UI Hospitals to open AIDS outpatient clinic

By Karyn Riley
The Daily Iowan
and United Press International

UI Hospitals and Clinics officials announced this weekend the spring opening of an AIDS outpatient clinic to be run by medical and social services staff members — the first of its kind in the state.

Jack Stapleton, a UI virologist who will direct the clinic, said it will combine UI College of Medicine specialists in infectious diseases, family practice and epidemiology, along with social services counselors.

Initially, the clinic will treat from five to 10 patients each week and will focus on diagnostic and therapeutic aspects as well as clinical research, according to UI Hospitals Director John Colloton.

"I think it's a step in the right direction," Colloton said. "We have an awful lot of clinical talent that will be mobilized to cope with the AIDS problem, and the clinic is a very strategic way to do it."

THE CLINIC WILL provide specific AIDS services that have not previously existed at UI Hospitals, according to UI Family Practice Clinic Physician Ralph Knudson, who will treat AIDS patients at the clinic.

"It's apparent that AIDS is something that's not going away, so we need to be able to give people the most comprehensive kind of care," Knudson said. "The clinic enables us to bring a number of disciplines

2 die in weeklong protest against Shultz' Gaza trip

By Glenn Frankel
Washington Post

RAMALLAH, Israel — Two more Palestinians were shot dead in clashes with Israeli soldiers Sunday, and at least seven others were wounded as the Arabs of the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip began a week of protests against the planned visit Thursday of Secretary of State George Shultz.

One man was killed by gunfire in a refugee camp just outside this Arab town 10 miles north of Jerusalem, and a second was shot dead by Israeli soldiers in the West Bank city of Nablus during an alleged attack on an army patrol there.

A third man, whose corpse was brought to a hospital in Nablus, apparently died of a heart attack that Palestinians claimed resulted from tear-gas inhalation, but which an Israeli Army spokesman said was unrelated to the violence.

The army also reported that three people were wounded by gunfire in Kabatiya, one in Nablus and three in Khan Yunis in the Gaza Strip.

THE TWO CONFIRMED deaths brought to at least 59 the number of people killed since the Palestinian uprising began in Gaza nearly 10 weeks ago. Hundreds have been wounded by Israeli gunfire, and several thousand have been injured in beatings by soldiers, according to U.N. officials, hospital sources and doctors. No Israelis have been killed.

U.N. officials also charged Sunday that Jerusalem police and paramilitary border police conducted two large-scale raids on residents of the Shuafat refugee camp in predominantly Arab East Jerusalem over the weekend, smashing windows, furniture, rooftop solar heaters and water tanks in 52 houses. At least four persons were hospitalized with injuries and 20 to 30 others were beaten, a doctor at the camp said.

The first victim Sunday was a 24-year-old man shot in the chest during a demonstration in the Deir Ammar refugee camp outside Ramallah. He was brought to Ramallah Hospital and died on the operating table. An army spokesman confirmed the death.

Shultz, Shevardnadze meet

Leaders talk of Star Wars, human rights

By Robert C. Toth
and William J. Eaton
Los Angeles Times

MOSCOW — In a notably upbeat assessment, a State Department spokesman said Sunday that the first of two days of talks between Secretary of State George Shultz and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze were conducted in an "excellent atmosphere" with "good progress across the full range of issues."

Among the issues discussed were strategic-arms reduction efforts, attempts to end regional conflicts such as those in Afghanistan and the Persian Gulf and human rights issues such as Soviet emigration practices, State Department spokesman Charles Redman said.

Soviet spokesman Gennady Gerasimov, sitting beside Redman as reporters were briefed, did not disagree with Redman's broad assessment, although he and the official Tass news agency were somewhat less positive, rating the talks as businesslike, substantive and held in "good spirit."

MOREOVER, Gerasimov cautioned that today's meeting between Shultz and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev "will be of utmost importance" in determining the outcome of the talks and prospects for the next U.S.-Soviet summit meeting, which is expected to be held here in late May or early June.

Between sessions with Shevardnadze, Shultz met with the best-known Soviet dissident, Nobel laureate Andrei Sakharov. Over tea and peanuts in Sakharov's tiny apartment, the latter encouraged Shultz to push for human rights and a new strategic arms treaty. But he also urged "maximum restraint in developing SDI," according to a U.S. official who was present.

The Soviet Union and many Democrats in the Congress oppose President Ronald Reagan's intensive research effort on the project.

SAKHAROV, WHOM Gorbachev freed from a long period of internal exile in the industrial center of Gorky, applauded the superpowers' new medium-range missile treaty as a "qualitatively new element in Soviet-American relations and a quantitatively new element in world politics because it eliminates two entire classes of nuclear missiles" in the range between 300 and 3,400 miles, the U.S. official added.

The Soviet physicist, who was instrumental in development of the Soviet hydrogen bomb, suggested that the United States accept a Soviet proposal for a human rights conference in Moscow if the Soviets withdraw from Afghanistan and release all political prisoners in Soviet jails.

Shultz and Shevardnadze interrupted their talks Sunday to sign a new U.S.-Soviet fishing agreement, which gives U.S. fishermen access to the Soviet 200-mile economic Andre Mallie, the Union State Room chef, presents just two of his desserts, representing the fine cuisine available in the State Room.

State Room elegance offers nice alternative

By Lisa Legge
The Daily Iowan

Now the hungry on campus have an alternative to sub sandwiches and vendoland.

Since the State Room moved to its new location on the second floor of the Union just above the east entrance, its atmosphere has changed from a cafeteria-style sandwich shop to a continental restaurant.

And when students finish dining on chicken dijonnaise, seafood pasta or fillet of sole Veronique, they can slip their university ID on the plate and the server will charge it.

And if the State Room's plush mauve-and-gray interior, artistically arranged continental cuisine and extensive wine list aren't elegant enough, dinners are prepared by a French-trained chef. Chef Andre Mallie, a native Frenchman who once owned the French restaurant L'Auberge in Coralville, studied at the Ecole Hoteliere in Bordeaux.

Swaggart's halo shattered; charges link him to hooker

By Royal Brightbill
United Press International

BATON ROUGE, La. — Television evangelist Jimmy Swaggart, who helped topple PTL preacher Jim Bakker from power by exposing his sexual encounter with Jessica Hahn, asked forgiveness Sunday for his own sin of moral failure and stepped down from the pulpit for "an indeterminate period."

Swaggart's action followed reports the Assemblies of God denomination, based in Springfield, Mo., was studying charges by rival Louisiana preacher Marvin Gorman that Swaggart was seen with a prostitute.

In an emotion-charged 20-minute confession to some 7,000 followers at his Family Worship Center on the sprawling campus of Jimmy Swaggart World Ministries, Swaggart individually begged forgiveness from his wife, Frances, his family, the church, followers throughout the world "and most of all, my Lord and my Savior, my Redeemer."

HIS APPEALS for forgiveness evoked uncontrolled sobbing and several standing ovations from the packed congregation. Comparing his time of trial to that of the biblical David of 3,000 years ago, Swaggart read from Psalm 51:

"Have mercy on me, O God, according to thy loving kindness; according unto the multitude of thy tender mercies blot out my transgressions."

"Wash me thoroughly from mine iniquity and cleanse me from my sin."

"For I acknowledge my transgressions; and my sin is ever before me."

Bill Askins, a worshiper standing at the back of the center, a Bible under his arm, called the moment a victory for Swaggart over Satan.

from DI staff reports

Workshops to be held

Registration is being accepted for two test-taking workshops to be held at the UI this spring, sponsored by the UI Center for Conferences and Institutes. A five-session Graduate Record Examination math review will be held to assist students in preparing for the exam.

UI Mathematics Teaching Assistant Jean Geraghty will conduct the class, to be held March 28 and 30 and April 1, 4 and 6 from 7 to 9 p.m. in Gilmore Hall Room 106.

The fee for the class is $35, including materials.

In addition, on March 19, a workshop will be held for high-school students planning to take ACT or SAT tests.

UI Department of Quantitative and Psychological Foundations Professor and Assistant Director of the Iowa High-School Testing Program Timothy Ansel will discuss test-taking anxiety, test-item construction, coaching, preparation for the tests and interpretation of scores.

The fee for the workshop is $15.

For more information on either workshop, contact the Center for Conferences and Institutes at 335-3231.

'Storybook Corner' begins

Registration is being accepted for the second session of "Storybook Corner," scheduled for Friday mornings, April 1-29, from 10:15 to 11 at the Robert A. Lee Community Recreation Center, 220 S. Gilbert St.

Stories featuring themes such as animals, friendships and other cultures will be told for children 3 to 5 years old. Group participation will be welcomed each week if children and parents wish to show and tell about their favorite books.

The program is free but pre-registration is required at the Iowa City Recreation Division Office, 356-5100.

Iowa Rag extends deadline

The Iowa Rag, a UI undergraduate magazine, announces the extension of its deadline to Feb. 29 for submission of written and visual work for publication consideration in its 1988 issue.

Those interested in submitting visual work should leave their name, address and telephone number at the magazine's office at the Union Student Activities Center. A staff member will contact them about the submission, and all visual work will be returned.

Written work must be typed, unsigned and have an attached cover sheet stating the name, address and telephone number of the writer. Submissions can be made at English-Philosophy Building Room 308 and at the Student Activities Center. Written work will not be returned.

The magazine will be published in April.

Scholarship deadline set

The UI is accepting applications from undergraduates for $1,000 Presidential Scholarships for Study Abroad.

The awards, created in 1983 through the UI Foundation, help defray the additional expense of studying abroad. They are intended for 10 to 20 students who are studying abroad during their sophomore, junior or senior year and who are enrolled in formal academic programs sponsored either by the UI or by other U.S. exchange organizations or universities.

Students may present a proposal for an independent study project that has received prior approval of their academic adviser, or they may enroll directly in a foreign university.

Applicants must be U.S. citizens, must have earned at least 12 semester hours by the application deadline and are required to return to the UI for at least one semester to finish their undergraduate degrees.

The March 1 deadline is for applications, including a statement of the proposed study, a personal profile, a budget, grade reports from universities attended and two letters of recommendation.

Application forms are available at the UI Study Abroad Advising Center, International Center Room 28.

UI Senate party stresses changes, communication

By Cathy Jackson
The Daily Iowan

UI student government suffers from student apathy due to the current government's lack of communication with and consideration for all UI students, the president of the new UI Student Senate party said in a press conference Thursday.

The current senate officially recognized the party, Students for an Active Senate, two weeks ago when SAS members announced their plans to run for the 29 seats in the UI Student Senate elections March 14 and 15.

"Many students are unaware of the fact that they pay mandatory student fees out of their tuition dollars to finance student government and its operations," SAS President and UI junior Mike Wild said. "Students for an Active Senate believe that communication is essential for reaching the best solutions for all students — and we are committed to ensure that."

Increased communication with UI administration and the Iowa City community is another goal of the new party, Wild said.

CURRENT STUDENT Senator and former Allied Student Advocacy Party member Randy Hewitt will run as an SAS member in the upcoming election, partly because of what he said are communication problems.

"It's time for a change," Hewitt, a UI junior, said. "The student body knows little about major decisions made on campus and little about the job the senate does. During committee reports, the time that most directly affects students' lives while on this campus, the most common two words said are 'no report.'"

ASAP members have dominated over the other senate party, Action, for the past two years, holding the majority of seats and all executive positions.

But SAS members say they are hopeful of winning many of the seats in this election because they will take different approaches to student government, such as holding frequent press conferences to make students aware of what student government does and why, Wild said.

