistance, said Coelho and Bonior, includes materiel to press the war effort such as jeeps, trucks, the leasing of helicopters and the transportation of troops. The level of that assistance, they said, represents an escalation because it nearly triples the current level of nonlethal assistance.

"No matter how you camouflage it, it is still an aggressive effort," said Coelho.

House Democrats have bolstered their case by promising key moderate "swing" voters that once the administration package is defeated they will seek a humanitarian aid package of their own that might also include broad-based economic assistance to the entire Central American region.

House speaker Jim Wright, D-Tex., said Monday the details of that alternative would not be developed until after Wednesday's vote and would be devised to win "bipartisan and bicameral" support.

"If the president's request fails, we believe our responsibility is to be supportive of the peace process and offer an alternative," said Wright. "It would contain humanitarian assistance so as to provide help for the Contras to maintain their position in place, so they are not hung out to dry or victimized by anyone."

tral American Studies in Costa Rica. "The problems involved in stirring up these rebellions — malnutrition, disease and the other problems of development — happened over a long time. The end to Contra aid and the beginning of peace will take a long time."

President Ronald Reagan will address the nation tonight asking for $36 million to supply the Contra rebels with nonlethal aid. The House of Representatives will vote on Reagan's aid request Wednesday.

"The U.S. has done everything possible to make the peace accord not work. That is why I don't think the accord will work because of U.S. intervention," McNamara said, adding the Nicaraguan people support the peace plan.

"WHAT WE'RE really seeing is the Nicaraguan peoples acceptance for peace. It's coming from the people," he said.

McNamara also said media in the United States have misrepresented the situation in Nicaragua and Central America, particularly concerning the Arias plan.

The U.S. media focus on Nicaragua's violations of the peace accord, virtually ignoring problems with the other countries in the pact, he said.

Other speakers at the event Monday were UI graduate student Suzanne Chouteau, UI junior Alix O'Gorman, UI freshman Bill Martin and liberal activist Carol deProse who discussed their recent visit to Nicaragua.

because of publicity concerning cases of breast cancer among a number of prominent Americans."

IN 1974, FIRST Lady Betty Ford and Happy Rockefeller, wife of Vice President Nelson Rockefeller, underwent mastectomies. Sondik said the awareness generated by First Lady Nancy Reagan's breast cancer surgery last year might well be reflected in future data. The death rate from breast cancer increased 5 percent in 1984 and 1985 for white women under age 50 after steady annual decreases of about 1.4 percent through 1983, the report said. The death rate in 1984 was six deaths per 100,000 in that group and 6.1 per 100,000 in 1985.

For white women overall, the death rate was stable between 1973 and 1985, with rates ranging between 26.2 and 27.6 deaths per 100,000. For black women, the death rate from breast cancer has been steadily increasing at less than 1 percent a year from 26.1 deaths per 100,000 in 1973 to 27.7 in 1985, the report said.

THE INCIDENCE OF lung cancer, the leading cause of all cancer deaths, decreased among white and black males in 1985, the report said. Among white males, the rate dropped from the 1984 figure of 84 cases per 100,000 males to 80.5 in 1985, the lowest since the 1977 rate of 80.

The rate among black males decreased from 135.5 in 1984 to 124.7 in 1985, the lowest since 1981 for black males, the report said.

Balkans from 1942 to 1945. He insists that he took no part in any criminal activity.

A spokesman for Waldheim has said that the Plenca telegram is apparently a forgery.

Der Spiegel published what it said was the text of the telegram Monday. Translated, it is as follows: "Very urgent, Lieutenant Kurt Waldheim from the staff of General Stahl demands that 4,224 prisoners from Kozara, most of them women and children and approximately 15 percent older men, be sent on their way: 3,514 to Grubisno Polje and 730 to Zemun."

IN WARTIME Yugoslavia, Grubisno Polje and Zemun were collection points for prisoners. Some executions are known to have taken place there. The total number of prisoners mentioned in the telegram is less than the sum of the two contingents mentioned, but according to a Spiegel editor the discrepancy was in the original document.

The Vienna commission looking into allegations against Waldheim was established at Waldheim's request. Plenca has been serving as an adviser to the commission but is not a member.

He said Sunday that he will not cooperate any further with the commission, which he said had been superficial in its search for evidence.

ACCORDING TO Der Spiegel, Plenca found the telegram in official archives in Zagreb, the Yugoslav capital.

Water

But Moreno suggested people continue to boil their water until plant officials give further notice — probably in two or three days.

"We're going to monitor it closely for the next few days," Moreno said, adding the water will be replenished with a purifying chlorine residual. Water mains will be flushed to clean out sediments, Moreno said, which will increase the likelihood of other, smaller main breaks. Extra water is needed to flush water mains to remove sediments and air and to circulate chlorine.

Because of this, as well as the need to replenish water supplies in the storage tanks used during the break, Moreno said residents should conserve water as much as possible over the next couple days.

"We need that water to clear up the system as much as we can," he said. "Right now, it's not a major problem for people as long as they conserve — it should be just a minor inconvenience."

Most UI buildings will not be affected by the break, Moreno said, because the UI has its own water supply.

Hawks developing into basketball machine

By Eric Hess
The Daily Iowan

With his club developing well in some areas and not as well in others, Coach Tom Davis has the task of gearing the Hawkeyes for the No. 8 Michigan Wolverines Wednesday.

"We've been moving without the ball better and we've been moving the ball better," Davis said of his 14th-ranked Hawkeyes at his press conference Monday. Screening, play-execution, passing and fast-break execution also have come along to the coach's satisfaction.

