UI research company targets AIDS cure

By Paula Rebeschini

With the announcement of two prominent AIDS-related conferences in the fall, the University of Iowa research company that is developing an AIDS-related product is preparing for a wave of attention.

The company, which is known informally as "207," is a subsidiary of the University of Iowa, and its main focus is on developing a diagnostic test for HIV.

The company is preparing for the two conferences because they will bring together scientists and researchers from around the world who are working on HIV-related research.

UI COLLEGE OF MEDICINE

Dr. John Rockenbauer and Dr. Mark Miller are leading the research team.

"Our company will be working in these two very new and exciting areas, DNA probe diagnostics and diagnostics for other diseases," Rockenbauer said.

"Our work will be focused on developing a test for HIV that can be used in a variety of settings, such as in clinics, hospitals, and even at home," Miller said.

The company has already received funding from the NIH and other organizations, and it is currently working on refining its technology.

"We believe our test will be a valuable tool in the fight against HIV," Rockenbauer said.

The company's goal is to have a product on the market within the next five years.

Easter politics hit Wisconsin, Colorado polls

By Anne Sather

AIDS activists and state leaders in Wisconsin and Colorado are watching intently as the state's presidential caucuses loom in the next few weeks.

In Wisconsin, the caucuses are scheduled for March 30, and in Colorado, they are scheduled for April 7.

Both states have a significant number of AIDS cases, and activists are hoping that the caucuses will bring attention to the issue.

"We are hoping that the caucuses will be a turning point," said Ken Miller, executive director of the Wisconsin AIDS Foundation.

"We believe that if the candidates are not paying attention to the issue of AIDS, then they are not paying attention to the needs of the people of Wisconsin," Miller said.

In Colorado, the caucuses are scheduled for March 12, and activists are hoping that the candidates will be more responsive to the issue.

"We are hoping that the caucuses will be a turning point," said Dan Smith, executive director of the Colorado AIDS Foundation.

"We believe that if the candidates are not paying attention to the issue of AIDS, then they are not paying attention to the needs of the people of Colorado," Smith said.

Riverfest ad to run during ‘Letterman’

By Deborah Green

A television ad that is set to run during the "Letterman" show is gearing up for national exposure.

The ad, which is sponsored by the Iowa City Chamber of Commerce, features a variety of local businesses and attractions.

"We are excited to have the ad running during the "Letterman" show," said Pat L. Hamey, executive director of the chamber.

"It is a great opportunity to showcase the Iowa City area and all that it has to offer," Hamey said.

The ad is set to run on May 16, and it will be repeated on May 17.

King remembered on eve of sapping

By Ken Reitzer

AIDS activists and state leaders are planning a memorial service to honor the late Tony Perkins, who was a prominent AIDS activist in the 1990s.

Perkins, who died in 1997, was a key figure in the fight against AIDS, and his death was a major blow to the AIDS community.

"We are planning a memorial service to honor Tony Perkins and all that he did for the AIDS community," said Dan Smith, executive director of the Colorado AIDS Foundation.

"Tony was a true leader in the fight against AIDS, and we will always remember him," Smith said.

Iowa City, UI join forces on parking, water facilities

By Sara Anderson

The Iowa City Planning Commission will join forces with the University of Iowa to develop a master plan for off-campus parking and water services. The commission has already approved a motion to prepare a study of the two issues.

The plan for off-campus parking will focus on the construction of new lots near the downtown area and the revitalization of existing lots. The plan for water services will focus on the expansion of the existing water distribution system to meet the needs of the growing city.

The commission hopes to have both plans completed by the end of the year.

Jackson writes to Noriega, offers to serve as mediator

WASHINGTON — Democratic presidential contender Jesse Jackson made a personal offer to Panama's tyrannical Gen. Manuel Noriega Wednesday, saying he personally would be a “mediator” in the crisis over the Panamanian president's extradition to the United States.

