Speculated Cause of Sunday's Crash

Woman dies Monday after surviving crash

By John Gilardi
The Daily Iowan

NORTH LIBERTY — The only survivor of Sunday's plane crash here died Monday morning at UI Hospitals and Clinics as investigators said "pilot technique" may have been a factor of the crash that killed four Iowa City residents.

Molly B. Olson, 29, 301 Teeters Court, died at about 9:30 a.m. after surviving the crash that occurred at about 10 a.m. Sunday, according to UI Hospital officials. Olson was employed as a pediatrics nurse at UI Hospitals.

Also killed were Brian Olson, 32, husband of Molly Olson; and husband and wife Gilbert Journell Cuthbertson and Megan Celia Danton, both 31, of 1019 Rider St.

Cuthbertson, the pilot, was an advanced fellow in pediatrics at UI Hospitals. Danton had just completed her residency in pathology in 1987 and was enrolled in the UI College of Business Administration MBA program. Both were 1983 graduates of the University of North Carolina College of Medicine, according to school officials.

OLSON, ORIGINALLY from Moline, Ill., was based in Iowa City as a bank auditor for the U.S. Treasury Department, and his wife was originally from Romeoville, Ill., according to family members.

Rey Vargas of the National Transportation Safety Board said Cuthbertson, who earned his pilot's license in 1984, had less than 100 hours flying time and had last flown in January.

"It appears he had only been flying about one hour a month," Vargas said. "He didn't have too many hours flying time. There's a good chance this accident was due to pilot technique."

Vargas said weather was ruled out as a factor causing the rented single-engine 1979 Cessna 172 to nose-dive into an empty field east of Green Castle Aviation, located on Johnson County Highway F-28 about four miles east of I-380.

INVESTIGATORS pulled the upright-tail to the ground Monday to investigate the wreckage. Vargas said it appeared the plane hit the ground at a 75- to 80-degree angle, and the tail followed in a "whiplash effect." Vargas estimated the plane lost altitude at about 4,000 feet per minute to have impacted as hard as it did.

"They hit hard," Vargas said.

The wings were bent back at 45-degree angles and the frame was bent forward below the rear passenger seats. Witnesses Monday said Gilbert Cuthbertson and Brian Olson were sitting in the front seats, Danton was sitting in the

State passes 4-cent gas hike

By Scott Sonner
United Press International

DES MOINES — The Iowa Senate voted Monday to replace lost federal road funds with a 4-cent increase in state gasoline and diesel fuel taxes, but included some exemptions for dealers who must compete with lower gas prices on state borders.

Half of the tax hike would be implemented April 1 and the remaining 2 cents would be postponed until Jan. 1, 1989, under the $111 million revenue package senators passed to the House, 28-19.

"I'm not real enthused about voting for a tax increase, but all of us know why we are doing this," Senate Majority Leader Bill Hutchins, D-Audubon, said as the eight hours of debate drew to a close at about 7:30 p.m.

"It is because the feds have cut off money, and we are falling behind in road construction," he said.

THE 4-CENT increase would boost Iowa's state gasoline tax to 20 cents per gallon and diesel fuel tax to 22.5 cents per gallon. Backers of the bill said each penny increase in the gasoline tax will create 1,000 construction jobs in Iowa.

In addition to an estimated $98 million increase in fuel taxes over the next 20 months, the bill would raise $13 million through increased registration fees for pickup trucks — an average boost of $20 per truck.

On a 26-22 amendment vote, senators stripped from the bill $1 million in funding for recreational trails. They rejected, 31-19, an amendment which would have withdrawn the increased pickup truck fees from the proposal.

"It costs $185 to register a $15,000 car and $45 to register a $15,000 pickup. The system out there is unfair," Sen. Richard Drake, R-Muscataine said in support of the steeper pickup fees.

Groups clash in CIA debate

By Jay Casini
The Daily Iowan

Representatives from UI student groups New Wave and Young Americans for Freedom clashed Monday night in a debate over the rights of the CIA to recruit on the UI campus.

The event, which was sponsored by the A. Craig Baird Debate Forum and the UI Student Senate Debate Forum, attracted about 150 people to Shambaugh Auditorium.

UI Student Senator Mike Wild said the catalyst for the debate was an Oct. 8, 1985, statement by UI

Vice President of Student Services Philip Hubbard regarding on-campus CIA recruitment.

At that time, Hubbard said the UI "would oppose any attempt to limit the freedom of individual students who choose to interview — or not to interview — with any employer who visits the campus."

UI YAF President Eric Klein began the debate by defending the CIA's right to recruit at the UI.

KLEIN SAID he had spoken to a large number of students about their feelings toward CIA recruitment and said the response was almost always in favor of the CIA.

"I'm not condoning the CIA and saying that everything they do is right. A lot of things they do are wrong," Klein said.

But Klein said the CIA is a "fundamental part of national security" and that the organization's right to recruit on college campuses should not be disrupted by New Wave censorship.

Sean Johnson, former president of the conservative newspaper Campus Review, added to Klein's defense of CIA recruitment by emphasizing students' rights to choose their employer.

"I believe that I have the right to choose who I want to work for and who I want to interview with," Johnson said.

JOHNSON SAID he does not believe New Wave or any other group has the moral authority to censor on-campus recruiting.

New Wave member Anne Johnson asked Johnson whether it was his right "to recruit with an agency that takes away rights all over the world."

"Do you not have the moral obligation to know what your job

"IT IS A somewhat complex reform and anyone affected by it should review the Tax Reform Act so they are aware of the changes," Evans said.

Included in the reform was a higher standard deduction, raising personal exemptions from $1,080 to $1,900. UI Assistant to the President Julia Mears said tax officials believe this increase will offset any additional scholarship money students will have to report.

But Mears said there is a good possibility that students will still have to pay income tax on scholarships because the increased personal exemption may not be enough.

"I can only speculate that it is an income generation measure," she said. "There are real budget problems at the national level, so there are reasons they are now looking at traditionally tax-exempt sources

Huck Finn, Jim visit Hancher in Broadway hit 'Big River'

By Steve T. Donoghue
The Daily Iowan

There's no tag line that will set a critic's teeth a-gritting faster than "Show X has resurrected the Broadway musical!" Immediately the tart comebacks start to flow: "Well then, it was better off dead," or "Too bad it couldn't save itself."

None of that for Big River. This Broadway musical adaptation of Mark Twain's The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn comes to Hancher Auditorium tonight with no resurrecting in mind. Rather, this rousing-big show will doubtless pull off the same homespun miracle it's been doing now for nearly four years: It'll make people happy.

It'll also make them hum. The music is by Roger Miller, the 11-time Grammy Award winner who made the top of the charts in the '60s and '70s with a stock of witty, country-flavored songs. Miller outdoes himself in the Big River score, working all the meaning and drama and humor of each scene into tunes which stick around in the memory long after the show is over.

WHEN PRODUCERS ROCCO and Heidi Landesman originally approached Miller about doing the score, he was apprehensive. "It took them a year to talk him into it," said Miller's wife, Mary Arnold Miller, a native of Audubon, Iowa. "But once he got into it, he loved it."

"I wish I'd done it sooner," commented Miller. "I find I have a really good ear for matching music with drama." Miller is relaxed about his status as a scoring late

Law calls for salary increase despite performance record

By James Cahoy
The Daily Iowan
and United Press International

DES MOINES — Iowa teachers will start receiving the final phase of a $92 million salary increase next month, although most of the local pay plans fail to meet the goal of being based on teacher performance, state officials said Monday.

Gov. Terry Branstad said during a Statehouse news conference 427 of the state's 436 school districts have qualified for $42 million worth of pay hikes under the third and final phase of the package he signed into law last year.

The $50 million in the first and second phases raised the state's minimum teacher salary to the national average of $18,000 and provided supplemental increases for all other pay grades. The final phase was designed to reward educational excellence primarily through performance-based pay plans.

STATE EDUCATION Department officials said Monday 360 school districts are developing performance-based plans, but only 56 will implement such plans in the first year.

School districts will receive the $42 million in two payments — April 15 and July 15. Districts have the option of carrying unspent money over to next year, officials said.

Rep. Arthur Ollie, D-Clinton, chairman of the House Education Committee, said it may take several years before the districts are able to move toward performance-based plans.