But not everything is wonderful in Davis' camp. Rebounding, an Iowa trademark last season when the team led the nation in rebound margin, has become a question mark of sorts.

"WE THOUGHT we had improved in rebounding and then we go and get outrebounded by Minnesota," Davis said.

Then the defense, a stickler for the Hawkeyes this season, is something Davis said his team is continually trying to cover for.

"We've not, at times, had great quickness in our backcourt," he

One key to Iowa's four-game winning streak in Big Ten play is its passing game, as Saturday's win over Minnesota proved.

said. "We've really struggled defensively covering in both areas — frontcourt and backcourt."

Three Hawkeyes hail from Michigan — B.J. Armstrong and Bill Jones from Detroit and Roy Marble from Flint — and Davis is concerned that the homecoming may be distracting.

"I think it's tough for players to go home and play," Davis said. "So to

Cold shooting performance has Moe aiming for perfection

By Hugh Donlan
The Daily Iowan

Jeff Moe went 0 for 6 from three-point range in Iowa's victory over Minnesota Saturday night, and he's going to make sure it doesn't happen again.

One of Iowa's most accurate three-point shooters was out on the Carver-Hawkeye Arena floor working on his outside shot more than an hour before Monday's practice began.

"It really hurt," Moe said of his most recent performance. "I take pride in supposedly being a good shooter. Sometimes (my shot) is not going to be there. It wasn't there Saturday, so I tried to do some other things. There are a lot more games. The most important thing is we won. Maybe I'll come back and have a good game against Michigan."

The second-ranked Iowa Hawkeyes routed two Big Ten wrestling foes Monday in Evanston, Ill.

Iowa, 13-1, defeated Illinois in opener, 42-5, and beat Northwestern in the second match, 33-8.

Brad Penrith (126), Mike Carpenter (158), Royce Alger (177) and Mark Sindlinger (HWT) all posted two wins for the Hawkeyes.

IOWA NOTES

Penrith will be looking for revenge tonight. The 126-pound wrestler from Windsor, N.Y., is Iowa's lone representative in the National Wrestling Coaches Association All-Star Meet in Cedar Falls. Penrith's opponent is No. 1 Jim Martin of Penn State, a wrestler who defeated him, 11-5, in the semifinals of the Midlands in December.

Penrith, 26-2 and ranked No. 2, was the national champion at 126 pounds in 1986 and the runner-up at that weight last year. He has a career record of 70-11 with the Hawkeyes.

Alger, 26-1, will not be among the stars tonight. Originally selected to compete at 167 pounds, Gable decided against sending Alger back down to that weight to wrestle Wisconsin's top-ranked David Lee. Now top-ranked at 177 pounds, Alger has already beaten Lee twice this season.

Six of the 10 matchups in Cedar Falls tonight are bouts between the nation's top two wrestlers at each weight. Other wrestlers from Iowa schools include: Tim Krieger (150), Mike VanArsdale (177) and Eric Voelker (190) of Iowa State; Mark Schwab (118) and Joel Greenlee (HWT) of Northern Iowa.

Also wrestling is 1987 World Champion John Smith of Oklahoma State, 34-0 and the reigning NCAA champion at 134 pounds.

Ice Hawks win big; black squad at 10-0

By Hugh Donlan
The Daily Iowan

WATERLOO — In the game of football, a two-touchdown victory is not that impressive. But when the game is ice hockey, it's another story.

The undefeated Ice Hawks black squad (10-0) destroyed Grinnell 17-3 in Midwest Collegiate Hockey Association action Friday night. The victory came before 50 Iowa fans who accompanied the team on a club-sponsored fan bus.

Chris Homerin, Mike Pugliese and Matt Fuller led the Ice Hawk attack with three goals each — three hat tricks.

"I think we played pretty well," Pugliese said. "All the players enjoyed the fans and everyone played a little harder because of them."

CENTER TODD Benson, the league's leading scorer, led all scorers with nine points — two goals and seven assists. Dave Dirks had two goals and Mike Ftacek, Bill Saehlor, Pat Lanigan and Andy Nilles each scored once.

"He pretty much can do that any game he wants to," Pugliese said of Benson. "He doesn't look to score the goals. He gets more excitement from setting up his linemates. He likes that more than scoring."

"A lot of it is you get used to where the puck is going," Benson said, explaining his ability to dish off assists. "At this level, you can always see where the puck is going to be."

Benson lived in Calgary, Alberta, Canada until he was eight years old and is at a slight advantage because he has been skating longer than most of the other skaters in the MCHA. The Iowa freshman is also a former member of the Waterloo Blackhawks, an member of the United States Hockey League.

ALTHOUGH THE victory came against a less experienced and undermanned opponent, the game was no less exciting for the fans.

"We are out here to support our

Skaters lead league despite lack of ice

By Hugh Donlan
The Daily Iowan

It is rare to find a team that can win a league championship when it does not have a facility to call its own.

Yet, the Ice Hawks black squad is undefeated in the Midwest Collegiate Hockey Association despite the fact the club spends three hours traveling each time it practices or plays a game.

"It's really a hell of a deal," Ice Hawk member and MCHA President Dan Seliger said recently. "These guys love hockey enough to make the sacrifices."

Adam Shell, a graduate student in mass communication and a native of Clifton, N.J., could hardly believe there was a hockey club here after coming to Iowa from the East Coast.

"Traveling 1,000 miles and finding out there was an ice hockey club to skate with, it was great," he said.