"I think we have the energy, motivation and people to do it," Wild added.

SAS members could not release the names of those members running for executive positions on the senate but said they will announce the candidates along with party goals and objectives at a Feb. 25 press conference.

"You won't be able to shut us up then," SAS member and UI senior Janie Kothenbeutel said.

LASA will sponsor daylong fast for Central American projects

By Joseph Euchner
The Daily Iowan

About 50 UI students will participate in a 24-hour fast to raise money for Nicaraguan and Central American peace projects beginning at 6 p.m. Wednesday.

Sponsored locally by the Students in Society Committee of the UI Liberal Arts Student Association and nationally by the National Student Action Center in Washington, D.C., fasts will take place this week on college and university campuses nationwide, according to LASA member and Committee Co-Chairwoman Miya Sioson.

LASA will use money raised from pledges to help further peace efforts by contributing to the programs of two international organizations.

Oxfam America's Tools for Peace and Justice, a fund that underwrites rural projects in Central America, will share the contributions with the National Central American Health Rights Network, which funds hospitals in Nicaragua.

SIOSON, A UI sophomore, said she hopes the fast will raise the level of awareness about problems in Central America and the peaceful goals of both organizations. UI students will be participating in the fast for the first time, Sioson said.

"Our primary goal is to raise money for the Nicaraguan people and others in Central America," Sioson said. "But we are also aware of the attention-getting device that a fast can be. If we can stimulate the interest of people in the community, we will also increase the number of people who are informed and concerned about this problem."

Sioson said she expects a good turnout. Approximately 50 people have signed up for the fast, which will commence with an informal evening of Nicaraguan poetry and music in the faculty/staff reception room on the third floor of the Union.

LASA member Cathy Dumont said fast participants will be allowed some nourishment during their daylong effort.

"WE DECIDED IT would be a good idea to allow fruit and vegetable juices to be consumed during the fast so people would not get too dehydrated," she said. "Also, they can drink as much water as they want."

Dumont said she thought the protest would be a good way to organize support.

"It's not like a demonstration where you must be in one place for a period of time," she said. "People can fast to their own schedules, and this will allow them to participate while doing other things."

Fast participants can pick up sponsor sheets at the LASA office or at a sign-up table in the Union, LASA member Laura Nielson said.

Police

Two men were arrested Friday by Iowa City police and charged with second-degree theft after they stole an Iowa City woman's car from the parking lot of Econofoods, 1987 Broadway St., according to police reports.

Homer D. Luckett, 28, of Chicago, and Jerome Reeves, 24, 2010 Broadway St., were stopped with the stolen silver Nissan Sentra by police officers at about 5:30 p.m. in the 800 block of South Gilbert Street, according to the report.

In addition to the theft charge, Luckett was charged with OWI and operating a vehicle without a driver's license, the report indicated.

Report: An Iowa City man was charged with harassment Saturday afternoon after he allegedly pounded on the door of a woman's home and later called her repeatedly at a business where she was, according to police reports.

Keith Van Orden, 30, 1018 E. Market St., was told by police officers at about 5:40 a.m. Saturday to leave the area of the woman's apartment when she reported that he had been pounding on her front door, according to the report.

At about 3:20 p.m. Saturday, the complainant reported that Van Orden had been calling the business for several hours harassing her, and police subsequently arrested and charged him, the report indicated.

Report: An unidentified individual reportedly threw a bottle through a window of the office of Laila's Guest Rooms, 20 Lincoln Ave., at about 2 a.m. Saturday. The bottle broke a screen and two panes of glass, resulting in approximately $200 damage, according to police reports.

Theft: A leather coat valued at approximately $200 was reported stolen Friday afternoon from Tic Toc Restaurant, 223 E. Washington St., according to police reports.

Chris Graham, 303 Ellis Ave., reported at about 1 p.m. Friday that the brown, size 42 coat had been stolen from the restaurant, according to the report.

Courts

By Traci Auble
The Daily Iowan

An Iowa City woman was charged with third-degree theft Friday after she allegedly stole a leather coat, according to Johnson County District Court records.

Marla Van Nostrand, 34, 841 Dearborn St., allegedly took a black leather coat from a patient at the office on 108 E. Market St. on Feb. 16. The coat was valued at $250. When questioned by officers Van Nostrand denied knowledge of the coat, according to court records.

When police later returned to Van Nostrand's residence, her husband gave the coat to the police and said he found it in the residence. A preliminary hearing in the case is set for March 8, according to court records.

A Coralville woman was charged with fourth-degree theft Friday after she allegedly used bad checks to pay for merchandise at a Sears store, according to Johnson County District Court records.

Julie L. Bell, 30, 733 20th Ave., allegedly gave two checks in the total amount of $55 to a Sears store on June 15. The checks were returned as closed account. On June 30, Bell was given a 10-day notice on the checks, but she has yet to pay for the checks, according to court records.

Bell was released Friday from Johnson County Jail on $500 bond. A preliminary hearing in the case is set for March 8, according to court records.

Iowa lawmakers draft censorship bill

Senators hope to clarify students' First Amendment rights

By Jay Casini
The Daily Iowan

Iowa lawmakers this week plan to introduce a bill that will better protect students' First Amendment rights a month after a recent U.S. Supreme Court ruling allowing public school officials broad censorship privileges.

The bill, drafted by Senate Education Appropriations Subcommittee Chair Richard Varn, D-Solon, and Senate Education Committee Chair Larry Murphy, D-Oelwein, would restrict the censorship powers of public school principals, the state Board of Regents and other administrators.

"It will attempt to clarify the rights of school newspaper writers and editors as far as their First Amendment rights go," Varn said.

In addition to securing the First Amendment rights of high-school students, Varn said the bill would also prevent regents from censoring newspapers at regent institutions.

UI JOURNALISM Instructor and Executive Secretary of the Iowa High School Press Association Mary Arnold said other state legislatures have proposed similar bills in response to the Supreme Court case, but none have cited state boards of regents.

"To my knowledge, something like this has not been drafted in other states," Arnold said. "Other states are pursuing this type of legislation, but they don't include post-secondary and collegiate institutions."

Varn said extending censorship limitations to the state Board of Regents was not in response to any efforts to censor university publications, but he said such efforts are possible. Varn cited a case in which an editor and adviser resigned last week from a Marshalltown Community College publication in protest of censorship by school administrators.

THE PROPOSED legislation comes as a response to the Hazelwood School District v. Kuhlmeier U.S. Supreme Court ruling. That decision grants school officials the power to censor student publications and other school-related activities as long as the censorship is "reasonably related" to legitimate educational objectives.

According to the Jan. 13 ruling, "a school need not tolerate student speech that is inconsistent with its basic educational mission."

Varn said the language in the Hazelwood decision is too vague to protect students' rights. In addition, Varn said he is uneasy with the decision because it equates school principals with publishers.

"The Hazelwood case puts the principal in the same role as publisher. I don't believe that the First Amendment allows an agent of the government to be a censor in that kind of situation."

VARN SAID he regards principals and other public school administrators as "quasi-public officials" and that public officials should not have the right to censor criticism.

He said the proposed legislation would help secure student rights established by the 1969 Tinker v. Des Moines Independent School System U.S. Supreme Court decision.

The Tinker decision affirmed the First Amendment rights of three Des Moines high-school students who wore black armbands in protest of the Vietnam War. The decision stated that students do not "shed their constitutional rights to freedom of speech or expression at the schoolhouse door."

"In many ways, it is simply a return to the standards we've had here in Iowa since 1969 when we had a landmark First Amendment case," Varn said. "The Hazelwood case attempted to impose different standards."

Varn said the bill, which is modeled after a California statute, will not protect writing that is "obscene, libelous or causes a substantial disruption of educational procedure."

"BEYOND THAT, a school principal cannot censor a critical or embarrassing article simply because it is critical or embarrassing," he said.

Arnold, who met with Varn and a group of Iowa high-school educators Friday in Des Moines to pen the bill, said the bill calls for the establishment of a statewide procedure to be used with public school publications.

"Obviously, no new legislation will give students complete and total freedom to publish whatever they want," Arnold said. "But this bill and the California law attempt to limit censorship in the schools."

Miller announces candidacy

United Press International

JOHNSTON, Iowa — Iowa Attorney General Tom Miller has made it official. He will run for governor in 1990.

The state's top attorney made the declaration during Iowa Public Television's "Iowa Press" program broadcast Sunday. Miller said he fully intends to seek the Democratic nomination for the governorship.

"I'm not going to be coy or try and talk in riddles. I am going to run," Miller said.

There had been rumors the past two elections the 43-year-old Miller was interested in the top state post. In 1985 Miller came close to entering the 1986 race, but held a surprise news conference saying he didn't want the job at that time.

Miller has been attorney general for 12 years.

Police arrest armed man at Moline mall

MOLINE, Ill. — Police have arrested a man armed with a loaded .357 magnum handgun, 12 rounds of ammunition and a large hunting knife at a shopping mall that had been the scene of teen violence earlier this month.

Glenn A. Duncan, 44, of East Moline, was arrested without incident Saturday afternoon at SouthPark Mall, which was the subject of beefed up security efforts following violence between small groups of juveniles for the past two weekends.

At the time of his arrest, Duncan was carrying a type of ammunition known as "speed loaders," which allow for rapid reloading of a weapon, said Moline police Sgt. Barry Schmelzer. Duncan apparently had been hanging around groups of juveniles in the shopping center, he added.

"I said he heard about the trouble and he just wanted to make sure he was protected," Schmelzer said. Duncan was charged with unlawful use of weapons and released in lieu of $10,000 bond.

Teamsters vow 'internal guerrilla war'

NEW YORK — While contract talks continued with Pan American airlines, a Teamsters union official said Sunday workers angered by pay cuts and new work rules imposed by the carrier would wage an "internal guerrilla war" to disrupt airline operations.

Among the measures threatened by the union were shipping luggage and cargo to wrong destinations and delaying ticketing, but Pan Am said services would not be affected and negotiations would continue with the representatives of 4,300 baggage and cargo handlers, ticketing agents and clerks.

Two federal mediators were assisting the bargaining between Pan Am management and the Teamsters. Talks resumed at 2 p.m. CST after an all-night session stretched until nearly dawn, five hours past a midnight strike deadline.

"It could be another all-nighter or it could wind up very quickly. We'll be there until the fat lady sings," Pan Am spokesman Alan Lafin said of Sunday's talks.

The airline reported no problems Sunday at any of its airports, including its hub in New York, after it unilaterally imposed the new work rules and 8 percent pay cuts it has demanded in negotiations with the Teamsters.

Carbon monoxide fumes kill woman

DES MOINES — One of seven Wisconsin residents who were overcome by carbon monoxide fumes last week while traveling in a motorhome on Interstate-80 died Sunday at a Des Moines hospital.

Ronna Dille, 42, of Arena, Wis., was pronounced dead around 3 p.m. at Iowa Methodist Medical Center where she and six companions were taken following the unusual incident late Friday night.

Dille was among three people who were pulled "nearly comatose" from the motorhome after its unidentified driver pulled onto Highway 14 near Newton and sought aid from an Iowa Highway Patrol trooper. The Wisconsin residents were headed for Las Vegas at the time, officials said.

The state patrol said the occupants of the motorhome reported problems with the exhaust system for the previous 30 minutes and the driver stopped when the passengers said they were feeling dizzy.

The seven were taken to a Newton hospital, then airlifted to Des Moines.