"I think everybody pretty much recognized it would be difficult to get performance-based plans in that short of time (for the first year). We should not fool ourselves into thinking the creation of a performance-based plan will be easy," he said.

PHILLIP LEPLEY, director of the Iowa Department of Education, said concern over the low percentage of performance-based pay plans was "a valid question," but he said the implementation of the salary increases must be viewed as a joint effort between the state and local school districts.

He also said it takes time to develop pay packages to avoid past inequities in which "one principal appoints a teacher as better than someone else."

In Iowa City, the district will receive $842,000 in Phase III funds. In December, the Iowa City School Board decided to adopt a pay plan that was based on supplemental pay, rather than performance-based pay.

Iowa City Schools Superintendent David Cronin said the district's Phase III committee, which decided how the funds would be used, did not think a performance-based pay plan would be in the best interest of the district.

"The Phase III committee felt that wasn't what would be beneficial to our teachers and the district at the present time," Cronin said.

Cronin also pointed out the Iowa City School District is allocating some of the Phase III money to teachers on a selective basis, but the distribution of the funds still falls under the classification of supplemental pay according to the state.

Joys, perils of student credit

UI finance professor gives credit shopping tips

By Karyn Riley
The Daily Iowan

Paying with plastic has become the trend in Iowa City with many students finding the easy availability and convenience of credit cards preferable to old-fashioned cash.

Because of this, it is important that people are aware of what to look for when shopping for a credit card — as well as the correct way to use it — according to UI Finance Professor Mike Rozeff.

"For a lot of people, convenience is the main reason for owning credit cards," Rozeff said. "The biggest risk of owning a credit card would be getting carried away and getting deeply into debt."

"There's a small number of people who get into problems," he said. "If you're good at handling money then you should be good at handling credit cards, and if you're bad then you know you'll be bad (at handling them)."

UI SENIOR Steve Heckenberg said owning a credit card is a convenience most people are responsible enough to handle, but for others it proves to be an unpleasant brush with debt.

"They are available all over the place, so students can get them easily," he said. "That's all right for some who are disciplined, like me, but it's a good lesson to learn if you're not."

To avoid getting into trouble, Rozeff suggested what to look for before obtaining a card.

Among his suggestions are finding low interest rates, reasonable annual fees, the length of the grace period to pay the bill before being charged with interest and the method in which the company determines your finance charge balance.

"Many banks' rates have stayed very high because they let a lot of people in who are high risk, and they have to make up the loss through charging a higher rate," he said. "The typical interest rate is usually 18 percent for a typical card, but you can hunt around and find something less."

ACCORDING TO the Iowa Semi-Annual Credit Card Disclosure Report issued in January, there appears to be a trend toward interest rate reduction.

Some banks are now using a tiered system, charging 18 percent interest on credit card balances of less than $500 and 15 percent on balances of more than $500. In Iowa City, Hills Bank and Trust Co. uses this system.

But according to UI Finance Professor Kenneth Martin, the tiered system may encourage customers to charge more and accumulate a large balance so they can receive the 3 percent break.

Martin said a large balance, unless paid in full each month, is not a good idea even at the lower interest rate because it often takes longer to pay.

CREDIT UNIONS are also entering the credit card market, commonly offering lower rates than banks.

In Iowa City, the lowest rates on credit cards are offered by the UI Credit Union, which charges an interest rate of 13.92 percent for MasterCard and 14.88 percent for VISA. The UI Credit Union charges a $10 annual fee for Visa but no annual fee for MasterCard.

But the credit union maintains stricter application requirements than most banks.

According to UI Credit Union loan officer Shelley Moody, credit card applicants there must live and work in Johnson County, have a savings account at the credit union and spend no more than 35 percent of their incomes on monthly bills.

"We are a little more particular to who we offer cards to," Moody said. "That way the ones we are approving for cards can afford to make payments."

ROZEFF SAID credit cards from credit unions are often the best option because the chance of increased interest rates due to high-risk losses is slim.

"They have lower fees because they have a group of people that are better risks because they know you," he said. "It's easier to find you and find out about you — easier than a great big bank that covers a big area can."

Three Iowa City banks — First National Bank, Hawkeye State Bank and Iowa State Bank and Trust Co. — fall into the high-interest rate category because cards are approved and issued by Norwest Banks in Des Moines, whose interest rate is 19.8 percent with an annual fee of $18.

Rozeff offered suggestions for students who already have credit cards.

"YOU SHOULD pay off your bill as soon as you can. Letting it carry over month after month will pick up a lot of interest," Rozeff said. "If you do this, then you are borrowing money, and at 18 percent interest it is too expensive for most people to borrow money that way."

UI senior Gary Cohn, who has carried a credit card for the last three years, said he finds it easy to charge more than he can afford.

"I've gotten in a little over my head once when I bought too much at the same time," Cohn said. "It's a lot different than using cash, because it's cash you don't have."

Because people often charge when they don't have cash to pay for items, Rozeff said, it is important to find a credit card with a lengthy grace period — the time between making a purchase and being charged interest. A common grace period is 25 days.

ROZEFF ALSO suggested credit card customers know their bill-paying histories and tendencies.

AIDS bill to protect civil rights

By Scott Sonner
United Press International

DES MOINES — AIDS testing would be prohibited as a condition of employment, and people who volunteer for the tests would be guaranteed confidentiality, under a bill the Iowa House approved Monday.

The measure sent to the Senate on an 88-6 vote also provides Health Department counseling for persons who test positive for the deadly virus.

Backers said it is designed to protect the civil rights of Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome sufferers and homosexual and bisexual men and intravenous drug users who are considered to be most at risk of contracting the deadly virus.

A total of 85 Iowans have been diagnosed as having contracted AIDS since the state began keeping track of the incidence of the disease in 1983 and 43 of the victims have died.

"THIS SHOWS THAT, although we are a low-incidence state for AIDS, if we pass laws like this we will have a high incidence of reasoned response to the disease," Rep. Ralph Rosenberg, D-Ames, said in support of the bill.

"There are usually three stages for a state addressing AIDS. First, the state becomes aware of AIDS. Second, the state panics and, third, the state does something about it. We are aware we have AIDS in Iowa. We are trying to skip the second stage," Rosenberg said.

Under the bill, AIDS tests would be outlawed as a condition of hiring or promotion, unless the employer can demonstrate a valid job-related reason requiring the tests.

Those who breach the confidentiality of a person tested for AIDS by the state would face $1,000 civil fines.

ONE OF THE most controversial parts to the bill would extend the confidentiality rights to minor children who want to keep the test results secret from their parents.

Branstad considers future AFDC hikes

By Scott Sonner
United Press International

DES MOINES—Gov. Terry Branstad said Monday he will consider future increases in Aid to Families with Dependent Children benefits if the monthly boosts are done in harmony with his welfare reform plans.

However, the Republican governor also said he is confident his latest veto of a 6.5 percent increase in AFDC benefits will hold up against override attempts in the Democrat-controlled Legislature.

Branstad's willingness to consider future AFDC increases marked a departure from his past comments in opposition to additional cash welfare assistance.

He said earlier this year the bigger monthly checks — an average of $20 to $30 more in the Legislature's plan — would encourage persons to remain on the public payroll. He vetoed a similar package last year.

BRANSTAD SAID the state must "continue to have a safety net" for persons who are forced to remain on welfare. He said he does not anticipate a time when there would be no need for AFDC and said he could support increased benefits in the future.

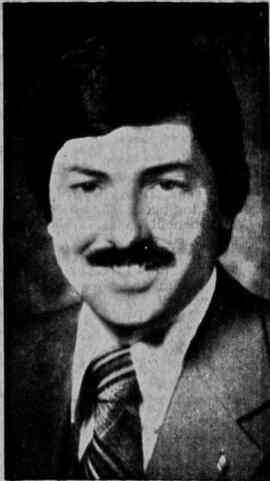

"There is a possibility we could work that out in conjunction with welfare reform," Branstad said.

Democrats, who control the House 58-42 and the Senate 29-21, are planning a symbolic effort to override Branstad's veto of $4.9 million in human service funding — including $1.9 million to fund AFDC increases for the final three months of the current fiscal year ending July 1.

House Speaker Don Avenson, D-Oelwein, said he expects that attempt to fail because not enough Republicans will cross party lines in defiance of a gubernatorial veto. Branstad agreed.