SHELL, WHO skated four years at Upsala in East Orange, N.J., had his equipment shipped so he could skate with the Ice Hawks.

Although the level of competition is not what it was in New Jersey, Shell says he makes the necessary sacrifices to play because he "loves the game."

"If you don't," last season's Ice Hawk MVP said, "there's no way you're going to take the time out. Even though it's just a club sport, you are still competing for the university."

Shell is not the only experienced hockey player the Iowa club is able to field. A look at the club's roster reveals a number of players from hockey hotbeds around the country. Don Kisela is from Connecticut, Dan Seliger is a Massachusetts native and John McEvoy hails from Pennsylvania.

AND NOT ALL the players are from the East Coast. Mike Ftacek recently moved from Minnesota and league-leading scorer Todd Benson was born in Calgary, Alberta, Canada. There are also a host of players from the northern

Edwards nets Big Ten honors — again

Iowa senior Michelle Edwards has been named Big Ten Conference Player of the Week for the second consecutive week, league officials announced Monday.

Edwards, a 5-foot-9 guard from Boston, Mass., tallied a career-best 34 points and grabbed seven steals to fuel the Iowa rout over Indiana, 72-48, Jan. 29.

In Iowa's 75-64 win over Ohio State, Edwards led the Hawkeyes with 22 points and five assists. She hit a two-game total 23 of 41 shots from the field for 56 percent and 10 of 13 from the line for 77 percent.

Edwards leads the Iowa offense with a 20 point average, while shooting 60 percent from the field.

Player of Week honors have been awarded seven times this season and Edwards has collected three of those. It is the fifth time in two years she has won the honor, more than any other Big Ten player during that period.

Hawks jump 4 spots in rankings

NEW YORK — Arizona, Brigham Young and Nevada-Las Vegas formed a Western power bloc in college basketball Monday, holding down the top three spots and the Iowa Hawkeyes improved four spots to No. 14 in the weekly rankings announced by United Press International.

Arizona, 20-1, coming off victories over Arizona State and Illinois, earned 31 first-place votes and 540 points from the Board of Coaches.

Brigham Young, 15-0 and the only undefeated major college team, made the biggest move of the week jumping five spots to No. 2. The Cougars received four first-place votes and 435 points. Nevada-Las Vegas, with the other first-place vote, picked up 427 points.

In the preseason rankings, Arizona was No. 10, UNLV No. 20 and Brigham Young unranked.

Temple, 16-1, downed St. Bonaventure and Rhode Island to advance two spots to No. 4 while Duke beat Stetson 81-78 and fell one position to fifth. Purdue had its 16-game winning streak snapped with a Big Ten loss to Indiana and fell from second to sixth.

Rounding out the Top 10 were No. 7 North Carolina, No. 8 Oklahoma, No. 9 Pittsburgh and No. 10 Kentucky.

They were followed by No. 11 Michigan, No. 12 Syracuse, No. 13 Georgetown, No. 14 Iowa, No. 15 Vanderbilt, No. 16 Bradley, No. 17 Illinois, No. 18 St. John's, No. 19 Texas-El Paso and No. 20 Florida.

The Gators, routed by Vanderbilt 92-65, took the biggest drop, falling six spots. Vanderbilt, Bradley, and St. John's entered the rankings this week while Iowa State, Villanova, Missouri and Southern Mississippi dropped out.

The Big East and Big Ten each has four ranked teams. Thirty-six coaches on the 42-member board voted this week. Voting is based on 15 points for first place, 14 for second, etc.

Future Amana-Hawkeye Classics set

The Amana-Hawkeye Classic fields have been set for this year and 1989, it was announced at Iowa basketball Coach Tom Davis' press conference.

Brown, Cal State-Long Beach and Georgia round out the field this year while Bradley, Cal-Santa Barbara and Ohio will compete in 1989.

Hawkins scores 37 in losing cause

WICHITA, Kan. (UPI) — Wayne Praylow scored 24 points and Sasha Radunovich and Lew Hill added 21 apiece Monday night to lift Wichita State to a 116-92 Missouri Valley Conference rout of No. 16 Bradley.

Steve Grayer added 14 points for the Shockers, who improved to 12-7 overall and took over first place in the conference with a 5-2 mark. John Cooper and Joe Griffin each added 13 points.

Hersey Hawkins, the nation's leading scorer, notched 37 points for Bradley, which had a six-game winning streak stopped and fell to 13-3 and 4-2.

The Shockers scored their highest point total since December of 1981 when they beat Pan American 118-65.

With the score tied 67-67 with 12:58 remaining, Wichita reeled off 7 straight points and never trailed again.

Hawkins, who fouled out for the first time this season — with 4:16 left — had 28 points at halftime, including his team's final 18. The score was tied 49-49 at intermission.

Greis leads Villanova to victory

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Tom Greis scored 21 points and Kenny Wilson made 4 free throws down the stretch Monday night to lead Villanova to a 64-58 Big East victory over 13th-ranked Georgetown.

Wilson sank a pair of free throws to give Villanova a 58-52 lead with 48 seconds to play and made 2 more for a 60-53 advantage with 28 seconds remaining.

Doug West's free throws put Villanova ahead 62-53 before Johnny Jones scored for Georgetown and Mark Plansky sank 2 more free throws. Georgetown's Dwayne Bryant hit a 3-point shot at the buzzer.

Greis sank 2 free throws for a 56-50 Villanova lead but Jaren Jackson's basket brought Georgetown within 56-52 with 1:25 to play. Villanova then failed to get the ball in bounds within five seconds, giving the Hoyas possession. Mark Tillmon missed a 3-point shot, however, and Wilson got the rebound and was fouled.

