Reagan sends troops to Honduras

By Norman D. Sandler
United Press International

WASHINGTON — President Ronald Reagan ordered more than 3,000 American troops sent to Honduras for exercises Wednesday in what the White House described as "a measured response" to a Nicaraguan invasion directed against U.S.-backed Contra rebels.

Toward the end of a day marked by tension and mixed signals, White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater announced the dispatch of an infantry brigade task force to Palmerola Air Base as part of "an emergency deployment readiness exercise."

"In addition to its value as a test of the military proficiency of our military units," he said, "this exercise is a measured response to show our staunch support to the democratic government of Honduras at a time when its territory is being violated by the Cuban- and Soviet-supported Soviet army.

"This exercise is also intended as a signal to the governments and peoples of Central America of the seriousness with which the United States government views the current situation in the region."

THE ANNOUNCEMENT, read to reporters at a late-night briefing at the White House, followed a round of deliberations within the administration and on Capitol Hill to a cross-border offensive denied by the Nicaraguan government.

With U.S. officials charging the drive was intended to crush a Contra force weakened by the Feb. 29 cutoff of American aid, Fitzwater said Reagan ordered the action in response to a request from Honduran President Jose Azcona Hoyos.

The task force sent to Honduras by Reagan will consist of two battalions from the 82nd Airborne Division at Fort Bragg, N.C., two battalions from Fort Ord, Calif., and support personnel.

Fitzwater described the exercise as open-ended and emphasized U.S. troops "will not be deployed to any area of ongoing hostilities." Palmerola is more than 100 miles from the site of the reported clash between Contra and Sandinista forces.

WORD OF THE ORDER by Reagan came several hours after Fitzwater assured reporters that the day-long deliberations within the administration and on Capitol Hill had ended without a firm decision on a course of action.

Although the White House had confirmed a "request for assistance" from Azcona, it was not described as an appeal for military support. Officials said the decision to send troops was a response to a subsequent request, conveyed through the U.S. Embassy in Tegucigalpa.

Panama's police, army fail in coup

By Douglas Tweedale
United Press International

PANAMA CITY, Panama — The Panama City police chief and army officers who recently returned from the United States led an unsuccessful coup at dawn Wednesday against military strongman Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega, a defense spokesman said.

The coup attempt, indicating Noriega's critical support from the army and police may be crumbling, triggered the biggest anti-government demonstrations in modern Panamanian history.

Hours after repeated government denials of a coup attempt, Defense Forces spokesman Maj. Edgardo Lopez Grimaldo said about nine army and police officers led "an attempt to seize and control the Defense Forces headquarters."

He identified the ringleader as Col. Leonidas Macias, the Panama City police chief and a member of the Defense Forces general staff who publicly had been a staunch supporter of Noriega.

THE FORMAL Defense Forces statement said troops loyal to Noriega put down the uprising without bloodshed. It said Macias, three army majors and one army captain were "among those detained" but did not report the total number of military and police personnel who participated.

"The majority of these officials involved in this intent returned recently to the country after participating in a course of specialization in various military installations in the United States, where they were influenced and compromised to betraying their oath given to the institution (Defense Forces) and the fatherland," the statement said.

The statement did not say when the officers were in the United States, which regularly provides training to Panamanian soldiers.

Shooting heard inside Noriega's headquarters at dawn sparked widespread rumors that the military strongman had been toppled by his own men.

THE MILITARY initially claimed the shooting was a training exercise. Later, it said the shots came from a policeman who had gone berserk.

Noriega, the de facto leader of the cash-short government, walked out of his Defense Forces headquarters four hours after the coup attempt, saying he still was in control and describing the shots as "kisses for the journalists."

Asked about his government's inability to pay more than 10,000 civil servants because of a U.S. freeze

Poindexter, North indicted of conspiracy

By Lori Santos
United Press International

WASHINGTON — President Ronald Reagan's ex-national security adviser, John Poindexter, his fired aide Lt. Col. Oliver North and two others were indicted Wednesday on charges they conspired to defraud the government by diverting millions of dollars in Iranian arms sales profits to the Contra rebels.

In a 23-count indictment, a federal grand jury also charged retired Air Force Maj. Gen. Richard Secord and his Iranian-born business partner, Albert Hakim — the point men in a private network that assisted in secret U.S. arms sales to Iran aimed at winning freedom for American hostages.

Besides the hard-hitting conspiracy count against all four men on the diversion scheme, Poindexter and North were charged with obstruction of justice. They were accused of shredding documents, erasing computer files and lying to block Justice Department and congressional investigations.

ALL FOUR defendants were accused of embezzling government property and wire fraud.

The massive, 101-page indictment was returned at the request of independent prosecutor Lawrence Walsh, who has spent 15 months investigating the worst scandal of the Reagan presidency. It amounted to the most sweeping set of criminal charges against White House officials since Watergate.

North, who faces a maximum 85 years in prison and $4 million in fines, and Poindexter, facing 40 years in prison and $1.75 million in fines, promptly denounced the indictment and vowed to win acquittal in court. Even if they are convicted, Reagan has refused to rule out pardons for any of the accused.

The conspiracy charge alleges the four plotted to defraud the United States by "deceitfully and without legal authorization" diverting funds to assist the Contra rebels. At the time, the congressional Boland Amendment banned all U.S. military aid to the Contras. Wednesday's action did not include criminal charges stemming from alleged Boland Amendment violations.

THE INDICTMENT, echoing findings of the congressional Iran-Contra committees last fall, said the private network improperly funneled a substantial portion of the $18 million in Iran arms sales profits to the Contra rebels fighting Nicaragua's Marxist government.

It also accused North, Secord and Hakim of benefitting personally from the profits.

The indictment came down the hardest on North, the National Security Council aide at the heart of the secret operation. The highly decorated 44-year-old Marine officer was named in 16 counts.

NORTH, WHO was fired Nov. 25, 1986 as the scandal unraveled, directed the entire operation and

Iowa National Guard slated for Panama trip

By John Gilardi
The Daily Iowan

Despite recent uprisings and an unsuccessful coup attempt Wednesday in Panama, the Iowa Army National Guard medical unit based in Iowa City will train in the area Aug. 4-18, according to local military officials.

The 209th Medical Company, a part of the 109th battalion, has been preparing for the trip since Oct. 1, 1987, more than four months before the uprising began against Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega, according to Maj. Paul Schmid, the local administrative officer.

About 120 people from the company will be sent to the Gorgas Army Hospital in Panama, according to Schmid, adding a local group made a site inspection earlier this year.

The unit will allow Army staff members at the hospital to go on leave while the National Guard can train in conditions not found in the United States, according to Capt. John Grote Jr., the unit training officer. Doctors, nurses and various technicians will make the trip.

"We are going there for medical training," Schmid said. "We are going there to train and learn about different types of diseases and symptoms."

GROTE SAID that following the Vietnam War, the National Guard realized the need for deployment and logistics training, plus training for diseases not usually encountered in the United States, such as malaria.

"Overseas training has been increasingly emphasized by the National Guard," Grote said.

Other units from the Iowa National Guard have trained at U.S. military installations throughout the world, including one group which is currently in Korea.

Last year, the medical unit trained at Ft. Carson in Colorado Springs, Colo.

The medical unit trained two years ago in Honduras despite protests by state legislators and local groups against U.S. policy in Central America.

National Guard spokesman Lt. Jim Ragan in Washington, D.C., said it is "a little hard to predict what the situation will be in August" in Panama, but he said the Guard will not send troops into

City files zoning application for sewage treatment plant

By Sara Anderson
The Daily Iowan

Iowa City filed a new zoning application Wednesday with Johnson County for its proposed sewer treatment plant which city officials hope will resolve the 9-month-old dispute over the site.

The application, which was filed late Wednesday, involves a conditional zoning agreement between the county and the city, according to Iowa City Attorney Terry Tim-mins. The Iowa City Council agreed in an executive session Tuesday night to refile the zoning application with Johnson County in regard to land to be used for the city's new sewage treatment plant.

The Johnson County Board of Supervisors, anticipating the city's filing of the application, set the date for a public hearing on the amended document for April 7.

THE BOARD of Supervisors must rezone the land for the proposed treatment plant site from agricultural to industrial before the city can begin construction, a step the board has so far refused to take.

The new application deals specifically with concerns of the board. "We're looking at amending the application to address certain issues the Board of Supervisors has raised," Timmins said.

The application includes the following new provisions:

Hearing covers safety concerns, precautions

By Jay Casini
The Daily Iowan

A panel of UI administrators and Iowa City officials heard student leaders voice concerns that the UI is not taking adequate measures for rape prevention and fire safety from student leaders at a public hearing Tuesday.

The hearing, which was sponsored by the UI Liberal Arts Student Association, focused on rape awareness, adequate lighting and fire safety on the UI campus.

UI Student Senator Mike Shaffer told the panel that many UI buildings lack adequate fire escapes and alarm systems.

Shaffer said some UI buildings are especially dangerous to physically disabled students, citing the lack of fire escapes accessible to the disabled in the West Wing of Burge Residence Hall and in the UI Main Library.

UI Physical Plant Director Dick Gibson said the issue of adequate fire escapes has troubled him for

The "Breath of Fresh Air" support group will also meet from 7 to 9 p.m. in the Lower Lounge of the Mercy North Annex. The group offers support for people and families living with a breathing problem.

The program topic will be "Exercises for Better Breathers" and will be presented by the Mercy health care staff. All those who have problems with emphysema, asthma or chronic lung disease, and their family members, friends and interested health professionals are welcome to attend.

Flood lecture to be given

UI Civil and Environmental Engineering Professor Konstantine Georgakakos will give a lecture on "Flood Prediction and its Effects on Society" today at 12:10 p.m. in the West Lobby of UI Hospitals and Clinics Boyd Tower.

The lecture is sponsored by the UI Office Of Continuing Medical Education.

Corrections

In a courts column (DI, March 14), it was incorrectly reported that Carlton Thomas Campbell, 2407 Petsel Place, stole a bike from 109 N. Van Buren St. and admitted to the theft. Campbell was charged only with having possession of the stolen bike, not to theft of the bike.

The DI regrets the error.

Iowa City man bequeaths gifts to local organizations

By Traci Auble
The Daily Iowan

An Iowa City man has bequeathed approximately $200,000 to various Iowa City organizations in his will filed in Johnson County District Court March 10.

Edwin B. Green, an editor at the Iowa City Press-Citizen for 38 years, died at UI Hospitals and Clinics on March 7. He was 81. UI Hospitals officials declined to comment on the cause of his death.

A total of $1.7 million was specifically bequeathed by Green to relatives and various organizations in the will.

Green's will included a gift of $125,000 to the Iowa City Public Library Foundation to be used to purchase books.

Iowa City Public Library Director Lolly Eggers said the amount of money Green left to the library was a welcome surprise.

"We are very excited," Eggers said. "We knew he had a bequest in his will for us, but we didn't know it would be so much."

ACCORDING TO terms of the will, the money left to the library is to be invested, Eggers said, and books will be purchased each year from the investment returns.

"The money will go into our centennial endowment fund. If the $125,000 receives good investment returns, then about 80-100 books will be purchased each year," she said.

If the gift qualifies as a local matching fund, it could also help achieve the library's commitment to match the $125,000 challenge grant it received in 1986 from the National Endowment for the Humanities.