"I have not lobbied anyone. I feel confident we will be successful," Branstad said Monday.

The $4.9 million Branstad vetoed also included: $100,000 for homeless shelters; $300,000 in medical assistance for the needy; $200,000 for nursing home reimbursements; $300,000 for residential care facilities; $500,000 to implement the mental health bill of rights; and $1.5 million in increased reimbursements for professionals who provide care for foster children, the mentally ill and the retarded.

UI student representatives lobby in Washington, D.C.

By Joseph Euchner
The Daily Iowan

Fourteen UI student government representatives spent the last three days in Washington, D.C., as part of a delegation sent to voice student concerns on National Student Lobby Day, which was Monday.

In conjunction with the Lobby Day, UI students were allowed to use student government office telephones to contact legislators directly.

United Students of Iowa member Lyn Raue said she hoped the call-in day would encourage students to become involved in the lobbying process.

"We want to give students the chance to contact their representatives if they are unaware how to do it," Raue said. "Students can raise their political credibility by becoming involved in these issues, informing the politicians and voting correspondingly."

Representatives from the UI included six members each from USI and Student Senate; 2 members from UI Collegiate Associations Council; and one member each from the Graduate Student Senate, Liberal Arts Student Association, Business Student Senate, and Student Dental Association.

THE LOBBYING agenda focused on new tax laws that affect scholarships and other grant income. The law will force students to add scholarship and grant money not applied to tuition to their taxable income.

In addition, changes in the disbursement of Guaranteed Student Loans may determine eligibility and availability of these loans on the basis of past default.

UI CAC President Mike Reck said these changes could ultimately block lower-income students from receiving the loans.

"The change allows the distribution of loans on the basis of past records of default at each university," he said. "If I go to school now, why should I be prevented a loan by someone who defaulted four years ago?"

Reck said by distributing loans only to those who could show an ability to repay, many needy students would be left out.

"IT SEEMS TO be a pretty absurd way of dealing with the default problem," Reck said.

The lobbying efforts also concerned reforms of discriminatory policies in higher education.

A restoration of the Civil Rights Act would seek to eliminate discrimination at universities and other institutions by withholding federal funds to the entire institution if at least one department or area is found to be discriminatory. Current law withholds funds to specific departments or areas that discriminate, rather than the entire institution.

CAC Vice President Maureen Edwards said the restoration would effectively eliminate discrimination.

Iowan convicted in Puerto Rico killing

United Press International

AGUADILLA, Puerto Rico — A former U.S. air traffic controller, whose long battle against extradition resulted in a historic Supreme Court ruling, was sentenced to 15 years probation Monday for the killing of a pregnant Venezuelan.

Superior Court Judge Hiram Torres Rigual sentenced Ron Calder, of Dubuque, to 15 years probation for the 1981 slaying of Amy Villalba in a parking lot in Aguadilla, about 80 miles west of San Juan. Calder will be allowed to serve his probation in Iowa, court officials said.

Calder pleaded guilty Jan. 21 to reduced charges of manslaughter and attempted manslaughter. He originally had been charged with first-degree murder and attempted murder.

CALDER REPEATEDLY backed his car over the pregnant woman as he tried to drive out of the lot following an argument with her husband. Calder then fled from Puerto Rico.

The case set a national legal precedent because of Calder's efforts fighting his extradition back to Puerto Rico, where he claimed he could not receive a fair trial. Two Iowa governors, Robert Ray and Terry Branstad, refused to surrender Calder to Puerto Rican officials, citing a Civil War-era law allowing governors to shelter fugitives.

The U.S. Supreme Court struck down the law last year and Calder agreed to stand trial.

Dick Vohs, spokesman for Branstad, said the governor is pleased the Torres Rigual decided not to send Calder to jail.

"We're pleased he'll be able to return to Iowa and put all this behind him," Vohs said.

High Court will weigh drug testing

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court, tackling a case that could set the limits of worker drug tests, agreed Monday to decide whether the Customs Service can require employees and job applicants to provide urine samples.

The justices will hear arguments next term in an appeal by the National Treasury Employees Union of an appeals court ruling that upheld the mandatory tests for certain job applicants and employees up for promotion.

Israelis may ban media coverage

JERUSALEM — Israeli soldiers shot and killed a Palestinian and a second Arab died of a gunshot wound Monday, and the government considered banning media coverage of Israeli efforts to control the uprising in the occupied territories, officials said.

The latest casualties brought to 75 the number of Palestinians killed since rioting erupted Dec. 9, including 15 who died in an explosion of violence beginning Thursday targeted against the Middle East peace mission of Secretary of State George Shultz.

Shultz spent most of the day in Jordan and shuttled back to Jerusalem for a final round of talks with Israeli leaders, with whom he opened negotiations Friday. He shuttled to Jordan, Syria and Egypt over the weekend.

First Lady blasts drugs, casual users

WASHINGTON — First lady Nancy Reagan silenced a wildly cheering crowd of 2,000 anti-drug activists Monday with examples of the violent realities of illegal drugs and warned casual users, "You're an accomplice to murder."

Mrs. Reagan made a rare joint appearance with President Ronald Reagan at the opening ceremonies of the upbeat White House Conference on a Drug-Free America. While the president tolled efforts to stop drug smugglers and traffickers, Mrs. Reagan blamed the casual middle-class drug user for a wave of drug-related violence.

"The casual user may think as he takes a line of cocaine or smokes a joint in the privacy of his nice condominium, listening to his expensive stereo, that he's somehow not bothering anyone," she said. "But there's a trail of death and destruction that leads directly to his door."

Baby born missing brain dies

LOMA LINDA, Calif. — An infant girl born with most of her brain missing died nine days after birth, a death that came too late for doctors hoping to "harvest" her vital organs for transplants, officials said Monday.

Baby Evelyn, who suffered from a fatal genetic defect called anencephaly, died at 12:35 a.m. CST Monday at Loma Linda University Medical Center, hospital spokeswoman Anita Rockwell said.

"She died peacefully" under the watch of her physician and the hospital's intensive care unit staff, Rockwell said.

Opposition strikes against Noriega

PANAMA CITY — Opposition groups Monday launched a protest strike against Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega, four days after his supporters in congress deposed President Eric Arturo Delvalle for trying to fire the military strongman.

Delvalle remained in hiding somewhere in Panama but released a brief videotaped message in which he claimed still to be the legitimate ruler of the country even though he was voted out of office.

Soviets report 'rampage' in Azerbaijan

MOSCOW — Soviet authorities Monday reported "rampage and violence" in the republic of Azerbaijan, after more than two weeks of anti-Azerbaijani demonstrations in neighboring Armenia over a disputed area.

The announcement of riots Sunday in the Azerbaijani city of Sumgait came as demonstrations were reported to have ended in Armenia but were continuing in the mountainous area claimed by both Azerbaijan and Armenia where a top Soviet official tried to calm the crowds.

The two republics are in the extreme south of the Soviet Union, nestled above Turkey and Iran and between the Black and Caspian seas. Nagorno Karabakh is largely Christian and Armenian but was made part of Moslem Azerbaijan after they became part of the Soviet Union following the 1917 Bolshevik Revolution.

If we pass laws like this we will have a high incidence of reasoned response to the disease.

STATE TREASURER

Michael L. Fitzgerald

GREAT IOWA TREASURE HUNT

Since November, 1987 more than $3 million in abandoned money belonging to more than 11,000 people has been reported to the Office of the Treasurer of State. Over 200 people are missing owners of more than $1,000. All the names listed in this ad are reported as losing $25.00 or more. Nearly all these funds are still being held by the companies who reported them. The abandoned money could be forgotten savings or checking accounts, utility refunds or deposits, or uncashed insurance benefit checks or lost stocks. The Treasurer also receives abandoned safe deposit box contents. If you are named in this ad or are an heir to one of these people, then fill out the coupon below and send it to the Treasurer's Office and we will direct you to the company holding the money. If the rightful owner does not claim the money in 65 days then the money will be turned over to the Treasurer's Office where it can be claimed by the rightful owner at anytime.

Money, money, money

If you rooted for East German Katarina Witt to take the Olympic gold medal in women's figure skating, you weren't un-American. You were just made to feel that way by ABC-TV commentators and their lackeys, the U.S. Olympic Committee.

