New UI presidential prospect arrives today

By Anne Kevlin
The Daily Iowan

A new candidate in the 11-month search for a UI president will arrive tonight for a two-day visit to the UI campus.

Hunter R. Rawlings III, University of Colorado vice president for academic affairs and research, will meet with UI administrators, faculty, staff and students Friday and Saturday to discuss his interest in becoming UI president.

Rawlings, who holds his doctorate in classics from Princeton University, is the first of three new UI presidential candidates who will visit the UI this semester. Indiana University Vice President Kenneth R.R. Gros Louis is scheduled to visit the UI April 13-14, and City University of New York Vice President and Provost Steven M. Cahn will visit on a date yet to be determined.

The 17-member UI presidential search committee has been seeking a replacement for former President James O. Freedman, who announced his resignation April 11, 1987. Freedman is currently president of Dartmouth College in Hanover, N.H.

RAWLINGS, 43, has highlighted an 18-year career at the University of Colorado with three promotions in the classics department, which he eventually chaired from 1978 until 1980. He has been vice president and dean of the system graduate school at Colorado since 1984, after serving four years as associate vice chancellor for instruction.

"He's been steadily climbing in the academic and administrative levels for awhile," University of Colorado senior Perry Dino said. "He's had faculty support all the way through."

Dino, the University of Colorado student government president, praised Rawlings as an administrator with strong campus support and few enemies.

"He's a find," Dino said. "I have never heard anything negative about him. As I think about giving him a good recommendation, I think, 'Holy smokes, we're capable of losing him.'"

DINO SAID Rawlings works well with students because he has four college-age children. Dino also described Rawlings as a good educator who places equal emphasis on research and education. He said while Rawlings has supported the building of a research park on the university's Boulder campus, he "also wants to make sure there's another person on the seesaw."

Rawlings said as a classics scholar he has a commitment to liberal arts, but does not consider an emphasis in liberal arts education separate from an emphasis in research.

"I myself don't want to get into a dichotomy between liberal arts and research, since they go hand in hand," he said Wednesday. "For many, many years, I've studied (the classics). That's where my own interest lies; that's where my heart lies."

Helen Suzman, a South African Progressive Party member, speaks to about 450 people Wednesday night in the Union Ballroom.

Suzman takes issue with SAASU editorial

By Joe Euchner
The Daily Iowan

A lecture by South African Progressive Party member Helen Suzman, titled "Will South Africa Survive?" was protested by more than 20 individuals who opposed her stance against economic sanctions as a means of weakening the ruling body of the nationalist party.

Putting aside her prepared comments for the lecture, Suzman opted to make a rebuttal to a letter by the Southern African/Azanian Student Association that called for the implementing of such sanctions. The letter appeared in Wednesday's edition of The Daily Iowan.

In the letter, SAASA President William Langeveldt referred to South African investors as co-conspirators in the brutalities of the police state, calling for internal and external measures to weaken the government of apartheid in the hopes another political power will be manifested to plot the future course of South Africa.

SUZMAN SAID she believes the weakening of apartheid rule will not be realized through any sanctions, which she said would do irreparable harm to the economic freedom of the black majority, while depriving the white elite of few goods.

While Suzman agreed that widespread divestment and disinvestment of American-held interests in South African firms is a show of solidarity, she said it is a gesture of self-protection for firms that wish nothing to do with the apartheid.

Suzman said this show of solidarity, which was praised by American politicians who felt they were now "on the side of the angels," did little to weaken the ruling power.

"On the contrary, a wave of patriotism in the defense of economic freedom brought even more power to the (Nationalist Party). It is fine to say your hands are clean of the filth in apartheid, but at what cost?"

THE DIVESTMENT did more harm to blacks than whites, according to Suzman, and was seized by opportunists and speculators within South Africa's elites.

"By dumping South African stocks, American investors here merely transferred the ownership to investors there. The creation of 100 instant South African millionaires took money from our economy and tied it up in existing projects, reducing the overall flexibility of our

Defeat of hospital proposal expected

Sen. Jean Lloyd-Jones, D-Iowa City, said Wednesday she expects the Iowa Senate to reject a measure passed by the House that would put UI Hospitals and Clinics under the control of a governor-appointed board of trustees.

The proposal was included in an education budget bill passed by the House.

The measure, which was approved by a 59-33 amendment vote, would remove control of UI Hospitals from the state Board of Regents and establish a nine-member board of trustees. Board members would be selected from a list of candidates named by legislative leaders and appointed by the governor.

The special board was not included in an earlier version of the bill approved by the Senate.

"Usually the Senate is more supportive of University Hospitals than the House has been," Lloyd-Jones said.

"I'VE NEVER heard any hint of scandal or problem with the hospitals. It seems the state has other problems more pressing than trying to delve into an institution that is working well," she said.

Lloyd-Jones, who chairs the Senate State Government Committee, said the effort to set up the new board appears to be led by lawmakers who have "a bone to pick" with the UI.

"I think some people may resent the University Hospitals or have some gripe with it. I think it may be part of an effort to diminish it in some way," she said. "I think University Hospitals is probably one of the best-run and managed state teaching hospitals in the country."

The House budget bill would also delay indefinitely tougher standards for the state's elementary and secondary schools. One of the standards required all school districts to offer all-day kindergarten.

In an April 1 article in The Daily Iowan, state Board of Regents President Marvin Pomerantz defended the regents' control over UI Hospitals. Pomerantz said the hospital has an "excellent track record" and said "there is no reason a special board should be appointed to govern the hospital."

Pomerantz and UI Interim President Richard Remington were unavailable for comment Wednesday night.

Noriega orders arrest of deposed president

By Douglas Tweedale
United Press International

PANAMA CITY, Panama — The government Wednesday ordered the arrest of deposed President Eric Arturo Delvalle for promoting U.S. economic sanctions aimed at forcing Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega from power.

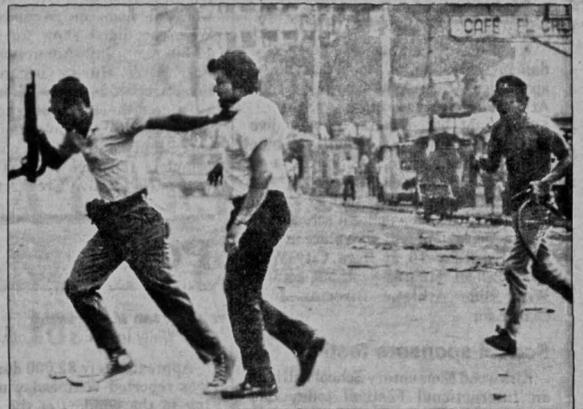

Assistant Federal Prosecutor Alvaro Visuetti said on government television his office had issued arrest warrants for Delvalle, as well as Panamanian Ambassador to the United States Juan Sosa and Gabriel Lewis Galindo, a prominent opposition businessman living in Washington.

Delvalle, ousted Feb. 26 by the Noriega-controlled National Assembly after he tried to fire the military strongman, last month asked U.S. courts to freeze Panamanian government assets held in U.S. banks, sparking a cash crisis that has shut down the country's banking system since March 3.

RECOGNIZED BY the United States as the legitimate leader of Panama, Delvalle has been in hiding since his ouster.

Sosa, speaking by telephone from the Panamanian Embassy in Washington, said, "I knew it was coming. According to Noriega I'm a traitor to the country."

"I haven't done anything wrong," he said. "All I've done is oppose him."

Reuters

Security agents in Panama City lead a man away Wednesday after arresting him for participating in a protest against Panamanian strongman Gen. Manuel Noriega.

He also denied rumors that Delvalle was contemplating giving himself up.

"I talked to him today and he vowed to stay until Gen. Noriega is gone."

Asked if he was worried about the arrest order, Sosa laughed and said, "If the United States cannot extradite him (Noriega), he certainly can't extradite me."

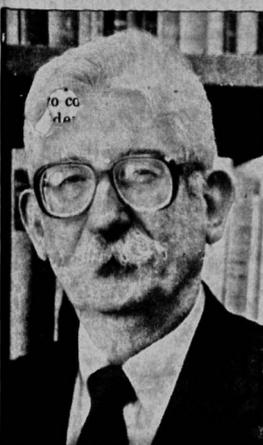

THE UNITED STATES has sought to topple Noriega, the Panamanian Defense Forces chief and de facto leader of the country, since he was indicted Feb. 4 by two federal courts in Florida on drug trafficking charges.

Lewis, a former ambassador to the United States, said in a telephone interview from his Washington home, "I'm just a plain fugitive who is trying to overthrow him (Noriega)."

"It's not the first arrest warrant," he said. "They have accused me of

Faculty questions Remington

Interim president addresses reallocation process, self-study

By Paula Roesler
The Daily Iowan

UI Interim President Richard Remington Wednesday evening fielded questions from faculty members concerning the UI's current internal reallocation process and the UI's ongoing self-study titled "Building on Strength."

About 50 faculty members attended the forum, held in MacBride Auditorium, which was sponsored by the UI chapter of the American Association of University Professors.

"I don't think the reallocation process is a warm, cuddly kind of system — I never have," Remington said. "It's no substitute for new money."

But Remington said reallocation is the only means of providing funds at present, adding the process may be changed in the future.

The UI administration is open to criticism regarding the current reallocation system, he said, but after studying the various modes of reallocation the present system seemed to be the logical choice.

WITHOUT MORE support by the federal and state governments, the UI will struggle to maintain its present programs and build on them, Remington said.

But Remington said he expects to get more help from the Iowa Legislature before it adjourns this spring.

"I do have a feeling we'll get a little bit of help before the whole thing is over," he said, adding UI administrators have lobbied legislators with perseverance.

Remington said the 74-page self-study, currently under review by the state Board of Regents, was launched in an attempt to help the UI move into the ranks of the top 10 U.S. universities.

"I really think we'll have a hard time meeting the top-10 goal using only reallocation," he said. "There will have to be a whole new transfusion."

REMINGTON estimated the UI currently ranks about 35th among U.S. universities.

"It's a clear top group and we are not in it," Remington said, adding,

Supervisors predict end to sewage plant conflict

By James Cahoy
The Daily Iowan

Members of the Johnson County Board of Supervisors are predicting that a new application for rezoning which would allow Iowa City to begin construction of its new sewage treatment plant will be accepted by the board — ending a yearlong battle over the plant.

The application, which the council voted 6-0 Tuesday night to file, asks the board to rezone 51.5 acres of land south of Iowa City from "agricultural" to "industrial" to allow the city to begin building the sewage facility. The application marks the third one filed by the city with the county in the past year.

The supervisors will hold a public hearing on the new application today at 5 p.m. in the Johnson County Administration Building, 913 S. Dubuque St.

The new application addresses several concerns voiced by the supervisors about the site of the plant. The city has agreed in its new application to establish an access road to the plant that runs south or southwest and uses the KCJJ Road.

THE CITY HAS also agreed to monitor the water table and air pollution near the facility and take any precautions necessary to ensure the plant does not affect neighbors of the plant.

In addition, the city has agreed not to spread sludge on any portion of the plant or park site surrounding it.

Supervisor Dick Myers noted that the city's proposal was almost identical to the one the supervisors recommended the city submit in a letter last summer.

"I think for the most part it does address our concerns," Myers said, adding that supervisors were particularly concerned that a southern access road be used for the plant.

Myers said the new agreement also adequately deals with the concerns neighbors of the plant have expressed over the possible harm the plant could cause to their property.

"I THINK THE city has done the best it can to deal with those concerns," Myers said. "There are provisions in the new agreement that will protect the residents around the plant."

Supervisor Betty Ockenfels also predicted the new application would pass, but questioned why it had taken the city so long to come to an agreement with the county.

"I don't know why we had such a breakdown in communications," Ockenfels said. "This could have been taken care of in September."

But Iowa City Manager Stephen Atkins said the delay was not the city's fault, pointing out the city has filed two new applications at the county's request since presenting its original application in April.

"We've been waiting for them," Atkins said.

Two city residents arrested when cocaine cache found

By Susan M. Wessling
The Daily Iowan

Two Iowa City residents were arrested Tuesday after police discovered cocaine valued at $150,000 after searching two Iowa City apartments and two safe deposit boxes at a bank, according to the Johnson County Sheriff's Office.

Arrested were Michael John Maxwell, 37, address unknown, and Teresa K. Sayre, 38, 1910 S. Gilbert St., No. 3, after searching their apartments.

After searching Sayre's apartment, Maxwell's Iowa City apartment and two safe deposit boxes at local banks, officers seized about 750 grams of cocaine estimated to have a street value of $150,000, according to police.

