Overdose sparks inquiry at UI Hospitals

By John Gillardi
The Daily Iowan

State officials said Wednesday they will investigate procedures governing the dispensing and administering of controlled drugs at UI Hospitals and Clinics due to the death of a UI Hospitals nurse who suffered from a drug overdose while on duty.

Norman Johnson, director of the drug control administration program and executive secretary of the Iowa Board of Pharmacy Examiners in Des Moines, said the procedures will be investigated after the Dec. 29, 1987, death of Dorothy A. Gergis, 45, of 1295 Dolen Place, in a sixth-floor UI Hospitals bathroom.

According to a state medical examiner's report, Gergis died of an overdose of fentanyl, a morphine-like depressant, while on duty in the bathroom in room 6010. She was found by a housekeeper who tried to open the door but couldn't, according to the report, which also stated Gergis had a history of substance abuse.

THE HOUSEKEEPER found Gergis at about 3:15 p.m. and efforts to resuscitate her for more than an hour failed, according to the report filed by Johnson County Coroner T.T. Bozek.

Bozek pronounced Gergis dead at 4:08 p.m.

The drug fentanyl, also known by its brand name Sublimaze, is used in operating procedures as part of pre- and post-operation treatment. It is injected into the body.

Johnson said such an incident "doesn't happen very often," but said a nurse at a Sioux City hospital died last year of an overdose of a similar drug. Johnson did not state how the procedures would be investigated, but said they will be changed if problems are found.

UI Hospitals Information Director Dean Borg declined to comment on the death, but said the hospital has a "very intricate and sophisticated method," Borg would not detail the method, saying it would "compromise the system."

BORG ALSO SAID Gergis may have been the first employee to die of an overdose at the hospital while on duty.

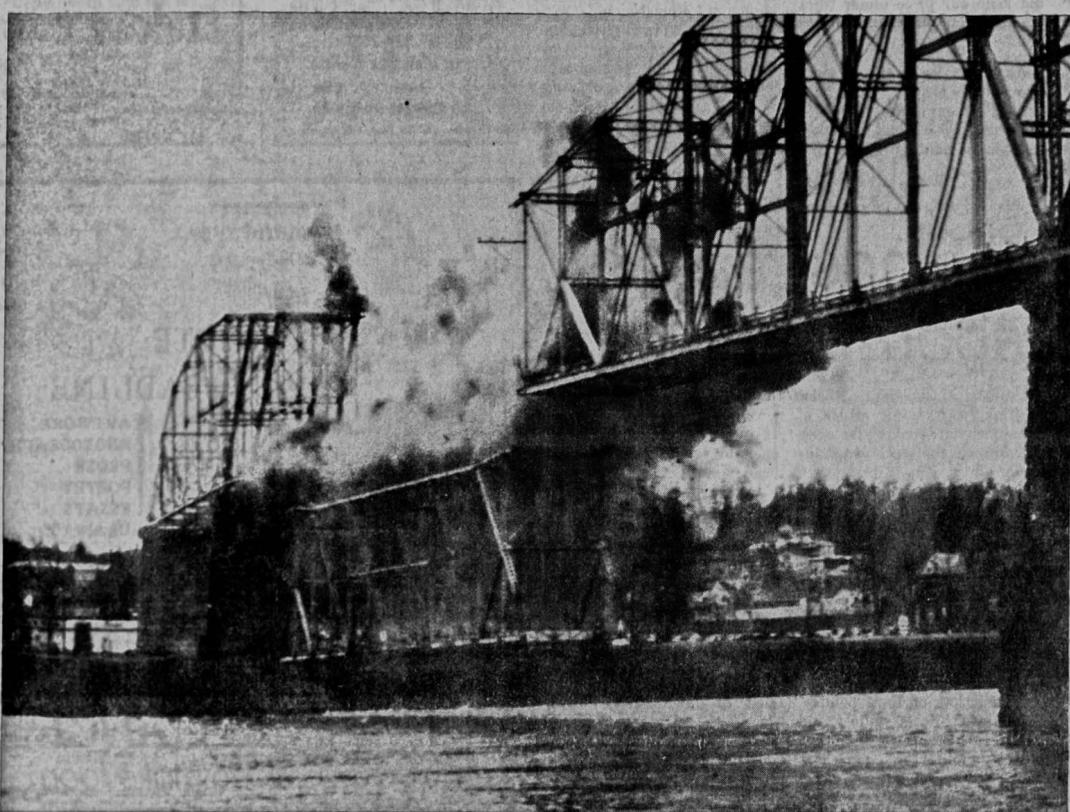

UI Hospitals Pharmacy Director Harold Black declined to comment on the pending investigation.

Iowa Board of Nursing Executive Director Anne Mowery said Gergis' death is indicative of a growing concern in the health care profession concerning the abuse of controlled substances usually available only in hospitals.

"I can't say something like this happens often," Mowery said. "Substance abuse is not uncommon, like in any other industry, but these people obviously have access to these drugs."

Mowery said the board took action on 76 disciplinary cases in 1987 with approximately 50 percent of those cases involving substance abuse.

While fentanyl is a "common drug" abused by health care professionals, it is not available only in hospitals. See Nurse, Page 7

City, county to split costs for sales tax vote

By Sara Anderson
The Daily Iowan

After months of debate, Iowa City and Johnson County have decided to split the costs for the Oct. 6 local option sales tax election.

The decision comes almost four months after disputes began between the two organizations over who should foot the $25,891 bill for the election. Under the agreement, the city will pay approximately $15,000 and the county nearly $11,000 of the bill, according to Johnson County Board of Supervisors Chairman Don Sehr.

Sehr said he wanted to see the bill paid so the dispute could be laid to rest.

"It's my feeling that maybe we're responsible, maybe we're not, but we don't want our lawyers fighting with their lawyers," he said. "We don't want bad feelings over something that could be settled. It's just something that has to be paid."

IOWA CITY called for the countywide election on the 1 percent sales tax in July 1987 in order to offset a projected $900,000 budget deficit for the city and to prevent property tax increases.

The tax was defeated in all areas of the county.

The agreement worked out by the city and the county calls for the city to pay for the election costs for Iowa City, Coralville, Hills and University Heights. The county will pay the costs for outlying and rural areas in the county.

Sehr said the supervisors will take formal action on the agreement at their next meeting. The board passed a motion shortly after the election saying the city would be billed for all election costs. That motion must be rescinded and a new bill for $15,000 sent to the city, Sehr said.

Iowa City Councilor William Ambrisco said the decision appeared to be fair, given the fact that the city called for the sales tax.

"I THINK IT (the agreement) is quite equitable," he said. "It seems See Election, Page 7

Reagan's news conference hints at terrorism in West Bank, Gaza

By Norman D. Sandier
United Press International

WASHINGTON — President Ronald Reagan, opening a major diplomatic push for "a true peace" between Israel and its Arab neighbors, said Wednesday the deadly violence in occupied territories may have been stirred up by terrorists.

In his first news conference in four months, Reagan carefully avoided criticizing Israel for the harsh measures it has employed in dealing with Palestinian protests in the Gaza Strip and West Bank regions. And he said, "There's every evidence that these riots are not just spontaneous and homegrown."

The president, who dispatched Secretary of State George Shultz to the region Wednesday night, added, "We don't support that sort of thing" — an apparent reference to both the rioting and the Israeli response.

The Shultz mission signals the largest step thus far in what is undoubtedly Reagan's last chance to influence efforts to secure a settlement, which he said "must meet Israel's security needs and the legitimate concerns of the Palestinians."

REAGAN ALSO said the Israelis must share some of the blame for the violence.

On other major topics during the meeting with reporters, Reagan said:

- The United States has not offered to drop federal drug trafficking charges against Panamanian leader Gen. Manuel Noriega as part of a deal for him to surrender power. But the president said Panama should "return to a democracy" and not be ruled by a "dictator."

- If GOP presidential candidate Pat Robertson knew the whereabouts of any American hostages in Lebanon, "isn't it strange no one in our administration was ever apprised of that?"

- The battle against oppression by blacks in South Africa cannot be compared to the efforts by "freedom fighters" in Nicaragua or Afghanistan because "you don't have an armed insurrection" going on against the apartheid government of Pretoria.

Reagan says he can accept Contra aid plan

By Robert Shepard
United Press International

WASHINGTON — President Ronald Reagan said Wednesday night he could accept the House Democratic leadership's plan to send only non-military aid to the Nicaraguan Contras for now, but insisted the CIA deliver the supplies.

The CIA, by law, must end its role in the Contra supply network after Feb. 29 and House Democrats want the Defense Department to deliver whatever assistance may be provided to the Contras during the Central American peace process.

House Republicans want the CIA to maintain its role, and Reagan, during a nationally broadcast news conference, agreed.

"I certainly would favor the CIA," Reagan said. "I think that involving our military when there is no need to is very rash and foolish, because you would be putting our military into a combat situation. This is what we have been trying to avoid in Central America, all the way."

REAGAN WANTS military aid for the Contras, but his request died in the House on Feb. 3. Republicans and Democrats are proposing different packages of non-military aid for the guerrillas during the peace talks. Reagan said he is willing to fight another day for the military aid portion, and will take what is available in food, clothing, medicine and other supplies until he wins that fight.

"Anything that will keep the freedom fighters as a pressure on the Sandinistas is worth doing," Reagan said. "If we can get that, that's fine. Then we'll take our chances on the other (pure military) and try to get it. They do still have some military store for a limited period of time."

Mystery of Union Field 'sculpture' explained

By Cathy Jackson
The Daily Iowan

The mystery of the abandoned Chevrolet Deluxe is finally solved.

The culprit, wishing to remain anonymous, has come forth with answers to the lingering questions of UI students and administrators about the odd appearance of the car frame in Union Field more than a month ago.

The UI sophomore found the frame sitting near a dumpster behind the UI Art Building and decided to move it to Union Field. UI sophomores Ellen Nasvik and Jason Dykhouse left the car near the dumpster to be discarded after displaying it as sculpture for a week in the Art Building's Checkered Space.

But before the garbage truck loaded up the parts, the anonymous student got hold of them.

"They're going to make the field into a parking lot anyway," the prankster said Wednesday. "I thought this could be their first car."

THE UI PLANS to convert part of the field into a temporary parking lot this spring to accommodate the construction of the new UI Laser Center on the site of the Union's present North Parking Lot, according to Recreational Services Director Harry Ostrander.

So, in the wee hours of Jan. 23, the student, with the help of five friends, lugged the parts across the Union Bridge and placed them in the muddy field.

"I thought that the car didn't lend itself to its place in the Checkered Space very well — and it would work much better in the field," he said. "It was a big job to move the parts and arrange them in the field, he said.

"We set it up pretty much like it was displayed in the Art Building, but we didn't really do it justice because it was difficult to work in all that mud," he said. "We didn't want to spend hours setting it up really nicely and then get caught."

HE SAID HIS curiosity about student reaction was one of the main reasons he spent so much time and effort moving the car.

"I wanted to see what people would do," he said, "see if anybody would get really upset. I don't think it is appreciated by anyone here. Students should open up their minds a bit and be able to view something as art instead of just as a pile of junk."

The original artists gave some similar reasons for creating the sculpture and signing it up for display.

"We wanted a strong reaction. We were kind of excited that someone put the car in Union Field," Nasvik said. See Car, Page 7

Council approves permit

The Iowa City Council agreed Tuesday to give a local construction company permission to begin installing an electric transmission line under city streets for the UI.