To USOC President Robert Helmick, winning is more important than how the U.S. played the Games. He called the U.S. performance in Calgary "pitiful" and vowed to do something about it.

Helmick is smarting over the seventh-place showing of the U.S. hockey team, which reportedly cost ABC big prime-time bucks. His first step to correct the cash-flow problem was appointing shipping magnate, New York Yankees owner and convicted felon George Steinbrenner to a committee that will study why the U.S. team does so poorly in the Winter Games. If Helmick knows what Steinbrenner has done for the reputation of Major League Baseball, he'd know it's like appointing Larry Flynt to head the League of Decency.

Never mind the gutsy, exciting hockey games the U.S. team came close to winning. Ignore the fact that most of the country doesn't even get snow for more than three months a year. Steinbrenner's job is to uncover the reasons why the U.S. hasn't been winning at hockey and keeping themselves on the money-making airwaves.

Helmick may have a good argument when he says the U.S. needs more and better facilities in which to train its athletes. But downgrading the performance of dedicated competitors and appointing the sleazy Steinbrenner to investigate amateur athletics won't get that goal accomplished.

You can bet between now and the Summer Games in August, we'll be subjected to a lot of blustering about how we need to win, win, win and how the leader of the free world is pitiful, pitiful, pitiful if it doesn't. Lurking unsaid is the reason for all that wind, wind, wind — money, money, money.

Commercial words

President Ronald Reagan should do a cough syrup commercial.

The setting: A press conference. The hot topic: Israel's response to Palestinian protests in the Gaza Strip and West Bank. The question: "What are your feelings on recent reports of Israeli troops beating Palestinian civilians into submission?" The answer: "I'm not really a president, but I play one on TV."

Sound ludicrous? Nah. Because the above scenario doesn't hold a candle to the real thing — that being Wednesday's news conference and Reagan's response to the violence in the occupied territories. When asked about the situation, Reagan answered, "We don't support that sort of thing."

Wow. What a zinger! Reagan's "Charlie Brown" stand on Israel's contemptible actions in the Middle East is very revealing indeed. If nothing else it proves the unsavory importance Israel has attained during this administration.

The evidence is everywhere. Not only do we hire Israelis to run our guns, we smile as they do the same throughout Central America, undercutting the Arias Peace Plan we're supposed to support. We hold clandestine policy parties with a nation that equates Pretoria with Utopia. Heck, we'll probably summer in the Hamptons with those crazy pranksters, and they've been burying people alive.

Reagan has had his angry moments. Remember? He has delivered scathing attacks on deserving targets: Moammar Khadafi, the Ayatollah Khomeini, Lebanese terrorists. Israel does not suffer by comparison. It's Reagan's job to get tough on Israel. Madison Avenue can handle the advertising end.

No reason to be proud

The Reagan administration has systematically thwarted the will of Congress and the law of the land through covert operations. Moles have been planted to subvert agencies to which they are philosophically opposed. Ralph Scott, chairman of the U.S. Civil Rights Commission's Iowa advisory group, is one such appointee.

Scott is a UNI professor of educational psychology with some very peculiar leanings and affiliations. Much of his research has been sponsored by the Pioneer Fund, which was established to promote the "racial betterment" of Caucasians. This research, according to Pioneer Fund records, emphasizes "the genetic aspects of educability," a euphemism for the "intellectual superiority of white people."

Scott once wrote a glowing review of a book dedicated to the "advancement of Northern European peoples." Still, he has been known to sue if he is called a racist and claims he has "always been committed to equity in education." But he has some odd ideas about equity. Among his published writing, Scott has advocated a fair shake for the German Nazis. "Do we believe it's wrong to kill a Jew, right to kill a German?"

Scott's commitment to "equity in education" once led him to travel to Delaware in the campaign against busing. There he used an assumed name, but still represented himself as a professor. He apparently found perfect equity in blacks' right to go to ghetto schools and the white right to attend suburban ones.

Given the perverse logic of his mission under Reagan, Scott was the perfect candidate for his post. He had the right combination of reactionary tendencies and academic credentials. Not surprisingly, the U.S. Civil Rights Commissioner, who has presided over his own agency's dismantling, reports Scott "appears to have done an excellent job."

Brutal repression continues

CAPE TOWN, South Africa — "It is so quiet, one could imagine that South Africa is peaceful," observed a youth activist in a recent conversation. South Africa's state of emergency — now in its third year and newly intensified last week — has taken protest action off the front pages of newspapers and prime-time television to create the false impression that there is peace.

Police and national defense forces are harassing and imprisoning innocent people and committing atrocities of torture and killings. But they are not being held accountable for their deeds.

Detentions without trial continue, and many persons are held in solitary confinement. Advocates of non-violent change have already entered their second year of detention. Some are kept in cells at police stations and in small farm prisons under inhuman conditions for several weeks before being transferred to a maximum security prison. Journalists were even taken into prisons in order to make the public believe that conditions are favorable.

WE WHO have spent time behind those bars know that we did not sleep in beds, could not put our heads on pillows, did not have access to literature and had no choice but to eat the atrocious food served at inconvenient times such as Saturday dinner at 2 p.m. We know that the entire experience is designed to dehumanize the inmate and to break the resistance movement.

The stronghold of the security forces on communities is tightening. All movements and organizational activity are closely monitored. The security forces have taken to doing door-to-door visits, questioning residents about their neighbors and daily activity. Clergy have told how security police visited selective members in their congregations to sow dissension among them.

WE LIVE in a society where there is a pervasive security force. It is combined with a concerted propaganda campaign to convince the public that vicious repressive measures are used in the interests of maintaining law and order. Newspapers that told essential truths to contradict the propaganda have been put under severe pressure and several are being threatened with censorship or ultimate closure. Universities can lose their state subsidies if the dictates of the regime are not adhered to and if the campus resistance to the regime does not stop.

In the process of entrenching the racism and exploitation of apartheid, the regime is seeking to co-opt an increasing number of black people. The addition of two houses to parliament to include homeland governments represents such co-option: It creates the illusion of power-sharing without relinquishing control or in any way threatening white minority privilege. Our South African context is characterized by deliberate deceptions; our daily experiences of violent repression contradict the substance of the regime's propaganda.

The international community should not be deluded into accepting this regime as a bulwark against communism or a preserver of Western values. Its illegitimacy as a government must be recognized and acted upon appropriately by President Ronald Reagan and Congress.

ITS BRUTALIZATION of opponents nationally and in this region must be admitted, communicated and condemned unequivocally. But words alone have become inadequate. Concerted and consistent action in support of internal resistance now is demanded by our constantly worsening circumstances.

Our vision of a democratic, non-racial, unitary South Africa serves as a source of motivation. The workers' solidarity is evident in the unabated growth of the labor unions. In religious circles, the inherent immorality and injustice of apartheid remain under intensive attack.

The overwhelming support enjoyed by the people's political organizations cannot be countenanced by the regime; consequently, it banned receptions for the released African National Congress prisoner Govan Mbeki.

The pressure is immense. The repression is brutal. The rewards for co-option are lucrative. And yet detainees consistently leave from imprisonment with a greater commitment to continue the struggle for justice and freedom. And every time young people go to jail on the sinister charge of public violence, more families are mobilized to continue the struggle toward a society in which youths can once more enjoy security and protection without police repression.

It is in such a spirit that the South African struggle continues. We concur with Martin Luther King Jr.: "Forces that threaten to negate life must be challenged by courage, which is the power of life to affirm itself in spite of life's ambiguities. This requires the exercise of a creative world that enables us to hew out a stone of hope from a mountain of despair."

Three R's a radical concept

It figured that Grace Dawson would back down. Her idea was just too radical and harsh.

Ms. Dawson is the principal of a Chicago elementary school who shocked the city and received national news coverage by demoting students who couldn't read or wouldn't learn to read.

When she did this to 250 children, almost a third of the students at the Beethoven elementary school, their parents were outraged.

They picketed. They kept their kids home from school. They demanded that the principal be replaced. And, of course, they told the TV crews how terrible and unjust it was.

Who can blame them? Sure, it's unfortunate that a kid isn't learning to read. But is that any reason to flunk him?

AND WHY should their kids be singled out? For years, many of Chicago's elementary and high schools have routinely graduated students who could barely read their diplomas.