Pilots report near-miss in England

LONDON — A British Caledonian airline pilot spotted a Pan American jetliner lumbering directly into his flight path Sunday and called for an emergency course change to avoid a head-on collision in Britain's crowded skies, officials said.

It was the second aviation near-collision over southeast England in two weeks.

The two jets carrying a total of 222 people came within a mile of each other over the English coast some 60 miles northwest of London when the British Caledonian pilot noticed the Pan Am jet heading directly toward him, officials said.

The pilot alerted air traffic controllers and they immediately ordered the Pan Am Boeing 727 jet to divert its course to avert a collision, officials said.

No injuries were reported on either jet, which were both flying at 25,000 feet. Each continued their flights without further incident, officials said.

An air traffic controller handling flights in the area was suspended, pending investigation, officials said.

Peres confirms Meese letter

By Ronald J. Ostrow
Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — Israeli Foreign Minister Shimon Peres, confirming that he wrote a handwritten letter to Attorney General Edwin Meese III about a controversial Iraqi pipeline project in 1985, said Sunday that he used this highly unusual diplomatic channel "because I was approached by people who told me that the attorney general will deal with it."

The remarks by Peres, who was prime minister at the time of the correspondence, marked the first time that he has publicly acknowledged writing the now-classified letter, which sources say could seriously undermine his political standing if it is disclosed along with other documents related to the proposed pipeline.

The correspondence has raised questions about why Meese, the nation's ranking domestic law-enforcement officer, was dealing directly with a foreign head of state on an international matter of importance to U.S. foreign and national security policy.

PERES SAID that Meese, in response to his letter, told him to deal with then-national security adviser Robert C. McFarlane on the pipeline plan. He said Meese told him that Secretary of State George P. Shultz could not be involved because the pipeline was to be built by Bechtel Corp., a company that Shultz had worked for before joining the Reagan administration.

But Peres, in an interview with ABC's "This Week with David Brinkley," did not disclose who referred him to Meese in the first place in the pipeline dealings, which have become a primary focus of an independent counsel's investigation of the attorney general.

Peres denied that he knew of any proposals to pay him or the Israeli Labor Party for a guarantee that Israel would not interfere with the $1 billion pipeline to be built in Iraq, its enemy of four decades.

"YOU KNOW, it's a shame even to relate myself to such an accusation," he said. "If somebody would come to me and suggest it for the party or for somebody else, he would be thrown out the window. We never do it, we never did it, nobody ever approached me."

However, he added, "I don't know what somebody was scheming behind my back."

Proposals for such payments were cited in a memo to Meese from his longtime friend E. Robert Wallach, a private attorney involved in the project. But it appears that no payments were actually made, and it is not known who else had knowledge of the plan.

Peres said he supported the pipeline for economic and national security reasons.

Rescue workers and firemen retrieve a body from the rubble of the Santa Genoveva Hospital Sunday in Rio De Janeiro, Brazil. The hospital was hit by a mudslide Saturday after heavy rains and flooding.

Rains flood Rio de Janeiro; officials warn of epidemics

United Press International

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil — Rescuers hampered by drenching rain Sunday dragged nine bodies from the wreckage of a hillside geriatric hospital, and authorities warned that widespread flooding in Rio state could lead to epidemics.

Civil defense officials said as many as 70 people may have died in landslides and flooding in the seaside capital of Rio state caused by torrential rains that began the middle of last week.

"The sanitary situation is getting worse, and special precautions must be taken to avoid epidemics," health authorities said in a radio message.

They urged people to boil drinking water and warned that public relief programs would be unable to feed the thousands of homeless without supplementary private donations, collected in clubs and churches around the city.

DOCTORS REPORTED 140 cases of leptospirosis, an infection caused by rat urine in flood water, which caused at least nine deaths. The number of cases was expected to increase, officials said.

The worst disaster occurred Friday night at the Santa Genoveva clinic, on a scenic hillside near Rio's famed Corcovado Christ statue, where several huge boulders and tons of mud crushed an entire wing of the three-story building.

At the hospital in Rio's Santa Teresa district, firefighters and civil defense workers recovered nine bodies Sunday but were hampered by torrential rains on the steep, slippery slope as they dug toward the dining room, buried under an estimated 500 tons of earth, boulders and rubble.

"We think there could be 30 people buried, and there is no chance of survivors," Capt. Edson Nobrega of the municipal civil defense said in a telephone interview.

CIVIL DEFENSE workers said 48 bodies had been checked through the city morgue since Friday night, and the final city-wide death toll could pass 70. At least 238 people have died in Rio de Janeiro state since heavy rains began in early February.

At the Vatican Sunday, Pope John Paul II said he is praying for victims of flooding and landslides in Rio state. The Roman Catholic pontiff called on "everyone to make a generous and effective commitment of solidarity toward those who are in need."

Brazilian authorities broadcast appeals for people to stay off the streets and used state-of-emergency powers to summon doctors and public employees for relief work. Radio stations also reported various incidents of armed gangs mugging car drivers stranded in flooded streets.

Unsafe campus

The time is 10 p.m. and the day is Sunday. Although it is mid-April — the prime relaxation period for many since final final examinations are still weeks away — more than 800 UI students are diligently studying at the Main Library.

Suddenly, smoke begins to fill the fourth floor rooms. By 10:10, gaseous fumes are billowing through the stairwells and the third floor. By the time the flames break through the second floor to the first floor ceiling, many students have not begun evacuation procedures since they are unaware a fire is engulfing the building.

Such a scenario has yet to happen. But yet is the key word here. According to UI student leader Mike Reck, one of every five buildings on this campus violates state fire codes. In addition to the Main Library, 18 UI buildings have inadequate fire alarm systems, improper storage areas for flammable liquids and/or asbestos problems, an Iowa fire marshal's 1986 report states. In simple terms, many of the university's most frequently used buildings are fire traps just waiting to go up in smoke.

The need for funding is unquestionable. In a presentation made to the state Board of Regents last Thursday, Reck said a minimum of $4 million must be allocated to make these 19 UI buildings fire-safe. But exactly who is responsible for budgeting this important sum has the regents, UI officials, Gov. Terry Branstad and the Iowa Legislature confused.

Regents President Marvin Pomerantz says the buildings will be shut down if the UI doesn't bring the buildings into compliance. UI Interim President Richard Remington says university officials simply do not have the money to make necessary improvements. Branstad has not commented on the situation.

Pomerantz is right, to a certain extent — if the hazardous buildings are not improved, they should be closed off in order to protect UI students, staff and faculty members. But should the UI be held solely responsible for finding the money to make the changes?

Absolutely not. The UI's financial situation is fair at best, thanks to state budget cuts. Realistically speaking, it would be virtually impossible for UI officials to allocate the money without having to layoff staff, reduce plans for other maintenance projects and/or halt future building plans.

At this point, the only viable solution is for Branstad to make fire safety at the UI — and the other two public institutions — a top priority. If funding is not immediately set aside, it will be only a matter of time before the state will be making amends in the form of lawsuit payments to the students and faculty who are injured, or to their families if they are killed.

Who is responsible for letting these buildings violate fire codes is no longer the issue. Alleviating the danger must be the focus now. Branstad should include $6 million — enough to fix the buildings at Iowa State University, University of Northern Iowa and the UI — in this year's state budget, and the legislature should heartily approve the allocation.

Such drastic action must be taken. Iowans need to know that it's the people — not the buildings or equipment — that truly matter.

Sign of the times

There are two things residence hall students can always be relied upon to do: They'll complain about the food, and they'll — ah — get to know each other.

In light of the latter, UI Associated Residence Halls proposed installing condom dispensers in residence halls, probably in the bathrooms of male and female halls. The proposal will more than likely pass since many residence hall staff members — the ones who will make the final decision — feel the machines will give students one more option.

It's met with barely token resistance, and that more accepting atmosphere has buoyed all those involved with the possibility; a new spirit seems to have taken root in the residence halls since the bad old days in the fall of 1986, when the bright idea of distributing condoms was shot through and through with uproars and brouhahae.

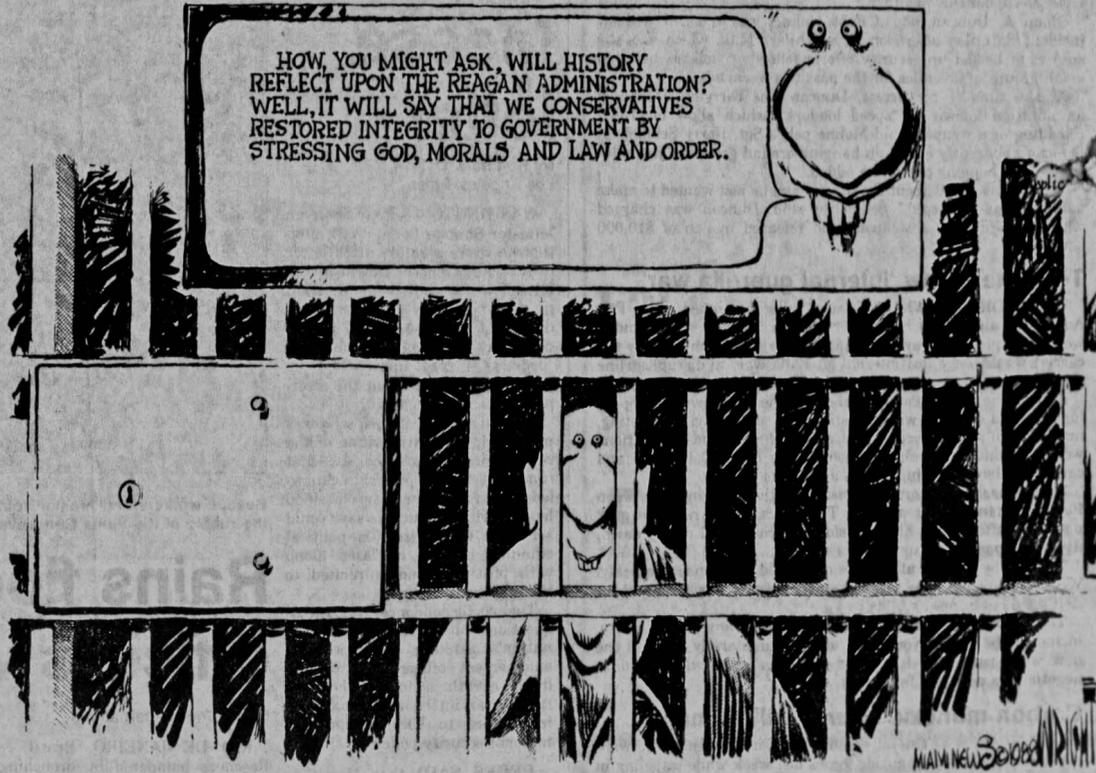

So it's a reality whose time has come. A national epidemic of AIDS has served to force people in all levels of society to look squarely at the problem of sexual conduct and misconduct — not with an eye towards chastisement, but rather with an acknowledgement that the important things needing change are attitudes, not behaviors.

And that's the real reason why the installation of condom machines in the residence halls should be no big deal: Because although they provide irresponsible, impetuous or lazy lovers with an easier, quicker alternative to braving the Iowa cold to the nearest drug store, they're about as useless as a virtuous intention if there's no inner change to go along with them.

It's praiseworthy ARH sees that and is simultaneously stressing the true route to safe sex, namely education. The real goal of all these efforts isn't the option of a condom machine in every hall, but rather an educated student body in which caution and precaution is the rule.