Iowa City will issue Wolf Construction Co. an excavation permit so that scheduled digging can begin today under the shoulders of Burlington, Court, Madison and Front streets.

The council's action came after Iowa City lawyer Thomas Hobart's appeal on behalf of Wolf Construction Co. and Gerard Electric Inc. to speed progress on the permit.

The contractors feared the project would be slowed because of failure of the UI and Iowa City to reach a licensing agreement, according to Hobart.

The council agreed to issue the permit so contractors could begin work on schedule, but also said a letter would be sent to the UI which would emphasize the need for resolution of the licensing issue before the UI could continue this project or undertake another.

District sets hearing date

The Iowa City School Board voted Tuesday night to hold a public hearing on the Iowa City School District's 1988-89 budget on March 8 at 7:30 p.m.

The board also voted to hold a public hearing at the March 8 meeting to hear concerns about the $398,321 proposed renovation of Lincoln Elementary School, 300 Teeters Court. The board will open bidding on the Lincoln School project on March 28 at 2 p.m.

Designs for the Lincoln School renovation have been drawn up by the architectural and interior design firm of Wehner, Pattschull and Pfiffner, 201 Dey Building.

Plans for the renovation include the addition of four new classrooms on the school's south side and new toilets and windows. The school's media center may be expanded and the multipurpose room — formerly the gymnasium — and some of the classrooms are proposed to be upgraded.

The board will also hold a public hearing on its 1988-89 roof replacement work and will solicit bids for the projects on March 16 at 2 p.m.

Christian activist to visit UI

Christian activist Tony Campolo will visit the UI on March 4-5 to give two talks describing the conditions and problems of contemporary American society and provide a Christian perspective for addressing those problems.

Campolo will speak on Friday at 7:30 p.m. on the topic of "Uptown Blues" and will give a lecture Saturday at 9 a.m. titled "City on the Hill."

Both lectures will take place in the Union Main Lounge. A session for questions and answers will follow the Saturday lecture.

Campolo is a professor of sociology at Eastern College in St. David's, Pa., and the founder and president of the Evangelical Association for the Promotion of Education, an organization involved in educational, medical and economic programs in various Third World countries.

His visit is sponsored by the Geneva Lecture Series and the Christian Reformed Campus Ministry.

Guatemala talk to be held

"Women of Guatemala: Fighting Development Through Militarization" will be the subject of a brown bag lunch talk March 2 at 12:10 p.m. at the UI Women's Resource and Action Center, 130 N. Madison St.

The discussion will focus on the current political situation in Guatemala and will feature photo slides of the people and countryside. Mary Janell Metzger, a member of the Women Against Racism Committee, will lead the discussion and share impressions of her recent trip to Guatemala.

School board limits bids on grounds care contract

By Craig Sterrett
The Daily Iowan

The Iowa City School Board defeated a motion by a 3-3 vote Tuesday night that would have given more than one lawn care company a chance to bid on the district's grounds maintenance contract.

The vote means that the Quality Care Company, 209 E. 10th St., Coralville — which currently holds the district's grounds maintenance contract — is still the only groundskeeping company being allowed to bid on the new $140,000 1988-89 contract.

The board will consider voting on reopening bidding again at its March 8 meeting when an odd number of members may be present, allowing the board a more decisive vote.

Although school officials say they are satisfied with the work done by Quality Care on district property during 1987, school board members Orville Townsend, Jay Christensen-Szalanski and Connie Champion said they believed it would be fair to allow other agencies to bid on the contract.

"IT'S TIME TO bid again," board member Orville Townsend said. "We have other people that want to do it and I don't think it would be fair to the small businesses to not give them the opportunity to do it."

Quality Care Manager Dean Moore told the board that if it decided to reopen bidding, he would do anything the board wanted to win the 1988-89 contract.

He added that his company had invested quite a bit of time and money to be able to handle the school's contract.

"We did make an investment, had a large staff sent to a lot of schools," Moore said, adding, "and we did save you money, a lot of money last year, and we did keep our price under what we told you we would charge you."

At least one other local groundskeeping company, Spring Green Lawn Care, 715 Highway 1 West, has expressed interest in bidding on the contract.

IN OTHER action Tuesday night, the school board tabled a motion to place both grades on transcripts when a student retakes a class.

The board considered requiring transcripts to show the previous grade achieved in a class that is retaken.

Christensen-Szalanski said showing both grades for one class would be less misleading and more honest representations of grades achieved on transcripts.

But Champion said she thought that would defeat the whole purpose of having a second-grade option.

"You either have it as a second-grade option, or you don't have it at all," Champion said. She said showing the original grade achieved would be damaging to the students.

Iowa City West High student Jeff Albright suggested original grades should only be shown on the transcript if they are accompanied by an explanation of why the student's original grade was so low.

The board will discuss the revised second-grade option policy at a later date.

Avenson defends research warnings about red meat

By Scott Sonner
United Press International

DES MOINES — House Speaker Don Avenson, D-Oelwein, Wednesday defended an Iowa State University researcher who warned eating too much charcoal-broiled red meat can increase the risk of cancer.

Sen. Berle Priebe, D-Algona, and other members of the Senate Agriculture Committee he chairs chastised ISU's Suzanne Hendrich Tuesday for creating a consumer scare that will hurt the red meat industry.

But Avenson, who has eaten red meat only in moderation since he suffered a heart attack in 1985, said the senators may have overreacted.

"As someone who is on a diet of 2 grams of niacin and four bran muffins, I can't be too critical of people who are looking for ways to improve the cardio-vascular system," Avenson said.

Avenson said the industry and the research projects about meat are being "approached the right way — they are urging moderation. It is the trend. There is a whole different health consciousness in the state and nation."

"I changed my diet substantially since I had a heart attack. I eat meat and pork in moderation. ... I eat lots of Iowa poultry, Iowa catfish, Iowa walleye and venison. I eat beef very seldom," the avid hunter and sportsman said.

Avenson said he has lost 22 pounds over the past year and currently is on a wheat bran muffin diet he got from Sen. Tom Harkin, D-Iowa. He said it is better than most diets, including one he tried which "can make you into some kind of vegetarian wierdo."

Also Wednesday, Priebe denied senators threatened to pull funding from Iowa State as a result of the cancer research viewed as damaging to the beef and pork industries.

"I told her we are not the most learned group in the world, we don't have Ph.D.'s and all that, but we can read," he said.

Center set for fall opening
 Newman building will be 'user-friendly'

By Jay Casini
 The Daily Iowan

When the fall semester begins in August, UI students will have a hard time overlooking the new Newman Catholic Student Center.

The new building, currently under construction on the corner of Jefferson and Clinton streets, will replace the Newman Center that had existed on the same site since 1969.

Construction has gone on throughout most of the winter, and center director the Rev. Ed Fitzpatrick said he expects the facility to be open by the beginning of classes in the fall.

"From the practical point of view, I'd like to have weekend services there in the fall to get people re-acclimated," Fitzpatrick said.

Fitzpatrick said the decision to replace the old center with a new building evolved over several years.

"I came here as director in 1984, and it was a case where we said we've got a new director, let's have a new student center," Fitzpatrick said.

"The basic problem with the old building is that it just wasn't very attractive," Fitzpatrick said. "It was not very inviting and it was confusing."

FITZPATRICK SAID the old building was often overlooked by Catholic students because it did not look like a traditional church.

"Some people didn't even realize that it was a church," Fitzpatrick said. "They'd be in town for the first time, looking for a Catholic church to go to mass, and they would walk right on by."

UI senior Laura Mulcahy agreed a new center was needed.

"I'm really glad they are making a new one because the old one was absolutely horrid. It was falling apart at the seams," Mulcahy said. "The old building was so bad people were scared to go in."

"I'm a senior, so I probably won't

Construction on the new Newman Catholic Student Center, at the corner of Jefferson and Clinton streets, has continued throughout the winter. The building is expected to be finished when fall classes begin.

be around when it's done, but it is a good opportunity for those who will be," Mulcahy said. "It will give people a better opportunity to see what the Newman Center is all about."

Fitzpatrick said the new structure was designed to be more accommodating to students.

"The building itself, to use computer language, will be completely user-friendly," Fitzpatrick said.

"It will be an inviting, prominent building and the major uses of the building will be obvious to the person who has never been there," Fitzpatrick said.

THE NEW CENTER will include a large chapel for student masses, office and meeting space, study rooms and a basement game room.

"It will be large enough to allow us to expand some of our activities. We feel that we have a pretty complete ministry, and that this is an appropriate facility for us," Fitzpatrick said.

In order to finance the $2.2 million center and provide endowments for its four ministry staff members, Fitzpatrick said a $5 million "Foundations in Ministry" fundraising drive was organized in southeast Iowa Catholic diocese.

Existing Newman Center office space next door to the construction site will be renovated to provide extra meeting rooms and study space once the new center is completed.

FITZPATRICK SAID he believes the new center will attract more UI Catholics to student masses and eventually interest them in the center's retreats, study groups and other activities.

"We are filling up St. Mary's Church every weekend for our Sunday 5 p.m. student services," Fitzpatrick said. "Once we start holding weekend masses in the new center and we get the students in there, we are hoping to attract them to the center's other features."

"College is a hard time because people are trying to decide what they believe in and they go through cycles," Fitzpatrick said. "Sometimes they go on little vacations from church for a while. People fall away for a while and decide to come back, and we're always there for them."

Avenson: Grassley will beat Branstad

By Scott Sonner
 United Press International

DES MOINES — House Speaker Don Avenson, D-Oelwein, predicted Wednesday Sen. Charles Grassley will beat out Gov. Terry Branstad for the Republican Party's gubernatorial nomination in 1990.

Avenson also said he believes Attorney General Tom Miller's early announcement of his candidacy for the Democratic nomination is a sign Miller believes he made a mistake by withdrawing from the 1986 primary.

The speaker told reporters he will wait until the spring of 1989 before he makes his own decision about seeking the Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

Avenson said he does not "think there is any question" Branstad will run for re-election and predicted Democrats will win the general election.

"I think the question is whether he (Branstad) will have a primary. I think Charles Grassley will be the next candidate. I think he'll run and win the primary," Avenson said.

GRASSLEY HAS SAID he has no intention of running for governor, but has declined to rule out the possibility and Branstad has discounted reports he would be interested in swapping jobs with Iowa's senior senator.

Avenson considered a run for governor in 1986 but decided against it when he suffered a mild heart attack. He said today he will wait for at least a year before he decides whether to run in 1990.

"Iowans have been saturated with politicians with hat in hand," he said in reference to the state's presidential caucuses. "They have had it up to here with people asking for their vote."

Attorney General Tom Miller, a Democrat, announced last week he is running for governor. Lt. Gov. Jo Ann Zimmerman and Des Moines banker John Chrystal also have indicated they might seek the nomination.

Listening to reason

Tuesday Henry Kissinger, avuncular elder statesman and erstwhile mouthpiece of American foreign policy, addressed the Senate Foreign Relations Committee on the subject of Senate ratification of the Intermediate Nuclear Forces Treaty. In a detailed statement, Kissinger outlined his reservations about the treaty: It was too little, it was too much, it was this, that and the other.

He also endorsed Senate ratification of the treaty. "Sounds to me," said Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., "that you're saying for a fat lady this treaty doesn't sweat much."

As the INF treaty makes its way to the Senate floor, it has become increasingly clear that certain members on the right are desperate to torpedo the first meaningful reduction of nuclear forces in the post-war era. Their efforts only underscore the necessity for Senate approval.