It wasn't long ago that one of the city's finest football players couldn't get an athletic scholarship when it was found that he didn't read. After 12 years of schooling, he couldn't cope with a street sign. As eager as many colleges were for the young man's athletic services, they wouldn't take a chance on a quarterback who couldn't read the title of the team playbook.

So the indignation of the parents at the Beethoven school seems justified. Why, out of the blue, should a principal suddenly single out their kids with the demand that they learn to read?

Sure, reading can be a handy skill.

Mike Royko

If you can't read the TV listings, you waste a lot of time flipping through the channels.

BUT IS illiteracy really a justification to demote or flunk someone? Doesn't showing up for class most of the time count for anything?

It seems even more unfair if you consider that most of these angry parents apparently didn't know that their kids weren't learning to read. I assume they were unaware of the problem, since few of them had come to the school to ask: "Hey, why can't my kid read and what can I do about it?"

And when they were warned months ago that their kids were slouches, barely 10 percent of them showed up for a meeting with the principal.

Not that this is a parental responsibility. Absolutely not. As we all know, it's the job of the schools to make sure a child learns to read. The job of the parent is to make sure the kid gets up in the morning, puts on some clothing, and goes to school.

THERE ARE some educational radicals — and I suspect Principal Dawson might be one of them — who actually believe that parents should do more than shove the kid out the door in the morning and provide him with a functioning TV set in the evening.

If the radicals had their way, parents would be expected to sit down with their children and ask them to read aloud from a textbook or show them whatever homework they've done.

In other words, the radicals want the parents to harass their own children and do the teachers' work for them.

Some simple arithmetic will illustrate just how unfair that is to the parents.

A teacher in Chicago gets to spend five whole hours a day with about 30 kids. That's almost 10 minutes per child, if you want to think of it that way.

AND THE teacher is with those children Monday through Friday, about nine months of the year, except for holidays and when the kid is home with the sniffles.

In contrast, a parent has access to a child for only the remaining 19 hours of the day, plus Saturdays and Sundays, and the three months of summer vacation.

So how can anybody in his right mind expect parents to find time to ask their kids to read a page or two from a textbook or try to spell "cat."

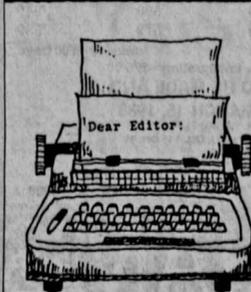

And that's not the worst of it. There are some principals and teachers, and once again I suspect that Miss Dawson is one of them, who would want parents to come to the school and discuss learning problems their children might be having.

That, of course, is a trap. It could lead to the ultimate imposition — asking the parents to use discipline, accept responsibilities and actually get involved in the child's education. In other words, give them a lousy guilt trip.

So I'm pleased that the parents at the Beethoven School didn't give in to the tyrannical tactics of the principal. They stood their ground and now most of the kids who were demoted aren't going to be demoted after all.

They will probably be promoted right on skedjyl. Then they'll awl gradyoate and go on to hyskool. An liv haply evr afder.

Tutu arrested as hundreds protest recent crackdown

By John Iams
United Press International

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — Police arrested Nobel Peace Prize winner Archbishop Desmond Tutu and other religious leaders Monday as they defiantly marched on Parliament to protest the government's new ban on anti-apartheid activities.

As officers bundled the protesters into police vehicles, riot-squad police fired a water cannon at hundreds of other priests and followers who knelt on the street and prayed.

Those arrested were later released after being told the government would investigate the marchers and might file criminal charges.

"What we did today was not the negative thing of saying we disobey, it was the positive thing of saying we are obeying God," said Tutu, the 1984 Nobel Peace Prize winner, at a news conference after his release.

BESIDES TUTU, the Rev. Allan Boesak, head of the Geneva-based World Council of Reformed Churches; Roman Catholic Archbishop Stephen Naidoo; and up to 80 other clerics, supporters and reporters were arrested in the march on Parliament in Cape Town to deliver a petition to President Pieter Botha and other lawmakers denouncing the crackdown.

The government measure, announced last Wednesday, stifles the political activities of the 2-million member United Democratic Front, the Congress of South African Trade Unions with 650,000 members and 16 smaller black rights organizations that want to reverse South Africa's racial discrimination laws.

"You can kill the dreamer, but you cannot kill the dream," said Naidoo, who, along with the other church leaders, represents 12 million Christians in South Africa. "The dream is freedom, and that dream is alive and no amount of force is going to change that."

TUTU SAID with the Christian community supporting the protesters, the government can no longer say only "rabble-rousers" are participating in anti-government activities.

The clerics marched from St. George's Anglican Church to the nearby Parliament buildings to deliver the petition but were stopped short by police.

"We believe that the government in its actions over recent years, but especially by last week's action, has chosen a path for the future which will lead to violence, bloodshed and instability," the petition said.

"Your actions indicate to us that those of you in government have decided that only violence will keep you in power, that you have chosen the military option for our country."

The petition, which was signed again after being soaked in the water-cannon deluge, will be mailed to Botha, church officials said.

Witnesses said a line of blue-clad riot police waded into the protest march some 200 yards from the St. George's after a loudspeaker warning from a police commander to disperse.

Iran, Iraq exchange missile blasts; heavy casualties cited

By Daniel J. Silva
United Press International

MANAMA, Bahrain — Two Iranian missiles ripped into Baghdad Monday, and Iraqi warplanes retaliated with a bombing raid that blasted a Tehran hospital containing babies and pregnant women and, later, the first Iraqi missile attack ever reported on the Iranian capital, news reports said.

Both sides reported heavy casualties in the attacks, the fiercest round in a tit-for-tat "war of the cities" that has claimed thousands of civilian lives during the 8-year-old Persian Gulf War.

The Iranian missiles hit Baghdad before dawn Monday, an Iraqi news report said. Hours later Iraq reportedly retaliated with a bombing raid on Tehran and then a missile attack at night on the Iranian capital, 300 miles from the Iran-Iraq border.

An Iraqi military communique broadcast by Baghdad Radio said three long-range missiles "reached the capital of the enemies and hit their targets very accurately."

THE BROADCAST urged Iraqis to celebrate the military industry's production of the missiles and the "victory of revenge."

The Iranian news agency IRNA reported only that "huge explosions" shook Tehran but gave no immediate details on casualties or damage from Monday evening's missile attack.

IRNA said 16 people were killed in the earlier Iraqi bombing attack, including at least five at a hospital where wounded newborn babies were evacuated. About 50 other people, most of them pregnant women, were wounded, IRNA said.

Iran also has claimed 22 civilians were killed in Iraqi air strikes Saturday on Tehran and the northern border town of Saqqez, triggering the deadly exchange between the warring capitals.

IN NEW YORK, Iranian Foreign Minister Ali Akbar Velayati said a total of 209 Iranian civilians were killed or wounded over the weekend in Iraqi raids on six Iranian cities, including Tehran.

He appealed to U.N. Secretary General Javier Perez de Cuellar to stop the Iraqi "savagery against Iranian cities," claiming they were being launched with U.S. support and encouragement.

If the United Nations fails to take immediate measures to halt the Iraqi attacks, Iran "will have no option... other than further retaliatory attacks against economic, industrial and military centers in Iraq," said the minister.

the right rear seat and Molly Olson was seated behind the pilot. The two couples were en route to Prairie du Chien, Wis., for a Sunday brunch, family members said Sunday, adding Cuthbertson and Molly Olson worked together at UI Hospitals.

VARGAS SAID there was no immediate indication of the cause of the crash but said the preliminary probe of the wreckage Monday included checking wing flap settings, power lines near the airport where the plane took off, the probability of pilot error and the aircraft's brakes, power train and fuel system.

Vargas said initially he believed the parking brake was engaged when the plane took off, but he said he later determined the lever could be put in the locked position with a small amount of force, adding the impact may have engaged the parking brake.

Local pilots speculated Monday Cuthbertson followed routine departure procedures by banking into a left turn after taking off but did not have enough air speed to clear power lines near the runway. They speculated Cuthbertson then pulled back on the control column to gain altitude, but stalled the plane, forcing it into a nose-dive. Other reports Monday stated Cuthbertson may have not set the flaps properly, which would have derailed the plane from gaining altitude.

The investigation team spent Monday dismantling the plane's propeller and engine at Green Castle Aviation, and planned to further check into Cuthbertson's background and training and await the results of routine tests for alcohol and drugs before issuing a preliminary finding later this week.