In addition, police found about 3 grams of heroin, about $25,000 in cash, scales and other drug paraphernalia in the apartments and safe deposit boxes, according to the report.

The arrests came after a two-month investigation by the Johnson County Sheriff's Department, the Metropolitan Narcotic and Dangerous Drug Unit in Cedar Rapids, the Iowa Division of Narcotic Enforcement and the Drug Enforcement Administration. The investigation led to the execution of the search warrants on the apartments and safe deposit boxes.

Sheriff's Department officials said Wednesday they do not suspect the two were involved in a drug ring, but the case remains under investigation.

Maxwell and Sayre were taken to Des Moines where they will appear before a U.S. Magistrate on federal charges.

Courts

Former Iowa football player Nathan Creer, 904 Benton Court, had his work release formally revoked Wednesday in Johnson County District Court after he failed to report to work on time, according to court records.

Creer was to report to Target, Highway 6 West, Coralville, for work at noon on Wednesday. When he didn't show up until 12:30 p.m., Jail Administrator Patrick J. Hurley began an investigation as to his whereabouts, according to court records.

Hurley returned Creer to Johnson County Jail at 1:30 p.m. to complete the investigation and requested to have Creer's work release formally revoked in order to document the violation for future reference, according to court records.

Creer was originally granted his work release request on March 30 after he was sentenced to 10 days in jail plus one year probation for the assault of Iowa running back Tony Stewart.

Creer was charged last September after allegedly using a piece of electrical pipe to strike Stewart, causing him to suffer a cut under his eye and welts under his arm. The incident occurred on the third floor of Slater Residence Hall on Aug. 25, according to court records.

An Iowa City woman was charged Wednesday with the false use of a financial instrument after she allegedly used a stolen credit card at Randall's Foods, Highway 6 West, Coralville, according to Johnson County District Court records.

Carolyn J. Baker, 30, 3538 Shamrock Place, allegedly charged $30 worth of merchandise on a Discover card registered to another person. The Discover Company advised that the credit card was stolen as reported by the owner, according to court records.

The owner of the card knows Baker and said she didn't give Baker permission to use the card, according to court records.

A preliminary hearing in the case is set for April 21.

UI to host ethics colloquium

Event highlights 'Global Awareness Week'

By Jean Thilmany
The Daily Iowan

In honor of Iowa City's "Global Awareness Week," the UI will host a two-day international colloquium April 8-9 to explore choices that must be made in the modern world to achieve a greater ethical balance.

"Principles of Ethics in the Global Community" is co-sponsored by the Iowa division of the United Nations Association of America and by the UI, as well as the UI College of Law and 30 other co-sponsoring groups and organizations.

"The conference grew out of a series of grassroots meetings held throughout small towns in Iowa," Iowa division of the U.N. Association of America Executive Director Dorothy Paul said.

Each community selected different aspects of modern-day ethical considerations to discuss, and those topics will be covered by a visiting speaker, she said.

"We want people to learn to think critically about what's happening in the world today and what they can do about it," Paul said.

THE CONFERENCE begins Friday with a speech by Canadian Ambassador to the U.N. Stephen Lewis. Lewis will speak on how ethical issues historically have influenced professional and personal lives, and how Iowa is linked with the global community, Paul said.

The opening day of the conference also includes a 2 p.m. speech in Boyd Law Building by Karen Lebacqz, professor of Christian ethics at the Pacific School of Religion, University of California-Berkeley. Lebacqz will be speaking on the ethical questions in power relationships.

Ali A. Mazuri, professor of political science at the University of Michigan, will speak Saturday on his experiences as a Kenyan native. He will assess the ethical issues that face the African continent in his 9 a.m. speech in Boyd Law Building.

IN CELEBRATION of "Global Awareness Week," The San Francisco Mime Troupe will perform "The Mozambique Caper," which profiles the political situation in South Africa, at 8 p.m. Friday in the Union.

As well as including numerous panel and small group discussions throughout the weekend, the conference focuses on local issues.

The UI chapter of the American Medical Student Association Thursday night sponsored Dennis Prager, deputy director of the John D. and Catherine P. MacArthur Foundation, who spoke on the foundation's research in international health.

"We are attempting to make international health the issue of prevalence it deserves to be," UI AMSA student chairman David Pepper said.

PARASITIC DISEASES affect more than 2 billion people worldwide, but since they are not common in the United States, little attention is paid to the problem, Pepper said.

"It must be realized that America is swiftly becoming part of the international health scene," Pepper said.

Because it concentrates on local, national and international issues, everyone who attends this weekend's conference should find something of interest, Paul said.

"People from all over the U.S. are coming to attend this event," Paul said. "We'll have a mix of students, professionals and academics."

It is more than just an intellectual exercise, she said.

"We must start with self-interest balanced against a common good. We hope that the participants will go away thinking that they can do some good," Paul said.

"I hope that the participants will take back to their community the slogan, 'Think globally, act locally,'" she said.

African Association celebrates heritage

By Karyn Riley
The Daily Iowan

The UI African Association will present a lecture by Ali Mazrui, author of the PBS television series "The Africans — A Triple Heritage," as part of African Heritage Celebration Week during April 4-8. Mazrui will speak Friday at 7:30 p.m. in Phillips Hall Room 100.

Mazrui, a political science professor at the University of Michigan, will speak on political and socio-economic conditions in Africa and offer possible remedies to Africa's problems, according to African Association advisor Geremie Sawadogo.

"He is one of the scholars most knowledgeable of Africa's political situation as it is now," Sawadogo said. "We wanted him to speak because we wanted the best possible person. He's African and can offer people insights on his views of Africa."

The African Heritage Celebration week is an annual event that provides an opportunity for the UI's 100 African students to highlight their culture and promote awareness of Africa's political and social issues, according to Deborah Parsons, UI campus programs and student activities coordinator.

"ONE OF THE purposes of this is to provide an opportunity to discuss points of interest to Africans and others interested in the African people," Parsons said.

Although part of the celebration includes panel discussions of relevant issues, African Association President Anthony Ibe said it is also to provide people with another view of Africa — one they don't necessarily see on TV or read about in the news.

"We want the rest of the community to know our culture, not just the bad things, because there is more to our country than apartheid and the other bad things that they see in the news," Ibe said. "We want people to think of our country as a continent and to realize that one culture from Africa does not represent all cultures."

African Heritage Celebration Week continues tonight with a panel discussion on social change and economic development in Africa, and Friday with Mazrui's speech, "A View From Within," both in Phillips Hall Room 100 at 7:30 p.m.

African Day Celebration will conclude the week Saturday with a fashion show and dance with cultural food and refreshments provided.

The fashion show will take place in the Union Main Lounge at 4 p.m. Tickets for the show are $4 for adults and $2 for children.

The dance will feature the reggae band Black Star and UI gospel singers Voices of Soul. It will be held in the Union Main Lounge at 9 p.m. Tickets are $4.

LaRouche supporters attack Iowa Democrats

United Press International

DES MOINES — Iowa supporters of political extremist Lyndon LaRouche Wednesday accused the state's Democratic Party leaders of working in concert with Republicans to keep 16 LaRouche-backed candidates out of the state's mainstream politics.

At news conferences in Davenport and Des Moines, Pat Noble Schenk, Iowa state coordinator for the LaRouche Democratic campaign, accused Iowa Democratic Party Chairwoman Bonnie Campbell and other party officials of being part of a "secret government" run by Vice President George Bush.

On Monday, Campbell said Iowa Democratic leaders would campaign on behalf of Republican candidates, if necessary, to defeat 16 LaRouche supporters who are running for Iowa offices as Democrats.

CAMPBELL SAID the LaRouche candidates are the "political equivalent of slugs coming out from underneath a rock," and she charged that LaRouche and his supporters are associated with anti-semitism.

Schenk challenged the contention that LaRouche candidates are extremists or radicals, claiming they hold positions similar to former President Franklin Roosevelt on economic issues and ex-President John Kennedy on space exploration.

Also, Sheila Jones, Midwest director of the LaRouche Democratic Campaign, issued a statement Wednesday that accused Campbell and other Iowa Democrats of "stark lunacy" for denouncing LaRouche candidates running as Democrats for seats in the state Legislature and each of Iowa's six congressional districts.

"George Bush must be pleased, as they have planned to urge Democrats to vote Republican against the LaRouche Democratic candidates," Jones said.

Teacher pay hike puts Iowa closer to national average

By Scott Sonner
United Press International

DES MOINES — Teacher salaries increased more in Iowa than in all but two other states this year, but more pay increases are needed to move Iowa salaries up to the national average, leaders of the state's largest teacher union said Wednesday.

Iowa teachers received an average salary increase of 10 percent this year, or $2,252 — boosting the state's ranking from 39th to 30th nationally, said Ken Tilp, president of the Iowa State Education Association.

The state's average teacher salary now stands at $24,867, compared to the U.S. average of $28,025.

"We have made progress and teacher salaries are more competitive than they were last year, that's the good news. The bad news is we still are $3,000 below the national average," ISEA spokesman Bill Sherman said.

"OTHER STATES are putting massive amounts of money into education as a key to economic development. There must be additional increases or we will fall back and the progress we made this past year will be eroded," he added.

Tilp applauded Republican Gov. Terry Branstad and the Democrat-controlled Legislature for approving a $92.5 million teacher salary package that made the pay increases possible.

But he said continued support is necessary to gain ground on surrounding states — Illinois, Minnesota and Wisconsin — that pay an average of $4,000 more than Iowa.

"Our goal now is to reach the national average and make Iowa teaching salaries more competitive with our bordering states," he said.

Tilp said the percentage increase in Iowa teacher salaries this year was the third highest nationally behind Connecticut, 16 percent, and Maine, 10.2 percent.

The top 10 average teacher salaries are: Alaska, $40,424; District of Columbia, $36,465; New York, $33,600; Connecticut, $33,515; California, $33,092; Michigan, $32,926; Rhode Island, $32,858; Maryland, $30,829; New Jersey, $30,778; Massachusetts, $30,019.

Averages in the states surrounding Iowa are: Illinois, $29,735; Minnesota, $29,620; Wisconsin, $29,206; Missouri, $24,703; Nebraska, $23,246; South Dakota, $19,750.

Campaign shifts to New York

Simon expected to suspend campaign after loss

United Press International

NEW YORK — The presidential campaign focus shifted to New York Wednesday with some party leaders hoping Michael Dukakis' big Wisconsin victory over Jesse Jackson had eased the threat of a chaotic deadlocked convention.

Also Wednesday, sources said Illinois Sen. Paul Simon, who won only 14 home-state primary, will suspend active campaigning for president and will keep his delegates in hopes of influencing the Democratic Party.

Wisconsin voters thwarted Simon's attempt for a comeback, giving him only 5 percent of their votes. Simon met Wednesday with aides and supporters and drafted his plans for the future of his campaign.

Simon is expected to announce his decision at a Capitol Hill news conference today.

DUKAKIS SAID he hoped he would pick up steam from his trouncing of Jackson in Tuesday's Wisconsin primary for the pivotal New York voting April 19 but does not expect to win the nomination with a knockout punch.

Jackson said the Wisconsin returns show he continues to expand his support beyond a solid base of black voters.

"The context is that our base continues to get broader — it's diverse," he said, pointing to indications he received up to a quarter of the white vote in Wisconsin.

Some party leaders were relieved Wisconsin seemed to have diminished the chances for a brokered July Democratic National Convention in Atlanta by giving Dukakis a clear shot at wrapping up the nomination before then.

"It's not an anti-Jackson sigh of relief," insisted Mark Siegel, a member of the Democratic National Committee, "but a sigh of relief that our nominee may emerge sooner in the process than we had thought."

"I THINK IT'S irreversible now," Siegel said of a Dukakis nomination. With the other Democratic candidates out on the hustings, there were a series of meetings among leading Republican figures on Capitol Hill.

Vice President George Bush, who is virtually assured the nomination, met with Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas, who pulled out of the race last week, shortly after Dole met with former television evangelist Pat Robertson, Bush's only remaining opponent.

Bush said he and Dole had a "good, friendly discussion about how we beat Democrats." Dole said, "It was about getting George elected in November."

Robertson said he would not quit the race so he can be a "rallying point" for conservatives at the August Republican National Convention in New Orleans.

In Wisconsin, Bush defeated Robertson by the anticipated overwhelming margin — 84 percent to 7 percent.