Obviously, INF is not a perfect treaty. The Soviets retain a massive superiority of conventional forces. The targets of Soviet SS-20's, a redundant weapon system to begin with, can easily be laid to waste by longer-range missiles fired from Soviet soil.

But these are inspiring imperfections. The political climate in West Germany is such that the presence of American nuclear weapons — particularly a system which the Reagan administration has declared dispensable — has become intolerable to the German people, and the removal of a whole class of weapons paves the way for the eventual denuclearization of the region. The treaty's failure to couple the removal of Soviet SS-20 and American Pershing II missiles to the reduction of conventional forces and long-range strategic weapons only makes further negotiation — and reduction — more likely. And, for once, the world can witness the dismantling of weapons of destruction.

Kissinger is quite right when he says that Senate failure to ratify INF would do nothing to stop the removal of these weapons. The Europeans want them gone, Senate approval or not. Failure to ratify will antagonize our allies and fragment an already creaky NATO alliance. Conversely, the swift, bipartisan ratification of INF would send a loud message to our allies and a frightened world: No, the Soviets are not our pals, but yes, we are serious about arms control.

Senator Helms, let the fat lady sweat.

Not all bad

The latest word from the research laboratories seeking a cure for colds: No cure is in sight. But, says a University of Virginia scientist: "We've come a hell of a long way in acquiring information. It hasn't changed the number of colds anybody has yet. But it may."

Among some approaches offering promise: anti-viral drugs, compounds to block the proteins that produce cold symptoms, "blockading" nasal-membrane tissues where cold viruses gain entry to the body.

Pending a breakthrough, Americans will continue to get nearly 100 million colds annually, spending $1.8 billion on over-the-counter remedies that neither prevent nor cure colds and coughs. But at least they're better than the 1st century A.D. cure recommended by Pliny the Younger: "Kissing the hairy muzzle of a mouse."

Piety, or paranoia?

Republican candidate Pat Robertson seems to have strange powers. He can divert hurricanes with the power of prayer; pinpoint hostages in Lebanon; detect, through intuition, missiles invisible to satellites; and connect remote events to their nefarious causes.

Robertson demonstrated this last talent when he asserted that the recent Jimmy Swaggart scandal was "planned" by someone, engineered to reflect badly on himself. Swaggart, a fire-and-brimstone TV evangelist (as was Robertson once), had been photographed entering a Louisiana hotel with a prostitute. He subsequently told an evangelical grand jury, "I like to watch." The Rev. Robertson smelled a rat.

Someone, the former star of "700 Club" said, had timed the disclosure of Swaggart's proclivities to damage Robertson's divinely sanctioned campaign in the upcoming Southern primaries. And Robertson had a good idea who. "Knowing the quality of the people surrounding George Bush, there is nothing that I would not believe they would do sleazy," he spluttered.

Given that Bush is a member of the Reagan administration, Robertson's generality is a safe one. But in this particular instance it sounds about as paranoid as his Cuban missile detection. Further reflecting the usual quality of his thought, Robertson went on to predict that Bush would try to turn "religious bigotry" against him.

Clearly the reverend wants it both ways: He wants to reap full benefit from his robes — making any attack on himself an attack on the church, any attack on the church an attack on himself — and claim enough detachment to deal with the intrigues of the secular world. How, voters should wonder, does any affront to the electronic pulpit become a personal attack on Pat Robertson, who is supposedly out of the business?

Founding Father would not be proud

George Washington's face grew ruddy. He hated to be kidded and his buddy Che Guevara knew that and so he never missed an opportunity.

"Freedom fighters!" Guevara tittered. They were sipping absinthe at their favorite hangout, the Nimbus 9. "He compared the Nicaraguan counterrevolutionaries to the American Founding Fathers — you!"

Guevara had the annoying habit of twiddling his mustache and jingling his utility belt whenever he made fun of Washington.

Washington didn't like it. He pushed away from the table and, to Guevara's surprise, stood and said, "You're right, Ernesto. It's time I did something about that man."

Washington put in a request with the Placement Committee that was granted without opposition — as are all such requests where Washington resides — and the farmer-general-president who "never told a lie" was allowed an audience with President Ronald Reagan before the committee could make its final recommendation.

THE TWO MEN met in a room with a dirt floor and walls so far away and shrouded in darkness that it was impossible to tell where the room ended. Reagan was happy to see Washington, but his smile quickly vanished.

"What is this?" he said. "Am I dead?"

Washington shook his head. "Not yet. There are a few things I'd like to discuss before you finish your earthly course." Reagan began to shake, but Washington ignored him. "Your comparison of me and the American revolutionaries with the Contras, for one."

Bob Ivry

Reagan smiled. "You like that? You've always been one of my heroes."

Washington stopped him with a look like raw leather. "I will not burden you with sentimentalities," said the father of our country. "I'll just give you the facts."

"Since the Arias Peace Plan was announced in August, church-based investigators have documented more than 90 cases of Contra actions against unarmed civilians — 96 civilians killed, 143 wounded and 135 kidnapped. And that's not counting another 87 members of local self-defense militias who were killed by the so-called democratic resistance."

"BUT I CAME out and said," Reagan stammered, "give peace a chance."

"Funny," Washington replied. "Since the accords, the Contras have picked for targets the very people who are working hardest for peace — local peace commissioners, priests and community leaders. They threaten and they kidnap."

"But the Sandinistas," Reagan stuttered, "have established a Soviet beachhead in Central America."

"Then why the attacks on unarmed cooperatives?" said Washington. "On June 17, 1987, El Paraiso, a community of nine evangelical Protestant families who refuse to bear arms, was ransacked and burned."

"On April 14, 1987, two trucks belonging to a coffee cooperative in Jinotega were ambushed and two men were killed, the trucks burned. They had made a decision beforehand not to carry weapons. They thought the weapons would invite a Contra attack."

Reagan's face shook. "But the CIA

WASHINGTON was impassive. "The CIA has trained the Contras to kill and torture. In July, a Reuters photographer took photos of Contras planting CIA mines in Chontales. That was after the U.S. embassy claimed the CIA was no longer supplying the Contras with mines."

"In Matagalpa there are incidents too numerous to recount individually of Contras torturing their victims and mutilating their dead bodies after killing them. The same in Rio Rama, and in La Reforma, near Quilali," Washington said.

"They are desperate men," replied the 39th president. "They need U.S. aid."

"Remember the War of 1812? One of the reasons it started was British frigates would stop American ships and kidnap the crews and force them to join the British navy. Seems the Contras need to do the same thing to recruit new soldiers — they kidnap peasants. King George's tactics. The tactics of a tyrant."

Washington took a deep breath and allowed himself a show of emotion. "To supply these renegade terrorists with American tax dollars is tantamount to spitting on the Stars and Stripes."

"Say," said Reagan, "whose side are you on?"

Washington unbuttoned his waistcoat to reveal a white T-shirt underneath. On it were the words BEN LINDER BRIGADE.

Reagan gasped. "We will never give up!" he cried defiantly, waving a white fist in the air. "We will never let Nicaragua export its revolution!"

Washington had had enough. The interview was over. He balled his hand into a fist — the same hand that had signed Cornwallis' surrender papers in Yorktown — and smashed it into Reagan's face, sending him outward and down, into oblivion.

Then he headed back to the Nimbus 9 where, he hoped, he could drink peacefully in the knowledge that he had been true to the American Revolution.

Swaggart's ordeal has novel qualities

It has the makings of a political bombshell — a high-level Washington mystery worthy of the best-seller list.

The question: Did the forces of Vice President George Bush somehow arouse Jimmy Swaggart's libido, driving the TV preacher into the clutches of a harlot and public disgrace?

No, this is not the product of my demented mind. It originated, more or less, with Pat Robertson, one of Bush's political rivals.

Robertson suspects that it's far more than mere coincidence that Swaggart's sex capers became public knowledge shortly before the Super Tuesday primaries.

As Robertson put it: The timing "stretches the imagination and stretches credulity."

"NOTHING HAPPENS to people by accident," he said. "It is kind of funny this came up two weeks before the most important primaries in the nation."

"I think somebody had something to do with it. Somebody else planned all these things, I am afraid."

Robertson didn't come right out and blame Bush for the Swaggart frolic. But in the same interview, he pointedly talked about how the Bush campaign has been planning all sorts of "dirty tricks" in the primaries.

And what could be a dirtier trick than for one of the nation's leading

Mike Royko

TV preachers to be caught cavorting with a hooker at a time when one of the nation's other leading TV preachers is running for president?

It's the old guilt-by-association trick.

What Robertson seems to be saying is that because Swaggart has been a rascal, voters might think that other TV evangelists, such as Robertson, are rascals, too.

NATURALLY, Bush's people say that Robertson's suspicions are about as dippy as anything they've ever heard.

But as an avid reader of intrigue-conspiracy-cloak-and-dagger novels, I don't think Robertson's suspicions should be so lightly dismissed.

I'm not saying that there is a Bush-Swaggart connection, but let us consider some of the possibilities.

For example, Bush was once head of the CIA. What better background could one have for hatching ornate plots? Sure, Bush looks like a choir boy, but you can't work for the CIA without being somewhat sneaky. It's a required part of your resume.

Is it inconceivable that at a planning session, Bush or one of his operatives said: "Say, why don't we embarrass Robertson by somehow getting somebody like Jimmy Swaggart to carry on with a lewd woman, then get the news out to the public just before Super Tuesday?"

"Good thinking. That's even better than making Dan Rather swallow his tongue."

THE FIRST step, obviously, would be to find a way to arouse Swaggart's lusts. That wouldn't be easy, of course, because Swaggart has always condemned bed-hopping and other popular but sinful activities.

But as Swaggart himself admitted, according to his church elders, he has long had a secret fascination for pornography. It's a sad vice, but at least it doesn't cause lung cancer or emphysema.

Assuming that Bush's plotters knew of this embarrassing tendency, they might have covertly goaded Swaggart by buying him subscriptions to Penthouse, Hustler or other peekaboo magazines.

Or, even worse, they could have bought him a set of porn-star Seka's autographed undies, which she sends out in plain brown wrappers.

AS THE followers of Swaggart and Robertson well know, being exposed to such literature and lewd objects can drive an otherwise normal man to unspeakable acts.

Why, my friend Slats Grobnik, as a young man, read a novel called Forever Amber, which was considered the most lurid book of its day, condemned by preachers and the American Legion. Within a year of reading that book, Slats had been so crazed by passion that he got married.

Anyway, let us just consider the possibility that Bush's people did this — forced smut into Swaggart's hands.

The next step might be to have a female agent phone him and breathe heavily or even moan, driving him into a frenzy of creepy desires.

After that, everything would be easy. A woman of low morals making herself available. Then the fatal visits to the motel while a spook lurks nearby to take pictures of Swaggart and the female.

The result? Tragedy. Swaggart, an otherwise decent man, becoming nothing but a pawn in the big-stakes game of power politics. And Robertson, a victim of a baroque political plot.

I think Robertson's suspicions should be taken seriously and an investigation should be conducted. The first thing that should be done is to find and interrogate that hooker.

If Robertson is right, chances are that she'll turn out to be a liberal.

AIDS panel offers first recommendations

WASHINGTON — The chairman of President Ronald Reagan's AIDS panel Wednesday recommended a 10-year, $15 billion drug treatment program to help stem the spread of the AIDS virus among intravenous drug abusers and their children.

