UI research company targets AIDS cure

By Paula Roesler
The Daily Iowan

Research and developmental work to be conducted by a biotechnology-based company newly located on the UI Oakdale Campus could lead to a cure for AIDS, a company spokesman said Friday.

"AIDS is definitely a potential target of this research, but they will begin models with more simple viruses like influenza," Integrated DNA Technologies Inc. co-founder and UI Biochemistry Professor Joseph Walder said.

IDT's six researchers, who began preparing their laboratory in the UI Technology Innovation Center in mid-December, are working to find innovative and marketable techniques for diagnosis and treatment of a variety of diseases and genetic disorders, IDT President Michael Heller said.

IDT plans to expand its personnel from six to 25 researchers, Heller said. In March, IDT ran advertisements in several nationally distributed scientific journals seeking research scientists to work in its new UI laboratory.

UI COLLEGE OF Medicine Dean John Eckstein said DNA research is a rapidly expanding field and will attract talented researchers to the UI.

Heller said he chose to locate IDT at the UI because of "the technology base that was being formed in Dr. Walter's laboratory." Walder, who is an expert in DNA synthesis, molecular biology and the chemistry of hemoglobin and other blood proteins, is one of the leading DNA researchers in the country, Heller said.

"Our company will be working in two very new and exciting areas, DNA probe diagnostics and the other is a very new field termed DNA therapeutics," Walder said. "Our initial goal will be in the field of DNA diagnostics. The work in DNA therapeutics is a bit more long-term."

DNA, or deoxyribonucleic acid, is the molecule located in the cell nucleus that encodes the genetic information in all living organisms, Walder said. It is used for the detection and diagnosis of infectious diseases, cancer and genetic disorders, he said.

DNA IS A long, double-stranded structure with a sequence of bases designated A, T, C and G, he said. Different base sequences are what makes each organ unique, Walder said.

It is possible to detect a particular sequence using a short DNA fragment binding such that A always pairs with T, and C always pairs with G, he said. Complementary binding, which enables a researcher to detect a unique sequence, is the basis for all DNA probe diagnostics tests, he said.

"In our work at the university laboratories we've discovered a very novel way for carrying out this hybridization of binding reaction that enormously increases the sensitivity of the method," Walder said. "The first work here, out at

Shultz hopes for action in Mideast

By John M. Goshko
Washington Post

JERUSALEM — Secretary of State George Shultz arrived here Sunday night for a new round of Middle East diplomacy, saying that "the time to act... is now" on a U.S. peace plan for the region.

Shultz appeared to be making a polite but firm effort to press Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir, who opposes the plan, and, in an interview later with Israeli television, seemed to be appealing over Shamir's head to Israeli public opinion.

Shultz, asked on television what would happen if Shamir and other Israeli leaders reject the U.S. plan, recalled what President Ronald Reagan told Shamir following a White House meeting last month.

"As the president said, you will have to answer to the people of Israel and the region," Shultz replied.

Most of his six days in the region will be spent shuttling between Israel and Jordan in an effort to convince Shamir and Jordan's King Hussein that they should begin direct talks with each other. He also will visit Egypt, Syria and Saudi Arabia.

HE SAID THAT the U.S. plan for direct talks between Israel and a Jordanian-Palestinian delegation over the future of the West Bank and Gaza Strip represented the views he had heard from regional leaders and were "then distilled into the letters which I presented to each of the leaders last month."

"There is nothing that should be surprising in that letter — and the time to act on it is now," he said. "True, everyone has found something wrong with it. But just to pick at individual parts of our proposal is to take a road labeled delay and frustration."

Shultz was greeted on arrival here by Foreign Minister Shimon Peres, leader of the Labor Alignment in Israel's coalition government with the Shamir's hawkish Likud bloc. Peres supports the U.S. ideas for an international conference, which would serve as an umbrella for direct talks with Hussein on Israel surrendering the territories it has occupied for more than 20 years in exchange for peace with its Arab neighbors.

HOWEVER, SHAMIR has made clear in recent talks with Shultz here and in Washington that he opposes the conference idea despite Shultz's insistence that the United States never will permit a conference that has the power to impose solutions or veto agreements reached through direct negotiations.

Shamir has proposed a plan to give the Palestinian inhabitants of the territories limited autonomy while putting off any decisions about the final status of the territories.

However, Shultz, in his arrival statement, pointedly made clear that the United States continues to base its plan on the "land for peace" formula embodied in U.N. Security Council Resolution 242.

In a clear rejection of the Likud's often-made assertion that it complied fully with 242 when it returned the Sinai peninsula to Egypt in 1979, Shultz said both in

Easter politics hit Wisconsin, Colorado polls

By Anne Saker
United Press International

Democratic candidates campaigning on Easter went to church services Sunday in Colorado and Wisconsin, the next states to make decisions in the 1988 primary season, while party leaders pondered the effect of nominating Jesse Jackson.

With Jackson's political strength gaining, the chairman of the Democratic National Committee would not dismiss the possibility that Jackson could win the Democratic nomination — even though weekend polls indicate a ticket headed by the civil rights leader would lose in November.

DNC Chairman Paul Kirk cautioned against any predictions on what will happen between now and the Democratic National Convention in Atlanta July 18-21.

"It isn't over until it's over; we've got nine weeks to go," Kirk said on ABC's "This Week with David Brinkley."

"We ought to look at Jesse Jackson's candidacy not as a threat and a big problem but as an opportunity, perhaps, to form one of the most powerful and viable coalitions the Democratic Party could put together in years," he said.

JOHN WHITE, A former DNC chairman, echoed Kirk's remarks, saying, "Let's let the race run out. There is many a turn down this road, back and forth, so to get too excited at this stage in a political campaign seems to me to be premature judging the end result."

But poll takers already are looking ahead to November.

A Roper Organization poll taken last week for U.S. News & World Report showed that if Jackson is the Democratic nominee, he would lose to Vice President George Bush 51 percent to 35 percent.

Closer in the polls, however, were match-ups of Bush vs. the other Democratic front-runner, Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis. The Roper poll put such a race at Bush 44 percent to Dukakis 43

King remembered on eve of slaying

By Ken Sugar
United Press International

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — Civil rights activists and city workers gathered here for an Easter Sunday memorial service to Martin Luther King Jr. on the eve of a march in King's native Atlanta marking the 20-year anniversary of his assassination.

King, who would have been 59 on Jan. 15, was slain by a sniper's bullet at the Lorraine Motel in Memphis, where he had traveled to support striking sanitation workers.

Memphis city workers, civil rights activists and scores of spectators were to attend the 7 p.m. CST memorial service at the Mason Temple church, where King delivered his legendary "been to the mountaintop" speech the night before he died.

Scheduled to speak at the service was Joseph Lowery, president of the King-founded Southern Christian Leadership Conference, and Martin Luther King III, King's eldest son.

Riverfest ad to run during 'Letterman'

By Deborah Gluba
The Daily Iowan

If you tune into "Late Night with David Letterman" you will soon find a Riverfest commercial butting heads with the used-car ads.

The Riverfest Advertising Committee has put together a promotional spot that will air on local network affiliates beginning the week of April 11.

Heritage Cablevision will begin running the commercial April 15, and KCRG-TV will also televise it during afternoon programming. Local NBC affiliate KWVL will run the ad April 22 through April 24 during "Late Night with David Letterman" breaks.

The commercial features two Riverfest committee members, UI juniors Chuck Kirchner and Diane Smith, making their acting debuts as a couple of students caught in a case of mistaken identity.

THEY DISCOVER the error during a phone conversation in which they talk about having met at Riverfest the previous year. They discuss how much they had enjoyed the various events before ultimately realizing they never actually met. But all ends well when it's agreed they will see each other at this year's Riverfest events.

Iowa City man charged with arson of own apartment

By Susan M. Wessling
The Daily Iowan

An Iowa City man was charged Friday morning with first-degree arson, second-degree theft, second-offense drunken driving and possession of a controlled substance after allegedly setting fire to his own apartment late Thursday night, according to a release issued by Iowa City Fire Marshal L.H. Kinney and Iowa City Police Captain Pat L. Harney.

Danny L. Baines, 32, 711 E. Jefferson St., was charged by Iowa City police after officers found him passed out in a car belonging to the woman he lived with. Baines had stolen the car about one hour before setting the fire. He was still being held Sunday in the Johnson County Jail on $14,500 bond.

At about 10 p.m. Thursday, an alarm was received of a fire at the Jefferson Street address. Heavy smoke was visible on the first-floor level of the building when firefighters arrived.

Baines allegedly set two separate fires in the kitchen of the apartment, resulting in damage estimated at $10,000. He left the area while the fire was still burning, according to Johnson County Court records.

THE PROPERTY at 711 Jefferson St., owned by Marion Sharp, consists of three apartments, all of them occupied. Baines had been living in apartment No. 1 with Debra Starbuck since December 1987.

The Iowa City Police Department was notified around midnight that a vehicle belonging to Starbuck had been stolen at 9 p.m. from the Eagle's Lodge parking lot on Highway 1 in Iowa City.

Officers located the car at about 1:30 a.m. Friday in the 3500 block of Shamrock Place. The car was still running, and Baines was in the front seat passed out behind the wheel, according to court records.

Baines had a smell of alcohol on his breath, and immediately following the initial arrest, he stated he was intoxicated.

Local man wins award

An Iowa City man was selected last week as winner of the 1988 Emily Helms Award, presented annually to a disabled person who has demonstrated outstanding strength of character in coping with or overcoming a significant disability.

Bob Finch, the lunchroom and noon-hour playground supervisor at Shimek Elementary School in Iowa City, has Multiple Sclerosis and uses a wheelchair.

Finch has helped arrange a special handicapped awareness presentation at Shimek and has been a guide on school field trips to community centers for disabled persons.

In particular, the award recognizes the traits of courage, perseverance, industry, sense of humor, imagination and leadership.

The award is given in memory of Emily Helms, who died August 3, 1983, at age 11. She was the daughter of Charles and Lelia Helms of Iowa City and the great-granddaughter of Edgar J. Helms, who founded the first Goodwill Industries in 1902.

IRS gives extensions

An automatic four-month extension of time to file for 1987 income tax returns is available from the IRS by requesting the Form 4868, Application for Automatic Extension of Time to File.

The application must be postmarked by midnight April 15, 1988. The form is available by calling toll-free 1-800-424-3676.

According to the IRS, the extension time to file does not extend the time to pay taxes.

Youth program given award

The Iowa Department of Economic Development, in conjunction with the UI, has awarded the Iowa City Mayor's Youth Employment Program $63,621 to employ adults between the ages of 18 and 24 from May 15 to September 16.

Participants selected will work in various phases of summer programming and projects of the UI Division of Recreational Services. Part- and full-time employment opportunities are available and orientations will be held in late April. Applications are available from Job Service of Iowa, the Mayor's Youth Employment Program or the UI Division of Rec Services.

The Iowa Department of Economic Development also awarded the Mayor's Youth Employment Program $26,920 to employ 22 youths between the ages of 15 and 18 in a summer employment and conservation program.

Young people will participate in the exterior renovation of offices recently purchased by United Action for Youth, as well as other locations in Johnson County. Youth will work for six weeks beginning June 14 and ending July 22. They will be paid minimum wage for 30 hours a week and will participate in 10 unpaid hours of conservation education each week.

Iowa City, UI join forces on parking, water facilities

By Sara Anderson
The Daily Iowan

Iowa City and the UI may join forces to build a combination parking ramp and water storage facility if the city council approves a resolution authorizing staff to proceed with planning of the project at its formal meeting Tuesday.

Iowa City Public Works Director Chuck Schmadeke, in a memorandum to Iowa City Manager Stephen Atkins, proposed construction of a 1 million-gallon water storage tank within the future parking ramp and chilled water complex, which will be built at Bloomington and Capitol streets.

The UI is planning to begin construction on the parking ramp soon at the site in conjunction with the new UI Laser Center.

In the memorandum, Schmadeke said a combined

Iowa City/UI effort would be beneficial to the city because joint construction costs would be lower than those of a water tank constructed solely by the city at a different time and location.

In addition, the sidehill location proposed by the UI is well-suited to the project from a hydraulic standpoint, as water would be allowed to drain back to an existing underground storage area without use of a pump.

IOWA CITY NEEDS the new, larger storage tank, according to the memorandum, because water cannot be pumped from the existing plant site unless the treatment plant is also on. During repairs, which occur about 10 times annually, water pressure to the downtown business district drops because water must be brought in from remote sites.

