Marshal says fire at the UI planned

By Cathy Jackson
The Daily Iowan

A fire causing an estimated $150,000 to $250,000 in damages to the UI International Center Monday was intentionally set, according to Iowa City Fire Marshal Larry Kinney.

Although there are no suspects yet, Kinney said the fire was incendiary — set on purpose, but not necessarily for gain or malice — and he, along with the detective bureau of UI Campus Security, will continue to investigate.

Kinney also said he will send samples of furniture remains to the Bureau of Criminal Investigation in Des Moines for testing.

"It could have been a catastrophe," Kinney said. "There was heavy, black smoke all throughout the building."

The International Center is currently on a list of 25 UI buildings violating fire safety codes for not having fire alarm systems. But the smoke alerted the 30 to 50 people in the building of the fire.

"ON OUR FLOOR we don't have any smoke detectors or pull alarms," UI forensics Coach David Hingstman, who was in the building at the time of the fire, said.

Hingstman said he discovered the fire because a "big, thick cloud of smoke was coming up the staircase."

"I hope they can correct (the lack of alarms)," Hingstman said. "It could be something the (state) Legislature needs to look into."

But a bonding resolution that included money to help correct fire safety deficiencies in at least 41 UI buildings was refused this week by state legislators.

"We had planned on putting fire safety into a bonding resolution, but the governor and leadership struck a deal on how to spend money from revenue growth and it did not include bonding or fire safety," said Sen. Richard Varn. See Fire, Page 7A

Rezoning for sewage plant is considered

By Sara Anderson
The Daily Iowan

The Johnson County Board of Supervisors voted to give first consideration to a rezoning application which will allow Iowa City to begin construction of its new sewage treatment plant following a public hearing.

The board must give second and third consideration to the application before it is formally approved. Final approval of the application allows the board to rezone 51.5 acres of land south of Iowa City from "agricultural" to "light industrial."

The application was the third one filed by Iowa City with the county in the last year.

Johnson County Attorney J. Patrick White said the board's decision to give first consideration to the application constitutes progress in the matter.

"This moves the process forward," he said.

THE APPLICATION addresses supervisors' concerns about the plant site. In its latest application, the city has agreed to establish an access road to the plant which will run south or southwest and will use the KCJJ Road.

Iowa City also has agreed to monitor the water table and air pollution near the facility and to take any precautions necessary to ensure the plant does not affect neighbors of the plant.

The city has further agreed not to spread sludge on any portion of the plant or park site surrounding it.

Iowa City Manager Stephen Atkins said he was satisfied with the board's decision.

"I'm very pleased," he said. "I think the county board gave this a very thorough review and hopefully now we can get this underway."

But several city and county residents voiced concerns about the sewage plant before the supervisors and Iowa City officials at the public hearing.

IOWA CITY RESIDENT Ray Truitt expressed concern that the sewage plant could be built at a lower cost. Truitt said he had spoken with Michael Sweet, vice president of Parsons/Engineering Science, a firm which competed for the city's wastewater treatment plant contract.

According to Truitt, Parsons' original proposal could have given the city a larger treatment plant on the existing site and met city sewage needs at a lower cost than Metcalf and Eddy, who eventually received the city's contract and who proposed to build a new treatment plant south of town and renovate the existing site.

But Atkins said Parsons had merely submitted a proposal, which was not based upon any actual engineering. The proposal also failed to take into account a

Soviet troops to exit Afghanistan in May

By Gary Lee
Washington Post

MOSCOW — The Soviet Union and Afghanistan Thursday announced that the obstacles to an Afghan peace settlement have been resolved and that Soviet troops will begin pulling out from that war-torn country May 15.

The plans for withdrawing the 115,000 Soviet troops, outlined in a joint declaration by Kremlin leader Mikhail Gorbachev and Afghan leader Najibullah in the Soviet city of Tashkent, mark the beginning of the end of the most disputed Soviet military venture in 20 years.

The withdrawal of troops also will remove the biggest stigma against the Soviet Union in the West, and could pave the way for vastly improved relations between the Soviet Union and the United States, China and the Arab world.

The only step remaining before the pullout plans are finalized is the signing of an agreement in Geneva between Afghan and Pakistani negotiators, who have been conducting talks sponsored by the United Nations. Governments in Islamabad and Kabul have both indicated a willingness to sign an agreement.

GORBACHEV, appearing buoyant in a brief Soviet television report Thursday, said he was sure that the negotiating parties, including Moscow and Washington, will sign the agreement. "The process of political settlement in Afghanistan is coming to an end," he told workers in Tashkent.

"I think that Pakistan and Afghanistan will come to an agreement. And we with the Americans will agree to be guarantors, I think."

In Islamabad, Pakistani President Mohammed Zia ul-Haq was quoted Thursday as saying that the issue of Soviet aid to the Kabul government and U.S. aid to the Afghan resistance, the main obstacles in reaching a Geneva accord, have been resolved.

The official Pakistani News Agency quoted Zia as telling parliament: "According to unofficial reports, the two superpowers have agreed on the symmetry under which both would be able to provide continued assistance to their respective allies in Afghanistan." It did not elaborate on the "unofficial" reports.

ACCORDING TO THE joint statement released by the official Soviet news agency Tass, the United States has said it will be a guarantor of the agreement, signalling that objections raised by the Reagan administration to an earlier plan for troop withdrawal have been overcome.

"The general secretary of the Communist Party Central Committee and the president of Afghanistan believe that the last obstacles to concluding the agreements have now been removed, thanks to con-

Death of Israeli teen probed

By Dan Fisher
Los Angeles Times

KARNEI SHOMRON, Israeli-Occupied West Bank — A preliminary army investigation into what was originally reported as the stoning death of a West Bank Jewish teenager shows the girl had also been shot in the head, apparently by an Israeli security guard accompanying her, Israeli television reported Thursday night.

The army refused comment pending completion of its probe, but a senior government source who spoke on condition of anonymity confirmed the television account.

It was unclear whether the cause of the girl's death was the bullet wound or stones hurled at her, reportedly by the mother of one of two Palestinian villagers shot to death by a security guard during the same incident. The girl, Tirza Porat, was one of 16 Jewish teenagers who had been hiking near the West Bank village of Beita on Wednesday, accompanied by two armed Israeli guards, when the trouble began.

THE CIRCUMSTANCES of how the girl was shot also were unclear, although both Israel Television and Israel Radio reported that army investigators had found no evidence that any weapons were used except those carried by the guards. Although Palestinian villagers at some point took the weapons away from the pair, they had by then run out of ammunition, Israel Television reported, quoting an unnamed "senior army official."

The surprise revelations came only hours after the army said Israeli troops, searching near Beita on Thursday afternoon, shot to death a Palestinian suspect when he tried to flee a patrol. Fifteen other villagers were arrested in connection with the previous day's violence, and the homes of five people accused of instigating or participating in the incident were demolished by high explosives, the army added.

Cambus hit again in fifth shooting

The Daily Iowan

A Cambus was reportedly shot at by two Iowa City youths Thursday morning as it was traveling in front of Mayflower Residence Hall, according to Iowa City police reports.

The juveniles, who appeared to be about 14 years old, allegedly ran east from Dubuque Street when the bus driver slowed down after the shooting, which was reported at about 10:45 a.m. Thursday. Police were unable to locate the juveniles.

The bus driver said the youths probably used a BB gun, but the bus was not damaged.

The incident marks the fifth time a Cambus has been shot at since March 3. During an eight-day period, four Cambuses were shot at while three were damaged.

No injuries have been reported in any of the shooting incidents, although one woman was almost hit by an object that went through the window of a bus and hit the other side during a shooting on March 9.

Cambus Director Brian McClatchey was unavailable for comment Thursday night. UI Parking and Transportation Director David Ricketts was also unavailable for comment Thursday.

Job outlook shines for UI graduates

By Jean Thilmany
The Daily Iowan

Job prospects for May UI graduates are looking brighter than ever due to a projected 3 percent salary increase and a rise in the number and diversity of businesses recruiting on campus, according to UI Business and Liberal Arts Placement Office Director Nancy Noth.

"Seniors looking for a job can be more optimistic about finding one than ever," Noth said.

According to a Michigan State University nationwide survey, this year's bachelor's degree candidates can look forward to earning an average salary of $22,609, Noth said.

"The prospects aren't especially good or bad in one field, but students in some fields have more prospects than students in others," she said.

She added that job prospects for UI accounting, business and computer science majors look particularly good because of an increase in the number and diversity of businesses coming to the UI to recruit.

THE NUMBER of businesses recruiting on campus has increased 10 percent since last year, she said. See Job Hunt, Page 7A

Board appoints principal

The Iowa City Catholic Board of Education has selected Raymond J. Pechous to become the new principal for Regina Elementary School.

Pechous, a Regina High School graduate, will assume the duties of principal of the 330-student school effective July 1, 1988. Pechous is now principal of two Davenport elementary schools, St. Alphonsus and Sacred Heart.

Pechous received a bachelor's degree from St. Ambrose College in 1967 and earned his master's degree in elementary education from the UI in 1971. He has had 15 years of elementary school administrative experience in Iowa.

Library receives $15,000

The Friends of the Iowa City Library will give $15,000 to the library as a gift during its annual meeting on Tuesday, April 12, in the Iowa City Public Library Meeting Room A.

Before the meeting, the group will vote on how the money will be spent. Results of the voting will be announced at the meeting.

Also at the meeting, UI English Professor Miriam Gilbert will talk about Shakespeare and the theater, and a new board for the Friends of the Library will be elected.

Art classes sponsored Registrations are currently underway for the second session of Adult Arts, sponsored by the Iowa City Recreational Center.

The classes are geared for beginning and intermediate artists. The programs include pottery, painting and printmaking, life drawing, watercolor painting and darkroom techniques.

Costs vary with programs from $25 to $30 for residents of Iowa City and $30 to $35 for non-residents. Students provide their own supplies. Advanced registration is necessary and can be made in person or by mail at the Robert A. Lee Recreational Center.

Support group to meet

A newly formed support group for parents of hyperactive children called Attention Deficit Disorder-Understanding Parents will meet at Mercy Hospital, 500 Market St., at 7 p.m. on Monday, April 25.

The program topic for the April meeting will be "Behavior Management." Child psychologists John Hartson and Charles Bursch will discuss non-cooperation problems of children with the disorder, and methods which parents can use to deal with the child's negative behavior.

The meeting is open to the public. For more information, call Mary Richard at 351-2520.

Hospital holds classes

Mercy Hospital will be holding a variety of family-centered maternity care educational classes this month.

Early Bird classes for couples in the first trimester of their pregnancy will be held Wednesday, April 13, at 7 p.m.

Childbirth preparation — for couples in the third trimester of their pregnancy — will be held April 19 and 26 at 7 p.m.

New Mother and Baby Classes will be held every Thursday at 10 a.m. during the month of April.

For further information and registration call Mercy Hospital's Education Office at 337-0670.

Mime troupe presents satire

The San Francisco Mime Troupe will present The Mozamagola Capers, a musical-spy-thriller-melodrama that satirizes the U.S. role in South Africa, at 8 p.m. April 9-10 in Macbride Auditorium.

The performances by the troupe, which recently celebrated 25 years at the forefront of American political theater, is being presented by Hancher Auditorium in conjunction with the "Professional Ethics in the Global Community" international colloquium April 8-9 at the UI.

In addition to the public performance in Macbride Auditorium, the troupe will perform at the colloquium on April 8.

Supervisors discuss suit for refusal to grant permit

By Steve Weiss
The Daily Iowan

The Johnson County Board of Supervisors discussed trial preparations Thursday for a civil suit filed against Johnson County by three men in an effort to force the county to issue a conditional use permit for a sand and gravel mining operation located two miles north of Iowa City.

Johnson County Attorney J. Patrick White discussed the upcoming trial at Thursday's board meeting. The trial will be held April 20-21 at the Johnson County Courthouse.

The lawsuit was filed in Johnson County District Court on Jan. 29, 1987, by Frank Boyd, Bruce Glasgow, John Rummelhart and Washington Park Inc.

According to the suit, the plaintiffs filed an application for a conditional use permit in September 1986, but in November of that year, the Iowa City Council unanimously recommended denial of the application based on environmental concerns and potentially dangerous traffic problems in the area.