But Dukakis beat Jackson 48 percent to 28 percent, exceeding even the most optimistic forecasts from public opinion polls. Sen. Albert Gore of Tennessee, making a big push for the New York primary, was a distant third.

Cocaine kingpin brought to U.S. prison

United Press International

WASHINGTON — Juan Ramon Matta Ballesteros, the reputed cocaine trafficker nabbed in Honduras and whisked to the most secure prison in the United States, is a key suspect in the torture-murder of an American drug agent, government officials said Wednesday.

Matta is also wanted in three cities on federal drug charges and for escaping from a federal prison in Florida in 1971. The Drug Enforcement Administration said he is a suspect in the murder of DEA agent Enrique Camarena, but no formal charges have been filed.

Matta, 42, was arrested Tuesday morning in Tegucigalpa, Honduras, and placed on a flight to the Dominican Republic, where he was turned over to U.S. marshals and taken to New York on a commercial flight. He was then spirited off to the federal prison in Marion, Ill.

MATTA, ALSO wanted for his escape from a low-security prison in Florida in 1971, was placed temporarily in Marion's administrative detention unit — the most secure federal prison in the country.

Marshals spokesman Steve Boyle said that "Matta emerged as the major cocaine trafficker to the United States" and that he far surpassed cocaine kingpin Carlos Lehder in the volume and value of the cocaine he trafficked.

"If he isn't the No. 1, I don't know who is," Boyle said.

DEA officials said Wednesday Matta faces criminal drug charges in Los Angeles, Phoenix and New York. Authorities now are weighing which of the three pending indictments will take precedence and determine where Matta would be moved for a probable court hearing.

MATTA WAS indicted in Los Angeles in 1985 along with James Victoria-Cano and Jairo Delgado-Gutierrez, in connection with a San Fernando Valley cocaine ring that distributed at least 650 pounds of cocaine in 1981, said James Walsh of the Los Angeles U.S. attorney's office. All three had been fugitives since the indictment was returned.

DEA spokesman Robert Feldkamp said Tuesday night Matta was wanted in connection with the kidnapping, torture and murder three years ago of Camarena.

Whitehead granted unsupervised visits

By Frances Ann Burns
United Press International

NEWARK, N.J. — Surrogate mother Mary Beth Whitehead Gould may bring Baby M into her home for unsupervised visits, but must accept a subordinate role in raising the little girl she signed away and then tried to reclaim, a judge ruled Wednesday.

The judge granted Whitehead Gould a "liberal" schedule of visitation with her daughter, including one six-hour unsupervised visit each week beginning immediately and three visits every two weeks beginning in six months.

"I am delighted and grateful to know that, as Melissa grows up, we will have a meaningful and substantial relationship with each other," Whitehead Gould said in a prepared statement issued by her lawyers.

"THE LAST two years, I have struggled in order to preserve our relationship," she said, "I am convinced that our long struggle in the end will prove to be best for Melissa."

Superior Court Judge Birger Sween's ruling, which includes a schedule for further expansions in visitation over several years, ends almost two years of widely publicized and bitter court battles over Baby M, the 2-year-old now known as Melissa Stern.

"Melissa's best interest will be served by unsupervised, uninterrupted, liberal visitation with her mother," Sween wrote in a seven-page decision.

The child's father, William Stern of Tenafly, had asked that visitation be suspended until she was old enough to understand the circumstances of her conception and birth.

The Sterns' lawyer, Gary Skoloff, said his clients were "disappointed," but will not appeal. They were not available for comment.

The state Supreme Court last month denied Whitehead Gould's plea for custody of Baby M, who she conceived through artificial insemination under contract to Stern and his childless wife, Elizabeth.

North, Poindexter may receive Reagan pardon

United Press International

WASHINGTON — President Ronald Reagan hinted he might pardon former national security adviser John Poindexter and White House aide Oliver North at a recent meeting with GOP congressional members, the Washington Post reported Wednesday.

Two congressmen present at the president's closed March 22 appearance on Capitol Hill told the Post that Reagan made the suggestion at the end of the meeting.

The sources told the newspaper Rep. Henry Hyde, R-Ill., suggested the president should consider signing pardons for Poindexter and North toward the end of his term next January, "if nothing more significant happens."

HYDE ALSO suggested the president sign the documents in a ceremony at the Vietnam Veterans Memorial, a proposal that was applauded by the GOP audience, the Post said.

The two congressmen told the Post that Reagan responded he could not discuss the matter of pardons, but one of them said he added, "I like the sound of those words."

The other recalled the president said, "I like hearing what you said."

One congressman said the president's message was unmistakable, the newspaper said.

"If I had been Ollie (North) and witnessed that, I would have been pretty upbeat," the congressman told the Post.

Three days after the Capitol Hill session, Reagan said publicly that he believed North and Poindexter "are going to be found innocent because I don't think they were guilty of any lawbreaking or any crime." He also said he still believed North, a decorated Vietnam veteran, was "a hero."

North and Poindexter lost their White House jobs Nov. 25, when the diversion of profits from the secret Iranian arms sales to the Nicaraguan Contra rebels was revealed.

Gorbachev meets with Afghan president

By Charles P. Wallace
Los Angeles Times

MOSCOW — Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev traveled to Soviet Central Asia Wednesday to meet Afghan President Najibullah apparently to clear away the last hurdles blocking the start of a Soviet troop pullout from Afghanistan.

Tass, the official Soviet news agency, said that Gorbachev arrived in Tashkent, the capital of Soviet Uzbekistan, only 200 miles from the Afghan border, where he was later joined by Najibullah and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze.

The brief Tass dispatch gave no details about the talks, speaking obliquely instead about the economic development of Uzbekistan. But there was immediate specu-

tion that Gorbachev had traveled there to take personal charge of the deliberations surrounding the withdrawal of the estimated 115,000 Soviet troops in Afghanistan, where Moslem guerrillas have been battling the Soviet-backed government for more than eight years.

SHEVARDNADZE had been in Kabul, the Afghan capital, for the past three days to discuss a proposed settlement with Najibullah. Gorbachev apparently chose to see Najibullah in Soviet territory as a safety precaution, since Kabul is sporadically shelled by guerrillas.

Radio Kabul said that Najibullah would have a "short discussion" with Gorbachev but gave no details.

In Geneva, the Soviet-backed Afghan government and Pakistan are discussing plans for a Soviet pull-out under a guarantee from the United Nations. The Soviets invaded Afghanistan in December 1979 to prop up the country's Marxist regime, but Gorbachev recently called the Soviet presence there "a festering sore."

Progress at the Geneva talks has been stymied by Washington's insistence on "symmetry" — that any cutoff in U.S. aid to the country's Moslem guerrillas be accompanied by a parallel suspension of Soviet military assistance to the Kabul government.

SHEVARDNADZE, who discussed Afghanistan with Reagan administration officials during a visit to Washington last month, rejected the American insistence on symmetry and said the United States had reneged on an earlier promise.

The Soviets have said that they would proceed with the troop withdrawal unilaterally, even without a Washington-Moscow agreement that would formally guarantee the end of hostilities as the Soviets pulled out.

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Vladimir Petrovsky confirmed at a news conference in Moscow that Shevardnadze and Afghan leaders were discussing "a number of variants" for a withdrawal outside the framework of a U.N.-guaranteed accord.

There has also been speculation that the Afghan government is reluctant to let the Soviets depart while U.S. aid continues to flow to the Moslem rebels, known as the moujahedeen, who are based in neighboring Pakistan.

BUT PETROVSKY said that the Kabul government had agreed to the Soviet proposal for a unilateral withdrawal if the Geneva talks are not successful.

"Our position has been fully discussed and is in full accord with that of the Afghan government," he said. "Our positions have been agreed upon."

The Soviets had previously agreed to bring home about half their troops from Afghanistan in the first three months after a settlement and to complete the operation in another six months. But the collapse of the Geneva talks may provoke the Soviets into changing their proposed timetable.

Hijackers free 32 hostages

Gunmen say remaining captives are political prisoners

By Lee Stokes
United Press International

MANAMA, Bahrain — Gunmen who hijacked a Kuwaiti airliner demanding the release of 17 jailed extremists in Kuwait freed 32 more hostages Wednesday night but said their remaining captives would be treated as "political prisoners," the official Iranian news agency said.

The release brought to 57 the number of hostages set free since the Kuwaiti Airways jet with 112 people aboard was forced to land at the Mashad airport, 500 miles east of Tehran near the Afghan and Soviet borders. Fifty-five people remained aboard and it was thought between five and 10 of them were hijackers.

The hijackers, armed with pistols and hand grenades, seized Flight KU422 Tuesday on a flight from Bangkok, Thailand, to Kuwait, threatening to destroy the Boeing 747 unless Kuwait freed 17 Shiite Moslems jailed for the 1983 bombings of U.S. and French embassies and other targets.

THE HOSTAGES included three members of the Kuwaiti royal family.

The 32 people released Wednesday night, included two flight crew members, a Sudanese and a Yemenese, the Islamic Republic News Agency reported. The nationalities of the others were not known. An ailing Jordanian and 24 female passengers had already been released, IRNA said.

In a statement issued minutes before the release, IRNA reported that the hijackers said, "The other passengers will remain hostage and will be considered political prisoners and thus treated ... to settle our account with the Kuwaiti government."

The hijackers charged that the Kuwaiti government "severely tortures Moslem prisoners" and said they "wanted the world to become aware" of their demand for the release of the 17 prisoners in Kuwait, IRNA said.

"THEY (THE hijackers) said the account of innocent people was separate from those guilty. Therefore, they stressed, they will free anyone they thought had nothing to do with the issue. They said the three members of the Kuwaiti royal family will be among the first who should pay a dearly price," IRNA reported.

Once the 32 passengers were set free, the hijackers closed the doors of the Boeing 747 and turned off the light inside the cabin.

The release came after a Kuwaiti delegation had arrived in Iran Wednesday to try to negotiate the release of the hostages. A deadline set by the hijackers passed earlier at 10 a.m. and they had warned "time is running out."

It was not clear whether the Kuwaiti delegation, including Foreign Ministry officials and a medical team, was in contact with the hijackers on the jet, which sat in a cordoned-off area of the airport in its second day in Iran.

THE HIJACKERS' demand was the same one made during the last hijacking of a Kuwait Airways plane to Iran in December 1984, when members of pro-Iranian Shiite Moslem group forced an A-300 Airbus with 166 people aboard to fly to Tehran. Two American passengers were killed before the six-day standoff ended.

Airline officials reported 112 people — 97 passengers and 15 crew members — had been aboard Flight KU422 when it was hijacked. Former hostages reported between five and 10 hijackers on board the plane.

Shultz praises King Hussein's efforts

By Robert Mackay
United Press International

AMMAN, Jordan — Secretary of State George Shultz praised Wednesday the Middle East peace efforts of Jordan's King Hussein but pointedly refrained from mentioning Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir, an opponent of the U.S. peace plan.

A State Department official said Shultz's silence on Israel's role in the peace process spoke for itself.

Shultz said he had encountered "deep-seated obstacles to peace," but added "with a serious commitment, it can happen. In all candor, I am not able to say that it is happening. While we have made some progress, differences have not been substantially narrowed."

IN A DEPARTURE statement at Tel Aviv's Ben Gurion Airport in Israel before continuing his Middle East peace mission, Shultz also pleaded for Israeli acceptance of the peace plan he has been pushing on a five-nation shuttle.

"Say 'yes' to this initiative," he said.

The plea was directed at Shamir, who has repeatedly voiced his objection to Shultz's Arab-Israeli peace plan that is an attempt to settle differences over the Israeli-occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip, taken by Israel in the 1967 Middle East war. Anti-Israeli protests that erupted Dec. 9, 1987, in the occupied territories have killed 135 people.

Before leaving Israel Wednesday, Shultz briefed leaders on his talks a day earlier with Hussein and Syrian President Hafez Assad.

He then flew to Cairo for talks with Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak and back to Amman for another meeting with Hussein.

IN JERUSALEM, a statement by Shamir issued after the briefing complained, "We still do not have a clear Jordanian answer" to the peace plan.

It did not mention that Israel also has given no answer to the plan.

In a statement before departing Israel, Shultz said Hussein had given him a list of written questions about the peace plan Tuesday, "indicating a serious engagement in this quest for peace."

"His is the kind of approach required for this process to move ahead," Shultz said of Hussein.

He said he will continue his mission and that the U.S. peace plan "is intact and alive."

Shultz met with Mubarak for about three hours in Cairo, with the Egyptian president also urging Shultz to continue his efforts.

