Bill would require student seat on Regents

By Karyn Riley
The Daily Iowan
and United Press International

DES MOINES — The Iowa House Wednesday approved a bill requiring at least one college student to serve as a voting member of the state Board of Regents, rejecting opponents' claims that students lack maturity to govern.

"Those serving on the Board of Regents should be mature, experienced in the adult world of realism, able to equate the worth of expenditures supported by public money and well aware of what paying taxes means," Rep. Tom Miller, R-Cherokee, said in opposition to the bill.

"For the most part, in the student world idealism prevails. . . . That idealism has a place and should be heard — but it should not have equal weight when it comes to determining state policy. We need regents who not only are willing, but fully capable of dealing with the real world."

BACKERS OF the proposal, sent to the Senate on a 60-36 vote, said students should be guaranteed a spot on the nine-member panel because they are the ones most affected by the board's actions.

"They have the most at stake. It is appropriate they be represented," said Rep. Jane Teaford, D-Waterloo, the bill's sponsor.

UI Collegiate Associations Council President Mike Reck agreed with Teaford, saying the bill will ensure student representation on the board.

"While the Board of Regents has allowed us in the past to make presentations in open meetings, most of the decisions are made in closed committees," he said. "This will help us gain access to these committees and ensure student representation on important issues."

ON A VOICE VOTE, lawmakers rejected an amendment that would have restricted the student member to a non-voting position.

"They deserve to be on the Board of Regents with not only a voice, but a vote. So many of the issues so dramatically affect them," Rep. Mary Neuhauser, D-Iowa City, said. Rep. Ralph Rosenberg, D-Ames, said the issue is a "question of enfranchisement for 65,000 individuals."

"It is a question of giving someone the right to represent themselves. We give 18-year-olds the right to vote. I think we should make sure 18-year-olds have equal representation in government," he said.

House Minority Leader Del Stromer, R-Garner, said the bill would hamper the governor's ability to select the proper people to serve as regents. One UI law student, Jackie Van Ekeren, currently serves on the board, but Gov. Terry Branstad made the appointment voluntarily.

VAN EKEREN agreed with Stromer, saying a decision by the governor to appoint a student to the board should be optional, not mandated. Van Ekeren, who has served three years of her six-year term, also said a proposed student term of two years would be inadequate.

"Two years is way too short of a

Causes of plane crash studied

By John Gilardi
The Daily Iowan
and United Press International

NORTH LIBERTY — An eyewitness to Sunday's plane crash that killed four Iowa City residents confirmed a flight investigator's theory that the pilot was trying to fight a loss of power and avoid trees and power lines when the plane crashed in a muddy field.

According to Rey Vargas of the National Transportation Safety Board, Allen Huedepohl of Tiffin told him Tuesday that he saw the plane piloted by Gilbert Cuthbertson soaring straight up to avoid a clump of trees then "went straight down into the dirt" in a farm field near Green Castle Aviation, a private airport near Oxford.

Huedepohl also said the low-flying plane rolled slightly, with its wings dipping up and down before it approached the trees.

KILLED IN the crash were Cuthbertson, 32, his wife, Dr. Megan Danton, 31, Brian Olson, 32, and his wife, Molly Olson, 29, all of Iowa City. The four were en route to a brunch in Prairie du Chien, Wis., when the rented plane crashed about a mile from the small airport.

Authorities were unaware Huedepohl, who was driving near the airport at the time of the crash, had seen the plane go down until he contacted Johnson County authorities Monday. Huedepohl said he notified authorities after hearing news reports saying there were no witnesses to the crash.

Vargas also said Wednesday the exact cause of the crash may not be known for about one year pending lab results and investigations of the victims' backgrounds.

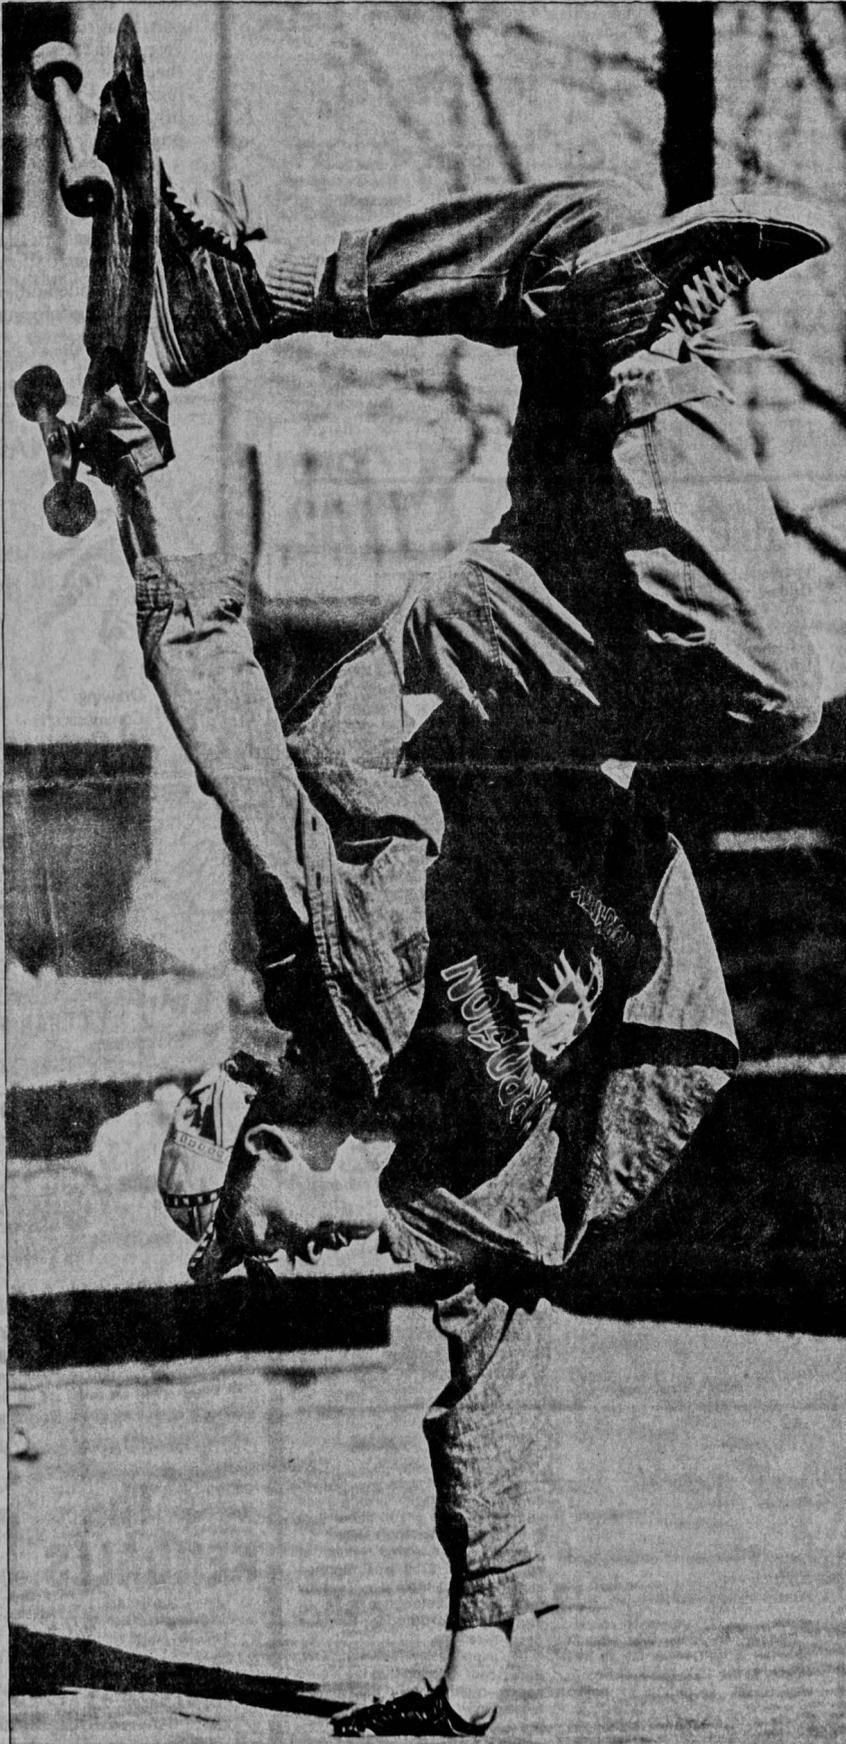

"There's a lot of paperwork involved," said Vargas, who returned to his headquarters in Kansas City, Mo., Tuesday evening.

Vargas said other possible causes being investigated include:

- Improper setting of wing flaps at 20 degrees instead of the normal 5 to 10 degrees for takeoff.
- Excessive weight — although under gross weight — from 26 gallons of fuel and four passengers.
- Carbon monoxide entering the cabin from a faulty gasket, incapacitating Cuthbertson and other passengers. The heating system is a "cheap system," Vargas said, because it takes hot air off the engine block and pushes it into the cabin. "There might have been a bad exhaust problem," Vargas said.

Toxicology reports have also been ordered from Cuthbertson's blood to check for traces of carbon monoxide, Vargas said.