The drug program as well as proposals in patient care and drug development were revealed by retired Adm. James Watkins in the panel's first formal recommendations since it began work last summer.

Federal experts, including Surgeon General C. Everett Koop, have said the AIDS virus is spreading rapidly among the 1.2 million intravenous drug abusers in the United States through sharing of needles, but that this population group is the toughest to reach through traditional education methods.

Mob hangs Arab who shot 4-year-old

JERUSALEM — An angry mob hanged an Arab man suspected of cooperating with Israeli officials after he fired on a crowd besieging his house in the occupied West Bank Wednesday, killing a 4-year-old boy and wounding 13 other people, the army said.

The assault on the unidentified Palestinian was believed to be the first lethal attack on an Arab by other Arabs since the anti-Israel uprising exploded Dec. 9.

Soviets begin dismantling missiles

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia — The Soviet Union will begin dismantling shorter-range nuclear missiles based on Czech and East German soil today as a goodwill gesture, the two East European countries said Wednesday.

Moscow announced Monday the missiles will be dismantled and withdrawn from the soil of its Warsaw Pact allies and destroyed after Senate ratification of the U.S.-Soviet treaty banning medium and shorter-range missiles, those with ranges of 300 to 3,400 miles.

Man arrested in theft of 13th Amendment

LA PLATA, Md. — A man was charged Wednesday with stealing an original copy of the 13th Amendment to the Constitution signed by President Abraham Lincoln when he abolished slavery.

The document, 30 historical stamps honoring famous Maryland blacks and a Maryland flag were stolen Feb. 17 from the Charles County Courthouse, police said.

The document, the signing of which abolished slavery, and the stamps and flag were valued at at least $50,000, officials said.

Lt. Dave Bowling, of the Charles County sheriff's office, said the copy of the 13th Amendment, on loan to the courthouse from a county resident, has been recovered and appears undamaged. The stamps, however, have not been found.

Cooper case appealed to High Court

NEWTON, Iowa — The former attorney for the five children of a Cedar Rapids mental patient said Wednesday she has asked the Supreme Court to overturn an Iowa ruling terminating the mother's parental rights and forbidding the children's return to a Kellogg foster home.

Jane Harlan, in a petition to the court, alleges an Iowa Supreme Court ruling last November terminating Karen Cooper's parental rights violates her children's rights to due process and equal protection by denying them a relationship with Larry and Paula Mick of Kellogg.

Paramedics support surcharge plan

DES MOINES — Nearly 200 paramedics and ambulance workers lobbied state lawmakers Wednesday in support of a plan to raise money for emergency medical services by placing a $150 surcharge on fines levied against convicted drunken drivers.

Critics of the proposal offered by Gov. Terry Branstad argue the $150 is excessive, but backers of the effort said during a Statehouse news conference drunken drivers place the biggest strain on emergency systems.

Don Kerns, manager of the Health Department's Emergency Medical Services Program, said drunken drivers caused 200 deaths and more than 3,000 injuries in Iowa in 1985.

The proposed surcharge would raise about $1 million — one-third of what health officials say is necessary to replace cuts in federal funding for emergency training and equipment.

Prostitute gives TV interview

Woman attests to encounter with Swaggart

United Press International

NEW ORLEANS — A woman wanted on a prostitution charge said in a television interview Wednesday she had several sexual encounters with Jimmy Swaggart — including a night when she and the evangelist were photographed as they walked out of a motel room.

"Sometimes I would see him drive down the street every week, and he wouldn't stop unless he knew I was there — sometimes once, twice a month," Deborah Murphree, 28, said in an interview aired on WVUE in New Orleans.

Murphree said she never had intercourse with Swaggart but performed obscene acts for him over a period of about a year, the station reported. The station found Murphree in a hotel in West Palm Beach, Fla., where she had been staying with a friend identified as Joe Martinez for the past four months. The couple checked out after the interview, the station reported.

THE REPORT SAID the Indiana-born woman turned to prostitution to earn a living and had met Swaggart at a motel in Jefferson Parish, adjacent to New Orleans.

In the interview, Murphree spoke of the evening when she was photographed with Swaggart. The existence of the photographs led to Swaggart's tearful public confession of sin against his wife, family and church during a Sunday service at his Family Worship Center at his Jimmy Swaggart World Ministries.

In his public confession, Swaggart said he had sinned against his wife, his family and the church, but did not specify the nature of the sin. He begged forgiveness and said he would stop preaching for an indeterminate time.

The following day, the state district council of the Assemblies of God ordered Swaggart to submit to two years of rehabilitation and stay out of the pulpit for three months.

Swaggart helped topple the PTL founder Jim Bakker by bringing charges of his affair with Jessica Hahn before the national council.

Falwell denied damages from Hustler

By Henry J. Reske

United Press International

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court handed the Rev. Jerry Falwell a bitter defeat Wednesday, ruling he may not collect damages from smut publisher Larry Flynt for an ad parody that portrayed Falwell as an incestuous drunk.

The 11-page decision struck down $200,000 in damages awarded Falwell by a jury that found the ad parody in Hustler magazine that portrayed him having sex with his mother while drunk did not libel him but did cause him emotional distress.

The ruling is a major victory for newspaper cartoonists and satirists who feared if Falwell was able to collect for suffering emotional distress the same standard would apply to them.

Chief Justice William Rehnquist, the court's most conservative member, noted in the 8-0 ruling that from the "early cartoon portraying George Washington as an ass down to the present day, graphic depictions and satirical cartoons have played a prominent role in public and political debate."

"There is no doubt that the caricature of (Falwell) and his mother published in Hustler is at best a distant cousin of the political cartoons described . . . and a rather poor relation at that," Rehnquist said.

HOWEVER, REHNQUIST said that to make an exception for the parody would be a mistake.

"Were we to hold otherwise, there can be little doubt that political cartoonists and satirists would be subjected to damages awards without any showing that their work falsely defamed its subject," Rehnquist said.

Anthony Kennedy, who joined the court last week, took no part in the ruling.

Reacting to the ruling, Falwell said he appreciated the "deep concern the court has shown for the sacredness of the First Amendment."

"However, I respectfully disagree with their ruling. Just as no person may scream 'fire' in a crowded theater when there is no fire, and find cover under the First Amendment, likewise no sleaze merchant like Larry Flynt should be able to use the First Amendment as an excuse for maliciously and dishonestly attacking public figures as he has so often done."

"I believe the Supreme Court has given the green light to Larry Flynt and his ilk to print what they wish about any public figure at any time with no fear of reprisal. However, I am sure the justices, in view of Larry Flynt, were holding their noses while making the ruling."

LATER, IN A news conference held at Love Field in Dallas, where he has a speaking engagement,

Falwell added, "There is a line where the media may not go and that line was crossed by Mr. Flynt when he attacked my mother, who had been in heaven for 10 years."

In Los Angeles, Flynt told UPI that he was afraid the court wouldn't "look at the issue, that they would just say it's the pornographer vs. the preacher."

"I'm glad I won," he said. "We felt we were going to win. I was just hoping that the Supreme Court would have an open eye as to all the ramifications that could come out of a bad decision."

Flynt said of Falwell, "He's just a big windbag. He's right in there with (Jimmy) Swaggart and (Jim) Bakker and all the rest of them, and the sooner they're exposed, the better off it will be for everybody."

He was referring to the two television evangelists who have fallen from grace upon revelations of extra-marital sexual escapades.

Filibuster forces senator's 'arrest'

By Mary Beth Franklin
United Press International

WASHINGTON — Senate Republicans, filibustering a campaign finance bill, railed against the parliamentary arrest of one of their colleagues Wednesday, deriding the Democratic strongarm tactics as akin to "a banana republic."

Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., was tracked to his office by plainclothes U.S. Capitol Police officers apprehended and finally carried into the Senate chamber after he refused to respond to an early morning call to come to work.

Republicans, who oppose the bill to cap special-interest contributions to congressional campaigns, decided to ignore the quorum call, prompting Senate Democratic leader Robert Byrd of West Virginia to direct Sergeant-at-Arms Henry Giugni to round up missing lawmakers.

About 12 hours after the incident, Packwood said the unorthodox arrest created a partisan rift "that is quite serious. . . . It has hardened and disciplined the Republicans, made them mad."

"YOU CANNOT do business around here with brute force," Packwood said. "We operate by consensus."

He said GOP senators will continue their filibuster against the campaign finance bill, which they argue would unfairly benefit Democratic incumbents.

Sen. Arlen Specter, R-Pa., a former Philadelphia district attorney, decried the action as "illegal, unlawful and null and void" and said it "constitutes the false arrest of a U.S. senator."

Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, said the arrest — the first in more than 45 years — had reduced the Senate to the level of "a banana republic and not the greatest deliberative body in the world."

But Sen. John Kerry, D-Mass., defended the extraordinary action as necessary to round up truant Republicans who "decided to abdicate their responsibility" by refusing to participate in the nation's business.

AT BYRD'S direction, Giugni led five armed plainclothesmen on a midnight manhunt. They checked the "hideaway" offices in the Capitol, then went to the mostly dark and deserted Russell Senate Office building. They reached Packwood's haven shortly after 12 a.m. CST

"I served him his warrant. He didn't want to come," Giugni said. "I had to shove in the door . . . and I think he hurt his finger."

Packwood, who broke a finger on his left hand a few weeks ago, told reporters Wednesday afternoon the injury sustained when he tried to barricade himself in his office was "not serious." As cameras clicked, he re-enacted his arrest, pointing and jabbing with his hand encased in a cast and wrapped in gauze.

Giugni said Packwood walked from his office across the street to the Capitol, but four Capitol employees had to carry the senator into the chamber when he refused to enter. Although warrants were issued for other Republican senators, only Packwood was arrested.

It was the first time a senator had been arrested since 1942 when Sens. Burnet Maybank, D-S.C., and Lister Hill, D-Ala., were hauled into the chamber during a filibuster against a bill eliminating the poll tax in federal elections.

Rather than breaking the filibuster as intended, the unusual action appeared to stiffen the Republicans' resolve to continue delaying action on the campaign bill.

emotion-charged speech said it was time for him to go.

"There is a time for a man to serve his country and a time for him to leave the scene," said the former general, who had promised to open a new era of civilian rule and end a cycle of coups and civil uprisings that have plagued South Korean politics.

EARLIER WEDNESDAY, dissidents battled police in the capital and several other cities and briefly took over the U.S. government office building in protests against Roh, Chun's friend and military academy classmate.

In Seoul, five radical students brandishing knives and presumed explosives seized a U.S. Embassy building and briefly held 30 to 40 people hostage, releasing them before riot police stormed the building at the request of U.S. officials.

The students staging the takeover of the United States Information Service building said they were from the Youth-Student Death Squad for National Salvation and carried what looked like plastic explosives.

Two or three explosions were heard during the siege, which lasted about one hour. U.S. officials later said the explosions were probably large firecrackers or small homemade explosives.

HOURS LATER, a violent protest broke out in the city center when 2,000 dissidents and students, chanting "stop Roh Tae-woo, the killer, from coming to power," clashed with riot police, hurling rocks and firebombs in the main downtown shopping district.

Hurling rocks and Molotov cocktails at riot police, the protesters chanted "Down with the dictatorship" as the helmeted police responded with volleys of tear-gas grenades.

About 3,000 other anti-government dissidents staged protests in eight cities, many clashing with riot police, news reports said.

The protests erupted as U.S. Treasury Secretary James Baker, Japanese Prime Minister Noboru Takeshita and other foreign dignitaries arrived in Seoul to attend Roh's inaugural ceremonies.

