Nearly three months after Iowa voters made his possible path a reality by nominating him as the Democratic presidential candidate, Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., announced Friday that he has been leading Iowa in the polls and thus will enter the state Monday's caucuses with a real chance of winning the nomination.

As McGovern heads home for the campaign's organizational strategy, he said he's more than ready to make the case for his candidacy.

"We're going to have a real race," McGovern told reporters before leaving Iowa. "I'm going to be out trying to rally the people of Iowa, to put an end to thealk of the campaign and to get tough on the issues and try to move this country forward."

The senator's trip to Iowa comes after he won the Michigan primary on March 7. In the race, McGovern would be McGovern's first primary win since Iowa's caucuses on Jan. 18.

Rep. Robert Shogun

Price

Iowa Democratic Party officials confirmed that McGovern had won the Michigan primary. Iowa's caucuses came before Michigan's primary, and both candidates were expected to win their respective primaries.

"We're very excited about our chances in Iowa," McGovern said. "We're going to be working very hard to make sure that we win on Monday."

McGovern's campaign has been focusing on the state's key role as the first contest in the presidential nomination process. Iowa's first-in-the-nation caucuses have traditionally been important for both the Democratic and Republican candidates.

"I'm going to be working very hard to make sure that we win on Monday," McGovern said. "We're going to be working very hard to make sure that we win on Monday."

Kruckenberg, Roberts power relay, Hawks in home meet

By Eric J. Hess
The Daily Iowan

Josie Kruckenberg and Rachelle Roberts are two individuals who both held a relay record on the Iowa women's track team this weekend.

They were two of three women on the Iowa team who made the Iowa Relay will be run at the NCAA meet in mid-April.

In the women's 4x200-meter relay, Iowa cruised to victory in the meet in Cedar Falls, Iowa.

The only hitch in the Iowa victory was the hurdles, noting that McGhee's relay, in which Iowa is at 95 percent

Jackson returns to Iowa City

Candidate tells high schoolers to try to 'make America better'

By James Caley

Democratic presidential candidate Rev. Jesse Jackson told Iowa City high school students they have to try to 'make America better' during a campus stop Friday.

Jackson, who spoke to students at both Iowa City West High School, 1965 S. Gilbert St., and Iowa City High School, 1900 S. Gilbert St., hoped to gauge support for his 1988 campaign during his visit.

During the events endorsed by the U.S. House of Representatives to end the Contras, Jackson warned students that the Reagan administration might try to fund the Contras through illegal means.

"I think President Reagan will try to damage the Sandinistas and the people and the money and the CIA," Jackson said. "No president should try to overthrow the Congress of Nicaragua. We deserve better leadership in America than that."

JACKSON SAID the United States should be at war with the U.S. in Central America and elsewhere. "We don't need war right now; we need an end to war in Central America," he said. "We need to change direction and get ready to export drugs. We need to support Congress to change direction."

After the speech, Jackson and his entourage boarded a bus and drove to the Midwest City Store, 120 Washington St., where he stopped to talk to faculty at Iowa City High School.

"I'm not an Iowa state senator, but I'm here to teach you," Jackson said.

And Michael Dukakis "Mania" of the University of Iowa in Iowa City.

"We said all along we'd be pretty serious," Dukakis said. "I'm not going to let Dukakis on the campaign trail."

ROBERTSON FORSEEES 'success in caucuses'

By James Caley

Republican presidential candidate Pat Robertson told Iowa students Saturday if he wins the Iowa caucuses, "I promise you, I will be the next president of the United States."

Robertson, who was in Des Moines earlier Friday, spoke to the student body at the Iowa State University in Colonia.

"I'm going to build America what it was to be, and bring the country together," Robertson said. "The unity and the peace will be in the air in America.

Unfair to Dukakis

To the Editor:

As a long-time supporter of pro-choice candidate Michael Dukakis and reader of The Daily Iowan, I was a little dismayed that the editorial page of the student newspaper would seem to lambast such a candidate. The Daily Iowan is a public forum, and those who have been elected to editorial boards are expected to represent the views of the paper.

I urge the Daily Iowan to correct its mistake by publishing this letter. The Daily Iowan, as a public forum, should publish both sides of the argument.

Sincerely,

Dukakis does care

To the Editor:

Stanley Dukakis's letter Ness of Dukakis (The Daily Iowan, Feb. 9) states that the Democratic primary candidate is not as strong on issues as the Republican side. However, the Democratic side has more important issues than economic stimulus. Nevertheless, the bets are on the Republican side. The primary issue is the cost to the Democratic side. The election will be close, but the Republican side has a better chance of winning.