Unethical reign continues

It's a lousy law. It doesn't apply to Congress. It doesn't apply to the judiciary. It doesn't apply to those below a certain salary level... It's like running a stop sign.

By David Essex

Digressions

The above legal opinion was given by a former aid to President Ronald Reagan, Lyn Nofzinger, after his recent conviction for three felonious violations of the 1978 Ethics in Government Act. Nofzinger articulated very clearly what seems to be the attitude of the entire Reagan kleptocracy towards the law of the land.

The innumerable scandals which have beset Reagan and his minions suggest they all feel entitled to decide which of the "lousy" laws they should feel obligated to enforce or obey. Civil Rights statutes, Environmental Protection Agency and Occupational Safety and Health Administration regulations, consumer protection guidelines — all of these laws have been deemed too lousy to enforce. The Arms Control Export Act, laws against bribery, assassination, conspiracy with international drug dealers, the Boland Amendment forbidding lethal aid to the Somozistas: these laws were too "lousy" to obey.

NOFZINGER — like the swash-bucklers at Reagan's National Security Council — expresses a rather paranoid outrage at the idea that laws apply not only to judges, congressmen and private citizens but to members of the executive branch as well. And he adds an extra little gripe about salary, feeling that the Ethics Act is just another of the many injustices which the government heaps on the rich and influential. But what about that last point, the part where he tries to trivialize his offense by comparing it to running a stop sign? Nofzinger would have us believe that he inadvertently violated a nit-picking and obscure statute, hurting nobody. In fact, among other things, he helped ram through — over the objections of Army procurement officers — a no-bid, sweetheart deal for Wedtech, a parasite on the treasury camouflaged as a defense contractor.

BUSINESS AS usual for Wedtech was corruption; if it moved they tried to bribe it. Many officers of the company are now either in jail or headed there on charges of bribery, fraud and racketeering. Nofzinger made more than a million dollars for keeping these criminals on the government gravy train. Some stop sign.

Many in the administration have been known to gripe about those "lousy" laws that protect the citizen's right to privacy. At the same time they worship the private sector, delivering as much public treasure as possible to it. For many of Reagan's closest associates the private sector begins at home. Two years ago The Washington Post published the "Hall of Shame," which numbered over a hundred Reagan appointees who had been indicted or forced to resign for enriching themselves through personal use of public funds, outrageous conflicts of interest or insider trading. And this was long before the Iran-Contra scandal.

A TENDENCY toward conflict of interest almost seems to have been a prerequisite for admittance to the Reagan inner circle. The Iran-Contra hearings showed us how those with some personal integrity, like George Schultz and Caspar Weinberger, found themselves "outside the loop" when it came to policy decisions. The credulous might conclude that this is just another side effect of the president's disengaged management technique, but actually it is a reflection of the Gipper's personal style.

While Reagan has been a little too distanced to have personally profited from his administration, even he has a history of playing both sides for the middle. During his first presidency — that of the Screen Actor's Guild — the union conferred unique and extraordinary privileges on Music Corporation of America, the entertainment corporation headed by his friend and former manager. These breaks have been central to MCA's growth from talent agency to a multi-billion dollar conglomerate. After Reagan's term at SAG, MCA took very, very good care of him. When questioned about all this by a grand jury in 1962, Reagan answered mostly — you may have guessed it — "I don't remember."

The record of this administration in general, and Lyn Nofzinger's case in particular, suggests just how badly we need "lousy" laws like the Ethics statutes and special prosecutors when the president can't or won't honor his oath to see them upheld.

Unjust criticism

To the Editor:

For six months, former UI Student Senator Natalie Dale has carried out a crusade against New Wave for what she sees as political activity. Her definition of a political group is any group who holds political views not in line with the Campus Review.

However, the Student Senate Constitution, the Internal Revenue Service and the federal and state government defines a political group as a group who endorses the election or defeat of a public official.

It should be clear that New Wave has not and never will endorse the election or defeat of candidates. What New Wave does is, whenever the opportunity arises, criticize public officials. We have, for example, criticized presidential candidate Robert Dole for his support of the racist government of South Africa, Vice President George Bush for his support of the Contras and the CIA for their international crimes — criticism which Dale does not support.

The heart of Dale's attack centers around our affiliation with the Progressive Student Network, which she claims is a political group. In reality, PSN is a national information network between campus groups. Each member group is completely independent and is in no way controlled by PSN — a fact that Dale and those who support her have overlooked.

We call for the Student Senate to stop playing politics and judge this case based on the facts. Also, we call for the DI to report the facts, instead of just taking Dale's words. Only through facts can the Student Senate make the only real possible decision: Not guilty.

Senate not to blame

To the Editor:

The UI Student Senate needs to clean up its act? Christine Selk's editorial (The Daily Iowan, Feb. 16) dealing with the New Wave issue was astounding to many of us involved in student government. One wonders where to begin to clarify such a poorly researched, inaccurate and misleading attack. However, for those students who haven't labeled the Student Senate "fiscally irresponsible," we would like to address some issues that she was either unaware of or simply ignored.

There are many people at this university who differ ideologically with New Wave and who find their methods of expression extreme. However, these are not grounds for eliminating their funding. The Student Senate budgeting process is governed by the Budget Protocol Act, which outlines funding procedures. This policy was created by the Human Rights Commission to ensure that groups were not discriminated against because of the ideological biases of senate members. All groups are entitled to address issues they believe in and express their First Amendment rights. The UI strongly believes in free speech and works to protect it.

Selk accuses the senate of fiscal irresponsibility because $3,000 was given to this group last year. This money cannot be freely spent by group members as if it were a large slush fund. The money is allocated with a specific purpose and is controlled by the student auditor. ... All expenditures are approved by the senate and are permitted by our strict guidelines.

When the status of a group is questioned, the Student Activities Board — the nonpolitical branch of student government — considers any charges brought against the student group. In this case, the SAB ruled that New Wave was political, according to the SAB's recognition policy. Unfortunately, this issue is complicated by the inconsistency of this ruling with precedence.

Last spring, almost identical charges were brought up against the conservative student group Young Americans for Freedom. These charges included affiliation with a national political organization which endorsed Ronald Reagan in the 1984 presidential election. Working for the election of political candidates is a clear violation of student government policies.

However, the SAB ruled that they were not political because this information was not current enough and that the local affiliate was not bound by the national groups beliefs. New Wave's affiliation with the Progressive Student Network and its possible political beliefs are the main arguments for the SAB's ruling. In addition there are other groups on campus who may be in violation. So the question must be asked, why has New Wave been singled out?

Shock is effective

To the Editor:

Concerning Loretta Olson's letter (The Daily Iowan, Feb. 19) expressing "shock and dismay" over a Feb. 16 incident in the Union in which members of the Central American Solidarity Committee enacted a scene dramatizing the abduction of desaparecidos in El Salvador.

I say bravo to these activists for the courage they display in bringing to our attention an issue which may be for us merely a "tasteless presentation," but which becomes for people in Central America, a real-life tragedy. If this disturbs some one's low-cal lunch or high education reverie, I say a... better.

Imagine the feelings of whose father, son or husband never show up for lunch again because he has simply... disappeared. Could it be that the thought of such a thing is just too icky for us pampered and protected Americans to digest along with our yogurt and Perrier? If so, maybe we need to develop stronger stomachs.

There really is a world out there beyond the confines of our safe university town, and it may take a little "unconstructive radicalism" to remind us of those realities, shake us out of our complacency and realize that whatever goes on in this global village can and does ultimately affect us all.

Candidates march on South

Dole accuses Bush of 'psychologically avoiding Midwest'

By Robin Greene
United Press International

Most of the 10 presidential candidates concentrated their efforts Sunday on the Midwest and South in anticipation of this week's showings in South Dakota and Minnesota in South Dakota and Minnesota next month's Super Tuesday.

President George Bush spent the day relaxing in Houston, where he earlier he joined a rodeo parade. His chief rival for the Republican presidential nomination, Sen. Bob Dole of Kansas, spent most of his day in Wyoming, which holds caucuses March 5.

The Senate minority leader also planned to campaign in Minnesota, which holds its caucuses Tuesday. While Dole concentrates his efforts in the Midwest, Bush withdrew from Tuesday's South Dakota primary and plans to head to South Carolina and Tennessee today in search of Super Tuesday support.

SPEAKING AT A news conference in Casper, Wyo., Dole accused Bush of ignoring voters in the West and said it was a sign the vice president could not win the GOP nomination.

"George Bush's decision to turn his back on America's heartland is the mark of a regional candidacy that cannot win," Dole said.

"I was in South Dakota yesterday and there was no sign of George Bush. I'm in Wyoming today and there's no sign of George Bush. I'll be in Minnesota tomorrow and I don't expect to see him there. Where is George Bush?"

The Bush strategy prompted Dole campaign chairman Bill Brock, with the apparent blessing of his boss, to release a statement Saturday accusing the vice president of "psychologically avoiding the Midwest."

"I'm amazed that the vice president would admit defeat before the election in South Dakota or in any state," Brock said. "Bush seems to be psychologically avoiding the Midwest, as if he is afraid of being rejected again."

BUT BUSH SPOKESMAN Dan Schnur denied the accusation.

"To anybody who says that the vice president is avoiding the Midwest, we would only say that the Midwest includes the state of Michigan — where we've already won 37 delegates and where Mr. Dole did not compete," Schnur said.

Schnur also noted the other Midwestern states targeted by Bush, including Missouri, where the vice president will campaign this week. Missouri is among the 20 Super Tuesday states that will hold primaries and caucuses March 8.

Dole, who has been accused of nastiness in the past weeks, apparently approved the Brock statement.

"He was well aware of it," Dole spokeswoman Dale Tate said. "Brock would not say something like that without the senator being aware of it."

A POLL CONDUCTED for the Houston Chronicle gave Bush the support of 66 percent of the likely voters in the March 8 Republican primary in Texas, Bush's home state. Dole, who got a 20 percent rating from the same group on Feb. 10, slumped to 12 percent.

But in a poll of Minnesota voters taken by The Star Tribune, Dole led Bush 42 percent to 32 percent.

Rep. Jack Kemp of New York brought his GOP campaign to the churches of Minnesota while supporters of former television evangelist Pat Robertson railed against the delegate selection process in his home state of Virginia.

Robertson coordinator Anne Kincaid told the state Central Committee, the GOP's governing body, that local committees were adopting rules geared toward excluding Robertson backers and keeping them from claiming leadership posts.

ON THE DEMOCRATIC side, Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis traveled to Washington to attend the National Governors' Conference and a Sunday night dinner at the White House.

Dukakis, who is leading the Democratic candidates in most polls, canceled plans to campaign early today in nearby Bethesda, Md.

Sen. Albert Gore of Tennessee, who brought his campaign to television Sunday with an appearance on NBC's "Meet the Press," also planned to spend time in the Washington, D.C., area.

Gore, who has pinned his hopes on the Southern Super Tuesday states, addressed students at more than 100 colleges around the country via live satellite hookup from Washington, his spokeswoman said.

The senator also planned to campaign today in Maryland and Virginia, two Super Tuesday states.

Rep. Richard Gephardt of Missouri, Sen. Paul Simon of Illinois and former Colorado Sen. Gary Hart spent Sunday in South Dakota. Gephardt held an 80th birthday party for his mother, Loreen, who has been actively campaigning for her son.

Civil rights leader Jesse Jackson, who is expected to finish with a strong showing on Super Tuesday, spent Sunday campaigning in Philadelphia, a campaign spokesman said.