Plansky had 14 points for Villanova, 15-6 overall and 7-3 in the Big East, while Wilson and Gary Massey had 10 each. Tillmon led Georgetown, 14-5 and 4-4, with 24 points and Charlie Smith had 15.

Bears' Shuffle finally paying off

CHICAGO (UPI) — It's been two long years, but the 1986 Super Bowl shuffle by the Chicago Bears is finally paying dividends to 68 charitable agencies in the Chicago area.

"Super Bowl Shuffle" grants totaling $283,455 to the 68 agencies were announced Sunday by the Chicago Community Trust. The grants will fund 93 refrigerators and freezers, 10 vans and other assorted equipment, and costs of feeding the hungry.

The money came from $196,270 in proceeds donated by the 10 Bear players who participated in the video, as well as Red Label Records, Centel Inc. and Third World Productions. The additional money came from the trust.

Sears Roebuck & Co. and "Z" Frank Chevrolet also will help purchase refrigerators, freezers and vans for agencies receiving grants from the program, which range in size from $339 to $20,000.

The distribution of the funds was delayed for two years by legal disputes. Red Label Records founder Dick Meyer had offered 50 percent of the proceeds for charity, but Illinois Attorney General Neil Hartigan said laws required that 75 percent be donated. An agreement between the two was reached last year.

Washington fans go "wild" in streets

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Shop owners in the chic Georgetown business district Monday counted thousands of dollars in stolen goods and broken windows among their losses, hours after some 100,000 revelers "went wild" in celebration of the Washington Redskins' Super Bowl victory.

Police made at least 20 arrests amid the frenzied partying by "crazy" fans, some of whom were hanging from 30-foot light poles, stopping traffic and dancing victory jigs. The alcohol-induced partying erupted after the Redskins defeated the Denver Broncos, 42-10, Sunday night in San Diego.

Gibson gives Dodgers surplus

By Mike Barnes
United Press International

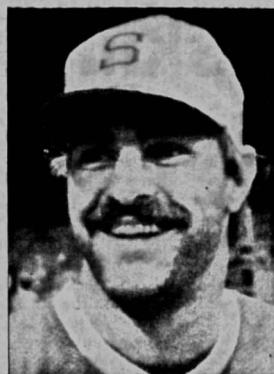

LOS ANGELES — The Los Angeles Dodgers will not necessarily make a trade to create room for newly-signed outfielder Kirk Gibson, club officials said Monday.

"There's a lot of speculation that there's another shoe to drop. That is not in our plans," Fred Claire, the team's executive vice president of player personnel, said at a Dodger Stadium news conference to introduce Gibson to the area.

"We feel that we have put together a ballclub that is going to have a lot of competition in spring training. We'll have to see how the pieces fit. But the talent is there to have a lot of fun in 1988."

GIBSON, WHO spent nine seasons with the Detroit Tigers before being ruled a free agent by an arbitrator Jan. 22, Friday agreed to a three-year, $4.5-million contract with the Dodgers. He signed the contract Monday.

Manager Tom Lasorda said Gibson will play left field and bat third. Another free-agent acquisition, Mike Davis, is expected to play right field, with John Shelby in center.

Kirk Gibson

Pedro Guerrero or Mike Marshall would then shift to first base. The odd man out would either be a reserve or be traded. Despite the logjam, though, Lasorda thinks it's possible for everyone to play.

"People have been asking me about these five players for four positions and what we are going to do about it," Lasorda said. "If those guys are still with this ballclub on Opening Day, I'm going to do everything I can to have all five in the lineup at the same time. I certainly wouldn't want to see any of them riding the pine."

GIBSON WAS LATER asked if he was prepared to platoon. "If they platoon me for the kind of money they are paying me, they have that right," he said with a smile.

Over the last four seasons, Gibson averaged 27 homers, 88 RBI and 30 stolen bases. He said he'll bring intensity with those statistics to the Dodgers.

Ex-Tar Heel Fenner pleads guilty to cocaine possession

United Press International

UPPER MARLBORO, Md. — Prosecutors agreed to drop a weapon possession charge against former North Carolina football star Derrick Fenner in exchange for a guilty plea to cocaine possession, Prince George's County authorities said Monday.

The agreement on the charges stemming from his arrest April 9 was reached last Wednesday between prosecutor Mary Schstrom and Fred Joseph, one of Fenner's attorneys, said Alexis Revis, spokeswoman for the Prince George's County State's Attorney's Office.

The former star running back is now scheduled to appear in Circuit Court again March 23 for sentencing and he could receive up to four years in prison and a $25,000 fine on the remaining cocaine charge.

However, Joseph said Monday that court sources told him the court may decide to put Fenner on "probation without a verdict," an action that would clear his record of any criminal charges. Joseph, however, would not comment on the chances of the court exercising that option.

The 20-year-old Oxon Hill High School graduate has re-enrolled at the Chapel Hill campus of North Carolina.

Hawks' passing skills making a difference

By Marc Bona
The Daily Iowan

When the topic of passing comes up in conversation, most people would assume the Iowa football team is being mentioned. But Saturday night in Carver-Hawkeye Arena, it was the men's basketball team who put on a passing display of its own.

It was passing that would have made Iowa quarterback Chuck Hartlieb or football Coach Hayden Fry proud.

While guard B.J. Armstrong was on his way to a record-setting game with six 3-pointers during Iowa's 76-51 win over Minnesota, Bill Jones was dishing out a game-high five assists. He was moving from the top of the key, finger-rolling the ball to teammates at his wings and setting up key plays.