THE SUPERVISORS voted 3-2 to accept the application the following month. But Supervisor Dick Myers informed the plaintiffs that at the meeting the permit application would still be denied because city council's rejection required at least a 4-1 vote by the supervisors for approval.

Supervisor Betty Ockenfels said she voted to reject the application because of the city's unanimous rejection of the proposal.

"We try to work very closely (with the council) with the zoning of any area in a 2-mile radius around Iowa City," Ockenfels said.

In January 1987, the plaintiffs applied for the permit with Johnson County Zoning Administrator Ben Johnson. But Johnson, citing the supervisors' decision to reject the application, also turned it down.

In response to Johnson's decision, the plaintiffs filed a petition for a declaratory judgment asking for the county to issue an immediate conditional use permit and also pay all court costs.

The plaintiffs claim that the city council had no extrajurisdiction over the real estate and that an extraordinary majority judgment was not necessary since 60 percent of the surrounding property owners had not signed a petition opposing the permit application.

White said he wouldn't make any predictions regarding the case, but he plans to use testimony from one or two of the supervisors during the trial.

'Zarda! Cow From Hell' will be filmed here this summer

United Press International

DES MOINES — Hollywood producers Thursday announced plans to shoot one and possibly two feature-length films in Iowa this summer, including a satirical tale of a radioactive cow that terrorizes the state.

The Iowa-born comedy troupe, Duck's Breath Mystery Theatre, will shoot its film, Zarda! Cow From Hell, in Iowa City from May 15 to June 15, said producer Scott Smith.

Smith added Duck's Breath's Stone Peach Productions Inc. will hold auditions in Iowa City's Wesley House next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday for Iowans interested in up to 40 speaking parts in the film.

Duck's Breath was formed by graduate students at the UI in 1975. The troupe currently is based in San Francisco.

Anyone is welcome to try out for parts in the film, including non-speaking roles in the film's crowd scenes, said Smith. He added the production company is especially looking for two boys, 8 to 12 years old and a grandmotherly looking woman for key speaking roles.

THE FILM WILL be directed by Robert Hughes, who has directed the Ducks' "Dr. Science" television program and the adventure films Hunters' Blood and Memorial Day.

Police

A UI student was charged Wednesday with harassment by Campus Security officers after allegedly making several harassing phone calls to unidentified individuals, according to Campus Security reports.

UI junior Theodore P. Roberts, 21, 340 Ellis Ave., was arrested at about 11:30 a.m. Wednesday by Security officers, according to the report.

Theft: Items valued at approximately $400 were reported stolen Wednesday from a car belonging to an Iowa City man, according to police reports.

Jeff Melcher, 924 Oakcrest St., reported that sometime after 1 a.m. Wednesday, unidentified individuals shattered the front passenger window of his car and stole a portable Panasonic tape recorder valued at approximately $100, a Passport Cincinnati radar detector valued at approximately $295, and three cassette tapes, according to the report.

Theft: A full-sized statue of a German shepherd was reported stolen Thursday from an Iowa City home on the 700 block of Whiting Avenue, according to police reports.

The cement statue, whose base is crumbling but is reported to be in otherwise good condition, allegedly was stolen sometime Wednesday night, according to the report.

Report: Unidentified individuals allegedly attempted to steal a stereo from a car belonging to an Iowa City man, according to police reports.

Tom Weinzerl, 915 Oakcrest St., reported that sometime after 9 p.m. Tuesday, the driver's-side window of his car was shattered and his Alpine stereo appeared to have been tampered with, according to the report.

A small amount of blood also was found on the seat cover, the report stated.

Theft: A bicycle and lock valued at approximately $150 belonging to a UI student was reported stolen Tuesday, according to Campus Security reports.

UI junior Jay P. Shafer, 422 Brown St., reported at about 2:30 p.m. Tuesday that his Raleigh bike and lock were stolen from the bike rack at the UI Art Building, according to the report.

Report: A bicyclist who ran into a pedestrian Thursday afternoon in Iowa City was taken to UI Hospitals and Clinics for treatment of multiple injuries, according to police reports.

The bicyclist, who was unidentified, was reported riding eastbound on the sidewalk of Byington Street when she struck the pedestrian, who received minor injuries when he fell, according to the report.

Information on the bicyclist's injuries was unavailable Thursday night.

An Iowa City ordinance prohibits bicycle riding on sidewalks. Police said the incident is still under investigation.

Courts

By Traci Auble

An Iowa City woman was being held in the Johnson County Jail Thursday on $5,000 bond for violating her parole, according to Johnson County District Court records.

Tammy Garrett, 21, 430 S. Gale Drive, allegedly violated her parole by not cooperating with her rehabilitation program at the Mid-Eastern Council on Chemical Abuse.

During her stay at MECCA she allegedly did not treat all people with respect or refrain from verbal abuse, according to court records.

As of Tuesday, Garrett was being asked to leave the MECCA inpatient program because of threatening remarks made toward another resident, according to court records.

A UI student was charged Thursday with fourth-degree theft after he allegedly stole two wooden stools from Rocky Rococo, 118 S. Dubuque St., according to Johnson County District Court records.

Jeffrey J. Pitz, 22, 650 S. Dodge St., allegedly walked out of Rocky Rococo's with a wooden stool in each hand. When an officer followed him to Linn Street, Pitz dropped the stools and attempted to flee, according to court records.

Pitz was apprehended and the stools were returned where employees valued both of them together at $60. Pitz was released from Johnson County Jail on $575 bond Thursday, according to court records.

A preliminary hearing in the case is set for April 21.

An Iowa City woman was charged Thursday with possession of a controlled substance for personal use after cocaine was found on her person, according to Johnson County District Court records.

Sandra A. Sines, 27, 15 Meadowbrook Trailer Court, was arrested for public intoxication when her pockets were searched by a deputy. The deputy found her in possession of a white powder which tested positive for cocaine, according to court records.

Saines was released from the Johnson County Jail Thursday on $690 bond. A preliminary hearing in the case is set for April 21, according to court records.

UI service to celebrate anniversary

By Anne Kevlin
The Daily Iowan

One of a few blacks currently heading major public universities, University of Maryland Chancellor John B. Slaughter will be the keynote speaker for a Sunday tribute to the UI Special Support Service's 20th anniversary.

The event, "Twenty Years of Diversity: A Time of Accomplishments," will honor alumni and current students involved with Special Support Services, a program established to increase ethnic diversity at the UI. Alumni attending the program will receive information about "Opportunity at Iowa," the UI effort to attract minorities to the campus.

"The U of I is committed to providing services to students to help them accomplish their goals," UI Special Support Services Assistant Director of Administration Sheila Vedder said.

UI Vice President for Student Services Philip Hubbard praised Slaughter as a university administrator committed to public service.

"He has such a varied background," he said. "I think he's an outstanding individual."

SUNDAY'S EVENT will serve three purposes, according to Hubbard: to reunite Support Services graduates, to introduce them to "Opportunity at Iowa" and to honor current UI Special Support students.

A 10 a.m. convocation and an 11:30 a.m. alumni brunch will kick off the day's events, with former UI President Willard L. Boyd — now director of Chicago's Marshall Field Museum of Natural History — as guest of honor. Roscoe Spencer, president of the UI Black Alumni Association, and Richard Emerson, executive director of the UI Alumni Association, also are scheduled to attend.

Four alumni — Brenda Child, Arturo Ramirez, Cornelius Thornton and Deborah Turner — will participate in a 1:30 p.m. panel discussion on "The Importance of Diversity at Universities." UI Dean of Student Services Phillip Jones and state Board of Regents member Mary Williams also will participate, and UI College of Nursing Dean Geraldene Felton will moderate.

HUBBARD, who is director of "Opportunity at Iowa," will address an honors recognition session along with UI alumnus M. Colleen Jones at 3:30 p.m.

Slaughter's speech, which is open to the public, will begin at 8 p.m. and a speaker's reception will be held at 9:30.

"I have a feeling he will have something to say about the history of the program," Vedder said. "He was on a committee to help establish a program instrumental on equality and human rights issues."

Vedder said Special Support Services provides workshops, tutorial labs, academic counselors and current students to help new students adjust to the UI environment.

Hutchins: Hospital board plan will fail

By Scott Sonner
United Press International

DES MOINES — The Iowa Senate will reject a House proposal to establish a separate board of trustees to direct the UI Hospitals and Clinics, Senate Majority Leader Bill Hutchins predicted Thursday.

"The Senate does not have a lot of problems with the way University of Iowa Hospitals is being run," Hutchins, D-Audubon, told reporters.

He said the proposal surfaced in the House because of ill feelings toward John Colloton, director of UI Hospitals and Clinics.

"There are some people that don't like John Colloton. To some people he is kind of an embracing individual, but the bottom line is he is a good manager. Why fix something that isn't broken?" Hutchins said.

ON A 59-33 amendment vote Tuesday night, the House decided to remove control of UI Hospitals from the state Board of Regents. It would establish a nine-member board of trustees to oversee the nation's largest teaching hospital.

Potential board members would be chosen from a list of candidates selected by legislative leaders and appointed by the governor.

Hutchins said an auditing firm hired by the regents recently reviewed operations at the university, including the hospital.

"I met with the consultant early in the session and that person indicated to me University of Iowa Hospitals' operation was one of the best-managed things they had seen in a long time," he said.

Sen. Jean Lloyd-Jones, D-Iowa City, criticized backers of the new board Wednesday.

"I've never heard any hint of scandal or problem with the hospitals. It seems the state has other problems more pressing than trying to delve into an institution that is working well," she said.

She said the effort to set up the new board appears to be led by lawmakers who have "a bone to pick" with the university.

Branstad makes deal with head Democrats

By Scott Sonner
United Press International

DES MOINES — Gov. Terry Branstad has agreed to pocket his line-item veto pen as part of a budget deal with majority Democrats that will spend surplus money on their welfare priorities and his marketing initiative, Senate Majority Leader Bill Hutchins said Thursday.

"That's part of the agreement," Hutchins, D-Audubon, told reporters.

He said the Republican governor agreed to the deal partly because the Democrat-controlled Legislature intended to stay in session long enough to challenge any vetoes of human-service programs.

BRANSTAD SAID in a letter to legislative leaders Thursday he supports new plans to spend $2.5 million on a 3.25 percent increase on benefits for Aid to Families with Dependent Children benefits effective July 1.

The compromise also includes $3 million for Branstad's proposal to market the state, $3 million for livestock research and agronomy equipment at Iowa State University, $3.5 million for staff salaries at merged area schools and $1 million for Emergency Medical Services.

Saudi leader supports U.S. peace plan

BURAYDAH, Saudi Arabia — Secretary of State George Shultz said Thursday he received encouragement from King Fahd for the U.S. Middle East peace plan and had "satisfactory" talks with the ruler about the Saudis' secretly acquired medium-range Chinese missiles.

Shultz declined to comment on specific points of his two-hour meeting with Fahd and other Saudi officials. An aide later said U.S.-Saudi discussions about the missiles, which can strike Israel or Iran, were still "going on."

Shultz said he found "a great measure of support and encouragement" from Saudi Arabia for the plan, which calls for an international peace conference prior to two stages of direct Arab-Israeli negotiations on the question of self-rule for more than 1 million Palestinians in the Israeli-occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip.

Meese outlines drug plan to Colombia

BOGOTA, Colombia — Attorney General Edwin Meese presented leaders of the biggest cocaine-producing nation with a multinational plan Thursday to fight drug trafficking in Latin America.

Meese, accompanied by Drug Enforcement Administration chief John Lawn, met here Wednesday with President Joaquin Balaguer and outlined the U.S. plan for a multinational offensive against major drug traffickers.

U.S. officials have declined to discuss the plan publicly. Details of Meese's five-nation, eight-day Latin American trip were kept secret until the last minute for security reasons, officials said.

Nicaragua ties Contra aid to cease-fire

MANAGUA, Nicaragua — The Nicaraguan government, saying it opposes U.S. humanitarian aid to Contra rebels until they withdraw into cease-fire zones, asked Thursday for the intervention of the Organization of the American States in the dispute.

The statements came as government and rebel representatives met for another round of negotiations to decide issues relating to the cease-fire zones where the Contras are to withdraw during the current 60-day truce in the more than 7-year-old Nicaraguan civil war.

