Reagan makes final appeal for Contra aid

Congress offered role in decision

By Norman D. Sandler
United Press International

WASHINGTON — Warning "there will be no second chances tomorrow," President Ronald Reagan made an 11th-hour appeal for $36.25 million in aid to the Nicaraguan rebels and played a last trump card to avoid a major foreign policy defeat.

In a 22-minute Oval Office address Reagan offered Congress a role in releasing future military aid if Nicaragua's Sandinista leaders fail to implement promised political reforms.

However, Democrats immediately rejected the offer as a feint to get undecided House members to swing to Reagan's side and accept what could be the final portion of an "unpalatable" foreign policy.

Reagan's hint of conciliation was overwhelmed by his warnings that Congress could be to blame for "a cycle of chaos and subversion" in Central America if the sword of arms for the Contras is not held over Nicaragua's government.

Secretary of State George Shultz speaks before the House Foreign Affairs Committee Tuesday on the eve of the Contra aid vote.

Local rally protests aid to Contras

By Paula Roesler
The Daily Iowan

New Wave and the Central America Solidarity Committee held a rally Tuesday to urge Congress to vote against a proposal by President Ronald Reagan for $36 million to fund the Nicaraguan rebels.

The U.S. House of Representatives will vote today on the request.

More than 30 Contra aid protesters gathered on the Pentacrest and marched to Rep. Dave Nagle's office headquarters at Iowa State Bank and Trust Company, 102 S. Clinton St. There, a spokesman read a prepared statement by Nagle, D-Iowa, that said the congressman would vote against further funding for the Contras.

"I am one opposed to the Reagan administration's pursuit of a military solution in Central America," according to Nagle's statement.

"Though tomorrow the administration requests for more Contra funding, it comes at a critical time. It comes at a time when the peace process should mean an end to the Contras and a time when additional military aid for the Contras should only serve to escalate conflict. I strongly believe the United States should not risk breaking up this process by pumping more money into military aid," according to the statement.

"MY FELLOW Americans, there can be no mistake about this vote," Reagan said. "It is up or down for Central America. It is win or lose for peace and freedom. It is yes or no to America's national security."

The president made an impassioned plea for an aid package that would send $3.6 million in arms and ammunition to the Contras in the absence of a negotiated ceasefire.

As a last-minute sweetener, he offered to allow the House and Senate to decide whether political conditions in Nicaragua warrant release of the aid after March 31, the deadline he earlier set for Sandinista concessions.

The offer came with strings attached: Congress would be required to act within 10 days of his invitation to assess Nicaraguan compliance with the peace plan and accept his assurances that its advice would be heeded.

Assistant House Democratic leader Tony Coelho, D-Calif., predicted little interest among members of his party in what he called Reagan's "last-minute appeal for Congress' help to continue the Contra war."

"THE PRESIDENT'S offer is too little too late," Coelho said. "It misses the point and it won't save his package."

Rep. David Bonior, D-Mich., a member of the Democratic leadership opposing the aid, said Reagan "realizes his package is unpalatable. This resolution is not binding. It could be filibustered by proponents of Contra aid in the Senate. Clearly, it is crafted to fool a few people. I don't think it will."

Three networks ignore presidential address

By Pam Murphy
United Press International

WASHINGTON — Decisions by the three major commercial television networks to pull the plug on President Ronald Reagan's pitch for Contra aid Tuesday night provoked White House charges of bad journalistic judgment.

ABC, CBS and NBC decided not to air the 7 p.m. CST Oval Office speech Reagan was to deliver on the eve of a crucial vote in the House, marking the first time all three have shunned one of his prime-time addresses to the nation.

Their decisions left Cable News Network as the only national TV network to air the speech. TV Direct, an independent satellite service, planned to beam the speech to more than 700 local stations across the country.

In a swipe at ABC, CBS and NBC, White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater welcomed the move by TV Direct and the willingness of CNN and "numerous radio networks" to carry two speeches — Reagan's and a Democratic response by Rep. Lee Hamilton of Indiana — that "lay out the framework for Wednesday's decision on national policy in Central America."

Insisting the course of U.S. policy in the region is at stake, Fitzwater accused the networks of a "journalistic failure to understand the historic significance of this vote."

President Ronald Reagan holds a copy of his Contra speech Tuesday night — an address televised only by CNN.

Speaker: Candidates must be challenged on covert U.S. activity

By Lisa Legge
The Daily Iowan

A member of a national public-interest law firm urged Iowa City residents Tuesday night to ask presidential candidates more penetrating questions about the U.S. role in covert operations.

Rusty Martin, a UI graduate and Iowa field representative of the Washington, D.C.-based Christic Institute, said Iowa caucusgoers should require candidates to adopt a "pro-active, not re-active" policy toward private and government-funded covert operations in Central America.

"The problem with the candidates is you have to ask them questions (about covert activity)," he said. "They should bring them up on their own."

MARTIN ALSO SAID those planning to attend caucuses should pass resolutions at the Feb. 8 event requiring candidates to pursue prosecutions of those indicted in the Iran-Contra hearings and to complete investigations of narcotics trafficking.

Rusty Martin was one of the first people to ever hear about what is now known as the Contragate scandal.

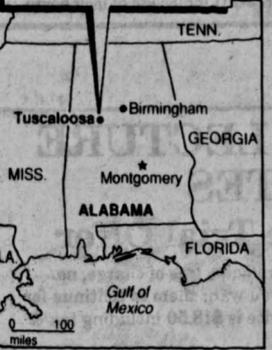

It was May 1986 when Martin, 27, went to work as a public educator for the Christic Institute, a public policy and law center known for winning the Karen Silkwood case.

Martin recalls talking with lawyers at the institute about a lawsuit they had filed revealing illegal activities of retired Major General Richard Secord, businessman Albert Hakim and other major players in the Iran-Contra scandal — a scandal that did not break to the general public until six months later.

"It sounded crazy to me," Martin said of his first reaction to the

Gunmen hold teacher and students hostage

Alabama school hostages released after 13-hour ordeal

By Phillip Jenkins
United Press International

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. — An armed Vietnam veteran with a history of mental illness was arrested Tuesday night about 13 hours after he and another man seized a Christian school and took two teachers and about 85 children hostage.

One of the men — a black who police believe was duped into participating in the takeover of the private school — surrendered about noon. The takeover leader, who identified himself as James Harvey, was taken into custody.

None of the students or teachers appeared to be harmed during the daylong ordeal at the West End Christian School.

Harvey, carrying a gun, walked out of a metal-sided classroom about 8:30 p.m. CST, and was grabbed by police, who disarmed him and wrestled him to the ground.

Harvey, who initially demanded to speak with President Ronald Reagan, Alabama Gov. Guy Hunt and Tuscaloosa Mayor Al Dupont about social and political problems in the United States, pleaded, "please don't hurt me, please don't hurt me" as he was arrested.

Two men wearing ski masks had barged into the school at 7:40 a.m. CST.

POLICE SAID the black man, who was not identified, was hired by the other gunman at a temporary employment center and did not know of the plans for a takeover of

Iowa City 'water hazard' nears end

By James Cahoy
The Daily Iowan

Iowa City water crews struggled for a second day Tuesday to deal with the effects of a water main severed on Monday.

Residents are still being advised by city officials to conserve water as much as possible today and to boil water for children and elderly people.

The water main, which was ruptured around 2 p.m. Monday after it was hit by a backhoe digging in the area, was repaired about 5 a.m. Tuesday morning.

The severed main forced the city's main water plant to close down Monday and depleted the reserves in the city's backup storage tanks.

Iowa City Water Superintendent Edward Brinton said some discoloration would still be present in some of the water today as city crews tried to bring the city's water supply back to normal.

"The water plant is currently running, and we are trying to fill the storage tanks tonight," Brinton said Tuesday night. "We hope to have them at a comfortable level by 7 or 8 a.m. today."

Brinton said city crews would also be working to flush dirty water out of fire hydrants in the area, which would result in the release of some sediment into the city's water supply.

"BECAUSE OF THE hydrant flushing operation, some sediment may be forced loose," Brinton said. "Residents may see discoloration because of the sediment. The water is safe to drink, but it doesn't look too pretty."

City water employees tested the water extensively on Tuesday, Brinton said, and found that most of the water was safe for consumption.

"We were pleasantly surprised to find that there was still a good chlorine level in the water, which indicates it's safe," Brinton said. "We're still advising residents to take precautions, however, just in case."

Several areas of Iowa City were shut off from water Tuesday morning, including the city's northwest corner and highly elevated portions of the city.

Roosevelt Elementary School, Regina High School and the Community Education Center were among the Iowa City schools without water for at least part of Tuesday morning.

WATER SUPPLIES from both the UI and Coralville were tapped by Iowa City officials to keep up

Raises for elected officials proposed by county board

By Craig Sterrett
The Daily Iowan

The Johnson County Compensation Board voted 4-3 Monday afternoon to raise the salaries of several elected county officials by more than 10 percent.

The compensation board's proposal included 12 percent raises for the Johnson County sheriff and the county attorney; 10 percent increases for the county auditor, treasurer and recorder; and a 3 percent pay raise for the members of the Johnson County Board of Supervisors.

The proposal will go to the Johnson County Board of Supervisors for final approval Thursday. If the increases are approved, the new salaries will begin July 1.

The supervisors do not have the power to increase the proposed salary rates or change individual parts of the proposal, but they may reduce the increases at the same rate or simply freeze the salaries of all elected officials.

COMPENSATION BOARD member Penny Davidsen, who voted for the proposal, said the salary increases are necessary because many government officials are underpaid compared to people in the private sector with the same duties.

"I feel that our government employees are running a very important business, and I think they should be paid a comparable salary to those in the same occupation in the private sector," Davidsen said.

If the supervisors approve the proposal, salary increases would include a raise for Sheriff Gary Hughes from $36,888 to $41,314 and a raise for County Attorney J. Patrick White from $37,853 to $42,395.

Compensation board member Tim Brandt said he found it "difficult to believe" that the sheriff, as the chief law enforcement official of the county, was being paid $17,000 less than Iowa City's police chief. He said that he also found it difficult to believe that the county attorney was making less than the first assistant in the Iowa City attorney's office.

OTHER INCREASES for county officials under the proposal include: a raise for County Auditor Tom Slockett, County Treasurer Cletus Redlinger and County Recorder John O'Neill from $29,287 to $32,215; and a $600 raise for Supervisors Bob Burns, Harold Donnelly, Dick Myers, Betty Ockenfels and Don Sehr from $20,384 to $20,996.