Other Iowa City organizations Green left money to include $25,000 to the Iowa City Community Theatre organization, $25,000 to the United Way of Johnson County, $25,000 to Project Green, $10,000 to the Iowa City Senior Center, $10,000 to Goodwill Industries of Southeast Iowa, $5,000 to the Ronald McDonald House and $5,000 to the Johnson County Heritage Trust.

GREEN ALSO left his collection of Grant Wood lithographs — two of which were autographed by the artist — and a lithograph by Thomas Hart Benton to the UI Museum of Art.

The remainder of his estate not allotted to relatives and organizations will be divided among two organizations. Seventy percent will go to a fund in Green's name at the UI Foundation and 30 percent will be given to the Mercy Hospital Foundation to be used to enhance the care, diagnosis and treatment of patients at Mercy Hospital, according to the will.

The amount to be given to the UI Foundation and the Mercy Hospital Foundation will be revealed at a later date.

Iowa high court: Insurance covers insemination costs

By Scott Sonner
United Press International

DES MOINES — Defining infertility as an illness, the Iowa Supreme Court ruled Wednesday an Iowa couple is entitled to health insurance benefits to cover expenses of artificial insemination.

The 5-0 ruling upheld a Story County District Court decision which said Thomas and Jill Witcraft's health insurance plan with his employer, Sunstrand Corp., covers the treatment of a husband and wife for infertility.

"We think the Witcrafts' infertility problem is an 'illness' as that term is used in the plan and that the procedure in question is a means of treating this illness," Justice Louis Lavarato said in the Supreme Court opinion.

Lavarato said the terms "illness," "sickness" and "disease" are synonymous when used in health insurance policies.

"Disease" has been defined as a morbid condition of the body, a deviation from the healthy or normal condition of any of the functions of tissues of the body,"

he said. "Given the broad approach the plan takes as to the term 'illness,' we think it is reasonable to ascribe the above definition of 'disease' to it," Lavarato said.

Witcraft's insurance policy covered previous inexpensive treatments for infertility after medical exams showed Jill was the subject of irregular ovulation and Thomas had a low sperm count and low sperm motility.

The initial infertility treatment was successful and the Witcrafts subsequently had a child. Later, they desired another child and the health policy paid for an inexpensive insemination procedure, but it proved unsuccessful.

Because the last treatment failed, the Witcrafts' physician suggested a more complex and expensive procedure as their "only option," court records said. The procedure, called Protocol I, involved treating the husband's sperm to improve motility before performing insemination.

Sundstrand said the health insurance claim would not be paid due to the fact "the medical services were not performed because of an illness or injury of the patient."

The firm's lawyers argued in district court the condition of non-pregnancy is not an illness and, therefore, artificial insemination to change that condition is not treatment of an illness.

Justice Lavarato said Sundstrand's past payment of medical expenses relating to infertility was an important reason to support the district court ruling. He said the general definition of illness and disease was accepted because there was no definition otherwise.

"Had Sundstrand intended to exclude artificial insemination procedures it would have done so as it did with abortion, pregnancy and sterilization reversals," he said.

"The average reader who notes the absence of artificial insemination procedures among these particular exclusions dealing with procreation could reasonably expect such procedures were intended to be covered under the plan."

Ronald D. Rippetoe, 32, address unavailable, was charged with one count for the recreation center incident and one for threatening to blow up the Mid-East Council on Chemical Abuse building, according to the report.

Rippetoe allegedly called MECCA, 430 Southgate Ave., Tuesday and told a staff person that he was going to blow up the building, the report indicated.

to the Iowa City Police Department in an attempt to locate his car after he was given a chance to go to his car to get money to pay for his meal, according to police reports.

James Bowton, 711 8th St., was reported at about 12:05 a.m. Wednesday unable to pay for his meal at Pizza Hut, 127 Iowa Ave., and then given the chance to go to his car to get money, according to the report.

At about 12:35 a.m., Bowton was reported to have come to the police station looking for his car and complaining of a swollen ankle, the report indicated.

The complainant reported that he was returning to his home and had made a U-turn in order to park on the street when a man pulled up next to his car. The man allegedly claimed he was a police officer, and told the complainant his U-turn was illegal and his license was therefore under suspension, according to the report.

The man was described as a white male with dark hair, about 5-foot-6, wearing a black leather jacket and blue jeans and driving a blue older-model Toyota Corolla.

The man reportedly refused to give identification when the complainant asked for it, and the complainant reported that he thought the man may have been intoxicated, the report stated.

Theft: An unidentified number of boxes of Girl Scout cookies, a list of cookie customers, and approximately $150 in money for cookies already delivered were stolen from the garage of a home on Wrexham Drive Tuesday night, according to police reports.

Spring to appear minus CIA

Recruiters won't hold interviews on UI campus

By Paula Roesler
The Daily Iowan

The CIA has recruited on the UI campus in the spring and fall semesters for the past three years. Each year members of New Wave, a UI activist group, have protested the recruiting.

But this spring will be different. This spring the CIA has decided not to recruit at the UI.

"My understanding is that they are not coming this semester because they don't need people," UI Vice President of Finance and University Services Mary Jo Small said, adding the withdrawal of CIA recruiters from the UI this spring is only temporary.

BUT NEW WAVE activist Carol DeProse said the CIA's decision not to recruit at the UI this spring is due to New Wave's anti-CIA demonstrations, and New Wave members consider the withdrawal of CIA recruiters this spring a "direct victory."

"It's directly related, of course," DeProse said. "They always need people. There has been no decrease in funding, there has been no decrease in their activities, there has been no decrease in the number of people that support (the CIA)."

New Wave member Bruce Nestor said anti-CIA sentiment has been growing since the first college demonstrations in the early 1980s.

"The demonstrations at Iowa were only part of a package of things that emphasized the crimes and illegalities of the CIA," Nestor said.

THE ANTI-CIA movement started on college campuses in the fall of 1984, Nestor said, adding the Iran-Contra scandal was a big impetus sparking opposition to the CIA.

New Wave wanted to expose the CIA "as an illegitimate agency" and inform people the CIA is "guilty of crimes and illegalities in South Africa and Central America."

"It is a moral imperative that the university realize this," Nestor said. "They should stop using university facilities and money to support CIA recruitment."

The CIA stopped visiting other schools where students protested on-campus recruiting, DeProse said, citing the University of Massachusetts, the University of Vermont, the University of Colorado and Brown University.

In the last three anti-CIA demonstrations sponsored by New Wave, Nestor said a total of 60 protesters have been arrested. This fall 27 demonstrators were arrested, including DeProse and Nestor.

TODAY NEW WAVE will hold a celebration at 12:20 p.m. on the Pentacrest featuring student speakers and live music.

After the rally Nestor, DeProse and 25 other New Wave members will go to the Iowa City Civic Center at 1:30 p.m. to face charges stemming from an anti-CIA demonstration held on Westlawn Oct. 7, 1987.

"It's more of a celebration and a send-off for the people going to trial than an informational event," Nestor said.

Twenty-one protesters were charged with criminal trespass in connection with the incident. Four protesters were charged with disorderly conduct, and three were charged with interference with official acts, according to court records.

Last spring 17 anti-CIA protesters were arrested on similar charges, Nestor said. There were no arrests made at previous demonstrations, he said.

Students engineer St. Pat's celebration

By Cathy Jackson
The Daily Iowan

UI engineering students insist St. Patrick was an engineer. But UI law students disagree, claiming St. Patrick was indisputably a lawyer.

So the two UI colleges had a face-off Sunday to decide exactly what St. Patrick did for a living — way back in the 400s — by holding a 10-hour marathon volleyball match.

And it looks like the engineering students are accurate again. They creamed the law students 344-185.

The volleyball match was one of several activities sponsored by the UI College of Engineering for MECCA Week, a six-day celebration in honor of the five branches of engineering first established at the UI — mechanical, electrical, civil, chemical and aeronautical. The week is a tradition dating back to 1910.

"St. Patrick is the patron saint of engineers," UI MECCA Week Activities Chair and engineering student Kathleen Ryan said. "It's true. He invented calculus."

THE TRUTH IS St. Pat was neither a lawyer nor an engineer. According to the Academic American Encyclopedia, he was a bishop and missionary for most of his life.

But UI Associate Dean of Engineering Paul Scholz said there is still some controversy over St. Patrick's career.

"The engineers would say he was an engineer, but the law people may have a different opinion over that," he said. "It's not settled yet." UI College of Law Dean William Hines said the law professors beat the engineering professors in the faculty games Sunday, adding there is a long history of student pranks and counter-pranks between the two departments.

"The law students stopped the pranks about 30 years ago when law became a graduate degree, but engineering students have still pulled pranks as part of their celebration of MECCA week," Hines said.

"Last year they poured a concrete shamrock, about three feet square, in the lawn of Boyd Law Building," he said. "I'm very pleased the rivalry has been raised to a higher-level plane of activity this year."

Other MECCA week activities included a MECCA stone hunt, a shamrock hunt and the traditional smoker, held Wednesday night at the Dubuque Street Brewing Co. 313 S. Dubuque St. Students will wrap up the week with a turkey-egg toss this afternoon on Union Field.

THE SMOKER, the main event, is an all-out party, complete with green beer, a live band, silly skits, dancing and a bar marathon, in which teams of four run to six different bars, stopping for a full beer at each. The team returning to the Dubuque Street Brewing Co. first is the winner.

But Ryan said MECCA week was mostly just a week of fun.

"When people think of engineering they think of calculators and slide rulers, but we're not always like that," she said. "We don't live by our Hewlett-Packards. That's what we're trying to show."

Elections board denies recount request

By Cathy Jackson
The Daily Iowan

Despite accusations of "foul play" from UI Human Rights Committee member Mike Ketchmark, the UI Elections Board denied Students for an Active Senate presidential candidate Mike Wild's request for a recount of Tuesday's 1988 Student Senate election results Wednesday.

UI Elections Board Chairman Jerry Miller announced the certification of the current election results during the board meeting, and said none of SAS members' complaints prohibited the certification. The certified results give the Allied Student Advocacy Party a seven-seat lead over the SAS party. Ketchmark, who attended the meeting as the SAS party representative, brought a written statement of specific complaints he and Wild put together.

The statement outlined SAS concerns, claiming poll watchers committed such procedural errors during the election as telling students who to vote for and failing to mark student ID cards to indicate they had voted.

KETCHMARK ALSO said there were several instances of inhibiting voters and multiple voting reported prior to the election. Ketchmark also said two polling locations opened late Tuesday, and claimed ASAP members violated federal law in soliciting family housing votes by stuffing mailboxes with campaign literature without using the proper postage.

"I know for a fact this was a sham — a comedy of errors. SAS was cheated out of an election and I think that's wrong," Ketchmark said. "All SAS was asking for was for the board to recount the votes and check the records. If they're confident the election was clean, then why don't they open up their records?"

Ketchmark said he plans to take his complaints to the central administration today.

"We will appeal their decision to the central administration and are confident that they will be willing to meet our request," he said.

Ketchmark said if the administration does not take action, SAS is prepared to hire a lawyer for an appeal.

BUT ELECTIONS board members defended the accuracy of the results.