According to the memorandum, water quality also deteriorates when filters at the site cannot be washed on time because there is not enough water in the underground storage tanks. The situation arises about 100 times a year.

Estimated cost to the city for construction on the site is $600,000, according to the memorandum. Forty percent of the project would be financed from the city's Water Improvement Reserve and 60 percent from general obligation bonds.

Schmadeke estimated in the memorandum that annual debt-service costs will require a 3- to 4-percent water rate increase.

The third and last increase of the currently scheduled rate increases will occur in September 1988. The additional rate increases needed to finance the project would be scheduled for September 1989, according to the document.

Schmadeke was unavailable for further comment on the proposed storage tank Sunday.

Korematsu, Bannai lecture on experience of war internment

By Cathy Jackson
The Daily Iowan

Describing his struggle to defend his rights as a Japanese-American during World War II, Fred Korematsu in a lecture Friday at the Boyd Law Building seemed more disappointed than bitter about his experience in internment.

"I thought I was an American," he said. "I wanted to be a good American, but on the outside the majority of people look at you as a foreigner."

When the U.S. military posted notices for Japanese and Japanese-Americans to report for internment — or transportation to concentration camps — Korematsu discovered he would be forced to evacuate along with everyone else.

"I read it and was very disappointed because it didn't exclude Japanese-American citizens," Korematsu said. "I was also hoping someone would protest that it was unconstitutional, what they were doing, but nobody did."

SO KOREMATSU changed

his name, discarded his driver's license and stayed in California. He said after a while he "felt like an American again," until he was discovered and arrested.

"I didn't feel I did anything wrong," he said. "When the police arrested me they felt funny, too, because I didn't do any criminal wrong."

But Korematsu was put in jail, and he stayed there until a young attorney came to the prison and said he wanted to help.

"I wondered why he wanted to stick his neck out," Korematsu said. "He said he was representing the American Civil Liberties Union. That started to change my attitude (about defending my rights). I was starting to feel defeated."

Although the case finally went to the U.S. Supreme Court in 1944, Korematsu lost and went to the camps anyway.

"FOR OVER 40 years I wondered, 'Am I an American or what?'" he said.

But Korematsu, with a team of more than 50 students and attorneys, finally reopened the case in 1982 and won.

"There was a great feeling for me and all the Japanese-Americans when they said what the government did was wrong. Many had tears in their eyes. It was quite emotional," he said.

One of the lawyers who worked on the 1982 Korematsu v. United States case, Lorraine Bannai, also spoke on the legal aspects of Korematsu's experience.

"We can look at Japanese-American internment as the ultimate exclusion after a history of exclusions against Japanese-Americans," Bannai said.

Bannai, calling the 1944 Korematsu case and two other similar cases "civil liberties disasters," said government attorneys "suppressed, altered and destroyed" important documents of the cases.

Although Bannai offered a bit of hope for a just American legal system, she said it is important people know the government continues to fight against cases like the Korematsu case.

"These are issues we face when we discuss camps for AIDS victims . . .," Bannai said.

A New York medical professor who stood trial on charges of assault and fifth-degree theft in Johnson County District Court last August has filed suit against Johnson County Attorney J. Patrick White.

Victor Herbert, a lawyer and professor of medicine at the Mount Sinai Medical Center in New York City, alleges that White has delayed giving him a copy of a file on his case and claims White is violating public information laws, according to court records.

Herbert filed suit against White in February, asking to see the file compiled on his case and asking for $500 in damages from those involved in keeping the file from him, according to court records.

Alleging the county attorney's office has collected a file for the case that was over an inch thick, Herbert said he has only been provided with one witness' two-page statement, according to court records.

White filed a motion on March 17 which said the file Herbert wanted to see was confidential and asking the court to dismiss his suit.

Herbert was convicted on assault and theft charges in August, but those convictions were overturned in October. He was charged after he allegedly grabbed the arm of Frank Wiewel of Otho, Iowa, who was taping a UI College of Medicine sponsored forum on First Amendment rights which Herbert was speaking at.

Herbert reportedly grabbed Wiewel's tape recorder from a bag, removed the tape and said he would return it to Wiewel after he erased it, according to court records.

A hearing on Herbert's suit is scheduled for April 22.

A Coralville man was charged Friday with assault causing injury after he allegedly physically injured his girlfriend Friday, according to Johnson County District Court records.

Tracy E. Arnold, 27, Coral Traylor Court, allegedly became upset at his live-in girlfriend and tried to assault her. When she tried to leave he ran after her into another mobile home where he continued the assault, according to court records.

The victim received numerous bruises on her forearms. A preliminary hearing in the case is set for April 19, according to court records.

The complainant left the trailer home uninjured, and Klein was charged by Iowa City police, according to the report.

Jackson writes to Noriega, offers to serve as mediator

WASHINGTON — Democratic presidential candidate Jesse Jackson made a personal offer to Panamanian strongman Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega to serve as a mediator in the crisis over his rule, National Public Radio reported Sunday.

He said the offer was made in a letter that was hand-delivered to Noriega by Cirilo McSween, a member of Jackson's national finance committee and a native Panamanian who now lives in Chicago.

Maj. Edgardo Lopez, a Noriega spokesman, said Jackson "offered his personal services as a mediator to help find a solution to the Panamanian crisis," according to the report by NPR reporter Tom Gjelten in Panama City.

Two days later, Noriega sent the letter back to Jackson via McSween, NPR said. It said Lopez would not reveal the contents of Noriega's response but he said the general appreciated Jackson's offer.

"IT'S A RELIEF, a hope, a light in the path," NPR quoted Lopez as saying. He said Noriega had a good opinion of Jackson and knows he speaks in "good faith," and his invitation to mediate was a clear counterpoint to the "maneuvers" of the State Department, which seeks Noriega's ouster.

"Reverend Jackson is showing his good intentions toward his Latin American brothers," Lopez also told NPR. Jackson sees us as "brothers in misery," Lopez said.

NPR said representatives of the Jackson campaign Sunday confirmed that Jackson offered to mediate the Panamanian crisis.

"This is what he's good at," a campaign spokesman told NPR. "It's just like Syria."

In 1984, Jackson traveled to Syria and negotiated the freedom of captured Navy flier Robert Goodman. Also that year, Jackson met in Cuba with Fidel Castro and won the release of four dozen U.S. and Cuban prisoners.

ASKED ABOUT the NPR report, Pam Smith, a Jackson campaign spokeswoman in Chicago, told United Press International Sunday that Jackson wrote a letter, dated March 23, to Noriega and dispatched McSween to Panama.

Smith would not comment specifically on whether Jackson offered to mediate in the crisis.

She said the letter, in part, told Noriega: "The whole forest is being set afire to smoke you out, and the strategy is causing great suffering in Panama — a suffering seen around the world. The livelihood, health and safety of Panamanians are threatened."

Jackson, who said he felt a great affinity for Panama's people, said, "I am anxious to do whatever I can to help alleviate the suffering. But you must act decisively and quickly" — meaning, leave Panama. "I appeal to you, end the crisis," according to Smith.

Final arguments begin in Mecham trial; sentiment runs against him

By Lori K. Weinraub
United Press International

PHOENIX — The Arizona Senate set closing arguments in Gov. Evan Mecham's historic impeachment trial for today with public sentiment running strongly against him and the showdown on his political fate coming at an ironic time.

Final arguments in the start of the sixth week of Arizona's first gubernatorial impeachment trial will be delivered on the 20th anniversary of Martin Luther King's death.

Mecham, 63, a feisty first-term conservative Republican elected on his fifth try for governor, became embroiled in controversy days after taking office when he abolished a paid state holiday in honor of the slain civil rights leader, infuriating blacks.

The GOP-controlled Senate will hear both sides make their last pleadings on the remaining two protect a key aide and that he illegally lent $80,000 from his state protocol fund to his automobile dealership.

A THIRD article charging Mecham with concealing a $350,000 campaign loan was dropped last week to avoid the possibility of prejudicing the governor's criminal trial, which begins April 21 on the charge. Mecham faces a recall election May 17.

It was not immediately known if the Senate, sitting as a court of impeachment, would recess after closing arguments to privately deliberate the charges, which could affect whether senators vote today or Tuesday.

One vote will be taken on each of the charges. If Mecham is convicted, a third vote will be taken to decide whether he should be barred from ever holding public office again.

FBI warns anti-apartheid activists of hit squads; 'targets' prove wary

By Jeff Stein
United Press International

WASHINGTON — FBI agents have repeatedly warned black South African anti-apartheid activists in the United States that they may be targets of "hit squads" dispatched by the Pretoria government to attack them, according to the activists and their American lawyers.

The point-blank killing in Paris last week of a senior official of the African National Congress, Pretoria's main guerrilla foe, has lent new credibility and urgency to the FBI warnings, most of them said.

But the activists, black South Africans based in Washington and New York, also said they were wary of FBI requests for personal meetings because they feared the agents' real intent was to gather information on their political activities and possibly pass it to the white minority regime.

The ANC, founded in 1912 to oppose Pretoria's policy of racial separation known as apartheid, has close links with the South African Communist Party. It took up armed struggle in 1960 and has an office in New York and members across the United States.

THE ACTIVISTS said their warnings from the FBI began last fall and have continued into last week. One of the agents they said had called them was confirmed by the FBI's Washington field office as an employee.

Jack Terrell, a former U.S.-based mercenary who trained Nicaragua's Contra rebels in 1984 and 1985, also told United Press International in a recent interview that South African intelligence agents had asked him to form an eight-man "hit-team."

Terrell said that he was to be used to target ANC sympathizers in the United States for assassination. Terrell said he had numerous conversations with the agents in late 1985 or early 1986, but ultimately decided against taking part.

BRIGADIER Leon Mellet, South Africa's spokesman on law and order, said last week that charges of South Africa carrying out overseas assassination operations were "ridiculous and far-fetched." Other Pretoria officials, who normally do not comment on any national security matters, were not available for comment during the long Easter weekend.

The ANC's Washington representative, Dumi Matabana said, "On September 10th last year, two FBI agents came to me and said they were suspicious that South Africa might have sent hit squads into the country and therefore I should be careful about my movements."

Reagan's controversies reflect Watergate

By Anne Saker
United Press International

WASHINGTON — Former Attorney General Elliot Richardson said Sunday President Ronald Reagan's willingness to "let his friends get away with things" is the root of controversies surrounding Edwin Meese and other government officials.

Richardson, on NBC's "Meet the Press," was President Richard Nixon's attorney general until the Oct. 21, 1973, "Saturday Night Massacre," when he refused to follow Nixon's order to fire Watergate special prosecutor Archibald Cox.

Asked if the situation at the Justice Department now is similar to that crisis, Richardson said, "I have no doubt about it. The papers today are full of stories of high-level people inside the department calling attention to the fact that it's virtually at a standstill."

The most damaging effect now, Richardson said, is to "public confidence in an agency that is responsible for the fair and efficient administration of justice."

LAWMAKERS, HOWEVER, were divided over what Meese, the current attorney general, should do in light of the turbulent week just past — with Democrats calling for his resignation and Republicans urging Meese to hang tough.

Meese declared Friday he would be the nation's chief law enforcement officer for as long as his friend, the president, wants.

The resignations of Deputy Attorney General Arnold Burns and William Weld, head of the department's criminal division, reignited the debate over Meese.

A Roper Organization poll of 1,004 adults surveyed March 30-31 and published in the latest issue of U.S. News & World Report found an overwhelming majority of Americans questioned want Meese to resign. The poll, with a 4 percent margin of error, found 55 percent said Meese should step down — only 21 percent said he should stay.

HOWEVER, CONSERVATIVE Rep. Henry Hyde, R-Ill., also appearing on NBC, repeated Reagan's assertion that calls for Meese's resignation are really attempts to get at the president.

"There's a great disappointment among liberal Democrats that the smoking gun didn't have any smoke coming out of it from (the) Iran-Contra (scandal)," Hyde said. "So if you can't get dinner, take a sandwich."

Richardson said such claims are "strictly a diversionary tactic. . . . The question is whether an attorney general of the United States should cling to office despite the impairment of his effectiveness that has been brought about by a situation like this."

He also said the larger issue of "the sleaze factor" — that more than 100 administration officials have been investigated or have left office for ethical or criminal offenses — is based in Reagan's own attitude.