Supervisor Betty Ockenfels said Tuesday that the proposed salary increases were "much too high."

"My proposal would be a zero percent increase," Ockenfels said. "I don't know of many people who have gotten a 10 to 12 percent raise, and I feel it's pretty hard to justify an increase of 10 or 12 percent to the taxpayers."

Ockenfels said that although most of the supervisors felt that the salary figures were too high, she said they did not agree on whether the salaries should remain at current levels.

But compensation board member Tim Brandt said the proposed pay raises are justified.

"I thought it was justified in comparison to their peers from the standpoint of similar position in similar jobs," Brandt said.

If any reductions in the proposal are made, the supervisors must reduce each official's salary by the same percentage.

4-cent increase in gas tax appears likely for Iowans

By Scott Sonner
United Press International

DES MOINES — Gov. Terry Branstad's proposed 4-cent increase in the state gasoline tax is gaining momentum in the Iowa Legislature and passage now appears likely, House Speaker Don Avenson, D-Oelwein, said Tuesday.

He also told reporters House lawmakers remain committed to Branstad's call for a 12-cent increase in the state cigarette tax instead of the dime-per-pack hike the Senate Commerce Committee approved Monday.

Avenson said the plan to raise the gas tax 4-cents per gallon "is on a likely track now," although the Democrat-controlled Legislature does not intend to follow the Republican governor's blueprint for spending the $60 million in new revenue.

"We have a growing momentum for some kind of gas tax proposal that will at least fill the void created by federal budget cuts. If we don't do that, highway maintenance will slow down and city streets will deteriorate," Avenson said.

Branstad's "Transportation 2000" plan calls for a 4-cent increase over two years to finance renovation of highways, rail lines and airports.

But Avenson said Branstad's proposal has little chance of winning approval because lawmakers are more concerned about maintaining the current road system than embarking on new projects.

Courts

By Traci Auble
The Daily Iowan

A UI student pleaded guilty Monday to interference with official acts after he ran from police officers when being questioned about an assault, according to Johnson County District Court records.

Andrew Sbiliris, 20, 416 S. Linn St., was referred to officers as matching the description of a subject who had just assaulted a person in the pedestrian mall on April 17, according to court records. Sbiliris refused to provide any information to officers when they tried to question him and then ran away from them, according to court records.

Sbiliris was apprehended behind The Iowa City Press-

Citizen building, 319 E. Washington St. He allegedly injured one officer during the altercation, according to court records.

Court records indicate Sbiliris was fined $135. The other charge of disorderly conduct was dismissed and Sbiliris was only fined $20 for court costs, according to court records.

A Coralville man was found guilty Monday of disorderly conduct after he and another subject were observed in a fistfight on Nov. 18, according to Johnson County District Court records.

Timothy C. Schultheis, 24, 300 4th Ave., was seen allegedly fighting near the Holiday Inn on Linn Street. Police ended the fight and Schultheis was fined $48, according to court records.

An Iowa City man was charged with forgery Tuesday after he allegedly used a forged check made payable to himself on Dec. 22, according to Johnson County District Court records.

Justin J. Sanders, 18, 418 Brown St., forged a check he stole and made it payable to himself. Employees of Hy-Vee, First and Rochester avenues, who cashed the forged check knew Sanders personally, according to court records.

A preliminary hearing in the case is set for Feb. 16.

Police

By Susan M. Wessling
The Daily Iowan

An Iowa City man was being held Tuesday night in the Johnson County Jail on $2,500 bond after being charged with illegally discharging a firearm and third-degree criminal mischief, according to Iowa City police.

Curtis McClurg, 44, 1014 1/2 N. Summit St., surrendered to police officers Tuesday morning after his home was put under surveillance after someone reported hearing gunfire at his residence, according to police.

At about 7 p.m. Monday, police said they received a report of possible gunfire at McClurg's address. Officers investigating the report said they found several bullet holes through the ceiling of the lower floor apartment and recovered an unidentified number of spent cartridges, according to the release.

Someone was heard moving in the upstairs apartment, but police were unable to contact that resident. The building was then placed under close surveillance throughout the night, according to the release.

Officers approached the entrance to the upper floor apartment at about 11 a.m. Tuesday and ordered the occupant to come downstairs. After police repeated the command several times, McClurg surrendered and was subsequently taken into custody, charged and transported to the Johnson County Jail.

Police found an unidentified number of rifles, three handguns and a large amount of ammunition during a search of the apartment and of the vehicle owned by McClurg, according to the release.

Report: A Cedar Rapids woman was arrested and charged with public intoxication and fifth-degree criminal mischief Tuesday morning after she reportedly broke several windows in an Iowa City woman's home, according to police reports.

Babbitt speaks in Iowa City, blasts Democratic 'silence'

By Sara Anderson
The Daily Iowan

Former Arizona Gov. Bruce Babbitt urged voters to refuse to allow the "silence" within the presidential campaign to continue before a group of about 300 people at the Union Tuesday.

Babbitt was vocal in his criticism of the Democratic candidates with less than a week before the Feb. 8 Iowa caucus.

"By their silence, the other candidates become part of the problem. If they refuse to talk honestly it is because it is their judgment that the American public needs to be treated like children," he said.

Babbitt criticized the platforms of other candidates as being without substance, arguing they have been avoiding the issues because they do not have plans to enact, if elected.

"I'm here to tell you that it is not enough to dream, because a dream becomes a hoax if we don't have a plan with which to implement that dream," Babbitt said.

BABBITT SAID other Democratic candidates have tried to hide during the final few days before caucuses while he claimed to be actively campaigning.

"My opponents want the next six days to be very quiet in Iowa," he said. "They'd rather I join in the silence, in the generalities and leave reality behind. And if somehow I end up sounding like the skunk at the garden party, it's only because I care so deeply."

Babbitt criticized candidate Sen. Paul Simon, D-Ill., calling his platform "unrealistic."

"Simon says 'I'm going to make deficits illegal and at the same time, have a public works system the size of the Egyptian pyramids,'" Babbitt said.

FIELDING A question about his ability to work well with the U.S. Congress, Babbitt said, "When I became governor, the conservative Republicans of Arizona asked themselves how they could possibly have fallen out of providential favor enough to warrant having a liberal Democrat around. I spent nine years dealing with those guys, driving the most progressive agenda through that you've ever seen. And let me tell you that when I go in to work with Congress, it's going to seem like a piece of cake." In response to a question about the Gramm-Rudman bill, Babbitt said he opposes across-the-board budget cuts, calling them "profoundly immoral" given the high numbers of homeless people in this country.

Babbitt thanked his audience for support and expressed some regret that his extensive campaigning in Iowa was nearly finished.

"It's kind of like commencement," he said. "Spending the amount of time I have in Iowa, I must say it's been an extraordinary experience."

Hart raps presidential candidates who take special interest money

By Rod Boshart
United Press International

WELTON, Iowa — Former Colorado Sen. Gary Hart said Tuesday any presidential hopeful who accepts political action committee money would enter the White House in 1989 with their "hands tied" by special interests.

The Democratic candidate also said he has become discouraged by the media and others who "trivialize" politics by focusing on endorsements, polls, contributions and other sidelights instead of issues.

PAC contributions are "corrupting our political system and it's going to tie the hands of anybody who gets into the White House beholden to any of those special interests," Hart told a group of Clinton County farmers.

"We're going to have to have an independent president, we're going to have to have a reform president," he said. "You can't shake up the status quo and you can't challenge old arrangements if they put money in your pockets."

The ex-senator said he is the one candidate who has rolled traditional Democratic Party values into a plan for the future that will expand the economy while reducing the federal deficit.

"It's one thing to be for all these things. It's another thing to say how you're going to pay for them, and that's the key in this race," Hart said in promoting his proposed budget blueprint.

"Our challenge as Democrats is not just to say how passionately we care about people, but how we're going to pay for the programs we're for and I alone among the Democrats have said how to do that," Hart said, holding a copy of his 94-page campaign pamphlet.

"Not only how to reduce the deficit, but how to make the economic pie grow. That's what Franklin Roosevelt did, that's what John Kennedy did, that's what the great Democratic presidents of the past have done," he added.

Among Hart's proposals is a cut in defense spending by shifting the military emphasis from nuclear to conventional weapons and seizing the "Gorbachev challenge" by negotiating treaties that will reduce the world's nuclear arsenals.

The former Colorado senator also said he would revamp U.S. foreign and trade policies, and he criticized Rep. Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., the front-runner in Iowa, for proposing a trade policy that would touch off a trade war.

"If we take the very dangerous step of passing new trade legislation that is arbitrary and unilateral, as Congressman Gephardt supports, in it the first casualties in a trade war created by that kind of legislation are going to be America's farmers and workers as they were in the 1920s," said Hart. "We don't need it. That's a major difference in this campaign."

The presidential hopeful acknowledged that the United States currently has trade imbalances with nations like Japan and Korea, but he said the president has adequate authorities under existing laws and agreements to "slap down" any unfair trade practices.

Mediator aids students, staff

By Jay Casini
The Daily Iowan

This ombud's for you. Since 1985, students, faculty and staff at the UI have taken their problems to UI Ombudsperson Anthony V. Sinicropi.

Sinicropi's job, a half-time appointment, is to impartially mediate the complaints and problems of UI faculty, students and administrative staff members.

Former UI President James O. Freedman created the position in response to a Faculty Senate recommendation. Following search committee interviews, Freedman appointed Sinicropi to the position on October 1, 1985.

The UI ombudsperson position is similar to those at almost 100 other colleges and universities nationwide.

Sinicropi currently works with a half-time graduate assistant and a half-time secretary in two Phillips Hall offices.

UI Assistant to the President Julia Mears said the creation of a UI ombudsperson was an important step in solving problems for the UI community.

"IF YOU FEEL like you are getting the runaround, then there is a place to go," Mears said. "It is a place for the buck to stop."

Since his appointment, Sinicropi said he has mediated a large variety of differences within the UI community.

"We handle everything from student housing problems, non-payment of bill problems, legal suits, you name it," Sinicropi said.

"Sometimes we deal with problems directly and sometimes we direct people where to go and let them know what is going on."

"We can't make anybody do anything, we can only persuade, recommend or try to influence," Sinicropi said.

Mediating disputes is nothing new to Sinicropi. Born in Olean, New York, in 1931, Sinicropi graduated cum laude from St. Bonaventure University. He attended the New York State School of Industrial and Labor Relations at Cornell University and went on to a career as a labor arbitrator and mediator.