Gas Tax

THE NEW TAX revenue would be distributed among the state, counties and cities — 56 percent for primary highways, 30 percent for rural secondary roads and 14 percent for city streets.

Senators rejected, on a 24-22 vote, an amendment which would have funneled the money through the state's current Road Use Tax Formula — 45 percent for the state, 37 percent for counties and 18 percent for cities.

The bill calls for a study to come up with a new permanent roads formula and includes a provision that will hold hostage about $50 million if a new formula is not adopted by April 1, 1990.

But Sen. Emil Husak, D-Toledo, said he expects the temporary formula to become permanent with cities and counties getting the short end of the stick.

"This is about a 50-30-20 split and that is probably what will be in the new formula," he said.

"YOU CITY PEOPLE aren't going to like that because the 20 is you. The county people aren't going to like it. The primary roads people, the DOT, are going to be real happy," Husak said.

But Sen. Dave Readinger, R-Urbandale, said the current formula is tilted toward rural interests.

"It doesn't reflect the needs of our state. We have the 27th largest land area, but we have the seventh largest rural roads system in the nation," Readinger said.

"The population centers in this state have not been given fair consideration. Rural areas have been dominating this formula over the years," he said.

Sen. Joe Coleman, D-Clare, said the current formula is best because it maintains critical funding to get farm products to market.

"What are you going to do if we don't have these rural roads, get to them by helicopter?" he asked.

SPECIFIC PROJECTIONS on anticipated revenue were not available because senators approved an amendment, 25-23, which would provide exemptions for gasoline dealers in areas bordering states with lower gas taxes.

The amendment by Sen. Leonard Boswell, D-Davis City, would set a gas tax 5 cents above the neighboring state's tax for the first 8 miles into the state of Iowa. The Iowa tax would increase one penny each 8 miles farther the Iowa dealer was removed from the border.

The Boswell amendment primarily was designed to benefit southern Iowa dealers who compete with Missouri dealers, who pay only a 11-cent state gas tax. Critics of the proposal said it was too great of price to pay to win key border votes for the overall tax hike.

"IF THE VOTES aren't here for the gas tax, lets end it now. This amendment kills the bill," Sen. Joe Welsh, D-Dubuque, said.

Hutchins said the Boswell amendment likely is unconstitutional. He said he expects it to be repealed in House floor action.

The Senate turned down an amendment which would have eliminated $4.8 million in mass transit funding from the bill. Senators spent more than one hour of debate on the amendment removing the recreational trails from the proposal.

Sen. John Jensen, R-Plainfield, said gas tax money should be reserved for road maintenance and highway construction.

"If you want to fund recreation trails you should put a $5 fee on bikes," Jensen said.

"YOU ARE STEALING $1 million in road use tax fund dollars each year for these trails," added Welsh.

Sen. Al Sturgeon, D-Sioux City, said the trails would help attract tourists to Iowa and spur economic development.

"It costs $1 million to build one mile of interstate, the exact amount we are asking for all of these recreation trails. They will help keep people in this state to vacation in their own backyards," he said.

The bill also includes language which would tighten up requirements for RISE transportation grants, a move designed to pull funding for an IBP Inc. project in Manchester.

Here are the results of the Senate's roll call vote on a bill to raise the state gasoline and diesel fuel taxes 4 cents per gallon:

of income, such as scholarships, fringe benefits and social security."

UI Assistant Director of Student Financial Aid Mark Warner said the new law is damaging to students who depend on scholarships to attend the UI.

"MY CONCERN, personally and professionally, is the questionable taxing of certain people who receive scholarships and grants based on financial need," Warner said. "They have a need because of low income, and then they turn around and get taxed on it. Philosophically, it doesn't seem right."

UI students are also concerned by the effects the tax reform will have.

"I'm not too thrilled to hear that it had passed. It's not a good thing," UI sophomore and athletic scholarship recipient Eric Bacon said. "It's not as if it is an income, it's just used to allow us to go to school."

Some students said they had not heard of the tax reform and did not know they would be taxed on scholarship money they had received.

"I WASN'T aware of the possibility of being taxed on a scholarship," UI senior Jolynn Schneider said. "It doesn't quite make sense — what about the people who have no means of paying except for their scholarship, how will they even pay the tax?"

According to Evans, the IRS attempted to notify the public about the changes in tax law.

"We did everything we could to alert every taxpayer in the nation about the changes," he said. "This was not the only change made by the act. It was a sweeping reform that affected more than just scholarships and grants. We tried to get the message out to people."

Evans said anyone concerned about the change in scholarship status should obtain a copy of IRS Publication 5200, Scholarships and Fellowships, by calling 1-800-424-3676.

entails?" she said.

UI Professor of Russian Norman Luxenburg argued that no group in the United States has the right to force minority opinions to be implemented.

"Some of the activists seem to think they have some sort of super morality," Luxenburg said.

New Wave member Bruce Nestor said world opinion is overwhelmingly against the CIA.

"NONE OF US here are motivated by some high defense of student rights," Nestor said. "The CIA is not a career, it is a war crime."

Johnstone added, "You don't have the right just because you are born white in the U.S. to dictate what happens all over the world."

UI History Professor Stephen G. Vlastos said the negative aspects of censoring CIA rights to recruit on campus are outweighed by the "repugnancy of CIA activities to the citizens of this nation and the people of the world."

After the opening statements, moderator Clark Roundtree opened the debate to the audience.

Several audience members questioned the CIA's role in South Africa, Central America and other foreign nations while others defended the importance of the agency in maintaining national security and deterring Soviet espionage.

bloomer: "Hey, Truman didn't get into politics until he was 52."

When asked if the experience of Big River has been good enough for him to try his hand at another musical, Miller is unhesitating: "I'll do it again. It's just a matter of waiting for the right story."

Big River's story, as everyone knows who has ever had to sit through an American Classics course in high school or college, revolves around mischievous-but-big-hearted Huck Finn's trip down the Mississippi with Jim, the fugitive slave. In the course of that trip — with all of its sidetracking and subplots and comedy — Huck gradually steps outside the society-accepted conventional attitudes of his time and befriends Jim.

IN THE MUSICAL, Mark Twain himself is on hand to provide both narration and some of the show's finer solo moments.

Big River won seven Tony Awards in 1985, including Best Musical, Best Music and Lyrics, Best Director, Best Book, Best Scenic Design and Best Lighting Design. The show got its real start in trial runs at the American Repertory Theatre in Massachusetts and the La Jolla Playhouse in California. Along the way to a wildly successful stay on Broadway many of the bugs were hammered out.

"We've come a long way since then," said Mrs. Miller, referring to the show's beginnings at the American Repertory Theater. The show started out with half a dozen songs, but in the years since its beginning that number has tripled.

"What you'll see is a completely different show, a much bigger show," said Roger Miller.

What resulted from all that expansion is a musical nothing short of invigorating. Although the Broadway musical may be in no need of resurrection, audiences are sure to feel a welcome jolt of life. The music and the laughter and, yes, even the message of Big River are all wonderfully genuine in a way few mega-hit productions are.

Tickets to Big River are available at the Hancher Box Office for $26, $23 and $20 (students receive a 20 percent discount). There will be an additional matinee performance tomorrow at 2 p.m.

Hawks fall from top of NCAA poll

By Michael Triik
 The Daily Iowan

Friday night's 58-54 loss to Ohio State ended the Iowa women's basketball team's eight-week stronghold as the No. 1-ranked team in the nation.

Monday, USA Today gave Auburn the No. 1 spot, but it was not a unanimous decision. Iowa dropped to No. 3 with defending national champion Tennessee, 25-2, ranked No. 2. Texas, 26-2, is the No. 4 team and Louisiana Tech, 22-2, holds down the No. 5 spot. Auburn, 26-1, and Iowa, 23-1, were the only teams to receive any first-place votes.

place votes while the Hawkeyes received 558 points and six first-place votes. Tennessee got 570 points and no first-place votes. Texas compiled 535 points and Louisiana Tech received 494 points.

Iowa should still be the No. 1 seed in one of the NCAA Tournament's four regional playoffs later this month. All the Hawkeyes need to do is win their final four Big Ten games against Michigan, Michigan State, Northwestern and Wisconsin.

Tournament bids go out Sunday, March 12.