HUEDEPOHL'S EYEWITNESS account appears to corroborate speculation by local pilots who said

Democrats rip Pomerantz for PAC funding

By Scott Sonner
United Press International

DES MOINES — Board of Regents President Marvin Pomerantz is jeopardizing the panel's integrity by making unethical contributions to a political action committee that recruits Republican candidates, key Senate Democrats charged Wednesday.

Sen. George Kinley, D-Des Moines, also criticized Sen. Jack Nystrom, R-Boone, for accepting more than $8,000 from the same PAC for providing political consulting services to the organization.

The PAC, the Committee for Responsible Government, donated $8,392 to Nystrom and Associates, $33 for bank service charges and the rest for "salary," according to records filed with the Iowa Campaign Finance Disclosure Commission.

The committee also received $3,000 from Deere & Co. PAC, $1,000 from Associated General Contractors and $1,000 from Pomerantz, a Des Moines businessman who was appointed chairman of the state Board of Regents last year.

"I REALLY think it has the potential to jeopardize the integrity of the Board of Regents and higher education in this state," Senate Majority Leader Bill Hutchins, D-Audubon, said during a speech on the Senate floor. "It doesn't look good for the Board of Regents. It doesn't look good for the Legislature," he added.

Aides to Branstad said the governor had no problem with Pomerantz's contribution to the PAC.

"He is a private citizen, he can do whatever he wants," said Dick Vohs, Branstad's press secretary.

But Kinley said Pomerantz lost his freedom to help elect candidates when he became president of the Regents.

"Certainly Mr. Pomerantz has the right to do with his money what he

Magazine finds UI good bargain among colleges

By James Cahoy
The Daily Iowan

Students paying continually increasing tuition fees may not believe it, but the UI still ranks as one of the "very best" higher education bargains in the nation, according to the current issue of Changing Times.

The UI was one of 58 four-year institutions selected by the magazine as providing high quality at low cost. Among those listed with the UI are five other schools in Iowa — Central University of Iowa, Coe, Luther, Simpson and Wartburg colleges.

To qualify for consideration, the total cost for tuition, fees, and room and board had to be less than the national average — $6,500 for out-of-state students in public colleges, and $10,500 for private colleges.

THE UI CHARGES out-of-state students $7,270 in tuition, fees, room and board, but was included on the list because its costs and academic excellence make it comparable with many of the private colleges on the list, the magazine said.

Changing Times selected the schools by combining the opinions of 13 education experts with objective data — scores on entrance exams, percentage of Ph.D.s on the faculty, faculty-student ratios, and percentage of students who go on to graduate or professional schools.

After considering price, the panel examined the academic quality of the students. Every college chosen has a freshman class with average test scores above the current national average of 906 for the SAT, or its equivalent of 20 for the ACT.

Murder convict charged $900,000 in damages

By Traci Auble
The Daily Iowan

A man convicted of first-degree murder in connection with the death of an Iowa City man in 1979 was ordered to pay over $900,000 in punitive damages Monday to the victim's family, according to Johnson County District Court records.

Former Coralville resident Michael Otto Gilroy, 37, is currently serving a life sentence at the state penitentiary in Fort Madison, Iowa, after being convicted of the murder of former Iowa City resident Vincent Lalla on April 25, 1980 in Johnson County District Court.

Gilroy entered the Iowa City Moose Lodge on March 12, 1979 and shot Lalla twice with a 12-gauge shotgun. Lalla was the manager of the lodge at the time of the shooting, according to court records.

Gilroy was sentenced to life in prison in May 1980 by a 12-woman jury during a trial in Anamosa, Iowa.

MARY P. LALLA, the widow of Vincent Lalla and administrator of Lalla's estate, filed for punitive damages on Dec. 7, 1987. Since Gilroy had been convicted of first-degree murder in connection with Lalla's death, Sixth District Judge Van D. Zimmer found it appropriate to award damages, according to court records.

Included in the damages was $101,883 for lost support for Lalla and her six children, $300,000 for the loss of their husband and father, $5,700 for lost savings and $2,500 for funeral expenses, according to court records.

Also included in the award to Lalla's estate was $500,000 in punitive damages.

The court determined that Lalla was in good health at the time of his death at age 43 and determined that 62 years was his expected life span. An Iowa City certified public accountant, Robert Rehffuss, testified for Lalla and estimated the present value of lost earnings due

Professor looks at cancer

Using dieting or drugs to control the behavior of cancerous cells will be the focus of two basic science research projects at the UI College of Medicine by Andrew Yen, UI associate professor of internal medicine, and physiology and biophysics.

Yen's research addresses the effect of external factors, such as diet or drugs, and how they can regulate the cancerous cells' growth and perhaps reverse the process by making the diseased cells take on the appearance and function of normal cells.

The two UI studies are funded by two-year grants from the American Institute for Cancer Research and the Council for Tobacco Research.

The $80,000 AICR grant looks at the effect of vitamins and diet on leukemia cells in order to make them assume the function of normal cells.

Researchers also will examine the effect of vitamins and diet on cells after chemotherapy. The $182,000 CTR grant looks at how drugs affect cancerous cells.

Yen's work researches control of DNA replication, a process that cells use to make copies of themselves or to differentiate.

The research seeks to show how specific levels of chemicals or other substances can influence the direction of what had been uncontrolled growth.

Professor given fellowship

A $21,000 research fellowship was recently awarded to Tatsuya Nonaka of UI Hospitals and Clinics by the National Kidney Foundation, according to William A. Dyar, Executive Director of the Iowa affiliate of the group.

Nonaka's research, which focuses on the filtration role of the kidneys, will be funded for the 1988-89 academic year. A native of Japan, Nonaka earned his medical degree from the University of Tokyo. He joined UI Hospitals in October 1987.

Headquartered in Des Moines, the National Kidney Foundation of Iowa serves the state of Iowa as well as Henry, Mercer and Rock Island Counties in Illinois.

New state bill may end UI-Iowa City sewer debate

By Sara Anderson
The Daily Iowan

A bill which was prompted by the sewer rate dispute between the UI and Iowa City passed out of an Iowa House committee Monday.

The bill, which will be placed on the House calendar for debate this session, requires that state organizations pay the same sewer rates as the rest of a community.

The House Local Government Committee unanimously approved the bill, which requires that cities notify the institutions of rate increases of more than 5 percent, and that institutions wishing to discontinue service give 60 days notice.

Rep. Mary Neuhauser, D-Iowa City, introduced the bill to prevent future disputes between Iowa cities and state universities over sewer rates.

THE UI AND Iowa City are currently litigants in a suit over sewer rates.

The city imposed a sewer rate increase in July, which the UI originally refused to pay, claiming that a third party arbitrator should be brought in to negotiate the UI's sewer rates. The city, in turn, threatened to cut off sewer service to the UI.

A judge ruled in December that the UI would have to pay the bill, but the university is currently trying to obtain a declaratory judgment against the city.

Iowa City Finance Manager Rosemary Vitosh said the bill may do away with need for the suit.

"From what I understand, the bill says that the university would have to pay the same rates as any other user," she said. "If the bill were approved by both the Iowa House and Senate and signed by the governor, that would make it law and would pretty much take away need for the suit."

IOWA CITY also has other problems with its sewer system.

Johnson County has refused to give the city approval to rezone land at the site of a proposed sewage treatment plant. Iowa City is under pressure from the Iowa Department of Natural Resources to build the plant and will be assessed fines if work on the project does not begin soon.

The parties involved have agreed to a 60-day mediation period through the Peace Institute, a bi-partisan organization which attempts to settle issues of conflict.

Law professor Bezanson set to leave UI

Randall Bezanson

By Jay Casini
The Daily Iowan

UI Law Professor and former UI Vice President Randall Bezanson announced Tuesday that he will leave the UI to become dean of the Washington and Lee University law school, but said he hoped to have the opportunity to return to the UI in the future.

Bezanson said he will assume the Washington and Lee position in July.

"Washington and Lee is a very fine law school, and the university there has made quite a remarkable commitment to creating the best legal education in intellectual and professional terms that can be devised," Bezanson said.

"That is quite an unprecedented and exciting opportunity," he said.

BEZANSON SERVED as the UI vice president for finance and university services from 1979 to 1982.

In 1981, Bezanson was among seven finalists for the UI presidency. James O. Freedman was chosen by the state Board of Regents for the position, which he held until last June.

A Cedar Rapids native who graduated from Northwestern University and the UI College of Law, Bezanson said his loyalty to the UI made the decision to leave difficult.

"The University of Iowa in general and the Iowa law school are both remarkable," Bezanson said. "They are of the highest quality and they aspire to be of the highest quality as they should. They have both been very good to me."

Bezanson said Wednesday he hopes to return to the UI law school faculty in some capacity when he leaves Washington and Lee.

UI COLLEGE OF LAW Dean N. William Hines said Bezanson's decision is a serious loss to the law school.

"Randy is our own homegrown product. He's the epitome of the best our law school can produce," Hines said.

Hines called Bezanson a "sensational professor and scholar," noting that even during Bezanson's busy career at the UI he has published more than a dozen law review articles.