Iranian boats attack U.S.-owned ship

BASRAH, Iraq - Iraqi patrol boats attacked and sank an American-owned tanker Monday night in the Persian Gulf, the U.S. Navy said, in what was described as the first such assault in the region since the 1973 Arab-Israeli war.

In Washington, Friday's attack on the M/T Sunflower was set aside in an already tense week, which also included another U.S. plane shooting down two Iranian F-4 jets in the Gulf. The latest incident came as America's new president, Ronald Reagan, was preparing to receive the leaders of the United Nations Security Council.

The United Nations Security Council had earlier this week condemned an attack by Iran on the M/T Florida, another American tanker.

The attack on the Sunflower occurred outside Basra, Iraq, in the area just off the shore of Iran, the U.S. Navy said.

The attack caused $900,000 in damage and started a fire in the engine room, the U.S. Navy said in a statement.

The tanker was carrying a cargo of crude oil from Iran to the United States.

The incident came as the United States and Iran were engaged in negotiations over the nuclear program of the Islamic Republic of Iran.

The attack was described as a warning to the United States and other Western nations, which have been increasing their presence in the Persian Gulf in recent months.

The U.S. Navy said it was still investigating the incident and had not yet determined whether the attack was actually carried out by Iran.

In a statement, the U.S. Navy said: "The U.S. Navy will continue to take all necessary actions to protect American shipping in the region."

UI law dean issues apology for judge’s racists remarks

By Sara Anderson
The Daily Iowan
Several prominent UI professors are calling for a reappointment of the UI law dean. They are calling for the resignation of UI law dean Guy Heaney for his comments at a banquet last week which were interpreted “racially insensitive.”

Terry Gurnett, who is a law professor at the UI, said he was “shocked” at the comments. He said he had heard the comments at a banquet and that it was “very disappointing” that UI law dean Guy Heaney had made such comments.

“I was very surprised to hear that someone in a leadership position would make such comments,” Gurnett said. “I thought this was out of character for UI law dean Guy Heaney.”

Heaney gave a speech at the banquet which was interpreted as being “racially insensitive.” He said that he was “very disappointed” in the comments and that he would “not make such comments in the future.”

“I was very disappointed in the comments that were made at the banquet,” Heaney said. “I promise not to make such comments in the future.”

Swimming teams suffer weekend defeats

Hawkeye men dominated by Wolverines

By Eric A. Mann
The Daily Iowan

The Iowa men's swimming team had its match against the University of Michigan. The Wolverines won the meet with a score of 163.5 to 136.5.

"WE JUST seem to go up there intimidated," Patton said. "We're just not able to perform on the block." Patton said the line will likely lose several swimmers due to the Big Ten meet, which is scheduled for February 17-18.

"It's got to be a negative effect," Patton said. "I think we've been working on this meet all season and aren't able to win the Big Ten meet and will not be expected.

This year I think I have a good shot at winning the MVP award in the Big Ten, but we need to get a good start.

"Iowa is now in the three-way meet next week before returning to competition in the Big Ten meet, which will be held at the University of Nebraska in February 20.

Patton said the Hawkeyes will go into their final rounds of training in the next two weeks and then begin tapering for the meet.

Eckert has missionary zeal of artistic purpose

By Kevin Geshick

R

Eckert's performance in "Beautiful" is a revelation. He brings a sense of passion and commitment to his role, making it clear that he is dedicated to his craft. His voice, rich and powerful, is perfectly suited to the demands of the role, and he delivers each line with a sense of conviction and intensity. His portrayal of the lead singer who also happens to be the lead singer of the rock band is a tour de force, showcasing his range and versatility as an actor.

Eckert's characters are often complex and multi-dimensional, and his performance in "Beautiful" is no exception. He brings a sense of depth and realism to his role, allowing the audience to connect with his character on a personal level. His ability to evoke emotion and elicit empathy from the audience is a testament to his talent as an actor.

In conclusion, Eckert's performance in "Beautiful" is a triumph of his art. He brings a level of dedication and commitment to his role that is rare in the world of theater. His performance is a testament to the power of the stage and the importance of the arts. It is a performance that will be remembered for years to come, and it is a performance that will inspire future generations of actors to strive for excellence in their craft.

The Daily Iowan

About 50 years ago, something happened to the art of painting. Photography had cropped up right about then, and for a number of years, painting had to become more introspective, rather than just reflective of reality. In the same way, film and television have cropped up in the last 50 years, and for a number of years, theatrical voice has been considered less art form, more windowed "if theater" could be used.

"Beautiful" is created that no theatrical voice vital again.
