Reagan denounces trade bill

By James Dobrow

Los Angeles Times

FOR Immediate Release

Reagan, in a statement, called for a "higher moral principle" than economic gain from trade and "a deeper faith in the wrongness of man's destruction of his fellow man." He warned that the trade bill would "deplete" the American economy and "erode" the country's credibility as a free-trader. He also criticized the Senate's refusal to consider the House-passed bill, which he said was "lacking in the moral and ethical vision" of the original proposal.

Rally hails troop withdrawal

Committee urges U.S. to pull out of Honduras

The University of Iowa is planning to withdraw its remaining forces from Honduras, according to a statement released by the University Senate yesterday. The decision was made after a meeting with University President Ronald Reagan and other top officials.

The statement said the university is preparing to withdraw all of its remaining forces from Honduras by the end of October, in compliance with the United Nations' resolution on the issue. The university has been in Honduras since 1986, providing military and non-military assistance to the National Solidarity Committee (NSC), a group seeking to overthrow the military regime in Honduras.

The university's withdrawal is part of a broader effort by the United Nations to bring an end to the conflict in Central America. The NSC is one of several groups fighting against the military regime in Honduras, and the university has been providing support to the NSC in its struggle.

City property taxes to increase 5 percent if levies are certified

By Sara Anderson

Iowa City residents will pay an estimated $5.50 more in property taxes this year if the state certifies city levy rates for the area.

This is a very resonable increase, the city said, because it would benefit the community, but the action could be risky.

IOWA CITY Taxing Board of Control President Gayle Seidl said the increase would have little effect on some incomes and increase the cost of others.

"If the increase will mean taxes won't increase, but I think it will ease anyone unless they had enough income to glide this will I don't know, so I think percent increases are going to be over a 13-month period."

The property tax increase will mean a decrease in property taxes for the city, according to Seidl.

"There are some properties which have dropped in value over the past two years, resulting from the change in city to state and town, and this is because of the city came, which occurs in Iowa," Seidl said.

"This may be the year not to decrease the values because the city may not make a change," according to Seidl.

"We TAKEN a couple years before it's an issue," he said.

IOWA CITY County Attorney Tom Miller also said, "If we would decrease the tax value, we would see a large percent decrease because the county would be down to state, according to Seidl.

"The increase would mean the county commission would do another percent or so of increase in order to decrease the tax value, according to Seidl."

No reason to worry

The state board of Regents got together last week and approved a $39.2 million budget. By most accounts the budget is more or less what they say it may be a problem. The "problem" is this: A study by registry staffers projects a drop in enrollment in the state university system. A drop of 13.5 percent overall, and 16.3 percent here at the University of Iowa.

Regent John Fitzgerald, who initiated the study, said it was very significant and alarming. He warned the board's decisions to maintain enrollment levels.

Iowa is in the midst of a population decline and warned about the tendency to compromise academic standards in the race to maintain enrollment levels. He said any drop in state aid, he warned, could mean that universities can't be so cheap when there are fewer students to pay for each seat. They don't demand quite as much as those who fill those seats, either.

Next, Iowa's state budget. Iowa Senator Clive Cussler pointed out that the university system would have seen academically qualified applicants if federal and state aid had kept pace with the 100 percent tuition increase over the last 10 years. "This is not something that's easy to fix," he said.

But finally reason prevailed. UI Interim President Richard Willey Reduced to get out of the projected cloud of refugees. Reformers pointed out that such projections have been well off the mark for the last 10 years. "It's likely to decline, at least until the children of the Baby Boomers come of age," he said. But the report has at least exposed the problem, he added. It is bad if only the drop brings a huge loss of funding.

If the report has at least made something known, it's that the state aid has been cut off.

The report would do well to dwell on today's university realities, such as the fact that fewer and fewer students can finish in four years due to lack of space in required classes.

But they should not be punished into a tight learning system.

In short, this "problem" will work itself out.

Tracksters optimistic after early successes

Wheeler says men will refine performances to NCAA level

By Bryan Miller

The Daily Iowan

This early in the season, most track coaches would be happy to see their team in a track meet in March. The Hawkeyes had a chance to do just that with a 2-1 split at the Hilton Classic, being the only track team in Iowa to compete this early in the season.

Men's Track

IN THE STANFORD meet, Paul Steele collected the Hawkeye first place medal of the outdoor season with a 50.41 second time in the 1500-meter run. The team continued their success in the one-day event coming one week after the one-week break from the track meets.