Hines said Bezanson's hope to someday return to the UI law school is "one of the few good-news aspects of his leaving."

"He does seem to want to come back after he has fulfilled his obligation at Washington and Lee," Hines said. "We fully intend to have a spot on the faculty here for him whenever he decides to come back."

UI Journalism Associate Professor John Soloski, who co-authored the 1987 book Libel Law and The Press with Bezanson and UI Journalism Professor Gilbert Cranberg, said Bezanson was a valuable colleague.

"He is certainly a very fine teacher, an excellent researcher and just a first-rate individual," Soloski said.

"I'm really sorry to see him leave," Soloski added. "What it really comes down to is a terrific opportunity for Randy. I can understand why they would want him."

Soloski, Bezanson and Cranberg are currently working on developing non-judicial procedures for libel cases. Soloski said he plans to continue collaborating after Bezanson leaves the UI this summer.

"I'm sure we'll continue to work together, but now he'll be a thousand miles away," Soloski said.

Fans of state's sports teams may soon get booster plates

United Press International

DES MOINES — Fans of the UI, Iowa State University and University of Northern Iowa sports teams soon may be able to display their loyalties on their vehicle bumpers under a bill given first-round approval in the Legislature Tuesday.

The House Transportation Committee, on a voice vote, approved a bill authorizing the Department of Transportation to print special booster license plates in the colors of the state's three universities. Rep. Mary Neuhauser, D-Iowa City, and sponsor of the bill, said the new plates would be fun for fans and profitable for the schools.

Under the bill, fans would be allowed to order booster plates in the black and gold colors of the Iowa Hawkeyes, the red and gold worn by Iowa State Cyclone teams or the purple and white of the Northern Iowa Panthers.

THE COST OF the plates would be $30 more than normal vehicle registration fees, with $5 of the additional cost going to cover the DOT's cost of printing the tags. The remaining $25 would go into the scholarship funds of the three schools.

Neuhauser said there are no estimates available as to how much money the new booster plates would generate for the schools. But she said she expects the plates would be a big hit among Iowans who are known for their "fanatical enthusiasm" for their college teams.

The bill is modeled after legislation enacted in Florida.

Beginning next fall, the UT's English as a Foreign Language program plans to administer mandatory English proficiency tests to all foreign graduate teaching assistant candidates in an attempt to step up the quality of communication between TAs and their students.

Complaints have been received from a number of students stating they are unable to understand the speech of their TAs. These students fear not doing as well in their studies as they feel they should. The problem has been ongoing for several years.

Trying to improve the course-related speech of the TAs is commendable and both TAs and students will profit by such a program. But the proposed solution addresses only half the problem and places all the responsibility for successful communication on the shoulders of the TAs.

Students, too, have a responsibility to make every effort possible on their own behalf to understand the speech of those who are attempting to teach them.

A course should be designed for those students who complain they cannot understand their TA. Linguistics and EFL program professionals could prepare audio and video tapes of course-related vocabulary in English in the accent of the foreign national. These vocabularies then could be repeated in American-accented English, much as foreign languages are taught. Students could study these tapes to learn the nuances of native accent of the speaker of English as a second language.

We owe it to ourselves as citizens of the world, as residents of this cosmopolitan educational community and as tolerant human beings, not to let our "lazy ears" — and subtle prejudices? — diminish the value of our own educations.

Senate theatrics

Last week, a new height of vaudevillian spectacle was achieved on the Senate floor when, on the second night of a Republican filibuster tying up a bill to limit congressional campaign spending, Majority Leader Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., instructed the sergeant at arms to "arrest" all absent senators. Shortly after midnight, a thoroughly unamused Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., was carried feet first into the chamber.

Funny? Absolutely. Juvenile? Nobody's going to win any dignity prizes for this one. A sad indicator of partisan rift and the lengths to which the Republican minority will go to obstruct the vicarious mandate of the people? To think otherwise would be dangerously apologetic.

A filibuster is a complicated procedure requiring explanation. The short version is this: Every bill, when it reaches the floor, is debated before voting. Debate ends when 60 senators agree to do so. This is called cloture.

A filibuster occurs when a minority attempts to tie up a bill in debate so long the opposition either grants concessions or withdraws the bill. They can talk themselves hoarse, or absent themselves from the floor, thereby preventing a quorum.

Last week's display, as with all filibusters, was designed to prevent cloture on a bill that, barring acts of God, would have passed the Democratic-controlled Senate. The GOP minority does not want a cap on special-interest contributions to congressional campaigns because it would invalidate the lavish spending typically used to unseat incumbent Democrats. The Democrats favor a cap because they are notoriously underfunded in election and re-election bids.

Whatever the merits of the bill, the Republican filibuster is troubling because it shows a contempt for the healthy function of the legislature. Senators have two jobs: as an individual, to represent and defend the will of their constituencies in public forum; and as a member of a legislative body, to vote and, when necessary, yield to the will of the majority.

In terms of strictest procedural law, the GOP filibuster was legal — a legal abdication of responsibility on the highest order. Put simply, senators who cower in their offices are simply not doing one-half of their jobs. And as a result of their theatrics, a bill that reflected a majority of senate opinion will not revisit the legislature until next year.

Threat to freedom

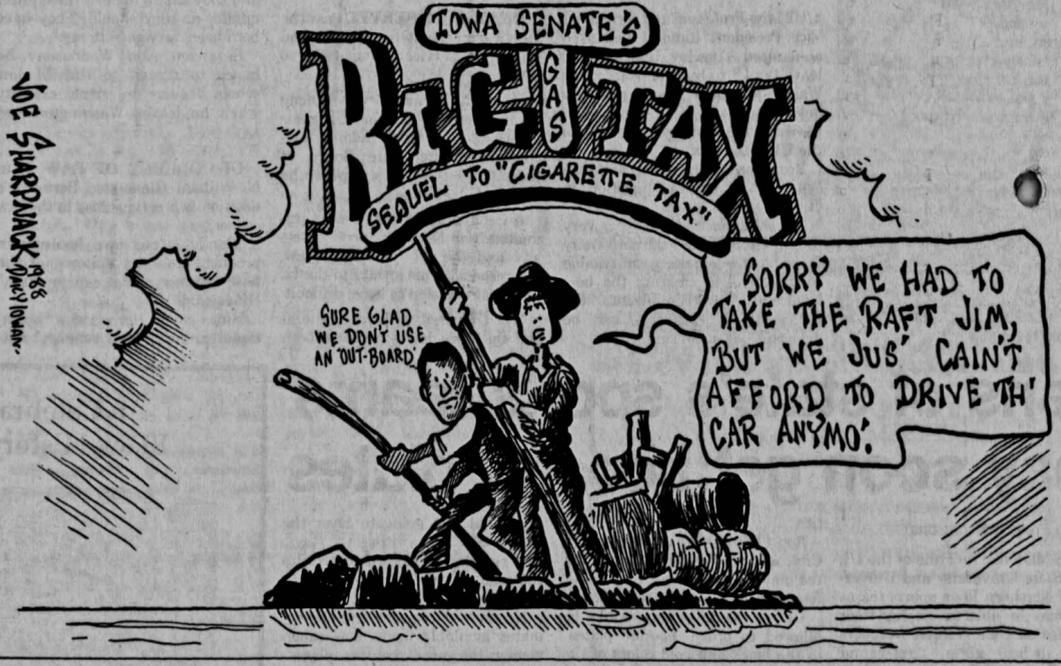

Iowa lawmakers are now considering a number of bills which are intended to safeguard the citizen's privacy. Broadest of these is the "Iowa Privacy Act," which would require an individual's permission before publication of any information, including his or her name, likeness or writings.

Another bill would place potentially insurmountable restrictions on matters of public record, requiring elaborate justification of queries and notification of all those concerned before release of any information. Still other bills would water down the requirement for minutes of public meetings and protect the sacred privacy of liquor store sales.

It is easy to see why this sort of thing might appeal to the legislators, all of whom are to some degree public figures. But such "protection" of the individual is going to directly oppose the freedoms of the press, and surround government with another layer of secrecy. The average citizen needs much more protection from the government than from the press. These "privacy" acts would protect the fox from the chickens.

Any statute restricting the press should be quickly struck down as a threat to free speech. Nobody will benefit from such legislation except the lawyers, most of whom do not want for work. Iowa's legislators should not waste their time on such frivolities.

New Collars avoid 'C' word

Ran a little short of funds last month. Ran a little short of funds every month the past 120 or so, come to think of it. That's the price I pay for being one of the dozens of thousands of aging young people who fit into a new demographic — The New Collar.

Generally speaking, we're children of middle-class parents, college graduates who are uncomfortable in suits and ties and high heels. In each other's company we bandy about words like "sell out" and "integrity." We choose to make our way the strange way, part-time, catch-as-catch-can, hand-to-mouth, stupidly blundering through the dark from one paycheck to the next, our boats moving downstream but our oars sticking up above water.

MY LANDLORD is very understanding. "I want rent on the first of every month — at 12:01 a.m.," he tells me. Then he puts his hand on my shoulder in a fatherly manner. "Cash."

I've always admired the pioneers, but I never expected the city to indulge my fantasies. They cut off my supply of water. I just see it as dealing without the middle man every time I go down to the Iowa River to fill my bucket.