"I think he's been much too tolerant, too amiable, too willing to let his friends get away with things because he has somehow believe in these individuals. . . . In effect, he has looked the other way," he said.

Carter rejected offer to trade arms for hostages

United Press International

MIAMI — The Carter administration considered — and then rejected — an arms dealer's offer to trade up to $10 million in military spare parts for 52 American hostages held at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran in 1980, The Miami Herald reported Sunday.

Quoting newly declassified government documents, the newspaper said the plan was canceled because U.S. officials believed the man who offered the deal, an Iranian-born arms broker in New York, did not have the backing of Iranian President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr.

Among the documents were memos from the CIA to Jimmy Carter's deputy National Security Council chief David Aaron, and from the State Department by Deputy Assistant Secretary of State Harold Saunders.

In a CIA memo to Aaron dated Oct. 3, 1980, an unidentified agency officer reports a conversation with Long Island resident Houshang Lavi in which the arms dealer turned over a list of military jet parts and made his offer.

THE MEMO said Lavi "wished to arrange the delivery to Iran of $8 (million) to $10 million of F-14 spare parts," adding that if the United States provided the supplies and met Iran's other terms then he "would arrange the swap of all the hostages upon the delivery of the spare parts."

The CIA memo said Lavi's plan had the endorsement of Bani-Sadr. But the newspaper said that Bani-Sadr denied being aware of the plan or ever being in contact with Lavi.

The memos indicate that Carter officials ended their contacts with Lavi Oct. 29, 1980, after a foreign ambassador in Tehran reported Bani-Sadr was unaware of the Lavi

The documents said that Lavi became involved with the Carter administration after first contacting the campaign of independent presidential candidate John Anderson but gave no indication whether Lavi also contacted Reagan's campaign. During the waning days of the Carter administration, however, Reagan's advisers said they met with a person who identified himself as an envoy of the Iranian government and who offered to surrender the hostages to Reagan in a bid to ensure Carter's defeat. The advisors considered the offer improper and dismissed the unidentified envoy as a fraud.

It remains unclear whether Lavi ever sold parts to the Iranians. A Swiss company, Alcarri S.A., accuses Omega Industries, a firm owned by Lavi's brothers, of failing to fulfill financial obligations as part of a plan to sell military supplies to Iran in 1981. The lawsuit has not yet come to trial.

Secrecy pledge revised for federal agency employees

United Press International

WASHINGTON — The administration has revised a controversial 7-year-old secrecy pledge for federal employees, but a key lawmaker charges the new form is still illegal and chills the flow of information to Congress.

Chairman Jack Brooks, D-Texas, of the House Government Operations Committee, assailed the new secrecy contracts for continuing to impose a life long censorship requirement on employees in 21 federal agencies. The redrafted forms were put into effect March 24.

"The administration's revisions don't even address the major concerns of Congress about the contracts' devastating effects on the First Amendment," Brooks told United Press International.

"The revised contracts are still in blatant violation of the moratorium placed on their use."

A bill that Brooks helped prepare and President Ronald Reagan signed into law last December bars for nine months any secrecy pledge that "obstructs" an employee's right to communicate with Congress.

The administration introduced the pledge to stanch leaks of information to Congress and the media. Critics have charged that the form, and a second, more widely used pledge, have stifled employees' constitutional rights to free speech and have slowed the release of embarrassing information about administration problems.

Art and reason

When Mark and I decided to spend the weekend at his mother's house, I never imagined I would be walking into a mouse's nightmare. There were cats everywhere.

Cat plaques, cat statues, cat clocks, even a cat mat. I couldn't begin to duplicate her collection of kitty litter if I spent a year at a garage sale. Conspicuously absent, however, was a real cat. Strange, I thought, and began to fear that a weekend with cat woman could be a lot less than purr-fect.

But then she came home, and Mark introduced her. She was dressed surprisingly well—no leopard pants. In fact, you could say she was the cat's meow, but I'd rather not.

She offered me a cup of Dutch Chocolate Mint. Now that was something I could relate to. Then she brought it out in the most beautiful, distinctly unfeline china I'd ever seen. As we sipped, I found out that Mrs. Campbell has my same weakness for chocolate, loves the theater as much as I do, but, incredibly, never saw "Cats." So Mark and I are taking her next month.

Cardinal John O'Connor of New York is surrounded by children and their parents Sunday after celebrating Easter Sunday mass.

Pope gives damp Easter blessing

By William D. Montalbano
Los Angeles Times

VATICAN CITY — With chords from ancient Russia echoing through the Vatican, Pope John Paul II breathed warmth into a sodden Roman Easter Sunday with an impassioned appeal for religious freedom and human rights.

A choir sang haunting ancient Slavic chants in papal hearing for the first time in 1,000 years as John Paul celebrated Easter Mass inside St. Peter's Basilica.

A cold drizzle drove the Mass inside the church from its usual site on the front steps of the cathedral, but once it was over John Paul stood on a balcony to bless tens of thousands of worshipers huddled under a parable of bright umbrellas in St. Peter's Square. Stoic vendors did a brisk trade in rosaries and other religious articles for the pope to bless and in plastic raincoats for more temporal shelter as a strong wind drove temperatures into the 50s.

THE RAIN lancing off his gold bishop's miter and white robes of joy donned to celebrate the resurrection of Jesus, the pope added an emotional, impromptu invocation to the Virgin Mary at the end of his Easter message "Urbi et Orbi" (To the City and the World).

"Pray for peace in the world, for justice, pray for the rights of man, especially for religious freedom, for every man, for every Christian and non-Christian, pray for us," the pope called emotionally in Italian before offering Easter best wishes in 52 other languages.

The Polish pope implored Mary to "pray for the solidarity of all peoples in the world, the First World, Second, Third and Fourth, all the world. In yours and our Easter joy, we carry again this weight of humanity, this weight of so many human hearts, our brothers, our sisters, and we repeat: Pray for us."

ADDRESSING A radio and television audience in 46 countries, the pope urged Catholics around the world: "Pray to Mary, and with Mary, for all the people, all the families, all the people who suffer, especially for those countries where peace, justice and the means of prosperity are lacking."

Among the thousands of well-bundled worshipers inside the vast and dank cathedral was airport-bound Secretary of State George Shultz, whose current peace mission to the Middle East drew a papal blessing at a private audience Saturday. Shultz, an Episcopalian, sat in the front flanked by a Swiss Guard in Renaissance dress and ceremonial halberd. Shultz's wife, Helena, was among those who received communion from the pope.

Echoes of the explicit and implicit Eastern overtones of the Vatican's Easter came from Vienna Sunday, where the newspaper Neue Kronen-Zeitung reported that a papal visit to Austria in June could presage a meeting between the pope and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev.

Man heckles Swaggart during church service

By Steve Watsky
United Press International

BATON ROUGE, La. — Disgraced evangelist Jimmy Swaggart, facing expulsion from the national church for his vow to defy a yearlong suspension and return to the pulpit May 22, briefly stood to ask congregants to turn away from Satan and look to the blood Jesus spilled on the cross.

"Satan says it's over. Jesus says, 'Look at the blood,'" said Swaggart, his voice quivering. "Gloom and doubt says it's ended, but Jesus says, 'Look at the blood.'"

The fire-and-brimstone preacher made no mention of his suspension from the church or his promise to return to the pulpit in defiance of the General Presbytery of the Assemblies of God.

SWAGGART tearfully confessed in February to having committed a mortal sin — reportedly for paying prostitutes to perform obscene acts.

The Louisiana council of the AOG originally recommended a three-month suspension, but that punishment was deemed too light by the national church last week, which ordered he be banned from the pulpit for at least a year.

Swaggart, through his attorney, announced Wednesday he would be back in the pulpit May 22 — adhering to the Louisiana council's punishment.

Arab teenager electrocuted when ordered to climb pole

By Louis Toscano
United Press International

JERUSALEM — An Arab teenager was electrocuted Sunday when an Israeli soldier ordered him to climb a utility pole and pull down an outlawed Palestinian flag, and a second youth was killed while trying to hang a flag on a power line, Palestinian and army sources said.

A Palestinian man wounded by army gunfire Wednesday died of his injuries Sunday, and there were unconfirmed reports soldiers killed an Arab protester in the West Bank village of Hawawara.

At least 131 Palestinians have been killed in the anti-Israel riots. One Israeli soldier was shot to death by an unknown assailant.

Thousands of soldiers and police officers were deployed Sunday in the West Bank and Gaza and in Arab East Jerusalem in an attempt to prevent violence as Christians celebrated Easter.

VEHICLES WITH blue West Bank license plates were searched at a checkpoint set up near the walled Old City of Jerusalem, and some motorists were barred from entering the city.

Saturday marked the bloodiest day of the unrest as six Arabs were gunned down by soldiers, capping the uprising's worst week of bloodshed.

Military officials said the rising death toll was the result of new army policies allowing soldiers to fire on protesters suspected of throwing gasoline bombs, and the recent decision to confront demonstrators after several weeks of attempting to avoid clashes.

Since the protest began, Israel has been condemned worldwide for using live ammunition against rock-throwing protesters.

During a tour of Gaza Sunday, Defense Minister Yitzhak Rabin said the army's increased use of deadly force was an important tool in the effort to crush the uprising.

"In most cases, not all, the clashes were the result of our initiative in an effort to keep the calm by taking aggressive action against violence in order to suppress violence," he told reporters.

"Basically, we adjust the means, the methods, to the situation," Rabin added.

The defense minister said the unrest appeared to be dying down.

Soviets travel to Afghanistan, blame U.S. for Pakistan position

By Gary Lee
Washington Post

MOSCOW — Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze flew to the Afghan capital of Kabul Sunday, the official Tass news agency reported, to work out a course of action in case the Geneva talks on ending the 8-year-old Afghan war fail to reach a settlement.

When he arrived in Kabul, Shevardnadze indicated that his visit was prompted in part by obstacles the Reagan administration has posed at the peace negotiations.

"Unfortunately," he told a Tass reporter there, "serious difficulties have developed at these talks because of the non-constructive position taken by the United States and Pakistan."

The visit, Shevardnadze's second to the war-torn country in less than three months, is viewed among Moscow-based Western foreign-policy experts as crucial to Moscow's plans to bring an end to its direct involvement in the war.

SOVIET LEADER Mikhail Gorbachev said Feb. 8 that Moscow was prepared to start withdrawing its troops by May 15, or two months after agreement is reached in Geneva. Soviet officials have said they will order a unilateral troop pullout if there is no accord in the U.N.-mediated talks in Switzerland.

Pakistan for a time demanded that any Soviet pullout be preceded by the formation of an interim coalition government in Kabul to replace the communist government there. Last month Islamabad backed off that stance, insisting only that the Kabul regime commit itself to working toward such a government.

Washington, for its part, has said since January that any cutoff of U.S. aid to the Afghan rebels must be accompanied by a simultaneous or "symmetrical" halt in Soviet military aid to the Afghan government.

THE CURRENT round of talks in Geneva, held between representatives of Pakistan and Afghanistan, has been marked by tough bargaining since it started a month ago.

"The Afghan delegation and the Soviet representatives are doing everything possible for a successful completion of the process of political settlement around Afghanistan," Shevardnadze told Tass Sunday.

But he added that "there is need to discuss and to reach agreement with the Afghan leadership on various options of action in all their aspects in the event that the Geneva process fails to bring about the desired results."

Shevardnadze, who is due to meet with Afghan leader Najibullah, said that their discussions would "center on the political solution" for ending the war. Other subjects on their agenda include international problems, bilateral Soviet-U.S. relations and the course of perestroika, or restructuring, in the Soviet Union, the Soviet foreign minister added.

Ridiculous referendum

If Gov. Terry Branstad and a bipartisan nugget of state legislators have their way, Iowans will soon be able to vote to repeal the state's mandatory seat belt law. Not only that, but with a little legwork, the right attitude and the requisite number of signatures on a petition virtually anyone could find his or her favorite idea as a referendum on the ballots.

On the surface, the passage and repeal of laws by referendum has a strong philosophical appeal. It is, in its purest distillation, government by and for the people. It draws attention to issues that concern the electorate, keeps legislators on their toes and mobilizes apathetic voters. And in the best of circumstances, it results in the passage of wise laws by public mandate.

Unfortunately, the best of circumstances happen all too rarely, and referendum lawmaking tends to simplify complex issues, reducing them to matters of personal preference and impact on the individual — i.e. how the individual feels about wearing a seat belt as opposed to what he or she thinks is good for the rest of us. This bypasses the organized legislative debate that is the essence of prudent, procedural lawmaking.