BOTH JONES AND Armstrong, who are now tied for the team lead in assists in Big Ten games with 28, praised the defense of their opponents.

"You have to attribute that to Minnesota," Jones said. "They were in the zone a lot."

When he wasn't scoring, Armstrong was busy imprinting his trademark on the Gophers. That is, driving down the court, looking one way and darting a pass the other. Most of the time, his passes ended up as someone else's points. Sometimes they didn't. Armstrong, though, didn't seem to mind about the ones that didn't fall through.

"That's okay, as long as we get the win," said the 6-foot-2 point guard from Detroit, who finished with three assists. "We've been passing really well. It's a credit to the guys, the seniors. We've been playing better and better."

ARMSTRONG'S 271 assists put him seventh on the Iowa career assist list. He is 30 shy of catching Cal Wulfsberg, the 1976 Big Ten leader in that category. Ronnie Lester (1977-80) is atop the list with 480.

Iowa basketball Coach Tom Davis praised both his team and Armstrong, saying, "We did a good job distributing the ball. He (Armstrong) got some good passes."

"I think we passed real well. We had some flashier passes and we played steady," he added. Flashy was certainly the word for it. The Hawkeyes didn't come close to their team assist record — 34 vs.

George Mason in 1984 — but they looked stylish in the 16 they did tally.

The passes freed up the inside for Iowa center Ed Horton, who dropped in 13 points, most of which came on quick hooks and reverse layups.

IOWA FORWARD R. Marble, known for his flamboyant moves to the hoop, made some flamboyant passes. He tallied four assists and 11 points in the win.

United Press International

Washington's Doug Williams, passing 18 for 29 for 340 yards and four touchdowns, holds his trophy Sunday after being named the Super Bowl's Most Valuable Player after his team's 42-10 win over Denver.

Gibbs: Title defense starts at final whistle

By Mike Rabun
United Press International

SAN DIEGO — Washington's Joe Gibbs brushed aside attempts to place him among pro football's coaching elite Monday and said he knew exactly when he should start worrying about the 1988 season.

"Right now," he said, "We all know in this business that fame is very fleeting."

Thirteen hours after the final gun in Super Bowl XXII, Gibbs already was facing the task that is as hard as winning the NFL championship — producing an encore.

HIS REDSKINS won their second Super Bowl of the decade Sunday, riding a 35-point second quarter to a 42-10 crumpling of the Denver Broncos. Quarterback Doug Williams, named the game's most valuable player, set a Super Bowl record for passing yards (340) while Redskins receiver Ricky Sanders established a record for most receiving yards (193) and running back Timmy Smith, in his first NFL start, set one for rushing yards (204).

Washington gained an overwhelming 602 total yards, easily a Super Bowl record.

"All this excitement and all the crowd's cheering after something like this is great if the coach is going to retire or if the team is all going to quit," Gibbs said shortly before boarding an airplane and heading home for a huge celebration. "But I'm not going to retire and the players will be back."

"I KNOW THE people of Washington. They will not be satisfied unless we win every game."

"Everybody next year is going to play us like they played the New York Giants this year. No coach in the NFL is going to have to get his team ready to play us. We know what's coming. We'll have players knocking on our door wanting to re-negotiate their contracts."

But Gibbs said he thought his team might be better equipped to handle the distractions than other Super Bowl winners in recent years.

"We played a lot of close games this year," Gibbs said. "We are not a dominating team like the Giants were last year. We are the kind of team that has had to play with emotion every time if we were going to win."

"Can we do that next year?"

"WELL, WE MAY have an advantage in that our guys understand that sort of thing. You don't want to think more of yourself than you really are. And I think our guys have the right attitude in that regard."

Gibbs said he certainly did.

"People say this is false humility, but this is how I feel," he said. "I think the coaches which all the other coaches want to be like have been around a lot longer than I have. I've been coaching just seven years. I have had some very good players in Washington and I think you have to coach over a long period of time with different players before you can be considered with the other top coaches."

"When you talk about (Dallas Coach) Tom Landry and Don Shula (of Miami), well, I haven't been around long enough to be put into that group and I really believe that."

On the other side of the field, meanwhile, Denver Coach Dan Reeves became only the second coach in Super Bowl history to lose the game two straight years and the long off-season of soul searching began early for the Broncos.

"It's the ultimate loss," said Denver quarterback John Elway, who completed just 14 of 38 passes, threw three interceptions and was sacked five times.

"You work nine months to get here and it ends like this."

Martin will have their second battle in five days over the top spot at 126 pounds. At 177 pounds, Alger will defend his top ranking in a bout with Dan Mayo, ranked No. 2. Mayo was third nationally at 177 a year ago.

Iowa 167-pounder Bart Chelavig, who has had problems with his right hand, had an X-ray recently which revealed no breaks. Chelavig, 2-4, is joining the varsity at the senior break, accompanied by the squad to Evanston last night.

Iowa heavyweight Mark Sindlinger already has more victories this year than in all his previous collegiate decisions before this season. Sindlinger, 27-5-2, was 16-8 as a Hawkeye his first three years.

Chicago suburbs who have been involved with organized hockey for many years.

Even with experienced players, the club will remain just that, a club sport. Without a local ice rink or the funding necessary to support an ice hockey team, it is not possible to develop a competitive intercollegiate team.

"I think it hurts the team because more people would play if there was a rink in the area," Ice Hawk Club President Mike Pugliese said. "There are good players at the university who don't play because of all the travel involved."