The offer was made in a letter that was hand-delivered to Noriega by Cindy Holmes, a member of Jackson's campaign entourage and anativePanamanian who lives in Chicago.

Mrs. Elizabeth Lopez, a Noriega spokeswoman, said Jackson offered the personal services of his 63-year-old finance committee and a native Panamanian who lives in Chicago.

ManhecklesSwaggart during church service

by Steve Waltz
United Press International

CATHERINE, La. — Drunken evangelist Jimmy Swaggart, being expelled from the Assemblies of God for taking "money from a prostitute," says he is too "proud and ashamed" to defect from the church of his father's choice and to ignore "slaves and dogs," and a shaking bishop was excused from the church after several of his members castigated him.

Evangelist Jimmy Swaggart finished his service and a subsequent invocation at the West End Church of God in this new offshoot of the church after his expulsion was announced Wednesday. A few members still stood in the balcony area and accused the minister of taking "money from a prostitute" and being "dangerous."

Swaggart, now a member of the Independent Fundamental Church of God, maintained his appearance is in line with his sermon.

As he continued to rail against the preacher, the Rev. Joe Brotz, who is acting pastor during Swaggart's suspension from the Assemblies of God for an immoral act involving a prostitute, "Get us pray" — drawing out the young pastor's speech.

A RECOOLED church ushered the pastor out and the parishioners left to discuss theormanagement. About 2,500 people attended the service at Swaggart's Family Worship Center, which holds 5,000 and normally is packed.

Swaggart, who is facing expulsion from the national church, for his role in defying a teaching suspension from the Assemblies of God, from which he was expelled last year, said he plans to return to the church of his father's choice, the West End Church of God, in the next two weeks.

"Swaggart says it's over. Jesus says, 'Jesus says, 'Look at the Blood,"' said Swaggart, his lawyer, "They say Mary, they say Mary, they say Mary, they say Mary."

The former Assemblies pastor made the return of his suspension from the church, said his attorney, "in the interest of a free and fair vote in the church.

Swaggart, originally recommended a three-year suspension for conniving with his former wife, Sharon, in her illegal release of a video showing him kissing a woman, is said to be considering an appeal to the national church's executive committee, which ordered him be banned from the pulpit in defiance of the church's Ten Commandments.

But New Orleans herpes specialist Swaggart, with a short talk at the sparsely populated church, "Let's pray" — drawing out the young pastor's speech.

China is Middle East's No. 5 weapons dealer

By David Satterfield

BAGHDAD — China's sales of weaponry and military equipment to South Asia is only one of a series of recent steps that raises major questions about foreign influence and political influence among South Asian states. This is a crucial period for many South Asian states, and the rising influence of China is likely to shape the region in the years to come.

The United Nations is in a state of shock as China's military has been rapidly expanding in recent years. The country is putting most of its best brains and well-connected politicians in its drive to win the military race.

This assertion may be true when it comes to nuclear weapons, but China has entered the race to sell conventional, or non-nuclear, weapons to a number of antagonistic regions. Today the Chinese sell large amounts of their weapons to certain countries.

"I thought you were military equipment to the United States," a member of the opposition MOLIRENA party, had said Saturday that his party would not support the government in its drive to win the military race.

Those who have ridden China's military have been forced to admit that the country is putting most of its best brains and well-connected politicians in its drive to win the military race.

Arab teenager electrocuted when ordered to climb pole

By Gary Lee

MONDAY, April 10

A Palestinian teenager was electrocuted Monday while trying to climb a pole outside the U.S. embassy in Tel Aviv, where a large demonstration was taking place.

The teenager, 15-year-old Bilal Abu Rahma, was electrocuted after he attempted to climb a pole outside the embassy in an attempt to scale the wall and reach the demonstration inside.

So far, no one has claimed responsibility for the attack, and it is not clear whether the teenager was acting alone or as part of a larger group.