There are numerous reasons for shunning corporate America by becoming part of the unhooked generation of New Collars. Good reasons.

Rumor has it (how would I know? I never worked for one) large corporations relish their employees' indebtedness. They'll even go so far as to authorize funds for a drink or two or three every time one of the peons goes into hock for a new car. And when the lackey buys a house, or gets preggers, well, roll out the hog trough, big spenders, it's formal dinner time! And bring along the whole office! Those corporate managers really know how to manage — sink their talons into that tender, young flesh and hang on! They know when they got a sucker on the line and they know how to reel 'em in.

BUT I suspect the major reason for staying a New Collar is avoidance of the dreaded C word.

Ah, the C word! It's come up on every occasion I've had to apply for a "real" job with a "real" company. After I've gotten sick of mooching quarters off my friends for a box of macaroni and cheese. After I've gotten fed up with appearing at my sister's — oops — just in time for dinner. After I've spent the month of January under an army blanket, too cheap, too broke to turn on the heat.

Without fail, the C word chases me back to pauperdom.

To my grandmother, the C word was cancer. The dreaded unmentionable.

To my sister Trippi, the C word is — what else? — cocaine. (She calls it "white girls" on the telephone in case her dealer's phone is tapped.)

To my brother Deutsch Mark, the C word is — was noch? — communism. The dreaded overmen-tioned. To me, the C word is commitment. There. I said it.

Girlfriends, bosses, parents have sent me into clumsy retreat at the mere uttering of the word. Commitment, after all, leads to career, and that leads to — my breath catches with fear and loathing — children. Give an inch and the next thing I know I'll be attempting to feed triplets. What a frustrating proposition. Especially with my breasts.

So instead of being trapped in a life I would probably end up shirking anyway, I fit myself into that sometimes chilly, sometimes wet, but always loosely fitting New Collar and stretch that macaroni and cheese over two dinners and a lunch.

"He is richest who requires least," spaketh a Roman mooch named Cicero. "There's no such thing as a free lunch," spooketh everybody else. The New Collar Path lies somewhere in between.

Many criminals, many crimes

The yuppie sat down at the bar and ordered a light beer, then looked around in a friendly manner.

In response, I curled my lip and gave him a hateful stare.

He fidgeted for a moment, then said: "What the heck's wrong?"

I told him that I did not take kindly to those who are a party to the crime of murder.

"Murder? Me? What are you talking about?"

I'll tell you what I'm talking about. Are you now, or have you ever been, a casual or social user of any illegal substances?"

"Well, sure, I've done a little grass. Just about everybody in my generation has. So what?"

Ah, then haven't you heard what our First Lady said about you?"

"Me? I've never even met her."

I MEANT YOU as part of a despicable class. She said that when you go to your condo, turn on your stereo and light up a joint, you are an accomplice to murder.

"Listen, I never get high enough to hurt anyone. All I do is eat a few chocolate chip cookies and fall asleep."

Nancy meant that you are a link in an evil, deadly chain. By buying that grass, you contribute to the dirty economic process that supports the international drug suppliers, the smugglers, the runners, the pushers and finally their murderous thugs who shoot people and corrupt the young.

"But the stuff I've smoked is from California. And my girlfriend gets it from her cousin, who buys it from a guy in her aerobics class."

Doesn't matter. It is all part of the same deadly process. And you are an accomplice.

HE STARED into his beer for a few moments, then said: "You know, I guess she's right."

Then you admit to being an accomplice to murder?"

"If the First Lady says so, yes. I won't deny it. But let me ask you something. Don't a lot of these drugs come in here from Mexico?"

Sure, tons of it. Tons of tons.

"Yeah, that's what I've read. And hasn't the Mexican government been kind of goofing off in trying to stop the stuff?"

They haven't been as cooperative as we would like.

"Right. Because a lot of Mexican cops and politicians have probably got a piece of the action?"

That's a widespread suspicion.

"Like in Panama, where that general has been running the country while he's running drugs down there?"

YES, AN unfortunate situation.

"Then why hasn't Nancy's husband taken some kind of action? Aren't there economic sanctions he can hit them with if they don't clean up their act on drugs?"

Yes, he has considerable powers. But now you're getting into a very complicated subject. There are diplomatic considerations. We must weigh the risks of alienating countries with whom we have friendly relations. There are times when we must consider the big picture and exercise restraint.

"Well, it's not very diplomatic of her to call me a murderer if her husband is letting them get away with it. And what about the Contras? Haven't I read that some of them have been in the dope business?"

The president prefers that they be called freedom fighters. He often compares them favorably to Jefferson, Washington and Franklin.

"I didn't know Jefferson was ever suspected of peddling coke. Maybe I slept through that part of my history class."

YOU'RE MISSING the point. The freedom fighters are against communism, therefore they must be forgiven some minor transgressions of our laws.

"I'm starting to understand. Maybe some of these people are dope dealers. But at least they're our friendly dope dealers."

I suppose that's one way to put it.

"Maybe that's why Nancy has never phoned the president of Mexico and told him: 'Ronnie and I would like you to say no to your country's drug dealers.'"

That would not be diplomatic.

"OK, then let me ask you about Freddie Marcos and his wife. All those years they were running the Philippines, didn't everybody pretty well know that they were thieves and tyrants, pocketing the tax money we sent there and having people bumped off or thrown in prison?"

IT WAS common knowledge, sure.

"Then why were Nancy and her husband so friendly with them. When they got together, it was always a lot of hugs and kissy-face. Didn't that make Nancy and Ron accomplices to all the low crimes the Marcos crowd was committing?"

Once again, that is diplomacy.

"Why didn't Nancy just tell them: 'Ferdinand and Imelda, as a friend, can I ask you a favor? Would you please say no to corruption, tyranny and murder?'"

Don't be silly. That isn't the sort of thing you say at a White House dinner.

"I guess not. But don't the Reagans have a lot of rich friends in business and show biz?"

Yes, they've traveled in some prosperous circles.

"Then I'll bet some of their Palm Spring pals have sable coats and eat that expensive beluga caviar."

IT WOULDN'T surprise me. If you got it, you flaunt it.

"But that stuff comes from Russia. So anybody who buys it is an accomplice to the spread of godless communism."

You may be right.

"You think she ever tells her rich friends: 'Say no to godless communism. Give your sable wrap to the Salvation Army?'"

That would be socially presumptuous.

"You're probably right. But I wish she'd remember to do one other thing."

What's that?

"If the subject comes up again, she should say: 'Ronnie, say no to selling weapons to the ayatollah. Those things can hurt somebody, dear.'"

FDA issues warning on aspirin doses

WASHINGTON — FDA Commissioner Frank Young said Wednesday ads touting every-other-day aspirin as a way to prevent first heart attacks are premature, and some patients could be hurt more than helped by the regimen.

The head of the Food and Drug Administration sent a letter to aspirin manufacturers and met with them and Federal Trade Commission representatives Wednesday to discuss his concerns that companies are promoting aspirin as a heart-attack preventer before the FDA can review a widely publicized study.

The huge study sponsored by the National Institute of Health and printed in the Jan. 28 New England Journal of Medicine, showed that aspirin every other day cut the rate of first heart attack in the male physicians who participated.

But Young said the "presence of both benefits and risks of aspirin therapy require special care in patient selection."

Popular Texan endorses Jackson

DALLAS — Jesse Jackson, riding high in the polls and fresh off a strong second-place finish in Vermont, won the endorsement of one of Texas' most popular office holders Wednesday and took his campaign into the deep South six days before Super Tuesday.

The charismatic preacher, who has posted impressive showings in Minnesota, Iowa, Maine and Vermont — all of which have small white populations — is now back home in his native South where he has bedrock black support, and polls show him at or near the top of the Democratic slate.

More evidence of Jackson's ability to attract white voters came Wednesday when Jim Hightower, the popular Texas agriculture commissioner, endorsed him at an Austin news conference.

Robertson drops suit to stress campaign

WASHINGTON — Pat Robertson plans to drop his $35 million libel suit against former Rep. Pete McCloskey because his GOP presidential bid is "more important than clearing his name," his lawyers said Wednesday.

Attorney Douglas Rigler said he would file court papers by the end of the week to dismiss the suit, but stressed that Robertson stands behind his assertion he did not duck combat in Korea as McCloskey claims.

Rigler said the trial date, which falls on Super Tuesday, makes it impossible for Robertson to pursue the case in federal court, but he called on McCloskey to settle the dispute in arbitration.

"McCloskey is holding Robertson hostage," Rigler said at a news conference. "He is being asked to sacrifice his presidential campaign. He feels that his program for America is more important than clearing his name."

Macy's nears deal to create retail empire

NEW YORK — R.H. Macy & Co. Wednesday signed a definitive agreement Wednesday to acquire Federated Department Stores for a face value bid of $6.7 billion, but Campeau Corp. restructured its hostile bid in an attempt to smash the Macy's deal.

A merger between Macy's and Cincinnati-based Federated would create a retail empire boasting annual sales of $16 billion and including New York's three largest department stores: Macy's, Bloomingdale's and Abraham & Straus.