More disquieting, even the most far-fetched, cruel — and sometimes unconstitutional — notions, if skillfully engineered by their proponents, can garner enough signatures to make their ways to the ballot and ultimately become law.

California is a case in point. Even as small towns in the rural northern part of the state lose police and fire protection for lack of funds — whole towns went bankrupt as a result of proposition 13 — California's addiction to referendum legislation goes unchecked. In 1986, two noteworthy initiatives appeared on the ticket. The first, sponsored by Lyndon LaRouche, would have initiated a massive AIDS testing program and denied a host of basic civil rights to those who tested positive. The other sought to make English the "official" language of the state, thereby forbidding the use of tax dollars to furnish services and documents in any other language.

Both referendums were essentially reactionary in character and sought passage through their visceral appeal to a self-interested electorate. The fact that LaRouche's referendum was comfortably defeated is a testament to the good will and judicial foresight of the people of California, who know an unconstitutional idea when they hear one. On the other hand, the official language initiative passed just as comfortably, proving only that wisdom has its limits, resident aliens don't vote and the Anglo majority would rather spend its tax dollars on just about anything else but the most basic accommodations to an ethnically pluralistic society.

Iowa should learn from the lesson of California. The effective management of government requires the willingness to make difficult, sometimes expensive, choices. To make those choices, we elect men and women of character, conviction and intelligence to public office. Often we err in our selection or don't care for the results, but the alternative — law by public acclaim — is certain to be worse, reflecting only the cruel will of a self-interested majority.

Fewer supers

More and more as Jesse Jackson's popularity increases and as he and Massachusetts Gov. Mike Dukakis run a closer and closer race, the word "superdelegate" is in the air.

The vulgar undercurrent of speculation goes something like this: Regardless of how well Jackson might do in racking up the popular vote, a small cadre of "superdelegates" will band together at the Democratic National Convention in July and prevent him from actually getting on the ticket — because he's "unelectable," or because he's inexperienced, or whatever.

Ordinary delegates are elected by their state conventions; Superdelegates are not. They're usually prominent Democrats — like the head of the Democratic party of a state, or a member of Congress, or a former president. In other words, party movers and shakers who are unpledged in their allegiance and who are 600 in number.

There are 2,178 delegates total that will attend the national convention, and a bloc of 600 is a powerful loose cannon, even if it doesn't commit unanimously to any one candidate. These unpledged delegates can adhere to a secret agenda, with all the power in the world to wheel and deal behind closed doors.

Superdelegates were originated back in the early '70s to insure the presence of party activists at the national convention — to prevent all the real elective power from settling into the hands of a few party bosses.

But an unpledged force of 600 delegates virtually amounts to another candidate, one which needs to pay no attention to the popular vote, or the tally of normal delegates, or the qualifications of the prominent candidates. In order to keep the system fair, the superdelegate status should be rarer and harder to attain, with a total number incapable of tipping the balance against Jesse Jackson or anybody else.

A few Yankees visit England

Franklin Smetherton was not happy.

It all started when the plane first touched down at Heathrow International Airport. It was raining, the kind of grey London drizzle as characteristic in the city as Americans on vacation. He'd come to find his "roots," the tiny village of Coddlehampton in Buckinghamshire, only to find they lay beneath a new country bypass, along with Great Grandfather Smetherton.

The assistant at the novelty shop had told him. In his grief, he purchased a T-shirt to console himself. "Snoopy Says I Love London" — you can't get any more authentic than that. Above him Princess Diana smiled from a garish poster that Charlie didn't seem too happy about. "Have a nice day," the shop girl said apologetically.

Outside he tried to hail a cab. Three hours later, Joe caught his attention and screeched to a halt. "Piccadilly Circus? Right, Guv." The black cab merged in the traffic. Mrs. Smetherton took time to master the bends and for several seconds at a time disappeared into the ample folds of her husband's stomach. They stopped outside McDonald's, and the couple staggered in to recuperate.

Digressions

THE SEARCH for the heart of England was proving more difficult than anticipated. True, it was old. It was historic. But something was missing. Where were all those cute little red phone boxes, Franklin wondered? He'd seen them on "Benny Hill" and was determined to get a picture of Eve calling home.

"Texas, mate," the policeman explained. "They use 'em as shower cubicles, apparently." Time for another burger, thought Franklin. They picked a seat near the window. Bruce Springsteen thundered from the stereo. The tired American scanned the room despondently. Suddenly his eyes stopped. Leaving their meal he dragged Mrs. S. toward a couple, happily tucking into his fries.

The young woman was the perfect rose. Auburn hair topping a pale face, paisley scarf and a huge waxy Barber. Franklin smiled and boldly introduced himself. The young woman beamed. "Jeez man! You from Arizona? Me too! Hey cool!

D'yer like these crazy clothes?" Mrs. Smetherton eased her husband from the floor, and they left. Quickly.

THEY STUMBLER down the Mall toward Buck House. The Red Ensign flew high in the damp, breezy air. The Monarch was home and Franklin perched across the courtyard toward the cavalry now amassing on the gravel. He squeezed his huge Canon telescopic through the railings and felt the trigger. If Chas could see this! His mind buzzed, content at last.

Inside, "She-Who-Must-Be-Obeyed" was telling the Queen who's boss again. "Of course we care for the poor," Mrs. Thatcher explained. "That's why we are cutting their benefits. Independence, your Majesty. Independence." The Queen grimaced. How she hated Thursdays.

Rufus entered the room and sauntered toward the happy duo. Liz winked acknowledgement to her friend and he approached the prime minister's chair. Suddenly the PM felt a trickle on her nylons. She screamed. Liz patted her faithful corgi and the meeting came to the usual impromptu conclusion.

FRANKLIN SCREAMED, too. In his excitement he hadn't heard the blue Ford Transit rumble to a halt behind him. His wife had and was already in the Flying Squads van. "Hands above your head!" the police team ordered, and Franklin quickly complied. "I thought you English bobbies didn't..." There was no time to finish before he was bundled in with Mrs. S. The police officer with them didn't smile and, no, he wouldn't agree to a photo.

Down at the station they managed to sort out the confusion. The dismantled camera lying on the desk proved Franklin's innocence, although it could have harbored a bazooka. Celluloid were the only shots he planned to take. Now our unfortunate couple was tucking into bacon, sausage and eggs. A copy of the The Times lay at Franklin's side, and he was enjoying all the attention such a mistake had created.

The station officer carried a tray toward the couple. "Tea, sir?" he asked. The American nodded. "Will that be Darjeeling or Earl Grey, sir?" the officer added. As he stirred in his sugar, Franklin smiled. His quest was over.

How to write complaint letters

Being a successful professional writer (it keeps my hands busy and out of potentially infected areas), I'm frequently approached by the laity with questions about how to write good. "A participial phrase at the beginning of a sentence must refer to the grammatical subject," I will sagely advise, adding, "That will be $2.95." Or, "Do not join independent clauses by a comma... $5.49, please."

Recently, I've noticed a marked trend in questions concerning the rather delicate matter of how to write letters of complaint. Whether it be an incomprehensible new tax form, a TV set that bursts into flames, a postal rate increase to finance a further decrease in services or a car that starts itself and heads off down the road without benefit of a driver, there seems to be a growing sense of displeasure with the quality of services and/or products being offered by American government and/or business — a displeasure that is apparently struggling to find a means of venting its spleen.

Therefore, as a public service, this week's column is devoted to providing — at no cost to you, the reader — five general principles of writing an effective letter of complaint.

1) Write in blood. Government agencies and private corporations receive several million complaint letters each day, virtually all of which are typewritten — the writers mistakenly thinking typewritten letters appear more formal, more serious in their attitude. The recipients, on the contrary, see through typewritten letters as vain attempts to substitute form for commitment and automatically route each letter, without reading, to the shredder. However, a letter written in blood — your own or some animal's, it doesn't matter — says, "Pay attention to me. I mean it. I might be psychotic."

2) Be personal. You probably don't know the actual name of the person you are writing to, but keep in mind that it is indeed a person who will be reading and ultimately acting on your complaint. Addressing the letter "Dear Company" or "To Whom It May Concern" establishes an impersonal distance between you and your reader that is likely to result in an equally impersonal, perhaps unfavorable, response. Instead, begin your letter with a more personal attribution appropriate to the occasion, something like "Dear Scumbucket," or perhaps "To God's Version of a Practical Joke."

3) Get right to the point. The government bureaucrats and corporate lackeys who are relegated to reading letters of complaint are less interested in the history of your troubles than they are with Cher's tattoos or the solution to the bonus-round puzzle of last night's "Wheel of Fortune." Rather than "I recently purchased one of your gyro-guided, digital, rectal-activated whatever's..." begin your letter more directly: "I am a Vietnam veteran trained in plastic explosives and know where you live."

4) Use simple, familiar language. Too often, complainants think that by lowering themselves to the jargon of the offenders they will gain an advantage by putting themselves on the same muddled linguistic plane. This is a big mistake. Obfuscation is the tool of selling the unneeded to the unwary. Just because you were dumb enough to believe the TV commercial when you bought the product doesn't mean the company is going to heed your complaint because you demonstrate a similar skill in evading the truth. Don't write, for example, "After ingesting one of your new rich and creamy, all natural, crunchy tasting, high fiber, wholesome snacks, I experienced a robust intestinal emission," when what you really mean is, "I took one bite of that cardboard crapola and barfed my guts up!"

5) Be specific. State exactly what you want done about the problem and how long you are willing to wait to get it resolved. To say, "I would appreciate whatever restitution you deem proper in this matter" might win you votes for Miss Congeniality at the Miss America pageant, but it won't do squat in resolving your grievance. Better to say what you want done outright: "Send me $9 million in cash by this Thursday or I recreate for you in your own home the immolation scene from Apocalypse Now." Be responsible, but firm. Remember that you are trying to get satisfaction from someone who thinks your place in the Great Chain of Being falls somewhere between that of fossilized mollusks and pond slime. Good luck.

Ferraro's son to appear in court on cocaine charges

By Steven Bredice
United Press International

RUTLAND, Vt. — John Zaccaro Jr., son of former Democratic vice presidential nominee Geraldine Ferraro, returns to a Vermont court Monday for the beginning of his trial on cocaine charges.

Zaccaro, 24, faces up to five years in prison and $10,000 in fines for allegedly selling $25 worth of cocaine to an undercover police officer in 1986, while a senior at Middlebury College. A cocaine possession charge against him was thrown out last week.

Zaccaro has since withdrawn from the expensive private school. He now attends Hunter College in New York and has done volunteer work at Covenant House in the city to help fight teenage drug abuse and prostitution.

Jury selection in his trial is scheduled to begin Monday before Rutland District Judge Francis McCaffrey. The trial is expected to last one week. It is uncertain whether Zaccaro will take the stand in his defense.

THE CASE, DELAYED by repeated defense appeals to the state Supreme Court, was moved from Middlebury to Rutland because of extensive pretrial publicity.

Lawyers for both sides have offered little or no comment on the case, and Zaccaro's family has not answered requests for comment.

Zaccaro's case began Feb. 20, 1986, when plainclothes state police officer Laura Manning went to his off-campus apartment posing as a college student interested in buying cocaine.

When Manning asked Zaccaro if he had any cocaine, Zaccaro allegedly replied, "How much?" and pulled a tray containing 15 bags of white powder from under his sofa, prosecutors say.

Zaccaro's lawyer Charles Tetzlaff claimed the undercover buy constituted an illegal search because Manning did not have a warrant. He unsuccessfully argued evidence gained in the operation should be thrown out.

TETZLAFF DID GET a cocaine possession charge dismissed March 23 by arguing a warrant to search Zaccaro's apartment did not cover his car, where police allegedly found 8 grams of cocaine, about $1,600 in cash and drug transaction records.

Prosecutors are appealing the ruling and plan a second trial if the charge is reinstated.

Tetzlaff claimed Zaccaro was unfairly singled out for prosecution because of the celebrity status of his mother, a former congresswoman who shared the 1984 Democratic ticket with presidential nominee Walter Mondale. McCaffrey ruled Tetzlaff cannot make that argument before the jury.

Zaccaro left Middlebury during his senior year because — he has said — he was told he would have faced an internal hearing on the drug allegations.