Nicaragua's Deputy Foreign Minister Victor Hugo Tinoco called on the OAS to intervene. "It is of extreme importance that the OAS demand the United States government not to supply the Contras until they have completed their transfer of troops into the agreed upon cease-fire zones," Tinoco said.

Defense challenges Iran-Contra charges

WASHINGTON — Ex-White House aides John Poindexter and Oliver North and arms dealer Albert Hakim asked a federal judge Thursday to throw out the sweeping Iran-Contra indictment against them because key information was gleaned from testimony forced from them on Capitol Hill.

Filing court papers with U.S. District Judge Gerhard Gesell, attorneys for the three men said their clients' revelations last summer during congressional hearings — protected by limited grants of immunity from prosecution — contributed to the criminal charges brought by independent prosecutor Lawrence Walsh.

"Defendants John Poindexter, Oliver North and Albert Hakim ... move that the court enter an order dismissing the indictment on the ground that defendants were compelled under grants of statutory immunity to provide testimony and other information over an assertion of their Fifth Amendment rights," the court document said, "and that such testimony and other information ... has been and will be used against them in many ways in this prosecution."

Veteran of Congress Boland to retire

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. — Rep. Edward Boland, D-Mass., author of the law that banned official U.S. aid to the Nicaraguan rebels, announced Thursday he will not seek a 19th term in Congress because he wants to spend more time with his family.

Boland, a 36-year veteran of Congress and former House Intelligence Committee chairman, wrote amendments that banned U.S. military aid to the Nicaraguan Contra rebels from October 1984 to October 1986.

Boland, 76, made the announcement at a news conference in the gymnasium of the Our Lady of Hope elementary school, where he announced his first political campaign for the Massachusetts House 54 years ago.

Texaco pays Pennzoil record settlement

HOUSTON — Texaco Inc. emerged from bankruptcy Thursday and ended a bitter four-year legal battle over ownership of Getty Oil Co. by paying rival Pennzoil Co. $3 billion, the largest cash settlement in U.S. history.

Texaco, the nation's third-largest oil company, completed its reorganization nearly one year after it filed for protection from creditors under Chapter 11 of the federal bankruptcy laws.

It took about one hour for the $3 billion, wired in four parts, to move from Manufacturers Hanover Trust in New York through federal reserve banks in New York and Dallas and into Pennzoil's account at Texas Commerce Bancshares Inc.

Shyness now believed to emerge from stress

By Jan Ziegler
United Press International

WASHINGTON — Shyness apparently is an inborn trait that emerges in response to stress, but can be overcome with practice, researchers from Harvard and Yale reported Thursday.

Children who show signs of shyness as early as age 2 have different biochemical reactions to unexpected change or newness compared to outgoing children, indicating their nervous systems are more sensitive to novel events, the scientists reported.

Exposure to stress early on in life — fighting with a brother or sister, for example — apparently acts as a trigger to bring out shy behavior, the researchers wrote in the journal Science.

BUT BEING born with a tendency to shyness does not mean a youngster will behave shyly later on.

"The child begins life with a slight bias," said Jerome Kagan, a professor of psychology at Harvard University.

"As with any disease where there's a slight genetic contribution, like diabetes or cancer, just because you have the tendency doesn't mean you'll get it (the disease). It doesn't mean you'll become a shy child," he said.

Nor is it bad to be shy, Kagan said. He gave the example of a shy child who dislikes large groups of people, who comes from an intellectual family and spends time studying instead of partying — becoming class valedictorian.

Shyness is not a fixed quality, either, he said. In the study, 40 percent of children who were shy in early years overcame their inhibitions by age 10.

The researchers drew their conclusions from a study of 28 shy and 30 extroverted children. They were chosen at either 21 or 31 months of age as either consistently shy, quiet, timid or sociable, talkative and spontaneous when exposed to unfamiliar people or procedures in laboratory settings.

Simon suspends campaign

Gore continues to attack rivals as race continues

By Ellen Wulforth
United Press International

NEW YORK — A defiant Albert Gore turned aside a barrage of criticism for his attacks on Jesse Jackson and Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis Thursday and warned New York party leaders they would be "marching off a cliff like lemmings into the sea" if they back his presidential rivals.

The Democratic presidential race was reduced to three, meanwhile, with Illinois Sen. Paul Simon's announcement that he had suspended his campaign.

Simon, as expected, held onto his national delegates in hopes of influencing the party when a nominee is chosen. "I have no illusions the nomination will come my way," Simon told a Washington news conference.

Gore, who hopes the April 19 New York primary will salvage his campaign, was the first of the three remaining Democratic candidates to appear before the Democratic State Committee at a Manhattan hotel.

THE TENNESSEE senator

stuck to the offensive, although New York Gov. Mario Cuomo had told him bluntly earlier to halt his slashing attacks on Jackson and Dukakis.

"I'm not in the race to criticize Rev. Jackson and Mr. Dukakis, but I'm not the only one in New York State who thinks the Democratic Party can do better," Gore said.

"This business of marching off a cliff like lemmings into the sea is ridiculous. I'm not going to hesitate to point out differences," Gore said emphatically.

Cuomo, who has made made no presidential endorsement, opted out of the party forum in Manhattan, saying he was needed in the state capital for state budget negotiations. But he told reporters in Albany he had spoken to both Gore and Dukakis by phone earlier.

He said he warned Gore against continuing to criticize Jackson's inexperience and Dukakis' record and that the senator should build a positive image of himself before he can successfully attack others as lesser candidates.

"Politics is not all about calling other people names," said Cuomo. "You've got three people scrim-maging. One of them's going to be your quarterback ... I don't want any one of them hurt," Cuomo said.

IN WASHINGTON, National Democratic Chairman Paul Kirk backed Cuomo's admonitions to Gore to stop attacking his opponents as "helpful and on course."

But Gore said: "My questioning positions is not a personal attack. If my opponents think George Bush is not going to raise those issues in the fall, they are wrong."

In an address to Jewish leaders in New York last Tuesday, Gore blasted Jackson's positions on Israel and the Middle East and said: "We're not choosing a preacher; we're choosing a president." Jackson called it a personal attack.

Later, Gore said Dukakis was "scared to death" of criticizing Jackson, a black Chicago-based civil rights leader and Baptist minister. Dukakis countered he had never before been criticized for failing to criticize an opponent.

"I share in the joy of seeing a black person, my friend Jesse Jackson, in major contention in this race for president. That's why I'm not afraid to point out my differences with Jesse Jackson and also Michael Dukakis on the issues," Gore said Thursday.

FOLLOWING DUKAKIS' decisive defeat of Jackson in Tuesday's Wisconsin primary, the focus of the campaign has been on delegations in New York.

Many party leaders believe the Empire State could put Dukakis in an irreversible road to nomination at the Democratic National Convention in Atlanta in July. But some have expressed concern that Gore, with his strident attacks on Jackson, could siphon away Jewish votes that might otherwise go to Dukakis.

Many Jewish voters have been nervous about Jackson over his embrace of Palestine Liberation Organization Chairman Yasser Arafat in the 1970s and characterization during the 1984 campaign of Jews as "Hymies" and New York City as "Hymietown."

A new poll to be released Friday by a local college will show Dukakis has expanded his 10-point lead over Jackson among likely New York primary voters.

UI cheerleading tryouts held

Squad members fight 'fluffy blonde' stereotype

By Paul Dunt
The Daily Iowan

Imagine a sport that combines the strength of athletics with the rhythm of dance, the agility of a gymnast with the razz and fizz of an entertainer.

These are all the qualities needed in today's cheerleaders, according to UI men's cheerleading Captain Charles Callaway, who Tuesday night watched 21 hopefuls try out for a place on the 14-member Iowa men's squad.

Behind him, in the sunken bowl of Carver-Hawkeye Arena, bodies stretched and strained, yelled and jumped as the potential cheerleaders were put through their vigorous paces to compete for a place on the squad.

The beat of "Pump Up the Volume" pounded from a stereo as the routines were repeated again and again to ensure perfection and clarity of movement. Then, suddenly, the men lifted the women high in their arms and the cry of "Go Hawkeyes!" filled the air in a fitting finale.

CHEERLEADING has almost become a sport in itself — one in which its participants are both highly devoted and trained, according to UI junior Lisa Steele, captain of the women's squad.

Competition for a place on the squad is intense. More than 40 women competed for the seven places available to them this year.

As routines become increasingly complicated, precision and strength is paramount if safety is to be maintained, Steele said.

"Cheerleading has got a lot of bad publicity lately," she said. "With the more difficult stunts, safety is stressed a lot more."

Throughout the season the team practices three times a week. Female cheerleaders are required to take a body-fat test at the onset of the season to set their optimum weight, as well as a weekly weigh-in, according to Steele.

The men have to be able to lift the women, she said, adding women who are over the set level for their size cannot perform at that week's game. Steele said most cheerleaders have their own individual routines to remain fit, and male cheerleaders lift weights three times a week.

A BACKGROUND in physical training and gymnastics is becoming fundamental to the potential cheerleader, Callaway said.

"We are looking for people who pick things up real easy, are athletically oriented and are strong and fit," he said. Nearly all of the squad members have backgrounds in athletics and gymnastics.

In addition to this, a lively personality is essential, members said. "You have to be outgoing. It's hard to get out in front of 80,000 people," Callaway said.

UI freshman Marty Kimbell, who Wednesday night learned he made the squad, said he has a background in gymnastics. He described his first impression of cheerleading as being "kind of weird," but, as with gymnastics, Kimbell found that most of his friends wished they had his ability when they saw what it involved.

AND CHEERLEADING is no longer the domain of the women.

"It is becoming more equal," Callaway said, adding he would like to see more men apply for places on the squad.

"There are not too many guys who have a gymnastics background," he said.

Unlike the men, most of the women trying out for the UI cheerleading squad have high-school experience, according to members. UI sophomore Leah Twitty, who Wednesday made the squad for the second year, said she has been cheerleading since the age of 13 and estimates that she spends up to 15 hours per week training and practicing, including her own exercise routine of aerobics and weightlifting.

UI sophomore Shelly Sherwood described cheerleading as being "like a full-time job, all year round." Team members attend a cheerleading camp in the summer — this year at the Universal Cheerleading Association in Tennessee — where they learn new material and train with teams from other schools.

SHERWOOD SAID the old image of the cheerleader as merely a fluffy blonde is being eroded with the difficulty of the routines performed.

"Here (the UI), they look up to you and you are respected," she said, adding better public relations is needed. "We need a better and new image of our people," she said. "They need to understand that these are hard, hard workers."

UI freshman Andrea Smith, who tried out for the squad, said she has been a cheerleader since high school and a gymnast since the age of 4. She said she is well aware of the intensity of competition involved and hopes to try out for the cheerleading squad for Iowa women's basketball — often a stepping stone to the Iowa men's squad.

UI graduate student Chris Zimmermann, a cheerleading squad athletic trainer, said he deals with injuries on the squad and is aware of the work involved in preparing for the games — and a place on the squad. When the 14 cheerleaders were selected Wednesday night, they faced an examination panel of 14 judges including former captains, squad administrators and the present captains.

"There is a maximum of 3,000 points available," Zimmermann said. "Last year, the difference between getting on the squad or not was as little as six points in some cases."

BEWARE OF THE CHOMP

Many financial organizations are offering Individual Retirement Accounts. Before you become overwhelmed with the rosy picture of capital gain ask how much of your yearly investment is eaten away before it begins to work for you.

Ask about the commission chomp. Ask about the front load chomp. Ask about the management fee chomp. All of which will certainly dilute the earning power of your retirement funds.

Every cent you put aside in an IRA with us works for you. We don't charge commissions. We don't have fees. There is no front load. Let us show you the riches you can accumulate in our IRA, tax deferred. There's no charge and no obligation. Substantial penalty for early withdrawal.

Costly price

It's a horrible thing to die by fire. Smoke fills the lungs, heat sears the hair and finally the skin turns supple and putrid. Obviously, it's a fate any member of the state Board of Regents has not seriously contemplated. If any of them had, maybe they'd see clear to act a little more forcefully on UI fire codes.

On Monday night, a fire did $100,000 damage to the UI International Center. The few people in the building at the time had no alarms to warn them of the danger. It was only when they spotted the thick, black smoke coming from a burning lounge that they got out via fire escapes.

The International Center was a known risk, which makes it all the more infuriating. It was on the list — along with 31 others — of buildings in violation of fire safety standards, according to the fire marshal's 1986 inspection.