NEW YORK—Temple became the second team this season to hold the No. 1 spot four consecutive weeks and North Carolina State jumped five places Monday in United Press International's weekly college basketball ratings.

North Carolina State's leap came at the expense of the Iowa Hawkeyes, who, despite defeating then-No. 9 Michigan Saturday in front of a national television audience and a sellout crowd at Carver-Hawkeye Arena, dropped one place from No. 13 to No. 14.

The Wolverines were able to nail down the No. 9 spot for the second consecutive week.

The Owls, 25-1, joined Arizona as the only schools to maintain the top position for more than three straight weeks. The Wildcats were No. 1 from Jan. 12 through Feb. 1 and also held the top spot for a week earlier in the season. Temple received 33 of 41 first-place votes from UPI's Board of Coaches to collect 602 points. During the week, the Owls ripped Duquesne 94-55 and survived two tough games with West Virginia, winning 62-61 and 78-69.

PURDUE, 24-2, held the No. 2 spot with five first-places votes and 542 points. Arizona, 26-3, was third with 537 points and Oklahoma, 26-2, received two No. 1 mentions to earn 504 points.

Ice Hawks take MCHA title

By Hugh Donlan
 The Daily Iowan

WATERLOO — The Ice Hawks captured the Midwest Collegiate Hockey Association Championship over the weekend, but none of the black squad skaters hit their heads on the ceiling jumping for joy.

The club capped a storybook season when they defeated Cornell 6-5 Friday and 7-4 Saturday to capture their first league championship and finish the season undefeated, 17-0-1.

"It feels pretty good even though we knew we were going to do it from game one," defenseman Dan Seliger said. "I'm glad it only took two games and it's over with."

"I'm just glad the season is over," center Adam Shell said.

"It feels pretty good," left wing Dan Levy said.

But how good does it really feel?

"Pretty good," Levy repeated.

DEFENSEMAN BILL Saehler, who scored the game-winning goal Friday night, was as elated over the championship as his teammates.

"I don't know, it felt kind of good," Saehler said. "I thought once we played everybody we had a good chance. We've got the better skaters."

The new league champions had about as much trouble with their egos as they did with the Cornell squad. Although they fell behind in the first period Friday and had to chase a Cornell lead for the better part of the first two periods, the Ice Hawks were able to overcome every deficit.

Matt Fuller scored the club's first two goals to tie the score at 1-1 and 2-2. Andy Nilles scored the Ice Hawks' third goal for a 3-3 tie in the third.

DON KISELA scored the next two goals for the Ice Hawks' first two leads of the game, 4-3 and 5-4. The club was unable to hold either lead.

With little more than two minutes left in the first game of a best-of-three series, Saehler scored the game-winner.

"It was great seeing it go in," he said. "It went off the goalie's pads between his legs and the defenseman kind of kicked it in."

It was more of the same for the Ice Hawks Saturday. They played well enough to win, but not well enough to be satisfied with their performance.

Cahal's confidence keeps her buoyed

By G. Hammond-Kunke
 The Daily Iowan

Michelle Cahal tilts the scales in terms of competitive verve.

Cahal, a 5-foot-5 dynamo, has what it takes on the outside — a special ebullience, a crowd-pleasing aura about her.

Inside, Cahal is driven by sure-fire confidence and determination that doesn't distract from her energetic nature when competing.

"Michelle takes a very level approach to gymnastics," nine-year Iowa gymnastics Coach Diane DeMarco said. "She knows her limitations and approaches her workouts wisely. She is very receptive, listens well and utilizes feedback."

"MICHELLE WAS ONE of the best uneven-bar workers in the country last year. We saw a great deal of potential for her to develop equally in all four events, both with her competitive drive and spirit," DeMarco added.

Cahal has already made an impact on the Iowa team. She tied the Iowa school record for the bars at 9.55 and has also established herself as a competent all-arounder with a first-place finish against Iowa State.

"I've always had an aggressive personality," said Cahal, a first-year gymnast from Arvada, Colo. "The key in gymnastics is to get just the right balance while you're performing."

Thus far, Cahal uses that edge while combining athletics and mental tenacity. She is tough on herself without being self-destructive, much in the same style she exudes sureness without appearing pretentious.

Women's Gymnastics

"I like the added pressure because it gives me that mental edge, which is 95 percent (of the battle)," Cahal said.

"I missed out on a lot of social events in high school because of all the time that's put in practice," said Cahal, who started tumbling at age six. "But it's worth it. I don't know what I'd do with myself without it."

THERE WAS A time when Cahal had to put aside competition. After winning the state individual meet for club competition on the bars as a sophomore, Cahal went down with a back injury — an injury that came at a most inopportune time as Cahal was going to make the jump from Class I gymnast to Elite class, a higher skill level.

Cahal made her comeback, then suffered a more serious injury last May on her favorite event, the bars. This time the injury cost Cahal a chance to compete in the Western Nationals competition. Cahal caught her heel on the lower bar, which caused her right knee to hyperextend and tore the ligaments in her knee in half.

"It was pretty painful, but the worst thing was not getting the chance to go to the nationals," Cahal said.

THOUGH COMPETING, Cahal is still rehabilitating the knee: "I can't let the quad strength See Cahal, Page 3B

Hawkeyes face tough going at Big Tens

By Scott Wingert
 The Daily Iowan

Iowa wrestling Coach Dan Gable knows his foes are taking aim.

For the past 14 years, the Big Ten wrestling championships have been the Iowa Invitational in disguise.

The Hawkeyes have won every league title since 1973 and have not lost a Big Ten dual since they were beaten that year by Michigan, 21-16. Gable is 78-0 against league opponents.

But this year is different. Though

Wrestling

Iowa breezed through its limited Big Ten schedule by a 185-64 margin in six dual meets, five of the top 15 teams in Monday's new Amateur Wrestling News rankings include Big Ten schools.

THAT MEANS THE competition for the Big Ten's 42 national tournament berths will be as feverish as ever. And if Iowa expects to be a national contender, Gable knows his squad will have to perform very well this weekend.

"I'm not even thinking about nationals right now," Gable said. "My main concern going into the Big Tens is to bring 10 guys out going into nationals. If I can get the young people to wrestle up to their ability, then I have no doubt in my mind that we'll qualify all See Wrestling, Page 3B

'Action' marred by violence

By Kevin C. Kretschmer
The Daily Iowan

Actor Carl Weathers is big. Actor Carl Weathers is handsome. Actor Carl Weathers is a commanding screen presence. Movie character Jericho "Action" Jackson is a Detroit police sergeant. Jackson has a Harvard law degree! Jackson has a penchant for imposing self-determined justice that has cost him his lieutenant bars.

Carl Weathers, best known as Apollo Creed in the Rocky movies, has finally found a chance to headline a big-budget feature of his own. As in the Rocky films, Weathers gets ample opportunity to act — with his fists.

It's surprising that Hollywood waited so long to star Weathers in an action pic, though it's less surprising that it would be in the mode of the early '70s blaxploitation films. In his defense, Weathers does as well as can be expected considering the circumstances. He delivers tough one-liners like an honor graduate from the Schwarzenegger School of Dramatic Art, and the film casts him as the same sort of perverse role model.

Action Jackson is an unrelentingly violent, sadistic and foul-mouthed movie that glories in its own excesses. There is a line that separates acceptable practice from tastelessness even for high-powered action films. Action Jackson doesn't just step over that line — the film obliterated it. Initially enjoyable sequences with outrageous stunts and comic-book violence are constantly undercut by scene-ending shots of graphic carnage in lingering slow motion.

It would be accurate to say that this movie wastes the acting talents of those involved. It would be even more accurate to say that this movie wastes the actors. The plot structure goes something like this: A character is introduced, a character is murdered; a character is introduced, a character is murdered; a character is introduced... Indeed, it's a simple scenario. Add to the equation one "Action" Jackson. He manages to escape this trap to systematically dole out "justice" to the highly unsavory persons responsible for the above formula.

ACTUALLY, THERE'S A plot line about a greedy auto manufacturer (and drug kingpin) who is trying to infiltrate the auto worker's union. He plans to use it as a power base to guide the election of Undoubtedly, Carl Weathers possesses the type of charisma that makes an actor a star. So far in his career, he's had limited opportunity to be seen to his best advantage. Unfortunately, Action Jackson isn't the sort of film he needs as a showcase. It certainly isn't the sort of film a discriminating audience needs as entertainment.