"There is progress on the peace process," Mubarak said, although adding Shamir was still opposing an international conference, a part of Shultz's peace plan.

"I hope he can change sometime for the sake of peace," Mubarak said as Shultz stood beside him.

Shultz then flew to Jordan for a working dinner in Amman with Hussein.

China defends sale of arms to Saudis

By David Holley
Los Angeles Times

BEIJING — Chinese Foreign Minister Wu Xueqian Wednesday vigorously defended his government's increasing international weapons sales, including the recent sale of intermediate-range ballistic missiles to Saudi Arabia.

Wu, speaking at a news conference, confirmed that China had sold "some non-nuclear, conventional surface-to-surface missiles" to Saudi Arabia, and added:

"The Saudi government made a commitment to us of no transfer, no first use of these missiles, and to use these missiles entirely for defensive purposes. We believe that the Saudi government will honor its commitment."

VICE FOREIGN Minister Qian Qichen joined Wu at the news conference and spoke out on the question of the Spratly Islands, in the South China Sea, where Chinese and Vietnamese forces fought last month. Qian demanded that Vietnam withdraw from the disputed islands, but he said that China would not initiate any renewal of the fighting in the area.

Both countries reported casualties in last month's clash of naval forces in the area.

China's sale of missiles to Saudi Arabia has caused concern in Israel, even though Saudi Arabia is believed to want them as protection against Iran. The missiles, which could be equipped with nuclear warheads, are capable of reaching any area in the Middle East. They could be used with conventional warheads to attack cities, but are not considered accurate enough to be useful against military targets.

YOSSI BEN-AHARON, director of the Israeli prime minister's office, was quoted last month as saying: "Israel has acquired a reputation of not waiting until a potential danger becomes actual." In 1981, Israel sent aircraft to destroy a nuclear reactor near Baghdad that it believed was part of an Iraqi nuclear-weapons program.

The day after Ben-Aharon's comment, Radio Damascus responded with a statement that "aggression against the sister kingdom of Saudi Arabia will be considered as aggression against Syria." Jordan also expressed support for Saudi Arabia.

China usually supports Arab states in the Middle East, and Wu said Wednesday that China supported Arab states in opposition to any threat of Israeli attack on the new missiles. But he insisted that the sale itself contributed to peace in the Middle East.

The missile sale, he said, "is conducive to the stability of the situation in Saudi Arabia in particular and to the Middle East in general."

He said that China's "attitude on the question of arms sales is a serious one (and) responsible as well."

Mecham vows to run in recall election

PHOENIX — Former Gov. Evan Mecham vowed Wednesday to use a scheduled recall election to run again for governor, while the Arizona Senate formally adjourned its historic impeachment trial by awarding Mecham $202,433.75 to pay his legal fees. "I can win it again," Mecham said on ABC's "Good Morning America" two days after being removed from office. "Our research tells us we can. I've had more support and bigger crowds and more enthusiastic and committed (supporters)." Although Mecham said he would run in the May 17 recall election if he could get on the ballot, State Elections Officer Jim Shumway said Wednesday he has ordered that ballots be printed without Mecham's name.

Publicity slows jury picks in drug trial

RAND, Vt. — Jury selection in the cocaine trial of John Zaccaro Jr. dragged on Wednesday as lawyers searched for prospective jurors unaffected by the politics and publicity surrounding the case. Zaccaro, 24, son of 1984 Democratic vice presidential candidate Geraldine Ferraro, is charged with selling $25 worth of cocaine to an undercover police officer in 1986 while a senior at Middlebury College. Jury selection started Monday as prosecutors and defense lawyers began questioning the first pool of potential jurors individually in the chambers of District Court Judge Francis McCaffrey.

U.S. urges task force to combat cocaine

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic — The Reagan administration is seriously considering the development of a multinational police force to attack record-setting cocaine production and to assist governments unable to control the problem in Colombia and other coca-growing countries in South America, a senior government official said Wednesday. The unprecedented approach is being studied by President Ronald Reagan's National Drug Policy Board, which is expected to make an "expedited" recommendation to Attorney General Edwin Meese, who heads the interagency panel, a board member said.

First Israeli civilian killed in West Bank

BETA, Israeli-occupied West Bank — An Israeli teenage girl and two Arabs were killed Wednesday when rock-throwing villagers attacked a group of Israeli youths hiking in the West Bank, witnesses and military officials said. The teenager was the first Israeli civilian killed in Palestinian violence since disturbances erupted in the West Bank and Gaza Strip Dec. 9.

Gulf foes continue 'war of cities'

BAGHDAD, Iraq — Iraq Wednesday fired four long-range missiles on Tehran and mounted air raids on eight other Iranian towns, and Iran retaliated with missile attacks on Baghdad and two other cities. A Baghdad military spokesman said that three schoolchildren were killed and 50 civilians were injured, including 41 children and two teachers, when an Iranian missile slammed into a school in the southern port of Umm Qasr near the Kuwaiti border. Iran said that five children and a woman were killed and 60 children and hospital workers were injured by an Iraqi missile that hit a hospital in Tehran.

City grateful 'Dead Heads' are gone

HARTFORD, Conn. — Police with bullhorns roused hundreds of devotees of the rock group Grateful Dead from their sleeping bags before dawn Wednesday, ordering the "Dead Heads" to leave their park encampment. "Dead Heads" are fans who follow the rock band around the national concert circuit. "There were tons of trash — truckload after truckload of garbage and junk on the street and lawn," Assistant City Manager John Burke said. "I have no desire to have these people back. This year was a total disaster."

Riverboat gambling drowns

United Press International
DES MOINES — The Iowa Senate's 2-year-old effort to legalize casino riverboat gambling sank for the final time this year when backers of the plan abandoned hopes Wednesday of breaking the political logjam forged by moral opponents and parochial proponents. Senate Majority Leader Bill Hutchins, D-Audubon, who earlier was angered over vote trading on the issue, said supporters of the measure admitted they could not tailor a compromise package that would garner the necessary 26 votes. "It's over for this year," said Hutchins. "There were only about 23 solid votes for riverboat gambling. That's why it didn't pass." The bill died largely as a result of regional factions fighting for the few coveted licenses that would be issued to the floating casinos touted as tourist gold mines. SPEACIALLY, Sen. Don Gettings, R-Ottumwa, said the measure failed because of an amendment by Sen. Jack Rife, R-Moscow, which cut the number of licenses from 15 to six. That change shut out the Missouri River from participation in the new venture and cost supporters of the bill several key votes from western Iowa senators. Sen. Al Sturgeon, D-Sioux City, said he was not a big supporter of riverboat gambling, but was willing to vote for it if western Iowans were given the same opportunity as eastern Iowans along the Mississippi River.

Possible plan

According to recent reports, Big Ten athletes do not do too much worse academically than their "unlettered" counterparts. The NCAA claims the median graduation rate for all Big Ten students is 60 percent, only three points higher than the rate for athletes. This might suggest that worries about college athletes missing their educations are unfounded. But that interpretation would be erroneous.

Female athletes and men in the non-revenue sports swell the number of varsity graduates. In the money sports — football and basketball — far more often than not, the players leave the university without a degree. Here at Iowa, over the last five years, 56 percent of the football players and 75 percent of the male basketball players did not graduate. Clearly this must be corrected.

If anything, it behooves the university to see that the athletes whose efforts contribute so much financially to the establishment get their degrees. Too many float along in local celebrity and perhaps the unreal fantasy of a pro career and find themselves, after the draft, qualified for nothing. Often, too, the athlete has been drawn into an alien social environment and then kept off-base for four years by his special status in the community. He finishes his undergraduate years less prepared socially than the non-athlete, and so it is more essential that he be prepared academically.

The problem is not with the sports themselves. They in no way preclude academic excellence. Recent studies show athletes actually do better academically in season than out, probably because they structure their time better. It is when they are not in training they flounder — just ask Iowa wrestling Coach Dan Gable.

We may hope that Iowa basketball Coach Tom Davis, with his famous doctorate, will bring a little more reverence for education into the basketball program. Someone must impress upon the athletes that very few can make a living playing games. Fewer still can make a social contribution.

On a larger scale, the exploitation of athletes would be more difficult if the NCAA required that scholarship holders graduate before another scholarship is granted. The coaches would take much more interest in academics then, and some of the athletes might be further motivated to graduate out of loyalty to the institution — to the benefit of both.

Living on the edge

Yes, it's a dangerous world.

We fly in planes that, once in a while, plummet from the skies. We cross busy streets at a gallop, thumbing our nose at speeding trucks. Some climb sheer rock faces, their lives transfixed on stone by rope and steel, and call it "leisure."

Everywhere you look, men and women court disaster. They do it for pleasure or to make life more interesting. They do it for the raw, visceral thrill of looking down the barrel of catastrophic risk or simply because they don't know any better. In the case of the Palo nuclear power facility, they — Iowa Electric Light and Power by name — do it to boil water.

Ask the man on the street how a nuclear power plant makes his light bulbs burn and, after some hemming and hawing, he will probably tell you electricity is squeezed from the charged heart of the atom. He won't tell you — unless he's a nuclear physicist, electrical engineer or student of elegant ironies — that the heat generated by a controlled fission reaction is simply used to boil water and drive a steam turbine, just like the heat of burning oil or coal in a conventional power facility.

In Iowa, water is being boiled by the heat of the split atom, and apparently with reckless disregard for the risky nature of the enterprise. Tuesday, federal inspectors reporting to the Nuclear Regulatory Commission outlined 100 safety deficiencies in Iowa's only commercial nuclear power facility at Palo. Eighteen of these deficiencies were in the area of public safety in the event of an accident at the plant.

No one denies the importance of developing non-fossil energy sources. Fossil fuels are a finite resource that will soon be exhausted — if not in our lifetimes, our children's. But what is an acceptable level of risk in this pursuit?

Acceptability of risk in any human endeavour is determined by four factors — the perceived necessity of the outcome, the likelihood of mishap, the magnitude of mishap and the availability of alternatives to the behavior from which the mishap could proceed.

Do we need electricity? Obviously. How likely is a nuclear meltdown? Thousands of square miles of toxic farmland in the Soviet Ukraine say it is more likely than we ever thought. What is the magnitude of the mishap? Catastrophic on a scale rarely witnessed outside of war.

Do cost-effective alternatives exist? Perhaps not right now, but if the money squandered on nuclear power facilities were diverted to the development of clean energy sources — solar, geothermal, tidal — almost certainly one or more of them could be made financially viable.

The Chernobyl disaster left the American nuclear power industry in a state somewhere between panic and shambles — good news — but the intolerable presence of on-line nuclear plants persists. The Federal Emergency Management's report on Palo itemizes, in chilling detail, how ill-prepared the nuclear power industry is to manage the consequences of its own risk-taking.

Nuclear power is without a doubt the most exotic way to boil water ever invented and a danger we can do without. It is, as the saying goes, lighting a candle with an atom bomb — overkill, literally.

1988 baseball predictions

Aaaaaaaay, hot dog! Ay, hot dog, here! No, I'm not talking about the author of this esteemed column, who this fine April day adopts the moniker "The Spring Dopester." I'm talking about the start of another round of the greatest human contrivance since the heliocentric universe — baseball!

It must be spring — a host of happenin' dudes have shaved off their beards. So, astute social commentary can wait another week. See ya, Jesse! Bye bye, Georgie Porgie! Kiss off, Amway! We're off to Opening Day and we couldn't give a spitball about anything else. It's time once again for the annual exercise in clairvoyance — and/or humiliation — this year's baseball picks.

LAST YEAR, dear reader, this same columnist picked San Francisco and St. Louis to meet in the National League playoffs — and did it in print! And guess what: It came true! No matter that those predictions appeared in some obscure West Coast rag with a readership that didn't know its pine tar from its "Dark Star." You can look it up.

Editor's note: The author neglects to mention he picked Kansas City and Cleveland to win in the American League. Yes, folks — Cleveland. The same team that finished with the worst record in baseball. So keep your grains of salt handy.

Without further ado, here they are. The pick of 1988:

The Big Story this season won't be a New York Subway Series, but a BART Series. That's Bay Area Rapid Transit, the plush, chic-chic system that links "Baghdad by The Bay" (San Francisco) with

Bob Ivry

"Tehran With Docks" (Oakland), a system sure to confound the million or so journalists that will converge on the Battle of the Cities this fall like a horde of locusts.

IN THE SENIOR circuit, place yer bets on the Giants and Mets. (My cut of your winnings is a third.)