SEOUL, South Korea — President Chun Doo Hwan relinquished his post Wednesday to his friend Roh Tae-woo in a transfer of power protested by thousands of dissidents who fought police and briefly took over a U.S. government office building.

Roh officially took power at midnight (9 a.m. CST Wednesday), when Chun's term expired, and formal inauguration ceremonies were scheduled this morning, when police expected more violent demonstrations.

As his last official function, Chun, 57, who took power through a coup, attended a farewell dinner Wednesday night and in an ing speeches or granting interviews.

The ban was the most sweeping since groups opposing white-minority rule were outlawed in a clampdown in 1977 after the Soweto riots.

THE EMERGENCY ORDER, signed by President Pieter W. Botha, will limit the 800,000-member Congress of South African Trade Unions to labor activities, thereby effectively silencing one of the country's most potent voices of black-majority opposition to the apartheid system of racial separation.

The decree, announced by Law and Order Minister Adriaan Vlok, says that the UDF and the other restricted anti-apartheid groups may continue to exist, and will not be prohibited from keeping financial records, performing "administrative functions" or "complying with an obligation imposed . . . by or under any law or court of law." But they will have to obtain the law and order minister's permission to conduct any other activities, and those activities must not endanger public safety or law and order.

Some of the affected organizations said they will challenge the restrictions in court.

VLOK SAID HE was convinced the new regulations will "contribute to a climate of stability, peaceful coexistence and good neighborliness among all population groups."

However, anti-apartheid leaders predicted that the decree, which does not require parliamentary approval, will trigger a renewal of the kind of violence that led to the imposition of a nationwide state of emergency 20 months ago.

The Rev. Alan Boesak, a founder of the UDF, said, "Every single peaceful action we can take has now been criminalized." Boesak said the government's action will drive more anti-apartheid activists underground and leave them with violence as the only available option.

Boesak and other anti-apartheid leaders suggested that the government's motive for implementing the curbs now was to head off a black boycott of nationwide municipal elections scheduled for October. The UDF has opposed black participation in the planned township elections.

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — In its harshest state-of-emergency crackdown on political opposition, the South African government Wednesday effectively banned 17 leading anti-apartheid organizations, including the United Democratic Front coalition, and prohibited the country's largest trade union federation from conducting political activities.

At the same time, the government announced it will release from detention some of the opposition groups' leaders, but under individual banning orders that include house arrest after working hours. Some UDF officials were individually banned from working for the organization, writing articles, giv-

Soviet press recounts Beria's arrest

By Charles Mitchell
United Press International

MOSCOW — Josef Stalin's secret police chief, the man who helped the iron-fisted ruler send millions of people to their deaths, turned green and reached for a gun when the Politburo voted to execute him following Stalin's death, according to an unprecedented newspaper account Wednesday.

Nikita Khrushchev led the Politburo in a victory toast only minutes after Lavrenty Beria, Stalin's ruthless secret police chief, was dragged from a Kremlin meeting room following a Politburo vote approving his execution as an "agent of imperialism," the weekly Literaturnaya Gazeta Soviet newspaper said.

It was only Khrushchev's quick reaction that prevented the dreaded KGB chief from trying to shoot his way out of the 1953 Politburo meeting that condemned him to death, the paper said.

THE STORY marked the first time details of the arrest and execution of Beria and of the Politburo wheeling and dealing that led to his disappearance have been made public inside the Soviet Union.

It said Beria, responsible for sending millions to their deaths in the slave labor camps of the Stalin era, "turned green" as he sat watching his fellow Politburo members condemn him to death.

The story was written by Fyodor Burlatsky, an aide to Khrushchev, and was based on conversations with Khrushchev, who succeeded Stalin but was ousted in 1964 and died in 1971. Stalin ruled the Soviet Union for nearly three decades until his death in 1953.

Khrushchev's memoirs have been published in the West, but not in the Soviet Union, where he remains a virtual non-person in history.

THE FRANK treatment by Literaturnaya Gazeta, the newspaper of the country's writers' union, of the plotting, wheeling and dealing inside the Politburo that led to Beria's execution was unprecedented in the popular press.

Most Soviets know only that Beria disappeared. The circumstances have never before been made public in the Soviet Union.

The article, the latest in a series of stories in the national press filling in so-called "blank spots" in the history of Stalin's reign, followed a piece in Komsomolskaya Pravda newspaper Sunday that revealed for the first time to Soviet audiences the exact circumstances of the wartime leader's death from a stroke.

Komsomolskaya Pravda said Stalin was left without medical treatment and dying on the floor of his bedroom for four hours because his bodyguards were too frightened to enter his room without permission.

The Literaturnaya Gazeta story added another detail to that saga. It said Stalin, who only months before had ordered the arrests of several doctors he thought were trying to poison him, had grown so paranoid that the only person he trusted to treat him in the four days between his stroke and his death was an army major, who happened to be a veterinary assistant.

Literaturnaya Gazeta also described verbatim conversations between Burlatsky and Khrushchev.

Khrushchev said the Politburo was at Kuntsevo, Stalin's country home, when the dictator died March 5, 1953.

"We stood there by the dead body, almost not talking among ourselves . . ." Khrushchev said.

Simon passes up Southern campaign

By Charles J. Abbott
United Press International

WASHINGTON — Sen. Paul Simon, acknowledging he lacks the money to compete in the 20-state Super Tuesday voting, said Wednesday he will spend his time and money campaigning in Illinois and the other major industrial states.

"This is not simply an Illinois strategy. This is a winning strategy," Simon said at a news conference following a speech to labor activists.

The decision represents a sharp switch for Simon, who on Tuesday night he expected to focus on some of the Southern states while hoping for a campaign payoff in the North. Simon still is seeking his first victory in his campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination.

He was second in Iowa, third in New Hampshire and Tuesday night he was third in Minnesota's caucuses and fourth in the South Dakota primary.

DESPITE THOSE showings, Simon said he ranks second in delegates chosen in the four states. He coupled that with his opinion there will be no pre-convention winner among the Democratic candidates in deciding to emphasize the states following the March 8 Super Tuesday contests, most of which are in the South.

"But we do not have the resources for winning in the Super States," Simon said. "The campaign will begin anew after Super Tuesday, starting in Illinois."

Illinois and Wisconsin hold the first big-state primaries after Super Tuesday, Illinois on March 15 and Wisconsin, April 5.

"Between now and March 15, I will campaign in Illinois and the states that follow Illinois. I will participate in national debates that permit me to call on the people of this nation to make a substantial change in our course."

SIMON TOLD reporters he still hopes to win delegates in the South and he may make a few trips to Super Tuesday states, but he will focus on the states that elect delegates after Super Tuesday.

"The reality . . . (is) 20 states at the same time. There's no sense fooling myself," Simon said. "We just don't have the resources."

Simon has described himself as the candidate representing the progressive wing of the Democratic Party and a supporter of an activist role for the federal government in trying to help people resolve their problems.

Contras

The House had planned a vote today on the competing proposals, but the leadership postponed it until Tuesday to give everyone more time to study them. The Republicans want approval of $36 million in aid for the guerrillas — $11 million a month for non-military assistance which could still include airplane radar, jeeps and other passive military equipment, and $14 million to help care for children injured in the civil conflict.

THE REPUBLICAN proposal would allow the CIA to deliver the aid, while the Democrats bar the agency from involvement.

The Democratic leadership has proposed a $30 million package of humanitarian aid, with nothing to fuel the war. A spokesman said the White House had reservations about the Democrats' package. House Speaker Jim Wright of Texas defended the Democrats' plan as "ample and sufficient," and a reasonable alternative to Reagan's $36.3 million plan voted down by the House, 219-211, Feb. 3.

The Senate voted the next day in favor of the president's request, 51-48, but the vote was meaningless in light of the House action.

At the time of the House vote, Wright and other Democratic leaders pledged to propose an alternative aid package without any money for weapons.

AT THAT time, the "sense of the House was that people wanted to be fair to the Contras, who our government lured into battle . . . and not leave them vulnerable,"

Wright told reporters Wednesday. The Democrats' proposal is "a good bill and one that gives incentive to both sides" — the Sandinista government and the Contra guerrilla forces — to negotiate for peace and democracy in Central America, the speaker said.

Of Republican objections, Wright said, "The only thing they can find fault with is that we don't send weapons down there."

But Republican leaders indicated their substitute plan would be similar to the president's but without any military aid.

Wright, told of the GOP proposal, said it was "not a great deal different from what we're offering," but Rep. David Bonior, D-Mich., head of the group that drafted the Democratic plan, said, "Ours is true humanitarian."

THE DEMOCRATS' plan would provide $14.56 million for food, clothing and medicine and the costs of delivering the supplies to the Contras, along with $1.4 million for Nicaraguan Indians who have fought the Sandinista regime, but recently agreed to a truce during the peace negotiations. Another $14 million would aid children who are victims of the war.

Wright acknowledged that some Democrats — those opposed to any Contra aid — will not support the proposal. "There will be some who will not vote for anything. I don't know how many," he said. Bonior quickly said there would be "very few" Democrats voting against it.

The speaker said most members would view the $14 million for child victims of the civil war as an "attractive" provision.

Reagan

He would not be drawn into battles among GOP candidates for the White House, particularly the squabbling between Vice President George Bush and Senate GOP leader Robert Dole of Kansas. "They know my feelings, all of them, about the Eleventh Commandment," Reagan said, referring to the rule, "Thou shalt speak no ill of another Republican."

The president appeared fit but a bit tense as he faced direct, sustained questioning for the first time since Oct. 22. He opened the East Room session with a fast quip. Smiling around the room as he laid down the notes for his opening statement, he said, "On the networks at last" — a reference to his failure to win air time on Feb. 1 for a speech promoting aid to the Nicaraguan Contra rebels.

He was fully into the rhythm of the session quickly, however, responding firmly to questions about "sleaze" in his administration by criticizing "a kind of lynch mob atmosphere."

"NO ATTENTION is paid to how many actually came to trial," the president said of the aides and associates accused of wrongdoing. "In the meantime, they have been smeared nationwide."

As for the troubles of his longtime friend, Attorney General Edwin Meese, the president was brief and direct: "Let me say just one thing. I have every confidence in his integrity." Reagan declined further comment because Meese now is the focus of an independent prosecutor's probe into his ties to a controversial Iraqi pipeline project. The president said he does not recall having known about the pipeline project in fall of 1985, at the time Meese was told of plans to pay up to $700 million to the Israeli Labor party to win their support. Payments to political parties is illegal.

In addition to a brief review of the Shultz mission to the Middle East, Reagan dwelt at length in his three-minute opening statement with efforts to win aid for the Contras. He reiterated his arguments that the guerrilla force keeps pressure on "the communist regime" in Managua to live up to its promises of peace.

ON THE West Bank and Gaza violence, which has left about 50 Palestinians dead and scores with broken limbs and other injuries, Reagan offered just a tidbit of apparently secret intelligence about the source of the violence, which began before Christmas.

"We have had intimations that there have been certain people suspected of being terrorists — outsiders — coming in not only with weapons, but stirring up and encouraging the trouble in those areas," he said.

vik, an art major, said. "It was something wild," Dykhouse, a film major, added. "A lot of people were opposed to it because it wasn't a painting and they wanted some sort of justification for it."

BUT OTHERS, Dykhouse said, thought the work was exciting and innovative.