In February 1985, John Zaccaro Sr. pleaded guilty to scheming to defraud in a real estate deal and was sentenced to 150 hours of community service. He was subsequently indicted and acquitted on charges of soliciting a bribe from a company trying to get a cable TV contract.

his arrival statement and the television interview: "Each of these negotiations must be based on Resolution 242, which applies on all fronts."

REPLYING IN THE interview to a Shamir statement Sunday that no breakthroughs are expected on this trip, Shultz said that he would like an Israeli response while he is there.

He admitted, though, that such a prospect is unlikely. He stressed that he would continue his peace efforts even if Shamir and others still are unwilling to accept the U.S. plan.

"We don't say accommodate us, or we'll go home," he said. "But it's important to get the ball rolling."

Israel needs peace and security. All of us who are her friends are trying to help her get there. Let's seize the opportunity and make the most of it."

Also in the interview, Shultz rejected Israeli charges that his recent meeting with two Palestinian-Americans who are members of the Palestine National Council was a back-door evasion of U.S. promises not to deal with the Palestine Liberation Organization.

He reiterated the U.S. position that the Palestine National Council, the PLO's parliament-in-exile, is not an integral part of the PLO. The United States has said that not all council delegates are members of the PLO. Shultz rejected the idea that he should refuse to meet with "distinguished Americans because you don't like their ethnic identity."

commercial," Kirchner said. UI Student Video Productions produced the commercial.

Kirchner said he enjoyed the performance and looked forward to seeing the finished product.

"It could be really neat," Kirchner said. "It just depends on how it's produced."

UI Student Video Productions producer Kayla Sue Paulsen said the commercial was filmed in the spirit of the old Diet Pepsi commercials, using partial shots of the subjects rather than full-body shots.

"IT VISUALLY gets your attention," Paulsen said. "It moves real fast with the dialogue — almost like real life."

She added the commercial achieved a natural look because it was filmed at night, without bright lights that produce a typical studio effect.

Riverfest Advertising Committee Chairperson Susan Przybiski said the committee will use two television advertisements and a radio spot in its 1988 ad campaign.

"We filmed the one, and the other uses footage from last year," Przybiski said.

She said the filming went well and she likes the commercial's story line, but she reserved judgment about the advertisement's quality until she views the edited version sometime this week.

Baines was transported to the police station and later to the Johnson County Jail, and a subsequent joint investigation by the fire and police departments resulted in the charges filed against Baines.

In a document filed in Johnson County District Court Friday morning, an Iowa City police detective stated that earlier in the evening Thursday, Baines had threatened to kill Starbuck.

An elderly woman was in the apartment building when the fire was started but was not injured. No other injuries were reported in the incident.

A spokesman at the Iowa City Fire Department stated the fire basically was confined to the kitchen area, but smoke damage extended to other parts of the building.

percent. Both polls had a margin of error of 4 percent.

DUKAKIS SPENT Sunday in Wisconsin, attending three churches in Milwaukee armed with a solid 8-point lead over Jackson. Sen. Paul Simon of Illinois, lagging in the polls, also campaigned in Wisconsin, but Sen. Albert Gore of Tennessee spent the holiday in Washington — although he gained the endorsement of The Milwaukee Journal in Sunday's edition.

In Colorado, which holds Democratic and GOP caucuses tonight, Jackson, a Southern Baptist minister, preached a rousing Easter sermon that drew on the mystery of the holiday, the assassination of the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. 20 years ago today and the "midnight" of the Reagan administration.

"We've survived the long midnight. Seven years of the cutbacks in Medicaid, aid to women and infants and children and mean-spirited behavior and indictments and sleaze and corruption and homelessness, and yet somehow, morning is about to come," Jackson told the congregation at the First Baptist Church of Denver. Seated in the front row of the church was former candidate Gary Hart and his family.

ALSO IN DENVER, GOP candidate Pat Robertson, while staying mainly with Easter themes, urged conservatives not to abandon the fight for a new morality in sermons at four churches.

"Some of you see today what looks like the triumph of evil in curriculum contrary to what's right, drug addiction and illegitimate pregnancy," he said. "But you can never give up."

To demonstrate that his appeal is broadening into the white electorate, Jackson needs to win the Wisconsin primary as a follow-up to his majority victory over Dukakis in the March 26 Michigan caucuses. Only 4 percent of Wisconsin's population of 4 million is black.

However, Dukakis is leading in the latest Wisconsin poll, published Sunday in The Milwaukee Journal, holding an 8-point edge over Jackson. Dukakis needs a victory in Wisconsin to solidify his "inevitability" claim to the nomination.

THE SURVEY, TAKEN Thursday, showed Dukakis was favored by 43 percent of the respondents and Jackson by 35 percent. Two weeks ago, Dukakis also led Jackson by 8 points, 38 percent to 30 percent.

Gore got increased support in the poll, rising to 15 percent from 10 two weeks ago. The Journal, the state's largest newspaper, also endorsed Gore, saying he was far and away the most experienced of the four candidates.

Simon, trying to keep his hopes alive, got only 5 percent in the poll. Vice President George Bush, whose only GOP opposition is former television evangelist Robertson, was supported by 80 percent of those questioned. Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas, who had hoped to win Wisconsin to get back into the race, dropped out last week.

Jackson's victory in Michigan has party leaders thinking about a Jackson nomination, and Willie Brown, chairman of the California Assembly and Jackson's national campaign chairman, said Sunday that while he is surprised at how well Jackson is doing now, he believes the nomination is attainable.

Appearing on ABC's "This Week with David Brinkley," Brown said, "If we do well in Wisconsin, if we do well in New York, we roll on to California after doing Pennsylvania, Ohio and Indiana, I think we will be in a commanding position to get the nomination, and that's the way it should be."

King

benefits. The night of King's last speech, "there was a sense of hope, a sense of direction," said James Smith, executive director of the local American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, the group sponsoring Sunday's service.

"We want to recreate that spirit, that hope," Smith said.

He said the sanitation workers' life has improved considerably in 20 years — with hourly wages of between $7.50 and $9.50 and many benefits — but blacks still lag behind whites in job opportunities.

Memphis' King remembrance, titled "Martin: With Us Still," is designed to address that issue, Smith said. It continues today with a wreath-laying ceremony at the Lorraine, where marchers will gather to launch a 30-day pilgrimage through Mississippi, Alabama and Georgia.

A MARCH expected to be heavily attended by low-wage earners will begin at King's gravesite at 5 p.m. today in Atlanta led by some of King's most trusted advisers.

"We feel that Dr. King died for public employees 20 years ago," said state Rep. Tyrone Brooks, D-Atlanta, an organizer of the Atlanta march. "We feel that we should be doing something for public employees 20 years later."

Brooks, who was employed by King as a field organizer, said the throng will be stocked with state workers disgruntled over low pay.

"We have been working with the State Employees Union," Brooks said, referring to an organization composed largely of service employees.

"We are concerned about low pay and are struggling to make Dr.

King's dream become a living reality and not a nightmare."

THE REV. Ralph Abernathy, vice president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference under King and the preacher's closest confidant, will head the list of civil rights luminaries at the march. Abernathy will be joined by Atlanta City Councilman Hose Williams, a field general in the King forces; Earl Shinn, regional director of the NAACP; and NAACP Georgia Director Edward Brown Jr.

integrated laboratory, will be to further develop this technology to where it can be used in practical diagnostic tests in a clinical laboratory."

WALDER SAID DNA therapeutic research, the second research method IDT will use, involves an entirely new class of therapeutic agents. Most current drugs act by inhibiting the activity of the particular protein, usually an enzyme, he said.

"For example, the antibiotic penicillin acts by blocking the synthesis of bacterial cell walls and inhibiting an enzyme that's required for that synthesis and thereby kills the bacteria," Walder said. "DNA therapeutic agents do not act by inhibiting the activity of the protein, but instead, act by blocking their synthesis."

"The success of this approach will be very revolutionary in medicine," he said. "It'll make possible the treatment of many viral diseases and also cancers, and some genetic diseases for which there is little or no treatment."

Heller said patent applications for DNA research have been filed. The UI Research Foundation will share in the royalties of those inventions, he said.

UI Vice President for Educational Development and Research Duane Spriestersbach said: "The best way for the UI to advance the health and the economy of this country, and Iowa in particular, is to have the scientists who are allowed to dedicate themselves to pursuing the advancement of knowledge of such a work as we've just seen demonstrated — all done to understand the world better, none of it done designed to produce a product."

"In the end we end up with these reservoirs of information that can be plumbed, which is what we're going to do now," he said. "It's a wonderful example of the very necessary marriage between basic and applied research."

Oklahoma, Kansas vie for crown

By Fred Lief
United Press International

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Oklahoma Coach Billy Tubbs has gone to the oracle in search of strategy for Monday night's NCAA basketball championship against Kansas.

"I talked to Barry this morning," he said in reference to Oklahoma football Coach Barry Switzer. "And if we win the toss we're gonna kick and take the wind."

In Oklahoma, where football is holy writ, the Sooners' basketball team has made for momentary confusion. And the matter is further complicated by Kansas, a Big Eight neighbor.

In the football-mad conference, basketball has suddenly become a sport to be reckoned with most seriously. And the issue is not lost on the players.

"WE WANT TO go back to Oklahoma and show a big ring to the football players," Sooners center Stacey King said at a news conference Sunday for both teams.

The championship game, scheduled for an 8:12 p.m. tip-off, will mark the third time two teams from the same conference have played for the basketball title —

Louisiana Tech downs Auburn for women's title

By Dennis Anstine
United Press International

TACOMA, Wash. — Erica Westbrook scored 16 of her game-high 25 points in the second half to help Louisiana Tech capture the NCAA women's basketball championship Sunday with a 56-54 comeback victory over Auburn.

Louisiana Tech, 32-2, won its fourth national championship in 11 years, including two since the NCAA tournament began in 1982. Auburn, 32-3, was playing in its first title game.

Westbrook, who was named the tournament's Most Valuable Player, made 12 of 17 field-goal attempts. She also had seven rebounds and six steals.

Guard Angela Lawson scored six of Tech's last eight points, including a 10-foot jumper that gave Tech a 55-53 lead with 33 seconds left. Lawson was the only other Tech player in double figures, scoring 10.

AUBURN LED BY 12 at halftime and then 37-23 four minutes into the second half before Tech rallied. Led by Westbrook's inside play, Tech gradually cut the lead to 42-37 with 9:55 left in the game.

A steal and lay-in by Teresa Weatherspoon put Tech within 48-45 with 5:20 left. Two minutes later, Lawson hit two outside shots to tie the score at 51-51.

A steal by Weatherspoon and Westbrook's lay-in then gave Tech a 53-51 lead with 2:10 left in the game. Auburn's Vickie Orr and Lawson traded baskets as Tech held on to its two-point lead until Auburn's Sharon Stewart made made one of two free-throw shots with 25 seconds remaining.

Weatherspoon was fouled with 18 seconds left, but she missed from the line. Auburn's Diann McNeil drove the baseline and tried to shoot over four Tech defenders around her. She was tied up and the ball went to Tech on the rotating possession rule with six seconds remaining.

AUBURN FOULED Weatherspoon three seconds later and the senior guard made one of two from the line. Auburn quickly called a timeout with one second remaining, but a long shot by Ruthie Bolton just missed the rim.

Bolton, who scored all of her 16 points in the first half, carried Auburn to a 31-19 halftime lead. She hit seven of nine field goal attempts — including two from three-point range. The rest of the Lady Tigers made only 6 of 20 attempts.

Tech had trouble from the beginning with Auburn's zone defense, which collapsed inside and dared the Lady Techsters to shoot from the outside. By forcing the ball inside, Tech had 11 turnovers in the first half.

The Tigers also ran when given the chance and the Techsters showed the affects of trying to keep up near the end of the half.

Hatcher's homers salvage road trip

By Eric J. Hess
The Daily Iowan

Freshman Chris Hatcher blasted two homers Sunday, including the game winner in the bottom of the eighth inning, as the Iowa Hawkeyes topped Minnesota 7-6 in the Metrodome.

The Hawkeyes, 8-9, avoided a four-loss weekend at the Pillsbury Classic in Minneapolis by defeating the Gophers. Iowa had previously lost in the three-day tournament to Maine, 5-4 in 14 innings, Washington State, 6-2, and Florida State, 8-0.

Iowa Coach Duane Banks saw his team commit 12 errors in the four games, many of which helped the opposition score key runs.