"Because the point was to contest the election and based on what SAS said, we felt the individuals involved in the election displayed a great deal of integrity," board member Pete Petrihos said. "Failing to see any explicit or pervasive attempt at fraud, we determined the election was conducted fairly given the means available to elections board."

Student Senate President Melinda Hess said she does not support a recount and she trusts the results of the board.

"Do you think what you're doing helps anything?" Hess asked Ketchmark. "It doesn't make students want to get involved. The whole thing is that we need to work together."

Hess also suggested the board develop a more effective way of ensuring poll workers understand their duties.

BUT MILLER SAID the idea was not possible.

"It's a good idea, but given the number of poll watchers it's not logistically possible," he said. "The chair conducts a training session for two or three representatives from each poll group now."

Miller said he has mixed feelings about the board meeting.

"On one hand, some things he said may be true, but that's (due to errors)," he said. "I hope in the future people who run don't focus on rules, complaints and slamming their base, making personal contacts, and getting people to vote."

Reallocation grows arduous

By Adam Shell
The Daily Iowan

UI colleges whose budgets depend primarily on state funding are more adversely affected by the UI's reallocation policy than colleges that rely less on state monies but more on grants and gifts, interviews with UI faculty members and administrators indicate.

UI College of Liberal Arts Dean Gerhard Loewenberg said his choices are limited when deciding where the money to be reallocated to the central administration will come from.

He said a substantial part of the college's budget is committed to paying faculty salaries and other unbreakable contractual agreements. After paying these bills, he said, the rest must go to reallocation.

"Nearly everything that's not accounted for is subject to reallocation," Loewenberg said.

THE PLAN REQUIRES each college to revert a set percentage of its recurring budget — both state-appropriated and general funds — to create a pool of dollars to finance new programs or strengthen existing ones. This year each college must part with 3 percent of its budget. The reversion for the previous two years was 1 and 2 percent.

Michael Brody, a pharmacology professor in the UI College of Medicine, said a college with a large budget made up of a small fraction of state funds would give up very little under the plan. But the impact on a college which depends almost entirely on state funds is more severe, he said.

UI REALLOCATION PLAN

Last in a series of stories

"It's having a disproportionate effect on those departments that depend almost entirely on state-appropriated funds," Brody, a former UI Faculty Senate president, said. "It makes the budgetary considerations of the university very disparate."

The ground rules for determining where colleges will get the money has changed dramatically since the policy began in 1985. In the first year of reallocation — with the required 1 percent reversion — deans were able to trim and tighten their budgets with little difficulty.

ACCORDING TO a recent memo sent to the faculty of the UI College of Education by its own Faculty Assembly Committee, most of the cuts in the first year involved secretarial positions, salary reductions and general expense accounts. No faculty positions were eliminated.

During the College of Education's second year of reallocation — with a 2 percent reversion — two more secretaries were deleted. A program associate position with a $30,848 salary was also eliminated.

Budget choices, however, have become increasingly difficult for deans and department heads. With reallocation now in its third year, which requires a 3 percent reversion, most departments have already cut excess fat in their budgets.

"This means that people must choose excellence over something that's not really pulling its weight," Marilyn Somville, Chair of the Budgetary, Planning and Review Committee, said.

AS A RESULT, budgets are bared to the bone and the number of options available to colleges diminish.

"There's only one place where money can be gotten and that's from unfilled faculty lines," Don Marshall, a member of the UI Budgetary, Planning and Review Committee, said.

For example, the College of Education expects to lose three faculty positions totaling more than $122,000 in salaries and almost 11 graduate assistantships worth $88,000 in the upcoming academic year.

The College of Liberal Arts is also feeling the budget crunch. Loewenberg said he has given up more than 41 faculty positions to the central administration to meet this year's approximate $1.4 million reallocation requirement.

UI ENGLISH Professor Don Marshall said these faculty cuts are not planned, but rather random cuts.

"It does not necessarily represent a low priority or any valuation," Marshall said. "It's just seized because it's there."

He said these "opportunistic" cuts hurt comprehensive programs that rely on specialists.

"The loss of one position can be devastating. You could really punch a big hole in a program," Marshall said. "You can't have a string quartet without a cellist."

In addition, faculty members worry about how their departments are perceived by the rest of the UI, Marshall said.

"If their department is not successful in having faculty replaced, not only will that weaken the department but it also tends to create the impression that the administration regards it as a weak department and a low priority," Marshall said.

ANOTHER FACULTY criticism of reallocation is that some departments are using funds other than state funds to meet the 3 percent reversion requirement, Brody said. This allows departments with healthy amounts of outside funding, such as the College of Medicine, to avoid giving up faculty lines, he said.

"Those departments which have the financial flexibility to avoid paying the tax are really not sharing proportionately in the burden of this reallocation," Brody said.

UI sets up pact with Tokyo university

By Debbie Gluba
The Daily Iowan

An academic exchange agreement signed Wednesday by UI Interim President Richard Remington and Meiji University representatives will enable UI researchers and students to study in Tokyo beginning this spring.

The program is the third such agreement initiated between U.S. colleges and Meiji University, which currently has programs with the University of Oregon and the University of Illinois at Carbondale.

Takeo Hamamoto, director of the Meiji University Center for International Programs, was present for the agreement's signing. The paper calls for reciprocal visits between faculty and students, and the trade of library materials, textbooks, syllabi and scientific research materials.

scheduled for the 1988-89 school year when UI Geology Professor Robert Carmichael and Meiji University English Professor Arimichi Makino will visit the other's campus for a year to work in their respective fields.

Hamamoto said Meiji University chose the UI because of its good reputation and because many of his Japanese colleagues had ties to the university.

"The University of Iowa is one of the most prestigious universities in America," Hamamoto said. "It's very famous in my country."

Carmichael visited Japan in 1968 as part of his post-doctoral fellowship performing earthquake research at Osaka University. He said he will try to lay the groundwork for future exchanges during his upcoming visit.

"I'll try to get the institutional operation going and make the way for other people," Carmichael said.

speaks Japanese and has been attending UI Japanese classes to prepare for the trip.

"I would hope we'd have more students studying Japanese, Chinese and Russian because I think that is where the real opportunities are," Carmichael said.

Makino, who is a UI alum, specializes in American literature, especially the works of Herman Melville.

The faculty exchange is the program's initial effort but Meiji University officials said they look forward to having UI students study in Tokyo.

"We are aiming to do exchanges at both the graduate and undergraduate levels," Hamamoto said. "The problem remains one of language preparation."

Hamamoto added he was encouraged by Remington's assurances that UI students are learning to speak Japanese.

anticipated stemmed from different academic calendars at the UI and Meiji University. Classes in Tokyo begin April 1 and run through February with breaks in December and August.

Meiji University has an enrollment of 30,000 students and is one of six universities located in the Tokyo area. The university is comprised of seven 4-year colleges with graduate programs.

Hamamoto said the School of Commerce and Business Administration and the School of Engineering are the 105-year-old university's most popular schools.

The UI currently also has an undergraduate exchange program with Nanzan University in Nagoya, Japan. UI students who study there must learn the language in addition to their schoolwork and cultural studies.

"Their semesters shape up with 10 hours in Japanese and two or three hours in other courses," UI Study Abroad Advisor Maria Hope said.

Branstad loses first veto-power battle

By Scott Sonner
United Press International

DES MOINES — The Iowa Supreme Court Wednesday ruled unanimously against Republican Gov. Terry Branstad in a three-year legal battle with the Democrat-controlled Legislature over the power of his item veto.

The high court made no determination of whether Branstad's 1985 veto of a judicial pension bill was illegal, but reversed a Polk County District Court ruling that said the case was moot and could not continue.

"The issue is whether resolution of the issues actually presented would have any practical legal consequence upon the existing controversy," Justice Bruce Snell said in the 8-0 decision. "We take no position on the resolution of the merits of the declaratory judgment action. We simply note the issues involved are not merely academic."

THE RULING marked a first-round victory for House Speaker Don Avenson, D-Oelwein, and former Senate Majority Leader Lowell Junkins of Montrose who wanted a chance to pursue the lawsuit challenging Branstad's executive power.

The decision also could have ramifications for a lawsuit Democrats filed last year over Branstad's veto of welfare benefits.

Dick Vohs, Branstad's press secretary, said the ruling was a procedural one and the governor is confident he will win on the merits of the case. He said today's ruling will have no impact on Branstad's use of the veto pen.

"The Supreme Court says the district court should hear the case. We think it is appropriate for courts to give guidance on how bills are structured. We're anxious to clarify the merits," Vohs said. "Hopefully this will give us some guidelines to avoid bills being written with the intent of avoiding constitutional veto."

Protestant gunman kills 3, wounds 60 at IRA funeral

By Ric Clark
United Press International

BELFAST, Northern Ireland — A Protestant gunman and one accomplice launched a grenade and rifle attack on mourners attending the Catholic funeral of three IRA guerrillas Wednesday, killing three people and wounding nearly 60 others, police and witnesses said.

Witnesses saw at least two gunmen fleeing and shouting "UFF." The Ulster Freedom Fighters are the terrorists of the Ulster Defense Association, Northern Ireland's largest paramilitary group, which had pledged escalated violence against the Irish Republican Army. Spokesmen for the UDA and another shadowy Protestant paramilitary group, the Ulster Volunteer Force, denied their groups were involved.

One of the gunmen was beaten by the mourners and arrested. Police said he was a Protestant in his late 20s or early 30s who had been rejected for UDA membership for several years "because of his extremist views and his advocacy of indiscriminately killing Catholics."

WITNESSES SAID the other gunman apparently escaped in a white van but hours later police said they were questioning a second man.

The hail of bullets and shrapnel from exploding grenades showered across Milltown Cemetery at the moment the bodies of three members of the outlawed IRA, shot to death while unarmed by British forces in Gibraltar March 6, were lowered into their graves.

"It was a madhouse, with people ducking behind tombstones to avoid the gunfire and explosions and others running through the cemetery trying to catch the gunmen even as they were shooting," a witness said.

Within minutes of the bloody assault, the worst violence of the year erupted across west and north Belfast as youths went on rampages, hijacking and setting fire to cars, buses and trucks, police said.

EXTRA SECURITY forces were rushed in to try to keep the rioting from spreading but after nightfall hundreds of Catholic youths erected barricades, hurled firebombs at passing cars from a highway overpass and hijacked more vehicles.

Politicians from all sides appealed for calm to stop a cycle of murder and revenge between the Catholics and Protestants.

All of the dead in the cemetery attack were men and 57 other people were wounded, five of them critically, including a 10-year-old boy riddled by razor-sharp shrapnel, police sources said.

As the attackers ran from the cemetery, witnesses said they heard one shouting, "UFF." They said one of the men hurled grenades while another, described as a "big, burly fellow," gave him covering fire. Six explosions burst in the cemetery.

POLICE SOURCES said, however, that the sophistication of the attack made it likely it was organized by a group, possibly of maverick Protestant hard-liners.

The "covering" gunman opened his lethal spree at the moment coffins containing the three guerrillas — Mairead Farrell, 31, Daniel McCann, 30, and Sean Savage, 23 — were eased into their graves in a special section of the cemetery reserved for IRA members.

The three IRA guerrillas were killed in Gibraltar by British forces as they planned a bomb attack directed at British troops stationed on the peninsula at the tip of Spain, British authorities said.