Action Jackson

Gephardt blasts foreign oil importers

By Maura Dolan
Los Angeles Times

MARSHALL, Texas — Standing on plastic covering goey red mud at the foot of an oil drilling rig in east Texas, Rep. Richard Gephardt of Missouri railed against U.S. oil imports, blaming them for the loss of American jobs and tensions in the Persian Gulf.

"By us not having stable oil prices in America, we ran the whole economy through the ringer," said the red-haired congressman, wearing a silver hard hat as he toured one of the few rigs still operating in Marshall.

"These are little independent entrepreneurial American companies that are trying to compete against what are government-run oil companies in other countries," he said.

And finally, there is the familiar punch line.

"Don't you think it's time we had a president in this country who stood up for the rights of American workers and American business again?"

GEPHARDT IS NOW taking his message of woe in America to more of the nation's troubled states, where booms have turned to bust, where hard times make welcome his promises of change, where frustrations are soothed by his anti-establishment populism.

"We're looking first at (states with sizable) delegate numbers," said Gephardt spokeswoman Ali Webb. "But we're also going to places where we think his message will connect."

Those places include South Dakota, where many farmers have not recovered from a record number of foreclosures, and Texas, Oklahoma and Wyoming, whose economies were ravaged by declining oil prices.

OVER AND OVER again, Gephardt portrays the United States as a nation in decline, its jobs going abroad to foreign countries, its wages and standard of living slipping. He blames the malaise on the "establishment" and pledges to take on "vested interests" and "make America strong again."

Just as that get-tough message appealed to farmers in Iowa, it also stirs hard-hit farmers in South Dakota and workers in states where the economies are heavily dependent on oil.

MINDFUL OF HIS opponents' accusations that he adjusts his platform depending on his audiences, Gephardt is careful to repeat the same themes in every state he visits. Only the emphasis changes.

Speaking to a group of autoworkers at a union hall in Grand Prairie, Texas, Gephardt pledged to get tough with counties that restrict U.S. exports. But unfair trade practices alone are not responsible for the loss of jobs to competitors abroad, he told the workers. He blamed corporate America for spending more time on "mergers and takeovers" than on their employees and customers.

"We don't have a worker problem in this country," he said. "We have a management problem, and we've got to get the managers to manage correctly so that we can be productive and high in performance."

TO OIL WORKERS, he emphasizes his support of an oil import fee. "It makes me angry that we are dependent on OPEC for our oil," he told an outdoor rally in Oklahoma City, addressing a state hurt by falling oil prices.

Editor Wanted

Iowa City's morning newspaper is also Iowa City's largest newspaper, with an editorial staff of more than 50 young professionals, an editorial budget of over $200,000 and a circulation of 20,500. The Board of Student Publications Incorporated and the publisher of The Daily Iowan will soon interview candidates for the position of editor for the term beginning June 1, 1988 and ending May 31, 1989. Salary for the year will be $8,500 to $10,500 depending on experience.

The editor of the DI must have strong journalistic abilities and dedication, as well as skills in management and a clear sense of editorial responsibility. The board will weigh heavily such factors as scholarship, previous news writing and editing experience (including work at the DI or other daily newspaper) and proven ability to lead, organize and inspire a staff engaged in creative editorial activities.

Applicants must be currently enrolled in an undergraduate or graduate degree program at the U. of I. Deadline for submission of completed application is 4 pm, Friday, February 27, 1988.

THE SECOND VICTIM was a man in his 20s shot during an incident near the casbah in Nablus when three men attacked soldiers with knives during a patrol. According to the army's account, one soldier was lightly wounded. Meanwhile, a car appeared, the army said, and tried to run down a soldier. An officer opened fire at the car, killing a passenger.

The deaths came on the first day of a week of protests announced in leaflets distributed Saturday night and Sunday morning by the Unified Leadership for the Uprising, an underground steering committee dominated by the outlawed Palestine Liberation Organization. The leaflets — the eighth in a series issued in the name of the group — called for strikes and demonstrations to express "national outrage in the face of the Shultz visit."

AN ARMY SPOKESWOMAN said the Shultz visit was a major factor in the renewed violence. "It was a big fire in the past, now it's little fires all the time," she said. "And something from outside can influence events very quickly." An army source said commanders on the West Bank had been shown a 20-minute compilation of film clips from recent American newscasts in an effort to sensitize them to the way beatings and other violent measures used by soldiers look on television.

But after a short hiatus in the violence last week, the stone-throwers and soldiers have renewed the pattern of confrontation in several West Bank population centers.

Shultz is expected to arrive Thursday from Moscow in a last-ditch effort to revive the stalled Middle East peace process before national elections in both the United States and Israel in November.

HIS PRELIMINARY proposals — which are said to include a temporary autonomy arrangement and local elections for Palestinians in the occupied territories, an international event to open talks between Israel and a joint Jordanian-Palestinian delegation and negotiations on a final peace settlement to begin no later than December — have been endorsed by the more dovish Labor Party half of Israel's coalition government. But Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir's more hawkish Likud bloc has voiced serious doubts over the Shultz proposals.

Former Cabinet minister Moshe Arens, a close political ally of Shamir, Sunday warned that the time was not ripe for a new diplomatic initiative. Speaking to reporters after an appearance in the West Bank Jewish settlement of Ariel, Arens cited divisions in the Israeli government and the prospect of new elections as well as the unrest, which he said were "not the best of background music for successful negotiations."

In raids over the weekend in East Jerusalem, police fired tear gas and rubber bullets at suspected rioters at the Shuafat camp and into nearby houses and smashed car windows and furniture, according to Jamal Awad, director of the U.N. Relief and Works Agency there. Salim Anati, a local doctor, said he treated at least 10 to 15 residents daily for injuries inflicted by police.

State Room

UI FOOD SERVICES Director Greg Black is aware the restaurant's poshness may seem intimidating to students and is considering ways to make it more inviting to them.

Calling the atmosphere "casual elegance," Black said, "We want you to feel comfortable. We don't want it to be a coat-and-tie place." State Room prices are lower than those of finer restaurants in town, with luncheon entrees ranging from $2.75 to $5.85.

"We're trying to keep students coming to the State Room," restaurant manager Jeanne Becker said. "We realize if it gets too high-priced, they're not going to."

Black said he also plans to advertise the State Room, targeting students with coupons. He also would like to begin "residence hall night," crediting students toward their regular residence hall meal plans.

STUDENTS DINING AT the State Room may find themselves rubbing elbows with UI faculty there. In fact, Black said, bringing faculty, staff and students together is one of the goals of the State Room and the Union itself.

"I think that helps everybody when you get a good mix of people coming here," he said.

"I usually bump into my professors here, and it's good to see them — especially when I'm looking for them anyway," said UI senior Willie Harris, who added he eats at the State Room often. "It's a relaxed atmosphere. It takes you away from the idea of being at a university and at a cafeteria."

UI Biology Professor Jerry Kollros, who frequently lunches at the State Room with other professors of all disciplines, said he is "delighted" with the restaurant.

"It's a good place to meet, chat, exchange gossip and find out what's going on all over the university," Kollros said.

THE STATE ROOM only offers lunch from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m., but in March it will open from 5 to 10 p.m. serving higher-priced dinners of roast duck, rack of lamb and steak.

Reservations are almost necessary around noon, though the State Room seats 130 people.

"If there's a special occasion, this is a place you can go on campus," Black said.

Black mentioned possibilities for the State Room, including attracting audiences from Hancher Auditorium performances or other UI events, as well as private parties and pre-commencement. He said he hopes UI department heads bring visiting professors, lecturers and candidates for UI positions to the State Room.

together with specific skills in different areas to care for patients' special needs."

Knudson said the clinic would work in conjunction with community AIDS support groups as a way of providing for these needs.

"We will be interacting with them, although it's nothing specific," Knudson said. "We will be flexible and growing to respond to patients' needs."

IOWA CENTER FOR AIDS Resources and Education Director Rick Graf said his Iowa City organization, which provides support groups and other AIDS-related programs, will continue to provide services through a clinic referral system.

"It benefits the hospital to have communication with community groups," Graf said. "I hope that they encourage people to make use of us because that's what we're here for."

In addition to community-based support groups, the clinic will provide its own social services and counseling for outpatients.

Stapleton said the inclusion of social services experts is essential because they are more apt to relate effectively and compassionately with those infected with the virus.

With the number of AIDS patients growing in the state — there have been 85 cases reported in Iowa, of which 43 have died — Knudson said the clinic will improve the scope of care by making experimental drug treatment more available in the area.

zone off the Pacific Coast. The Soviets have long enjoyed such access in U.S. economic waters, but American fishermen have never cared about reciprocity in the past, a U.S. Embassy official said.

THE AGREEMENT, Shultz said following the ceremony, was "one more example of progress in our trade relationships."

Gerasimov and Tass repeated previous Soviet charges that the Pentagon is seeking to circumvent the medium-range missile accord with plans to modernize short-range nuclear weapons in Europe and to sabotage efforts to achieve a global ban on chemical weapons by resuming their production. The United States has rejected both criticisms.

But those complaints seemed almost perfunctory amid the overall optimism. The two spokesmen illustrated the mood when asked if the slight collision of U.S. and Soviet warships in the Black Sea this month had been discussed during the day.

"No," Redman said, "and I don't see why it should be."

"Let bygones be bygones," added

Gerasimov, who later read a limerick he had written about how "things begin to look brighter" after a Shultz-Shevardnadze meeting.

"The meeting here was intended to give new impetus to the questions which diplomats in Geneva have not been capable of solving," Gerasimov added.

Swaggart

"That's the bravest thing I ever saw," Askins said. "It's going to separate the wheat from the chaff."

SWAGGART DID NOT go into detail about his sin, nor did he challenge media reports he had been seen leaving a motel room with a prostitute or that there were photographs. He said the media had been fair, objective "and even compassionate" in its reports.

"I do not plan to whitewash my sin. I do not call it a mistake or a mendacity. It is a sin," Swaggart said.

Forrest Hall, secretary-treasurer of the Louisiana District of the Assemblies of God, read a statement before Swaggart spoke. He said the evangelist already had made a detailed confession to the church, his wife and his family of "specific incidents of moral failure."

He urged Swaggart and the members of the church to not respond to any questions about the matter and to refrain from speculation and imagination.

"This is a church matter," he said, drawing strong applause.

HALL'S MESSAGE indicated Swaggart would receive more lenient treatment than Bakker, taking note of his 28 years of service to the Assemblies of God and the facts of his open confession.

"In the opinion of the officers of the Louisiana District," Hall said,

"he has shown true humility and repentance and has not tried to blame anyone else for his failure."

Hall said district officials had a duty to determine appropriate disciplinary procedures after a hearing, but with the recognition "the underlying principle involved in discipline is redemptive . . . and that justice can sometimes be best served with mercy."

"I will step out of this pulpit for an indeterminate period of time, and we will leave that in the hands of the Lord," Swaggart said.

He said the ministry would continue under the leadership of the Louisiana District Council of the Assemblies of God.

WHEN SWAGGART finished and turned from the podium, his wife walked up and embraced him, as did church elders, followed by growing numbers of his congregation.

The Executive Presbyters of the Assemblies of God, based in Springfield, Mo., has been studying charges by a rival Louisiana preacher, Marvin Gorman, that Swaggart was seen with a prostitute.

The denomination's manual of jurisprudence requires a two-year term of probation for violating church moral guidelines, according to church officials.