In Sunday's game, the Hawkeyes' Mark Boland, 1-3, was hit hard in the top of the fourth as Minnesota rapped four runs.

BEHIND 4-1 WITH Iowa's lone score being a solo homer by freshman Tim Costo in the third, the Hawkeyes erupted for five runs of their own.

After Hatcher ripped a three-run homer over the right-field fence, catcher Bryan Luedtke singled. Costo doubled him home and later scored on a single by all-Big Ten outfielder Luis Ramirez.

Minnesota later tied the score 6-6 in the eighth when Bruce Bates tripled and scored on a sacrifice fly. The Hawkeyes then turned to Hatcher for the game-winning homer.

Boland went the distance for his first win of the season. But the Hawkeyes struggled the three previous games.

In a 14-inning battle with Maine, sophomore Allen Rath pitched the first nine innings, gave up no walks and fanned a season-high 13 batters.

Bats silent in Iowa's doubleheader defeats

By Brent Woods
The Daily Iowan

Iowa pitchers gave softball Coach Gayle Blevins some answers Saturday, but the Hawkeyes left their bats in the bag.

Iowa dropped both ends of a doubleheader to Western Illinois at the Hawkeye Softball Complex, 1-0 and 4-2, moving its record to 17-7. Friday's game Hawkeyes took two games to St. Ambrose.

The pitching staff, which has been inconsistent so far this year, performed well against Western Illinois, Blevins said, but Iowa's lack of punch at the plate allowed the Westwinds to sweep.

"We just never got anything established offensively," Blevins said. "We were very tentative at the plate, and that is kind of disappointing. We got the pitching we needed but we couldn't put any pressure on their defense."

FRESHMAN HURLER Diana Repp got the tough loss in the first game, giving up only two hits. Iowa surrendered a run in the first inning and could only manage one hit for the contest.

In the nightcap, the Hawkeyes grabbed a 2-0 lead in the third inning but gave up three runs in the fifth as the game slipped away. Western Illinois rapped eight hits to Iowa's five, and freshman Tami Chown got the loss.

Blevins said baserunning errors contributed to the Hawkeyes' woes in the second game.

"When you get two runners picked off third in a game, that's not taking advantage of your opportunities," she said.

But one off-day isn't causing Iowa's Sally Miller to panic.

"We just didn't have it," Miller said. "The (Western Illinois) pitching wasn't anything we haven't seen, we were just tentative up there."

Domination — The condition or fact of being dominant.

A more thorough dictionary should include a cross reference that says: "See Hawkeye performance at Iowa Open this past Saturday."

Women's track Coach Jerry Hassard said last week the meet was "full of parity." But the Hawkeyes proceeded to take everything but the kitchen sink as Iowa put on an impressive showing at Cretzmeier Track.

The triple jump featured Becki Borg's school record leap of 39 feet, 7 inches. Lynn McMillan followed with a second place finish.

SENIOR CAPTAIN Davera Taylor got the Hawkeyes off to a blistering start by taking the 100-meter dash and 200-meter dash in impressive fashion.

Her times of 11.6 and 23.9 seconds in the 100 and 200 respectively placed her ahead of the field and brought high praise from Hassard.

"The double win by Davera Taylor was one of the highlights of the meet," the exuberant Iowa coach said. "Those are just outstanding times for this point in the season."

As the afternoon rolled on, so did the Hawkeyes.

Senta Hawkins gathered a 55.7-second clocking in the 400-meter dash to chalk up another first-place finish.

The 400-meter hurdles were taken by Bev Powell in 63.2 while Trisha Vesely's performance in the 100-meter hurdles was good enough for second.

RACHELLE ROBERTS and Tami Hoskins garnered second- and third-place finishes, respectively, in the 800, with times of 2:14.4 and 2:16.6 seconds, just behind the leader.

The 1500-meter run was owned by — guess who — the Iowa Hawkeyes.

Scoreboard

NCAA Matchups

NCAA matchups of the championship game between the Kansas Jayhawks and the Oklahoma Sooners tonight by Keith Drum, UPI college basketball writer:

CENTER
Oklahoma — Stacey King, 6-10, Junior, 22.4 ppg, 8.8 rpg. The left-handed King has developed into one of the country's top inside scorers, primarily on post moves and ability to draw fouls. He has attempted 286 free throws and hit 87 percent. Has team high 101 blocked shots.
Kansas — Danny Manning, 6-10, Senior, 24.6 ppg, 8.8 rpg. Manning really plays all over and combines good medium-range jumper with inside moves. Scored 28 and 30 in two earlier games with Oklahoma. His 65 steals lead Jayhawks.

FORWARD
Oklahoma — Harvey Grant, 6-8, Senior, 21.1 ppg, 9.5 rpg. As dangerous as a right-hander in the low post as lefty King, though Grant is more of a jump shooter. Good offensive rebounder and uses quickness for steals. Dave Steiger, 6-6, Senior, 10.6 ppg. Tough defender with an outside shot to complement Oklahoma's inside game. Of starters, he was top 3-point threat at 58.3 percent, but rarely drives to goal. Only Sooner to start every game.
Kansas — Chris Piger, 6-8, Senior, 5.1 ppg. Piger has limited ability but unlimited effort. Matched his season high with 10 points in semifinal win over Duke. His post defense will be vital to Kansas chances. Mill Newton, 6-4, Junior, 11.5 ppg. Newton has been shooting 85 percent and averaging 15.8 points over last 12 games. Quick off dribble with 3-point range (27 of 62 for 43.5 percent). The team's most spectacular leaper.

GUARD
Oklahoma — Daron "Mookie" Blaylock, 6-0, Junior, 16.4 ppg, 143 steals. Blaylock is strong and quick and his steals lead to much of his scoring. He's a streaky shooter but the gets lots of garbage by being around basket and ball. Ricky Grace, 6-1, Senior, 14.8 ppg, 273 assists. Grace plays more conservatively than Blaylock, relying on perimeter shooting for his scoring. He has attempted team-high 241 3-point shots.
Kansas — Jeff Guedelme, 6-5, Sophomore, 3.9 ppg. Guedelme does nothing but impresses coaches with his work habits and knack for making key plays. Only played 9 minutes in first game with Oklahoma and none in second meeting. Kevin Pritchard, 6-3, Sophomore, 10.6 ppg. Jayhawks are 14-3 since Pritchard took over as point guard. He had always been a scoring guard until the change this season. Pritchard totaled 28 points and made 10 of 16 shots in earlier games with Oklahoma.

NCAA Notebook
KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Notes from the Final Four:
To stay or not to stay
Coach Larry Brown said Sunday he is not looking to leave Kansas but he made no promise to stay.
I had a press conference last year about that, I don't know why I have to keep having one," Brown said. "I didn't hear anybody ask (Mike Krzyzewski, Lute Olson or Billy Tubbs about leaving, but I've heard their names mentioned on other places."
Asked if that meant a yes or no, Brown replied: "I'm not looking to leave."
Brown is considered one of the top candidates for the vacant UCLA coaching position.
Brown was UCLA coach for two seasons, 1979-81, and said he regretted leaving.
"I was dumb to leave," Brown said. "I made a mistake. If I could change that I would."

Chaney wins coaching honors
Temple Coach John Chaney received the Kodak Award for National Association of Basketball Coaches holding their annual convention in Kansas City.
In Division II and III and the National Junior College Athletic Association, the national champion coaches were chosen.
In Division II, Don Doucett of the University of Lowell (Mass.) was selected.
Gene Mehahey of Ohio Wesleyan was chosen in Division III and C. David Farrar of Hutchinson Community College in Kansas was chosen as the junior college coach.

while Kerr wins award, too
Steve Kerr of Arizona received the Most Courageous Award from the U.S. Basketball Writers Association.
Kerr, who overcame reconstructive knee surgery to lead Arizona to the Final Four this year, was a walk-on in the Wildcat program.
During his freshman year, his father, the president of an insurance firm in Beirut, Lebanon, was killed by terrorists.

God: an impartial fan
As Oklahoma Coach Billy Tubbs sees it, you can't tell a deity without a scoreboard. When asked if God will be on Kansas side Monday night, Tubbs said "I don't know. No, he's very impartial. That's what people tell me."

Perry, King and Grant finalists
The three finalists for the Henry Bibb Corinthian Award for the college basketball defensive player of the year are Tim Perry of Temple, Billy King of Duke and Gary Grant of Michigan.
The winner will be announced in Houston April 17.

Sooners a flexible squad
He hasn't put on leopard leotards yet, but Oklahoma Coach Billy Tubbs likes the Sooners' aerobic program. He attributes the sessions to the team's strong conditioning during the season.
"It's kind of a break in pace," he said. "I'd rather have some nice looking lady saying, 'Fellas, come on, get into it,' than having the coaches complaining and moaning."

Kansas holds Kansas City edge
Kansas and Oklahoma have played 18 times in Kansas City, with the Jayhawks winning 13.
The two teams have played eight times in Kemper Arena, with Kansas winning six, including the last three straight. Kansas beat the Sooners 82-77 last year in the Big Eight semifinals.
In Municipal Auditorium, which was in use until 1971, Kansas won six of 10.

Kansas may become 'loss' champion
The most victories by an NCAA champion is 36 by Kentucky in 1948. Oklahoma, at 35-3, can tie that record with a victory in the championship game. The most losses by a champion was 10 by North Carolina State in 1983 and Villanova in 1985. If Kansas, 26-11, wins the title, they would have the most losses by a champion.

NCAA Fact
The day:
Iowa women's basketball Coach Vivian Stringer spent two years at Cheyney State (1981-82). While she was there, the men's basketball coach was John Chaney, now the head man at Temple. Both schools were atop their respective polls for a good part of this season. More irony: both the Iowa women's team and the Temple men's squad were ousted on the same day — March 26.

Jordan's season-high 59 lifts Bulls to win

PONTIAC, Mich. (UPI) — Michael Jordan, who scored a season-high 59 points, hit two free throws with four seconds remaining Sunday to give the Chicago Bulls a 112-110 victory over the Detroit Pistons.

Jordan hit 21 of 26 shots from the field and sank 17 of 19 free throws as he surpassed 50 points for the fourth time this season. It was the fourth highest total in Bulls' history — all four by Jordan.

Golfer Alcott tops $2 million

RANCHO MIRAGE, Calif. (UPI) — Amy Alcott held off a charging Colleen Walker Sunday and became the third LPGA player to top $2 million in earnings by winning the $500,000 Nabisco Dinah Shore by two strokes.

Alcott shot a final-round 71 to total 14-under par 274, a tournament record. The triumph was her 27th and left her three victories short of automatic entry into the LPGA Hall of Fame.

Several track records fall in Classic

TEMPE, Ariz. (UPI) — Cam Miller of Abilene Christian and Brian Stanton of the Stars and Stripes Track Club each set a meet record Saturday night in the ninth-annual Sun Angel Classic.

Miller pole vaulted 18½ feet to break Greg Woespe's record of 17-9 set in 1984. The effort, which qualified Miller for the NCAA championships in June, bettered his winning vault from last year by eight inches.

Stanton broke teammate Lee Balkin's high-jump record with a leap of 7 feet, 5 inches. He improved on the former record by a half inch, making him eligible for the Olympic trials.

Host Arizona State set two school records, in the women's 4 x 100 and 4 x 400 relays.

A total of 40 teams competed, but Olympians Carl Lewis and Danny Harris dropped out at the last minute.

Medalist Kingdom makes season debut

CORAL GABLES, Fla. (UPI) — Roger Kingdom, the gold medalist in the 1984 Olympic Games, made his 1988 outdoor debut a successful one Saturday when he won the 110-meter hurdles in the Gatorade Grand Prix with a time of 13.49 seconds.

Other top athletes competing were triple jumper Willie Banks, the world record-holder who won the event Saturday with a jump of 55 feet, 7 3/4 inches; sprinter Evelyn Ashford, the world record-holder in the 100 meters who won the race in 11.2 seconds; pole vaulter Billy Olson, who won and cleared 17 feet; and American record-holder Louise Ritter, who cleared 6-5 1/2 in the high jump.

21-to-1 longshot wins Jim Beam Stakes

FLORENCE, Ky. (UPI) — Kingpost, the unwanted "ugly duckling" of Warnerton Farm's 1985 class of foals, blossomed into a legitimate Kentucky Derby hopeful Saturday by winning the $500,000 Jim Beam Stakes as a 21-to-1 shot.