"It would be an extraordinarily powerful company," said New York analyst Monroe Greenstein of Bear, Stearns & Co.

A merged concern would rank among America's four largest general merchandise retailers, with more than 770 stores. Federated is America's fifth-largest retailer.

Death toll in Soviet unrest put at 17

MOSCOW — A Soviet official acknowledged Wednesday that ethnic rioting in the Azerbaijan city of Sumgait over the weekend had resulted in a number of fatalities, and unofficial sources put the death toll at 17.

Foreign Ministry spokesman Gennady Gerasimov told reporters that "several" people had died in the disturbances but said he did not know the exact figure.

Sergei Grigoryants, editor of the unofficial Soviet journal Glasnost, said that 17 had died and 70 had been seriously injured in the disturbances. All of the dead were Armenian ethnics, Grigoryants said in an interview, quoting sources he had reached by telephone in Sumgait. Neither the death toll nor the nationality of the victims could be confirmed officially.

Iraq bombs Iranian holy city, Tehran

MANAMA, Bahrain — Iranian spiritual leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini appealed for "faith and unity" Wednesday in the face of a deadly Iraqi missile blitz in which four more missiles slammed into Tehran.

Iraq also struck the Iranian holy city of Qom Wednesday, while Iran fired two missiles into Baghdad.

State-run Iraqi radio said several people were killed and wounded and homes and shops destroyed in the attacks — the seventh and eighth by Iran on Baghdad this week. Iran claimed one missile struck the headquarters of the Iraqi intelligence agency.

About 30 missiles have been fired since Monday in the worst round of attacks on the capitals since the two nations began the so-called "war of the cities" in 1983.

Bennett: U.S. should use military in drug war

By Thomas Ferraro
United Press International

WASHINGTON — Education Secretary William Bennett, in a break with the administration, Wednesday called for greater use of the military and "whatever resources are necessary" to win the international drug war.

"I realize some may disagree with what I have to say, but this is the way I think . . . We are in real danger of losing the war," Bennett told the third day of a congressionally mandated four-day White House conference on drugs.

In making his sentiments public, Bennett said he hoped the United States could work with other countries in the war against drugs, "but if need be we must consider doing this by ourselves and we should consider broader use of military force against both the production and shipment of drugs," Bennett said.

THE REAGAN administration has opposed federal funds to help state and local police to fight drugs and has basically favored limiting military involvement to notifying the Coast Guard when ships, planes or surveillance posts spot possible drug shipments.

Bennett was joined at the podium by top administration figures, including Attorney General Edwin Meese, Transportation Secretary Jim Burnley, Drug Enforcement Administrator John Lawn and Customs Commissioner William Von Raab.

These speakers generally praised the efforts by their respective agencies and President Ronald Reagan, who Monday told the conference that progress is being made. They also said the battle needs the commitment of all, from parents to prosecutors.

Von Raab praised Reagan, but said, "I have also seen in my six years, too many bureaucrats who have tried to undermine the president's efforts in this area."

NATO makes new plan for security in Europe

By Norman Sandler
United Press International

BRUSSELS, Belgium — NATO embraced a new strategy Wednesday for military security in Europe, demanding lopsided cuts in Soviet bloc tanks and artillery to end a threatening imbalance in conventional forces. President Ronald Reagan hailed the move as "a major step forward."

In a declaration issued at the midpoint of a two-day summit at the sprawling NATO headquarters, leaders of the 16-nation alliance, meeting for the first time since 1982, reaffirmed their arms control agenda and gave impetus to a new formula for East-West parity "from the Atlantic to the Urals."

Reagan, seeking to assure allies abroad and conservatives at home that European security is not endangered by the superpower treaty eliminating intermediate-range nuclear forces, welcomed the statement as "a major step forward."

"We're determined to ensure that the alliance's defenses remain strong," he told reporters. "We'll continue to cooperate on better and more efficient ways to maintain our defenses. Second, we also seek to strengthen stability through effective and verifiable conventional arms reductions."

THE PRINCIPLES adopted by the summit mirrored those adopted a year ago by NATO foreign ministers and reflected European concern about security in the post-INF era.

"The Soviet Union's military presence in Europe, at a level far in excess of its needs for self defense, directly challenges our security as well as our hopes for change in the political situation in Europe," they said. "Thus, the conventional imbalance in Europe remains at the core of Europe's security concerns."

Support broadens for Panama strike

By Douglas Tweedale
United Press International

PANAMA CITY, Panama — Doctors joining a 3-day-old general strike against the rule of military strongman Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega confined medical care Wednesday to emergency treatment at some hospitals as support broadened for the work stoppage.

Strike organizers, undaunted by government closure of opposition news outlets, spread word of the strike using a secret telephone network.

They also said the Civic Crusade, the opposition coalition that orchestrated the strike to protest the ouster of President Eric Arturo Delvalle after he tried to fire Noriega last week, was organizing protest vigils in several churches around the capital.

About 30 strike supporters on foot led a caravan of about 20 cars in a procession through the El Cangrejo neighborhood of the capital where a paramilitary group stormed and destroyed an opposition radio station Tuesday.

THE MARCHERS waved white handkerchiefs and chanted "down with Noriega," and the drivers honked horns as the procession wound through several blocks of downtown Panama City. Some onlookers clapped while others looked on in silence as the march passed through a shopping district.

Near the site of violent clashes Tuesday, the marchers built several flaming barricades and briefly cut off traffic before most of the demonstrators dispersed.

In New York, U.S. District Court Judge Lloyd McMahon issued a temporary restraining order Wednesday barring the Republic National Bank from transferring Panamanian government assets into Noriega's control.

The order, to be followed by a hearing Monday, came in response to a suit filed by Juan Sosa, Panama's ambassador to the United States, who said Noriega had planned to transfer $10 million from the bank Wednesday.

House passes broad civil rights bill

By Mary Beth Franklin
United Press International

WASHINGTON — The House, ignoring President Ronald Reagan's veto threat, passed and sent to the White House Wednesday a bill to restore broad civil rights protections for women, minorities, the elderly and disabled.

The bill, approved 315-98, would overturn a 1984 Supreme Court decision, Grove City College vs. Bell, that restricted the coverage of federal anti-discrimination laws to the individual programs or activities receiving aid and would restore the application on an institution-wide basis.

Because it is identical to a bill that the Senate adopted 75-14 in January, the measure goes directly to the president, who has vowed to veto it on the grounds that it does not adequately protect religious freedom for church-affiliated schools and would create too much paperwork for state and local governments as well as the private sector.

OPPOSITIONISTS complained the bill was being railroaded through the House with no chance for hearings, adequate debate or alteration. The House used the Senate bill rather than writing its own version to speed up the process.

Only one amendment, offered by Rep. Jim Sensenbrenner, R-Wis., to address some of the Reagan administration's concerns, was permitted. It failed 266-146.

"No one, including this member, is against having anti-discrimination laws," Sensenbrenner said. "But we are opposed to a gag rule and a railroad job . . . that prevents the unintended consequences from being debated."

But House Education and Labor Committee Chairman Augustus Hawkins, D-Calif., said, "This is the time to stop a lot of talking and to act to restore the civil rights laws . . . to their previous scope and effectiveness," Hawkins said.

Acting governor fires top Mecham aide

By William H. Inman
United Press International

PHOENIX — Gov. Evan Mecham, on trial for impeachment, sent handwritten letters and press releases directly to members of his jury, the Arizona Senate, lawmakers confirmed at the close of Wednesday's session.

In a related development late Wednesday, acting Gov. Rose Mofford sacked Max Hawkins, a powerful top aide to Mecham who was implicated in an alleged scheme to quash a death threat investigation.

"Your activities are antithetical to the high standards of conduct I expect of state employees," Mofford said in her letter of termination to Hawkins. He was fired one day after requesting a House Ethics Committee investigation into the activities of the chairman of the House Impeachment Committee.

Hawkins served as director of Mecham's Department of Administration at an annual salary of nearly $70,000. After taking over from Mecham, Mofford put Hawkins on leave, then transferred him to the governor's personal staff.

"What did I do?" Hawkins said when told of his firing by United Press International. "I can't believe this. This is terrible."

Mecham's letter to the Senate was first mentioned minutes before proceedings ended for the day. Tuesday, Mecham tried to call a witness at the trial, his former bodyguard Frank Martinez, during a break. An aide said the telephone call was a mistake and Mecham was trying to reach someone else.

Lawmakers said Wednesday the governor sent copies of a statement from his news conference Saturday in which he said Arizona was in the midst of a "constitutional crisis." In addition, he sent some senators personal notes thanking them for voting in his favor in an unsuccessful attempt to delay the Senate trial.

Ortega wants direct talks with Contras

United Press International

MANAGUA, Nicaragua — President Daniel Ortega Wednesday proposed direct cease-fire talks with the U.S.-backed Contra rebels in Nicaragua without the mediation of the Catholic Church, Cardinal Miguel Obando y Bravo announced.

Obando y Bravo, in a Radio Cato-luca broadcast, said Ortega proposed that the talks with the leadership of the Nicaraguan rebels take place from March 9-11.

For the first time the government suggested meeting in Nicaragua, in the small town of Sapoa, near the Costa Rican border and 85 miles southeast of Managua.