SINICROPI CAME to the UI in 1963 as an assistant professor of human management and industrial relations. He is currently the John F. Murray professor of industrial relations and human resources in the UI College of Business Administration.

Besides Sinicropi's duties as ombudsperson, he is an adjunct professor in the UI College of Law, teaches in the College of Business Administration and continues to mediate labor disputes for airlines, public schools and universities.

"Since he's a professional in the field, I had every expectation that I'd be dealing with a person who knew how to do this and be both zealous in helping the person he's working for, but also professional and dispassionate," Mears said.

"My expectations were fulfilled," Mears said. "He acts in a very professional manner and he knows how to operate in a mediator setting. He works hard and he plays fair with both sides."

SINICROPI SAID his past mediation experience and his years at the UI have helped him as ombudsperson.

"I've been here for almost 25 years. I know a lot of people, a lot of places and a lot of institutional things," Sinicropi said. "When I came here there were 11,000 students and there are close to 30,000 students now. I've watched the bureaucracy develop so when I need to work with it I usually know who within the system to talk with."

Sinicropi said because he is an impartial mediator, he does not answer directly to any administrators.

"Essentially in this job, we are responsible to everybody but we don't report to anybody," Sinicropi said. "I was appointed by (former UI) President Freedman and I work for the university, but I don't report to Acting President Remington or anyone else as my superior, because if that were the case I would be part of the administration and therefore individuals wouldn't have the confidence in me."

Sinicropi said although he tries to please everyone and make both sides happy when settling disputes, hurt feelings are inevitable.

"I CAN'T BE afraid to step on toes," Sinicropi said. "If I think someone is wrong, whether it be a dean or whatever, I'm going to tell them."

"I'm a tenured professor and anytime anyone doesn't like what I'm doing I can always return to being a professor," he said.

Although his office does not actively advertise, Sinicropi said he has received a large response since beginning his duties.

"If we go out and advertise, then we might stir up a lot of people who will use this thing unnecessarily, but on the other hand if people don't hear about us then how are they going to take advantage of what we do?" Sinicropi said.

"We want everyone in the university community to know about us and utilize us," Sinicropi added.

LAST YEAR, the UI took a survey of students, faculty and staff members who went to Sinicropi with their problems. The results are being compiled and will be published this year, but Sinicropi said he is not sure how to measure his success.

"Those that are successful in their quest for what they consider equity think we have done a good job. Those that haven't obviously don't think we did," Sinicropi said.

When his four-year appointment ends next year, Sinicropi intends to step down and allow the UI to appoint a new ombudsperson. He said he is unsure whether he will continue to teach, concentrate on labor mediation or rekindle his old passion as a musician in a dance band.

"This is not a job that I want to make a career of," Sinicropi said. "It has presented challenges, but it is exhilarating when you solve a problem to the satisfaction of the individual."

Rojas-Cardona elected to be student senate vice president

The Daily Iowan

UI Student Senator Pepe Rojas-Cardona was elected Tuesday night to replace Melinda Hess as vice president of the UI Student Senate.

Rojas was selected by a committee that included the three remaining student senate executives — President Melinda Hess, Treasurer Jill Woods and Executive Associate Dave Olson — and student senators Tara Sutton and Jennifer Fleck.

Hess said that four people applied for the position, but the committee thought Rojas-Cardona was best qualified for the job.

"The way that we evaluated, we tried to determine who would be best able to handle the programs during the next six weeks," Hess said, referring to programs such as Whistlestop and the Self-Help Scholarship.

Rojas-Cardona fills the vacancy left by Hess in January when she became president following the resignation of senate president Joe Hansen.

Rojas-Cardona said he was looking forward to serving the senate in his new position.

The term of the current student senate, including the executive council, expires in six weeks. Rojas-Cardona admitted that would make things more difficult to get done.

Prime lending rate slashed by banks

NEW YORK — Several major banks, including Citibank, Chase Manhattan and Morgan Guaranty Trust Co., cut their prime lending rates Tuesday by a quarter percentage point to 8.5 percent.

Chemical Bank also joined in the reduction in the prime lending rate, which serves as the basis for calculating the interest rates on a variety of loans to consumers and small businesses. The change was effective immediately, the banks said. The rate had stood at 8.75 percent since Nov. 5.

Bank spokesmen said Tuesday's reduction in the prime reflected interest rate declines that already have occurred over the past few weeks in the securities markets.

Weinberger urges passage of INF treaty

WASHINGTON — Former Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger said Tuesday the Soviet Union is likely to cheat on the proposed medium-range missile treaty, as its has on past arms-control accords, but he urged the Senate to ratify it anyway.

Weinberger joined four other former defense chiefs dating back to the Kennedy administration — Robert McNamara, Elliot Richardson, James Schlesinger and Harold Brown — in recommending Senate ratification.

Their comments came before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee hearing testimony on the intermediate-range nuclear forces treaty, signed by President Ronald Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev Dec. 8.

Study: U.S. health care in jeopardy

WASHINGTON — The nation's health care system is "approaching critical condition," a study released Tuesday said.

The National Committee for Quality Health Care said in a report that increasing health care costs, growing numbers of hospital closings, dropping enrollment at medical schools, a nursing shortage and millions of uninsured or underinsured Americans may jeopardize the nation's health care system.

Lawmakers protest Confederate flag

MONTGOMERY, Ala. — State Rep. Thomas Reed and 13 other lawmakers were arrested Tuesday for trying to remove a Confederate flag former Gov. George Wallace hoisted over the Capitol after his "segregation forever" speech.

"What you saw today is just the beginning," Reed said after he and the other lawmakers — all of them black — were arrested while trying to climb a chain-link fence surrounding the Capitol, which is closed for renovations.

Pope appeals for help for homeless

VATICAN CITY — Pope John Paul II urged laymen, Catholic officials and churches Tuesday to help alleviate the "immense needs" of the one billion people around the world who live without decent housing.

The papal appeal came as preface to a Vatican study concluding that homelessness is a structural problem of poverty and exploitation that afflicts one-fifth of mankind. Some 900 million people live in sub-standard housing and "100 million quite literally do not have a roof over their heads," the study prepared by the Pontifical Commission for Justice and Peace said.

Meese is last witness in Nofziger trial

By Wendy Zentz
United Press International

WASHINGTON — Attorney General Edwin Meese, under investigation himself, testified Tuesday he does not remember dealing with ex-presidential aide Lyn Nofziger on a $32 million Army contract for the scandal-torn Wedtech Corp.

Special prosecutor James McKay called Meese — also under scrutiny by McKay — as his final witness in the illegal lobbying trial of Nofziger, who served as President Ronald Reagan's political director.

Nofziger is accused of exploiting his White House connections to win millions of dollars in business for his clients less than a year after he left the White House in January 1982. If convicted of all charges, he could go to jail for eight years.

Meese answered McKay's questions calmly during 2½ hours of testimony, repeatedly saying he could not recall contacts with Nofziger on behalf of Wedtech, the most politically sensitive charge in the influence-peddling case.

BUT MEESE DID confirm the White House was interested in the projects Nofziger is accused of illegally promoting, primarily because of campaign pledges Reagan made in 1980.

Although devoid of fireworks, the public confrontation between Meese and McKay took on heightened drama because of last week's disclosure that McKay now has evidence of Meese's involvement in a questionable Iraqi pipeline deal.

The disclosure of a memo sent to Meese by his longtime associate, E. Robert Wallach, which prompted McKay to warn the White House his probe now is focusing on the beleaguered attorney general, forced Meese to read a lengthy statement to reporters Monday.

FBI admits investigation went too far

By Lori Santos
United Press International

WASHINGTON — FBI Director William Sessions acknowledged Tuesday that some agents may have gone too far in a controversial undercover investigation of U.S. citizens opposed to administration policy in Central America.

Sessions said the operation "was not properly directed" in some areas of the country, where bureaus were overzealous and apparently misinterpreted orders from headquarters.

At the same time, the director said such abuses are difficult to prevent.

"I think you would have to say that in some instances had the matter been reviewed at that time and sensed at that time that there might have been direction that would have been different," Sessions said.

"I would hope that it would have been caught," he said. "I would have hoped that it would have been directed differently."

SESSIONS LATER visited Capitol Hill to brief the Senate Intelligence Committee on the allegations of misconduct, making his first official appearance before the panel after three months on the job.

Leaders of the intelligence panel reacted cautiously, saying they had asked for all pertinent FBI documents so they could conduct a "careful, thorough" investigation.

"Allegations have been made. We make no judgment at all whether those allegations are true or false," said Committee Chairman David Boren, D-Okla.

"If, indeed, the resources of the FBI were utilized improperly to interfere with the rightful political activities of any American citizen, that would be a matter that I personally would take seriously . . ." Boren added.

Forecasting Phil fails to see his shadow

By Justin Supon
United Press International

PUNXSUTAWNEY, Pa. — Punxsutawney Phil, the weather-forecasting groundhog, was coaxed from his burrow in steady rain at sunrise Tuesday and failed to see his shadow. To his cheering, rain-drenched faithful that meant spring was on the way.

It was only the ninth time in the 101 years of the Groundhog Day event that Phil has failed to see his shadow. A shadow means six more weeks of winter, according to lore.

On a mild but rainy morning, about 1,000 people made the muddy trek to Gobbler's Knob on the outskirts of town to witness the forecast of "The Great Seer of Seers."

Shortly after daybreak, Phil was removed from his man-made burrow and "whispered" he had not seen his shadow, James Means, president of the Punxsutawney Groundhog Club, said.

"Phil came out of his official home at 6:32 a.m. to start his second century with an accurate prediction. He has failed to see his shadow," Means, dressed in top hat and tails, reported to the wildly cheering crowd. Some of the onlookers hoisted beer in a toast to the celebrity groundhog.

SOME PEOPLE in the crowd wore shorts and Hawaiian shirts, while others held signs reading, "Phil for President," "We Love Phil" and "Phil, Kill the Chill."

"It makes you think that some of the things Americans do are a little strange, waking up to see an animal," said Helena Gomez, 18, a high school exchange student from Colombia.

United Press International
Punxsutawney Phil is raised into the air Tuesday morning by his handler after emerging from his den. Phil did not see his shadow.

New rules anger pro-choice groups

By Tamara Henry
United Press International

WASHINGTON — Lawsuits were filed across the nation Tuesday to block imposition of new regulations that forbid health care counselors who get government money from recommending — or even mentioning — abortion.