Reagan, Shultz fail to gain Shamir's approval of talks

By Jim Anderson
United Press International

WASHINGTON — President Ronald Reagan and Secretary of State George Shultz failed Wednesday to persuade Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir to support U.S.-led peace negotiations, but Shamir said he is ready for direct talks with his Arab neighbors under certain conditions.

After a morning of apparently fruitless talks at the White House, Reagan said Shamir had not used the word "no." But neither did the prime minister accept any offered variations of the U.S. proposal following two days of intense talks. Shamir later told a news conference he was ready to return to the Camp David formula of direct talks about the future of the West Bank and Gaza, but not according to the new, compressed time schedule proposed by Shultz.

Under the 1978 Camp David formula — which Shamir opposed when he was in the Israeli Knesset — there would be a five-year interim period of autonomy for the Palestinians in the occupied territories. Under Shultz's proposal that would be cut to three years.

Yitzhak Shamir
Shamir said that was not enough.

A SENIOR administration official said Shamir's principal objection was to an international conference that would set the tone for the direct Arab-Israeli talks that Shultz's plan calls for. A spokesman for Shamir said earlier the prime minister fears that an international conference would give "Israel's Arab and non-Arab enemies" an opportunity to gang up on Israel.

Shamir confirmed that at his news conference, but he said he would be ready to go to Moscow, if necessary, to meet with Arab leaders in a "ceremonial" meeting that would lead to direct talks.

"I'm ready, if it is useful," he said. "I've never been to Moscow."

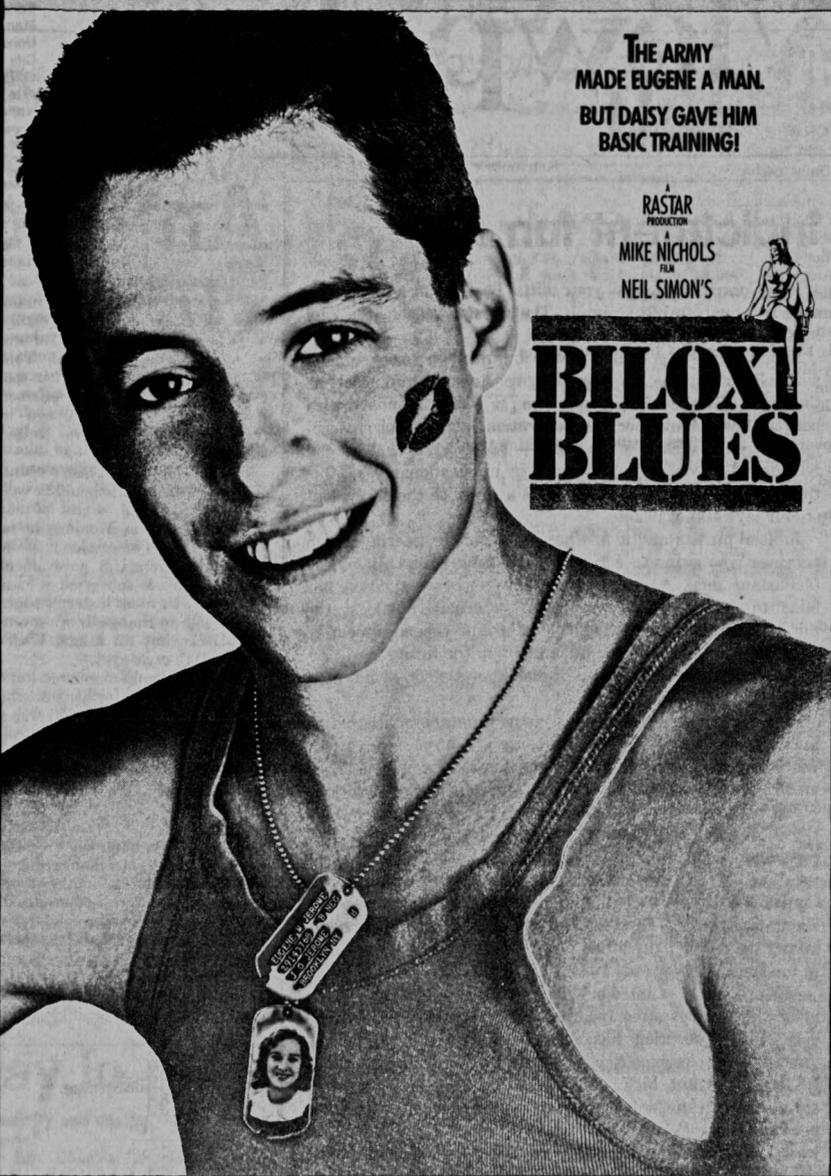

HOWEVER, King Hussein of Jordan has already rejected that idea.

The Israeli prime minister spent more than nine hours in meetings with top U.S. officials and is scheduled to hold one more session with Shultz early this morning before going to Los Angeles for a private visit.

Shamir is in sharp disagreement with his Labor Party partner in the National Unity Government in Israel on the issue of an international conference. The leader of the Labor faction, Israeli Deputy Prime Minister Shimon Peres, favors Israeli participation in such a conference.

Asked if he pointed out that divergence in his Washington talks, Shamir said, "Everybody knows that."

Israelis kill 3 Palestinians, wound 24

JERUSALEM — Israeli soldiers shot and killed at least three Palestinians and wounded 24 during violent protests Wednesday in the West Bank and Gaza Strip, where a general strike shut down most businesses, Palestinian sources said.

A fourth Palestinian died after one protest, but an army spokesman said the cause of death was a heart attack. Israeli officials said international telephone calls from the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip were being blocked and that travel between the two territories had been banned in an effort to end unrest in the 3-month-old Palestinian uprising against Israeli rule.

Friends appeal for hostage's freedom

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Relatives and friends of hostage Terry Anderson — the longest-held U.S. hostage in Lebanon — appealed Wednesday for his release on the third anniversary of his abduction.

Beirut's leading daily newspaper, An-Nahar, carried the statement issued by relatives and friends on its front page together with a picture of 2-year-old Salome, Anderson's daughter by his Lebanese companion, Madeleine. The child was born less than three months after the March 16, 1985, abduction of Anderson, the Associated Press Middle East chief correspondent.

Mecham takes stand at trial

PHOENIX — Arizona Gov. Evan Mecham took the witness stand at his impeachment trial Wednesday after the Senate refused to dismiss a charge that he tried to block an investigation of an alleged death threat made by one of his aides.

One of defense attorney Fred Craft's first questions was about the theme of Mecham's 1986 campaign, his fifth try for the state's highest office.

"It was to rid the state of corruption," Mecham said. Mecham, Arizona's first Republican governor in 12 years, is facing impeachment, a trial on criminal charges and a recall election.

Simon says he can be nominee

LANSING, Mich. — Coming off his first primary win of the presidential campaign, Illinois Sen. Paul Simon Wednesday took his campaign to neighboring Michigan and again said he could be the Democratic presidential nominee at a brokered convention.

"We are not going to have a first ballot winner in Atlanta," Simon said. "If (Michael Dukakis) were to win 50 percent of all the delegates from now, which would certainly be an optimistic scenario, he will still be 600 votes shy of a first ballot victory."

"The question then becomes who will come there with a significant block of delegates? I will have a significant block of delegates."

House committee boosts minimum wage

WASHINGTON — The House Education and Labor Committee agreed Wednesday to increase the hourly minimum wage for the first time in seven years, boosting it to $5.05 by 1992.

The committee approved the bill on a voice vote and sent it to the House, which is expected to act by the end of the month. The Senate has not yet acted.

The bill calls for increasing the federal minimum wage, currently set at $3.35, to $3.85 next year, $4.25 in 1990, $4.65 in 1991 and $5.05 in 1992.

Study of sex habits of quail costly

WASHINGTON — Male Japanese quail are virtual sex maniacs, as well as non-stop Peeping Toms, according to a study that Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., said Wednesday cost taxpayers more than $100,000.

The quail cast their "longing glances" on females of the species, dead or alive, are not gay and don't get their kicks from ducks.

Proxmire awarded his monthly "Golden Fleece" prize to the National Science Foundation and the National Institute of Mental Health for spending federal money studying the sexual behavior of Japanese quail.

The Wisconsin Democrat said the study has already cost $107,000 and estimated the institute will spend another $100,000 over the next two years.

Reagan says no to big civil rights bill

By Norman D. Sandler
United Press International

WASHINGTON — President Ronald Reagan, placing ideology ahead of GOP political jitters, vetoed a major civil rights bill Wednesday that would have restored a broad reach to federal anti-discrimination sanctions.

"The Congress should enact legislation designed to eliminate invidious discrimination and to ensure equality of opportunity for all Americans while preserving their basic freedoms from governmental interference and control," Reagan said in a veto message.

"Regrettably, the bill presented to me fails to achieve that objective," he said.

With the stroke of a pen, Reagan vetoed a bill that cleared the House and Senate by overwhelming majorities and could set the stage for a politically damaging override in the final 10 months of his presidency.

IN A BID to stave off that kind of setback, Reagan urged Congress to act instead on an administration-backed alternative, narrower in scope and similar to versions defeated in the House and Senate.

However, Democratic leaders appeared intent to press ahead with an override attempt, perhaps by the end of the week, conscious that election-year political sensitivities could force even some Republicans to oppose Reagan.

Sen. Rudy Boschwitz, R-Minn., chairman of the National Republican Senatorial Committee, had urged Reagan to sign the bill, suggesting a veto could cause problems for the GOP this fall by making the party appear to be opposed to aggressive enforcement of civil rights laws.

The vetoed legislation, "The Civil Rights Restoration Act of 1988," would have overturned the 1984 Supreme Court decision in the case of Grove City vs. Bell, which sharply limited the reach of federal anti-discrimination sanctions at colleges and universities.

THE HIGH COURT said the government could not use the receipt of federal funds by a single department to bring discrimination charges against an entire university or programs not receiving federal grants.

The bill, which languished in Congress for almost four years in a dispute over abortion, passed the Senate Jan. 28 on a 75-14 vote and was approved by the House March 2 by a 315-98 vote.

Reagan insisted his alternative would achieve similar objectives to the measure he vetoed, including the primary intent of returning to the pre-Grove City standard of institution-wide coverage of anti-bias laws at schools.

Dole supporters back choice to stay in race

By Joseph Mianoway
United Press International

Congressional supporters of Kansas Sen. Robert Dole, after viewing the wreckage of his Republican presidential campaign, Wednesday backed his decision to stay in the fray, while Democrats tried to put the best spin on the Illinois primary that left their race a twisted mess.

Vice President George Bush's convincing win over Dole in Illinois Tuesday virtually locked up the GOP nomination for President Ronald Reagan's second-in-command and even some of Dole's main supporters said they now believed Bush was impossible to stop.

But, in a half-hour Capitol Hill meeting with Dole's campaign manager, William Brock, a dozen of the Kansas senator's congressional backers generally supported Dole's decision to stay in the hunt, if only to articulate his views.

"I think he has a lot to offer," Sen. Nancy Kassebaum, R-Kan., said after the session. "He creates an activity and vitality that is important."

Sen. Charles Grassley, R-Iowa, who spearheaded Dole's winning campaign in that state, noted, "There was a general consensus the campaign should go forward. I believe he should stay in."

BROCK DECLINED to say what the senators told him, but noted the campaign would stay in business "until Bob wants to change it."

