Hijackers promise to ‘sleep on’ new proposals by PLO

By Ralph Joseph • United Airways

LARNACA, Cyprus - Hijackers holding about 250 hostages aboard a U.S.-Iranian American Airlines jet flying from Athens to Cyprus have promised to “sleep on” new proposals by the Palestine Liberation Organization, which has been trying to negotiate with the terrorists.

The source, who asked not to be identified further, predicted some hostages might be released within 24 hours.

“Some hostages are in serious condition, but we are not going to go down this road,” he said.

The source also said that the terrorists would not go down the road of “sleeping” on new proposals by the PLO, but would continue to demand their demands. He said this was a “serious situation” that required the involvement of the international community.

The hijackers are reportedly demanding the release of several senior Palestinian leaders, including the chief of the Palestinian Authority, and the release of all Palestinian prisoners held in Israeli jails.

The hijackers said they would continue to demand these demands until their demands were met. They also said they would not allow any negotiations with the PLO, and that they would only accept direct negotiations with President Yasser Arafat.

The hijackers also threatened to take more hostages if their demands were not met.

“Each side must commit itself to a new policy of reduction and reassessment,” Reagan said.

Reagan announced that the United States and the Soviet Union would begin talks on a new arms-control treaty, and that the United States would also begin talks on a new arms-control treaty with China.

Reagan said the United States would also begin talks with the European Community on a new arms-control treaty.

LASA asks for student seat on Iowa City’s library board

By Jay Calcutt

The Iowa City Library Board has asked the Iowa City City Council to consider adding a student representative position to the Iowa City Public Library Board of Trustees. LASA President Gordon Fischer said the student position was important because it would allow the student to serve on the library board.

"There seems to be a need for more people of the board," he said. "It’s not very important that a student member would not be very important."

Fischer said that the student position would allow the student to participate in the library’s work and help improve communication between the library and the community.

The student position would be a member of the board and would be welcome to participate in the library’s work and help improve communication between the library and the community.

Lasenby. A student position would be a member of the board and would be welcome to participate in the library’s work and help improve communication between the library and the community.

"The first thing we want to learn is that the public library should serve students as students, and we want that to be reflected in the new board," Fischer said.

An important concern that needs to be addressed is that the public library should serve students as students, and we want that to be reflected in the new board," Fischer said.

Drum said that the library board should consider representing larger areas in the Iowa City community. He said that the library should serve the community as a whole.

The library board said that the student position would not be very important, but to the community, it really makes no sense to have a student position on the library board.

Fischer acknowledged that the student position could make a difference to the student, but that the student position would not be very important.

Although Drum said he had not received any response from the Iowa City Library Board, the student position should be represented. He said that the student position should be represented by a student who understands the needs of the student community.

"The student position should be represented by a student who understands the needs of the student community," Fischer said.

The student position would be a member of the board and would be welcome to participate in the library’s work and help improve communication between the library and the community.

"The student position should be represented by a student who understands the needs of the student community," Fischer said.
The failure to enlist the talent of all segments of society in higher education is a loss to society. The more diverse the student body in terms of race, ethnicity, and socio-economic status, the more likely it is that a university will attract the very best men and women who are committed to the liberal-arts education and who are likely to make the most of it.

Color is important. We should not become desensitized to it, as society, Dean of Student Services Phillip Jones responded to the U. I. students of color. "The color of the face does not alter the value of the individual, but it is an important symbol of our nation's diversity, and it is not something that automatically is taken away when you are not in a position of power, whether that be in the education, or the work, or the service world."

"The notion of the competition is not lost on the students, some of whom have been involved in the competition for years, some have been involved at the undergraduate level, and some are now involved at the graduate level," Jones said. "It is a symbol of the importance that the students and alumni recognize the importance of diversity in higher education, and that's something that is really important to me as a dean of student services."

Teachers deserve pay hike

In America there is a class of working men and women who have been long neglected. Their work has been important, their contributions have been real, but they have been denied the proper appreciation and compensation that is due them. One such group is the basketball coaches at James Madison University.

On February 11, 1988, the basketball coaches at James Madison received a significant increase in their salaries. This move is a step towards recognizing the valuable work these coaches do and ensuring that they are paid commensurate with their contributions.

In the sports industry, there is a common belief that coaches are overpaid. However, this is not the case with the basketball coaches at James Madison. Their work is essential to the success of the team and the institution.