Soviets travel to Afghanistan, blame U.S. for Pakistan position

By Gary Lee

MONDAY, April 10

The Soviet Union is sending a high-level delegation to Afghanistan to discuss the situation in the country and to try to find a way to end the war.

The delegation, which includes both military and political officials, will arrive in Afghanistan on Tuesday, according to a statement from the Soviet foreign ministry.

The delegation will be led by Deputy Foreign Minister Alexander Grushko, who is expected to meet with Afghan officials and military leaders to discuss the situation in the country.

The delegation will be the first official visit to Afghanistan by a Soviet delegation since the Soviet withdrawal from the country in 1989.

The visit comes as tension increases between Afghanistan and its neighbors, particularly Pakistan, which is suspected of providing support to the Afghan insurgents.

How to write complaint letters

J.L. McClure

If you're a successful professional writer (or keep your hands and eyes busy typing away), you've probably had to write a complaint letter at some point. Here are some tips on how to write effective complaint letters:

1. Be clear and concise. Your letter should be focused and to the point. Avoid using jargon or technical terms that may confuse the recipient.

2. Use an appropriate tone. Your letter should be polite and professional, even if you are making a complaint.

3. Include all relevant information. Make sure to include all relevant details, such as dates and descriptions of the problem.

4. Be specific. When describing the problem, be specific and clear. Avoid vague statements.

5. Follow up. If you don't hear back from the company within a reasonable amount of time, follow up with a phone call or another letter.

6. Stay calm. Even if you're frustrated, try to remain calm and professional in your letter.

7. Keep a copy. It's important to keep a copy of your letter in case you need to refer to it later.

8. Be courteous. Even if you're unhappy, try to be courteous and professional in your letter.

9. Be patient. The company may need time to respond to your letter.

10. Follow up again if necessary. If you don't hear back after a reasonable amount of time, follow up again with a phone call or another letter.

Tips for writing a good complaint letter:

- Be clear and concise.
- Use an appropriate tone.
- Include all relevant information.
- Be specific.
- Follow up.
- Stay calm.
- Keep a copy.
- Be courteous.
- Be patient.
- Follow up again if necessary.

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — John Zaccaro, 20, a son of former Democratic Vice Presidential nominee Geraldine Ferraro, was charged with cocaine possession in Missouri on Monday for the beginning of his trial. The case involves a three-day trial, which will be held in federal court.

Zaccaro was arrested in 1994 for cocaine possession and was later found guilty. His trial is scheduled to begin Monday before Judge Francis McCaffrey.

The trial is expected to last 47 days, at which time a judgment will be rendered.

integrated laboratory, will be to further understand the structure of DNA where it can be used in diagnostic genetic testing in a clinical laboratory.

WALZER SAID DNA therapeutics and genetic testing will emerge as a whole new class of therapeutic agents. Next are drugs and genetic testing exhibiting the activity of the particular genetic abnormality of the patient, and genetic testing agents do not yet have a market, but instead, are being tested for their efficacy.

"For example, the antisense polynucleotides are being tested for the prevention of lesions in a clinical setting or an orphan's required for this purpose. Research on the effectiveness of this approach is excellent, and genetic testing agents may not be clinically performed by the patient, but instead, are being tested for their efficacy.

"The success of this approach will be determined by the extent to which genetic testing can be used to help people live longer, healthier, and happier lives."

Big Eight eyes foe Techsters’ feat

Oklahoma, Kansas vie for crown

By Fred Lief

United Press International

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Oklahoma faces Kansas on Saturday for the final Big Eight tournament championship game, and the Sooners hope to avenge a 3-2 loss to the Jayhawks in the Metrodome on March 6.

The Jayhawks, who have won the conference title for the second straight season, defeated Oklahoma 9-8 to take a 1-0 lead in the series. The Sooners have dropped both ends of a doubleheader to the Jayhawks this season.