Sen. David Durenburger, R-Minn., did not attend the meeting but said Dole had reminded him that Bush stayed in the race in 1980, even after it was clear Ronald Reagan would be the GOP nominee.

"There's a Republican tradition, if you will, of candidates staying in and talking about the issues, and that's something Bob Dole has talked about," added Sen. Paul Trible, R-Va., noting that he believed Dole "can stay in and be a very positive force."

However, it was clear that not all the senators want Dole to continue the campaign.

Once word of the new request from Azcona reached Washington, national security adviser Colin Powell and White House chief of staff Howard Baker briefed Reagan in the family quarters of the White House.

FROM CAPITOL HILL, the surprise announcement evoked criticism from Democrats.

"I think it's an error," said Senate Foreign Relations Committee Chairman Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., who labeled the Nicaraguan incursion a matter of "hot pursuit" rather than the outright invasion claimed by the White House.

Democratic presidential hopeful Paul Simon, a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, called the move "a mistake" and said the United States should instead concentrate on "demilitarizing the situation there."

"I think it compounds an already foolish policy," Simon said.

THE TROOP DEPLOYMENT was one of several military and diplomatic options weighed by the administration throughout the day.

Powell, Baker and Secretary of State George Shultz consulted congressional leaders for 90 minutes Wednesday afternoon on the military and political ramifications of the Nicaraguan incursion, though no hint of imminent action was given at that time.

Early in the day, Fitzwater sought to send a strong signal to Managua by telling reporters, "At this moment, everything is being considered short of invasion."

Viewed with skepticism by some members of Congress, the crisis atmosphere generated by the White House over the military threat to the Contras created a political opening for Reagan to escalate his drive for a resumption of aid, including arms, to the rebels.

THE WHITE HOUSE charged that the Feb. 3 rejection of Reagan's last Contra aid package by House Democrats created the military conditions that invited what Fitzwater called "an all-out death blow" against the rebels.

U.S. officials at the White House and State Department estimated some 1,500 Sandinista troops, supported by Soviet-built Mi-17 helicopters, had crossed the border in an outright invasion aimed at driving the Contras out of Nicaragua and destroying their supply camps in Honduras.

- The city will establish an access road for the plant site which will run either south or southwest from the site to connect with Sand Road. The city agreed to be responsible for maintenance of that road and also agreed to file plans or maps showing the location of any new access roads to the site.
- The city agreed to conform in general to the layout submitted to the Johnson County Zoning Administrator in regard to possible development of park and recreation uses of the site.

- The city also agreed not to spread sludge on any portion of the area surrounding the plant site.

IOWA CITY'S original application requested that the county rezone 51.5 acres of a 160-acre city-owned tract of land east of Pleasant Valley Golf Course. The two parties reached an impasse over the application this summer.

Iowa City, Johnson County and the UI agreed to a 60-day mediation period through the Iowa Peace Institute, a bipartisan organization which attempts to settle issues of conflict. Mediation began Feb. 16, but has so far failed to resolve anything.

The city is under pressure from the Iowa Department of Natural Resources to begin construction on the sewage treatment plant and may be assessed fines if work on the project does not begin soon. Supervisor chairman Don Sehr said the new application is a good sign.

"It seems like we've made some meaningful progress here," he said. "Negotiations have proceeded to the point where that (mediation) might not be necessary. That doesn't mean we couldn't still use the Peace Institute — we just thought we could settle quicker without it."

on Panamanian assets, Noriega said, "Tell the gringos to give it (the money) back. They stole it from us."

As reports of the shooting swept through the capital, tens of thousands of people poured into the streets, barricading main avenues with garbage and rocks and setting afire several buildings and vehicles. Youths armed with machetes and rocks guarded roadblocks.

THERE ALSO WERE reports of widespread looting in the capital, and protesters began celebrating the assumed downfall of the embattled general.

"Noriega must go," they shouted. "Down with Noriega. Down with the son of a bitch."

Officials and residents described the spontaneous demonstration as the biggest anti-government rally in the nation's history.

The rapidly escalating unrest among Panama's 2.2 million people exploded with the government's inability to pay its civil servants.

Iran-Contra

deliberately tried to cover it up by shredding documents and making false statements to Congress and Attorney General Edwin Meese, the indictment charged.

However, the indictment said North informed his boss, Poindexter, of all of his activities.

North, in congressional hearings that dominated the national agenda last year, testified that he was acting with the knowledge and approval of Poindexter and former CIA Director William Casey, who later died. North told Congress that Casey planned for him and Poindexter to act as the "fall guys" if the covert operation ever were exposed.

Poindexter's attorney, Richard Beckler, said his client "absolutely will plead not guilty" to the charges.

"We're going to vigorously contest this case," Beckler said. "I think it's a shame that a man who worked as hard as he did in carrying out the national security obligations at the White House is involved in the criminal case."

THE INDICTMENT appeared to mark a sharp turnabout for North, who rallied public opinion last summer with riveting congressional testimony in which he staunchly defended his actions as in the national interest.

"I did not commit any crime," North told a news conference at the office of his lawyer, Brendan Sullivan. "I intend to fight allegations of wrongdoing, for as long as necessary."

Cited his tireless service for his country, North said, "Unfortunately, I have now been caught in a bitter dispute between the Congress and the president over the control of foreign policy, the power of the president to deter communism in Central America, and the president's duty to protect our citizens against terrorist acts abroad."

years, but claimed he had no answers to the problem.

IOWA LAW states that the UI must make its buildings accessible to the disabled, but Gibson said the law says nothing about getting disabled people out of buildings in an emergency.

Gibson rejected the suggestion that more electrical transport systems be installed in UI buildings to facilitate escape routes for the handicapped because electrical systems cannot be counted on in a fire, and said battery-operated back-up systems are "very, very expensive."

Gibson said UI students should take some of the responsibility for their own safety upon themselves and be aware of fire escape routes and safety procedures.

LASA member David Elick said it would cost $4 million to bring all UI buildings in compliance with fire codes, but said it was a "small price to pay" for the safety of the UI community.

"WHAT IS THE price of a human life?" Elick asked the panel. "I say let's not find out."

Responding to concerns raised about the locking of the Main Library north entrance doors at 10 p.m., Gibson said it was illegal for the doors to be locked with a deadbolt.

Gibson said fire escape routes must provide exits to students as marked.

Concerns about safety in areas outside of campus buildings were also addressed by speakers at the hearing.

UI Department of Psychology Professor Robert Baron began the hearing by telling the panel that he and a friend were mugged near Danforth Chapel in the summer of 1972 by a gang of six or seven high-school youths.

Baron said some campus areas are not adequately lighted to protect pedestrians and that people unfamiliar with Iowa City could be lured into a false sense of security.

BEFORE COMING to Iowa City, Baron said he had lived in

New York, Boston and Washington, D.C., but said he "had to come to Iowa City to get mugged."

"If I had been in New York, I would have thought this was something to look out for," Baron said. "I had perceived this to be a nice, peaceful Midwestern community."

LASA Executive Associate Tiffany Stimson and Student Senators Beth Shepherd and Andrea Andrews addressed the fear of rape on the UI campus.

Andrews told the panel that the UI Whistlestop program, which the senate sponsors along with the Rape Victim Advocacy Program, has been a highly successful and inexpensive way to educate UI women about rape prevention.

"The cost-benefit ratio of this program is undisputed because safety has no price," Andrews said. Shepherd told the panel that the UI's Saferide program has been an important element in the safety of UI students after dark.

"THIS CAMPUS, as everyone knows from these testimonies, is not a great place to walk around alone in the dark," Shepherd said.

However, despite contributions from local bars and the UI Student Senate, Shepherd said Saferide is in need of more funding from the UI.

UI Collegiate Associations Council President Mike Reck said the student-initiated programs discussed before the panel illustrate UI students' concern over campus safety.

Reck called for a concerted effort by UI students and administrators to make the UI campus safer.

GIBSON AGREED the concerns raised were important, but emphasized the financial feasibility of some of the recommended improvements.

"I don't believe we can solve these problems by throwing bucks at them," Gibson said.

Gibson said there was no question whether dangerous dark spots existed on the UI campus, but said the problem was finding funding to light them up.

No clear favorite emerges in Ames

AMES — It is anyone's guess which team might walk away with this year's national wrestling title. Top-ranked Oklahoma State, led by No. 1-seed John Smith at 134 pounds, won Wednesday's seeding war with eight wrestlers among the top 12 in their respective weight classes. But Cowboy Coach Joe Seay was not ready to predict his team as the eventual winner. "I can't see how we can even be of its wrestlers among the top eight. Penn State, with nine qualifiers, only had three seeded wrestlers, but all were seeded second. Both of Iowa's top-ranked wrestlers, Brad Penrith at 126 pounds and Royce Alger (177), are the top seeds in their weight class. John Heffernan (158), is seeded fourth. Both Joe Melchiore (134) and heavyweight Mark Sindlinger are seeded seventh. For the Cyclones, Tim Krieger (150) is a top seed. And two teammates, Mike Van Arsdale (167) and Eric Voelker (190), are seeded second. Former Iowa wrestler Steve Knight (126) is seeded fourth, and Jeff Gibbons (134) is sixth. Northern Iowa's Kurt Shedenhelm (142) and Joel Greenlee at heavy-weight are seeded second while Chris Lembeck (158) is seeded fifth and Mike Schwab (126) is seventh. OTHER TOP SEEDS in their respective weights: 118 - Jack Cuvo, East Stroudsburg; 142 - Pat Santoro, Pittsburgh; 158 - Rob Koll, North Carolina; 167 - Dave Lee, Wisconsin; 190 - Mark Coleman, Ohio State; Heavyweight - Carlton Haselrig, Pittsburgh-Johnstown. Iowa Coach Dan Gable was unconcerned about the outcome of the seedings. "It could have been better for us, but it really doesn't matter," Gable said. "If you plan on winning it all, you have to wrestle everybody anyway." Iowa received a major break at 134 pounds when Melchiore, originally seeded eighth, moved up a notch when North Carolina State's sixth-ranked Bill Hershey (22-1-4) failed to make weight. That means Melchiore, should he advance to the quarterfinals, will probably face second-seeded John Fisher of Michigan instead of the unbeaten Smith of Oklahoma State. "It's nice to get a break like that," Iowa assistant coach Barry Davis said, "but we have to worry about ourselves. We really don't care who we wrestle." Another probable seed, seventh-ranked Keenan Turner of Nebraska, failed to make weight. See Wrestling, Page 5B

No. 1 doubles player battles painful injury

By Hugh Donlan
The Daily Iowan

There is no simple way to describe the pain Catherine Wilson faces every day. Wilson, a freshman on the women's tennis team, will undergo surgery on her left leg after spring break to repair an unusual injury she has lived with for the past three years. The fibula, the small bone of the lower leg, dislocates when the muscle around the joint becomes tired. "I've never experienced this kind of pain," Wilson said after a recent practice. "It's right behind my knee. When it starts, there's no stopping it. Every other time I take a step, it just feels like there's a knife sticking in there."

For Iowa's No. 4 singles and No. 1 doubles player, it has not been an easy year. In each match and practice, her muscles get tired and her leg dislocates. DESPITE THE intense pain, Wilson participates day after day in the sport she loves. The Abilene, Tex., native starts strong, but it is only a matter of time before her leg gives out. "It just gives way and there's an incredibly sharp pain in my knee and I just fall to the ground," Wilson said. "It's really frustrating because I hate playing just 75 percent."