None of these violations is singly grave enough to warrant condemning a building, and so none has been corrected. The message being sent to the users of these ailing buildings — including the UI Main Library, which has not one fire alarm to call its own — is as scary as it is stark: Show us some bodies, give us an already-happened emergency, and you'll get some money to make the needed improvements.

The International Center's fire wasn't flashy enough to qualify as that emergency. But a fire at night in Main Library during the week before finals would certainly satisfy the requirements of an emergency. Crowds of students would panic, and lives would certainly be lost, since even the emergency exits would be locked.

An enormously high price to pay, that.

No more U.S. troops

Presumably any American who knows anything about Panama's strongman, Gen. Manuel Noriega, supports the intention of the U.S. government to drive him from power. And most probably also want the repugnant dictator to slither away. Nonetheless, the current strong-arm policy of the United States may cause more problems than it solves.

The crisis in Panama has reached an extremely volatile stage in the past two months. U.S. courts brought drug trafficking indictments against Noriega, U.S. banks froze Panamanian assets and the country's legitimate leader was run out by Noriega's men. And there's fighting in the streets. With 17,000 U.S. civilians living in Panama and recent threats to the American ambassador, the situation requires a prudent approach.

The Reagan administration, however, plans to send down 800 Marines — in addition to the 1,300 troops sent last week to augment the security provided by the 10,000 soldiers already stationed there. A Pentagon spokesperson said the Marine deployment "has absolutely nothing to do with the security enhancement," but is simply a routine training exercise. Of course, it has "absolutely nothing" to do with intimidating Noriega, either.

No matter. Even if it is only a routine exercise, this is not the time to send more Marines to Panama. Already the danger is great that U.S. efforts to depose Noriega will backfire, given our role in undermining the economy. If anti-Noriega sentiments among Panamanians become anti-U.S. sentiments, future relations will only be more problematic.

The administration should continue applying economic pressure, perhaps going as far as blocking all payments from the United States to the Noriega regime. But now is not the time to make the U.S. military presence more blatant and provocative. Military tensions in Central America are great enough. Hold off sending the Marines.

Resisting pressure

The Iowa Legislature should be congratulated for not giving in to the monied interests of the insurance industries. On Wednesday, lawmakers defeated an amendment which would have limited the monetary awards an individual could receive in a medical malpractice lawsuit.

Proponents of the bill argued that limits on malpractice awards would help restrain the rising costs of malpractice insurance. The insurance companies claim plaintiffs' awards have skyrocketed, causing losses in revenue. This has, in turn, forced companies to raise policy premiums. But the relationship between malpractice lawsuits and increased premiums has yet to be proven.

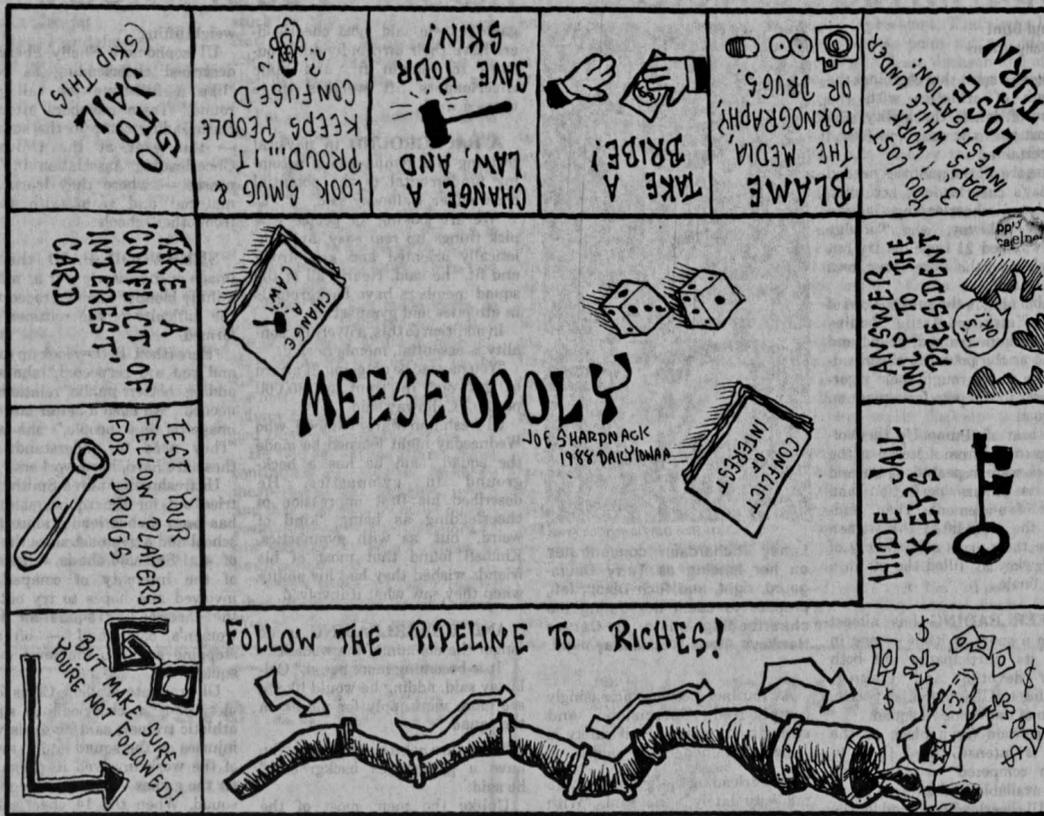

Information gathered over the past few years raises serious questions about insurance companies' claims of increased awards and huge losses. No proof has been provided in support of substantial losses and, in fact, they avoid disclosing financial records when asked. Insurance companies' estimates about malpractice awards have also been shown to be greatly exaggerated when compared to averages collected by independent sources.

Regardless of their inability to substantiate claims, insurance companies have persisted in lobbying legislators to arbitrarily limit the possible awards for a person who has suffered damages from a negligent or incompetent doctor under the guise of lowering rates.

The Legislature has fought off the pressure of insurance lobbyists for now. But insurance is a state-regulated industry, and it is therefore the responsibility of state legislators to maintain its integrity. They should not be satisfied with simply responding to the industry, but should actively investigate the actions of insurance companies.

Fighting unites all nations

At first, no one was sure just how Tirzah Porat died. Her head and face were so battered when her body was recovered that no one was sure if she had been shot, beaten or stoned. In fact, the 15-year-old daughter of Jewish settlers had been pelted by rocks by Arabs in the Israeli-occupied area of Palestine called the West Bank. She had been on a nature walk with other children, accompanied by two armed guards, when they were confronted by young Palestinians. The guards shot and killed two of the Palestinians and wounded two others before they were stripped of their weapons. Tirzah Porat was killed in the melee that followed.

The next day, Thursday, the Des Moines Register reported the story under the headline "Jewish girl dies in brutal Arab stoning." The headline didn't mention the two dead Palestinians, nor whether the deaths were any more or less brutal than the other 135 Palestinian deaths which have occurred in the occupation zones since December.

THERE IS AN implicit redundancy in the term "brutal Arab stoning." How can a stoning be anything other than brutal? Or does the Register think an Arab stoning is more brutal than other stonings might be? A few days ago, an Israeli soldier ordered a Palestinian to climb a utility pole to take down a Palestinian flag hanging there. The Palestinian came in contact with a wire and was electrocuted. Was his death a "brutal Israeli electrocution?" Was his death less brutal than Tirzah Porat's? Was his name published?

Ulster is a place that has many things in common with the West Bank and Gaza. It is an occupation zone, it plays sullen host to foreign troops, it has responded to the presence of those troops with violence and has both dealt and experienced death as a result. A few weeks ago, unarmed members of the Irish Republican Army were shot and killed by British soldiers in the British colony of Gibraltar. The British had felt "threatened" by the unarmed Irish, and besides, they had intended to plant a bomb somewhere. But a Spanish eyewitness claimed the killings looked like a summary execution, and no explosives were found in the IRA members' car.

AT THE FUNERAL of the IRA members, an armed pro-British Unionist fanatic bolted into the crowd and attacked it with both gunfire and hand grenades, wounding 50 IRA mourners and killing three. At the funeral of one of the slain mourners, in the very cemetery where he was killed, a car carrying two British soldiers barreled into the funeral entourage.

Whether the intrusion was intentional or not is uncertain, and the mourners didn't stop to ponder the matter. They attacked the car, smashed its windows, disarmed the soldiers and, after determining their identities, dragged them off. Their bodies were later found stripped, beaten and shot. Britain condemned the brutal, unmotivated attack.

WHO KILLED Tirzah Porat and the two British soldiers? Obviously, one or more Palestinians in the first case and one or more Irish in the second. And who is responsible for their deaths. That is not so obvious. "It was a collective doing, so there must be a collective punishment," said an Israeli settler in the occupation zone, referring to Tirzah Porat's death. "They are bloodthirsty killers of children. They show only cruelty."

The Israeli government certainly blames the Palestinians, but they also blame the news media. The Israelis have occasionally sealed off areas of the occupation zone, and they once sealed off the entirety of it, keeping out native Palestinians as well as the press. Israeli settlers have echoed this opinion, and have threatened Western journalists entering the West Bank and Gaza.

Would the Palestinians feel less angry, less violent, less vengeful if they received no media attention? Do they feel their oppression less keenly when cameras aren't recording it? Are they more docile in the presence of foreign soldiers on their streets and foreign squatters on their land when journalists who are even more foreign cannot be seen taking notes on their situation? Does brutality burst from Palestinian soil, generating spontaneously, or did some hand plant it there? Those same questions can apply to Ulster.

Violence continues in Ireland

It was interesting to read the letters to the editor attacking editorial writer Steve Donoghue's condemnation of the brutal murders of two British soldiers in troubled northern Ireland (DI, April 1). Personally, I believe that people should always hear both sides of an issue before drawing any moral or intellectual conclusions; therefore I would like to supply a little more information in order for your readers to learn "the real story."

While it is true that three unarmed members of the IRA were killed by the Special Air Service we should remind ourselves that in the past the IRA has not assembled three-person bomb squads for vacation purposes. I think most intelligent people will agree the three were probably sent to Gibraltar to carry out some type of terrorist activity, such as blowing up a bandstand, horse parade or crowded street.

THOSE WHO have some knowledge of the actors in the conflict are quite familiar with the names of two of the terrorists killed — Daniel McCann and Mairead Farrell. McCann, known as "the butcher" by the Royal Ulster Constabulary, was one of the IRA's most effective gunmen and is said to have been the key figure behind the revitalization of the infamous Belfast Brigade, which has been responsible for the deaths of 26 people since August 1986. Farrell was equally well-known, having been released from prison in September 1986 after serving 10 years of a 14-year sentence for the bombing of the Conway Hotel in 1976 in which several innocent residents were killed.

Perhaps John Stonebarger and his friends were not aware these two were such efficient killers or maybe they just didn't want to include this information in their letter. Consequently, for them to describe the permanent removal of a major terrorist threat not as act of cold-blooded murder but to characterize it as "an understandable act" is a statement of incredible hypocrisy. It is also ignorant for them to expect one side of the conflict to follow the law to the letter while the side they favor in the conflict blatantly and continuously breaks it. Scrutinizing the actions of one side while ignoring the atrocities of another is called a double standard.

THE HISTORY of northern Ireland is indeed tragic and it is true that it has been a victim of the imperialist age; however, it is also true that the nature of the conflict has changed dramatically over the last 50 years. The IRA, traditionally the romantic flag bearer of Irish "liberation," is only one of several organizations, both Catholic and Protestant, that are equally bloodthirsty and ready to fight it out for political control of Ireland once the British leave. Let us not forget the INLA and the UDR, who each have their own political and paramilitary organizations dedicated to removing any conceivable threat to their rise to power once the army is removed. As well as killing the security forces, these groups engage in their own assassination campaigns against rivals whether they are Catholic or Protestant.

I HAVE TO wonder whether or not supporters of the IRA, the self-proclaimed representatives of all Irish people, saw the parish priest of the community where the murder of the soldiers took place address the churchgoers, some of whom possibly participated in the beating, stripping, shooting and mutilation of the soldier's bodies. He stated his parish was "stained in the blood of the murdered." One does not know why the soldiers disobeyed orders to stay away from the area, but this in no way can be used as an excuse for what took place when they were cornered by a mob of human sharks viciously awaiting a kill.