In the East, everybody and her bat boy is picking New York. Which makes me wanna put 'em fourth. But, alas, the bad boys from Flushing — how apt — are just too good.

Even High Times is getting in on the act, with a centerfold of Dwight Gooden's nose, and Mademoiselle is running photos of Ron Darling in Jim Palmer-style briefs. Even if Doc's nose falls off, the Mets still have Sleazy, Greedy and Doped-Up to pick up the slack.

The Rat will lead the Clarkless Cardinals through the maze and into a distant second, followed by none other than those so-recently hapless Pirates, who will discover — to their chagrin — that they'll actually be expected to win in '89 based on their '88 showing.

Who really cares from there on in? Say, Expos and Phillies. Did I forget anyone?

TURNING WEST, Jeffrey "Penitentiary Face" Leonard will lead the repeat offenders the San Francisco Giants into their first Fall Classic since Willie Sutton knocked over his last bank. Why is this team the only recidivist from last year? They are so deep that a 320 hitter named Mike "Who?" Aldrete warms the bench and the talented Atlee "Tommy John Elbow" Hammaker populates the bullpen. No, that's not a matador's flag he's waving out there. It's his face.

Speaking of red, Eric Davis is arguably the best player on the planet, but beyond him, Kal Daniels and Danny Jackson, the Reds are indistinguishable from the Dodgers, who will finish third. No time to stop and smell the Rose in Cincinnati. Three straight second-place finishes stink.

The Astros could wrestle third place from the La-las, but not if Kirk Gibson sinks his teeth into their tails.

Don't count out San Diego and Atlanta — out of the cellar, that is. My softball team could make a good run against these guys.

IN THE JUNIOR circuit, the A's and Jays will amaze.

Last season, I said the Cleveland hitters were so fierce they stepped up to the plate with the bark still on their bats. Well, it turns out the bats were made of cork. No wood, just cork. Look for the Tribe to battle the once-mighty Orioles for dead last in the East.

George Bell, like a latter-day Moses, will return from his manager-imposed exile as designated hitter to lead Toronto to the division crown, but not the Promised Land. Remember that Moses didn't make it there with his team either, and the Blue Jays will be stopped by the American League's West Bank champions, the Oakland A's. It'll be close-closethose in both tribes, with Boston, New York, Detroit, Kansas City and Minnesota all getting a whiff of the land of milk and honey.

BUT ONLY TWO were born to rule. Look for Jimmy Key to have a Cy Young-type year for the Jays, while the Yankees lose a lot of 13-12 and 9-8 games. Ron Guidry, you'll be missed.

The Brew Crew have a few too new — a flashy way of saying Milwaukee is headed for fifth place due to inexperience. 1989 will be the year for them and the Bosox, but don't hold your breath.

No team made more winter changes than the Oakland A's. New alpha-bits include Darv Parker, Bob Welch, Matt Young, Glenn Hubbard and Ron Hassey. Watch Eric "Who?" Plunk save a bayful of games. You heard it here first. Mark McGwire, José Canseco and Parker will combine for 100 homers. And Dave Stewart and Curt Young are ready to prove the skeptics have a Louisville Slugger up their A's.

Too bad, John Wathan. The rookie Kansas City manager believes his Royals have the best pitching in baseball. They will have the best pitching of any second-place team in baseball.

The Twinkies will prove they're no cupcakes and finish a close third, followed by the Rangers and Angels — who both have star pitchers named Witt but nobody half as fetching as Katarina — and the White Sox and Mariners. Any team that tries to make a third baseman out of as talented an outfielder as Kenny Williams deserves obscurity. They'll get it — as the St. Petersburg Sox in '89.

There it is. Sit back, keep the beer coming and don't forget to tip your hot dog vendor.

Ups and downs of manhood

The elevator door opened and the tiresome ritual began.

Those of the male persuasion stepped slightly to the side and just stood there.

Those of the female persuasion leaned tentatively forward until they were sure we weren't going to move.

Finally, one of them bolted into the elevator, followed by the others. We went next. But after all the hesitating, the door began to close and one of us had to bang it back open to get aboard.

The elevator went down and at the first floor the door opened. The ritual was repeated. The males stood as if frozen until a female got off, followed by the others. Then the rest of us scrambled out before the door closed.

WHY DO MEN do it? Why do I do it? Why do we believe that we must let females get on and off elevators before we do?

It has been years since the historic first public bra-burning. Since then, women have risen to high public office, become major corporate executives and now work as equals in most professions and many trades.

True, many inequities remain. But even the most hard-nosed of feminists must concede that during the past two decades, great strides have been made. I mean, I know dozens of women who swear better than me.

Yet, we persist in the elevator ritual, the opening-the-door-for-them ritual, the first-in-the-cab ritual, the stand-up-when-they-get-to-the-restaurant-table ritual, the help-them-on-with-their-coat ritual, the shake-hands-only-if-they-offer-to-first ritual, and many others.

WHY SHOULDN'T I get on or off the elevator first if I'm closest to the door? It would be more orderly and result in less emotional stress brought on by those moments of indecision.

Even worse, on the few occasions that I've done it — bolting on or off the elevator with a devil-may-care attitude — why do I immediately feel guilty and embarrassed, fearing that the females behind me are thinking: "What a boor."

Seeking answers to these questions, I asked a female executive why women expect to get on and off elevators first.

"We don't expect it," she snapped. "In fact, it infuriates me."

Then why do you do it?

"We don't do it. You do it. It's your fault. You stand there like a bunch of wimps. So if we don't break the logjam and get off first, we'll be riding the damn thing all day."

YOU MEAN you don't see this as being a courtesy required of men?

"Of course not. Who the hell cares who gets off an elevator first, unless it's on fire? And I don't need a man to open a door for me or help me on with my coat. I've been opening doors and putting on my own clothes as long as they have. And when they jump up at a restaurant table, one of them usually hits the table with his leg and slops water all over the place."

Then why do we do these things? "How do I know? You're the ones who are doing it. We just wish you'd stop."

You won't think we're boors? "Of course not. If anything, we'll respect you for treating us as equals and being enlightened."

I am always seeking enlightenment in this foggy world. But the question still remained: Why do we do it?

SO I PUT that question to the eminent psychiatrist, Dr. I.M. Kooky.

"If I may summarize your question about elevators and doors and cars," he said, "what you seem to be asking me is why do we continue to abide by the outmoded tradition of 'ladies first,' is that not correct?"

Yes. Is it because we are subconsciously patronizing them, treating them as weaker or lesser creatures?

"Possibly. But I believe that the primary psychological reason for our behavior is that by letting them go first, we get a real good look at their legs and their bottoms. I'm a leg and bottom guy, you know. And, boy, oh, boy, when you open a car door to let one of them out, you can sometimes get a glimpse of thigh."

That's why we do it, to gawk and leer?

"I don't know about you, but that's why I do it. I always help them on with their coats because it gives me a chance to get a sniff of their perfume. A real turn-on, I'll tell you."

Doctor, I am shocked and disgusted.

"You are? Then I'll tell you something. You ought to go see a psychiatrist."

U.S. sends 800 Marines to Panama for jungle training

By Jim Mann
Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — The Pentagon announced Wednesday that it is sending 800 Marines to Panama for jungle training this week, but insisted that the deployment is a routine exercise without connection to the ongoing U.S. effort to overthrow Panamanian strongman Manuel Noriega.

Meanwhile, administration sources told the Los Angeles Times that a high-level interagency group has recommended to President Ronald Reagan new, tougher economic sanctions against Noriega. Under the proposal, Reagan would invoke the International Emergency Economic Powers Act to block any payments from American companies and individuals to the Noriega regime or any of its agencies.

The law has been invoked in the past only in extreme cases, involving Iran, Libya and Nicaragua. It would effectively cut off one of the last remaining sources of dollars for the regime, which has already had great difficulty meeting its payrolls.

THE NEW MARINE deployment will provide an additional U.S. military presence in Panama beyond the 1,300 troops the Pentagon dispatched last Friday night to beef up security and the 10,000 troops already stationed in Panama at the U.S. Southern Command headquarters. A Pentagon spokesman said the Marines will arrive Friday at the U.S. Army Jungle Training Center at Ft. Sherman and will stay there for about three weeks.

"This has absolutely nothing to do with the security enhancement (in Panama)," said Pentagon spokesman Nancy LaLunta. "These are three-week sessions that are normally run 14 times a year. It just happens to be time for a new unit to start their training."

She acknowledged that because of budget cutbacks, the Marine unit from Camp Pendleton is the first to be sent to the Jungle Training School from the United States since the beginning of this year.

THE PENTAGON'S announcement drew immediate criticism on Capitol Hill.

"I think there is a legitimate reason to send security forces to Panama as we did last week to protect American lives and property," said Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif. "But I think it's excessive to send Marines down there for jungle training, as we did today. It's obviously done to intimidate Gen. Noriega, and it's playing with fire, because someone could get killed and then we would be in a position of being drawn into a shooting war."

Sen. William Cohen, R-Maine, a member of the Senate Intelligence Committee, said he interpreted the dispatch of the Marines as a sign that the administration is "increasing its military capabilities in the event that the military option has to be exercised" in Panama.

The prospect of possible U.S. military action in Panama is causing growing concern among other Latin American countries.

"We don't want any more military tension in the area," a spokesman for the Costa Rican Embassy in Washington said Wednesday. "That's against our hopes for the region. . . . Whatever measures the United States has to take or wants to take in Panama, that's up to them, but we would be opposed to any military action."

Panama

high treason. One more arrest warrant doesn't mean anything, and I don't recognize him anyway." The government's move to arrest Delvalle came as a U.S. helicopter task force arrived as part of a 1,300-member troop contingent ordered to Panama by President Ronald Reagan to bolster security at American military bases. Earlier in the day the government accepted an offer by the Catholic Church to mediate talks between representatives of Noriega and opposition figures seeking his ouster. ALSO WEDNESDAY, riot police and a paramilitary gang clashed with hundreds of demonstrators in the capital, breaking up an opposition march by firing rifles into the air and tear-gas grenades at the protesters. The arrest warrants were issued on charges filed last month against Delvalle, Sosa and Lewis accusing them of "crimes against the national economy" and "illegally usurping public functions." The charges were lodged immediately after Delvalle asked that Panamanian assets held in the United States be frozen to prevent the newly installed government from using them. The sentence carried by the charges was unclear. In Washington, State Department spokesman Dennis Harter said,

"We do not recognize the Noriega government as a legitimate government so... we would not take countenance of such an arrest warrant." The opposition Civic Crusade, a coalition of business, civic and professional groups that organized a 16-day-old nationwide general strike against Noriega, called Wednesday for a "March Against Hunger" in defiance of a government ban on demonstrations.

President

"I think that everyone has a responsibility to be educated for citizenship," Rawlings said, adding research also plays an educating role. A 1975-76 junior fellow for the Washington, D.C., Center for Hellenic Studies, Rawlings served as book review editor of The Classical Journal from 1973 to 1977, and editor from 1977 to 1983. He was also the recipient of a 1971 National Endowment for the Humanities Summer Fellowship for Research.

university these days to spend a lot of your time out with the public," he said, adding university administrators must prove to the public the institution needs support and is worthy of support. Dino said administrators at the University of Colorado have been successful in external relations, but added Rawlings is "not a big attention-getter." "He's low-key, but he gets the job done," Dino said. Rawlings received a bachelor's degree with honors in classics from Haverford College in Haverford, Pa., in 1966. He received his doctorate from Princeton University in 1970, and has lectured there as well as Oxford University, the University of California-Berkeley and the University of North Carolina-Chapel Hill.

RAWLINGS ALSO received the 1979 University of Colorado Teaching Excellence Award. Dino said Rawlings was one of the architects for the University of Colorado "Strategic Plan," a long-term outline of academic and goal-oriented planning for the university. Rawlings uses more than just administrative skills in his current job, Dino said, adding Rawlings is equally approachable to other administrators, faculty and staff members and students. "Generally, that's how many people sum him up — as just a nice guy," Dino said. "I don't think he has any enemies." Rawlings said he hopes to talk to many students, staff members, faculty members and administrators at the UI when he visits this week. He said he wants to learn specific interests and concerns of those in the UI community. "MY MAIN PURPOSE in coming is to meet a number of people at the university, from all areas of the university, to get an idea of what people are thinking," he said. Two candidates have already met with campus representatives. UI Interim President Richard Remington and University of Kansas Vice Chancellor Frances Horowitz are expected to be among the list of candidates recommended by the UI presidential search committee. Search Committee Chairman Sam Becker said the committee may also invite more candidates to the UI before submitting names to the state Board of Regents. The regents will select the next UI president.