Oklahoma center Robin King, right, playfully chases Iowa's Robin Wolfe following the Sooners' 67-56 semifinal win over Arkansas. Oklahoma moves Kansas to third in the Big Eight.

Hatcher's homers salvage road trip

By Eric A. Harris

The Daily Iowan

Fredric Hatcher hit back-to-back two-run homer over the right-field fence, helping Iowa to a 11-0 victory over Minnesota in the Big Ten softball championship in Minneapolis.

Hatcher, who was named the Most Valuable Player of the tournament, blasted a three-run home run in the fifth inning and a two-run shot in the sixth to lead the Hawkeyes to their first Big Ten title.

The victory comes after the Hawkeyes lost 11-1 to Minnesota on Saturday and 10-9 to Ohio State on Friday.

Bats silent in Iowa's doubleheader defeats

By Ben Wedar

The Daily Iowan

Iowa pitchers gave up 10 walks, but the Hawkeyes' bats were quiet in both games as the Hawkeyes were shut out 1-0 in the first game and 3-0 in the second.

The Hawkeyes had 11 hits in the first game and 10 in the second, but were unable to score with runners on base.

Louisiana Tech downs Auburn for women's title

By Valerie sadun

United Press International

TACOMA, Wash. — Tara Westover scored 11 of her game-high 16 points in the second half as Louisiana Tech defeated Auburn 82-61 to win the NCAA women's basketball championship.

Westover, who was named the tournament's Most Valuable Player, made 5 of 7 field-goal attempts and 4 of 5 free throws to lead the Lady Techsters to their second national title.

Auburn's 制 lead was cut to 27-24 by the Lady Techsters in the second half, but Westover scored 7 points in the final 7 minutes to seal the victory.

Hawks have dream weekend

By Ben Wedar

The Daily Iowan

The Iowa basketball team had a dream weekend as it defeated Arizona and Auburn to advance to the Final Four.

Senior guard Angela Shaw scored a game-high 33 points to lead the Hawkeyes in their 82-61 win over Auburn.

Shaw, who made 9 of 14 field-goal attempts and 11 of 11 free throws, said the victory was the result of the team's hard work and dedication.

"This is the result of all the hard work we've put in," Shaw said.

The Hawkeyes will face Connecticut in the national title game on Monday.

Our Lord Editor: Velvet-throated production of Macbeth at Davenport's Don-lo is as your editorially requested. Back to my conventional old discovery that Durling, Arts and the rest of the crew of the Daily Iowan has been being replaced by a touring company of performers from the New World, the acclaimed Acting Company.

Still, thought I to myself, how far away can even a company of actors have gotten reference to William Shakespeare, true. The director playing Macbeth soon ... tomorrow ... maybe. And tomorrow ...

At the Bijou: The Round-Up (1965) — Twenty years after the end of the Korean War, the Mojave Desert town of Harper, once a bustling hub for Army troops, is now awash in the desolation of a town being abandoned. The movie stars Brian Keith, who later starred in the long-running television series The Beverly Hillbillies, as a young American soldier who is devastated by the sudden end of his life in the desert.

Film: French Film Week continues with "La Belle et la Bete" (1946), directed by Jean Cocteau. The film is a retelling of the classic fairy tale of Beauty and the Beast, with the Beast (played by Jean Marais) transforming himself into a handsome man to win the heart of Belle (played by Maria Calvini).

Restaurants: At Elia, Elia (1940), a filmmaker comes to live in a remote beach cottage, to write a film study of his predecessors, whom he greatly admires. Upon hearing an old woman play the piano, he becomes entranced and decides to write a film about her. He meets a young woman who is also a musician and they fall in love.

Art: About 60 objects from the Philadelphia Museum of Art will be on display at the University of Iowa Museum of Art through May 26. The exhibition, titled "Art of the Pendleton House," features works from the Pendleton family's extensive collection of American and European art, including paintings, sculptures, and decorative arts.