I TOO SAW the unedited TV coverage of the incident and can only conclude that the account given by Byron Preston is nothing more than opinionated speculation. For him to say that he could explain exactly why the soldiers were sadly in the wrong place at the wrong time, know exactly what their intentions were, why they did not use their weapons and interpret what was going on in their minds — all from a few minutes of TV coverage — is totally unfounded and borders on the ridiculous.

In reality, an opinion that is full of "ignorance, prejudice and racism" is one that does not regard an opposing opinion as relevant and tries to persuade people to follow it by attempting to confuse them off the truth by lack of knowledge and hiding behind the use of misinformation. That is why I suggest to Stonebarger and Preston that they, in addition to anyone genuinely interested in trying to understand such a complex situation, read Northern Ireland, The Troubles by Charles Messenger. It is surprisingly objective and illustrates fault on all sides. Then perhaps they might realize the IRA is quite similar in viciousness to the Contras that Stonebarger is always anxious to protest.

It is obvious that an end needs to be found to the pain and suffering in northern Ireland, and in time the British will have to accept the unification of Ireland. However, the end must be a peaceful one, and if the IRA and Sinn Fein are the best immediate hope for Catholic interests and the UDR for Protestant after the British leave, the sadly I am sure the British army would soon have to return to the region as the only authority capable of maintaining some remnants of law and order.

NEIGHBORS OF the plant also expressed concerns at the meeting about the monitoring of odor from the plant and the location of the pipeline, which will discharge sewage from the plant.

White said he expects the board to give second and third consideration to the matter at its next meeting Thursday.

The city is under pressure from the Iowa Department of Natural Resources to build the plant. This week, the IDNR ordered the city to submit by the end of the month a timetable outlining planned progress on the plant. The timetable — formally called a consent decree — mandates that the city adhere strictly to the plan or be assessed fines by the IDNR.

Fire

D-Solon. "We're going to have to do something soon."

CORRECTING fire alarm deficiencies in 25 UI buildings, including the Main Library, would cost an estimated $805,000, according to UI Manager of Facilities Planning Jim Coombes.

The issue of fire alarm deficiencies is one in which we are in communication with the Board of Regents," Coombes said. "But there will still be a deficiency in this (International Center) and the other buildings."

UI Assistant Vice President for Finance and University Services Ann Rhodes said the UI asked the Legislature for $500,000 this year for fire safety.

"We've been very distressed by the tendency to discount this as a problem," Rhodes said. "The governor recommended funding for livestock units for cattle and swine research at ISU, but not for fire safety. Frankly, that's a matter of concern for University of Iowa people."

BUT RHODES said the International Center fire probably will not prompt more funding because no one was injured and the fire cannot be directly related to fire safety problems.

"This is probably not going to make the governor change his mind," Rhodes said.

UI Collegiate Associations Council President Mike Reck said the UI should place priority on improving safety standards.

"They made the Laser Center a priority; someone needs to make this a priority," Reck said.

"Six students were really put at risk," he said. "What if it had been the library? Imagine — a loss of $100,000 is a shame, but we're lucky we avoided a tragedy."

"If we would have had an alarm system, it wouldn't have made any difference," Coombes said, "because when the fire department got there, the fire had already put itself out."

BUT COOMBES said he thinks the fire might help the UI get fire safety funding.

"I would have wished forever that it never would have happened," he said, "but it cannot help but sensitize the university community, the Board of Regents, the Legislature and the people of the state of Iowa to the conditions we face in terms of fire safety and to give the necessary funds to take care of it."

Coombes added some of the smoke damage on the upper floors of the building could have been prevented if a stairwell enclosure smoke barrier door on the second floor had been closed.

"The smoke barrier door at the opposite end from the lounge, on the second floor, was open because it had been wedged open by users. For that reason we had smoke damage in 13 offices above the lounge area," Coombes said. "If we use the facilities improperly, we prevent the deterrent we already have there. We're our own worst enemy."

structure cooperation of all who are involved in the settlement, and favor their immediate signing," the joint declaration said.

Washington has said that it would not be willing to be a guarantor of a Geneva agreement unless there was "symmetry" in the cessation of Soviet aid to the Kabul government and U.S. aid to the mujahedin, the Afghan resistance, or in the continuance of military aid to both sides. Thursday's declaration indicates that the U.S. precondition has been met in some form, a senior Moscow-based American diplomat said in an interview.

THE RESOLUTION of the symmetry issue, coming after intense negotiations between senior Soviet and U.S. diplomats, is viewed by Soviet officials here as part of an all-out effort to put U.S.-Soviet relations on a positive track before the fourth summit between President Ronald Reagan and Gorbachev, scheduled to take place May 29 to June 2 in Moscow. Details of how the issue was settled were not available in Moscow.

However, in separate forums Thursday, a senior Soviet official indicated that Soviet aid to Kabul could continue and an American diplomat close to the negotiations suggested that the two sides may have agreed to postpone a decision on the issue.

Asked during a press briefing whether Moscow would continue military support to Kabul, Foreign Ministry spokesman Gennadi Gerasimov reiterated the Soviet response to original U.S. demands that the aid be halted.

ASKED IN A separate interview what options had been considered about Soviet aid to the Afghan government after a pullout starts, the U.S. diplomat said "we hope there would be no supplies. But if there are, we are justified to do the same."

Israel

3,000 angry mourners, most of them Jewish settlers, turned Thursday's funeral of the dead schoolgirl into a political demonstration for tougher government measures against Arab protesters.

Porat, who was 15, was the first Israeli civilian killed as a direct result of the violence that has rocked the occupied territories of the West Bank and Gaza for the last four months.

"THE BLOOD OF the whole nation is boiling," Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir told the funeral gathering.

However, the reports on state radio and television raised serious new questions that could bear importantly on how the events that occurred in Beita on Wednesday are viewed. The accounts were said to be based on a report submitted by army investigators Thursday to Lt. Gen. Dan Shomron, the chief of staff.

It also was unclear why the military refused Thursday to comment on the cause of Porat's death. Deputy army spokesman Col. Raanan Gissin confirmed in a telephone interview that there had been a pathological examination of Porat's body before she was buried. Such examinations are usually meant to determine the cause of death.

Beita was sealed off by the army immediately after Wednesday's violence, making it impossible for journalists to get first-hand reports by Palestinian witnesses.

According to the army's original report, Porat was stoned to death by Beita residents after she and her companions, most of whom were from the nearby Jewish settlement of Elon Moreh, were either forced or lured into the village. The group had first come under attack by young Palestinian stone throwers earlier, when they were passing outside the village, according to those initial reports.

Job Hunt

Approximately 200 businesses will interview on campus this year, according to Noth. She cited a healthier Midwest economy as a partial reason for the increase.

"It is somewhat easier for business or engineering majors to find jobs than liberal arts majors, because they can interview on campus," Noth said. "Liberal arts majors have to be more creative in their job search, but their job prospects have also increased."

She said liberal arts majors must find companies and send out resumes on their own, but the UI Business and Liberal Arts Placement Office can help them find job contacts.

UI senior Chuck Current, a marketing major, said he began his job search last fall by signing up for on-campus interviews and by searching The Des Moines Sunday Register classified ads.

"I THINK I have more opportunities in marketing than students in other fields might have because I have two ways to go about searching for a job," he said.

UI senior Mona Igram, a geography major graduating in May, said she has not yet begun her job search. She said she will be relying more on the fact that she has a bachelor's degree than on her specific major when she begins her search.

Alzheimer

able disease, Damasio said. The affliction destroys nerve cells in the hippocampal region of the brain, causing memory loss, he said.

Using the antibody Alz-50, developed in 1986 by B. Wolozin and Peter G. Davies of Albert Einstein College of Medicine in New York City, Damasio said doctors are able to recognize abnormalities in the brain cells before the cells malfunction. The cells can look normal even when they are contributing to the disease process, he added.

THE ANTIBODY attaches to nerve cells in the brain's hippocampus located in the temporal lobe, he said. When it attaches to a cell, it means there is an antigen in the cell that is very likely to cause damage to the brain, he said.

Alz-50, like Alzheimer's disease, is cell-specific, he said. It only attaches to those cells affected by the disease.

"When you use this antibody, Alz-50, in brains of patients who don't have Alzheimer's, the antibody does not attach," Damasio said.

In the brain of an Alzheimer's patient, certain nerve cells in one layer of the cerebral cortex may be damaged, while cells in the next layer are not, he said, adding that Alz-50 pinpoints the problem areas.

But the antibody treatment is only used during biopsies on corpses, and in rare occasions on biopsies of small brain-tissue samples of Alzheimer's patients, he said.

RESEARCHERS still do not know why cell abnormalities exist.

"But if you know the location of the antigen, it is possible to find the antigen's makeup and to prescribe a medicine or change in diet to eliminate it," Damasio said.

Damasio said there has recently been an "explosion" of interest regarding Alzheimer's disease, adding the UI's research on the deadly disease started five years ago.

Hijackers fire shots, threaten to leave

By Michael Ross
Los Angeles Times

CAIRO, Egypt — The hijackers holding a Kuwaiti jumbo jet in remote northeastern Iran fired five warning shots at Iranian security personnel Thursday and demanded that the plane be refueled and the runway cleared for takeoff, Iranian news reports said.

The official Iranian news agency IRNA said that authorities, who had ignored several previous requests for fuel in an effort to keep the plane from leaving, complied with the demand and ordered the Boeing 747 refueled.

"The situation is presently out of control, and anything may happen at any moment," IRNA said of the tense standoff, now in its third day at Mashhad airport, 470 miles northeast of Tehran.

HOURS LATER, there was still no word on whether the plane would actually leave Mashhad, where it was forced to land early Tuesday after being hijacked on a flight from Bangkok, Thailand, to Kuwait.

Earlier in the day, the hijackers freed 32 people, leaving about 50 hostages on board the jumbo jet. Most are Kuwaitis, including three members of Kuwait's royal family. IRNA said that the hijackers regarded the remaining passengers as "political prisoners" and had threatened to make them "pay a dear price" unless their demands were met.

IRNA said that the gunmen reiterated their threat to blow up the plane if any attempt was made to storm it and quoted one hijacker as saying that explosives had been placed throughout the cabin.

THE HIJACKERS, now said to number up to seven men, were demanding freedom for 17 Shia Moslems imprisoned in Kuwait for several terrorist offenses, including bomb attacks on the U.S. and French embassies in 1983.

Although the hijackers have not identified themselves, they are believed to be Shia militants from Kuwait or one of the Shia terrorist groups that Iran supports in Lebanon and Iraq.

Josef Degeorgi, a 53-year-old Austrian who was among the latest group of passengers to be released, told reporters that seven Arabic-speaking gunmen were on board the Kuwait Airways jetliner. All were armed with handguns and all wore masks, he said.

Some of the released passengers said that the hijackers displayed a bizarre sense of kindness toward the hostages.

"A couple of the hijackers spoke English and asked if we wanted pillows and drinks and things," a British passenger, Jean Sefton, was quoted as saying.

As the first hijacking of the year passed the 48-hour mark, serious differences appeared to be emerging between Iranian authorities and a Kuwaiti delegation that arrived in Mashhad Wednesday to negotiate with the hijackers.

Report: Iranians penetrate Baghdad airspace

By Lee Stokes
United Press International

MANAMA, Bahrain — The first Iranian warplane in five years to penetrate Baghdad's tight air defenses made a daring dawn raid on the heavily fortified Iraqi capital Thursday. Iraq said its pilots chased the intruder away and shot it down.

The plane appeared to be part of a group of raiders Iran's Islamic Republic News Agency said attacked "selected economic and military" targets in Baghdad, where celebrations have begun to mark the 41st anniversary of the ruling Arab Baath Socialist Party.

"The daring bombardment of enemy economic and military centers in Baghdad proved the Iranian air force is capable of raiding targets in all corners of Iraq," the Iranian news agency said, quoting pilots it said participated in the raid.

A SPOKESMAN for the War Information Headquarters in Tehran denied Iraq shot down an Iranian plane. Iraq retaliated by firing Soviet-made surface-to-surface missiles into Tehran and other Iranian cities.