Remington

"There is also a second group, and we are in it." "I think one of these days one of those universities will move up," he said. "Maybe we'll be the one that breaks out of the pack." Remington rejected arguments that improving the UI's ranking would create elitism and decrease accessibility. "Anyone in the upper half of their class in an Iowa high school can get in and I hope it always stays that way," he said. "I don't think (urging high schools to improve their programs and upgrading admissions standards at the UI) is elitist," he said. "I think that's in the best interest of the students and to the state of Iowa." "THERE'S NOTHING worse than to bring people into a university and then not giving them the best education you can," he said. "That's a sham." The UI College of Liberal Arts is one area in need of special attention, Remington said. "The arts are not areas that bring a lot of money to the university," he said. "But they are areas traditional to the university, and I think they need to be maintained." But it is also important to increase funding to areas such as engineering and science, which produce new technology, he said. "Frankly, we haven't done a whole lot for a lot of the areas in the university in the last five to 10 years," Remington said, citing a lack of funds as the reason.

markets." In his letter, Langeveldt doubted the redistribution of economic and political freedoms would come without the sacrifice of economic luxuries by white South Africans. "White South Africans won't voluntarily relinquish economic power. Comprehensive economic sanctions will increase the cost of apartheid, and whites will suffer a great deal more than blacks. Pressure is needed to change," Langeveldt's letter stated.

OPPOSITION TO Suzman's political perspective, which she calls the "old liberal standard," was most evident during the question-and-answer session following her lecture. Both advocates and critics formed behind the microphones to voice their accord or dissent. "Now I am getting cross," Suzman said after a particularly blue interlude. "This is more like the National Assembly all the time." Suzman reaffirmed her commitment to a democratic South Africa, something she feels she has spent her life fighting for.

Edwards, Price, Berry gain Olympic tryout

By Eric J. Hess
 The Daily Iowan
 Three members of the 1987-88 Iowa women's basketball team Tuesday were extended invitations to the U.S. Olympic Trials in Colorado Springs, Colo., April 20-24.
 Michelle Edwards, Shanda Berry and Franthea Price are among 53 players from around the country who will have a chance to make the 12-woman team that will represent the U.S. at the Summer Olympics in Seoul, South Korea.

 "It's going to be a tough trial from start to end," said Edwards, who was named the Champion Products Player of the Year and a Kodak all-American this past season.
EDWARDS AVERAGED 20 points, 4.8 rebounds and shot 58 percent from the floor this season. She finished her career at Iowa with 1,821 points, second on the all-time list. Her 621 points made her only the second Iowa women's basketball player other than Cindy Haugejorde (1976-80) to score more than 600 in a season.

 The 5-foot-9 guard from Boston, tabbed "Ice" by teammates, led the Hawkeyes to a No. 1 ranking in the Associated Press and USA Today women's basketball polls. Iowa lost to Long Beach State in the West Regional finals of the NCAA Tournament.
 Edwards said she was excited and honored but added some hard work is ahead in order to make the team coached by North Carolina State's Kay Yow.

SHE SAID improving her stamina and fine tuning her shooting and defense will be keys to her success. Yow employs a run-and-gun offense with the Wolfpack, "which is basically what we do at Iowa," Edwards said.
 Berry, a junior from Oelwein, Iowa, said she expects the trials to be grueling and the play to be physical.

 "With all the talent that's out there, you don't know what the committee is looking for," Berry said.
 The 6-3 center was the second-leading scorer and top rebounder this season, averaging 14.5 points and 8.5 rebounds.
 "Right now coming out of tournament play, I feel good about my rebounding," she said.
 Price said she has had so much homework that the announcement of her invitation hasn't really hit her yet.

 "I guess I was a little bit shocked," she said. "I'm taking everything in stride."
 Price, a sophomore from River Rouge, Mich., averaged 13.6 points and 5.8 rebounds per game.
 The 5-9 forward said she believes foot speed and whether she can take a player one-on-one to the basket will determine whether or not she makes the team.

Nasti won't skip NCAAs

By Anne Upson
 The Daily Iowan
 When the 1988 men's gymnastics season climaxes with NCAA competition in Lincoln, Neb., April 14-16, senior Ron Nasti's four-year college career will come to an end.
 Nasti, known as "Skip" to the rest of the team, has recorded an impressive history as a Hawkeye. In this season alone, Nasti won the Big Ten floor exercise title, a place on the all-conference team, equalled the school record in the all-around (57.30) and is heading into the NCAA championships with national rankings in four events.

 The third Hawkeye in three years to gain all-America mention in floor exercise, Nasti said he owes his accomplishments to long hours in the gym and encouragement from his teammates.
"IT TAKES HARD work, discipline and other people," the Elmhurst, Ill., native said. "It's hard in gymnastics to work out alone in the gym, to come into the gym every day and not have other people there — it's hard to assess what you're doing."
 Nasti said he can improve his own performance by watching his teammates.
 "I usually work out with Joe (Thome)," Nasti said. "He helps to coach me and it motivates me more."
 If it weren't for his sisters, Nasti explained, he never would have become involved in gymnastics.

After blowing opener, Iowa salvages split

By Scott Wingert
 The Daily Iowan
 It took six hours in 45-mile-per-hour winds Wednesday, but the Iowa baseball team finally notched a win.
 After blowing their second three-run lead in the late innings, the Hawkeyes rallied to win the second game of their doubleheader with Mankato State, 9-7, before a small but hardy group of fans at Iowa Field.
 Iowa lost the opener, 13-7, in eight innings, after Maverick left fielder Tom Lepel drilled a one-out, three-run home run off reliever Mark Boland in the top of the seventh inning to tie the game, 4-4.
 Mankato State proceeded to send 15 batters to the plate in the eighth, scoring nine runs on four walks, five singles and a double.
THE SPLIT LEFT Iowa with a 10-10 mark while Mankato State

Baseball
 moved to 9-10.
 "We're going through a tough time," Iowa Coach Duane Banks said. "We need to do a better job of hitting when our guys are in scoring position. But that's the way it's been all year."
 The Hawkeyes left the bases full seven times on the day and 26 times this season. But Banks was pleased with way his squad rallied back to salvage a split with the Mavericks.
 "The kids hung in there," Banks said. "They're beginning to not let the little things bother them. We just need to put it all together. Once we do, we'll be alright."
 Iowa jumped ahead in the opener, 4-1, when it batted around in the fourth inning on three walks and

Wick homer sparks sweep over Drake

By Scott Wingert
 The Daily Iowan
 Two softball teams heading in opposite directions continued their respective streaks Wednesday.
 The Iowa softball team, sparked by a two-run home run by Karen Wick, rallied to sweep a doubleheader from Drake at Lions Field in Urbandale, Iowa.
 The Hawkeyes won the opener, 4-2, behind the pitching of rookies Tami Chown and Diana Repp. Repp, with relief help from Cristen

 Iowa improved to 19-7, while Drake fell to 4-14.

17 former champs lead Masters field

By Mike Rabun
 United Press International
 AUGUSTA, Ga. — The Masters, which serves as an elegant link to golf's heritage and provides the game's first major champion of the year, begins today over the sculptured landscape created more than a half century ago by one of the greatest heroes in American sport.
 "This all started as a party," Masters Chairman Hord Hardin said. "It has changed somewhat."
 What the late Bobby Jones started in 1934 as a gathering for friends and amateurs has grown into one of the world's leading sporting events and a player's first trip to the beautifully manicured Augusta National Golf Club course usually brings a response bordering on awe.
 "It is the kind of place," said first-time participant Robert Wrenn, "that makes you want to say — 'wow.'"
A FIELD OF 90 players will compete this year, one that includes 17 former champions, 12 amateurs and 17 players who have never been in the tournament before.
 It begins with a hint of concern from Hardin, who oversees the tournament in hopes of keeping alive the traditions and values cherished by Jones — the only man ever to win the U.S. Open, British Open, U.S. Amateur and British Amateur in the same year.
 Hardin, admitting he may be an alarmist, said on the eve of the tournament that escalating prize money and the commercialization of golf could drive the Masters out of business.
 "I don't envision us having the Pizza Hut Masters," Hardin said. "Now that I've said that, they will probably send me a lot of pizza, but I don't eat it anyway."
"MAYBE I'M ALONE in thinking this, way, but if it came to that (commercialization of the tournament), I don't think the members would want to continue (the Masters)."
 Such thoughts were not shared by the man who has won the Masters a record six times.
 "I don't care how much money people play for in other tournaments," said Jack Nicklaus. "The Masters is still the Masters and

Patton looks toward top 10 NCAA finish

By Eric J. Hess
 The Daily Iowan
 The Iowa men's swimming team is going into today's first day of the NCAA Championships in Indianapolis thinking improvement.
 There's improvement on pool times and improvement on the 18th place the Hawkeyes finished last year. But Iowa Coach Glenn Patton is aiming for loftier achievements.
 "One of our goals is to try to be the top non-Sun Belt team at the NCAAs," he said. "Michigan and Nebraska are our main rivals for that."
 "We're also shooting for the top 10. We think we have a reasonably decent shot at it."
LED BY FOUR-TIME Big Ten Swimmer of the Year and seven-time all-American John Davey, the Hawkeyes have 11 athletes competing in 26 events. The Hawkeyes qualified nine in individual events, one diver and all three relay teams.
 Davey said his goal is to come home with an NCAA individual title. But to achieve that he's going to have to swim his own race and not worry about anyone else.
 "There's no way you can control someone else's swim," Davey said.
 Joining Davey for Iowa is Big Ten 100-yard butterfly champion Marc Long, Dave Kohmetscher, Erik Bacon, Gavin Lilley, Dan Dumford, John Linxwiler, Todd Slaybaugh, John Wilson, Rick Williams and

Men's Swimming
 diver Tomasz Rossa.
 "They are spirited and ready to go," Patton promised.
 Patton said Rossa has been looking great on the board during recent practices. Rossa qualified at the NCAA meet in the 1-meter and 3-meter diving.

aren't going to change the number of spectators we allow on the course.

"Once we get past the Palmer-Nicklaus days, we might have a whole lot of people who are not of the caliber we could have a whole lot of fellows we wouldn't want."

Nakajima wins
 Tommy Nakajima won the annual Masters par-3 tournament Wednesday, an event that traditionally precedes the main event.

Nakajima shot a 3-under-24 over the nine-hole course, one shot better than Steve Jones, Andy North, Corey Pavin, Bernhard Langer, amateur Bill Mayner and defending Masters champion Larry Mize.

Jones recorded an ace during the par-3 event, sinking his shot at the seventh hole.

No winner of the par-3 tournament has ever gone on to win the Masters. Last year, Ben Crenshaw won the par-3 and missed a playoff in the real tournament by one shot.

Woosnam impressive
 Ian Woosnam not only impresses golf fans with how far he hits the ball, but he impresses his fellow competitors as well.

"Woosy was on the practice tee today," Tom Watson said, "and the fans were cheering him on. They wanted him to hit the ball over the fence."

"And he did. That fence (that sits at the end of the Augusta National practice range and keeps balls from flying onto the street) must be about 50 feet high. I would think you would have to carry the ball about 270 or 275 yards to clear the fence."

"It's amazing how strong he is for such a little guy (5-foot-4). At Turnbury during the 1986 British Open, he hit a 1-iron about 200 yards into a wind that must have been blowing 40 miles an hour. Everybody else was hitting 3-woods."

Cooking not so good
 Woosnam, who is making his first Masters appearance, has played three previous events in the United States this year, has found fault with American cooking.

"I like plain food," the Welshman said. "People put too many things on their food over here. I don't like it spicy. So I've been sticking to steak."

Sluman a threat
 Jeff Sluman, without a victory on the PGA Tour but considered a threat to get one in the near future, is making a conscious attempt not to let the surroundings affect him in his first Masters appearance.

"It's nice and everything," said Sluman, who ranks 22nd on this year's money list. "But there are 18 tees, 18 fairways and 18 greens out there just like everywhere else. I don't want to be too overwhelmed and shoot 190 every day."

Baseball's Academy Awards

Some Early Favorites for baseball awards by United Press International writer Richard L. Shook.

The Academy Awards Monday night honor what academy members feel are the industry's finest performances of the year.

Baseball won't give out its awards until the conclusion of the 1988 season, but that doesn't stop us from making our pick at who some of the major winners might be.