Swaggart, 52, a high-school dropout and cousin of rock 'n' roll singer Jerry Lee Lewis and country singer Mickey Gilley, heads a ministry that has an estimated $150 million in annual income.

THE WORLD MINISTRIES employs 1,200 people with a payroll of $11.5 million, and broadcasts to 143 countries. Swaggart donates at least $10 million annually to the Assemblies' overseas missions.

Last year he was accused of having informed the church hierarchy about fellow Assembly of God preacher Bakker's tryst with Hahn and called him "a cancer that needs to be excised from the body of Christ."

"The church cannot hide sin," he said of Bakker. "When a preacher has been found out and it is a fact — not hearsay — that he has performed an act of adultery, a hearing is convened and then he has to step down."

In Lancaster, Calif., Bakker said Sunday, "I think the only comment Tammy and I would have is the words of Jesus: 'Ye who are without sin cast the first stone.'"

Gorman, who the Assemblies of God has not confirmed as the source of pictures and other information used against Swaggart, is a former preacher in that denomination who now runs a storefront ministry in New Orleans.

Last year he filed a $90 million suit against Swaggart, claiming Swaggart and others were trying to destroy his own television ministry with false reports that Gorman had had adulterous affairs. The suit was dismissed in September.

Melchior's upset over Gibbons spurs victory

By Scott Wingert
 The Daily Iowan

AMES — The Iowa wrestlers invaded Ames Sunday looking for any kind of reward.

This time, they walked away winners.

Keyed by Joe Melchior's 6-3 victory over Jeff Gibbons at 134 pounds, the fourth-ranked Hawkeyes scored a 17-15 win over No. 3 Iowa State before 11,863 fans at Hilton Coliseum.

Iowa improved to 16-3 while Iowa State slid to 17-4.

Iowa Coach Dan Gable, while pleased with Iowa's second straight victory this year over the defending national champs, said the Hawkeyes have still not reached their potential.

"I suppose I should be jumping for joy," Gable said, after handing Cyclone Coach Jim Gibbons his first coaching defeat at Hilton. "I wanted one good team performance before the tournaments, but I wasn't too happy with our effort today.

"I THINK WE WRESTLED better this time than last, but I also think they wrestled worse. We have a long way to go, and a short time to get there."

Gibbons said his Cyclones may have needed a tough loss at this point in the year.

"Now we have a clean slate," Gibbons said. "I don't think that's a bad deal. Losing at Hilton for the first time might give us a better opportunity to evaluate ourselves."

Iowa started fast, notching victories from Steve Martin, Brad Penrith and Melchior to take a 9-0 lead.

Melchior came out the aggressor against the third-ranked Gibbons, scoring a takedown and a two-point near-fall off of a fireman's carry in the first period.

"I never used a fireman's carry until I came to Iowa," Melchior said. "But it worked well. It's always my game plan to jump on top and make the other guy open up, especially against guys who play the edge of the mat."

THE CYCLONES' JOE Ghezzi thwarted an Iowa switch at 142 by downing Mike Carpenter 9-3. Carpenter had been a 150-pounder until this meet.

Defending 150-pound national champion, Tim Krieger, scored three takedowns and a pair of near falls on Iowa's Rick Novak to improve his record to 20-0 and pull the Cyclones to 9-7.

The two teams then traded victories at 158 and 167, setting up a rematch between Royce Alger and Mike Van Arsdale at 177.

Van Arsdale nearly pulled off the upset, scoring a takedown with 16 seconds remaining in the second period to lead 3-1 with two minutes

Christian may be next team superstar

By Michael Trilk
 The Daily Iowan

In the past, when Iowa women's basketball player Robin Christian walked onto the court, people didn't know what to think.

Christian, a 5-foot-9 junior from Roxbury, Mass., had great credentials when she came to Iowa. She led the nation in scoring with a 41.6 average in her senior year, but somehow she wasn't fitting into Iowa's style of play. She was accused of playing out of control.

Now when Christian steps onto the floor, fans expect to see offense. All-America-type offense.

"I've been playing more lately," Christian said. "The more you play the better you get."

Last year Christian averaged just more than three points per game. This season she has improved her average more than seven points per contest and almost 10 points per outing against Big Ten competition.

TWICE THIS SEASON Christian has reached an Iowa career-high 16 points, and Sunday she dumped in 10 off the Iowa bench.

Iowa Coach Vivian Stringer said she is happy that she is getting the chance to play Christian, as well as the other Hawkeye reserves.

"It is nice to have games that aren't so difficult so we can play some people," Stringer said. "What we are trying to do is develop a starting team of seven or eight players. There is no way we can survive unless we have eight solid players that can step in in any situation."

"These type of games give me the chance to change some positions around."

Although Christian is listed on the Iowa roster as a guard, she is spending considerable time at the No. 4 position for Iowa — the power forward.

Iowa's Robin Christian drives past Illinois center Lesley Hudgins for two of her 10 points Sunday at Carver-Hawkeye Arena. The Hawkeyes buried the Illini 87-36 to improve their record to 22-0.

Davis: Game vs Gophers may be best

By Marc Bona
 The Daily Iowan

MINNEAPOLIS — When Iowa defeated Minnesota 107-86 in Saturday's matinee clash in Williams Arena, fans may have seen the Hawkeyes give their best performance of the year, according to Iowa Coach Tom Davis.

"This certainly equals what might be our best performance of the season," said Davis, who hasn't lost to Minnesota in four tries. "It might have been the best offense this season."

Men's Basketball

The win moves the Hawkeyes to 18-7 overall and 8-4 in the Big Ten.

Davis' statement was backed up by the fact that the Hawkeyes shot a blistering 63 percent from the field while the Gophers made 60 percent of their shots.

Iowa's Roy Marble and Jeff Moe provided solid inside and outside shooting performances, as the two each poured in a game-high 24 points. B.J. Armstrong and Ed Horton scored 14 from the outside and 13 from the inside, respectively.

By Anne Upson
 The Daily Iowan

MINNEAPOLIS — Jeff Moe is known as a streak shooter, and according to the Iowa senior, some motherly advice may have helped him streak in the right direction in the Hawkeyes' 107-86 win over Minnesota Saturday.

Moe poured in 24 points — a career Big Ten-high — on 6-of-7 shooting from three-point range and 6-of-6 shooting from the free throw line.

talked to my mother last night (Friday) and she said, 'Keep your top on,'" Moe said. "Because in the first half against Purdue, I shot really well. Then in the second half I shot terribly. The only thing I did differently was to keep my top on during timeouts."

"She said I got cold, so she told me to keep myself warm. That's the only way I can explain it. I got lucky and hit the shots."

IOWA'S B.J. ARMSTRONG and Michael Reaves also contributed from the outside, tallying 14 points each.

Iowa Coach Tom Davis was impressed with Moe's performance. "If you talk about anyone who epitomizes great efforts, it's Jeff Moe," Davis said.

Moe also set another career record

CALGARY, Alberta — Strong warm winds again disrupted the Winter Olympics Sunday, then gave way to an arctic chill just as the hopes for an American hockey medal were being put on ice for another four years.

The U.S. hockey team was beaten for the third time in five outings Sunday night, losing to West Germany, 4-1. The loss eliminated the American squad from the medal round and added another disappointment to a growing list of U.S. setbacks.

Swedish speedskater Tomas Gustafson helped highlight the

Skinner verbally commits to Iowa

Troy Skinner, Iowa's second-leading all-time high school scorer behind Todd Berkenpas, has made a verbal commitment to attend Iowa.

Skinner, a point guard who scored 2,232 points at Palmer High School, will fill Iowa's lone remaining scholarship.

He is expected to sign a national letter of intent with Iowa in April.

Iowa takes 2nd in volleyball tourney

The Iowa volleyball team, competing in the Northern Illinois Invitational, took second place behind Northwestern in the eight-team tournament.

Iowa won its pool by beating Northern Illinois, 15-8, 15-2; Notre Dame, 17-15, 5-15, 15-9 and Bradley, 16-14, 15-2.

In the semifinals the Hawkeyes beat Wisconsin, 15-11, 14-6, 15-7, before losing to the Wildcats in the championship, 17-15, 15-11.

The tournament, which falls under the team's spring schedule, enabled freshmen to gain more experience, Iowa Coach Sandy Stewart said. The Hawkeyes' next action will be at Nebraska-Omaha in March.

Co-ed volleyball tourney set for March

A co-ed volleyball tournament, co-sponsored by the Iowa Park and Recreation Association and Iowa Pepsi-Cola Bottlers, will be held March 26-27 at the Field House.

Teams will be divided into equal pools for round-robin play with top finishers advancing to a single-elimination playoff in both A and B divisions.

Entry fee for the tournament is $40 for teams registered with the IPRA, $45 for unregistered teams. Send checks made payable to the Iowa Park and Recreation Association, a roster signed by a league director and a manager's name, address and phone number to Doug Milder, Iowa Park and Recreation Association, 241 Field House, Iowa City, Iowa, 52242. The entry deadline is March 16, and entries will be accepted on a first-come, first-served basis. For more information write the above address or call 335-9351.

Big East will meet to discuss fights

PROVIDENCE, Rhode Island — Big East Commissioner Dave Gavitt announced Sunday the conference will convene an executive committee meeting to deal with the brawls that have occurred in the two Pittsburgh-Georgetown games this season.

The latest encounter was Saturday when No. 8 Pittsburgh beat the Hoyas 70-65. The game had to be stopped with four seconds remaining when a series of fights between the two teams broke out.

No. 1 Temple routs No. 5 Tar Heels

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (UPI) — Mike Vreeswyk scored 26 points, including eight in Temple's 19-0 run to start the second half, and freshman Mark Macon added 19 Sunday to propel the top-ranked Owls to an 83-66 rout of No. 5 North Carolina.

Pate edges Haas to capture Open

LA JOLLA, Calif. (UPI) — Steve Pate sank a six-foot birdie putt on the 18th hole Sunday to edge Jay Haas by a stroke and capture the $650,000 Andy Williams Open.

The birdie at Torrey Pines capped a round of 4-under-par 68 that gave Pate a four-round total of 269 and the $117,000 first prize. Pate, 26, rallied from a slicing drive that sailed into the gallery.

Douglass holds off Moody, Player

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI) — Despite shooting a sluggish 74 in a final round when he "couldn't hit a lick," Dale Douglass held off Orville Moody and Gary Player Sunday to win the $300,000 Suncoast Seniors Classic by two strokes.

After opening with rounds of 67 and 69, Douglass took a four-shot lead over Bob Brue into the final round over the 6,631-yard layout at Tampa Palms, where water comes into play on 11 of 18 holes. Player faltered down the stretch and Moody simply had too much ground to overcome as Douglass finished at 6-under-par 210 to take the $45,000 top prize.

Agassi tops Pernfors to take Volvo

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — Sixth seed Andre Agassi, 17, used a flurry of powerful groundstrokes Sunday to defeat No. 9 Mikael Pernfors of Sweden 6-4, 6-4, 7-5 and win the $415,000 Volvo Tennis/U.S. Indoor Championships.

Bonnett comes back to win Pontiac 400

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI) — Neil Bonnett, driving a Pontiac, erased a two-lap deficit and took the lead with 47 laps remaining Sunday to win the Pontiac 400 NASCAR race at Richmond Fairgrounds Raceway.

Hawkeyes move up to 7th in conference meet

By Brent Woods
The Daily Iowan

At first glance, a seventh-place finish at a conference championship meet isn't much to get excited about.