A high command spokesman in Baghdad said the Iranian plane swooped over the city of 4 million at 6:30 a.m. He said Iraqi pilots "chased the Iranian" intruder across the Iraqi-Iranian border and shot it down.

The spokesman made no mention of other Iranian planes penetrating Baghdad's tight air defenses.

But Iraq said two other Iranian bombers struck residential areas at Arbil, 250 miles north of Baghdad, "killing several people and wounding many others."

Iraqi officials said Thursday's raid was the first time since "the early days of the gulf war," which broke out in 1980, that the Iraqis managed to penetrate Baghdad's air defenses.

IN 1982, at least two Iranian warplanes succeeded in approaching Baghdad but no damage was reported in that incident, an Iraqi official said. One of the planes was shot down and the other escaped, the official said.

In retaliation for the raid Thursday, Iraq sent two missiles crashing into the sprawling Iranian capital of Tehran.

Iraq also sent missiles soaring across the border and into the holy city of Qom, 100 miles south of Tehran; the historic central Iran city of Esfahan, 310 miles south of the Iranian capital; and Kara, 30 miles northwest of Tehran.

Iran confirmed the Iraqi missile attacks, saying "dozens of civilians" were killed. Experts in Baghdad estimate each missile kills or seriously wounds an average of 20 to 50 civilians.

IRAN AND Iraq — at war for more than seven years — began preying on civilians in 1983 in the "war of the cities." Hundreds of people have been reported killed in the strikes.

Continuing its policy of retaliation, Iran fired two missiles at Baghdad at 1:22 p.m., about seven hours after the Iranian raid on the Iraqi capital.

"Missile on Baghdad," reported Baghdad radio, which cited heavy casualties in the attack but did not release figures.

Later, Iran sent eight more missiles soaring across the northern Persian Gulf into the southern Iraqi port of Umm Qasr, which contains an important Iraqi naval base.

Bats betray Hawks in loss to Quincy

By Eric J. Hess
The Daily Iowan

Iowa baseball Coach Duane Banks smells a big problem in his team's offense. And he doesn't know what to do about it.

Quincy College, sparked by two homers from shortstop Rob McGinness, topped Iowa 8-6 Thursday at Iowa Field.

"We just aren't hitting. We haven't hit since the first weekend," Banks said after his team scored on five hits and three Quincy errors.

"I don't know what we can do. It's discouraging." Quincy Coach Ron Clark won for the second straight year at Iowa.

Baseball

Last season Iowa fell 5-4.

"We came up here today and did well with the bats," he said. "And I realize Duane is saving his best pitchers for this weekend."

BUT IT WASN'T the pitching Banks is worried about going into a four-game weekend series with Indiana in Bloomington, Ind.

The 18th-year Iowa coach said his team has a serious problem with hitting. The Hawkeyes are not going to be able to come out against a Division II team or any team and expect to score runs at will, he said.

"It doesn't work that way," Banks said. "Maybe we'll be ready by this weekend."

Iowa came out with the first score in the opening inning as left fielder Chris Hatcher, replacing Luis Ramirez defensively after Ramirez was hit in the face by a pitch Wednesday against Mankato State, singled home Keith Noreen for his team-leading 28th RBI.

IOWA TOOK ITS last lead of the game in the bottom half of the second.

After shortstop Marty Brauch reached on a fielder's choice, he stole second and scored on Mike Bradley's single down the line in left.

In the third inning, Quincy's Rob McGinness ripped the first of two homers with two men on base off loser Rod Rogers, 0-1, giving Quincy a 4-2 lead.

Winning hurler Pat Schmitt, 3-2, settled down after the second inning. He retired 10 Iowa batters in a row at one point.

"Quincy just absolutely outplayed us today," Banks said.

Clark said playing the Hawkeyes is a definite advantage to his team. Division II clubs who are independents, like Quincy, score three points for defeating Division I teams.

IOWA NOTES

The starters for Saturday's doubleheader with the Hoosiers at Semberow Field will be Iowa's Allen Rath (2-0) against Indiana's Eric Jaques (5-1) and Iowa's Mark Boland (1-4) against Indiana's Craig Williams (5-1).

Sunday, Iowa's Cal Eldred (1-3) hurls against Indiana's Doug Peters (3-1). Iowa's Mark Driscoll

Coaches reunite in opener

Iowa's Blevins, Michigan's Hutchins were Hoosier colleagues

By Scott Wingert
The Daily Iowan

Michigan softball Coach Carol Hutchins knows what to expect when she comes to Iowa City this weekend.

Hutchins was an assistant to first-year Iowa Coach Gayle Blevins when the pair mapped strategy together at Indiana in 1981.

And though the uniforms will be different this time around, the weekend's Big Ten opener will bring out the same quality Hutchins said made Blevins a success with the Hoosiers.

"Iowa will be aggressive, you can count on that," Hutchins said. "I look for them to be disciplined and tough. But we'll be ready, too."

THE HAWKEYES bring a 19-7 overall mark into Saturday's and Sunday's doubleheaders with Michigan, 9-8, at the Iowa Softball Complex. Saturday's twinbill will start at 2 p.m. and Sunday's contests start at 1 p.m.

Hutchins said senior Michelle Bolster and freshman Andrea Nelson will handle the pitching for Michigan this weekend, while Blevins tabbed freshman Diana Repp and either freshman Tami Chown or senior Cristen Barry with starting assignments on Saturday.

Blevins said the Hawkeyes played well in the second game of its doubleheader with Drake Wednesday and again had a spirited practice Thursday.

And if Iowa is to be a force in a "wide-open" league race, Blevins feels at no time can her team let a weekend slip away.

"WE HAVE TO look at these weekends as mini-tournaments," Blevins said. "And the way to win the league is to win your share of these little tournaments."

"Offensively, we need to make some adjustments at the plate and get more things created. We also have to cut down on our strikeouts."

Michigan, which starts freshmen at catcher, shortstop and a pitcher, lost six of its West Coast games by one run.

But Hutchins said that is no reason to panic.

"We're 0-0 now. This is going to be a very even league by the time all the games are played. We just need to start hitting the ball and develop some consistency."

"Those freshmen have really been the strength of this ball club. They've really been impressive so far."

3-under 69 gives Wrenn, Nelson lead

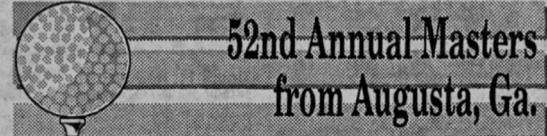

By Mike Rabun
United Press International

AUGUSTA, Ga. — Larry Nelson, who throughout his career has displayed the poise and patience to play well under terrible conditions, fired a three-under-par 69 in near-gale-force winds Thursday to tie the surprising Robert Wrenn for the opening-round lead of the 52nd Masters.

The high winds, combined with the glass-like nature of the undulating Augusta National Golf Club greens, created one horror story after another in the first major tournament of the year.

European superstar Ian Woosnam shot an 81 and stalked off the course. Mark O'Meara missed a 12-foot putt and watched the ball slowly roll 60 feet past the cup and almost into the water.

CANADIAN DAVE Barr had a six-foot par putt at the first hole, but when he placed his ball on the green, he was stunned to see it roll two feet farther away from the cup. He then missed the eight-footer.

Gary Koch was tied for the lead entering the last hole, but suffered a triple bogey. Seve Ballesteros, a two-time Masters winner, four-putted the 16th green.

"I think this is my 13th time to come to the Masters," said Ballesteros, who also hooked his tee shot on the 15th hole into the shrubbery and had to take a penalty stroke, "and I never see any day with more difficulties than I saw today."

Six-time Masters champion Jack Nicklaus concurred. "It was certainly one of the four or five most difficult days we've ever had at the Masters," said Nicklaus, who was happy to have a three-over 75. "It may have been the most difficult, actually."

"I DON'T BELIEVE you could win the golf tournament today. But you certainly could lose it."

Through it all, however, Nelson and Wrenn made enough steady shots to share the lead. Wrenn played in the next-to-last twosome of the day when the winds finally began to ease.

Nelson won the U.S. Open at Oakmont five years ago in a tournament plagued by rain and lightning. Last year at the PGA National course in Palm Beach Gardens, Fla., he captured the PGA title in brutal heat.

And on a day generally unfit for golf, Nelson sank five birdies. Wrenn made five as well, turning in his most important round of golf since he shot an amazing 26-under to win last year's Buick Open.

"THOSE ARE GREAT scores," said Tom Watson, one of the many household names still in the chase. "A day like today is survival. You're in retreat. There were not many who advanced against the enemy today."

Nelson and Wrenn had a two-shot advantage over the only others breaking par — former champion Bernhard Langer, Mark Calcavecchia, leading money-winner Sandy Lyle and Don Pooley. At even-par 72 came Watson, 1984 champion Ben Crenshaw and Koch, whose triple-bogey seven at the final hole cost him a share of the top spot.

"You had to kick and scratch for everything you could get," Crenshaw said. "Birdies were so very, very difficult."

Swimmers flounder at NCAA championships

By Eric J. Hess
The Daily Iowan

Iowa men's swimming Coach Glenn Patton is not in a happy mood after watching his Hawkeyes at the NCAA Championships in Indianapolis.

"I've asked our guys to sleep upside down in their beds tonight to try to change things around for tomorrow," Patton said. "We had an absolutely terrible first day at the 1988 NCAAAs."

The Hawkeyes were far from displaying what Patton had hoped for in the IUPUI Natatorium, failing to qualify any swimmers for the finals after the first day of the meet.

Diver Tomasz Rossa scored Iowa's

one points in the 1-meter event. He finished ninth with 478.60 points. The top eight in the event moved on to the finals.

"TOMASZ ROSSA'S ninth-place finish was our only bright spot," Patton said.

The Iowa coach found his team floundering in all four swimming events. There was hardly anything to get excited about.

In the 500-yard freestyle, Erik Bacon finished in 4 minutes, 25.26 seconds, five seconds behind his best time of the season. Gavin Lilley swam in 4:28.28, eight seconds off his season best.

The duo finished in 27th and 30th place, respectively.

In the 200-yard individual medley, Iowa's John Davey finished 23rd with a 1:50.13 clocking. Teammate Rick Williams was 34th in 1:51.22.

Davey's time was two seconds behind what he swam at the Big Ten Championships last month. Williams' time was .42 behind his best.

IN THE 50 free, Dan Dumford, an all-American in the same event last season, took 22nd in 20.29. Dave Kohmetscher was 27th in 20.4, the same time he swam earlier in the season to qualify for the national meet.

Marc Long, the Big Ten's 100-yard butterfly champion, finished in a tie for 25th at 20.35. His clocking was a lifetime best in the event.

After Rossa finished ninth in the diving event, Iowa had one final chance to redeem itself in the pool — the 400-yard medley relay.

Williams, Todd Slaybaugh, Long and Dumford swam the event in a school-record time of 3:17.87. The previous record was 3:18.30, set at March's conference championships. But don't change the record books too quickly. Iowa was disqualified for an early takeoff leg by Long.

IOWA ASSISTANT coach Dale Henry said he and the rest of the team didn't think Long jumped too soon.

"We didn't think so," Henry said. "But it was dual confirmation. We're not protesting."

The confirmation came from both officials on opposite sides of the pool.

Henry said the Hawkeyes didn't attend the finals Thursday since there was no one swimming in them.

"We have nine points," Henry said. "We don't know where that puts us in the team standings."

Henry said Iowa has a good chance to rebound as the championships continue through Saturday.

"If we perform like we're capable, we'll do well," he said.

Sportsbriefs

Fun run, 5K race to be held April 16

The UI College of Law will hold its annual Race Judicata April 16th. A one-mile fun run will start at 9:15 a.m., with a 5K race to follow at 9:30 a.m.

All proceeds from the race, sponsored by the Iowa professional legal fraternity Phi Delta Phi, will benefit the Allan Vestal Professorship Fund.

Pre-registration will be at the Boyd Law Building through April 10. Registration on race day will be held from 7:30 to 9 a.m.

Additional information may be obtained by contacting Terry Fikes at 351-0933 or Monica Beeman at 338-1682.

BIC offers weekend cycling excursions

Bicyclists of Iowa City invite all area cyclists to join them on weekend rides to area Iowa towns.

Saturday, the club will leave College Green Park at 9 a.m. for a 29-mile ride to the UI Field Campus. Free sailing lessons by the Iowa sailing club will follow. For more information contact Amy Wall at 354-0087.