Shying away from some obvious choices:

MVP
 National League — 1. Kal Daniels, Cincinnati. A major talent about to burst out of 2. Will Clark, San Francisco. Has thought of missed World Series to drive in 3. 2. Darryl Strawberry, New York Mets. If not Gooden, here's the guy to key Mets' run-way. 4. Jeffrey Leonard, San Francisco. Could be man if Clark isn't. 5. Bob Horner, St. Louis. Don't laugh; if he wins it, he'll be major reason why. Perennial choices: Dwight Gooden, New York; Eric Davis, Cincinnati; Tim Lincecum, Seattle; Martinez cf, Montreal; Andre Dawson, Chicago; Dale Murphy, Atlanta.

American League — 1. Mark McGwire, Oakland. Athletics have many candidates. He's the one to watch. 2. George Bell, Toronto. Easy choice; wish they were all this easy. 3. Alan Trammell, Detroit. If Tigers repeat, he'll move up to No. 1, 4. Don Mattingly, New York Yankees. Always in there somewhere. 5. Kevin Seitzer, Kansas City. Will only get better. Others: Wade Boggs and Roger Clemens, Boston; Paul Molitor, Milwaukee; Kirby Puckett, Minnesota.

CY YOUNG
 NL — 1. Ron Darling or Dwight Gooden, New York. Pick one. 2. Dave Dravecky, San Francisco. Right man in right spot? 3. Danny Jackson, Cincinnati. Change of leagues changes luck. 4. Mike Dunne, Pittsburgh. Only if team surprises. 5. Orel Hershiser, Los Angeles. Team wins him some games. Others: Rick Sutcliffe, Chicago; Shane Rawley, Philadelphia; Mike Scott or Nolan Ryan, Houston.

AL — 1. Roger Clemens, Boston. Is he still alive? Then has to be top choice. 2. Jack Morris, Detroit. Top pitcher of decade still looking for World Cup. Has to get it sometime. 3. Jimmy Key, Toronto. On verge of elite. 4. Dave Stewart, Bob Welch or Curt Young, Oakland. One has to emerge if Athletics do. 5. Bret Saberhagen, Kansas City. Still looking for two good years. Others: Ted Higuera, Milwaukee; Rick Rhoden, New York; Lee Smith, Boston.

ROOKIE OF YEAR
 NL — 1. Jeff Treadway, Cincinnati. Part-time player could be full time by mid-year. 2. Luis Rivera, St. Louis. Reason for move of Hubble Brooks to right. 3. Kevin Elster, ss, New York. Could be easy winner if he hits and Mets win. 4. Tim Lincecum, Seattle. Finally looks ready. 5. Shawn Abner, San Diego. Two prize ones in a row for Padres?

AL — 1. Brady Anderson, Boston. Latest from Walt Hrynkiak looks ready to graduate. 2. David Wells, Toronto. LHP could sizzle in relief. 3. Mike Campbell, Seattle. On that staff, he'll certainly get chance. 4. Walt Weir, Oakland. Win by Athletics makes him a shoe-in. 5. Jack McDowell, Chicago. Got head start last September. Others: Al Leiter, New York; Sil Campuzano, Toronto; Jay Bell, Cleveland.

BEST DIRECTOR
 NL — 1. Tony LaRussa, Oakland. Gets even with Chicago. 2. Sparky Anderson, Detroit. Too easy a choice. 3. John Wathan, Kansas City. Star on rise. 4. Tom Trebelhorn, Milwaukee. Chief brewer.

NL — 1. Pete Rose, Cincinnati. Reds look tough. 2. Roger Craig, San Francisco. Starting own campaign early. 3. Jim Leyland, Pittsburgh. Soon everybody will know how good he is. 4. Buck Rodgers, Montreal. Can he do it again?

BEST COMEDY ACT
 1. George Steinbrenner and the New York Yankees. Already has long, long lead. 2. George B. Shea and Toronto management. New stars in Much Ado About Nothing? 3. Dave Johnson and the New York Mets. Showed signs of closing early. 4. Whitey Herzog, St. Louis. Only if Cards get early. 5. The next player with a book or magazine article to be published.

Schillig named Iowa tennis coach

Micki Schillig, a Cedar Rapids native, has been named the head coach of Iowa women's tennis program, Women's Athletic Director Christine Grant announced Tuesday. Schillig has served as the interim coach since February 1987.

Schillig replaces Charley Darley, who now holds a position in the UI women's athletics Student Services Department.

Prior to joining the Iowa staff, Schillig played on the professional tour for three years, was the touring pro in Cedar Rapids, and taught at tennis camps in Key Biscayne, Fla.

As a collegiate athlete, Schillig played four years as the No. 1 singles player for nationally-ranked San Diego State and advanced to the NCAA finals in 1982. She was a four-time all-American and three-time most valuable player during her collegiate career.

As a prep at Cedar Rapids LaSalle High School, Schillig won three state singles championships.

Kujawa will pass up final year

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (UPI) — Illinois senior Jens Kujawa will forego his final season of eligibility with the Illini basketball team, school officials announced late Tuesday.

Kujawa, who is scheduled to graduate from Illinois next month with a degree in finance, will return to his native West Germany to further his career.

The 7-foot center posted career highs of 13 points against Wisconsin his junior year and against Auburn as a senior, 12 rebounds against Villanova in his final game as a member of the Illini last month.

Rams' Pender will take job at Texas

AUSTIN, Texas (UPI) — Tom Penders, who guided unheralded Rhode Island to the "Sweet 16" in this year's NCAA tournament, Wednesday was hired as head basketball coach at Texas.

Penders, who uses a run-and-gun style and had a 48-17 record in two seasons at Rhode Island, flashed the familiar "hook 'em horns" sign and promised to restore enthusiasm for basketball at Texas, where football is king.

Penders, 42, succeeds defense-minded Bob Weltlich, who was fired March 15 partly because his teams were only able to attract an average of less than 7,000 fans to the 16,231-seat Erwin Center.

Driesell will take post at James Madison

HARRISONBURG, Va. (UPI) — Charles "Lefty" Driesell, who built a national basketball power at Maryland before resigning in the wake of Len Bias' cocaine-induced death, Wednesday was hired as head coach at James Madison.

Problems for Pats' Fryar continue

FOXBORO, Mass. (UPI) — New England Patriots wide receiver Irving Fryar, who has been beset with a string of off-field problems during his career, was indicted by a New Jersey grand jury Tuesday for carrying unlicensed firearms, The Boston Herald reported.

Fryar, 25, was charged with unlawful possession of a loaded shotgun and a loaded handgun and possession of hollow-point bullets, which were inside the handgun, the newspaper reported. He is free on bail and is due back in Burlington County (N.J.) Superior Court next week.

In 1986, Fryar cut his hand with a kitchen knife during an argument with his wife, missing the AFC Championship game against Miami. Eleven months later, he cashed his sports car into a tree after leaving a Patriots home game at halftime because of an injury.

Last November, Fryar claimed he was shot at twice after he approached a man who had allegedly stolen his jewelry in downtown Boston. Police probed the alleged incident, but no arrests were made.

Olympic gold medalist Blatnick retires

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — Jeff Blatnick, who twice overcame Hodgkin's disease on his way to an Olympic gold medal in Greco-Roman wrestling, formally announced his retirement Wednesday, saying he was glad to quit by choice.

"It's time for me to take it out of overdrive," Blatnick said. Blatnick, 30, unexpectedly withdrew from a tournament last weekend in Cedar Rapids, Iowa, quietly ending his career by walking up to the scorer's table and disqualifying himself after winning a second-round match by forfeit.

Navratilova, Sabatini win Cup matches

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (UPI) — Top-seeded Martina Navratilova and No. 2 Gabriela Sabatini breezed to easy victories Wednesday in opening-round matches of the $300,000 Family Circle Magazine Tennis Cup.

Navratilova needed just 52 minutes to defeat Terry Phelps 6-1, 6-1 on the soft clay center court at the Sea Pines Plantation. Sabatini downed fellow Argentinian Patricia Taravini 6-1, 6-2 in just less than an hour.

'Nation's tallest player' dies at 55

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — Harvey Wade "Swede" Halbrook, a former Oregon State basketball star once billed as the nation's tallest player, died Tuesday of an apparent heart attack. He was 55.

State Medical Examiner Larry Lewman said an autopsy on Halbrook was planned for Wednesday. Lewman said the 7-foot-3 Halbrook apparently collapsed suddenly while riding a tri-met bus and death was "probably heart-related."

Honors buzzing around St. Ambrose

DAVENPORT, Iowa (UPI) — Three members of the St. Ambrose women's basketball team have received all-American recognition from the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics, the school said Wednesday.

The three players who led the Queen Bees to a record-breaking 32-5 season are: Patty Campbell, of Davenport; Robin Becker of Cedar Rapids and Lisa Lombardo of Naperville, Ill.

Falcons sign Auburn linebacker Bruce

SUWANEE, Ga. (UPI) — Aundray Bruce signed a five-year, $4.5 million contract Wednesday with the Atlanta Falcons, more than two weeks before the star linebacker from Auburn will officially be named the top pick in the NFL draft.

Entries due for intramural events

By Bryce Miller
The Daily Iowan

The Recreational Services office is busier than usual with a number of intramural deadline entries approaching.

• The entry deadline for men's slow-pitch softball is April 13, at 4 p.m.

Play for this single elimination event will begin on April 16, at the Lower Finkbine Hawkeye Softball Complex. All entries should be accompanied by a $15 fee. Inclusive in that cost is a $10 forfeit fee which will be refunded upon participation.

• The deadline to participate in coed doubles tennis is also around the corner. Entries must be received by April 29, at 4 p.m. Expect to pay a $4 ball fee.

• Ultimate frisbee is a popular intramural activity back for another semester. The deadline to enter is 4 p.m. today.

Recreational Services grad assistant Dave Hall said these activities were great successes in the past.

"The spring intramural slate offers a good cure for spring fever," he said. "Ultimate frisbee and frisbee golf are relaxed but not outlandishly so, and the best part is that they require very little skill. They are just good fun."

• Frisbee golf has an April 15 entry deadline. This event, along with ultimate frisbee, requires no entry fee.

• A reminder: Faculty-staff golf entries are due May 9. All full-time staff members of the university are encouraged to inquire.

• The Recreational Services graduate students (Dave Hall, Dan Mehl and Jim Anderson) will head off on a job hunting excursion to Florida tomorrow and won't return until the end of next week. There will be staff on duty, but any matters that need the students' personal attention should be attended to today.

• A quote in last week's column about Bill Blanchard was apparently mistakenly credited to the graduate students. I regret the error.

Manning accorded accolade

By Mike Barnes
United Press International

LOS ANGELES — Danny Manning of NCAA champion Kansas added to his array of honors Wednesday when he won the John R. Wooden Award as college basketball's top student-athlete this season.

The 6-foot-10 senior center, who had 31 points and 18 rebounds in the Jayhawks' 83-79 victory over Oklahoma in Monday night's title game, was a narrow winner over NCAA scoring champion Hersey Hawkins of Bradley.

Sean Elliott of Arizona was third and Danny Ferry of Duke was fourth.

The balloting by 1,000 writers and broadcasters was the closest in the 12-year history of the award.

Manning, who surely benefitted from the noon Tuesday deadline for filing ballots, received 865 points. Hawkins had 845 and Elliott had 424.

MANNING PREVIOUSLY won the James Naismith Award as the nation's top player and was named the outstanding player of the NCAA Tournament.

Iowa starter Cal Eldred limited Mankato State to one run on three hits in five innings. Eldred struck out seven Mavericks and walked two.

BOLAND RELIEVED Eldred and breezed through the sixth inning before disaster struck in the seventh. A leadoff walk and a single proceeded Lepel's long smash over the right-field wall.

In the second game, the Mavericks scored two runs in the top of the second inning to lead, 2-0, but Iowa stormed back with five runs in the bottom half of the inning.

Iowa starter Bob Driscol cruised into the sixth inning still leading, 5-2, but gave way to reliever John DeJarld after retiring none of the three batters he faced in that inning.

DeJARLD THEN surrendered a triple and a single to let Mankato State jump on top, 7-5, but Iowa took the lead for good after catcher Bryan Luedtke delivered a two-run single off losing pitcher Jay Ovsak to cap a four-run burst in the bottom of the sixth.

The victory in the second game was marred when an Ovsak pitch hit Iowa left fielder Luis Ramirez in the face during Iowa's five-run second inning.

Ramirez, who also needed assistance following a collision behind third base in the eighth inning of the first game, was knocked out momentarily before leaving the game under his own power. He was taken to University Hospitals for

"My sisters were taking gymnastic lessons," Nasti said. "They dragged me into the gym one day and I've stayed with it."