But the Iowa women's swimming team resided at the bottom of the field after last year's Big Ten meet, so taking seventh this past weekend at the IUPUI Natatorium in Indianapolis was a step up.

"Overall, we swam excellent from top to bottom," Iowa Coach Peter Kennedy said. "The times were excellent. Of course, we would have liked to finish in the top division, but we did everything we could."

Michigan, the meet favorite, won the championship with 720.5 points, followed by Ohio State (523), Northwestern (435), Minnesota (379), Purdue (327), Indiana (291), Iowa (282), Michigan State (278.5), Illinois (225) and Wisconsin (193).

The Hawkeyes also advanced six swimmers to the NCAA meet, which will be held at Texas-Austin in March 16-20.

minutes, 20.3 seconds, and senior Jane Keating made the cut in the 400-yard individual medley, finishing fifth in 4:29.79.

Louise Keogh was fifth in the 200 breast at 2:21.05 and also qualified, along with Becky Anderson, who set a school record with a 23.54 effort in the 50-yard freestyle.

Iowa's 200-yard free relay team of Anderson, Colleen Thome, Deb Lynch and Kim Stevens rounded out the Hawkeye qualifiers, taking fifth place.

Terri Millmeir, a third-place finisher in 1-meter diving last year, slipped to 10th in that event and will receive another chance to qualify for nationals in a qualifying meet at Ohio State.

"We'll go back into heavy training," Kennedy said of the NCAA qualifiers. "Then we'll taper the week or so before we go."

Dual sweep puts Iowa in right frame of mind

By Eric J. Hess
The Daily Iowan

Ending the dual meet season with consecutive victories over Iowa State and Nebraska, Iowa men's swimming Coach Glenn Patton said his team is now in the right frame of mind for the Big Ten Championships March 4-5.

Rick Williams and Erik Bacon each won two individual events as the 14th-ranked Hawkeyes rolled over Iowa State 120½-92½ and No. 8 Nebraska 109-108.

The Hawkeyes finished the dual meet season with a 7-3 mark and are eager for the conference meet.

"Our goal was to try to win Big Tens," Patton said.

The Hawkeyes have not been concerned with the dual meet season, having not shaved so far this year. The Iowa coach said his team will not shave until the night before the conference meet.

SEVENTEEN SWIMMERS and two divers will attend the Big Ten Championships at the Indiana University-Purdue University Indianapolis Natatorium.

That will likely be the best time for Iowa swimmers to qualify for the NCAA Championships April 7-9 in Indianapolis.

Iowa met Iowa State Friday with the Hawkeyes winning every event except two and finishing one-two in several events.

The Hawkeyes' Marc Long said Iowa will send a solid team to Indianapolis, but the team has not been at full power during tapering.

Long, a junior from Cedar Falls, Iowa, said the Hawkeyes had cut back on speed work before the Iowa State-Nebraska trip and that was the reason some of the team experienced problems and others didn't.

"THAT'S WHY PEOPLE have off-weeks now because of that speed work," he said.

Against Iowa State, the Hawkeyes also had some first-time winners. Knut Landhoe, Doug Mencl and Todd Kellner all had victories against the Cyclones.

The Nebraska meet Saturday came down to the final relay with the Hawkeyes edging the Cornhuskers by one point. Iowa needed a victory in the event. Anything less would have given Nebraska the win.

Patton said the 400-yard freestyle relay team of Dave Kohmetscher, John Linxwiler, Todd Kellner and Dan Dumford won by eight-tenths of a second.

Patton said Nebraska's top freestyler, Peter Williams, opened for the Cornhuskers, forcing the Hawkeyes into a comeback role.

Iowa's Williams also had a strong two days, helping the Hawkeyes win the 400-yard medley in both meets, winning the 200-yard individual medley against Iowa State and winning the 200-yard backstroke against Nebraska.

Bacon claimed three individual events, one in the 200 free and twice in the 500 free.

Minnesota forward Walter Bond, left, gets pounded to the floor by Iowa guard Jeff Moe during first-half action of the Hawkeyes' 107-86 victory over the Gophers. Moe, who shared scoring honors with Roy Marble with 24 points, hit 6 of 7 from three-point range.

Iowa

AND AFTER TALLYING three points in the first half, Michael Reaves came alive and finished with 14, including four of five from the three-point line.

Moe was six of seven from the field — all three-pointers. Tim Hanson led the Gophers with a long-range shooting spree of his own, leading the team with 22 points. Willie Zurcher added 16 and Kim Zurcher scored 10.

"I'm proud of our kids," Minnesota Coach Clem Haskins said. "They battled and battled and battled. We just couldn't get a break here and there.

"We can't put the points on the board like Iowa can."

And one of the reasons Iowa put points on the board was Marble, who scored more than 20 points for the fifth time this season.

"I THINK SOMEHOW we came together, started to gel," Marble said. "Everybody made adjustments that needed to be made at the same time."

Despite the blowout-like margin of victory for the Hawkeyes, Minnesota kept the game close for much of the first half.

The Gophers reeled off 13 straight points and pulled to a 10-point lead, 35-25, at the 6:50 mark. But the Hawkeyes fought back on the strength of three-pointers from Armstrong and Moe.

With just more than a minute remaining in the half, Michael Morgan hit two free throws to give the Hawkeyes a 53-45 halftime advantage.

Iowa will play at Northwestern Wednesday before heading into a nationally televised contest against Michigan in Carver-Hawkeye Arena Saturday.

be impressed with the dedication — I'm very proud of them. You just can't say enough about them."

With six games remaining in the regular season, Armstrong, a junior, is now 72 points shy of joining the 1,000-point club.

Iowa reached the 100-point plateau for the 11th time this season, three short of the school mark set by the 1970 team. The Hawkeyes have scored 100 or more points in five of their last eight games. It was a driving lay-up at the 1:35 mark by Roy Marble that gave the Hawkeyes 100.

Haskins apparently was impressed with Iowa's Bill Jones, who shot 3 of 7 from the field, pulled down no rebounds and committed a turnover.

"Bill Jones is probably the MVP on their ballclub," Haskins said. "He makes things happen on the press."

Williams Arena, which had its inaugural game played 60 years and 18 days ago, has one distinctive characteristic: its playing floor is elevated about three feet off the ground.

At least three times during Saturday's game, players went diving, sliding or flying off the court.

Guards

in the game: "It was my career high in technicals," he said. "I was going in, trying to get the ball, (guarding an in-bounds play) and I stumbled and fell out of bounds. And that's a technical foul. I thought you had to touch the ball, but it's as long as you go out of bounds, so I was wrong. It was a good call.

"It's my first technical. I never hung on the rim. I've never dunked."

Armstrong, whose 14-point showing came despite a sore wrist, said he was affected by the injury, which he received in a Feb. 6 contest against Michigan State.

"IT'S JUST GETTING weaker and weaker as I play," he said. "It's something I've got to deal with. It hasn't been feeling well, and so I've just got to overplay it and go on as long as I can, until they tell me to stop. But until then I'll just keep on going and trying to overlook it."

Although his wrist has been a problem, Armstrong said it has helped him improve other areas of his game.

"With my hand, I've been concentrating on getting my shot back," Armstrong said. "The coaches kind of emphasized me to do other things and employ other parts of my game, which I can do. These are things I can get better at and help our team."

Reaves, who shot 5 of 6 from the field, praised Moe.

"Jeff Moe had another great game," Reaves said. "He shot the ball really well. He also sparked us. Jeff had a superb game."

REAVES HAD A pretty good game himself, shooting 4 of 5 three-pointers.

Davis was pleased with all of his guards' play.

"Both he (Armstrong) and Reaves did a good job of applying the break and then slowing it down and then running some set offense.

"We did a real good job of that in particular."

But Minnesota had a shooting star of its own. Gopher forward and sixth man Tim Hanson shot 8 of 11 from the field, including 4 of 6 from the three-point line, for a team-high 22 points.

"I shot the ball pretty well," he said, "and I haven't been playing that much or hitting a lot of shots.

"Usually we win when we put 86 points on the board."

Phobia affects senator

United Press International

DES MOINES — State Sen. Thomas Mann recently revealed he suffers from a phobia that renders him uncomfortable and often ill whenever he's placed in a public setting.

Mann's condition — a form of agoraphobia — went undiagnosed for several years, masking itself as simple digestive trouble. Mann, 38, said typically he would experience severe stomach churning and nervousness when he would approach the Senate chamber or meetings related to his post.

Several tests failed to disclose Mann's condition, but a psychological examination finally targeted the condition. Mann, the only black in the Legislature, missed several floor sessions last year because of physical problems resulting from his condition.

MANN DESCRIBED his phobia as a fear that erupts whenever he is in a setting where he is likely to run into others. He said the source of the phobia is probably racially rooted.

During his childhood in rural Tennessee, Mann said, he was warned by his grandmother that it would be wise to avoid eye contact with white men he encountered on the road and to walk to the other side of the road whenever possible. He said the warning went double for white women, where an eye-to-eye stare could be construed as sexual.

the second day in a row. The final two runs of the two-man bobsled were postponed until Monday because of poor track conditions, man-made snow was required on the cross-country trails and winds blew the last of the powder off Mount Allan and left nothing but ice on which to hold the day's two alpine races.

THE BOBSELED postponement was the eighth weather-related delay of the Games. Soon after sunset, however, an arctic front swept through the region and snow began to dust the area. Forecasts called for much colder temperatures and less turbulent wind conditions early this week.

"We have no need to panic," said International Olympic Committee spokeswoman Michele Verdier. "We have eight days left and the schedule is such that we still have three spots available for rescheduled events."

As the air turned cold outside, it turned frigid inside for the young U.S. hockey team. After losing a three-goal lead and then the game against Czechoslovakia last week and then falling in an emotional encounter with the Soviet Union, the Americans needed to defeat West Germany by at least two goals Sunday night to make the medal round.

BUT GOALS BY West Germany's Dieter Hegen and Ron Fischer in the first period doomed the United States' chances. The Soviet Union, meanwhile, completed an unbeaten trip through the preliminary round by downing Czechoslovakia, 6-1, and will be the overwhelming favorite for the gold going into the medal round.

Four gold medals were awarded Sunday, going to Gustafson in the 10,000-meter speedskating event, Frenchman Franck Piccard in the super-giant slalom, Anita Wachter of Austria in the women's alpine combined and a Soviet Union team anchored by Anfissa Reztsova in the women's 20-kilometer cross-country relay.

East Germany and the Soviet Union have each won six gold medals, but the Soviets lead in overall medals, 16-10. The United States failed to win a medal Sunday with its best showing being a fourth-place finish from Eric Flaim in the long distance speed skating race.

FLAIM FINISHED HIS Olympic tour with three fourth-place finishes and a silver medal, one of three medals won by Americans. Since he is only 20 years old and is the most versatile skater on the U.S. team, his hopes for the 1992 Olympics are bright.

to go. But Alger scored a quick escape, a penalty point for stalling and made a takedown with :56 remaining to hold on for a 5-4 victory.

"HE CAUGHT ME flat-footed," Alger said of Van Arsdale's takedown. "But he was playing the edge (later) and I was glad the referee recognized it."

Iowa State's Eric Voelker avenged his earlier defeat to Brooks Simpson at 190, cruising to an 11-4 decision and narrowing the score to 15-13 with one match left.

The heavyweight bout was a push-and-shove affair, with Iowa's Mark Sindlinger and Iowa State's Andy Cope settling for a 2-2 draw. All but one match point was a stalling point.