At an institution with a high-powered athletic department like Iowa's, many find it hard to believe that the university does not have the resources to support a hockey team.

"IF YOU LOOK at the top college hockey teams in the country, a lot of them are Big Ten," Shell said. "The reason they are able to build programs is they have rinks that are probably right on campus."

Minnesota, Wisconsin, Michigan State are all national championship-caliber ice hockey teams. Michigan State's most recent NCAA title was in 1986. Wisconsin won the national championship in 1983 and 1981. In 1982, the Badgers lost in the finals to North Dakota.

The two closest rinks in the state are in Waterloo and Dubuque, both an hour-and-a-half away. Three hours on the road and two hours on the ice once or twice a week and a major time commitment becomes necessary.

It's not surprising the club has trouble attracting the players necessary to develop an intercollegiate program.

"SOME OF THE better players from Illinois, Minnesota and Wisconsin are discouraged for that reason," Seliger said. "Some of these players we never see would be playing at the black squad level or higher."

There have been efforts in the past by members of the university and Cedar Rapids communities to have an ice rink built in the area, but they have been unsuccessful.

"In Iowa, if you don't like to play basketball, there isn't a whole lot to do outdoors in the winter," Seliger said. "I think it's time for some of the players, students, and some of the community to go out and do it on their own."

Although the Ice Hawks remain without a rink, the dedication and love of the sport of hockey remains.

"I think it's really beneficial for anyone to be active in a sports club," Seliger said. "From that standpoint, the Ice Hawks serve a much bigger purpose. Participation just makes for a more well-rounded person."

Bill Jones and Roy and B.J., this will be a big game for them. It doesn't matter what Michigan's record is."

Davis said he doesn't think about winning in a certain city or arena. Every game is different and every season is different.

"THEY (THE players) remember all that stuff," Davis said. "It's a new event for me. This is a new team and a new circumstance."

Jones said he's not going to worry about playing in Crisler Arena in Ann Arbor, even though it's a place where he has never left victorious. Three times in high school he left without a win and has not won there as a Hawkeye.

"I just have to go out and play and not worry about what the writers say or the broadcasters," he said. "I've just got to go out and play my type of basketball game."

IOWA NOTES

Guard Michael Reaves came out of last week's practices with a jammed toe but was still able to play in Saturday's win over Minnesota. Otherwise the Hawkeyes are healthy, Davis said.

"That's going to be a critical factor as you look around the league," Davis said. "If we can stay healthy, that certainly will help."

Davis announced next season's Amana-Hawkeye Classic lineup — Brown, California State-Long Beach and Georgia. He said that field brought back some memories.

Davis recalled when he was a freshman coach for Maryland and had two graduate assistants who were former players. One was present Cal State-Long Beach Coach Joe Harrington.

friends," UI student and hockey enthusiast Michelle Lavature said on the fan bus after the game. "I've been a hockey fan since the sixth grade. I think hockey is an exciting sport to watch. It's fast paced. Something is happening all the time."

The black squad continued its winning ways with a 3-0 victory over Loras on Saturday in Dubuque. Pat Lanigan scored twice and Andy Nilles scored once. Goalie John McEvoy recorded his first shutout of the season.

On Friday, the black squad will face Galesburg in Peoria, Ill., and the Illinois State junior varsity on Saturday and again on Sunday.

The table tennis club will meet every Tuesday evening from 8 until 10 p.m. in Field House Room S501.

Recruit

ball, Ron'll be able to get deep on people real quick," Cole said.

COLE ADDED THAT Ryan's best strength "is his speed. Ron's going to get up to about 240 (pounds). And I doubt if he'll lose any speed."

Ryan's coach, Pete Adkins, has been at Jefferson City High School for 30 years, coaching his team to 71 consecutive wins from 1958-66. Adkins has won five 5-A titles.

"Ron did a good job for us in the two years that he was here," Adkins said. "He blocks well, is a hitter, and he puts a lot of pressure on the defense with his way above normal speed for a tight end."

"Ron has a lot of tools to work with. With his speed, he'll be an asset to anybody the way he can draw double coverage. He has the range and the speed that most big time college coaches are looking for," Adkins said.

"The biggest thing that he needs to work on is his hands, but that will come," Adkins added. "Iowa's got a good one there. We're drivers here — not lovers. We push our players very hard with discipline."

Ryan, who transferred during his sophomore year from Saxton, Mo., a small school near the Missouri-Arkansas border, made the honor roll this past semester.

Ryan's goal at Iowa? "I want to get to be an all-American," he said.

assistant coach Gary Close. Close had his prize pupil shooting over a net with a towel drawn over it to block Moe's vision of the basket.

"It's a drill to really make him concentrate and focus in on the target," Close said. "For a long-range shooter that's important because from long range, if you're a little off you're not going to make it."

Close said that Moe has been working on the drill about once a week, in addition to the normal shooting all players do before practice and games.

"It helps me a lot practice-wise," Moe explained. "Shooting the ball a lot, sometimes you get bored and sometimes when I'm by myself I don't concentrate that much. (This drill) is more game-situation, which I need."

IOWA COACH Tom Davis is aware of Moe's slight slump, but he is not overly concerned and said he is sure the problem will work itself out. Davis also said he has no plans to change Moe's shooting mechanics.

"As a senior, you're not going to do much to change his shot," Davis said at his weekly press conference Monday. "Not with a great shooter," he said. "There's only one thing foremost on his mind and that's shooting. We try to get him to concentrate on other skills."