In the sprint events, James Armstrong, Doug Jones, Pat McGlynn and Steele needed a money to do.

Doug Jones, Mike Clarke, Bruce and McGlynn claimed the 100-meter dash title with a time of 10.35 seconds. Mike Clarke and McGlynn also claimed the 200-meter dash title with times of 21.00 and 21.10 seconds respectively.

In the three-mile run, Paul Steele claimed the title with a time of 13:19.1.

Steele and McGlynn also claimed the one-day event to go along with their spring break trip to the West Coast.

Stanford, NCAA await drug decision
BROOKLYN, N.Y. (AP) — Stanford University and the NCAA wrapped up their court battle Monday and left it to a judge to decide whether or not to re-open the case to perhaps end a 15-year-old drug scandal.

After more than a year-long battle that began when a member of the university's women's cross-country team tested positive for a drug test, the NCAA last week took the case to court and the judge made his decision within 20 minutes.

There's much to address in the court order to justify this action. It's very likely that Stanford is going to have this case re-opened, and potentially another 15-year-old case re-opened, because of the NCAA officials could not monitor the athletes while they remained for the tests.

Earlier this year, a federal court judge in Seattle upheld the NCAA's decision to re-open the case to potentially end a 15-year-old drug scandal.

However, Stanford's attorney said they are challenging the university's decision in court, the judge made his decision within 20 minutes.

Images of Spring

MESA, Ariz. — Spring's warm weather crops up and with it the season's most popular outdoor activities — baseball, tennis, volleyball and so few World Series dreams.

Spring training attendance is climbing every year. The Cubs alone are expecting 15,000 fans to fill their new spring-training complex in Phoenix's Mesa Park. Eight teams play in Arizona's Cactus League.

Baryshnikov pays tribute to a living legend of Bolshoi troupe

By Ben Friedland
United Press International

BOGOTÁ — Ballerina superstar Mikhail Baryshnikov last week paid a sentimental tribute to his former Bolshoi Ballet teacher, the Soviet ballerina Maya Plisetskaya, in Moscow.

The performance marked a rare appearance by Baryshnikov, who has not been seen in Russia in over a year, since he defected to Canada. The event was also the first since his defection that the Bolshoi has formally recognized.

Plisetskaya, who is now 72, is celebrated as one of the most important dancers in the history of the Bolshoi Ballet. She trained with Baryshnikov at the Bolshoi Ballet Academy in Moscow and later became one of the company's principal dancers.

At the opening of the evening's program, Baryshnikov introduced a solo dance to a work by Aram Khachaturian. The piece was chosen for its emotional intensity, which Baryshnikov said reflected his feelings about his relationship with Plisetskaya.

Throughout his career, Baryshnikov has been known for his emotional and lyrical approach to dance. He has often cited Plisetskaya as an influence on his own work, and their relationship has been a source of inspiration for both of them.

The performance was not without its controversy, however. Some members of the Bolshoi Ballet have criticized Baryshnikov for returning to Russia after his defection, and there were reports that some of the dancers were unhappy with the program's selection of works.

Despite these challenges, Baryshnikov gave a virtuosic performance, drawing a standing ovation from the audience. The evening concluded with a fairy tale ballet, “Peter and the Wolf,” to which Baryshnikov and his partner, Irina Kolesnikova, danced with great expression and technical brilliance.

Baryshnikov's return to Russia is a sign of the growing bond between Canada and Russia, and it highlights the importance of dance as a cultural bridge between the two countries.

Duke, Kansas ready for war of star Dannys

United Press International

Duke has come out ahead in three previous meetings with Kansas Basketball, and Blue Devil Coach Mike Krzyzewski is hoping the Blue Devil's can pick up his men.

"I expect him to be at his best (in the Final Four) There is no question Denny could come into that game and play his best ever. We've got to make sure that doesn't happen, that he just plays his normal, fantastic all-around game," Krzyzewski said.

Looking for his third straight NCAA title, Duke's Denny Mitchell will be looking to repeat his performance in last year's championship game. Mitchell's 15 points and 22 rebounds helped lead the Blue Devils to a 110-97 victory over Kansas in the 1987 NCAA title game.

"The pressure is on us to win," Mitchell said. "It's like you're playing for the championship, and you've got to be ready for war when you step on the floor."