The following day riders will depart College Green Park at noon on 29-mile rides to North Liberty and Tiffin. For more information contact Paul Millice at 337-6843.

"We're hoping the weather will be as nice as it has in the past couple of days," said Gloria Marchman, BIC publicity director.

A brief correction . . .

Tuesday's Sportsbriefs column contained an incorrect address of the sponsor of a charity basketball game in Cedar Rapids April 30. As reported, the game will be played at 1:30 p.m. in the Hennessey Recreation Center on Mount Mercy College Campus, but the address of the sponsor — the Four Oaks Children's Home — is 5400 Kirkwood Boulevard.

Tickets are $5 and must be purchased in advance. The game pits the Iowa seniors against Four Oaks staff members.

Ex-Iowa golfer added to Classic field

COAL VALLEY, Ill. (UPI) — Professional golfer Dave Rummells, a former Iowa golfer and native of West Branch, Iowa, and Dan Halldorson and have been added to the Hardee's Golf Classic "Parade of Champions" in June, organizers said Thursday.

The two PGA Tour pros will join Gary Player, Jan Stephenson and 1986 Hardee's winner Kenny Knox at the June 13 exhibition at Oakwood Country Club. The event is a preview to this year's Hardee's Golf Classic at Oakwood in July.

Rummells finished 67th on the PGA money list last year.

Drake Relay tickets go on sale

Tickets for the 79th annual Drake Relays, April 26-30, are on sale at the Drake ticket office. Tickets for April 29-30 events are $15 each day for adults, $6 for children high-school age and below.

Tickets may be ordered by writing the Drake Ticket Office at 1418 Forest St., Des Moines, 50311, or by calling (515) 271-3791.

Red Sox sign Smith to 2-year extension

BOSTON (UPI) — The Boston Red Sox signed newly-acquired relief pitcher Lee Smith to a two-year contract extension lasting through the 1990 season, General Manager Lou Gorman announced Thursday.

The contract was agreed to in principle Sunday, before the club broke spring training camp. Terms were not announced.

Smith, 30, was traded during the offseason from the Chicago Cubs to the Red Sox for Al Nipper and Calvin Schiraldi. He had 181 saves coming into the 1988 season, 11th on the all-time list, and already has one this season.

U.S. will beef up forces for Olympics

TOKYO (UPI) — The United States has plans to send additional military forces into South Korea during the Summer Olympics if North Korea attempts to disrupt the Games, the commander of the U.S. Forces-Japan said Thursday.

Kelesi advances in Cup play

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (UPI) — Canada's Helen Kelesi eliminated No. 4 seed Claudia Kohde-Kilch of West Germany Thursday to reach the quarterfinals of the Family Circle Magazine Cup tennis tournament.

Kelesi, 18, defeated Kohde-Kilch, ranked ninth in the world, in 83 minutes, taking the match 6-4, 7-5.

Rittenhouse takes 2-shot lead in Classic

POWAY, Calif. (UPI) — Lenore Rittenhouse eagled the 17th hole Thursday and took a two-shot lead over Patty Sheehan and Anne-Marie Pelli through one round of the $225,000 San Diego Inamori Classic.

Favorites Connors, Gilbert win

CHICAGO (UPI) — Top seed Jimmy Connors overcame a slow start to defeat Lawson Duncan, 6-3, 6-2, Wednesday and advance to the quarterfinals of the $315,000 Volvo Chicago Tennis Championships.

Also, third-seeded Bad Gilbert moved into the quarterfinals by defeating Sammy Giammalva, 6-4, 6-4, in a late match.

Conner deposits 5-under-par for lead

HATTIESBURG, Miss. (UPI) — Frank Conner, who in 1969 gave up professional tennis for professional golf, shot a five-under-par 65 Thursday to take a one-stroke lead after the first round of the $200,000 Deposit Guaranty Classic.

Buckner's 2,599th hit a game-winner

CHICAGO (UPI) — Pinch-hitter Bill Buckner delivered a bases-loaded single to drive in two runs in the 10th inning Wednesday night, handing the California Angels a 4-2 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

Buckner's game-winning hit was his 2,599th career base hit, the leading total among active major-league players.

Track teams run out of town this weekend

Armstrong's injury clouds outlook as men head to UCLA

By Brent Woods
The Daily Iowan

After the Iowa men's track team returned from a successful spring break trip to California, Coach Ted Wheeler said if the Hawkeyes could fill a few holes they would be in great shape.

The 200-meter dash was the biggest gap in Iowa's lineup heading into Saturday's triangular meet with Kansas and UCLA in Los Angeles, but the hurdler slated to fill it may be filling a walking cast instead.

Sophomore James Armstrong injured his left foot on the spring break trip. The injury turned out worse than expected and Armstrong will miss the meet.

"The injury is more severe than I thought," Wheeler said. "I thought he would fill that spot. We won't have an entry (in the 100 meters)."

will also affect the Hawkeyes in two relay events.

"James is on the 4 x 100 and 4 x 400 teams, so that may affect us," Wheeler said.

Armstrong said the injury was "just one of those things."

"It's a stress fracture in my foot," Armstrong said. "Out in California, I was warming up, going over hurdles. I went over the second one, going pretty fast, and I looked up and I saw some people putting up hurdles."

"I tried to go around them so I wouldn't run them over, and a spike got caught and I turned my foot. I had just changed to longer spikes — if I hadn't it probably wouldn't have happened."

Armstrong said his foot may be put in a walking cast and his recovery time is questionable.

"I can start jogging when I can walk without pain," he said.

Men's Track

the services of junior Curtis Chung, who has recovered from a hamstring pull suffered in the Big Ten indoor meet. He will replace Armstrong on the relay teams.

Wheeler said the Hawkeyes will face both UCLA and Kansas in dual meets, taken out of the triangular. He expects the Bruins, a perennial powerhouse, to be tough.

"They have some potential Olympians," Wheeler said, "and they're deep in all events. They have last year's national champion discus thrower and he's their third thrower this year."

Wheeler said he hopes the Hawkeyes can gain from competing against a team like UCLA.

"It's not going to be easy," he said, "but we felt we had to schedule this type of competition to move forward and bring the program up to a higher level."

Hassard will take short squad to mile-high meet in Boulder

By Bryce Miller
The Daily Iowan

Women's Coach Jerry Hassard's tracksters will leave the friendly confines of Cretzmeier Track to venture to Boulder, Colo., for the Colorado Relays Saturday.

Because of the Hawkeyes' unfamiliarity with running at that altitude, Hassard said he felt the meet would be unproductive for most of his squad and has opted to take only seven athletes for this weekend's event.

"Running under those conditions would not benefit any of our intermediate or longer distances," he said. "Performing at that altitude is an asset to shorter events, so we'll only take some sprinters and a few throwers."

The Iowa contingent will include Senta Hawkins, Davera Taylor, Bev Powell, Becki Borg, Lynn McMillan, Kathy Snow and Sara Joens.

HAWKINS, A SENIOR captain out of Des Moines, is one of Hassard's troops that is anxious for the opportunity for a fast clocking this weekend when she runs in the 400-meter dash. The school record in that event is 54.5 seconds and Hawkins has already flirted with that mark this season when she established a time of 54.7 at the Florida Relays.

"I'm looking forward to running there (Colorado)," she said. "I've never ran at that altitude but I think it will help me."

To attain that goal, Hawkins will have to overcome a hamstring strain that has plagued her during this year's campaign.

"I hope that I'm over it now," she said. "I just want to run well and possibly qualify nationally."

According to Hassard, this is a premier invitation event that he hopes will turn into an annual pilgrimage.

"This is a great opportunity for our kids," he said. "It should prove to be good experience for those who attend. We'd love to go back next year."

The Hawkeyes will be in action again April 16 when they travel to Des Moines to take part in the Drake Invitational.

ARMSTRONG'S ABSENCE

IOWA WILL ONCE again have

Wildcats threaten walkout

By Brian Malloy
United Press International

LEXINGTON, Ky. — Kentucky football practice was suspended Thursday in protest of A.B. "Happy" Chandler's use of the word "nigger" and some players pledged not to play until he resigns his university board post.

The former governor apologized during a news conference at his Versailles home earlier Thursday, but pointed to his decision as baseball commissioner to allow Jackie Robinson to become the first black to play in the major leagues as a demonstration he was not a racist.

"I REGRET IT more than anything," Chandler said of his comments made during a committee meeting of the University's Board of Trustees. "I can say I have not qualified in my lifetime as a racist and the record will show that."

Chandler's apology did not satisfy Chris Chenault and Dave Johnson, two seniors on the Wildcats' football team.

"We feel we cannot play for a team that will allow such bias," Chenault said following a team meeting. "We can't deal with racism on our campus."

Chenault and Johnson announced the team would not practice until Chandler resigned, but that was later modified to a one-day suspension of practice and the wearing of black armbands.

Jay Dortch, a white player and spring drills captain, said it was undecided whether all the players would join in the refusal to play.

"It's a team effort and it will be 100 percent," Dortch said. "If that's what we will agree on, then we'll do it together."

Coach Jerry Claiborne said he was behind his players, but did not feel he could call for Chandler's resignation.

"I'M NOT MAKING the statement Happy shouldn't be on the board. I am not a judge," Claiborne said. "What he said, I don't agree with it, and I don't really think he meant it. It was embarrassing to our university and to our squad."

Chandler said during a discussion of university investments in South Africa on Tuesday, "You know, Zimbabwe is all nigger now. There aren't any whites."

(2-2) meets Indiana's Eric Sieber (1-1).

Indiana is hitting .355 as a team so far this season and has stolen 80 bases in compiling a 22-5 record this season.

However, the Hoosiers are 1-3 in the Big Ten, losing to Wisconsin.

Indiana Coach Bob Morgan said bad weather forced Wisconsin and Indiana to play a tripleheader last Monday to complete the scheduled four-game series.

Offensively, the Hoosiers are led by senior outfielder Jeff Howard, whose .422 batting average leads the team. Freshman outfielder and designated hitter Phil Daughin has a .411 batting average. Shortstop Mickey Morandini, who leads the team with six homers and 36 RBIs, has a .394 average.

Plan to pay collegians fails

United Press International

LINCOLN, Neb. — A bill to pay Nebraska football players for their work on the field advanced through two rounds of debate with votes to spare, but came up one short on the vote that counted Thursday.

The vote to give final passage to the bill was 24-22 in favor, one short of the 25 votes needed. The bill received 26 votes on first-round debate and 27 on second.

The vote represented a defeat for the bill sponsor, Sen. Ernie Chambers of Omaha, who has long attempted to get his colleagues to recognize that Nebraska football players deserve monetary rewards for bringing in millions of dollars in revenue.

AS ADVANCED ON first-round consideration, the bill asked that the players become university employees and be paid salaries. An amendment added to the bill on second-round debate struck that provision and instead called for giving stipends to the players. The amount of the stipends would be determined by the university.

The bill would have gone into effect only if at least four other states with Big Eight schools passed similar laws.

Chambers has advocated a law to give payments to football players because they work hard and risk injury for the university but get nothing in return.

Chambers said the bill is designed to send a message to the NCAA — which maintains paying players is against its rules — that players deserve rewards.

Tennis squads play host to Big Ten rivals this weekend

Men hope to keep winning streak alive

By Anne Upson
The Daily Iowan

The Iowa men's tennis team's seven-match winning streak and 14-2 season record will be on the line when it faces Big Ten foes Ohio State (16-3) Saturday and Indiana (11-5) Sunday at the Klotz Courts. Both matches will start at 1 p.m.

Judging by the teams' records, Iowa Coach Steve Houghton said he doesn't expect an easy time in the home matches.

Men's Tennis

"Both teams are really good," Houghton said. "We know we can win this weekend but we will have to play really well."

Both Ohio State and Indiana's head coaches shared the same sentiments as Houghton.

Indiana Coach Ken Hydinger said the Hawkeyes' strength will be a factor in the match.

"I EXPECT IT to be a tough match," Hydinger said. "Iowa is a solid team from top to bottom. Their No. 6 player, Jay Maltby, is a good player. I'd rather play at home than on the road."

Ohio State Coach John Daly said the location of the match could also affect his team's play.

"I anticipate a pretty good match," Daly said. "I assume any Big Ten match will be close. It will be difficult to win at Iowa. Iowa has a significant home court advantage; the ball bounces differently on different courts."