The new rules, which had been expected, draw a sharp line between any service that gets federal funds and abortion. Critics call the regulations a "gag rule" and "mandatory malpractice." Health Secretary Otis Bowen said there has been confusion about which activities related to abortion are forbidden by the law, technically called Title 10. He said the new regulations, which appeared in Tuesday's Federal Register, provide programs receiving federal funds with clear and specific compliance standards for programs that receive federal money. The final regulations prohibit family planning counselors from mentioning or making referrals for abortion, and order the physical and financial separation of government-based programs from any abortion-related services provided with private funds. MOST CHANGES must be implemented in 30 days, but an additional 30 days are allowed to separate abortion-related services.

Within hours of the publication, Planned Parenthood Federation of America, the American Civil Liberties Union, and National Family Planning filed lawsuits. The Planned Parenthood statement said, "We cannot and will not adhere to these new regulations because they run counter to our fundamental principles, endanger the health of our patients and are, in essence, a call for mandatory malpractice."

Greenspan advocates market reform

By Hugh Vickery
United Press International

WASHINGTON — Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan said Tuesday the nation has weathered the financial crisis triggered by the stock market crash, but warned of more problems unless the system is reformed. "Although it appears that acute crisis has passed, markets remain quite sensitive and could react strongly to developments that seemed to portend more market instability," Greenspan told the Senate Banking Committee. He said the Fed generally agreed with the presidential Brady Commission's analysis of the causes of the Oct. 19 stock market crash. But Greenspan disagreed with some of its recommendations, particularly the commission's proposal to give the Fed, the nation's central bank, overriding jurisdiction over regulation of securities markets. For example, the perception the Fed would use its "discount window," through which it loans banks money at lower-than-market rates, to bail out ailing securities firms might lead those firms to take imprudent risk, he said. Greenspan endorsed in principle the commission's call for "circuit breakers" such as price limits as a way of "slowing things down when market conditions become hectic and threaten to get out of control." While conceding that such artificial limits are disruptive, Greenspan said they "may be the least bad of all solutions." Greenspan said the Fed would give Congress its own recommendations on reforming the financial system on March 4.

No more Contra aid

Today the U.S. House of Representatives will decide whether an additional $36.2 million in mostly non-lethal aid for the Nicaraguan Contras is the answer to Central American strife. President Ronald Reagan, along with several conservative politicians, have argued in favor of the latest package. They say more aid must be sent to the "freedom fighters" in order to show the Communist-backed government that democracy and "strength through force" will win out.

However, several other representatives and senators, as well as a majority of the American public, are urging that the aid — the Reagan administration's second largest package in seven years — not be sent. They say additional help will undermine the 6-month-old peace plan, which at this point is progressing nicely.

The House should listen to the second, larger group for one simple reason — peace. Since Aug. 7, when the five leaders of Costa Rica, El Salvador, Guatemala, Honduras and Nicaragua formally agreed to work together in ending the war that has ravaged their land, a number of notable changes have taken place.

There has been less fighting. There have been fewer deaths. There has been more discussion and negotiation. And there is more hope and optimism.

Although more needs to be accomplished, the Reagan administration should let the people and leaders of Central America continue this vital self-determination process. The time has come for American officials to respect the Central American leaders' request for no further U.S. intervention.

Faulty test

A political activist in Des Moines — the Rev. John Palmer, senior pastor of the First Assembly of God church — recently delivered a sermon entitled "Caucuses and Christians." Although he did not explicitly endorse any candidate from the pulpit, the reverend did offer his 700 listeners a "Biblical litmus test" so they can make good, Christian judgments on caucus night.

The test involves questions of character: Is the candidate a capable, truthful, just and God-fearing public servant? As the preacher puts it: "We must be looking for men whose personal lives are lived with a high standard of Biblical rightness."

Aside from the gender-exclusive language, Palmer's sermon is plenty troubling. Most voters would agree that character is an important issue, and many would even include "God-fearing" on the list of virtues, especially if given some latitude when defining the term. But the reverend's "litmus test" is nothing more than one person's notion of "Biblical rightness" masquerading as a universal standard.

Palmer's test of political legitimacy prescribes certain stands on certain issues, namely "pro-life," "law and order" and a "refusal to compromise with Communism." He takes Biblical authority — with which anyone can promote nearly any platform — and uses it to persuade his audience. Is Palmer, like too many other evangelical preachers, claiming to have special access to the Lord's mandate on current events?

The danger in Palmer's use of the pulpit is not the mixing of religion and politics per se. Rather, it's the self-righteous application of personal religious views to the political arena. His exhortations on "Biblical rightness" are insulting to the non-Christians in American society — and the many Christians who have a different understanding of the Bible's message.

Shady shaper

Gary Hart came to the UI campus on Monday and built his dream house.

Throughout virtually the entire length of his speech, Hart brandished a copy of his 94-page campaign manifesto and his outline for a balanced budget. He punctuated many of his points by stressing the fact that he alone, of all the 13 presidential candidates, has such extensive, pragmatic groundings for his ideas.

Illustrating his plan for restructuring the spending priorities of the federal government, Hart drew a house and quizzed the audience as to what was missing. Someone supplied the desired answer: a foundation. Using this, Hart then listed five pillars on which to build an imaginary house, including such things as research and food production. But maybe he was wrong about what was missing from his dream house.

Maybe what was missing was an architect.

It's not that Hart doesn't have the best of intentions; it's only that his material is faulty. In a major political campaign — and they don't get any more major — a large part of a candidate's material is himself or herself. In the wake of press attention over Hart's alleged affair with Miami model Donna Rice, Hart has clamped down on private interviews and is touchy on the "character" question which has so typified this election race thus far.

Hart implied on Monday that media exposure and TV ads wouldn't really be necessary for him to figure significantly in next week's Iowa caucuses. That's an unrealistic attitude — as unrealistic as building a house without a foundation.

Ultimately, that's why Hart won't win his party's nomination: Because although he maintains that it's his positions on the issues and not his personal life which differentiate him from his fellow candidates, any of his six Democratic running mates could construct the same house. And none of them has the questionable background this architect can't escape.

Racism is alive in Iowa City

We, the membership of the Black American Law Student Association, find Federal District Judge Jerald W. Haney's remarks at the Stephenson Competition Banquet last week to be insensitive and racist. Someone should inform the judge that the presence of large members of minorities in various states has been directly responsible for the numerous economic and political benefits these states have enjoyed.

It is not the presence or absence of a given racial group in an area that adversely affects our judicial and political system. Rather, it is the presence of judges in high courts who hold racist views which they turn into flawed public policy justifications for racist governmental actions. Our legal history is full of examples of how racist judges, hiding behind the cloak of legal reasoning, have made decisions that have retarded our national development.

HISTORY HAS taught us that a person who holds racist views cannot separate his personal racist views from his judicial views. This was the American public's view during the Bork nomination. In a nutshell, a racist is not fit to be a judge.

Various members of the legal community at the UI College of Law have taken the time to point out that Judge Haney has a good civil rights record. We commend

By Leslie Mealy

Guest Opinion

Judge Haney where he has supported civil rights law. However, we must condemn Judge Haney when his remarks indicate that his reasoning was based on blatant racism.

Suggestions that whites solidify white power in the courts to keep control over growing minority populations is unquestionably a racist philosophy. We reject such racism, whether it comes from civil rights friends or foes.

SOME MEMBERS of the UI College of Law community have tried to make the judge's remarks more tenable by claiming the judge did not mean what he said. We remain unconvinced that the judge did not mean exactly what he said. Our experience in law school has taught us that neither law students nor law professors have the capacity to read minds. No amount of positive characterization of Judge Haney's remarks changes the fact that his statements were racist on their face.

If Judge Haney did not mean what he said, let him send a letter to The Daily Iowan indicating clearly and specifically what he did mean. We think Judge Haney's own statements that he did not view his comments as racist are perhaps a better indicator of his true view. We, the membership of BALSAL, disagree and state clearly for the record that Judge Haney's comments were racist.

SOME HAVE characterized Judge Haney as a giant in the civil rights field. While we can respect his work in civil rights, we are bound to point out that Judge Haney's comments at the Stephenson Competition Banquet showed him to be a midget in his comprehension of the nation and judicial system he represents. It is not an acceptable excuse in 1988 to say, "I did not know my statement was racist." We do not accept claims of ignorance as a convenient justification for making racist remarks.

We think that it is important for the community to understand why racially insensitive comments are made when legal issues are being discussed. Certain individuals, who themselves hold racist views, want to teach the white law students the lesson that minorities are not to be respected or taken seriously.

JUDGE HANEY told a racially offensive joke about a black man. However, he is not the only one who tells racist jokes to law students. Some law professors tell similar jokes. We note that in the last three years, we have regularly heard a joke about Mexicans. Additionally, we note that some law professors seem to think it is extremely funny that a young black man broke down under the pressure of law school. We understand the purpose of these jokes to communicate to white students that minorities are inferior.

This subtle covert style of racism is common in the legal profession. As future attorneys, we cannot remain silent in the face of this racism. We oppose the overt and covert racism implied in racially insensitive remarks.

We challenge the UI College of Law to take a strong public stand against racially insensitive remarks whether made by judges or law professors. Additionally, we urge Paul Papak, the assistant dean of the Law College, to make a public statement indicating his opposition to the racially insensitive statements made at the banquet.

In our view, silence in the face of clearly racist statements constitutes support for these comments. We would like to think that all UI members of the UI College of Law community oppose racially insensitive remarks. We must oppose racism because, as Bruce Wright once said: "Passive acceptance of racism merely fertilizes the roots of oppression and aids its growth."

Leslie Mealy, a third-year UI law student, wrote this on behalf of the Black American Law Student Association.

Vote for another black player

Caucus-watcher, football fan or just plain fool, you likely saw Super Bowl XXII, played last Sunday in San Diego. The Washington Redskins rode, whipped and broke the Denver Broncos, 42-10, but the main topic of discussion — before, during and after the game — was the color of the Redskins' quarterback's skin, which is, in fact, black.

This fixation on Doug Williams' blackness was more than news: It was an object lesson in how racially twisted we remain, what puny progress we've made. Blacks have been here far longer than other ethnic groups, yet when Jesse Jackson, a former quarterback himself, appears on "Meet the Press," Marvin Kalb asks whether he's "a black man who happens to be an American running for the presidency or an American who happens to be a black man running for the presidency?" Which is it, Jesse? Will you be white enough when it's fourth and long?