"One person thought it was a good example of our society as a disposable society where we use things up and discard them," Nasvik said.

Nasvik and Dykhouse came up with the idea for the sculpture this winter when their Volkswagen bus broke down. They were planning to use parts from the bus to create the sculpture, but couldn't retrieve the vehicle from the Moline Police Department where it was being stored.

Instead, they found two Chevrolets in a cow pasture near West Branch and got the farmer who owned the land to let them use the cars.

"We had been thinking about cars a lot because our bus died," Nasvik said.

"We wanted to get across a skeletal, ghostly feeling — an image of an American icon," Dykhouse said of the sculpture, which is actually a mixture of two makes of Chevrolet Deluxes from the 1950's.

DYKHOUSE SAID he was initially confused about the car's appearance in the Union Field, but was excited about it when he found it was used in part as a protest to the parking lot.

"It's great that the same piece can be used to stand for two different ideas — especially when one is in protest, something with a little politics in it," he said.

Ostrander said he will have the UI Physical Plant move the car sometime before spring activities begin there. He said he would not punish anyone for the prank.

"Good, then they won't be upset when we put something else there," the perpetrator said upon hearing Ostrander's reaction.

Ambrisco said the Iowa Legislature seemed reluctant to deal with the issue because of the controversy it has generated in counties throughout the state.

"I think there needs to be some tidying up done on a state legislative level," he said.

'Star Game' shows insight

By Chuck Hauck
The Daily Iowan

Among the most impressive stories in Lucia Nevai's fine collection, Star Game, are those which explore her characters' romantic dreams of emotional or material fulfillment.

Nevai, a New York City writer, recently won an Iowa Short Fiction Award for these stories, many of which deftly illuminate contemporary characters by impoverishment — both emotional and physical — and repression.

From New York City and upstate New York to rural Iowa and such exotic locales as Cairo, Nevai's characters hold onto fragile dreams of what their worlds could be. In "Likely Houses," one of the best of the 14 stories, the main character, Alice, overcomes the objections of her unemployed, tow-truck-driving husband and strikes out to improve their lot by selling encyclopedias door-to-door.

Books

ALICE WANTS the American dream of a house with a green yard and everything that goes with it instead of the junk-strewn, dirt-encircled shack she and her family live in. She wants something like the neat, red house on top of the hill which she can see from her kitchen window. By following the encyclopedia company's "Six Steps to a Super Sale" and visiting enough "likely houses" — those with trikes and bikes out front to indicate the presence of kids for whom parents would buy the books — Alice hopes to achieve success.

Nevai masterfully develops Alice's increasing confidence — and her insecure husband's jealousy. Finally, in an enlightening meeting with the woman who lives in the red house, Alice discovers that perhaps the likely houses are not so likely after all. The woman in the red house tells her: "All your wishing and wanting — it don't end up making any difference. Your hubby will die on you and your children will move to California like mine and all that will be left of your life is how much love you actually gave them."

NEVAI IS particularly adept at describing the delicate bonds between lovers — some married, some not — in such fine stories as "The Nile," and in illustrating the shifting, tenuous quality of parent-child relationships in "Mother's Day" and "The Sad-Womb Son."

Nevai's eye for significant detail is sharp, and she has a wonderful sense of humor which surfaces periodically. In "Star Game," Kaitlin, the young, health-food-conscious lover of the middle-aged, divorced Conner, discovers an album as she thumbs through his record collection.

"Who's Bod Die-lun?" she asks.

After correcting Kaitlin's pronunciation, Lilly, Conner's married-but-still-jealous friend, replies: "He's one of the songwriters who started the whole folk song thing. . . You probably heard his songs first in the supermarket."

LUCIA NEVAI KNOWS where the fault lines are between the generations — and between men and women — and she illuminates them well. As a collection, Star Game suffers slightly from the inclusion of two stories, "Conner's Lake" and "Hooked," which are simply too brief and insubstantial to achieve sufficient impact. Also, "Mr. Feathers," with its glibness and the rather anonymous qualities of its characters, seems out of place.

Those reservations aside, Star Game demonstrates what can be done with patient and careful writing, and what can be seen and heard and felt by a writer with a keen eye, a sensitive ear and a compassionate heart.

Ashkenazy discusses career

By Daniel Cariage
Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES — Vladimir Ashkenazy is perfectly willing to praise the piano concerto that Andre Previn wrote for him three years ago — the concerto that he, Previn, and the Los Angeles Philharmonic will give its U.S. premiere tonight in Los Angeles. But — beyond that — he does not want to say too much about it.

"What's the point of describing to you something you will hear for yourself?" he asked during a backstage interview at the Los Angeles Music Center recently. "I can only say that it's attractive."

What he would discuss in his no-nonsense English is his now-thriving career as a conductor, a career going back 18 years.

"I never deliberately directed myself at becoming a conductor," the 50-year-old Russian-born conductor-pianist recalled. "But now I see that I have been preparing for many years to do this."

IN 1987, ASHKENAZY was appointed music director of the London-based Royal Philharmonic; at the end of 1989 he will add the Berlin Radio Orchestra to his list of musical responsibilities.

"As long as I can remember, I spent a lot of time listening to orchestral music, immersing myself in it as well as in piano music and vocal music. Of course, in the Soviet Union we had many orchestras, and I would always attend concerts by the Leningrad Philharmonic and others. I didn't think about it, but I was immersing myself in the orchestral repertory," he said.

Then in 1955, the year he turned 18, Ashkenazy heard the Boston Symphony in Moscow: "That was for me quite a revelation. Even though I was used to hearing good orchestras, the sound of this one made a big impression on me."

ASHKENAZY SAYS he has never separated in his mind the different functions of being a musician — specifically, the functions of conducting and playing the piano.

What Ashkenazy has discovered in the past 10 years about conducting, he said, is that he believes he was always meant to do it, and that circumstances have now brought him to it.

"For many years, I've been in a state of ambiguousness about conducting. I never came to a real decision to do it, or not to do it," he said. "Then I realized that everything that happened in my musical life had been leading up to this. It was actually a natural development. Then I knew that it is the right thing for me."

Ashkenazy said he met Previn in 1962, when he played his first Los Angeles recital. "He came backstage and was very friendly and nice," he said. "It was not a long time after that that I began asking him to write a concerto for me. Eventually, he did write 'The Invisible Drummer,' a suite of five pieces, for me — it is something which I have played a lot. But, I always told him, this is not enough. I still want a concerto. Finally, he wrote it."

"Star Trek — Patterns of Force" — Professor Gill, Kirk's history teacher from the academy, patterns the planet Ekos after Nazi Germany, with faith that he can keep things from going to heck in a handbasket. Kirk and crew scrape up what's left when this goofy experiment flops (11 p.m.; KCRG 9).

"Wild America — Minnesota Mink" — Learn the truth about this much-slaughtered critter: The wild mink is as graceful in water as an otter, as feisty on land as a wolverine and as pungent under stress as a skunk (7 p.m.; IPTV 12).

"Wild Side — The Great Hedgehog Mystery" — Presumably about that cuddliest and most familiar of all Erinaceidae (7:30 p.m.; IPTV 12).

Wrigley Field lights still causing controversy

Chicago City Council to make final decision on future of North Side night baseball games

Chicago Acting Mayor Eugene Sawyer is working to get lights for Wrigley Field.

By Susan Kuczka
United Press International

CHICAGO — A showdown on whether the Chicago Cubs will be allowed to install lights and play a limited number of night games at Wrigley Field is expected today when the City Council meets in special session to decide the issue.

A council committee voted earlier this week to allow the National League club to install lights at the major league's only unlit park in order to play at least eight night games this season, beginning in July.

The compromise proposal, which would remain in effect until Dec. 31, 2002, also would allow the Cubs to play 18 night games beginning in the 1989 season while the number of 3:05 p.m. starts would drop from 29 to seven.

Acting Mayor Eugene Sawyer and his council allies introduced the compromise proposal over the opposition of community activists, who argued allowing night games at Wrigley Field would harm the tranquility of their neighborhood.

TO EASE THOSE fears, the 19-page proposal mandates no beer sales at the park after the seventh inning or 9:20 p.m., whichever comes first, and calls for additional off-street parking to be provided by the Cubs. The agreement also calls for residential permit parking when night games are scheduled.

Sawyer and his council supporters claim immediate approval of the lights ordinance is necessary in order for the team to be able to meet a deadline today to bid for the 1990 All-Star Game, and to guarantee lights can be installed in time for night games this season.

The Tribune Co., owners of the Cubs, has been fighting the last seven years to have lights installed at Wrigley Field despite city and state laws that have effectively banned night games at the North Side ballpark.

TRIBUNE CO. OFFICIALS argued playing only daytime games puts the Cubs at a disadvantage, and night games would boost attendance and television revenues as well as assure the Cubs the ability to play any post-season games at home.

Two weeks ago, aldermen threatened to scuttle the ordinance after the Chicago Tribune newspaper, which also is owned by Tribune Co., printed an editorial calling them "boneheads" and "political bums."

Chicago's Wrigley Field is under controversy over the use of lights. A Chicago City Council vote today may allow the Cubs to play eight night games starting in July.

Cassini thrown in race debut

FREEHOLD, N.J. (UPI) — Oleg Cassini's long-awaited debut in his new career as a professional harness driver was spoiled Wednesday when his horse reared, dumping the 74-year-old fashion designer on the ground.

Cassini was unhurt in the incident, which occurred during the post parade before the fourth race at Freehold Raceway, but had to scratch from the race and was ordered by a track doctor to sit out the rest of the day.

Cassini, the oldest person ever issued a provisional driving license by the U.S. Trotting Association, vowed to return to drive in the fourth and sixth races today.

Trump will sponsor Tyson-Spinks bout

LAWRENCEVILLE, N.J. (UPI) — Developer Donald Trump said Wednesday he had outmaneuvered Las Vegas casinos and will sponsor the coveted heavyweight title fight between champion Mike Tyson and challenger Michael Spinks June 27 in Atlantic City.

"I have a commitment on the fight and we anticipate having the fight in Atlantic City at Trump Plaza (Hotel and Casino) on June 27," Trump told reporters after an unrelated appearance at the New Jersey Casino Control Commission.

Trump Plaza is adjacent to Convention Hall, where the match is expected to take place.

Trump, who owns or controls three casino hotels in Atlantic City, scheduled a news conference for today at Trump Tower in New York to announce details of the fight.

Tyson, the undisputed champion at 33-0 with 29 knockouts, is expected to earn between $15 and $20 million for defending his title. Spinks, 32-0 with 21 knockouts, is guaranteed $13 million.

Trump said he is paying "a substantial price" to bring the fighters together but did not specify the amount.

Judge halts hearing on Pats' dispute

DEDDHAM, Mass. (UPI) — A judge Wednesday postponed a hearing into the dispute over control of the financially-ailing New England Patriots.

Norfolk Superior Court Judge Harold Flannery postponed until March 7 the continuance of a hearing into the dispute over control of the NFL franchise, which is reportedly $82 million in debt.

Meanwhile, New York real estate baron Donald Trump renewed his interest in buying the team, but only if he received pre-approval by 21 of the league's 27 other owners.

USOC appoints Steinbrenner to panel

CALGARY, Alberta (UPI) — The U.S. Olympic Committee Wednesday appointed New York Yankees owner George Steinbrenner to head a group that will study whether American athletes are properly prepared for international competition.

"I am rather outspoken and everyone on this commission will tell it like it is," said Steinbrenner, a former junior Olympian and current member of the USOC board of directors. "I think I know what we need to produce winning teams."