Following the Hawkeyes return from a spring break trip to California, where they will face San Diego, 18th-ranked San Diego State and 19th-ranked U.S. International, Wilson will be operated on by orthopedic surgeon John Albright at the University Hospitals. According to Iowa trainer Larry Leverenz, Wilson should have a successful recovery and could begin rehabilitation as early as eight weeks after the operation. "DR. ALBRIGHT explained to

Women's Tennis

Catherine it is to be a fairly simple procedure. All indications are for a good recovery," Leverenz said. With surgery pending, Wilson is in no danger of further damage to her leg and has continued to play. But she said she realizes the sooner the injury is repaired, the sooner she can begin rehabilitation and return to her top form. "I've been told it can't get any worse," she said. "But I just want it taken care of now so I can start rehabilitating and just get back as soon as possible. I'm really scared. I want it to be 100 percent sure that I'll be back. I have to do it. I can't play the way it is now." The first-year player is a strong singles and doubles player who adds depth to the Iowa team. And the combination of desire and ability she possesses can't be instilled by a coach. It is instinctive. "I JUST LOVE the sport so much," she said. "I can't stand to stay home and study and watch TV all day. All my friends are out here. I just love playing." With the loss, Schillig will be forced to juggle her lineup for the Big Ten season. "Because Catherine loves the game so much, and she's such a dedicated team player, she doesn't want to let the team down. But she can't feel that way. You've got to make the best of every situation," Schillig said. "I'm really disappointed because she is a big part and a strong part of our team. Everybody is going to have to give 110 percent to cover for her," she added. "We will experiment and go with what we

Iowa freshman Catherine Wilson returns a shot during practice Wednesday at the Recreation Building. The Hawkeyes are 5-2 on the season, and will travel to California over spring break to play San Diego, 18th-ranked San Diego State, and 19th-ranked U.S. International.

Hawks fight top teams, jet lag

By Hugh Donlan
The Daily Iowan

Spring break is just around the corner but this trip won't be all fun in the sun. The Iowa women's tennis team will compete in five matches over the course of the next 10 days and three of the opponents will be nationally ranked. In sunny Southern California, the Hawkeyes will face San Diego March 20, 18th-ranked San Diego State March 22 and 19th-ranked

U.S. International March 24. Also on the agenda are Big Ten foes Ohio State March 26 and 11th-ranked Indiana March 27. "It's going to be tough," Iowa Coach Micki Schillig said, "not only playing tough competition every match, but also all the travel." THIS TRIP TO California is not simply a test of strength for the Hawkeyes, who are 5-2 on the season. It will serve as a final tune-up for the Big Ten season. "When we're in California, our matches are for fun almost," No. 2 singles player Madeleine Willard said. "Because the Big Ten matches are the ones we really strive for. Indiana and Ohio State are going to be the big ones." Facing nationally-ranked opponents is nothing new to this squad. In February, Iowa played No. 15 Arizona and No. 17 Arizona State and suffered losses in both matches. Willard said the Hawkeyes have nothing to lose and everything to gain by competing against such strong competition. In conference contests, players are familiar with each other's games. Often, a player's reputation can be better than her game. "THE NICE THING about when you go out and play these other teams is you don't know the opponents," Willard said. "You work on your game rather than think about who your opponents are." 550 Iowa boosters buy NCAA tickets

By United Press International and Anne Upson
The Daily Iowan

The Iowa athletics ticket office sold 550 tickets to this weekend's NCAA West Regional in Los Angeles during two days of sales that ended Tuesday, according to Iowa ticket manager Mike Naughton. About one-third of the sales were to season-ticket holders, another one-third were to Iowa fans living in the Iowa City area and the other one-third of the orders came from Iowa alumni in the Los Angeles area, Naughton said. According to assistant ticket manager Pam Fink, the 300 extra tickets added to the 250 allotted to the school came from additional space in UCLA's Pauley Pavilion. TICKETS ARE STILL available at Pauley Pavilion for anyone interested in attending Friday's Iowa-Florida State first-round game. Tickets are being sold for single sessions or for the three-game package. The number to call for information is (213) 825-2101. Meanwhile, Doug McKechnie, who is in charge of ticket sales for Sunday's NCAA women's game in Iowa City, said about half the tickets — 8,000 — have been purchased for the second-round West Regional game between top-seeded Iowa and Stephen F. Austin. McKechnie said he expected ticket sales to pick up later in the week and the crowd could range anywhere from 10,000 fans up to a sellout for the game at 15,500-capacity Carver-Hawkeye Arena. McKechnie said because of past experience it is difficult to predict whether or not the game would be a sellout. "It's hard to say," McKechnie said. "With the Ohio State game we sold 9,000 tickets in advance. It's hard to say if people will react the same or buy the tickets the day of the game." The majority of the ticketholders, according to McKechnie, are older people and younger families. "The ticket ratio is three to one non-students to students," McKechnie said. "Because the university has its spring break next week, it affects the student sales."

Hawkeyes will meet S.F. Austin

The Daily Iowan

The Iowa Hawkeyes will host Stephen F. Austin Sunday at 1 p.m. at Carver-Hawkeye Arena in the second round of the NCAA Women's Basketball Championships. Stephen F. Austin advanced to the second round in the West Regional by defeating Louisiana State 84-62 Wednesday night in Nacogdoches, Texas. The Ladyjacks, winners of the Southland Conference with a 13-1 mark, are 29-4 overall this season. Third-ranked and No. 1-seed Iowa, which received a first-round bye and won the Big Ten Championship outright this past weekend, has never met Stephen F. Austin. In other first-round women's games, Wake Forest edged Villanova 53-51, St. John's topped Fairfield 83-70, Penn State nipped LaSalle 86-85, St. Joe's downed Bowling Green 68-56 and Colorado defeated Eastern Illinois 78-72.

Like dispossessed tenants, they have been kicked out of their home and sent packing across the country. "Any time you come off a disappointing loss and such an emotional game, you have to work on the mental part of the game," North Carolina Coach Dean Smith said. "It's hard to come back and play with emotion." The No. 8 Tar Heels, 24-6, face North Texas State, 17-12, Thursday in Salt Lake City in the first round of the NCAA West Regional. North Carolina is making its 22nd appearance in the NCAA Tournament; North Texas State is making its first. For this lopsided opening test it probably will matter little whether North Carolina plays with unrestrained emotion or utter indifference. However, the rest of the regional likely will prove more trying for the Tar Heels. "SO MUCH IS DONE preparing for the tournament, players can begin to look ahead to the teams they are expected to meet later on," Smith said. "If you do that, you won't be there for long. You'll be home watching it on TV." North Carolina would have been home all along had it won the Atlantic Coast Conference. However, Duke beat the Tar Heels for the third time this season to capture the tournament final, earning the right to play in the Tar Heels home of Chapel Hill for the East Regional. North Carolina, in turn, was shipped west. Sixteen of the 64 teams in the NCAA Tournament play Thursday. In other games at Salt Lake City, it's Wyoming vs. Loyola-Marymount, Michigan vs. Boise State and Florida vs. St. John's. IN THE EAST Regional at Chapel Hill, it's Missouri vs. Rhode Island, Syracuse vs. North Carolina A&T, Southern Methodist vs. Notre Dame and Duke vs. Boston University. In the Southeast at Atlanta:

Auburn vs. Bradley, Oklahoma vs. Tennessee-Chattanooga, Brigham Young vs. North Carolina-Charlotte and Louisville vs. Oregon State. In the Midwest at South Bend, Ind.: Purdue vs. Fairleigh Dickinson, Baylor vs. Memphis State, Kansas State vs. LaSalle and DePaul vs. Wichita State. Syracuse, which opens against North Carolina A&T, advanced to last year's NCAA final before losing by a point to Indiana. "I think we left some unfinished business last year in the tournament that we can finish this year," center Rony Seikaly said. "If we play up our potential, we should be hard to beat." SEIKALY ANCHORS A front-line bolstered by Derrick Coleman while Sherman Douglas runs the point and delivers alley-oop passes. Whether the Orangemen, 25-8, can play consistently during the tournament remains to be seen. North Carolina A&T can take solace in playing on familiar turf. "Being close to home is an advantage — probably the only advantage that we have," Coach Don

Auto Racing
Rene Metge, sports director of the Paris-to-Dakar rally, was fired because of the way this year's race was run. The 22-day event was marred by six deaths and drew condemnation from statesmen, sports officials and the Vatican. A 6,215-mile rally through China will be held in October or early November to mark the 10th anniversary of the Sino-Japanese Treaty of Peace and Friendship.

Baseball
The Hall of Fame game in Cooperstown, N.Y., Aug. 1 between the Cleveland Indians and Chicago Cubs is a sellout. The game will be played the day after Willie Stargell is inducted in the shrine.

Basketball
Michael Smith of Brigham Young and Brian Branson of Kansas City, Mo., as GTE Academic All-Americans of the Year... Arnel Jones and Chris Childs of Boise State, Tom Dalko of Montana State, Raymond Brown of Idaho and Rico Washington of Weber State were named to the all-Big Sky Conference team.

Cycling
Erich Maechler of Switzerland won the six-day Tirreno-Adriatico cycle race in Italy. Compatriot Toni Rominger was second with Raffi Sorenson of Denmark third.

Golf
U.S. Open champ Laura Davies accepted a sponsor's invitation to play in the $500,000 Nabisco Dinah Shore, the richest major in women's golf. She needed the invitation to compete because the U.S. Open is not an official LPGA tournament and she did not finish among the top three in any LPGA event last year. The 1988 Japan Professional Golfers' Association Tour opens Thursday with the $315,000 Shizuoka Open in central Japan. Davidlahi, an American of Japanese descent, was last year's leading money winner.

Edwards named top Big Ten freshman

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Indiana's Jay Edwards, who began the Big Ten basketball season on academic suspension, finished as the conference Freshman of the Year.

Edwards, who led the Big Ten in free-throw percentage and three-point shooting, was awarded the honor in a vote of conference coaches. The 6-foot-4 swingman also was named to the UPI national all-freshman team.

Football player pleads innocent to rape

SEATTLE (UPI) — Washington football player Jay Roberts and a hometown friend pleaded innocent Tuesday to rape charges in the attack of a young woman who claims she was beaten and sexually assaulted.

Roberts, 25, who was expected to start at inside linebacker on Washington's 1988 team, has been suspended from the team by Coach Don James until the matter is resolved.

Roberts and Max Fricke, 29, who works as a laboratory technician in Centralia, pleaded yesterday to charges of second-degree rape before King County Superior Court Judge Susan Agid, who set a pre-trial hearing for April 6.

Budd pulls out of cross country meet

LONDON (UPI) — South African-born Zola Budd pulled out of the British team for the World Cross Country Championships in New Zealand later this month as speculation mounted that she could also be forced out of the Summer Olympic Games in Seoul in September.

Budd, 21, who won the women's race in 1985 in Portugal, and in 1986 in Switzerland, said she withdrew from the British team to put "my country first and my teammates first."

Her action ended threats of an African boycott and disruption of the event by anti-Apartheid campaigners.