INSPOITS, that self-proclaimed bastion of equality, we cheer for teams — Indians, Braves, Redskins — named for our very own genocide victims. And we ask Doug Williams how it feels to be the first black quarterback to play in the Super Bowl, as if he was born and raised on Neptune.

At the postgame interview, Williams' rich white owner patted himself on the back for giving Williams the chance. Then Joe Gibbs, his coach, said of Williams' performance, "I hope it means a lot as far as bringing down the barriers."

Oh my, yes! Doug Williams, the first black quarterback ever to win the Super Bowl. I can hear America even now: "I'll be danged, Mildred, maybe they are smart enough to lead and perform under pressure, too. Daggone."

Great news, Dr. King: You didn't live and die in vain. Who would have predicted only a few years back that in 1988 a black man would pilot a Super Bowl team to victory and have his race mentioned only three or four thousand times a day?

THIS WOULD be quite funny, even bittersweet, if we were not living a racial nightmare in this country. I love Doug Williams, but I hate hearing about a "black" this or that, first or not, especially in athletics. I'd bet that Doug Williams is sick of it, too.

When do we meet the tenth black senator, the millionth black doctor, lawyer, owner? When do we actually open the road to power for everyone? When do we vote for our first black president? Now that Doug Williams won the Super Bowl, is Jesse Jackson electable?

Who is this liberal trash I hear, saying Jackson can't win because he's black? It wouldn't be a pack of white men in the news media, would it? It wouldn't be the moneyed white donkeys whose interest in brotherhood, justice and truth ends at the wallet, would it? Are these Democrats who are telling Iowans to resign themselves to racism?

OH, NO, they say, it's not that Jesse's black. It's just he hasn't had the training. Mmmm — hmmm. That's a hot reason in sports, too, to keep the power right where it is.

"We'd love a black coach/manager/president, oh yes, in a minute, a nanosecond, we'd be so proud to have the first, but look at these resumes, man. I mean, Wonderbread here ran Chrysler. Jonesy ran pass routes."

What it is is the 80s version of the "grandfather's-vote" clause used for years in the South to keep blacks from voting: If your granddaddy didn't win the presidency, you can't either. But you sure can play some ball.

I'm no Jimmy the Greek, but I can give you the low-down on why blacks excel at sports.

THAT'S ALL WE'VE LET THEM

EXCEL AT.

If you doubt it, look where the money goes right on this campus. The UI administration is trying to pry loose a million dollars or so to fund "Opportunity at Iowa," a program to increase minority representation among students and faculty.

Small beer; that's an autumn afternoon's gate and concession receipts at Kinnick Stadium, one-eighth of what we spent to build Hayden Fry's practice bubble. Millions of dollars go every year to recruit and retain dozens of minority athletes at Iowa; meanwhile, out of 1,567 tenured and tenure-faculty, last year blacks numbered 15.

You tell me where the opportunities at Iowa have been so far. Why do we still list racial firsts, as a university and as a nation, when so often they continue to measure only athletic prowess? How has playing ball brought us closer to sharing power and love as a society?

What was won in Doug Williams' Super Bowl game that means blacks can come out of the gym? Will four touchdowns change the lie that says blacks can win only at sports?

Win one for the world. Go out Monday and stand up for the other black quarterback, Jesse Jackson.

Okla., said Reagan had made a reasonable offer to the Congress. Half a dozen Democrats may come over because of it. It is a very close vote. For the Democrats to say they have it won is absurd."

REAGAN'S APPEAL capped a daylong administration blitz to lobby the undecided lawmakers with the argument that only military pressure from the U.S.-backed Contras will force Nicaragua's Sandinista leaders to negotiate a cease-fire.

Noting the political reforms announced in Nicaragua since the Aug. 7 signing of a Central American peace plan, a skeptical Reagan said the Sandinistas "are clearly feeling the pressure and are beginning to take limited steps."

"One may hope they are sincere this time," Reagan said. "The freedom fighters are our insurance policy in case the Sandinistas once again go back on their word."

Insisting "there will be no second chances," he went on to warn, "If Congress votes down aid, the freedom fighters may soon be gone." The last-ditch bid to rescue the package from defeat at the hands of lawmakers opposed to the $3.6 million in military assistance suffered a severe blow when the three broadcast networks decided not to televise the speech.

Hanging in the balance were a cornerstone of Reagan's foreign policy — support for anti-communist insurgents around the world and the prospects for a negotiated peace.

Hostages

Harvey, who is white and identified himself on a television report of the hijacking, initially released 40 of the hostage children from a metal-sided classroom — one of four buildings on the campus.

He freed nine other students and pregnant teacher Judy Dunn in the face of the Associated Press report of the hijacking. Under the name Hoyt Harwell and released two more students after nightfall, but said he would free no more until he saw a videotape of Hunt signing a pardon for any criminal charges. Hunt, who made an audio tape earlier in the day, made a videotape that was driven by state trooper from the state capital of Montgomery to Tuscaloosa.

Hunt said he could not guarantee Harvey would not be prosecuted "because the governor of this state does not have the authority to do that."

HARWELL SAID Harvey made a rambling statement about government, politics, welfare and the homeless and said: "I've put my life on the line to do this. Things are awfully wrong and no one is doing anything about it."

Harvey demanded both immunity from prosecution and money to travel around the nation and appear on talk shows to deliver his message. Harvey has a list of 65 questions he wants answered. The questions deal with the homeless, social issues and political issues such as the Reagan administration's Central American policy.

"Obviously, the country's primary problem at this point is economic, scarcity of basic resources to maintain modern economy and inflation," Smith said. "So I think that the problem facing the country now is going to be economic reconstruction and dealing with the physical devastation of this war."

pressure in the city's water system. The assistant manager of the Iowa City grocery stores reported a problem on bottled water Tuesday.

"We had to order a special shipment of it this morning," said Steve Brown, manager of Hy-Vee, 401 Hollywood Blvd. "We've sold quite a lot of it."

No UI buildings were reported affected by the water problem, with the exception of Mayflower Residence Hall, which had problems with water pressure Tuesday morning, and the Hawkeye Apartments, where residents reported some discoloration of water Tuesday. UI Physical Plant General Manager Glen Boutelle said the water problem in the Hawkeye Apartments was due to the housing facility's connection with the city's water supply.

"Their water pipes have some cross-ties with the city's water pipes," Boutelle said. "Some rust was reported in the water by some apartment residents. The water is safe to drink — just kind of rust colored."

Boutelle said the UI had assisted city officials Tuesday in restoring the city's water supply.

which he said is funding weapons for the Contras.

"These people are the Mafia of our time, but in many ways more dangerous," Martin said. "They have got to be addressed by the next president. We want the candidates to do that more forcefully."

"We've got an opportunity to make a full national debate on this," he said, referring to Iowa's first-in-the-nation caucuses next Monday.

The Christic Institute, an interfaith public interest law firm, helped expose the private Contra supply network by filing a federal racketeering lawsuit against retired U.S. Army General Richard Secord and 29 other former CIA and military personnel involved in the private Contra supply network, Martin said.

Contras, and in return smuggled narcotics back into the United States to pay for the weapons. The institute also has charged the private network with money laundering, as well as murder and arson in connection with a press conference bombing.

The case is expected to reach the courts next June.

In a talk given before the forum, Martin criticized the Iran-Contra hearing committee for not probing deeply enough into the scandal.

"They weren't asking the right questions: where other funds were coming from," he said. "Why doesn't the issue of drug smuggling come up?"

MARTIN ALSO criticized the presidential candidates for not probing deeply enough into the scandal. He said Republican presidential candidate Alexander Haig is beginning to ask the right questions, needing his opponent, Republican presidential candidate George Bush, about his role in the scandal.

But with his help, a little-known allegation about drug trafficking and Contra aid became big news, and the little-known Christic Institute became a powerful tool for Contra opponents and news reporters. The Christic Institute staff, then comprised of 12 people, now employs about 50 people at its headquarters in Washington, D.C. The Christic Institute, a non-profit center, receives much of its support from churches. Employees, even the lawyers, are paid the same salaries — slightly more than minimum wage, and the institute bases its philosophies on the Judeo-Christian tradition of social justice.

Iowa's Lorenzen injured

Hawks must face Wolverines without forward

By Eric J. Hess
 The Daily Iowan

Iowa forward Al Lorenzen, suffering from back spasms, will not travel with the No. 14 Hawkeyes to Ann Arbor, Mich., to play the 11th-ranked Wolverines, Iowa Coach Tom Davis said Tuesday. "He's suffering from some back spasms that have bothered him off and on during the course of this season and had trouble in practice yesterday, so he will not make the trip for sure," Davis said of the 6-foot-9 senior.

Junior Ed Horton will replace Lorenzen in the lineup. Kent Hill will get the nod at the center position. Sophomores Mark Jewell and Les Jepsen will see more playing time, Davis added. Davis said Lorenzen, Iowa's fourth-leading scorer with a 10.6 scoring average and 5.7 rebound average, will be working on a day-to-day basis. His status for Saturday's game at Carver-Hawkeye Arena against Michigan State has not been determined.

LOSING LORENZEN for at least one game, the Hawkeyes will now look to an even tougher task of defeating Michigan on its home court.

inside using all-American candidate center Rony Seikaly to down the Wolverines. But whether Iowa will be able to implement a similar attack on Michigan's defense is questionable.

"I DON'T KNOW that we've got Seikaly. So I don't know that it's relevant to our preparation," he said. "But yes, I think it did surprise me that they were able to do some of the things inside that they did against Michigan."

Michigan Coach Bill Frieder throws a quick and talented team on the floor with 6-3 senior Gary Grant and 6-2 sophomore Rumeal Robinson at the guards, 6-10 sophomore Terry Mills and 6-7 junior Glen Rice.

"They've got good balance and great athletic ability," Davis said. "Because if you look at Grant and Robinson in the backcourt you're looking at two terrific athletes."

Grant, expected to be one of the top picks in this year's NBA draft, said after the Syracuse loss his team will head into difficult games with Iowa Wednesday and Purdue Saturday.

"BASICALLY WE'RE STILL confident," said Grant, who is second in scoring behind Rice with 20.7 points per game in the Big Ten. "We still think we can win the Big Ten title. We just have to go out there and prove it."

Iowa guard B.J. Armstrong pushed away talk of a highlight matchup between himself and Grant.

"It's Michigan versus Iowa. It's not Gary versus B.J.," he said. "It's just another game."

Armstrong said he's seen Grant play three times and described him as an intense player.