Although the senior has not been shooting as well as he has in the past, don't expect the drought to last long. The Hawkeyes appear to be peaking at the right time for a run at the conference crown, as well as the NCAA tournament. And Moe plans to be a part of that success.

Groundhog readies for prediction

By Justin Supon
United Press International

PUNXSUTAWNEY, Pa. — The town of Punxsutawney was groundhog wild Monday on the eve of the annual spring forecast by Phil, the nation's most famous weather-forecasting animal.

Local motels were booked to near capacity and shopkeepers reported brisk sales of Groundhog Day souvenirs, including ceramic replicas of Punxsutawney's most famous resident, an 18-pound woodchuck.

"Things around here have just been kind of crazy," said Jody Deshong, a receptionist at the Pantall Hotel in downtown Punxsutawney, a town of about 7,600 people in western Pennsylvania.

PHIL IS "LIKE GOLD," said Bill Null, executive director of the local Chamber of Commerce. "If we didn't have him, we'd have to invent something."

At daybreak, Phil was to be pulled from his burrow and speak in "groundhogese" to the president of the Punxsutawney Groundhog Club, who reports whether Phil had seen his shadow.

If he does see his shadow, it will mean six more weeks of winter. No shadow means spring is just around the corner. "The Great Prognosticator" has seen his shadow all but six times, and local lore has it that he has never been wrong.

Current shows on Broadway are surveyed

United Press International

NEW YORK — All you need to know about current Broadway attractions and leading players:

Anything Goes — Patti LuPone heads a wonderful cast in this knockout revival of Noel Coward's 50-year-old shipboard musical.

Breaking the Code — Derek Jacobi is riveting in this true story British drama about Alan Turing, whose heroism in breaking a major Nazi wartime code founded on his homosexuality.

Broadway Bound — The final play in Neil Simon's autobiographical trilogy takes Eugene to the threshold of his playwrighting career with a fine performance by Elizabeth Franz as his mother.

Burn This — John Malkovich gives a tour-de-force performance as an unlikely lover in a disappointingly unbelievable romantic drama by Pulitzer-prize winning Lanford Wilson.

Cabaret — The incomparable Joel Grey is back in an exciting revival of the cynical Berlin-set musical classic by John Kander and Fred Ebb.

Cats — One of the most fantastically staged shows in Broadway history, a knockout musical based on a T.S. Eliot fable with Andrew Lloyd-Webber music.

A Chorus Line — The longest-running show in Broadway history, an absorbing, fast-moving musical about Broadway chorus "gypsies."

Fences — August Wilson emerges as a major playwright with this Pulitzer Prize and Tony Award-winning drama of a black family in the 1950s enriched by a fine performance by Billy Dee Williams.

42nd Street — A hit song and dance show that may run forever about finding success on Broadway against a background of glorious old songs.

Into the Woods — A delightful new fairy tale musical by James Lapine and Stephen Sondheim with a bewitching performance by Bernadette Peters.

Me and My Girl — A delectable old English musical hit featuring the remarkable Jim Dale and the Lambeth Walk.

Les Miserables — The spectacularly staged Tony Award-winning pop opera from London based on Victor Hugo's novel, directed by Trevor Nunn and starring Gary Morris.

The Nerd — A silly but well-acted comedy about an architect's trials and tribulations with a boob who once saved his life.

Oh! Calcutta! — The shocking skin show that still has the power to shock after 21 years on Broadway.

The Phantom of the Opera — Andrew Lloyd-Webber's enchanting, excitingly staged operatic treatment of the beauty and the beast story set at the Paris Opera.

Sarafina — A magical musical about South Africa's struggle for liberation by Mbongeni Ngema, starring a cast of youngsters who will steal your heart.

Starlight Express — An eye-popping high tech Andrew Lloyd-Webber musical about a great train race run by a cast on roller skates, years on Broadway.

Dancers to Go offers high-quality program

By B. Gordon
The Daily Iowan

Dancers To Go, the UI Dance Department's touring company, serves the hottest artistic mini-meals in town.

Friday night's concert, which kicked off the troupe's third season of touring and its first Iowa Public Television appearance, was a high-quality offering in a smorgasbord of dance styles.

The program opened with Maurice Petipa's Don Quixote variations, 19th century ballet danced masterfully by Er-dong Hu and Kim Marsh. Marsh easily captured the playful sensuality of her Spanish coquette, and seems likely to grow even deeper into the role.

Next came a student piece, "Excess Baggage," a solo danced to music by Claude Bolling and Angel Romero. Its choreographer Jeanine Murrell has a fresh blend of naturalistic movement, jazz and classicism.

"IT TAKES Two to Tangle" featured dancers Maureen Gold and Kristine Morris with life-size puppets for middle-aged dance partners. Monica Leo's designer dirty old men were the stars of this piece, mostly because choreographer Linda Crist did not take enough advantage of the dramatic possibilities of the two women involved.

Lan-lan King's new work "Dreamland," choreographed for U.S.-China Dance Exchange dancer Er-dong Hu to a violin concerto by Hector Berlioz, was rich in suffering and irony. She penetrated the inner pain of the music, which is mostly major — almost pleasant, in fact. Hu was the perfect dancer for her abstract yet romantic intensity.

The ever-popular "Swing" suffered only slightly from lack of rehearsal, as did the other ensemble piece "Out Standing in Their Fields." These works should come off with effortless coordination, and the dancers seemed to be working a little too hard at them.