"I only have to communicate President Daniel Ortega's decision to the Nicaraguan Resistance," Obando y Bravo said.

The Contra rebels had not yet responded to the government offer.

Ortega visited Obando y Bravo Wednesday night to thank him for his efforts in mediating previous cease-fire talks and to tell him he did not want the Catholic Church leader to oversee future talks.

ALSO WEDNESDAY, two government officials announced their resignations and denounced the Sandinistas' continued detention of political prisoners.

Assistant Attorney General Ivan Villaviciendo Tapia, and Norman Jose Miranda, a foreign ministry official, both in Geneva for a meeting of the U.N. Human Rights Commission, spoke on Radio Impacto de Costa Rica, which is received in Nicaragua.

Villaviciendo said he had spent a long time considering his decision because "I hoped that with the (Central American peace) accords the Sandinista government would return to the democratic cause, but they have ridiculed the accords."

Villaviciendo said thousands of prisoners had been abandoned in prisons without trial, condemned by special popular people's tribunals, which President Daniel Ortega agreed to abolish at a summit of Central American presidents in San Jose, Costa Rica, Jan. 16.

earlier this week they believe the plane stalled after turning left with the wind, thus causing the plane to have trouble climbing.

The flap setting would have caused an excessive amount of drag as the plane tried to gain altitude to clear the power lines, Vargas said. Investigators were able to determine the flap setting by checking the visible part of the flap screws. Vargas said the plane crashed at zero airspeed into the farm field at an 80-degree angle.

VARGAS SAID if back-seat passengers Molly Olson and Danton had been wearing shoulder harness safety belts — as did their husbands in the front seats — they would have had a better chance of survival.

Vargas also said Danton probably lived for about 3 to 5 minutes after the crash, while Cuthbertson and Brian Olson were killed instantly. Molly Olson died 24 hours after the crash when her parents decided to remove her from life support systems.

Services for Brian and Molly Olson will be held today at 1 p.m. at the Salem Lutheran Church in Moline, Ill. Burial will follow at the Moline Memorial Park Cemetery.

Cuthbertson and Danton will be buried in Roanoke, Va. A memorial fund has been established at the UI Foundation.

to the victim's early death was $203,766, according to court records.

GILROY'S LAWYER objected to Rehffuss' testimony being introduced into the trial on the grounds that it gave an inaccurate picture of Lalla's potential earnings, but he was overruled by Zimmer, who said the plaintiff had a right to estimate personal consumption expenses in the absence of evidence of expenditures.

Iowa City lawyer Margaret Lainson, who represented Mary Lalla in the suit against Gilroy, said that she waited so long to file the case for damages because Gilroy "kept stalling" by filing appeals to his original guilty verdict.

"His argument was always 'I haven't really been found guilty yet,'" Lainson said. "But he eventually ran out of appeals."

Lainson said she was unsure how Gilroy would be able to pay the damages, but said he was supposed to inherit part of a farm which could be used as payment.

schools that draw almost exclusively from members of a particular religion or ones that take more than 90 percent of their students from in-state.

From a list of about 100 colleges that met the cost and academic criteria, panelists selected the schools they would readily recommend. Schools endorsed by three or more panelists made the final list.

UI Director of Admissions Michael Barron said the magazine's high ranking would benefit the UI.

"There's an old saying that the only thing worse than being in the book is not being in the book," Barron said. "I think this may cause students to take a second look at the university, and in that sense, it will make my job easier. If the article raises someone's interest enough to call us, we all benefit."

But Collegiate Association Council President Michael Reck sounded a note of caution about the article, pointing out not everyone can afford the "bargain" UI tuition.

"Quite frankly, I think the UI does provide a good education for the money," Reck said. "But it's only a bargain as long as you can afford to pay, and I think the problem we have right now is not enough people can afford it."

wants to, but when he becomes chairman of the Board of Regents, to go out and make contributions to Republican candidates seems like there is something wrong ethically. I am going to follow up on it," Kinley said.

DURING questioning from Kinley on the Senate floor today, Nystrom said his firm — Nystrom and Associates — includes his son and himself. However, Kinley said when he called the firm he was greeted by a tape recorded message from Sen. Nystrom stating he was not available, but could return calls.

Nystrom said he saw nothing wrong with his firm accepting the PAC money. He said his political advice usually involved telling a potential candidate the districts where Republicans had the best chances for victory, rather than advising whether or not the candidate should run.

Kinley said the contribution to Nystrom's firm warrants a review of the entire PAC system.

"We ought to ask ourselves where we are heading and how much influence on the system do they have," he said.

Sen. Bob Carr, D-Dubuque, said the State Government Committee he chairs will try to address the issue.

"The PACs are starting to own the political process, not only in Washington, but across the country. That's wrong," Carr said.

Senate Minority Leader Cal Hultman, R-Red Oak, said Republicans should not shoulder the blame for the problems of PAC contributions.

"It is not just business PACs, there are labor union PACs too," Hultman said. "If you really want to hurt me, the labor unions could come down and endorse me. That would really be the kiss of death in my district."

time to understand what's going on, and to become truly effective," she said. "By having a six-year term they will learn the whole procedure, gain more respect and do more to change policy than any two-year term could."

Van Ekeren criticized the bill's emphasis on student representation.

"THE BOARD of Regents is a citizens' board representative of the entire state," she said. "By putting a student on the board, you have one person looking after only one interest. They are not looking at the taxpayers, they are only looking at one aspect — the students."

"Also, being typecast as a student regent coming in, it would be harder to gain respectability and credibility," she said.

Rep. Jack Hatch, D-Des Moines, said he took exception to Miller's comments about students lacking maturity to serve on the board.

"It is a sad commentary when people question the judgment and maturity of people attending our state institutions," he said.

MILLER POINTED to the social unrest on college campuses in the 1960s and 1970s as an example of the problems a student member could cause the board.

"I would ask that those of you who are old enough to have been adults in the late '60s and early '70s remember the atmosphere that prevailed on college and university campuses. Imagine if you will what sort of attitude might have been expressed in the form of a vote by a well-intentioned but immature student member of the Board of Regents," Miller said.

"For those who say times have changed and that campus hysteria no longer exists, I submit that conditions can bring about its return," he said.

Rep. Charles Poncy, D-Ottumwa, chairman of the House Appropriations Subcommittee on Education, said if the nine-member board must include a student, it also should include representatives of faculty, alumni "and if you really want a person who knows the place from top to bottom, you should have a person from maintenance and housekeeping."

PONCY WARNED students could be unequipped to deal with the board's political battles because "you are serving with a lot of fast company on the Regents, including Regent (President Marvin) Pomerantz."

"I know most students are smarter than most legislators, but you do have the question of maturity and judgment," Poncy said. "This bill is not a zero, but it is a half bubble above the level of being a zero."

UI Student Senate President Melinda Hess called the proposed student position an "important tool of empowerment."

"Students do deserve more decision-making power regarding higher education," she said. "With Jackie (Van Ekeren) on one seat, two students will change makeup of the board significantly because they will get two sides of the story and a better understanding of the student situation."

'Big River' is a feast of music

By Steve T. Donoghue
The Daily Iowan

The award-winning Broadway musical Big River opened in Hancher Auditorium on Tuesday night, and what followed was "a grand mysterious adventure" full of spirit, humor and above all music.

A Romyngtonesque Mark Twain opens the show, presenting the warning — given in his novel — threatening punishment for any who try to read a meaning or moral into the story which follows. And Twain's right to do so: Big River is full of meanings big and small, but the main thrust of Tuesday night's show was pure entertainment.

The task of bringing an American institution to life is an unenviable one, but Huck is nevertheless engagingly played by Romain Fruge, filling the show with constant motion. Sometimes this charm turns cutesy or overdone, but such excesses are almost a requirement of the part. Fruge's singing was workhorse competent — far better than would be at first expected of a road company, as were the voices of almost all the cast — but seldom reached out and grabbed the listener.

BUT THE LISTENERS definitely were not left unmoved. Sharing the singing lead of Big River was Michael-Edward Stevens as the runaway slave Jim, and in his performance all road company expectations were simply blown away.

Stevens, a veteran of Porgy and Bess, lent to his role a power and dignity, a humor and humanity which surely would have pleased Mark Twain himself. Stevens was undeniably the heart of the show, booming out some of its best numbers — including "Muddy Water," "River in the Rain," "Worlds Apart" and his stunning spotlight piece "Free At Last."

The musical itself tends to turn a tin ear to the problems of slavery raised in Twain's novel, but some of composer Roger Miller's numbers resonate with the bittersweet hope of the Negro spiritual, especially "How Blest We Are" — featuring Gwendolyn L. Stewart in the only singing performance of the night to equal Stevens'.

Roger Miller's score for Mark Twain's tale of Huck Finn's journey down the Mississippi is huge and textured, filling every scene, every interchange, every character. Miller won a Tony Award for Best Music and Lyrics, and there was no doubt on Tuesday night that the award was deserved. The earlier, more primitive versions of the show — with far fewer songs — bore a most resemblance to the present musical as a snack does to a feast.