The special Olympic Overview Commission, appointed by USOC President Robert Helmick, will review the funding, structure and performance of the USOC and recommend changes. The panel will make its first report in April.

The bottom line, as Steinbrenner sees it, has not been impressive for American athletes at these Winter Olympics. With four days to go, the United States had just two golds and four medals overall. It has been 52 years since U.S. athletes won fewer than seven medals at a Winter Games.

"The committee will look at how we use our funds and if we are doing our best for our athletes when they go out and compete," Steinbrenner said.

Joining Steinbrenner on the commission will be former Olympic gold-medal swimmer Donna de Varona; James T. Morris, president of the Lilly Foundation; Ambassador J. William Middendorf; Robert Shepard, former chairman of All State Insurance; Franck Heffron, dean of the business school at Fordham; and Mike Leonard, a former member of the U.S. Olympic team handball squad.

Orr thrown out in Cyclones' loss

AMES (UPI) — Sophomore guard Steve Henson set a school record by shooting and making seven consecutive free throws and scored 24 points to lead Kansas State to an 83-66 win over Iowa State Wednesday night.

Iowa State Coach Johnny Orr was tossed out of the game after being assessed his third technical foul with 10:31 left in the second half. Game officials called five technicals on the Cyclones during the course of the game.

Four of the technicals, two on Orr, one on the Iowa State team for coming out on the floor and one on Lafester Rhodes, came after a short player altercation.

Oklahoma assures tie for Big Eight title

NORMAN, Okla. (UPI) — Stacey King scored 22 points Wednesday night to lead No. 4 Oklahoma to a 95-87 victory over Kansas that assures the Sooners at least a tie for the Big Eight Conference regular-season title.

Kansas senior center Danny Manning led all scorers with 30 points to break the conference career-scoring record. Manning, in his fourth season, has 2,665 total points and broke the mark of 2,661 scored by Oklahoma's Wayman Tisdale in three seasons from 1983-85.

Celtics waive Daye from roster

BOSTON (UPI) — The Boston Celtics waived forward Darren Daye Wednesday to make room on the roster for newly acquired guard Jim Paxson.

Daye, 27, a fifth-year NBA player, played in 47 games for the Celtics this season, averaging 6.0 points, 1.6 rebounds and 1.5 assists. He was obtained by Boston in December 1986 after being waived by the Chicago Bulls.

Paxson was obtained Tuesday from the Portland Trail Blazers in a trade for guard Jerry Sichting, who had been on the injured list.

Lendl advances, breezes by Reneberg

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Top seed Ivan Lendl cruised to a 6-2, 6-2 victory over Richey Reneberg Wednesday night in the $600,000 U.S. Pro Indoor tennis championships.

Lendl, the No. 1 player in the world, had a first-round bye and encountered little trouble in disposing of Reneberg, advancing to a third-round matchup against 16th-seeded John Fitzgerald.

In other second-round matches, Jim Grabb upset No. 8 seed Tomas Smid, 6-4, 6-7 (12-14), 6-3; No. 9 Kevin Curren dispatched Chris Pridham of Canada, 7-6 (7-2), 6-3; Ken Flach ousted No. 10 Kelly Evernden, 7-5, 0-6, 6-3; No. 14 Dan Goldie defeated Grant Connell, 3-6, 7-5, 6-4; and No. 15 Johan Kriek topped Gary Muller, 6-2, 6-2.

Mandlikova manhandles Turnbull in Slims

FAIRFAX, Va. (UPI) — Hana Mandlikova opened defense of her title at the Virginia Slims Tournament of Washington by downing Wendy Turnbull Wednesday, and Pam Shriver, Barbara Potter and 16-year-old Soviet Natalia Zvereva gained the quarterfinals.

Mandlikova, the tournament's fourth seed, overcame a slow start against her frequent doubles partner en route to a 6-3, 6-2 triumph in a first-round match at the $300,000 tournament.

NORTHWESTERN CUT Iowa's 44-34 halftime lead to 46-40 in the opening three minutes of the second half. The Hawkeyes' press then helped Iowa score 10 straight points to grab a 56-40 advantage with 14:05 remaining.

Northwestern fought back on the long range shooting of Jeff Grose, who had 18 points, and Phil Styles to climb within 64-58 with 9:04 left.

A Bo Cucuz dunk and a tip-in by Morris pulled the Wildcats to within 64-64, but Northwestern was forced to call its final timeout with 5:59 remaining after a Marble lay-up, steal and assist to Michael Reeves made it 76-64.

Bill Jones added 13 points and Kent Hill had 12 for Iowa, which beat Northwestern 92-68 in Iowa City last month. Jones also had five steals.

After spotting the Hawkeyes an early lead, Grose helped North-selected by a major network or the Big Ten Network. RCM also produces games for the Big Ten, Illinois, Purdue, Michigan, Michigan State, CBS and ESPN.

RCM, based in Champaign, Ill., televises Iowa games to seven stations in Iowa, two in Nebraska and one in Phoenix, Ariz.

DUCHOSSIS Communications, among its properties, owns KDSM-TV in Des Moines and radio station WASK-AM-FM in Lafayette, Ind.

Raycom official Rick Ray said the network covers 250 events per year, including Big Eight and Pacific Ten basketball, the Kickoff Classic and the Liberty and Bluebonnet Bowls.

Multimedia owns four AM radio stations, four FM radio stations and five television stations.

According to a release, Iowa basketball games attract at least 50 percent of the television viewers in the state, making them an attractive commercial property. Television ratings determine how much commercials can be sold for.

"Iowa basketball games receive very high television ratings which makes them very attractive to advertisers," RCM President Bill Rasmussen said. "I don't know of another school that has a more financially rewarding television agreement. We at RCM are extremely happy to be a part of it."

"We are delighted with our new television agreement," Iowa Athletic Director Bump Elliott said, according to a release. "RCM has demonstrated it can successfully market sports packages. It has certainly done a fine job with our program the past year."

Elliott could not be reached Wednesday night for further comment.

Former Iowa wrestler Andy Haman strikes the pose which made him Mr. Natural Chicago Feb. 12 in Chicago. Haman competes in events where the use of anabolic steroids is prohibited.

Ex-Iowa grappler is naturally pumped

By Scott Wingert
The Daily Iowan

Andy Haman is a natural. The former Iowa wrestler turned body builder competes in his new sport without the aid of anabolic steroids or growth-inducing drugs — with very successful results.

In March 1987, Haman became the first Mr. Natural Iowa in the 198-pound-and-above category. Two weeks ago, he captured the Mr. Natural Chicago title in Des Plaines, Ill. Natural body building is a new sport, and Haman competed in only the third Chicago contest.

"I won a Mr. Teenage Iowa competition as a freshman and just stuck with it," Haman said. "I tried to incorporate body building into wrestling, but now it's the wrestling disciplines which aid my body building."

Haman, 22, won a state heavyweight wrestling title as an Iowa City High senior in 1984. He wrestled three years for the Hawkeyes before severely injuring his left knee at the Olympic Sports Festival in 1987.

THAT INJURY ENDED Haman's wrestling career and turned his body-building hobby into a full-time specialty. He now lives by a regimen that includes strict caloric intake and full scrutiny of his diet six to eight weeks before competitions.

"We take two urine samples and a polygraph test before each competition," Haman said. "What we are trying to do is clean this sport up and make it an Olympic sport. There's no way it can be done with the drug innuendoes."

"It hurts a little to walk down the street and hear someone say 'steroids' under their breath. People don't know about this sport so they continue to have that attitude."

Haman, who now bench presses 425 pounds, squats 600 and can curl 225 six times, credits Iowa assistant wrestling coach Mark Johnson with encouraging him to try the sport.

JOHNSON, ALSO A body builder and a member of the United States' Olympic Greco-Roman wrestling team in 1980, said the returns from body building are positive and long-term.

"You become so conscious of everything you put into your body that your diet naturally promotes well-being," Johnson said. "There are many champions in their thirties with a leaner, more defined look. It's definitely a lifetime sport."

KMEG

Lewis said he was upset by the ruling.

"It's ludicrous. I'm stunned. I can't believe the judge did what he did," Lewis said. "It scares me to think what our open records laws mean."

On Jan. 26, KMEG originally asked for a temporary injunction to prohibit the Iowa Athletic Department from awarding a television rights package for Hawkeye football and basketball games for any period past June 30, 1989.

THE INJUNCTION was denied Jan. 28 and Rasmussen was awarded the rights to the package for the next five seasons Monday.

Lewis said he believes there is a relationship between the release of the court decision and the UI's awarding the television package to Rasmussen.

"I don't think there's any question the two are related," Lewis said. "They (UI) held off awarding any contracts until after the apparent litigation was filed. Then the UI felt they could award the package to anyone they wanted to."

Lewis said it was unfair that Rasmussen had sole possession of the value of the bids and said he wasn't surprised that Rasmussen won the package rights for the next five seasons.

"I'm mad," he said, "but this may not be over yet."

Coach Jeff Jost had ordered a time trial for today among the three American bobsled teams to choose the two sleds that will compete next weekend. Roy and Jost wound up yelling at each other in front of fans and reporters.

"Don't do this Matt," Jost pleaded with Roy as the crowd of onlookers grew. "Not here in front of these people and the press."

Nykanen claimed his fifth overall Olympic medal to become the most prolific ski jumper in Olympic history.

points and is almost assured of finishing without a medal for the second time in the last seven Olympics.

Czechoslovakia's Jiri Hrdina, who will remain in Calgary and join the Flames following the Games, missed a penalty shot in the second period that would have pulled his team within a goal. His shot went over the crossbar.

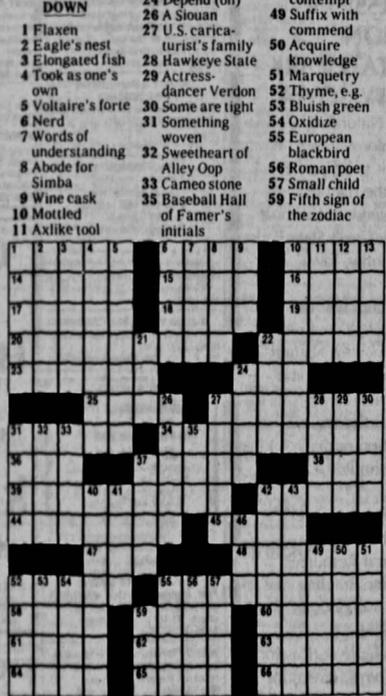

Dominik Hasek, Czechoslovakia's No. 1 goalie who entered the tournament nursing torn stomach muscles, played less than 39 minutes in the preliminary round and had given up five goals.

Woman, 83, killed with barbiturate

United Press International

RIVERSIDE, Calif. — The death of an ailing 83-year-old woman, whose son had her head removed and frozen in the hope that she could be cured in the future, was a homicide expedited by a lethal dose of barbiturate, the coroner's office said Wednesday.

After two months of investigation, toxicological experts classified Dora Kent's death "as homicide with administration of medicinal drugs," said Dan Cupido, a spokesman for the Riverside County Coroner's Office.

Cupido, who said the case had been referred to the district attorney's office for possible prosecution, said Kent received a lethal injection of a barbiturate.

Asked if Kent died as a direct result of the injection, Cupido said, "It expedited her death."

The coroner's office revised its previous death certificate that said death occurred naturally from pneumonia and severe arteriosclerosis.