"I talked to him a lot," he said. "He's a guy who comes out and plays hard. He never takes a break."

IOWA NOTES

Iowa's Roy Marble will continue to be a recruiter of sorts for Iowa football Coach Hayden Fry. The Hawkeyes' coach is recruiting Courtney Hawkins, Marble's cousin.

Hawkins, who Marble said is likely to be at tonight's game, was a standout running back and defensive back at Beecher High School in Flint, Mich.

"I've been talking to him (Hawkins) daily," Marble said. "I've talked to Hayden Fry a number of times and all the assistant coaches. They make me feel kind of impor-

See Iowa, Page 4B

Michigan's Gary Grant, center, had opponents like Iowa's Jeff Moe and Kevin Gamble backing off last season, scoring 50 points against the Hawkeyes in two meetings. This season Grant, a senior guard from Canton, Ohio, is his team's second-leading scorer.

Men's Basketball

But Davis remained optimistic during his press conference Monday, pointing to the conference standings.

"We're only one game back," he said. "Hopefully our best ball is ahead of us."

Michigan's loss to Syracuse was not a surprise to the Iowa coach.

"They were beaten by a good ballclub at a very good homecourt," he said.

League hopefuls look for upsets

By Randy Minkoff
 United Press International

CHICAGO — Big Ten co-leaders Purdue and Michigan will try to avoid homecourt upsets Wednesday night as a prelude to their nationally televised showdown Sunday in Ann Arbor, Mich.

The Boilermakers fell from the ranks of the unbeaten in the league when they were upset by Indiana 82-79 Saturday. That left Purdue tied with the Wolverines at 6-1.

Purdue, 17-2 overall and ranked sixth, will host Wisconsin while 11th-ranked Michigan, 17-3 overall, has a tougher test when it hosts 14th-ranked Iowa Wednesday night.

Thursday night, Illinois will be at Ohio State, Minnesota will travel to Indiana and Michigan State will visit Northwestern.

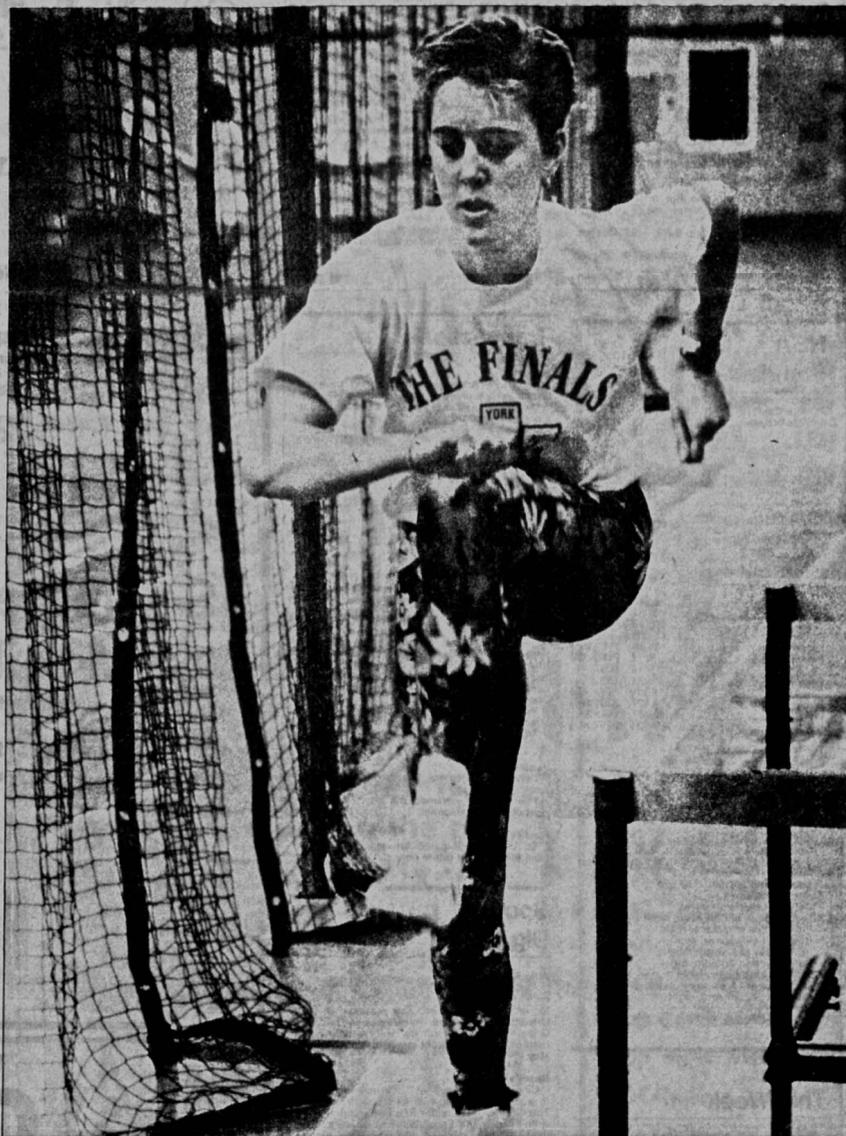

Purdue Coach Gene Keady said his club isn't looking past Wisconsin but needs to get off to a better start than it has in the past four games.

"WE'VE GOT TO come out and play in a frenzy," said Keady, whose team spotted Indiana a 21-point first-half lead. "Wisconsin has four guards that shoot very well from the outside. With the three-point shot, if they get hot, they can cause a lot of problems."

Wisconsin, 3-4, is coming off a one-sided homecourt win over Northwestern. But the Badgers will be decided underdogs on the road at Mackey Arena.

"They present a lot of problems. They are strong inside and they have some of the better perimeter players in the league," said Wisconsin Coach Steve Yoder. "Playing at Purdue is always difficult but it has been especially tough for

Penrith, Martin fight to draw at All-Star meet

By Scott Wingert
 The Daily Iowan

CEDAR FALLS, Iowa — Iowa's Brad Penrith and Penn State's Jim Martin didn't get much settled Tuesday at the National Wrestling Coaches Association All-Star meet at the UNI-Dome.

The two top-ranked wrestlers at 126 pounds battled to a 3-3 draw in the tournament.

Penrith owned a 3-2 lead after one period, scoring a single-leg takedown two minutes into the match.

He led 7-4 early into the third period after reversing Martin on a switch. But Martin scored on an escape and takedown of his own with one minute, 24 seconds remaining.

After five out-of-bounds situations, Penrith finally scored an escape that referee Mike Allen first ruled a reversal. Martin scored a point for riding time by a seven-second margin to gain the draw.

"I THOUGHT I outwrestled him," Penrith said. "I thought I had two at the end, but they reversed it."

"We scored all the technical points but lost the match on shape (lack of conditioning)," said Iowa wrestling Coach Dan Gable. "Penrith missed four days last week and that hurt him. Penrith is anxious for another rematch Saturday."

"I'm pointing for the dual, but I really wanted to win tonight," Penrith said. "Really, I'm just happy to be picked. I want to thank the coaches for the honor."

At 118 pounds, Northern Iowa's Mark Schwab suffered his first loss of the year to East Stroudsburg's Jack Cuvo, 10-5. Cuvo scored a takedown off a counter move with 1:10 remaining to secure the win.

John Smith, the 1987 world champion from Oklahoma State at 136.5 pounds, wrestled to a 9-4 victory over Michigan's John Fisher at 134 pounds.

SMITH, THE ONLY United States wrestler to win his weight class at the pre-Olympic Tournament in Seoul, South Korea, scored takedowns in each period to improve his record to 37-0.

"I know people are gunning for me," Smith said, "but you expect it because everyone is competitive. I know I should dominate, though."

At 142 pounds, Pat Santoro of Pittsburgh scored a 16-10 decision over Edinboro's Sean O'Day.

Penn State's Dan Mayo scored the only takedown of the 177-pound match with 10 seconds remaining to post a 4-2 win over Mike VanArsdale of Iowa State.

Two-time defending national champion Carlton Haselrig of Pittsburgh-Johnstown survived a close takedown call at the horn to escape with a 4-4 draw against Northern Iowa's Joel Greenlee.

Racial tensions still permeate Hoosier state

By J. Slater
 United Press International

In a state where basketball is king, black high school players in Indiana suffer the indignity of racial threats and antagonism and are unwelcome in some communities.

A burning cross near Heritage Hills High School in Lincoln City greeted Evansville Bosse players last week as they arrived for a game.

At Anderson High School, more than 150 parents want Coach Norm Held fired for allegedly calling a player a "nigger."

Black players are unwelcome in parts of Indiana, said Indianapolis Pike Coach Ed Siegel, a veteran of 24 seasons. He said most coaches know which communities are likely to spark racial incidents.

"There are certain towns in certain areas of the state that you know if you take black basketball players in there, you're going to have problems. I don't think it's any different than what has gone on for a long time," Siegel said.

"I'VE EVEN HAD people threaten my players they were going to get them on the way to the bus. The public doesn't know and some referees may not know, but coaches know. Word gets around fast in the coaching grapevine. Old pros get the word around about a place like that.

"We've come a long way, but we've got a long way to go," Siegel added.

Robert Collins, the principal at Heritage Hills, said his school's reputation has been unfairly tarnished because of the cross burning. He blames the incident on the racist beliefs of a few, saying interaction between blacks and whites and better upbringing are needed to solve a problem extending far beyond his school.

"We have a great social problem," said Collins, who coached Indiana high school basketball for 20 years. "Schools can have an impact on the problem in the future. They are part of society.

"BUT PREJUDICE AND discrimination comes from the home. It may be fostered in the school, but it's brought about in the home. Some people tell racial jokes. And there are a lot of good, common people that don't approve of these things. But most will never stand up and do anything.

"In this area, there are few minorities. They (area students) are not around minority children.

They were born after all the problems of the '60s. Kids don't know what you're talking about. You see desegregation and things on TV and you get a false sense that everything is OK.

"There are still a lot of racial problems out there. If people are dumb enough to holler 'three seconds' from the top row of the gym, they're also dumb enough to make racial slurs."

The overpowering devotion some communities have for their high school basketball teams often goes beyond the bounds of friendly rivalry.

"THERE ARE SOME communities where it is emphasized to the point where it is all that matters," Collins said. "If a coach is a shady character or curses at his kids, they may overlook it because he's a winner. That's wrong. How can we expect kids to grow up any different if adults are going to act like that?"