First-time director Craig R. Baxley has a long list of film and television credits as a stunt coordinator and second-unit director, and he directed 12 episodes of "The A-Team." Unquestionably, the man knows a lot about airborne motor vehicles, incendiary devices and blood-spattered corpses. However, special effects and stunts should only serve as part of a well-structured plot, not as a substitute for the plot itself.

Undoubtedly, Carl Weathers possesses the type of charisma that makes an actor a star. So far in his career, he's had limited opportunity to be seen to his best advantage. Unfortunately, Action Jackson isn't the sort of film he needs as a showcase. It certainly isn't the sort of film a discriminating audience needs as entertainment.

government officials who are receptive to his insidious schemes. Craig T. Nelson stars as the nefarious master villain, and he evils it up with all of the abandon that comes from believing no one important will ever actually see him slumming in this role.

Singer-actress Vanity costars as a singer-junkie, which might be considered a limited stretch of her abilities. That's OK because she's not here to present her thespian talents but rather to provide glamorous decoration. Vanity, who is one of the most stunningly attractive sex symbols currently working, relies on revealing her physical attributes to help get her through a scene as Weathers relies on throwing his fists to get himself out of trouble.

Undoubtedly, Carl Weathers possesses the type of charisma that makes an actor a star. So far in his career, he's had limited opportunity to be seen to his best advantage. Unfortunately, Action Jackson isn't the sort of film he needs as a showcase. It certainly isn't the sort of film a discriminating audience needs as entertainment.

The Belgrade State Folk Ensemble brought its colorful blend of the music, dance and costume of Yugoslavia to Iowa City.

Belgrade ensemble gives lively show

By B. A. Babbitt
The Daily Iowan

Making its first coast-to-coast North American tour, the Belgrade State Folk Ensemble gave an energetic performance at Hancher Auditorium Sunday afternoon.

For over 40 years the ensemble has performed a mixture of traditional Yugoslavian folk dance, song and music. Formed in Yugoslavia during World War II, the group began as a collection of singers, dancers and musicians who performed for hospitalized soldiers.

After the war, the ensemble grew to symbolize the artistic attitude of the new country, one that would not forget the past.

Based on careful folklore research, historical documents and archeological evidence, the ensemble is noted for its historically accurate portrayal of archaic Balkan ritual music and dance of the Middle Ages.

The program Sunday was arranged in a number of different scenes, each with an emphasis on the music and dance from Yugoslavia's six socialist republics. Much of the show's material dealt with the relationship between the people of the country and the land.

"Oj Moravo," the first song of the performance, originated from the flat lowlands of Serbia and laments the flooding which often occurs there. Other parts of the program address lighter topics, such as the pursuit of love and family relationships. The program also includes fighting dances and humorous competition between the sexes. Whether singing of the land or of love, the chorus was made up of resonant, full-bodied voices.

The dance pieces often began daintily and contained numerous reserved flirtations among the performers but, with time, grew increasingly more vigorous and lusty. A number of the dances included simple acrobatics.

THE ORCHESTRA contained a number of indigenous Eastern European instruments, including the gadjie, a bagpipe-like wind instrument and the tapan, an ancient sort of drum. The musicians were skilled but self-conscious and lacked the enthusiasm of the singers and dancers.

With the exception of the high-quality, richly hued costumes — which ranged from those of village peasants to exotic Indian silks — staging of the program was minimal with few props. This spartan style served to emphasize the dancers themselves. Stage movement was fluid and well-balanced.

The Belgrade State Folk Ensemble brought to Iowa City the full-blown flavor of another distant land. It conveyed an energy, an earnestness and an artistic industry far removed from drudgery. Its enthusiasm was apparent and infectious — in short, sensational.

UI Theatres' 'Miss Margarida' shocks with an explicit show

By Kevin Goulding
The Daily Iowan

Miss Margarida's Way, which opens Wednesday night at University Theatres, "contains material which may offend some audience members" according to promotional material.

A critic from The Boston Herald American wrote: "Many showgoers of Boston will be shocked and dismayed by Miss Margarida's Way which is not the way of sweetness and light, or of decency."

The Boston Globe reported that "night after night during the first off-Broadway run at the Public Theater she was hissed, jeered, humiliated, even stink-bombed and nearly mobbed by normally restrained theatergoers who found themselves inexplicably frenzied and grappling for release, any kind of release..."

The controversial comedy, by Brazilian Roberto Athayde (see sidebar), has been performed in 55 countries and has been banned and censored in several of them. Some Iowa City theatergoers will remember its stop at Hancher Auditorium in 1979 with Estelle Parsons.

MISS MARGARIDA'S Way is a satire on power and madness, not to mention sex and religion (how come these two always go together?), as portrayed in an eighth-grade teacher's lecture on biology. Paranoid and out-of-control, she wields her power, according to The New York Times, "like God with a nervous breakdown."

Suited to Miss Margarida's schizophrenic nature, director Kate Burke has divided the lead among two actresses, Karen Jorgensen and Alejandra Leon de la Barra.

Karen Jorgensen (left) and Alejandra Leon de la Barra share the role of the tyrannical biology teacher in the UI Theatres production of Miss Margarida's Way, March 2-13 in Theatre A of the UI Theatre Building.

Working with split leads on such a demanding play has proven both rewarding and challenging for Burke. "At times I've felt like the schizophrenic nurturing mother of fraternal twins. Early on, when we were having rehearsals with both of them, I would have this surreal, schizophrenic, nightmarish deja-vu period of ten minutes at the beginning of the second rehearsal when I couldn't get my bearings. I'd be thinking, 'Didn't I just hear this?'"

MISS MARGARIDA, with more dizzying mood swings than a UI presidential search, is one of the more challenging of roles, particularly for the young actress. At one point in the play she looks out at her class (the audience) and queries "Is there anybody named Messiah in this classroom? No? What about Jesus? No Jesus either? And Holy Ghost? Any Holy Ghosts in class? None, right? Fuck you, then! You can go to hell. Oh yes, the Principal told me what a nice class you are..."

Jorgensen remarks, "You can't let yourself relax at any time. You have to surge on. If you drop the energy the whole show drops. You are the energy. Either you grow and develop with this or you die." Both actresses remark on how the role has affected them. With de la Barra, it became a matter of leaving Miss Margarida in rehearsal. "I began to feel like she was by my side all the time. It's really crazy. She becomes a part of you."

Miss Margarida's Way will be performed at 8 p.m. March 2 — 5 and 9 — 12, and at 3 p.m. March 6 and 13 in Theatre A.

Playwrite explains show

By Steve Feffer
The Daily Iowan

The following phone interview with Miss Margarida's Way playwright Roberto Athayde, currently residing in Rio De Janeiro, is excerpted from the University Theatre Newsletter.

UT Newsletter: What was the political situation in Brazil at the time you wrote the play?

Roberto Athayde: In 1964 the military took over the democratic government of Brazil because they felt the president was leaning too far to the left. The situation had become too chaotic for them. Lots of strikes and walkouts. After the takeover, Brazil was under a military dictatorship for the next twenty years. At the time I wrote the play (1971), the dictatorship was at its worst. Many people had fled the country. Intellectuals were very limited in what they could say.

UTN: In what ways were you helped?

RA: My sister-in-law had a relative who was in the Federal Police. Later, they came to see the rehearsal, and they let it go. I don't know why. It was a totally irrational thing. I suppose that making Miss Margarida a teacher was a way of going around the fact of censorship because I knew that they (the censors) were very literal, basically stupid people. Then, after the play was opened, it was denounced. So a week after the play opened, we had to close it down.

UTN: So the run in Brazil was only a week?

RA: No. The censors just cut a couple of swear words and let it go on again. Remember, that by the time the play was denounced it was already a popular thing.

The whole thing (being denounced and reopening) was actually very good for publicity.

UTN: What happened after you made this choice to write and speak out against the dictatorship?

RA: Well, nothing really. Probably because of the subtle way the play was speaking against the dictatorship. Most of the government was really after the people who were terrorists and doing more dangerous things than talking and writing. Actually, I think that talking and writing is just as dangerous as anything else.

On March 5, Athayde will attend a pre-performance discussion with Dr. Adriana Mendez, UI associate professor of Spanish and will also conduct a post-performance critique of the play.