Lomax becomes first Phoenix signee

PHOENIX (UPI) — Quarterback Neil Lomax became the first player to sign with the Phoenix Cardinals, agreeing Wednesday to a series of four one-year contracts.

The signing came one day after the NFL gave approval for the Cardinals franchise to move from St. Louis to Phoenix. The signing was announced at the NFL's annual winter meetings.

Owners reject permanent instant replay

PHOENIX (UPI) — NFL owners Wednesday rejected a proposal to make instant replay a permanent officiating tool, instead they approved modified use of replay for one more year.

Approval came on a 23-5 vote, with dissenting votes cast by Buffalo, Cincinnati, Kansas City, the New York Giants and Phoenix Cardinals.

Non-binding vote goes against Cubs lights

CHICAGO (UPI) — A non-binding referendum asking whether night baseball should be allowed at Wrigley Field was headed toward a resounding defeat Tuesday night, early returns showed.

With four of the 21 precincts reporting, nearly 75 percent of the votes cast were in favor of restricting the Chicago Cubs to playing day games only.

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Keith James, the 6-foot-6 junior guard for Nevada-Las Vegas, is suffering from mononucleosis and will not play in the NCAA Tournament, team trainer Jerry Koloskie said.

Buckeyes' Cooper loses scholarship

United Press International

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Ohio State has revoked the scholarship of senior fullback George Cooper, who received a $2,000 loan from a sports agent the day after last year's Ohio State-Michigan game.

According to this month's issue of Sports Inc., a sports business magazine, Cooper later returned the money, signed with another agent the week of the Senior Bowl, and signed with a third agent three weeks ago.

Ohio State Athletic Director Jim Jones said Tuesday Cooper's grant was revoked.

"It's a Big Ten rule," he said. "When you sign with an agent or submit your name for a draft, you are immediately ineligible (for financial aid)."

Cooper refused to apologize for taking the money.

"I'VE GOT TWO kids, they are my responsibility and I needed the money," Cooper said.

According to Sports Inc., Cooper received $2,000 from David Ludduke of New York on Nov. 22, 1987, in return for signing a promissory note. He said he intended to retain Ludduke as his agent, but "it quickly became apparent to me

I had made a bad choice. At all-star games, he was trying to use me to help him get other players."

Shortly before the Senior Bowl, Cooper said he signed a contract with agent John Maloney of San Francisco, but the contract had a provision by which Cooper could void it within three days.

"He kept after me. He wouldn't take no for an answer," Cooper said. "As soon as he left (the hotel) room, I wrote him a letter saying I was voiding the contract."

THREE WEEKS AGO, Cooper signed with Al Waldon of the Sports Stars agency in New York. The magazine article portrayed Cooper as self-serving and greedy, using the agents.

"What a bunch of baloney," Cooper said. "They are trying to make me out to be the bad guy, these guys who are going around putting a lot of pressure on college guys who are in tough financial situations, trying to get their attention with money and things."

Cooper's financial situation has been troubled since the birth of a son, George Jr., four years ago, and was made even worse by the birth of a daughter, Shaniqwa, 18 months ago.

Hoops champions crowned

By Bryce Miller
The Daily Iowan

The all-university intramural basketball finals were held Tuesday night at the Field House and three champions were crowned.

The men's finale pitted the Bandits against Phi Kappa Alpha. The Bandits, a team of law students, cruised to a 53-34 win in the only one-sided contest of the evening.

The Bandits' Mark Kaliban said the margin of victory was typical for this squad.

"We've won pretty handily all year," he said. "The only real good game we had was in the playoffs against an independent."

This championship was the first time ever that an independent squad wasn't involved in a men's final.

Intramurals

THE BIG TENNIS battled the Mad Mashers for the women's title in an extraordinary contest. Entering the game with an unblemished intramural record, the Big Tennes managed only a 43-40 victory.

This was the most exciting women's contest to be played in quite some time, according to Recreational Service's Bill Jacobson.

"This was the best women's game I've seen in my years at Iowa," he said. "It was just a great contest."

The coed title was awarded to Dionysus after it posted a 45-41 win over Jamelots in another highly competitive affair.

Jeff Marner was the difference in that game, as he buried a number of timely three-point baskets to propel them to the victory.

The finals of the Nike Sharp Shooter three-point contest were held Tuesday. Ron Frascht easily won the title by tallying 30 points in the final round to outdistance the other competitors. Troy Ellis placed second, followed by Ron Chapman and Rob Baughman.

Bill Blanchard will be vying with Scott Brechon for the intramural racquetball crown tonight at 7:30 p.m. on Court 5 in the Field House. Blanchard is a 42-year-old leisure studies teaching assistant who met the student-status requirement by becoming a Ph.D candidate this term.

Evan's Distributing and Pabst sponsored the intramural darts competition that concluded last Monday night at Joe's Place.

Dave Dein took the 501 crown for Phi Kappa Alpha. Steve Richardson of Sigma Tau Gamma, Paul Bushell of Lamda Chi Alpha, and Paul Buckley of Tun 80's came in second, third and fourth respectively.

Dan Mehl of Recreational Services said he was satisfied with the event and the amount participation it attracted.

"We were happy with the number of entrants (44)," he said. "This was just fun to be involved with. A good time was had by all."

If you have any questions concerning intramurals, contact any of the graduate assistants at Field House Room E216 or call 335-9293.

Marshall's signing gets mixed review

By Jeffrey T. Shain
United Press International

PHOENIX — The free-agent signing of linebacker Wilber Marshall drew the attention of NFL coaches Wednesday, with San Francisco Coach Bill Walsh saying another linebacker nearly became the one to break the barrier several years ago.

Twenty-seven of the 28 NFL coaches met with the media over breakfast Wednesday morning. The only coach not in attendance was Buddy Ryan of the Philadelphia Eagles, who traditionally does not attend such functions.

Much of the talk centered on a five-year, $6 million contract Marshall signed with the Washington Redskins last week. Marshall's original team, the Chicago Bears, has until the end of the week to match the offer or lose him. In exchange, the Bears would receive Washington's first-round draft picks this year and next.

IF THE BEARS lose Marshall, he will be the first player to change teams via free agency since 1977.

However, Walsh told reporters that he considered signing former Denver Broncos linebacker Randy Gradishar to an offer sheet several years ago.

"We played around with the idea with signing Randy Gradishar," Walsh said. "We even sent a guy to Denver with an offer sheet. I thought about it and thought about it, then didn't do it."

"I just didn't like the way we did it. Denver couldn't match the offer. It was only semi-ethical."

Meanwhile, the coaches disagreed over whether the Marshall signing would open the gates of free agency for other players.

"If you have a team that's very experienced, then one more player might keep you in the Super Bowl or get you there," said Dallas Coach Tom Landry. "That might be the way to do it."

Landry added that the Redskins likely would be more prone to go after a free agent than the Cowboys, who prefer to build through the draft.

"One thing the Redskins have going for them is they have often given away their No. 1 choice, then reach the Super Bowl and win it," he said. "Their philosophy is different from ours."

Denver Coach Dan Reeves said the signing "is a lot like a trade. It's got its pluses and minuses."

Coach asks NFL to help keep players in school

United Press International

PITTSBURGH — Pittsburgh football Coach Mike Gottfried has sent telegrams to members of the NFL competition committee asking their support in upholding the league's rules pertaining to when college players can turn pro.

Gottfried denied he sent the telegrams in connection with former Pitt running back Craig "Ironhead" Heyward's request to be allowed to enter the NFL this year.

"I feel like if they change (the rules) it would send a signal to young players — freshman, sophomores and juniors — that it would be right for them to come out before using up their eligibility," Gottfried said Tuesday. "I certainly don't want that."

"I'm not against Craig Heyward. I'm not against anyone. I'm just looking to the future. I'm concerned about changes in the system that might encourage a freshman or encourage a sophomore to leave school before they're ready."

Ex-racer Thompson killed

United Press International
BRADBURY, Calif. — Retired race car driver Mickey Thompson and his wife were found shot to death early Wednesday outside their exclusive home in the foothills of the San Gabriel Mountains, Los Angeles County officials said.

Both Thompson, 59, and his wife, Trudy, were shot in the head, authorities said. Thompson was also shot in other areas of his body.

"We were stunned," said Doug Stokes, a spokesman for Mickey Thompson Entertainment Group at Anaheim Stadium. "There's no reason for such a tragedy."

Stokes said the company, set up by Thompson, promotes off-road and motocross racing events throughout the country.

Sheriff's deputies and paramedics from the Los Angeles County Fire Department were called to the exclusive 3,500-square-foot home at 53 Woodlyn Lane shortly after 6 a.m., Sheriff's Deputy Van Mosley said. The guarded community is located 22 miles east of Los Angeles at the base of the San Gabriel Mountains, Van Mosley said.

THOMPSON SET A variety of land-speed records in the 1960s at the Bonneville Salt Flats in Utah. He later substituted the rocky desert washes of off-road racing for the smooth asphalt of Indianapolis to satisfy his thrill-seeking urge.

"I've tried to quit. It's like being addicted," Thompson once said in an interview with United Press International.

Thompson, who also raced motorcycles and speedboats, claimed to have suffered more broken bones than motorcycle daredevil Evel Knievel.

His involvement with racing began in 1937 when he saw Sir Donald Campbell of Great Britain setting land speed records at Bonneville.

think is best."

No. 2 singles and doubles player Madeleine Willard agreed with Schillig about the loss.

"IT WILL BE really hard to play without Catherine. Obviously we'll just try to do the best we can," Willard said. "I've been out there playing with her and I can tell her knee is just killing her. Catherine is a real tough competitor. Hopefully things will turn out for the best."

Sometimes an injury helps a team build unity. Schillig thinks this one will.

"This happened last year when we lost Robin Gerstein. The girls all pulled together and raised their level of play. They knew they had to do it and they did," she said. "I think the girls will pull together."

As for Wilson, she said she is confident her teammates will persevere while she rehabilitates.

"They'll do alright. We have so much depth," she said. "I don't think it will hurt us that much. I'll be there to cheer them on."

NCAA

Corbett said.

Tennessee-Chattanooga, surprising winner of the Southern Conference Tournament, is the last seed in the Southeast and a 28-point underdog against Oklahoma. The Sooners, 30-3, average 105 points and use fullcourt pressure to force 24 turnovers a game.

"We're trying to prove something to somebody and play for a cause," Coach Mack McCarthy said.

FAIRLEIGH DICKINSON faces Purdue and is armed with gallows humor for its date with the executioner in South Bend.

"When we found out who we were playing, the next day we had a team meeting... and we decided to come out here by a 7-5 vote," Coach Tom Green said. "It might have been the first time in NCAA history that a team has turned down an NCAA bid."

In Fairleigh Dickinson's only previous NCAA appearance three years ago, the Knights scared Michigan before losing 59-55.

"I am worried about their quickness," Purdue Coach Gene Keady said. "They play a quick, up-tempo kind of game and those type of guys give us trouble."

Tennis

"In the Big Ten, we know everybody on every single team because the teams are so small," she added. "In California, we'll worry about how we're playing and not our opponents. It's nice to have that challenge when you play people."

Schillig is more concerned with the physical toll the travel will have on her players than she is with the top-notch opponents.

"You never get used to it (fatigue). Even if you travel a lot. You just cope with it," she said. "You've got to try and rise above it."