The Anderson incident has sparked two public meetings and another is scheduled Friday following claims by a former Indians player. Craig Perry, a 16-year-old black junior, said Held used a racial slur in a game last month.

Raveling suspends player for 3 games

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Sophomore guard Anthony Pendleton, USC's third-leading scorer this year, has been suspended three games for breaking a team rule, Trojans Coach George Raveling said Monday.

"Anthony broke a standard team rule," said Raveling, who coached Iowa from 1984-86. He refused to identify the rule, except to say it did not involve drug or alcohol use. Pendleton was recruited by Raveling to attend Iowa before the latter elected to leave Iowa for Southern California.

"We have discussed the matter and have agreed that the suspension is appropriate," Raveling said. "I'm very concerned that this is not interpreted as something it isn't — like something drug-related."

Pendleton, averaging 8.9 points per game this year, was to miss Monday night's game against Washington and road games at Oregon State Feb. 4 and Oregon Feb. 6.

Illinois assistant goes to Purdue

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. (UPI) — Bill Kollar, a former assistant coach at Illinois, has been hired to coach defensive end for the Purdue Boilermakers, Purdue Coach Fred Akers announced Tuesday.

Kollar, 35, spent three years at Illinois, one as a volunteer coach and the last two as defensive line and special teams coach.

A native of Warren, Ohio, he was the highest NFL draft choice ever from the Big Sky Conference when he was graduated from Montana State. He played defensive tackle three seasons for the Cincinnati Bengals and later played six seasons with the Tampa Bay Buccaneers as a noseguard and defensive end.

3 issues separate Packers, Infante

GREEN BAY, Wis. (UPI) — Three minor issues remain to be settled with Cleveland Assistant Coach Lindsey Infante before Green Bay makes a formal head-coaching offer, a Packers official said Tuesday.

"There isn't any big barrier in there," said Tom Braatz, vice president of football operations. "There isn't anything major."

Braatz said the Packers only need to reach agreement with Infante on those issues before the Browns offensive coordinator formally is asked to succeed Forrest Gregg, who quit the team last month to become coach at Southern Methodist.

The issues included the assistant coaching staff, length of contract and total money package, Braatz said.

Johnson wins race, misses own record

MADRID, Spain (UPI) — Champion sprinter Ben Johnson won the 60-meter dash in 6.49 seconds at the Community of Madrid track meet Tuesday, falling short of a record by eight-hundredths of a second.

Johnson's attempt to beat his indoor record of 6.41 seconds for the event came five days after his record-breaking 5.15-second 50-yard dash in Toronto.

The Jamaica-born Canadian earned $26,000 for his run at the Madrid Sports Palace.

Johnson set the 100-meter record of 9.83 seconds at the World Championships in Rome in September, running against Carl Lewis of the United States.

He ran the record-breaking 6.41-second 60-meter dash in Indianapolis in March.

Syracuse squelches Providence by 21

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (UPI) — Derrick Coleman scored 20 points and grabbed 19 rebounds and Earl Duncan added 19 points to power No. 12 Syracuse to a 92-71 Big East victory over Providence.

Syracuse used a 12-2 run early in the second half to take a 54-38 lead, and the Friars never challenged in the final 15 minutes.

Syracuse improved to 16-5 overall and 5-3 in the conference, while Providence fell to 9-10 and 3-5.

The series remains the only Big East matchup in which one team has captured every game. Syracuse has won all 17 games the teams have played in the conference, and is 18-1 overall against Providence.

Terrapins edge Irish by 3

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (UPI) — Brian Williams scored 14 of his 18 points in the second half Tuesday night to lead Maryland to a 78-75 victory over Notre Dame.

Tony Massenber came off the bench to add 16 points, including 12 in the first half, for the 11-6 Terrapins. Maryland led by as many as 13 with 14:00 left.

David Rivers scored 27 points and Gary Voce added 13 for Notre Dame, 12-6.

Lemieux nets 50th goal in 64th game

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Mario Lemieux — the NHL's leading scorer — scored his 50th goal of the season with 49 seconds remaining in overtime Tuesday night, giving the Pittsburgh Penguins a 3-2 victory over the Washington Capitals.

Spartans upset Ohio State, 76-64

EAST LANSING, Mich. (UPI) — Ken Redfield came off the bench to score 20 points Monday night and lift Michigan State to a 76-64 Big Ten victory over Ohio State.

Redfield scored 14 points to help the Spartans improve to 7-10 and 2-5 in the conference. Michigan State also received 18 points from Steve Smith and 15 from Ed Wright.

Ohio State, 10-7, 3-4, was led by Jerry Francis who scored 19 points. Jay Burson was held to 14.

Washington to honor Super Bowl champs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Along the same route used for presidential inaugurations, some 500,000 fans are expected to brave rain and wind today to honor the Super Bowl champion Washington Redskins.

Spectators will line the parade route, which begins at 3rd Street and Pennsylvania Avenue Northwest at 10 a.m. and ends some 12 blocks to the northwest — within a touchdown pass of the White House.

The weather outlook for the parade "is not too good," said National Weather Service forecaster Thomas Hawley.

"We will have rain mixed with sleet and a high in the mid-40s and winds 10 to 15 miles per hour," said Hawley, adding the wind-chill factor will hover somewhere in the mid to upper 20s. "We don't anticipate any changes at this point."

Hawley doubted the rain would dampen the spirit of fans who have staged frenzied celebrations since the Redskins' 42-10 victory Sunday over the Denver Broncos.

U.S. Ski Team postpones selection

PARK CITY, Utah (UPI) — Officials of the U.S. Ski Team Tuesday postponed until today their selection of the 18-member squad that will represent the country at the Winter Olympics.

The announcement of the team will be made at a 9 a.m. news conference at Crested Butte, Colo.

Harald Schoenhaar, U.S. Alpine Program Director, said he planned to take a nine-man, nine-woman contingent to the Calgary Olympics for all Alpine disciplines. Schoenhaar conferred Tuesday with the three-man Alpine steering committee, headed by Thomas Weisel, president of the U.S. Ski Educational Foundation, to discuss his selections.

Bill Johnson, gold medalist in the downhill at the 1984 Olympics in Sarajevo, Yugoslavia, may not make the team, according to Schoenhaar. Johnson, attempting a comeback from back and knee operations last year, has been slow to regain his Olympic form. His best finish in World Cup competition this season was 33rd place last week in Leukerbad, Switzerland.

Ditka named to Hall of Fame

United Press International

LAKE FOREST, Ill. — Chicago Bears Coach Mike Ditka Tuesday became the 21st member of the Bears named to the Pro Football Hall of Fame.

Evoking the names of George Halas, Bill George, Dick Butkus and Gale Sayers, Ditka said the honor was a humbling one.

"I'm honored and humbled by the experience," Ditka said Tuesday from the Bears' office in Lake Forest. "I've been in the game 27 years and I've had ups and downs but I've loved it. It's almost too much. It's like the icing on the cake."

Ditka played tight end for the Bears from 1961 to 1966. He played for Philadelphia in 1967 and 1968, then joined the Dallas Cowboys from 1969 until he retired in 1972.

Ditka was named Rookie of the Year in 1961 when he caught 56 passes and was named to the Pro Bowl five times. He is the first pure tight end named to the Hall of Fame in Canton, Ohio.

"I'M SURE THE feeling won't dawn on me until I get to Canton," Ditka said. "(But) I don't know if any honor can be more important than the one I got on Jan. 26, 1986, by being part of a Super Bowl championship team."

Ditka said he never thought about being a possible Hall of Famer when he played.

"I never thought anything of it," he said.

Also named with Ditka were Fred Biletnikoff, Alan Page and Jack Ham.

Chicago Bears Coach Mike Ditka, shown during a 1986 Bears-Minnesota Vikings game, was named to the Hall of Fame Tuesday.

Mackovic may take Illini post

By Richard Brunelli
United Press International

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. — Illinois Athletic Director Neale Stoner reportedly intends to sign former Kansas City Chiefs Coach John Mackovic as the school's next football coach.

The Chicago Sun-Times, quoting unidentified sources in the athletic department, said Stoner wants Mackovic to fill the post vacated Jan. 18 by Mike White. The resignation of White came amid accusations of recruiting violations.

Stoner and Mackovic were not available Tuesday to comment.

Howard Tippett, the Illini defensive coordinator who also interviewed with Stoner for the job, remained optimistic despite the report.

"It's not over until it's over," he said by telephone from his home Tuesday morning.

HE ALSO NOTED that San Francisco 49ers assistant coach Dennis Green, also a former head coach at Northwestern, was meeting with Stoner Tuesday to discuss the job.

"If it were all locked up for Mackovic, I don't know why they would be bringing in another candidate today," Tippett said.

If Mackovic gets the job, Tippett said he will resign.

"I would never stay with Mackovic," he said. "Maybe someone else. But I've heard enough about him to know that I wouldn't work for him." Tippett would not elaborate.

The Sun-Times reported Stoner will recommend Mackovic at a special meeting Tuesday night with university officials. Stoner's suggestion must be approved by a screening committee, Interim Chancellor Morton Weir and the board of trustees.

White submitted his resignation after a university investigation found five recruiting violations at Illinois, the new wave coming while the school was in a two-year probationary period after being sanctioned by the NCAA in the early 1980s. In his eight years, White had a record of 47-41-3.

Mackovic, 44, received his first head coaching job in college at Wake Forest in 1978. He left after the 1980 season to become quarterback coach of the Dallas Cowboys. He spent four years with the Chiefs and was fired after the 1986 season.

Hurricanes' Irvin will go pro

By Bob Keim
United Press International

CORAL GABLES, Fla. — Michael Irvin, the most prolific receiver in University of Miami history, announced Tuesday he would bypass his final year of eligibility to pursue a career in the NFL.

Irvin, nicknamed "The Playmaker," caught 46 passes for 840 yards and nine touchdowns in 1987 as the Hurricanes went 11-0 in the regular season. He added four receptions and a touchdown as Miami won the national championship with a 20-14 victory over Oklahoma in the Orange Bowl Jan. 1.

"Everybody thinks it's money, and to tell you the truth, it's not even money," Irvin said in explaining his decision. "When I came to the University of Miami I sat down and I set some goals for myself, and when it came time for me to make the decision, I said well, did I accomplish all the goals I set when I came here? I have made my goals.

"WITH THE COMPETITIVE instinct in me I think I want to take it to a higher level. I want to play the best of the best."