CARLOS MONDRAGON, a spokesman for Alcor Life Extension Foundation, the Riverside cynics laboratory where Kent's head was severed and frozen, was unavailable for comment.

Mrs. Kent's head has disappeared from Alcor, which obtained a court order Feb. 1 banning coroner's officials from thawing any of the half-dozen bodies or heads found submerged in super-cold liquid nitrogen by investigators.

2 fraternities have game suspended after scuffle

By Bryce Miller
The Daily Iowan

The tempers of some intramural basketball competitors have matched the feverish intensity of its contests.

In a brawl a la Georgetown-Pittsburgh, two resident fraternities Sunday gave their best impressions of Perry McDonald and Jerome Lane and the Field House intramural matchup had to be suspended because of the ruckus.

Although this was an extreme incident, sportsmanship in intramural activity this year has reached an "all-time low," according to associate director of Intramurals Warren Slebos.

"We have had an unusually high number of problems connected to intramurals this year," he said. "The type of attitudes we have seen so far has forced us into proposing some stricter guidelines for next year's program."

THE PROPOSAL Slebos has suggested includes a merit system that awards points for sportsmanship and would be tallied before the playoffs. Any team that fails to accumulate a certain number of points will not be allowed to advance into the playoffs.

This is just an idea, but Slebos said he feels it is necessary to correct the situation at hand.

"Too many participants see the college players slugging it out and feel they can do it to," he said. "We've seen it before. It seems to parallel the national scene."

Iowa athletes were also grappling in Ames Sunday, but it was part of the scheduled sport. The Hawkeye intramural wrestling champions faced the best of Iowa State intramurals prior to the Iowa-Iowa State dual.

Like Coach Dan Gable's squad, the Iowa

Intramurals

intramural matmen pulled out a slim win over the Cyclones. After the dust settled, the final team scoring gave the Hawkeyes a 22-20 victory.

Iowa victors included Bill Glenn at 134 pounds, Joe Van Cleve at 167, Bill Bussey at 190 and Mark Young at heavyweight. The most dramatic win for the Hawkeyes came at 177 pounds.

Iowa's Tim Gibbons, brother of Iowa State Coach Jim Gibbons, pinned last year's Outstanding Intramural Wrestler Tom Stutting. The match was stopped numerous times to monitor a shoulder injury to Gibbons, but he opted to continue and gained the victory and the 1988 Outstanding Intramural Wrestling honor.

• The Nike three-point shooting competition will take place tonight at the Field House. Although the deadline date has passed, there will be open shooting Sunday from 3-7 p.m. on Court 7 at the Field House for those still interested. There is no entry fee for Sunday's makeup time. Interested parties need only show up to compete.

• Soccer competition is now underway and will culminate in finals to be held next week. The men's final will be Tuesday at 7:15 p.m. and the women's final will be Wednesday at 8:10 p.m. Both finals will be held in the indoor practice facility.

• If you have any questions concerning intramurals, contact any of the graduate assistants in Field House Room E216 or call 335-9293.

No. 15 Arizona blanks netters

By Hugh Donlan
The Daily Iowan

There isn't necessarily failure in defeat, but that may seem like small consolation to the Iowa women's tennis team after suffering a 9-0 loss at the hands of Arizona.

The dual meet with the Wildcats was the first of three for the Hawkeyes on their three-day swing through the Southwest. And things won't get any easier for Iowa, now 3-1 on the season, when it faces similar competition today in a confrontation with Arizona State in Tuscon, Ariz.

Arizona, which is ranked 15th nationally, proved to be too much for the Hawkeyes as they suffered straight-set losses in all six singles matches and at No. 2 doubles. Iowa won its only sets in the No. 1 and No. 3 doubles matches.

IOWA'S NO. 1 TEAM OF Pennie Wohlford and Catherine Wilson, who is battling a knee injury, struggled with Arizona's Harriet Knols and Nancy Breen and managed to capture the second set in a 7-5, 6-7, 6-2 tussle.

The Hawkeyes, counting on strong doubles play, suffered more bad news at No. 2 as Liz Canzoneri and Madeleine Willard suffered a 6-0, 7-5 loss to Arizona's Danielle Kluman and Jackie Ronger.

The duo of senior Pat Leary and sophomore Susan Evans at No. 3 doubles lost 6-7, 6-3, 6-2 to the Wildcats' Kyra Johnson and Catherine Camilleri.

In singles, Willard lost 6-4, 6-2 at No. 1; Wohlford was defeated 6-0, 6-2 at No. 2; Liz Canzoneri fell 6-3, 6-4 at No. 3; Tracey Peyton was downed at No. 4, 6-1, 6-2; No. 5 Robin Gerstein was beaten 6-2, 6-1 and Pat Leary lost at No. 6, 6-2, 6-1.

Kramer acquitted of drunk driving

United Press International

MINNEAPOLIS — Minnesota Vikings quarterback Tommy Kramer Wednesday was acquitted of drunken driving by a Hennepin County District Court jury.

The six-person jury deliberated about one hour following a four-day trial and delivered the not guilty verdict.

Kramer said he had a "bittersweet" feeling about the series of events since he was arrested in suburban Bloomington last summer.

Kramer, who was arrested by police after leaving a Red Lobster restaurant on the evening of July 24, 1987, said he was pleased but not surprised at the decision.

"I felt all along that I was innocent," he said. "I felt they stopped me for no reason at all. That's why I was happy to go through the judicial process."

Kramer, who has twice undergone chemical dependency treatment, was not as happy with the public attention his case has received.

"The damage was really done last July," Kramer said. "It subjected me and my family to a lot of abuse."

Sioux City station won't see UI sports package information

By Traci Auble
 The Daily Iowan

A Sioux City, Iowa, television station's request to see financial documents regarding the sale of television rights to UI sports events was denied Wednesday by Sixth District Judge L. Vern Robinson.

Robinson also refused the request of television station KMEG for a summary judgment against the UI's bidding process for awarding the rights to sports events.

KMEG claimed in court that the current package holder — Rasmussen Communications Management Corporation — had an "unfair advantage" for the upcoming bids for rights of the sports package because it is the only company with information regarding the value of the sports package.

In their case, KMEG officials requested to see information on the value of the package. KMEG officials also said that Rasmussen is in a trustee relationship with the UI because it has information in its exclusive possession of the bids, which helps determine the value of UI sports programming.

BUT LAWYERS representing Rasmussen and the UI said the relationship between the two organizations is the same as with any independent contractor with the UI. They compared it to a building contractor who submits bids and ultimately performs construction for the UI.

The court agreed with this argument and stated the financial records of bidders were not public records, and that the information belonged to the UI and therefore didn't have to be released.

RCM bids $6.5 million, earns rights to UI basketball games

By Eric J. Hess
 The Daily Iowan

The UI awarded Rasmussen Communications Management Corporation television rights to Iowa basketball games for the next five seasons, a package costing $6.5 million, UI officials announced Wednesday.

The rights, which include live basketball coverage, Iowa football replays, the (Iowa football Coach) Hayden Fry Show and the (Iowa men's basketball Coach) Tom Davis Show, is thought to be the highest amount paid for television rights to any university or college.

A press release, dated Feb. 22, noted there were three other bidders who were turned down by the UI.

KCRG-TV of Cedar Rapids bid $3 million for three years for the rights. Duchossois Communications of Elmhurst, Ill., bid $3.78 million for three years. Raycom Sports Network of Charlotte, N.C., and Multimedia of Cincinnati entered a combined bid of $2.85 million for three years and $5.45 million for five years.

KCRG-TV GENERAL Manager Bob Allen said the UI waited until an injunction was resolved with KMEG-TV of Sioux City, Iowa, to prohibit the UI from awarding the new television package.

"Larry Bruner called each of the four bidders," Allen said.

Bruner asked each bidder "to bear with us because we are involved in a lawsuit (with KMEG)," Allen said.

Bruner could not be reached for comment Wednesday.

Hawks wear out Wildcats in win

EVANSTON, Ill. — Roy Marble scored 21 points to lead five Hawkeyes scoring in double figures Wednesday night to power No. 13 Iowa to a 91-74 Big Ten victory over Northwestern at Welsh-Ryan Arena.

The Hawkeyes, 19-7 overall and 9-4 in the league, used an intense full-court press to hand Northwestern its eighth straight defeat.

time in its last 21 meetings against Iowa, fell to 2-11 in the league and 7-16 overall.

"I was happy with the adjustments we made with our press," Iowa Coach Tom Davis said. "It was a game of constant adjustments. Northwestern was able to throw long successfully against our press."

The Wildcats' Shon Morris led all scorers with 22 points while hauling down 14 rebounds.

"I WAS VERY impressed with Northwestern on the boards, especially Morris," said Davis, whose team was outrebounded 27-26. "Northwestern's rebounds kept the game in doubt."

Iowa shot 63 percent from the field for the game on 37-of-59 shooting. The Hawkeyes were 13 of 24 from the free throw line and recorded 17 steals.

"The rims always seem smaller on the road," Davis said. "You expect to be a little inconsistent at the line because of inexperience."

Ed Horton added 15 points for Iowa and helped trigger a 7-0 surge late in the game that sealed the victory.

Nykanen wins 3rd gold; U.S. hopes dismal

By Mike Rabun
 United Press International

CALGARY, Alberta — Finnish ski jumper Matti Nykanen became the Winter Olympics' first triple-gold medal winner Wednesday, serving as a stark contrast to the disappointment and discontent that has symbolized the U.S. effort throughout the Games.

The three gold medals up for contention Wednesday went to Verni Schneider of Switzerland in the women's giant slalom, the West Germans in the nordic combined (a combination of ski jumping and cross-country skiing) and a three-man squad from Finland in team ski jumping.

THE UNITED STATES was shut out in the three gold-medal events Wednesday, leaving its medal total at four. The United States has won at least seven medals in each Olympics since 1936.

Figure skater Debi Thomas hopes to improve the U.S. medal count but had to settle for a second-place finish Wednesday behind the Soviet Union's Kira Ivanova after a long day of compulsory figures.

Thomas' East German rival, defending world and Olympic champion Katarina Witt, was in third place after the compulsories.

Thomas had to fight back from a fourth-place standing after the first figure, but while she was showing her grit, the American bobsled team was renewing the squabbling that has been so much a part of its Olympic experience.

Driver Matt Roy was enraged that

Soviets, Sweden win big

United Press International

CALGARY, Alberta — Soviet Union goaltender Sergei Mylnikov faced 17 shots on goal — only three in the third period — as he recorded a shutout to help the Soviets blank Canada, 5-0, in medal-round play Wednesday night.

The teams fought to a scoreless tie after the first period, but the Soviets opened up early in the second when Sergei Jashin sliced a shot by Canadian goaltender Sean Burke 45 seconds into the period.

The Soviets have not lost or tied in six Olympic games at Calgary.

"It's difficult when you're winning to realize the pressure is on you to keep winning," assistant coach Igor Dmitriev said Wednesday night after the Soviet Union crushed Canada's chances of challenging for the gold.

"YOU NOTICED THAT the opposition was strong and we could not break the spirit of Canada, but when you get the results, confidence comes in."

Jonas Bergqvist ignited a three-goal outburst in the second period Wednesday to help power Sweden to a 6-2 victory over Czechoslovakia that virtually eliminated the defending silver medalists from contention.

Sweden, which scored three times in a span of 3:07 early in the second period, entered the tournament as the top seed and carried two points into the first game of the medal round.

Czechoslovakia, the third seed, entered the medal round with no