Ohio State team has versatility within itself which Houghton said increases the force of the team.

"Ohio State has a solid team," Houghton said. "They are about even. They rotate their lineup, the No. 1 player in one match could play No. 4 in the next match. All six of the players are strong especially in the lower lineup."

DALY AGREED with Houghton's assessment of his team.

"We used all six players in every position," Daly said. "We have a stable lineup. They are all equal players. It helps with our depth."

Houghton said he anticipates Indiana to be the more difficult of the two matches because of its preseason matches.

"Indiana is a strong team," Houghton said. "They had impressive preseason matches. They beat Texas A&M and Auburn, two strong teams of the South. Their No. 1 guy is Sven Salumaa who is all-Big Ten, and No. 2 player Eoin Collins is a strong player."

Hydinger said the Indiana-Iowa matchup will be tight because both teams want to triumph.

'New Coach' Schillig forced to shift lineup

By Hugh Donlan
The Daily Iowan

This has been a week to remember in the career of Iowa women's tennis Coach Micki Schillig, but her concerns are more with her players.

Schillig was officially named Iowa's head coach Tuesday after serving as the interim coach the past year. But before she could celebrate, she was forced to decide how to replace Catherine Wilson, Iowa's No. 1 doubles and No. 4 singles player, who will undergo surgery at University Hospitals today.

"I HAVEN'T THOUGHT that much about it," Schillig said of her appointment.

The new coach said she has more important things on her mind, like a new lineup and the Big Ten opponents her Iowa squad (6-7 overall, 1-2 Big Ten) will face this weekend.

The Hawkeyes will take on Michigan (12-5, 1-3) Friday at 3 p.m. and Michigan State (10-3, 2-1) Sunday at 9 a.m. on Klotz Courts.

IOWA WILL BE at home for the first time since an 8-1 trouncing of Drake March 10 at the Westfield Tennis Club in Cedar Rapids. The team has gone 1-5 in its last six matches, all on the road, and the players said they are pleased to finally play in Iowa City again.

"We have our first home match and it's exciting to have a home-court match. It's easier on us because of (the fact there is no) traveling," Iowa captain and No. 1 singles player Pennie Wohlford said.

"It makes you so much more comfortable," No. 2 singles player Madeleine Willard said. "People come out and watch and we'll have some friends come out."

Schillig has experimented with her lineup and said she is confident with her decision to pair sophomore Susan Evans with Wohlford at No. 1 doubles.

"I THINK THEY are going to pull together as a team," Schillig said.

The new doubles combination will be an adjustment for both players, who played against each other in the Illinois state high school doubles tournament four years ago. Wohlford played for Oak Park-River Forest and Evans played for victorious Libertyville High School.

"I've played so many matches with Catherine. We were a great team," Wohlford said. "We're (Susan and I) going to have to think more. It's not going to be automatic. We're going to have to pull together fast."

Company dances to Copland

By B. Gordon
The Daily Iowan

Doug Wood's I Works is, outside of the UI Dance Department, the most consistent dance performance troupe in the area. I Works will present Wood's latest efforts, Grohg's Domain and Episodes, tonight and tomorrow night at 8 in North Hall Space/Place Theater.

Grohg's Domain was choreographed by Aaron Copland's Dance Symphony, which was inspired in turn by the German expressionist film Nosferatu, the Vampyre. Although Copland is known for dance works such as Appalachian Spring and Rodeo, Wood believes his is the first ballet ever to draw on this music.

"The piece demands a lot of stamina, on the level of Twyla Tharp," said Wood in a recent interview. "It has a modern dance energy and spatial design, but with a balletic vocabulary."

Grohg's Domain (the main character, the vampire, is named Grohg) has several prominent roles for children. The premise of the story is that Grohg goes to the graveyard to waken children sleeping there and forces them to dance with him so that he may drain their life force. Wood was able to create the piece because of a connection with the Quad City Center for the Performing Arts, which provided Wood not only with support for costumes but also exemplary young performers.

"It really demands a certain kind of child," he said, "and the discipline at that school is extraordinary." Faculty of the Quad City Center will also be featured, as will UI dance majors Jim Hansen and Jim Moore as Grohg.

Also on the program tonight is Wood's Episodes, choreographed to Oliver Messiaen's Quartet for the End of Time. According to Wood, the piece "reflects upon the psychological and physical changes that occur when one is held captive." The piece itself, which has seven movements (with titles like "Liturgy of Crystal," "Abyss of the Birds" and "Jumble of Rainbows for the Angel who Announces the End of Time") was written in a World War II prison camp.

"THEY'RE ALL fantasies that people could have had being in jail," said Wood. "Any movement taken by itself would only show part of what was going on — it's a stream-of-consciousness piece, but it's definitely narrative, too."

"Is it better to be confined, or better to be free?" Wood asked, explaining that during the piece the male prison inmates switch places with the more ethereal female roles.

"In both of these pieces, the Copland and the Messiaen, I tried to work with the aesthetics of the composer — as if I had been there," said Wood. "I tried to stick with the story line" — unlike the more experimental piece his company performed in Iowa City last year.

"I vacillate between doing risky things and dancy-dance things, and this is dancy-dance. That was the year to do that." And tonight's program, Wood believes, will be more accessible to the average dance enthusiast.

Figaro rewrite has problems

By Kevin Goulding
The Daily Iowan

Lathering It Up at the Hotel Seville, University Theatre's adaptation of Beaumarchais' 18th-century farce The Barber of Seville, which opened Wednesday night at E.C. Mabie Theatre, begs the question, why an adaptation? Following fast on the footsteps of Romeo and Juliet, the audience once again faces the challenge of a "classic" piece given an entirely new treatment.

When one adapts, one changes. The reason that many plays survive to be restaged is because of enduring quality or entertainment value. In Romeo and Juliet, for example, the period remained the same but the passion of the young lovers was trivialized and dismissed. The result was a distracting take-off, a mish-mash that didn't seem to come out of the spirit of the play.

DIRECTOR Eric Forsythe, who did the Seville translation, chose to move the period from 18th-century Spain to an 1850s California gold-rush town named Shinbone Peak. Forsythe chose to do his own translation because he felt the existing translations were dull and dated, and the time period was too obscure for contemporary audiences. What was retained was the comic spirit of the play. The play had an ambitious liveliness, and the actors had that inspired sparkle in their eyes, particularly necessary for farce.

One of the shortcomings of the play, one that can be attributed to reworking a proven piece, was the ineffective pacing of many of the scenes. After a wonderful sing-along that opened the show, with the audience actually singing along, the first scene, for example, went on much too long. In addition to being overly long, the interaction between the lovesick Almaviva (Jeff Goode) and the scheming Figaro (Bradley Schnurr) was undermined by inert staging. Basically they stood still and talked, occasionally crowding in and speaking into each other's faces.

The scheming barber Figaro (Brad Schnurr) helps Rosie (Leighe Brashier) compose a love letter in University Theatre's adaptation of Lathering It Up at the Hotel Seville.

THIS LACK OF movement persisted throughout the play. Curiously, the stage was wide open, designed along the lines of a traveling tent show. Being a farce, and being given such bold and playful treatment, the lack of sweeping, rounded action held it back from reaching its full comic potential.

The laughs were quick, and many will find them too easy, but the spirit, particularly with an undergraduate cast, animates the play with its due sense of fun.

Marvelous set design, lighting and costumes deserve a rave review all their own.

Seville continues at 8 p.m. April 8-9 and 15-16, and at 3 p.m. April 17 in E.C. Mabie Theatre.

At Antiques of Marion, we don't have sales—twice a year we simply BLITZ! Saturday, April 9th, our huge crowd will go up on the main ground floor of our workshops, our storage buildings and yes, even our living rooms will contain an array of furnishings and accessories unequaled in Cedar Rapids and Marion! We will have literally hundreds of antiques—beds, dressers, commodes and armchairs. Cupboards, sideboards, benches and chairs! Chairs, trunks, desks, and wicker bookcases, chandeliers, rockers and rug! ARCHITECTURAL ITEMS, sofas, file cabinets and scores of tables. Rough and refinished, unique or common—all at unbelievable prices—and that's just furniture! There will be clocks, prints and jewelry! Stained glass, lace, linens and tools. Vintage clothing, hundreds of pieces of glass/China/Porcelain, clocks, baskets and decoys. Woodworkers, books, toys, and heaven only knows what all else will be unloaded Saturday morning!

If you've never been BLITZED!—don't miss this one! If you've been to our BLITZ before—you know you come early BOTH DAYS!

Mime troupe plays 'Caper'

By Stephen Humble
The Daily Iowan

The San Francisco Mime Troupe will be performing its original comedy thriller, The Mozamgola Caper, April 9-10 at 8 p.m. in Macbride Auditorium.

The spy thriller satirizes the United States' role in South Africa. Voodoo-style killings plague the South African bishop's worldwide peace campaign as he visits the Marxist Mozamgola.

Enter ex-CIA operative Regretta Johnson emerging from a boozey retirement in Harlem. She consents to take one final mission to protect the bishop and avenge herself on the lover who betrayed her long ago. Through poisoned darts, faithless men and a hair-raising jungle chase, this madcapped comedy thriller promises to be one not to miss.

Founded in 1959 by R.G. Davis, the troupe has been at the forefront of American political theater for over 25 years. The troupe has won two Obie Awards and one Tony. The Tony Award was won for best regional theater in 1987. The Obie Awards were won by the troupe for Grooving in the Parks and The Dragon Ladies' Revenge. The Obie Award is given to theater productions by The Village Voice.

"WE CONFRONT current global issues combining spoken theater, singing and instrumental music," said Bruce Barthol, composer and lyricist for the troupe.

The troupe does not perform in the commonly held view of mime, which uses gestures without words.

"We picked our name in the '50s, before today's widely accepted perception of mime was established," Barthol said. "The troupe has just been around too long to change its name."

The script was co-written by John O'Neal and Joan Holden. O'Neal is the founder and playwright of the Free Southern Theater in New Orleans. Holden writes and performs with the mime troupe. According to Barthol, Holden is one of the most produced female playwrights.

"There is no one director," Barthol said. "We make an attempt to work within a democratic structure, everyone getting equal voice."

The troupe is a non-profit organization. The 10 permanent members are paid through admission fees and grants. On the road more than six months a year, the troupe travels all over the world.

Tickets for The Mozamgola Caper may be purchased at the Hancher Box Office or at the door ($10 for nonstudents and $6 for students, youth under 18 and senior citizens).

Ensemble performs Vivaldi

The Daily Iowan

Musici, Italy's legendary string ensemble, will perform The Four Seasons as part of an all-Vivaldi concert at 3 p.m. Sunday in Hancher Auditorium.

After 35 years of phenomenal success, scores of best-selling recordings and an extensive list of international awards have made I Musici one of the world's best-known chamber ensembles and the most successful group of its kind.

As one of the most-recorded ensembles in the world, I Musici is familiar to classical music listeners everywhere through impeccable recordings of music of the Baroque, Classic and Romantic periods, spiced with works by modern masters including Bartok, Britten and Barber.

In addition to The Four Seasons, Sunday's concert will feature Concerto in D minor for two violins and cello; Concerto in E minor for four violins, strings and continuo; and Concerto in B-flat major for four violins, strings and continuo.

In a review headlined "I Musici's Vivaldi a Ravishing Treat," a critic for The Milwaukee Sentinel described the group's performance of Vivaldi as "a study in style... an altogether overwhelming experience."

Remaining tickets for Sunday's all-Vivaldi matinee performance of I Musici are $16.50 ($13.20 for UI students) and are available in advance at the Hancher Auditorium Box Office.

Built for comfort, certainly not for speed, the Carbondale, Ill., bluesman Big Twist returns to town Saturday night at the Dubuque Street Brewing Co., 313 S. Dubuque St., with his Mellow Fellows.

Twist will sing about a variety of rhythm and blues problems: women, hard living and, most notably in his case, too much barbeque.

And cruising in his 1962 Cadillac, one of Iowa's premiere rural blues guitarists, Catfish Keith, returns to The Mill Restaurant, 120 E. Burlington St., this weekend along with Madcat Ruth on harmonica. Catfish augments his show with his distinct stage appearance, always wearing a porkpie hat and a tie no narrower than 4 inches across.