Unlikely hero powers Rangers to win

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla. (UPI) — Steve Buechele socked a three-run homer and drove in four runs Sunday to lead the Texas Rangers to a 12-9 victory over the Chicago Cubs in the final exhibition game for both teams.

Buechele, who had not driven in a run in his first 67 spring at-bats, homered twice and drove in nine runs in the two-game series against Chicago.

Carter blasts Indians to victory

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Joe Carter hit a two-run homer in the bottom of the fifth inning Sunday to lead the Cleveland Indians to a 3-2 exhibition victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The blast was Carter's fifth home run of the exhibition season, which Cleveland finished with an 18-13 record. Pittsburgh closed at 17-16.

Toronto tops Twins in exhibition finale

DENVER (UPI) — José Escobar stroked a two-run single and Cecil Fielder drove in two runs with a double in a six-run seventh inning Sunday to spark the Toronto Blue Jays to an 11-4 exhibition-ending triumph over the Minnesota Twins.

Angels top Dodgers in Freeway Series

ANAHEIM, Calif. (UPI) — Kirk McCaskill scattered two hits over six innings and Tony Armas hit his fifth homer of the spring Sunday to carry the California Angels to a 6-1 triumph over the Los Angeles Dodgers in the final game of the Freeway Series.

A's take Bay Area Series contest

Padres beat up on Class AAA affiliate

LAS VEGAS (UPI) — Dickie Thon slugged a grand slam to cap a six-run eighth inning Sunday that broke a tie and sent the San Diego Padres to an 8-3 exhibition victory over their Class AAA affiliate, the Las Vegas Stars.

Sports

Cincinnati, Boston hosting opening games in majors

United Press International

Winter decisions and diatribes begin undergoing springtime scrutiny today for the defending National League champion St. Louis Cardinals and Cincinnati Reds.

The Cardinals-Reds National League opener at sold-out 56,000-seat Riverfront Stadium signals the start of evaluating offseason big deals and brash statements.

Were the Cardinals foolish to let Jack Clark get away? Were they wise to go to high-tech Japan to retrieve low-tech Bob Horner? Will Ozzie Smith pay the price for ripping umpires?

Were the Reds wrong to trade Dave Parker? Will Parker's prediction that the Reds will finish fourth or fifth without him come true?

Another Opening Day question mark is Mario Soto, who was named the Reds' Opening Day starter by manager Pete Rose, proving general manager Murray Cook wrong in one of his winter estimates.

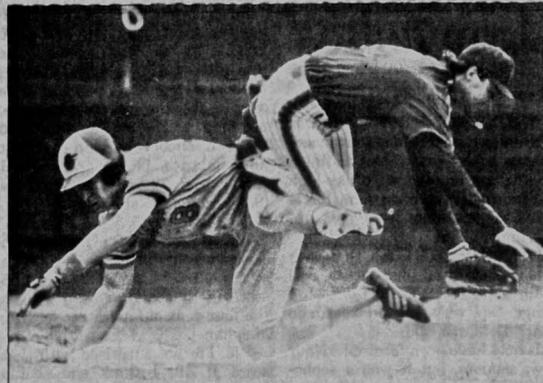

"WE HAVE NO expectations of Mario at all," Cook said in January about the sore-armed Soto. "We're not counting on him."

But Soto pitched brilliantly in spring training and won himself the Opening Day assignment.

When Parker was traded from the Reds last winter, he boldly predicted Cincinnati will finish "fourth or fifth" this year without him.

Rose's reaction: "I laughed. I'll be very disappointed if we don't win our division."

The Cardinals lost their slugger when free agent Clark signed with the New York Yankees. St. Louis Second base is the site of a mid-air collision between Baltimore shortstop Cal Ripken Jr., left, and New York Met second baseman Tim Teufel during exhibition baseball action at R.F.K. Stadium in Washington. The Major League Baseball season opens today. The openers for both leagues has St. Louis at Cincinnati in the National League and Detroit at Boston in the American League.

Manager Whitey Herzog believes Horner will put some much-needed power into the lineup.

"HORNER WILL BE my everyday first baseman and anchor our lineup batting cleanup," Herzog said.

The new season brings new uniforms for the Reds. Thin red and white stripes have been added to the sides of the pants. During the first homestand, the Reds will wear black armbands, in memory of former Cincinnati slugger Ted Kluszewski, who died last week.

New AstroTurf has been installed at Riverfront Stadium, where the All-Star Game will be played July 12. The new turf allows water to flow through the surface to a drainage system, which should eliminate standing water during a rain and make the field playable immediately after a rain.

MEANWHILE, OVER in the junior circuit, the Boston Red Sox and the Detroit Tigers, who will tangle in the American League opener at Fenway Park today, have some questions of their own to answer.

Can the Red Sox take home their first world championship in 60 years? Will Lee Smith be the dependable reliever they've been lacking for the last 10? Can Roger Clemens win 20 games for the third year in a row?

The Red Sox have not won a title since 1918, losing their four ensuing World Series.

Hawks win in seesaw struggle

By Anne Upson
The Daily Iowan

The Iowa men's tennis team (14-2) took its seventh consecutive win of the season, beating Purdue (4-7) Saturday to kick off the Big Ten season.

The match, moved indoors to Cedar Rapids' Westfield Tennis Club due to rain, was not decided until the last point of the last set of the No. 3 doubles match.

Iowa Coach Steve Houghton said the closeness of the match made it exciting.

"It was unbelievable," Houghton said. "It was a dramatic match because we were down and it wasn't until the third doubles match did we know who was going to win."

Houghton added the victory was the most exciting of his career.

AFTER THE singles matches, the Big Ten rivals were tied 3-3 — including the first loss of the season for Iowa's Jay Maltby.

Houghton said Maltby's loss to Purdue's Jay Gobel was a result of the latter's ability.

"The guy Maltby played was good," Houghton said. "He was more experienced."

The struggle continued through the doubles matches. After the first two, the teams were still split, leaving the deciding match for last. Houghton said the win was unclear up to the last point in the last set.

"We were four and four going into the third doubles match," Houghton said. "Even that match was dramatic. We had to go three sets to break the tie."

THE IOWA WIN surpasses last year's total by one. According to Houghton, the team's performance strengthened his beliefs about the team's capabilities in Big Ten competition.

"This is a really significant win," Houghton said. "We did really good in coming back and winning. This win has proved that the team has the confidence to win in the Big Ten."

Houghton lauded Purdue's veteran players — seniors Jim Gray, Jim Schumacher and John Winegardner.

The Hawkeyes' next matches against Ohio State and Indiana are scheduled for Saturday and Sunday at the Klotz Tennis Center. Both matches will begin at 1 p.m. and went on to produce a first-place time of 4:36.8. The third spot also belonged to a Hawkeye as Renee Doyle came in at 4:42.

In the 3000-meter run, three of the first four finishers wore gold and black.

Jeanne Kruckeberg was the first to the tape in 9:48.2. Wendy Bare's time of 10:10.3 seconds was third best, while Hoskins registered a 10:21.4 second effort for the fourth spot.

Doyle returned from her strong showing in the 1500 and looked even better in the 5000-meter run.

SEVENTEEN MINUTES, 18.5 seconds proved to be second best in that event as Doyle came in to finish the Hawkeyes' overwhelming control of the individual runs.

Muscle tightness sidelined Hawkins and Alycia Simpson and created a surprising yet productive 4 x 100-meter relay squad.

Powell, Vesely, Taylor and Lynn McMillan combined for second place with a time of 49.4 seconds.

McMillan's neck of the woods has been the high jump and the triple jump, but late developments drew her the role of anchor in a strange event. She said that she was just happy to contribute and hopes the Hawkeyes' success continues.

"I think we got a really good start at the season opener (Florida Relays)," she said. "We just hope it carries over and the whole thing snowballs."

Iowa did indeed keep it going as the team of Hawkins, Jill Freed, Powell and Roberts outdistanced the rest of the field in the mile relay in 3:59.8.

THE HAWKEYES took all places in the high jump. Stephanie Davis won the event with a leap of 5-feet-6, followed by teammates McMillan, Traci Claussen and Janelle Jaspers.

Sara Joens and Kathy Snow each established personal marks in the discus.

Joens' toss of 141.2 feet was a fourth-place finish and a personal record for the junior. Snow garnered sixth with a collegiate personal record of 139.9 feet.

The final results came from the shot put. Melissa Weiland was fourth with a throw of 42.8 feet while Janelle Marconi was next with a 39.2 foot toss.

The Hawkeyes will take a small contingent of athletes to this weekend's Colorado Relays in Boulder for some specialized work.

3 school records fall in gymnastics finale

By G. Hammond-Kunke
The Daily Iowan

Coach Diane DeMarco's women's gymnastics team must have envisioned a special evening Friday after walking out of its locker room with roses.

It was also a special occasion for the near-capacity crowd, which showed its appreciation with two standing ovations, as Iowa ended its season with style in the North Gym at the Field House — setting three team records during a 182.50-170.45 pasting of Illinois-Chicago.

The team score, balance beam (46.00) and floor exercise (45.85) numbers all put new numbers in the record books. In all, Iowa peaked for the year with 19 individual season-best scores, including 13 career-high tallies.

Women's Gymnastics

"THE WHOLE EVENING was just almost perfect," DeMarco said. "It was a good way for us to finish up the season. We were sky-high for the meet and this team has a lot to be proud of — a sense of accomplishment."

"All season long I felt that with consistency in all four events, this team could score in the 180 to 184 range. Now we've proved we can do that," DeMarco said.

It may have been farewell to four Iowa seniors, but it was a sophomore named Robin Zussman who stole the spotlight against the Flames.

Zussman was spectacular throughout the meet, claiming first-place honors in all four events. The diminutive Milwaukee, Wis., native set a new standard in Iowa annals for the all-around score, notching a 37.60. Zussman also tied two school records in the vault and balance beam and posted career bests in the uneven bars (9.2) and floor exercise (9.35).

FOUR TIMES THIS season Zussman has fashioned Iowa-high scores of 9.5 in the vault. Her 9.55 score in the balance beam equals the four-year old mark set by Kris Meighan.

"No, I'm not surprised with that score at all. I think she should have broken it," DeMarco said. "Robin is an excellent beam worker and she hit a very clean set which has some very high (complicated) moves. She moved with such confidence."

In winning the all-around, Zussman is in contention for a Central Regional qualifying invite (to be held in Baton Rouge, La., April 8-9), pending results of weekend events.

An elated Zussman responded to that estimation with surprise.

"Really?" she said. "I thought I had no chance for regionals. I just wanted to go out and have fun tonight."

Zussman went through somewhat of a metamorphosis this season after "putting way too much pressure on myself earlier this year.

"I REALLY FELT ready tonight. Right now I'm really inspired to do it all over again. But if I don't make regionals, there's always next year," Zussman said.

Four seniors — Jennifer DuBois, Kirsten Worcester, Stephanie Smith and Kim Burkard — ended their careers at Iowa.

"They brought their own distinct qualities and traits to our program," DeMarco said. "Kirsten, with her tenacious, 'I-can-do-it' attitude; Jennifer, with her highly spirited outlook and grace and movements; Kim, with her pointed attitude and hard work ethics; and Stephanie, with her focus and intensity that could rock a mountain. We're going to miss them," DeMarco said.

DuBois, who shares the Iowa mark in the floor exercise at 9.45, finished second in the event with a season-best 9.25. DuBois also placed second in the balance beam with a career-best 9.35.

WORCESTER FINISHED up with a solid, 9.2, second-place vault finish: "It was a nice way to end my career. I felt good about my vault because it was as good as I could do."

"It's a happy-sad feeling. This is the closest team I've ever been on. The whole team was just great," Worcester added.

Smith claimed third-place honors in the balance beam with a season-best score of 9.25.

First-year gymnast Suzanne Gorny placed second in the all-around after finishing third in the floor, tied for fourth in the vault, fifth in the beam and seventh in the uneven bars.

Hawks 'disappoint' Stewart in opener

By Marc Bona

The Iowa Hawkeyes, competing in their third of five spring competitions, finished third in the Iowa Spring Volleyball Invitational Saturday at Carver-Hawkeye Arena.

Wisconsin took top honors, sweeping Northern Iowa, who finished second.

The Hawkeyes won three of the four matches they played, beating Drake and Western Illinois in pool play, losing to Northern Iowa in the championship round and then beating Western Illinois again for third place.

Iowa Coach Sandy Stewart said the third-place finish was "depressing."