The 6-foot-2, 202-pound Irvin was Miami's big play receiver since he became a starter in his freshman season of 1985. He sat out 1984 as a redshirt and needs 15 hours to receive a business management degree. He said he will either graduate this spring or after a summer session.

In three seasons, Irvin has caught 143 passes for 2,423 yards and 26 touchdowns, all school records. In addition, he caught a pass in 33 straight games, another school mark. He has not yet decided whether he will petition to enter the regular draft or a supplemental draft.

HIS BIGGEST CATCHES of the year were touchdown receptions of 26 and 73 yards to help Miami rally from a 16-point deficit and beat Florida State and a scoring pass in the Orange Bowl.

Irvin's lack of blazing speed (he was timed in only 4.52 seconds in the 40-yard dash) may prevent him from being selected very high in the NFL draft, but the fast-talking Fort Lauderdale native said he would be glad to supply pro scouts with films of his long touchdown runs if they thought his speed was insufficient.

"I'm not worried about the competition around me," he said. "I'm not worried about how great the draft is supposed to be for wide receivers. I have great confidence in my ability."

He said he did not plan to attend the scouting combine in Indianapolis this week.

'Summer School' is here late and doesn't deserve to stay

By Locke Peterseim
The Daily Iowan

It's been fun in recent weeks to take pot shots at the Iowa City movie theaters for their insulting selections, but this week they outdid themselves. Just come to town is Summer School, the Carl Reiner film starring Mark Harmon.

Sound familiar? It should. Not only was Summer School released nationally last August, but it's been out on videocassette since early December. This is no place to get into a brouhaha about the various merits of VCR or theater viewing, but it's hard to believe many people are going to pay four dollars to see Summer School in a theater when they can see it at home for a buck. The cinematography isn't that good.

Nor is the film one of those "classics-to-be" that deserves to be seen on a big screen. Summer School is all about a friendly, loveable teacher who has to handle a remedial English class full of unmotivated "deviants." Gee, deja-vu! The only thing is that the teacher's name is Shoop (Harmon) not Kotter, and the school is in Southern California, not Brooklyn.

Actually Summer School isn't a total loss. Harmon is effortlessly likeable and does get to toss off some fairly humorous lines here and there, as well as wear a stunningly broad selection of Hawaiian clothing.

ALSO ENTERTAINING are Dean Cameron and Gary Riley as two demented guys who were Rhonda (Shawnee Smith), Chainsaw (Dean Cameron) and Shoop (Mark Harmon) puzzle over things in Carl Reiner's Summer School.

weaned on The Texas Chainsaw Massacre — after all, how can any movie that includes scenes from

"Saw be all bad? However, most of the scenes are stolen by Wondermutt (Bo), Shoop's dog. Filmmakers are quickly learning, ala Ishtar, how to use talented animals to patch up a lame script.

Ultimately, Summer School's hit-and-miss comedy misses more than it hits, creating stretches of boredom. That might be excusable on videocassette, but not in a theater where your time and money are a little more valuable. Summer School isn't offensively bad, but its presence in Iowa City this week is — filling precious theater space.

Chapman: Lennon murder inspired by Salinger novel

By Ed Lion
United Press International

LONDON — Mark David Chapman says his murder of ex-Beatle John Lennon was inspired by the novel Catcher in the Rye, and the violent death of the rock superstar drove "the last nail in the coffin of the '60s," a television documentary reported Tuesday.

The documentary, a joint British-American production, features actual tapes in which Chapman, 33, recounts to police and psychiatrists why he killed Lennon as he left his luxury Manhattan apartment on Dec. 8, 1980.

The documentary, "The Man Who Shot John Lennon," will be shown Feb. 9 in the United States on PBS stations.

The documentary offers a chilling view into the confused world of the one-time drug-user and rock fan, who also was once a YMCA camp leader.

It also details his fascination with the novel, The Catcher in the Rye, J.D. Salinger's best-selling book about an adolescent who rejected the hypocrisy of the adult world in favor of the innocence of childhood.

CHAPMAN, who pleaded guilty to murder and is serving 20 years to life in New York state's high security Attica prison, said he drew inspiration from the Salinger novel, which Chapman described as a "crusade against phoniness."

"What a fake he was, what a

"What a fake he was, what a phony," he said of the former Beatle. "I knew I was going to kill him."
— David Chapman as quoted in a PBS documentary about the murder of John Lennon phony," he said of the former Beatle. "I knew I was going to kill him."

But another time he recounted: "I don't know why I chose him. I was just fed up with the world. The self-destruction was kind of like a blessing."

Chapman seemed to express pride in the killing that shocked the world.

"Something really extraordinary happened," he said. "The Beatles were the cultural movement of the '60s and early '70s. They changed the world as we know it. And I changed them... It's the last nail in the coffin of the '60s... I am indeed The Catcher in the Rye of this generation."

At other times, Chapman expressed horror at what he had done, saying he sacrificed his life in Hawaii to set off on his murderous quest.

"I DON'T KNOW what happened," he said. "I was just depressed, quit my job, got a gun, came over here (to New York) and killed someone. That I guess is what happened. From heaven to hell in a month."

He said even as he set off to kill Lennon, "I just kept saying to myself — 'go back to the hotel and go home now, don't do it. Get the doorman to order you a cab. Do it right now.' But I stayed."

In a calm voice he described shooting Lennon five times with a handgun outside the rock star's Dakota apartment building near Central Park as the ex-Beatle's wife Yoko Ono screamed.

"There was no anger, just dead silence in my brain," he said. "He looked at me. I tell you the man was going to be dead in less than five minutes and he looked at me."

"My head started saying, 'do it, do it, do it,' over and over again. I don't remember taking aim, although I must have. I just pulled the trigger steadily five times. I thought he would just fall down dead. The guy had five bullets in him. Big hunks came out of him, they had to... It was like I was in a movie."

Chapman repeatedly stressed The Catcher in the Rye held the answer to the killing.

"Lennon, me, the book is so much bigger than guilty or not guilty," he said.

JACKSON AT GRAMMYS: Michael Jackson is the first act lined up to perform at the Grammy ceremony March 2. He will sing "Man in the Mirror" in what will be his first live TV performance since a 1983 special about Motown. Jackson is a Grammy contender in four categories this year, which will give him a chance to add to his collection of 11 Grammys.

SEED OF JUSTICE: Michelle Phillips got a break from a Texas judge, who ruled a bag of marijuana found in her car cannot be used as evidence. Phillips, a co-star of "Knots Landing" and a former member of the Mamas and Papas, was stopped for speeding outside Amarillo last December and officers spotted a seed on the floorboard of her car. That led to a search that turned up the bag of pot, but a county judge ruled the search was illegal.

SIR CASPAR: Some British politicians are biting their stiff upper lips after the announcement that Queen Elizabeth is going to make former defense secretary Caspar Weinberger an honorary knight. "I don't believe it. Knighting him? Are you kidding me?" said George Foulkes, an opposition member of Parliament. "You are kidding me, aren't you? This just seems the most unbelievable, outrageous news."

'Vietnam' tops movie profits

By Vernon Scott
United Press International

HOLLYWOOD — The national movie box-office sagged an average 20 percent last week but still topped last year's pace as 14 films grossed more than $1 million.

Part of the box-office swoon was attributed to Super Bowl Sunday, which traditionally puts a dent in theater attendance, according to exhibitors.

The national box office was further hampered by the lack of any major new films released during the week. Among the top 20 films, all were holdovers.

Good Morning, Vietnam, with Robin Williams playing an American GI disc jockey during the war, continued to lead the pack with a gross of $8.2 million.

The comedy added 19 screens for a total of 1,213 but still tumbled 24 percent at the turnstiles. In six weeks Good Morning, Vietnam has earned $40.2 million.

The surprising Three Men and a Baby continued its winning ways as the No. 2 film of the week with a $5.1 million gross in 1,813 theaters, dropping only 15 percent.

THE TOM SELLECK-Ted Danson-Steve Guttenberg comedy about three bachelors gingerly baby sitting a founding has amassed $120.3 million in 10 weeks.

No. 3 was Moonstruck, the Cher comedy involving an infidelity crisis in a volatile Brooklyn Italian-American family. In its seventh week, Moonstruck garnered $4 million playing in only 635 theaters. It also dropped only 15 percent. It has grossed $19 million.

Molly Ringwald's continued popularity with young people held her new high-school drama, For Keeps, in fourth place for the second straight week. The story of teen pregnancy and marriage attracted $2.2 million in 958 theaters.

For Keeps dropped 20 percent and has tallied a total of $11.8 million.

Broadcast News, a hot prospect for Academy Award nominations, was No. 5 for the second week running and grossed $2.1 million on 813 screens. It dropped 17 percent. In seven weeks the comedy-drama of network newsroom intrigue has grossed $34 million.

Throw Momma From the Train grossed $1.5 million to place No. 6 and up its total eight-week gross to $51.8 million.

The aggregate gross for all theaters in North America was a healthy $75.9 million, compared with $53 million for the comparable week last year and in 1986. So far this year, all theaters have grossed $255.9 million, compared with only $189.3 million in 1987 and $207 million in 1986.

THE TOP 10, composed of last week's gross, total gross and weeks in release are as follows:

1. Good Morning, Vietnam, $8.2 million, $40.2 million, 6 weeks.
2. Three Men and a Baby, $5.1 million, $120.3 million, 10 weeks.
3. Moonstruck, $4 million, $19 million, 7 weeks.
4. For Keeps, $2.2 million, $11.8 million, 3 weeks.
5. Broadcast News, $2.1 million, $34 million, 7 weeks.
6. Throw Momma From the Train, $1.5 million, $51.8 million, 8 weeks.
7. Fatal Attraction, $1.4 million, $140 million, 20 weeks.
8. The Couch Trip, $1.4 million, $8.6 million, 3 weeks.
9. Braddock: Missing in Action, $1.3 million, $4.2 million, 2 weeks.
10. Wall Street, $1.2 million, $33.8 million, 8 weeks.

'Poltergeist' star, age 12, dies of flu

United Press International

LOS ANGELES — Heather O'Rourke, 12-year-old star of the Poltergeist movie series, died of an undisclosed illness, her personal manager announced Tuesday.

Mike Meyer, who had handled Heather's career for three years, said the blond youngster, who finished filming Poltergeist III last June, became ill with what the family thought was the flu.

She died Monday, Meyer said, noting, "It came as a shock that she died."

Movie fans first knew Heather as the cute girl with the long platinum hair who was taken hostage and sucked into a television in the original Poltergeist. Her line "They're heeere" became a catch phrase.