Despite all the travel that will be involved in the ambitious spring "break" schedule, Schillig is confident.

"If we can show we can compete with the West Coast schools and Indiana (No. 1 team in the Big Ten)... that's going to make it successful," Schillig said.

NIT prepares to open play Wrestling

By Lisa Harris
United Press International
New Mexico and West Virginia, two of the nation's most troublesome teams on their own floors, open at home tonight in the first round of the 32-team National Invitation Tournament.

The Lobos went 20-13 this year, including 17-1 at home. Their next opponent in The Pit is Pepperdine, 17-12. New Mexico has won 80 percent of its home games since starting at the Pit in 1966.

The Lobos' only home loss this year was to then-undefeated Brigham Young. The Pit snared a big victim in January when Arizona, then the top team in the country, lost after winning its first 12 games of the season.

West Virginia, which opens against Connecticut, is always tough at the Coliseum, though not quite as nasty this year as in the past.

The tournament concludes with the semifinals and finals in New York March 29 and 30.

Scientist allegedly sees yeti

By Roman Rollnick
United Press International

MOSCOW — A Soviet scientist said Wednesday she came within feet of the legendary abominable snowman during an eyeball-to-eyeball encounter with the furry beast in the snow covered forests of western Siberia.

In what Radio Moscow described as one of the closest encounters of its kind, the creature reportedly stood and stared at her with red eyes, not making a sound, before her pet dog chased the snowman, or yeti, deep into the woods.

The scientist, Maya Brikova, told Radio Moscow she had spent 25 years studying the yeti.

BRIKOVA AND two guides had stopped for the night in a forest cabin at an undisclosed site in western Siberia and were awakened by a sound of rolling logs. They said they rushed out to the porch and saw the creature.

"The day was breaking and we could see everything clearly. I saw in front of me an animal about 2 meters (6-foot-7) tall, covered with fur some 6 to 7 seven centimeters (2.5 to 3 inches) long," Brikova said. "It was covered with so much fur, its lips looked like slits. The fur on its head and face was shorter than that of its body. The palms were red and bare. The creature studied us with great attention. Its eyes were red without any whites, and its ears didn't stick out," she said.

New Trek series offers variety: Nuclear-family crew, Klingons

By Joseph Levy
The Daily Iowan

The way the four Star Trek movies raked in moneybags at the box office, you knew it was only a matter of time before some Beverly Hills bigwig would decide to get the stellar show back on TV.

That's right. There have been four — count 'em — feature-length Star Trek films released in the past 10 years. Each has made Paramount Studios a little richer and each has strengthened the following of "trekkies."

Ah, yes. The trekkies. They're that group of spaced-out sci-fi addicts who could tell you everything from how high Nurse Chapel's hemline was to exactly what Spock's tricorder could do (I think it could do anything the writers wanted it to do, personally).

The strength of the trekkies has given the original TV series, which ran from 1966 to 1969, a second run at the cosmos. "Star Trek — The Next Generation" hit the scene this fall, and is currently syndicated nationwide.

THE NEW SHOW, set in the 24th century about 80 years after the original Star Trek series probed the outer limits of the Milky Way, stars an entirely new cast. But these new guys seem to have acquired space legs rapidly. The show has been stealing Nielsen rating points from regular network programming in some markets.

It's a show whose time has come. The series in the '60s was light years ahead of its audience. Man hadn't even landed on the moon yet, much less Alpha Centauri.

And if the technology wasn't too much for Joe Average viewer to take in, the progressive nature of the show probably was. Recall, there was a woman — a black woman — in a position of authority on this show. Lt. Uhura was also engaged in TV's first interracial kiss. No big deal today, but in the '60s, heads turned.

THAT'S WHY this new series is right for the '80s — if not the '90s. The multiracial make-up of the original show's cast pales in comparison to "The Next Generation's" cast — whose configuration makes an even broader social statement.

Included on the bridge of the new starship Enterprise is a Klingon. These guys, if you recall, were much-tainted belligerents on the old show.

This suggests right off that the new show is not trying to mirror the old series. There is no Captain Kirk-Dr. McCoy-Mr. Spock triumvirate that gave the old show its cult following. I'm not even convinced this show has a domineering "Captain Kirk" figure in it. Parts are played mostly by no-name actors, but the show has balance.

The Klingon on the cast runs the weapons, an android is the navigator and a blind man, LeVar Burton of "Roots" fame, is the helmsman. He is able to see special things like ultraviolet configurations and energy fields, thanks to the help of special glasses that look like funky Ray-Bans.

Another new wrinkle — families and kids get to ride the ship for free to be with their loved one who makes a living working for the Federation. It kind of makes the show more like "The Love Boat" — which isn't bad. There are more plot possibilities with the Mrs. and the kids on board.

So yes, this show is different. But then again, so is its audience. We're ready for it now. And if we're not, the trekkies will watch it anyway.

Cosby rules the Nielsens

By Joan Hanauer
United Press International

NEW YORK — Television viewers last week proved they still like Bill Cosby the second time around, as a "Cosby Show" repeat led NBC to yet another win in the weekly ratings race, it was reported Tuesday.

After getting their regular Thursday night fix of the Cos, enough viewers were worried about America's kids to desert NBC's "Different World" for the second half of the heavily promoted CBS News show, "48 Hours on Runaway Street."

Ordinarily the Cosby coattails are strong enough to carry whatever show follows into second place. This week "Different World" was in third. NBC had no reason to be upset — the network still made a clean sweep of the top five. As a bonus, the movie-length premiere of its new series, "Aaron's Way," came in 10th.

Among special shows for the week, "The People's Choice Awards" (CBS) came in seventh with a 20.1 rating and a 31 share. Katharine Hepburn in "Laura Lansing Slept Here" (NBC) was 12th, with an 18.9 rating and a 30 share.

FOR THE WEEK ending March 13, NBC led with a 15.9 rating and a 26 share. CBS was second with a 12.7 rating and a 21 share and ABC last with an 11.8 rating and a 19 share.

For the season-to-date, after 25 weeks NBC remains comfortably ahead with a 16.3 rating and a 27 share. ABC has a 14.0 rating and a 23 share, while CBS has a 13.6 rating and a 24 share.

In the three-network coverage of Super Tuesday, the networks were not head-to-head and the viewing audience had some choice. They chose to watch late and briefly.

The CBS News special, which aired from 8 to 10 p.m. Eastern time, ranked 67th on a list of 68 shows. The ABC special, 9 to 11 p.m., tied for 64th with the Barry Manilow special (CBS). The NBC election report, which went on shortly before 10 p.m., was 58th.

THE BOTTOM LINE on the Nielsen list was "Sid and Marty Kroff's Redeye Express" (CBS), hosted by first son Ron Reagan.

In news, "CBS Evening News" with Dan Rather was in first place with an 11.1 rating and a 21 share. "ABC World News Tonight" with Peter Jennings was in second with a 10.2 rating and 19 share. "NBC Nightly News" with Tom Brokaw was third with a 9.4 rating and an 18 share.

Each ratings point represents about 887,000 households and a share is the percentage of TV sets tuned to a particular show.

Winner of the week: Cos repeat.

Loser of the week: The First Son.

The top 10 prime-time shows for the week ending March 13, according to the A.C. Nielsen Co., were:

1. The Cosby Show (NBC)
2. Cheers (NBC)
3. Different World (NBC)
4. Night Court (NBC)
5. Golden Girls (NBC)
6. Murder, She Wrote (CBS)
7. People's Choice Awards (CBS)
8. (tie) 60 Minutes (CBS)
9. Growing Pains (ABC)
10. Aaron's Way (NBC)

'Masquerade' looks breezy — it's cool, but mostly air

By Steve T. Donoghue
The Daily Iowan

The easiest opening quip would be that the true masquerade here is one of a cheap thriller passing itself off as a deep gripper. In fact, the whole masquerade riff could be heavily mined: Rob Lowe as a viable leading man; Meg Tilly as predominantly awake, etc.

But such quippery would be too easy in dealing with director Bob Swaim's Masquerade, starring Rob Lowe as boat-stud-but-schemer Tim Wayland, who's out to gigolo millions from Hamptons heiress Olivia Laurence (Tilly). The plot is intricate enough to send Lowe's legion of adolescent school-girl fans into bubble-blowing frenzies, and there's even a smattering of nifty surprises geared for the rest of us. No doubt about it: Masquerade is constantly moving.

That's half the problem — it often moves too fast to stay on its own feet. The basic plotline revolves around hotshot boating captain Wayland and his seemingly impromptu relationship with Olivia, whose boorish stepfather (played with debonair laziness by John Glover) forbids her to associate with the "boat nigger."

BUT THE storyline gets more twists per hour than a doorknob gets per year, and soon the least likely characters are arranging clandestine meetings to discuss needlessly convoluted plans to off Olivia for her clams. Eventually, almost everybody gets to say to everybody else, "Well, now that we've got 'em all convinced that we hate each other, we can —" But all the characters really do hate each other, so...

No, not all. Meg Tilly in Olivia Laurence has found yet another wide-eyed innocent to overact. Although Tilly's acting talents haven't improved much past the "OK-but-I-wouldn't-cancel-the-lessons-yet" stage, she certainly looks good in this film. Ditto for Lowe, whose flawless face somehow makes him easily convincing as a greedy, opportunistic scumball.

NEITHER TILLY nor Lowe (nor Doug Savant as the neighborhood cop/Hitler youth posterchild Mike McGill) act much in Masquerade. They walk all over the gorgeous scenery; they talk pat and sometimes maddeningly obscure lines at each other without any semblance of emotion or even much interest, but that's about all.

Fortunately, the rote recitation isn't fatal, so tricky and entertaining is the plot. But the absence of any powerful performances from any of the cast works a strange alchemy on the plot all the same. Scenes intended to be tense get giggles from the audiences, and the big finish — the villain being hurled to his death, landing mangled in a bucket of geraniums — provokes a full house of chuckles.

THIS WEIRD celluloid schizophrenia is at once the sinking and the saving of Masquerade. The show is sunk because it's full of holes — the acting is flat, the plot has some staggering logic flaws, the ending is hastily and messily contrived, and so on. But the show is saved because it unquestionably packs four dollars' worth of chills, thrills, twists, turns and what-not. Characters are exaggerated enough to get everybody involved and keep them involved more or less all the way through.

There's no denying Masquerade is a weak, shallow and vaguely silly piece of fluff — something you'd be crazy to see twice. But there's also no denying that, despite all its flaws, it provides an interesting and largely fun couple of hours that you'd be crazy to call a complete waste of time, unless you're hunting for enlightenment.

Bands

By Radoslav Lorkovic
The Daily Iowan

Undoubtedly Iowa's hardest-working man in show business, Bob Dorr returns to The Dubuque Street Brewing Co. with his veteran Blue Band tonight. Dorr and the band intend to move the green St. Patrick's Day theme one notch over on the color spectrum with their rockin' rhythm and blues.

Well into its second decade on the road, the Blue Band's wall of sound approach to R&B standards and originals is more powerful than ever. The band features two of the region's finest players, Ron Dewitte on guitar and Bob Thompson on sax.

Dewitte, one of the few remaining true R&B guitarists on the road today, cuts right through the band's sound with a sound he coined in the Linn County Band in the early '70s. Bob Thompson seems to hit the right note at the right time with clarity and tone yet to be matched in this area.