"UNI has just been our nemesis," she said. "We just did not play well. I'm disappointed. We weren't in the final so we just have to work harder."

"IT WAS disappointing. We felt like we were the best team. We just didn't play like it."

Iowa freshman setter Janet Moylan echoed Stewart's sentiments: "I definitely expected to be in the championship. We expected more. There's no excuses."

Moylan, though, emerged in a new role, that of a leader on a squad that lost seniors Ellen Mullarkey and Stacey Diehl after fall competition. And it's a role she said she's getting more used to.

"I feel more comfortable with the team. Sandy said that today (Saturday), and I feel it's true. You almost have to be able to read their (teammates') minds, know where they're going (on the court)."

"I think I can do it."

STEWART SAID she thinks her first-year setter from Chicago can do it, too. "Janet's doing much better," she said. "She's better in terms of being a leader. And we'll have to count on Kari (Hamel) and Toni (Zehr) now that Ellen's gone."

Stewart also pointed out the play of first-year outside hitter Janet Rees ("steady, a real stabilizer on the court") and first-year middle Moylan and the rest of the Iowa team will have two more chances this spring to show what they can do, as the Hawkeyes will compete at Northwestern next weekend in a field that includes Wisconsin, Northern Illinois and Illinois State.

The following weekend Iowa will travel to Notre Dame and compete against Purdue, Illinois, Illinois State, Illinois-Chicago and Notre Dame.

The Hawkeyes' third-place finish is the lowest of their spring schedule, after winning the Nebraska-Omaha Tournament and placing second at Northern Illinois.

Playing in their second spring tournament, Western Illinois Coach Juli Kartel praised the caliber of competition but remained frustrated about her team's losses to Iowa.

"It was good competition with Iowa, UNI and Wisconsin," she said. "And Drake played well against us. North Dakota was kind of weak, though."

"We didn't get any breaks, and our matches were long, too. So it was hard."

Road-weary Hawkeyes fall to Golden Gophers

By Hugh Donlan
The Daily Iowan

The Iowa women's tennis team has been on the road for nine of its last 10 meets and the road has not been kind.

The Hawkeyes fell to 6-7 on the season and 1-2 in the Big Ten after they suffered an 8-1 loss to Minnesota (9-7 and 3-1), Sunday in Minneapolis.

"It's hard to lose a match like that when you know it was closer," Iowa Coach Micki Schillig said. "The match was a lot closer than the score (indicates). There are things we can do to improve. It was a few points here and there and a few lucky points on their part."

SOPHOMORE LIZ Canzoneri, who is ranked 81st by the NCAA, was the only winner for Iowa with her 7-6, (7-4), 4-6, 6-2, victory over the Golden Gophers' Anne Marie Ovnik at No. 3 singles.

"She played well," Schillig said. "She's looking like she did in the fall. She is hitting the big shots and that makes a difference in her play."

The Iowa coach also said she felt her players gave it their all against a quicker Minnesota club.

"They played pretty well. I told

Hawks are a team to beat in Norman

By G. Hammond-Kunke
The Daily Iowan

After a decent showing last weekend in Arizona against the No. 9 Wildcats, Iowa's women's golf team is listed as one of four teams to beat in Norman, Okla., today and Tuesday.

The Hawkeyes compete along with 11 other teams in the 14th annual 54-hole Susie Maxwell Berning Classic. The teams will play 27 holes each day with the tourney held on The Trails Golf Course, a tight, 6,000-yard course with huge greens and quite a lot of trouble.

"IT'S A TOUGH course, especially when it's windy, which it usually is in Norman," Oklahoma Coach Carol Ludvigson said. "I would rate New Mexico State (21st nationally) as the pre-tourney favorite. But we could win it if we play as well as we did last fall. Iowa (36th), Iowa State (34th) and North Texas State (37th) will be right in there, too." The Sooners are ranked 29th of 115 teams competing in Division I.

The rest of the field includes Western Kentucky (No. 49), Kansas State, Nebraska, Michigan

Women's Golf

State, Texas A&M, Texas Tech and Wichita State.

Iowa Coach Diane Thomason feels any one of three Iowa golfers could come away from the competition as the top medalists. The five Hawkeyes making the trip include first-year linkster Stacey Arnold, sophomores Kelley Brooke and Sarah Ward and juniors Amy Butzer and Jeannine Gibson.

Against Arizona, Brooke shot a round of 74 and Ward had a 77 to lead Iowa. Arnold finished with 81, while Butzer and Gibson carded 83s.

"I'm real pleased with the way we've played in the early going. We're excited heading into the competition and are ready to test our mental skills," Thomason said.

"The course can get after you if you're not careful. We're anxious to play on it and we're looking forward to a good season," Thomason added.

Indiana-Michigan of the Big Ten in 1976 and Villanova-Georgetown of the Big East in 1985.

The last NCAA champ from the Big Eight was Kansas in 1952. The Jayhawks of 1957 were the last team from the league to play for the title.

"I'm from the East and all people know about is the ACC and Big East," Kansas forward Milt Newton said. "The Big Eight? They say, 'That's Danny Manning's conference.' That's all they know. But that's changing."

BUT WHEN KANSAS, 26-11, meets Oklahoma, 35-3, at Kemper Arena, commemorating the 50th anniversary of college basketball's showcase event, the game will serve as more than a Big Eight recruiting tool.

It will offer a last look at Manning, the 6-foot-10 All-American senior who has carried Kansas through a whirlwind season. Struck by injuries, suspensions and academic losses, the Jayhawks dropped eight of their first 20 games.

"All that adversity helped us in caring for one another," Manning said.

The game will also offer another explicit look at the No. 4 Sooners — they of the 100-point cutthroat games and suffocating zone traps.

3 coaches busted for scalping

United Press International

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Three coaches, including the head coach at Iowa Wesleyan, were among 13 people arrested by undercover police officers for scalping NCAA Final Four tickets, with ticket prices being reported as high as $1,700 each, police said during the weekend.

Assistant coaches from two NCAA Division II schools — Ronald Anderson of Montana State and Don Rockstad of North Dakota — along with Iowa Wesleyan College's Jerry Olson of Mount Pleasant, Iowa, were nabbed in the ticket scalping sweep Friday, said police spokesperson Laura Mulloy.

All of the arrested offenders had a $500 bond set, authorities said. They each face fines of $500 and sentences of up to 60 days in the city jail if convicted.

Blevins knows her team has lost a little momentum, she just hopes they haven't lost any confidence.

"I hope it (problems at the plate) isn't a result of losing the first game and losing confidence," she said. "We'll just have to learn from that."

Linksters finish 4th on opening day of season

By Hugh Donlan
The Daily Iowan

The Iowa men's golf team opened its 1988 season with a fourth-place finish in the eight-team 54-hole Purdue Invitational in West Lafayette, Ind., with a team score of 913.

Iowa's Dave Holmes, who finished fourth individually, scored the tournament's lowest round with a 68 Saturday. Wright State's Scott Pearce captured Medalist Honors with a 224 total. Dave Witt of Ball State captured second and Pat Moyhan of Notre Dame was third.

Ball State won the tournament with a score of 895, Wright State finished at 905 for second place and Notre Dame was third with a 909 total.

Men's Golf

RAIN SUNDAY CAUSED delay in play, but all three rounds were completed on Purdue's par-71 South Course.

Holmes, a junior, led the Hawkeyes with a fourth-place individual finish. The Moline, Ill., native, besides carding the 68 Saturday, also had rounds of 80 and 77 for a 225 total.

Iowa improved on last season's seventh-place finish in a 36-hole Purdue Invitational.

Freshman Mike Bradley doubled and moved to third on a single by third baseman Keith Noreen.

A wild pitch allowed Bradley to score. After Bill Heinz drew a walk, another wild pitch moved both Noreen and Heinz into scoring position.

Hatcher hit a sacrifice fly to center field. Noreen scored on the fly, and Heinz scored on an error by the Maine shortstop, who overthrew at third attempting to throw him out.

Against 10th-ranked Washington State, a two-run double by Washington State's Tim Schwarz downed the Hawkeyes. Iowa's Cal Eldred, 1-3, took the loss.

Florida State, which met Maine in Sunday night's championship game, didn't have any sympathy for the Hawkeyes, dumping an 8-0

Firefighters adopt night dress code

United Press International

HIALEAH, Fla. — Sleeping in the nude has been banned at Hialeah firehouses, and no more than one person may occupy a bed at the same time under new rules adopted as the city welcomed its first female firefighter.

Division Chief Omar Fernandez said Sunday the city adopted the rules in order to ease the social awkwardness of sharing communal living quarters.

"Everybody kind of giggled. We haven't had widespread revolution about it," said Fernandez. "They assume there are people sleeping in the nude, but I really don't know of any that do," he said.

Sandra Heiden, 24, was hired three weeks ago and is the city's first woman firefighter.

The new rules also bar firefighters from sleeping in their skivvies and require women firefighters to wear bras "at all times, for personal protection and privacy."

The rules further state that "only one person will be allowed to occupy a bed at a time. This is to include sitting on a bed while someone else is lying down on it," Fernandez said, reading from the rule book.

Heiden shared her co-workers' amusement with the edicts. "If somebody wants to sit on my bed it's no big deal," she said.

Other additions to the rule book state that "department personnel are not allowed to undress in front of the opposite sex."

Ye old Kabuki 'Macbeth' is a rare and energetic show

By Hoyt Olsen
The Daily Iowan

Dear M'Lord Editor:
Verily did I attend the production of Macbeth at Hancher-on-the-Iowa as your editorship requested. But much to my consternation did I discover that Burbage, Armin and the rest of the actors of the King's Men had taken Ye Night Off and were being replaced by a touring company of provincials from the New World, the so-called Acting Company.

Still, thought I to myself, how far astray can even a company of New World rustics go when they will be giving utterance to the glorious words of our celebrated Bard? (EDITOR'S NOTE: This is an evident reference to William Shakespeare, not Scott Raab.)

So I settled into my seat, to await with anticipation such memorable speeches as "So fair and foul a day..." and "Tomorrow and tomorrow and tomorrow..."

AND SOON ENOUGH the actor playing Macbeth came strutting out onstage wearing little more than his unmentionables, hardly enough to cover this great strapping fellow, and he shouts out something that I can best describe as "Aaooooouuuugh!" Then methinks to myself: "I hope there's an understudy; clearly this fellow be severely pained. Considering his size, body hair and lack of attire, perchance the dogs at the bear-baiting next door have mistook, and this chap has suffered a mauling."

But soon enough the fellow playing Banquo is answering him "Aaooouugh" for "Aaooouugh," and I maketh discovery that this has something to do with that strange word "Kabuki" stuck in front of Macbeth. Earlier I had assumed this was merely some mistake by ye copy editor, in the style of our own publication, forsooth.

BEFORE MUCH MORE of the play transpireth, it becometh apparent what the grunting and groaning is about. Obviously Irwin Appel, the actor playing Macbeth, is distressed because Director Shozo Sato hath cast a big, strapping male named Spencer Beckwith in the role of Lady Macbeth. It's completely tasteless to play a female in this manner, instead of following the sensible English fashion and using a young boy.

But frankly, if we could find many young boys with Beckwith's talents as a female impersonator, we could dispense with all the needless debate about following the French fashion of letting (shudder) women appear in plays. His poses, his expressions, his lilted gait, were all so feminine that I began to find it a little sad that he was trapped in a male identity. Maybe someday the alchemists will discover a potion that can reverse Nature's mistakes.

ABOUT THIS TIME I found myself actually becoming rather taken with this "Kabuki" business. Now, I have to tell thee that in terms of having a link to Shakespeare's Macbeth, this play tooketh little more than Ye Bare Plot outline. Thou shouldst, henceforth, pity the poor sophomore who purchased a ticket to avoid reading the original for Gen. Ed. Lit.

Never-ye-less, the stylized poses, the dancelike movement, the lavish costumes and the use of rhythmic accompaniment to heighten the mood of individual scenes all contributed to a very satisfactory theatrical experience. The Acting Company's performers displayed considerable flair, even if their movements lacked some of the exactness that would be displayed by Japanese professionals trained in Kabuki from youth.

Maybe someday American proponents of Kabuki will present classic Kabuki plays instead of perpetuating the present pattern of revamping classic Western dramas for Kabuki performance. Maybe someday the pound sterling will also have more prominence on the international market than the yen. Hold thee not thine breath.