ALICIA BROWN'S "Let It Be" deserves better than it received at this reviewer's hands last year. It could be that the piece was danced with more enthusiasm this time than at 1987's kickoff concert. Brown's unusual angle of vision, choreographing to classical-style takeoffs on Beatles tunes, may have thrown me off. Her piece, when it is performed well, is truly virtuosic.

Last year Dancers To Go offered ethnic dance in the person of Er-dong Hu, who performed a traditional Chinese sword dance. This year Hu is dancing in Western style and a young dancer from Illinois, Jennifer Savarirayan, performed an Indian dance called "Alarippu" (Opening of a Lotus Flower).

Savarirayan is an extraordinary complement to the troupe. Her technique seems perfect, each movement exactly placed from her solid center. The only quibble with "Alarippu" lies with its long stationary sections for the solo dancer. This might not be the best piece to introduce Iowa schoolchildren to classical Indian dance.

The program ended with Lan-Lan King's "Chinese Red Sash Dance," which has all but become the signature work of the UI Dance Department.

'1940s Radio Hour' provides nostalgia for Hancher crowd

By Locke Peterseim
The Daily Iowan

The 1940s Radio Hour at Hancher Sunday proved once again the old theory that if you throw enough stuff against the wall, something is bound to stick. "A potpourri of music and song," said the announcer, and he wasn't kidding.

The show was presented as a live studio radio broadcast on December 21, 1942, with the Hancher audience playing the role of the audience for the Manhattan Mutual's Variety Cavalcade, "live from the Hotel Astor's Algonquin Room" on Broadway.

It was this involvement of the audience in the show that allowed The 1940s Radio Hour to rise above mediocrity. Maybe the orchestra never really cooked. And maybe the acting and dialogue were unbearably overdone. And maybe many of the singing voices were a little on the shaky side. But somewhere along the way these nit-picking details became incidental, because it was just a lot of fun.

THE CHARACTERS filling the radio studio stage touched all the cliches: the preening, alcoholic crooner, the sultry songstress, the squeaky-faced bimbo, the comic buffoon, the sassy Horne black vocalist, the two swell kids and the apple-pie boy in uniform on his way to Europe.

But without a doubt the show was stolen by The Lebowitz Sisters, three extra-large Andrew Sisters types — played by Cheryl Hawker, Liz Gray and Jane Allen — who spent much of the show out in the audience flirting and dancing with its members. Their bawdy belting of "Boogie-Woogie Bugle Boy" was the show's biggest (literally, at a collective 700 pounds) highlight.

One of the most interesting things about the show came near the end. Throughout there had been, of course, numerous references to the war and "our boys over there" — including humorous commercials from patriotic sponsors. But then, nearing the close, there came a segment when greetings were read over the air to servicemen, followed by a moving rendition of "Have Yourselves a Merry Little Christmas."

SUDDENLY, FOR a very brief moment, the humor was gone and there was a glimpse of the sadness of a country watching its young men go off to fight. Not the pretension/angst common to many recent films about war, but a more subtle, touching, sideways glance at a nation at war.

Obviously this type of music revue is packaged for a specific audience, namely, those who are old enough to remember the actual "Radio Hours" during the second world war. With this kind of built-in appreciation the show never really had to push too hard. A few lines about Betty Grable here, a few mock laxative commercials there, and everyone smiled.

But the smiles were infectious, and by the show's second half even those who can only get truly nostalgic about life before MTV were swept up in the corniness. Cliches, stereotypes and lame gags flew like feathers in a cockpit, but after a while it became easy to give in to the fun and enjoy.

Directors Guild announces 1987 best director nominees

By Jack Matthews
Los Angeles Times

HOLLYWOOD—People who were looking to the Directors Guild of America to help sort out the confused Academy Awards picture merely saw the image grow fuzziest Monday when the guild announced its five 1987 best director nominees.

The list was as shocking for the names that were not there as it was for the names that were.

On the list: Adrian Lyne, who directed the fall box-office smash Fatal Attraction.

Not on: John Boorman, whose Hope and Glory has been the most celebrated film among critics' groups.

On: Lasse Hallstrom, who directed the Swedish film My Life as a Dog.

Not on: The late John Huston, whose last film, The Dead, struck many critics as being his best.

James L. Brooks received his second nomination for Broadcast

News. Brooks won the coveted guild award four years ago for his first feature, Terms of Endearment, and went on to win the Oscar as well.

STEVEN SPIELBERG became a six-time nominee with Empire of the Sun. Spielberg won the award two years ago for The Color Purple.

The guild nominations usually provide the first solid clue as to which films will dominate the Academy Award nominations (due to be announced Feb. 17 this year). The Directors Guild is the first industry group to assess the year's work, and only three times in the 40 years since these awards have been given has the winner not gone on to receive the Oscar for best direction as well.

Only once since 1948 — with Spielberg and The Color Purple — has a guild winner failed to get a nomination.

In 1972, Francis Coppola won the guild award for The Godfather, but Bob Fosse won the Academy Award for Cabaret. In 1968, the guild picked Anthony Harvey for The Lion in Winter, while the academy went to Carol Reed for Oliver!

Lasse Hallstrom's My Life as a Dog has been as popular with moviegoers as it has been with critics. But talk about an underdog! The movie, made three years ago in Sweden and just brought to the United States by tiny Skouras Pictures last year, was not even selected as the official foreign-language Oscar entry from its own country.

Hallstrom has made two movies since finishing My Life as a Dog in 1985.

Nominees for the foreign-language category are chosen by motion picture academy members who see the full slate of films submitted for consideration by their respective countries. But Oscar rules allow those foreign-language films that are not submitted for best foreign-language picture to be eligible for all other categories.