Both coaches chastised Marshalltown official Phil Henning's judgement on the stalling calls.

"The official should never watch the clock," Gable said. "For some reason, he likes to see where they're at on time."

"I don't ever feel too good when the referee dictates the course of a match," Gibbons said. "He called at least four stalls right at the end of a period, and you've got to be looking at the clock to do that. I don't agree with that."

see me play. It makes you want to go out and do the little things that much more."

The 51-point margin against Illinois was the fourth-largest winning margin in Iowa history and the largest margin of the season. Previously this season, the Hawkeyes' biggest win was a 100-51 rout of Minnesota.

Illinois' total of 36 points was the lowest by any Iowa opponent this year.

But that kind of margin isn't likely Friday, when Iowa will head into a rematch with No. 8 Ohio State. The Hawkeyes have never won a game in the Buckeyes' St. John Arena.

"There is no point in being nervous because if you are nervous you will lose anyway," Stringer said. "We've never won there, but this is not the same Iowa team that has never won there. These kids can hold their own with anybody."

Christian

the four because it was too physical," Christian said. "Now, the more I play it the more I like it."

Stringer likes having Christian at forward because of her speed.

"People may see us and wonder why would we play a 5-9 player inside," Stringer said. "But Robin has that quick first step, the quickest on our team, and when you are playing inside, one step is all you need. Then she can put the spin on the ball or whatever she needs. Those quick, 5-9 type of players always cause problems inside."

After this season, Stringer may lose a little sleep thinking about how she will replace Michelle Edwards — the Big Ten's leading scorer. But if Christian gets a few more games under her belt, the Hawkeye coach may be sleeping like a baby.

Trump won't pursue purchasing Patriots

United Press International

NEW YORK — Donald Trump, who last week expressed interest in buying the New England Patriots, will not purchase the financially troubled team from Billy Sullivan and his family, a spokesman for the real estate developer said Sunday night.

"Despite the love Donald Trump has for New England and his fondness of the Sullivan family, Mr. Trump has decided not to pursue the purchase of the New England Patriots at this time," said the spokesperson, who asked not to be identified.

Trump, owner of three casinos in Atlantic City, N.J., and author of a best-selling autobiography and one of the nation's richest men, owned the New Jersey Generals of the defunct United States Football League. He was among the USFL team owners who filed a $1.3-billion lawsuit against the NFL and were awarded $1 in damages.

JIM GREENIDGE, a spokesman for the Patriots, said he had no knowledge of Trump's decision not to pursue the purchase and would not be able to comment until Monday.

The Sullivans are in a court battle with Philadelphia businessman Fran Murray's group, which owns the option to buy the club and is suing to obtain controlling stock. The suit had been delayed pending the outcome of negotiations with Trump.

The Sullivans owe Murray's group $21 million.

Murray had reacted enthusiastically to Trump's interest in the team, saying he did not want to control the Patriots but only wanted to guarantee repayment of his loans. He sued, fearing Sullivan would declare bankruptcy to escape the debt.

Twins' Viola ready for another winning year

United Press International

ORLANDO, Fla. — World Series Most Valuable Player Frank Viola didn't make a big effort to cash in on his postseason accomplishments with the Minnesota Twins. The left-hander wanted to concentrate on another good season.

"I said no to a lot of offers," Viola said before Sunday's workout. "The one thing I didn't want to do was tire myself out. I don't want to live on the laurels of last season. If I'm able to continue to improve, it can only help the team. And that's what it's about anyway, you win as a team."

Viola won two of three decisions in Minnesota's World Series win over St. Louis, including the first and last games.

Viola believes his teams' lack of off-season activities, unlike the hoopla that followed the New York Mets' World Series win in 1986, will benefit the Twins in their difficult drive to repeat.

"WE DIDN'T HAVE every day filled with appearances, going here, going there," he said.

Combat professor adds realistic edge

By Kevin Goulding
The Daily Iowan

Romeo and Juliet. Young love. Dewey-eyed swooning. Disagreeable parents. Love's ultimate triumph over violence (as if R and J would care). "Maria, I just met a girl named Maria..." Mushy stuff, right?

Not so for James Finney, UI assistant professor of acting and combat and the fight director for UI's Romeo and Juliet, which opened Wednesday night at University Theatres.

"Romeo and Juliet has more sword fights than any play in dramatic history, until a few years ago when Zastrozzi was written," he said. "In the uncut version there's even extended conversations about swordfighting technique. It's about love, but it's the violence which is the setup. Without the violence it's mush, a bunch of milquetoasts saying, 'I love you, I love you.'"

ON STAGE, DANGER is Finney's middle name. He is one of eight teachers certified in the United States with the Society of American Fight Directors. The philosophy of the society is to promote safe and effective physical confrontations on stage.

"My job is to create the illusion of violence through nonviolence," explains Finney. "The macho, beat-em-up kind of violence doesn't fit in this world. You have to have an air of nonviolence to create good violence on stage."

On stage, as opposed to the movies, the weapons are real. The swords in Romeo and Juliet, although blunted, are real steel. Similar to the movies, every stroke, every exchange is choreographed and rehearsed. "In the movie The Master of Ballantrae with Errol Flynn, the classic castle fight was rehearsed for two weeks and then filmed for one week — all for one four-minute fight."

EVEN WITH ALL the training and preparation, injuries do occur. Finney tells of a fight scene he was rehearsing when his opponent failed to pull his punch. Instead, he landed on the prone Finney with his full weight — in the wrong place. "Somewhere in Hollywood there is a blooper clip with this guy standing up from behind a bar, exclaiming, 'My god, Bruce, I kneed him in the nuts!' followed by me weakly pulling myself up asking for a five-minute break."

Finney recounts a legendary stage

combat tale involving the King of Norway in the 13th century. While in attendance at a passion play, the king, so moved by the mortal wound inflicted upon Christ by the Roman soldier, leapt up out of his seat, ran on stage and beheaded the soldier-actor. The audience, in turn, angrily beheaded the king. Finney thinks that the "Errol Flynn school of swashbuckling" is making a comeback. "With the demise of romanticism and the rise of realism, fights had to look more 'down-and-dirty.' Personally, I enjoy heroes — heroes with flaws."

UI Symphony Band takes risks, pleases

By Steve T. Donoghue
The Daily Iowan

The Iowa Honor Band Weekend came to a rousing midpoint on Saturday night at Hancher Auditorium with a free concert by the UI Symphony Band under the direction of Myron Welch. The concert wasn't flawless, but it nevertheless deserves all measure of praise, since from beginning to end it was a fine example of all the good things a vigorous band program can be.

The concert on Saturday night began with a rousing performance of the finale from Liszt's symphonic poem Mazeppa — a strong and surefooted rendition which in some ways set the pace for the rest of the night. Following this piece came what was for many the real center of the program: Randall Faust's Concerto for Horn and Wind Ensemble.

Faust — a graduate in music arts from the UI — composed the piece at the suggestion of Welch, and it was first performed at the 19th International Horn Symposium, hosted at Brigham Young University by Dr. Gayle Hatton. One movement of the work is dedicated to Paul Anderson, Faust's horn teacher at the UI.

THE CONCERTO OPENS with a slow, contemplative "nocturne" which the band handled with a confidence that is rare when dealing with such ruminative semi-silence. The second movement was collected and effective, although it seemed to meander after an initially strong opening. The third movement introduced louder, brassier strands into the composition and the final movement, though rousing, failed to round out the piece into a feeling of completeness.

For the third selection, "The Keel Row" from A Leadsman, Landsmen, and Dancers by Australian composer David Stanhope was chosen. The piece is the tonal picture of a delightful crazy-ness — a fine example of good music that is also fun music — and the band was clearly enjoying itself, members playing at full tilt while remaining in complete control. The composition itself is an odd and adventurous parody which succeeds more often than not, and its performance marked a high point for the evening.

THE AUDIENCE — composed largely of college and high-school students — was still humming the main theme to "The Keel Row" as the lights came up for intermission. The concert resumed with Robert Russell Bennett's Concerto Grosso for Woodwind Quintet and Wind Orchestra, in which great amounts of sound and fury signified very little.

The Iowa Woodwind Quintet — consisting of flautist Betty Bang Mather, oboist Robert McConnell, clarinetist Maurita Murphy Mead, bassoonist Ronald Tyree and horn player Paul Anderson — turned in a stylish and capable performance, and the audience favorite of the four movements seemed to be the third, possibly due to its jazzy, catchy beat.

The concluding work was the comparatively popular Feste Romane by Ottorino Respigi, arranged by William Schaefer. This complex and difficult piece was pulled off with a polish and strength only occasionally marred by poor timing among the sections on stage. The final product was a fine and palatable rendition of Respigi, a sure and steady endnote to the performance.

Although the night's particular program may not have succeeded in all of its choices, even its failures are to its credit. Saturday night's performance typified all that is best of a symphony band program in general: risky and inventive selections from the lesser-known and the worthy obscure, professional-caliber treatments of recognized talents and the showcasing of gifted players. Cities five times the size would be lucky to have such a live music option.

At the Bijou

Matewan (1987) — John Sayles' film concerning the coal wars of the '20s in West Virginia. 6:45 p.m.

Wise Blood (1979) — This adaptation of Flannery O'Connor's first novel features Brad Dourif as an obsessed preacher named Hazel Motes, founder and sole member of the Church Without Christ. 9:15 p.m.

Monty Python's The Meaning of Life (1983) — This marvelous mish-mash of Python madness includes a swashbuckling life insurance company, an explosive dinner scene, Death's irate monologue against snotty Americans and, of course, The Meaning of Life. 7 p.m.

Full Metal Jacket (1987) — Stanley Kubrick's powerful and affecting vision of Vietnam, all Vietnams and the forces they unleash. 9 p.m.

Television

"Star Trek — A Piece of the Action" — Captain Kirk and his crew do as the Romans do on a world of Chicagoland-type thugs and mobsters, resulting in one of the better episodes (11 p.m.; KCRG 9). "News: Point of View" — How news reporting has affected the careers of Joseph McCarthy, Richard Nixon, John Kennedy and Ronald Reagan (8 p.m.; IPTV 12).

Readings

The Iowa New Jewish Film Series will present the free film The Boat Is Full at 7:30 p.m. in Van Allen Hall Lecture Room 2. An informal discussion will be held afterward.

Art

An exhibition of 90 prints by French artist Henri Matisse will be on display in the Museum of Art through Feb. 28. Project Art will sponsor the 10th annual staff art show — specifically photography this month — in the UI Hospitals and Clinics Main and Boyd Tower lobbies.

The February exhibit in the main galleries of the Arts Center, 129 E. Washington St., will be the artwork of Emily Martin and Emily Gelman Vermillion.

The UI Museum of Art will feature an exhibition of works from a permanent collection acquired during the tenure of the founding director, Ulfert Wilke. The exhibit will continue through Feb. 28.

Radio

Mojo Kading's Blues Fest features a feast of blues music (8 to 11 p.m.; KRUI 89.7 FM). James Levine conducts the Chicago Symphony Orchestra in R. Strauss' Ariadne auf Naxos, which can't be used as a soporific but may pass as an emetic (8:30 p.m.; KSUI 91.7 FM). Soprano Roberta Alexander and baritone Wolfgang Schoene join the Cleveland Orchestra in Beethoven's 2nd Leonore overture, Zemlinsky's "Lyric" Symphony and Schubert's Symphony No. 4 (8 p.m.; KHKE 89.5 FM).