THE SHOW HAD its faults: kinks as yet unsmoothed, or excesses due more to enthusiasm than a lack of theatrical sense. The show originally contained only a handful of songs and quite a bit more of Twain's text. That's changed drastically; there are now 20 or so songs, and they sometimes seemed crowded in the short length of the musical.

Numbers like "Do You Wanna Go to Heaven?" or "Guv'ment" or "I, Huckleberry, Me" or "The Royal Nonesuch" or "Arkansas" don't earn their keep in the score. All they effectively do is muddle the action, cluttering up the sound on stage and obscuring both the power and the drama of the stronger pieces.

But flaws aside, the show from its beginning to the final, rousing reprise of "Muddy Water" is a winner, packed with fun music and sensitive portrayals of some of American literature's best-known figures, brought to an invigorating life through an outstanding musical score and an amazing road company.

Author Momaday gives lecture, reads

The Daily Iowan

The University Lecture Committee will present an "Evening with N. Scott Momaday" tonight at 7:30, featuring a reading from his works and a question-and-answer period.

Momaday, who won a Pulitzer Prize for House Made of Dawn, is from the Kiowa tribe and has lived on Indian reservations of the American Southwest.

Momaday's writing is complexly woven with some of the distinctive issues raised by the state of the American Indian, and the clashing of an ancient heritage with a modern world comprises a central theme running throughout much of his work. His language is precise and often exquisite; his characters are as believably unfinished as they are compelling; his craft is at once finished and strong.

The author of several other books, including The Way to Rainy Mountain, Momaday received his doctorate from Stanford University and is currently a Professor of English at the University of Arizona.

The lecture tonight is free and open to the public.

Iowa basketball recruits honored

Iowa basketball recruit Ray Thompson, of Summit (Ill.) Argo High School, was named to the United Press International AA All-State basketball first team, it was announced Wednesday.

Thompson, 6-foot-5, ranks third in Chicago area scoring with 28.5 points per game.

Named as an honorable mention selection was Moline's Acie Earl, another Iowa basketball recruit.

5 East Carolina players suspended

GREENVILLE, N.C. (UPI) — Five East Carolina football players charged with assault in recent days have been suspended indefinitely from the team, school officials announced Wednesday.

Two players were arrested Tuesday on assault charges stemming from their involvement in separate fights over the weekend. Last week, three other players were arrested in connection with the assault of a woman visiting a campus dormitory.

Canadian officials: 2 Olympians defected

TORONTO (UPI) — A Romanian and a Chilean, both believed to be athletes, sought political asylum in Canada after the conclusion of the Winter Olympics, government officials disclosed Wednesday.

Officials in Ottawa said Dumitru Focseanu, 46, identified in Olympic records as the coach of the Romanian bobsled team, was under protection of Canadian authorities in Calgary, Alberta, where the Games ended Sunday.

Chilean Horla Iltus, 47, was being interviewed in a hospital in Calgary after breaking his leg during the Games. Officials would not say whether he was a participant in the Olympics.

Cubs sign 3 pitchers to 1-year deals

MESA, Ariz. (UPI) — The Chicago Cubs have signed three pitchers, including trade acquisition Calvin Schiraldi, to one-year contracts, team officials announced Wednesday.

Along with Schiraldi, a righthander, the Cubs signed lefthander Ray Hayward and righthander Les Lancaster. The signings leave the Cubs with three players yet unsigned: lefthander Jamie Moyer and outfielders Dave Martinez and Rafael Palmeiro.

Zimmer said Jamie Moyer, Al Nipper and Drew Hall would each work three innings of Saturday's exhibition game. Scheduled to pitch Saturday are Rick Sutcliffe, Lancaster, Mike Mason and Frank DiPino.

Columnist gets spitball, of sorts

LAKELAND, Fla. (UPI) — Detroit Tigers reliever Willie Hernandez, angered by a column last June he thought turned the fans against him, Wednesday dumped a bucket of ice water over the head of Detroit Free Press columnist Mitch Albom.

"For myself, and speaking for Sparky (Anderson), we don't condone this type of protest to you," Detroit General Manager Bill Lajoie told Albom. "But as far as we're concerned, this is between you and the player. I doubt it very much that there will be any disciplinary action."

Said Albom: "I was just standing there, talking about the Olympics with Frank Tanana, and the next thing I knew I was soaked. I told Willie, 'That was a class thing to do.'"

Hernandez is trying to come back from the worst season he has had in Detroit. He was 3-4 with a 3.67 ERA and only eight saves in 45 games.

Milwaukee may host NHL exhibition

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — An exhibition NHL hockey game between the Chicago Blackhawks and Edmonton Oilers of the NHL could be the first event in the new 17,000-seat Bradley Center, a spokesperson for the Milwaukee Admirals hockey team said.

A date of Oct. 1 has been tentatively proposed. Officials said the game could play no later than early October because the 1988-89 NHL season is scheduled to begin soon after that.

The facility will be the new home of the Milwaukee Bucks and is scheduled to open in time for the start of the NBA season in the fall.

Poll: Maris not recognized

Tuesday, the Veterans' Committee of the Baseball Writers Association of America voted not to allow in any new candidates this season, and a similar theme has permeated Walt Disney World.

In a survey of 3,276 visitors to Walt Disney World from Jan. 29 to Feb. 16, more than one-third of the patrons could not identify who former Yankee Roger Maris was. Maris, who died in 1987, holds the all-time single-season home run record of 61 in 1961 but is not in the Hall of Fame.

Overall, 45 percent of those polled said Maris should be allowed in the Hall, 48 percent said he should not be allowed, 35 percent said they didn't know who Maris was and 12 percent had no response.

Edberg, Mecir lead Cup field

INDIAN WELLS, Calif. (UPI) — Top-seeded Stefan Edberg of Sweden and No. 2 seed Miroslav Mecir of Czechoslovakia posted straight-set victories Wednesday, but four other seeded players were upset in the second round of the $702,500 Newsweek Champions Cup.

Pete Sampras, a 16-year-old high school junior playing in only his second pro tournament, registered the afternoon's most surprising triumph, knocking off 10th-seeded Eliot Teltscher, 7-5, 6-3. The two are neighbors in Palos Verdes, Calif.

Clipper rookie Wolf injures knee

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Los Angeles Clippers rookie forward Joe Wolf, who injured his right knee in a game against New Jersey, will be sidelined one or two weeks, the team announced Wednesday.

Wolf returned to Los Angeles after Tuesday night's injury and was examined by team physician Tony Daly, whose examination revealed no ligament damage.

Wolf, a first-round choice from North Carolina, was averaging 7.6 points and 4.5 rebounds in 42 games.

Bulls sign Turner from CBA's Lightning

CHICAGO (UPI) — The Chicago Bulls Wednesday re-signed Elston Turner to a contract for the remainder of the season, filling their roster with the maximum 12 players after being one short for more than a month.

Turner, a 6-foot-5 guard, played 23 games with the Rockford Lightning of the Continental Basketball Association this season.

Martin

(29-5). He lost to Nix in January, 10-6, but defeated Griffin, 9-8, in the Northern Open in December.

Iowa Coach Dan Gable said Martin should receive the third seed at the Big Tens, but thinks he may have another Big Ten champion at that weight.

"I feel good about little Martin right now," Gable said. "He can win it if he wrestles like he's capable. He's wrestling pretty tough coming off the Okie State meet, the Iowa State match and practices."

"MARTIN'S GOT some momentum going now. He's in good condition and working hard. He's not a shoo-in for anything though. He earns everything he gets."

Though Martin feels he is wrestling as well as many of the nation's top 118 pounders right now, he continues to be snubbed by the pollsters.

After losing a 5-4 decision to Oklahoma State's second-ranked Cory Baze, Cowboy Coach Joe Seay said he "couldn't believe Martin wasn't ranked."

Martin is trying to use that to his advantage.

"I've got the underdog role, but that might be better," Martin said. "It bothered me a little bit not being ranked, but I'm going to wrestle those guys whether I'm ranked or not. A lot of those guys have beaten me, but hopefully it will be different this time around."

AS A PREP, Martin posted a record of 72-1 enroute to three state titles. His brother Billy wrestled at Oklahoma State and his father, Billy Sr., coached both sons during a streak in which his teams won 21 of 22 state titles.

Though Billy Jr. was an all-American at Oklahoma State, Steve had no intentions of becoming a Cowboy.

"Iowa seemed to bring along its athletes mentally a lot quicker than other schools," Martin said. "All the Iowa guys at the national tournament were always mentally very strong."

"One of the main things was the peaking process that I saw Iowa have every year. Mental toughness and peaking are the two big things you need to win the national tournament."

Now that Martin has experienced the Iowa wrestling program, he said the greatest thing he will take with him for use in later life is the Gable work ethic.

"It's the center of the Iowa program," Martin said. "A lot of the guys who wrestle here are great athletes, but I've made everything I have through hard work and determination because I'm not the greatest athlete. The work ethic will help me a lot in job opportunities and all other phases of life."

Davis

be surprised if Heathcote decides to take the air out of the ball. One of the most boring games in Carver-Hawkeye Arena history was the building's opener, a 61-59 slow-down overtime loss to Michigan State in 1983.