Nasti, who will leave Iowa with a degree in general studies with a business emphasis, said he'll miss traveling and the constant exercise. But, he said, he won't miss living on $250 a month, the stipend from his scholarship.

"IT'S HARD TO even find room and board with just that much," he said.

"I have a lot of memories," Nasti said. "This year when I won Big Tens, it came as a surprise to me. I enjoyed the feeling of (personal) accomplishment. But when the team wins it is more important. We all shared in the same thing. I think sharing in titles is even more special."

Nasti said he anticipates the NCAA competition to be close but Nebraska may have the edge, since the meet is on its campus.

"I think we have a shot," Nasti predicted, "but I think we're the underdog."

NCAAs

Bob Rydzye he feels in the best shape of his career," Patton said.

Since finishing second at the Big Ten Championships March 3-5, the Hawkeyes have been retraining for the national championships.

Patton increased the team's practice time during the first weeks after the conference meet, then tapered off to allow "abundant energy left" for the NCAAs.

Patton said he does not expect Iowa to be in the running for the national title. That honor, he said, should go to Stanford, Texas or Southern California.

"USC has the best chance to beat them," Patton predicted.

As for the Hawkeyes, Patton said the only surprise of the season was Lilly's recent pool performances. The freestyler had a poor dual-meet season but turned everything around at the Big Ten meet in March.

If there have been any disappointments, Patton said they have come from three swimmers.

Steve Grams, an all-American last season on the 400-meter freestyle-relay team, dislocated his patella days before the conference meet and was unable to qualify for the NCAAs.

"I was disappointed that Rob Leyshon and Roland Zschiegner didn't make the NCAA cuts," Patton said. Both are freshmen, however, and will have three more years to try.

little tentative and not aggressive enough. But we had a totally different presence out there in the second game."

IOWA COMMITTED six infield errors and six walks in the first game. Drake jumped to a 2-0 lead in the second inning before the Hawkeyes took control in the fourth.

In that inning, Iowa's Jeannette Painovich stroked a single and Wick then delivered her second home run of the year, a shot over the left-field wall.

Iowa scored once more in that inning on a bunt single by Amy Drake, a hit-and-run single by Sally Miller and an infield single by Shelly Fowler.

In the second game, Iowa scored twice in the second inning after consecutive singles by Drake, Traci Gilmore and Fowler loaded the bases and Repp delivered a two-run double down the right-field line.

THE HAWKEYES added a run in the third inning and two more in the fourth on singles by Painovich, Wick and Miller.

Drake scored a run in both the fifth and sixth innings, but Iowa sealed the victory with an insurance run in the top of the seventh.

"We've had our problems of late, but we made some progress later on today," Blevins said. "It's that type of attitude and form that we're trying to set."

Iowa's next action is at home April 8 against Michigan. Game time is 2 p.m. at the Iowa Softball Complex.

Masters

the U.S. Open is the U.S. Open. Players are still going to play in those tournaments."

The Masters officially opens at 7:45 a.m. with 86-year-old Gene Sarazen hitting a ceremonial first ball. Sarazen and 75-year-old Sam Snead will then play nine holes, followed by the greatest current names in the game.

Occasional heavy rain fell on the course during the final day of practice Wednesday, but clear skies, mild temperatures and blustery winds were forecast for the first round.

"THE COURSE IS in unbelievable condition," said Tom Watson, a two-time winner at Augusta who has not captured a major title in five years. "I think about six-under-par will probably win."

The rains will soften the greens some, but of course, they say the winds will blow and that will make it tougher. Let me revise that. I think three-under might win."

It took a score of three-under 285 to make the sudden-death playoff that ended last year's Masters, the highest winning score in 15 years. That playoff added another piece of lore to the dramatic history of the event when hometown product Larry Mize holed a 100-foot chip shot on the second extra hole to defeat Greg Norman.

"My game isn't as good as it was at this time last year," said Mize, who ranks 91st on the money list. "But I think it's getting close. Maybe this is the week it will come around. I hope so."

THE TOURNAMENT starts with non-American players hogging the favorite's role with annual challengers Seve Ballesteros of Spain and Greg Norman of Australia leading the way. Money-leader Sandy Lyle of Scotland, however, could be a threat this week and Ian Woosnam of Wales, arguably the best golfer in the world last year, is making his first Masters appearance.

Watson and Norman will make up one of the most attractive first-round pairings, leaving the first tee at 11:29 a.m., while Woosnam will play with 1984 champion Ben Crenshaw at 9:30 a.m.

One of the largest galleries, however, will walk with Nicklaus — hoping the 48-year-old winner of 20 major championships will find the same magic he worked two years ago in winning the tournament.

Nicklaus recently has begun using a metal driver, one which has increased yardage on his tee shots by 30 yards.

"It has gotten me excited about playing again," Nicklaus said. "I was hitting the ball so badly I didn't want to play."

"I don't know why I have a lot of confidence, but I do. That is a bold statement for someone to make who doesn't play much golf. I may not make the cut. I may not shoot any decent score at all. But I'm going out there thinking I can win the tournament."

Samaritan turns into bad thief

By Danelia Wild
United Press International

LOS ANGELES — A "Good Samaritan turned bad" stole the purse of a suicidal woman whose life he had just saved, police said Wednesday.

Miguel Garcia, 35, a transient from Mexico, was booked at the Van Nuys station and held on $6,000 bail after the incident Tuesday night, Sgt. Donald Butler said. Garcia stopped an intoxicated woman from leaping off a bridge spanning a flood control channel in Van Nuys, but the 23-year-old woman, whose name was not released, managed to break free of Garcia's grip and fell a short distance and was knocked out.

Garcia, police said, then walked off with the woman's purse.

He "was a Good Samaritan turned bad," Butler said.

THE SUSPECT was quickly captured by three men who saw him walk away.

Butler said the incident began shortly before 12:30 p.m. CST Tuesday when Garcia and the woman were seen struggling on the Victory Boulevard bridge, which at its highest point is about 40 feet above the concrete Tujunga flood control channel.

"The victim never yelled or screamed," but the witnesses heard her beg (Garcia) to let go of her," Butler said.

Kretschmer and Peterseim pick and predict the Oscars

Editor's Note

It's that time again! As the Oscars fast approach, The Daily Iowan's twin titans of print purple prose, Kevin "exams come first, dammit" Kretschmer and Locke "have VCR, will travel" Peterseim, have surveyed the cinema domain they call home and have come up with these, their picks and predictions. On Monday they'll be back, back-to-back, with the Big Three: Best Actress, Best Actor and Best Picture.

By Locke Peterseim
The Daily Iowan

Best Supporting Actress — Not much of a race here. It doesn't take a Rhodes scholar to figure out that Anne Archer is nominated for looking beautiful in Fatal Attraction and Anne Ramsey for looking ugly in Throw Momma From the Train. Both played their parts perfectly, but they, along with Norma Aleandro in Gaby — A True Story and Ann Sothern in The Whales of August, are only here to fill out the field. Olympia Dukakis not only has a great name, a famous cousin and a nice personality, but she was also downright wonderful in Moonstruck. The lady's my personal fave and will also walk away with the gold hands down.

Best Supporting Actor — The Academy tossed in Denzel Washington for Cry Freedom as a token gesture of social consciousness and Morgan Freeman for Street Smart in a burst of temporary insanity. Both men did above-average jobs, but the films were, respectively, a miss and a mess. Personally, I'd give it to Albert Brooks for raising droopy shmuckness to a brilliantly hilarious level in Broadcast News. But the Academy's sentimental vote will deservingly go to Sean "Everybody's favorite Bond" Connery for his gun-play and belly-crawl in

The Untouchables.

Best Director — Adrian Lyne for Fatal Attraction? Come on, this is the guy who made 9½ Weeks — he's got a lot of atoning to do before he shakes that celluloid albatross from his neck. John Boorman for Hope and Glory has a shot at the title, but I still say the film, while competent, doesn't deserve the fawning it has received. My choice is Norman Jewison for Moonstruck — dealing with throngs of Chinese extras and World War II is impressive on the resume, but there's a stunning subtlety in Jewison's perfect lunar romance. However, the Academy loves an epic as much as they hate a comedy, and the statuette will most likely fall into the hands of Bernardo Bertolucci for The Last Emperor. Bernie may be a little Red for the Academy's tastes, but his filmmaking genius can't be denied.

Best Foreign Film — Are you kidding? The last foreign film I saw was Crocodile Dundee.

Best Supporting Actor — This year marks the first time in Academy history that two blacks have been nominated in the same acting category — Denzel Washington as Steven Biko in Cry Freedom and Morgan Freeman as a pimp in Street Smart. But the archconservative Academy already gave its "token" Oscar to Louis Gossett Jr. in 1982, filling its quota for the decade.

Albert Brooks as a very professional, slightly neurotic newsman in Broadcast News and Vincent Gardenia as the harried father in Moonstruck give good performances, but they're both by the numbers and nothing that the voters should get excited about. That leaves Sean Connery, who fulfills one of the greatest rules of Academy voting — the payback. If you have been good for the movie industry and don't cause too many waves, it's likely that eventually you'll get recognition from the Academy. Fortunately, Connery's performance as a Chicago cop in The Untouchables is truly excellent and deserves the award.

Best Supporting Actress — Norma Aleandro's nomination for Gaby — A True Story is actually compensation for not getting a best actress nod for The Official Story last year. Anne Ramsey in Throw Momma From the Train and Anne Archer in Fatal Attraction are both surprise nominees and aren't strong candidates to pull a real upset.

Ann Sothern has the career thing going for her and will pull in the sentimental vote with her The Whales of August performance, but it may not be enough to take home Oscar gold. Finally, there is Olympia Dukakis, who plays Cher's mother in Moonstruck. It's not a great performance, but she's a stage actress making a rare film appearance and the Academy likes stage performers. This award could be a consolation prize if Moonstruck fails to grab the heavy hardware; besides, voters could use it to send her cousin Michael a favorable, early message from California.

Best Director — Another first has occurred in this category, because not a single American is among the nominees. Neither foreign language films nor thrillers ever win, so forget Lasse Hallstrom's My Life as a Dog and Adrian Lyne's Fatal Attraction, respectively. Norman Jewison's Moonstruck and John Boorman's Hope and Glory both have merit, but the Director's Guild of America has already tabbed Bernardo Bertolucci as best director. The DGA winner takes the Oscar around 90 percent of the time, so why go against the trend? The impressive but overlong The Last Emperor should make an Oscar winner of Bertolucci.

'Duet' deals with fear, hope

By Therese Teasdale
The Daily Iowan

Riverside Theatre, Iowa City's professional acting company, launches its production of the Critics Award-winning play Duet for One tonight at 8 in Old Brick, 26 E. Market St. This production, which closes the 1987-88 Riverside Theatre season, runs April 7-9 and 13-16.

Duet for One is Tom Kempinski's two-person play about a world-famous violinist who contracts multiple sclerosis and goes to talk to a psychiatrist about coming to terms with her new life. It is also a play about learning to recognize one's own fears and — rather than how to defeat or repress them — how to live with them.

Duet for One is directed by UI English Professor Miriam Gilbert. Gilbert wanted to direct the play "because it sounded like such an interesting challenge... to maintain the relative strength of the two characters."

RON CLARK, who plays the psychiatrist, found his "role does require active listening," because the doctor "controls what is happening at every moment of the session, or at least he tries to."

Gilbert compared her role as director with Clark's role in the play, saying that both "have to listen and come up with the right questions... I found myself thinking like him."

Jody Hovland, the actress playing the violinist, has spent the past month rehearsing in a wheelchair. She "found a wealth of different ways to express" herself as a result of the chair's limitations.

Gilbert felt "it was important to get her into that wheelchair," which "becomes almost a prison at times." As Clark said, "you get a different perspective on the world when you're sitting down all the time."

Robin Ryerson, a graduate student who has MS, was "extraordinarily generous with her time," Gilbert said. Ryerson worked with the cast, sharing her experience of the disease's emotional and physical effects. Clark found she gave him "a much more accurate sense of the problem." Hovland said she "really needed Robin's input... it helped me find the truth of the character."

Duet for One runs April 7-9 and 13-16 at 8 p.m., with a special Saturday matinee April 16 at 2 p.m. Tickets for all evening performances are $7.50 general admission and $6 for students and senior citizens. Matinee prices are $5 and $4. The play does contain strong language and is recommended for adult audiences.