"We'd prefer a half-court game versus Iowa but we'll play the tempo that the game dictates," Heathcote said. "Iowa appears to have more quickness now without Lorenzen."

THE SPARTANS have a balanced scoring attack, led by six-foot-five senior forward Carlton Valentine with 13.6 points per game. That's the lowest Michigan State scoring leader since the 1951 season. Valentine also grabs 5.7

rebounds per game.

George Papadakos, a 7-foot, 220-pound senior pivotman, can be a force in the paint. He ranks second in the Big Ten with 17 blocked shots.

First-year guard Steve Smith can fill it up from outside. He scored 22 points last time out and averages 11 points per game.

Basketball games hit with fights

By Bryce Miller
The Daily Iowan

As the march towards the intramural basketball playoffs continue at full stride, so do the number of altercations between players.

Although stiff penalties and postseason exclusion have been promised for intramural competitors who mix it up, the number of incidents still remains high, according to Associate Director of Recreational Services Warren Slebos.

"We are continuing to see a large number of ejections," he said. "I'm afraid things will probably only get worse as the intensity of the playoffs builds." Slebos said Iowa is not the only university experiencing problems of this sort.

"WE'RE SEEING this activity across the board," he said. "Many universities around the country are finding the same things in their intramural competition."

The playoff slate begins Sunday with a number of leagues scheduled to compete. Although a few playoff spots are still yet undetermined, most of the first-round games are locked in.

Leagues competing Sunday include Men's Independent, Social Fraternity, Men's Dorn and Law League.

The three-point shooting competition has narrowed its field to sixteen competitors. Those sixteen will compete tonight at 7 p.m. on Court 8 in the Field House to cut the number to four. Those four will advance to the finals held at halftime of the intramural championship game on March 15.

Ron Chapman tallied the highest point total of all first-round competitors with 15. Ward Lund follows closely with 14 and a number of participants are bunched in third with 13.

Players' first-round scores will be added to their second-round performance to determine the four finalists.

Men's and women's intramural soccer titles were decided this past week at the indoor practice facility. Alien Seguel took the men's crown when it topped Phi Gamma Delta 3-0. On the women's side, Main Rejects captured the No. 1 spot by posting a 1-0 decision over Daum Five.

For those of you who think that intramural competition is too strenuous, the perfect event is just around the corner. March 4 marks the entry deadline for the intramural dart competition. A one-dollar forfeit fee is required.

Preliminary action takes place March 7-8 at Joe's Place where sixteen finalists will be selected for the championships on March 14. The winner will receive a $25 scholarship and second place will be awarded a $10 scholarship.

Recreational Service's Dan Mehl said darts will draw a large number of participants.

"It (darts) has gone through a lot of peaks and valleys," he said. "But recently it has been making a comeback. We expect somewhere near 100 entrants."

If you have any questions concerning intramurals, contact any of the graduate assistants in Field House Room E216 or call 335-9293.

Spartans seek to stop slide

By G. Hammond-Kunke

Ever since Michigan State lost a controversial overtime game to Kansas in the NCAA Midwest Regional in Kansas City two years ago, the Spartan basketball program has been at a standstill. In that fiasco of a game, someone forgot to turn on the clock, giving the Jayhawks enough time to send the match into overtime and eventually win.

Today at 7:05 p.m. in East Lansing, Mich., No. 14 Iowa, 20-7 overall and in third-place in the Big Ten at 10-4, hopes to make the once-proud Green Machine its fourth straight victim.

AFTER FOUR consecutive winning seasons under the wizardry of Coach Jud Heathcote, Michigan State is guaranteed of its second losing campaign in as many years. The Spartans ended 11-17 a year ago and presently have a 9-15 slate, 4-10 in league action.

Yet, five of those losses have been by a total of 16 points. So don't underestimate any Heathcote squad in 48-year-old Jenison Field House. One thing for certain, Heathcote hasn't lost the ability to coach — or his sense of humor.

"We're not going to show up because Iowa is playing too awful well right now. I hope they're not quite as potent as they were last time we played when they killed us (101-72)," Heathcote said half-kiddingly.

"We were embarrassed against Iowa and we certainly don't want to be embarrassed against them again — especially at home. We're looking for an upset. But hope springs eternal."

Michigan State to a national championship in 1979, talks like his team has never set foot on the hardwood prior to this season.

"We're bothered by just about everything there is in the game of basketball. We have a lot of team deficiencies that just don't seem to want to disappear," Heathcote said.

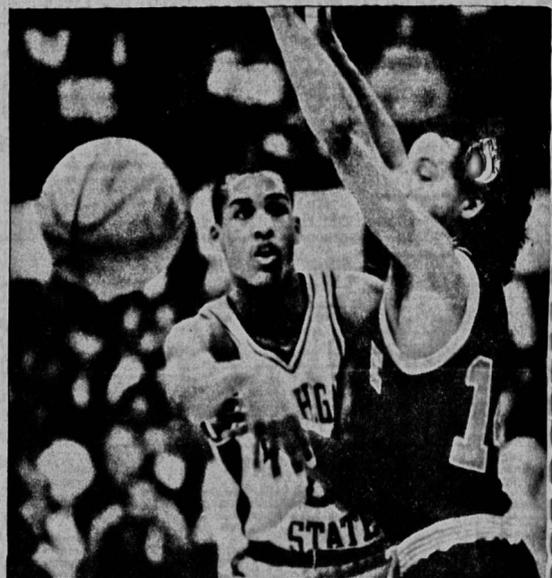

Heathcote added that his team hasn't been winning because "we haven't been a very good defensive club matching up inside. George Papadakos has not been a dominant factor for us and he won't make much of a difference against Iowa because they are so relentless on the offensive boards."

Iowa Coach Tom Davis is usually the upbeat optimist. But lately he's sounding like Heathcote, using the element of reverse psychology.

"OUR MARGIN OF error is very, very slight. If we get one or two guys struggling, we're going to lose," Davis said. "They're deep, have good size overall and could give us trouble on the boards. Those kids can run and are tough and physical inside."

Martin finally gets his shot

Steve Martin was not about to let opportunity slip away again.

The 118-pound Iowa wrestler, nicknamed "The Rat," competed all year for the Hawkeyes last season, only to be beaten out by teammate John Regan for the slot in the Big Ten tournament.

"I kept my back door covered this year," said Martin, who will carry a 26-10 mark into the league championships this weekend in Ann Arbor, Mich.

"A year ago today I got beat out for the tournaments and I pretty much put it into my mind that things would be different this year.

"IT WAS REALLY an empty feeling last year. It was frustrating to watch guys I'd gone close with or beaten doing real well. It was a great motivation for me all last summer. I didn't want to be caught sitting in the stands this year."

Martin, a sophomore physical education major from Virginia Beach, Va., has two Big Ten wrestlers ranked ahead of him — Keith Nix of Minnesota (36-4) and Northwestern's Jack Griffin

Hawks stand fair chance at Big Ten meet

By Eric J. Hess
The Daily Iowan

The day Iowa men's swimming Coach Glenn Patton has been waiting for all season is finally here.

Today marks the first day of the Big Ten Swimming Championships at the IUPUI Natatorium in Indianapolis, a chance for Iowa to redeem an earlier dual meet loss against Michigan and regain the conference title it hasn't held since 1982.

Patton pointed to this meet at the beginning of the season as the team's most important, next to the NCAA Championships in April.

"This is what we've worked for all year," Patton said.

The Iowa coach said the Wolverines, the two-time defending champions, are the clear favorites after Michigan dominated the Hawkeyes in a dual meet 74-39 in Ann Arbor, Mich., Feb. 6.

"MICHIGAN IS clearly the best team in the league," Patton said. "Everybody is looking at Michigan to be the favorite."

Three teams — Iowa, Michigan and Indiana — have dominated Big Ten men's swimming in the 1980s, with one of the teams winning the team title every year in this decade and always comprising the top three.

Five events open action today. The Hawkeyes' performance on the first day of the three-day event could likely decide their fate.

Iowa, however, will be without sophomore freestyler Steve Grams, who suffered a dislocated patella while dancing in a local club. Grams was a member of last season's all-American 400-yard freestyle relay.

Men's Swimming

THAT LEAVES Patton with one less freestyle swimmer. Fortunately for the coach, his team has its most depth in that event.

The five events today are the 500 free, 200-yard individual medley, 50 free, 1-meter diving and the 400-yard medley relay.

Patton said Iowa should dominate in the 50 free. They are led by junior Dave Kohmetscher, who has already qualified for the NCAA Championships.

"We should have at least four guys in finals," Kohmetscher said. "It should be our strongest event or one of our strongest events."

Michigan, Patton added, should dominate the 400 medley relay and the 1-meter diving, being that the Hawkeyes have one diver, Tomasz Rossa, likely to make it to the finals. Michigan, meanwhile, has several.

IT IS PATTON'S hope that the Wolverines falter on the diving board and fall to Ohio State and Indiana divers. And certainly the best place Rossa can achieve better Iowa's team chances.

Rossa said he's not going into the meet with any pressure to place high.

"I don't want to think about any particular place, but, of course, I'd like to qualify," he said.

Two events today, the 200 IM and the 500 free are "toss-up events," Patton said.