It is important to note that this increase in salaries is not just about financial compensation. It is also about fairness and respect. These coaches are dedicated professionals who work long hours and put in a lot of effort to make their teams successful. They deserve to be paid accordingly.

In conclusion, the increase in salaries for the basketball coaches at James Madison University is a just and necessary step towards recognizing their work and providing them with the compensation they deserve. This is a positive move towards creating a more equitable and fair system of compensation for coaches across the United States.

19-year-old rescued after drifting for two weeks at sea

United Press International

NEW ORLEANS - A 19-year-old Los Angeles man who was cast adrift and surviving for nearly two weeks in a Pacific Ocean lagoon has been rescued, a U.S. Navy physician said Saturday.

The survivor, Timothy Daniels, 19, of Hawthorne, Calif., was marooned 8,000 miles from land after his sailboat sank. He spent five days trying to stay afloat in the open sea before being found.

Daniels, a production assistant with a Los Angeles film company, had been on his $15,000 aluminum sailboat for two months when the 19-foot sloop sank in October. Daniels, his father said, had been hoping to sail the boat through the Panama Canal and to Japan, his father said. Daniels had been living in Los Angeles for the past year.

The Navy physician said Daniels will be flown to the U.S. mainland for treatment after he is released by the Philippine Navy, which rescued him on Saturday.

Daniels, a student at the University of Southern California, had been working on the television series "M*A*S*H*" and was due to travel to Tokyo to attend a film festival.

The physician said Daniels was in good shape and had been given water, food and medical treatment.

Now the big step in the peace movement will be also to add the peace movement in East-West relations.

Lyle birdies the 18th to clinch Masters title

By Mike Nelkin
Associated Press

On Sunday, Sandy Lyle, placed his golfing career after a disastrous try through three years, recovering to make a huge leap into the top 10 of the world golf rankings by winning the 48th Masters.

It was the first major title for Lyle, a 37-year-old Scot who spent 10 years in the shadows of his countrymen Seve Ballesteros and Nick Faldo.

Lyle, who seemed to be in the lead for most of the tournament, grabbed the lead for good with a birdie at No. 13 and maintained it to the end, finishing with a 67 to win the Masters by one stroke over Phil Mickelson.

It was a long time in the making for Lyle, who was a four-time runner-up in the Masters but had never won a major until this year.

Sandy's father Sandy Lyle Sr., who passed away last year, would have been so proud of his son when he won this year's Masters.

Sandy Lyle Sr. was a famous golfer in his own right, and Sandy Jr. followed in his footsteps to become one of the greatest golfers of all time.

Lyle's victory was a long time coming, and it was a fitting end to a season that had been filled with ups and downs. It was a testament to Lyle's determination and hard work, and it was a fitting end to a season that had been filled with ups and downs. Iowa drops two home matches

It raised on this team's parity with Iowa's until this weekend.

After a straight set win on the road, the Iowa Hawkeyes returned home Saturday and Sunday to win both weekend matches.

The women's tennis team lost 4-3 in Michigan on a rainy Friday afternoon at Mosier Courts and 6-3 Sunday in Michigan State at the Woodfield Tennis Club in Cedar Rapids.

"I just think a few points a few different ways would have made the difference in both matches," Iowa Coach Multi Fickling said. "I think we didn't play terribly but we didn't do anything to earn the win." I am not sure what we need to do, we played good but not our best."

Ohio State Coach John Daly

The Hawkeyes swept their weekend matches with Michigan State indoors and the Hawkeyes lost their fourth straight outside the cover.

Freshman Brooke Daniel captured the Hawkeyes' first victory at No. 6 singles, 6-2, 7-5, over Nancy Bedhow and Melanie Burnham at No. 5 doubles. Daniel and teammate Hunter Daniels brushed aside their doubles opponents 6-3, 6-3.

"I think this was the best match of the year," Daniel said. "I was stability in Potsdam, signed off well third set."

Oscars started out humbly

Ceremony began as unhipped dinner

By Vernon Scott
United Press International

Hollywood—The Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences was incorporated in a simple and informal manner in 1927 and held its first dinner in 1928 at the Ambassador Hotel. The ceremony began as an unhipped dinner and has evolved into the grand event it is today.

The major winners at the first banquet were Wages for Women, directed by Charlie Chaplin; Seventh Heaven, directed by D.W. Griffith; and the first Oscar was awarded to Mary Pickford for her work in that picture.

The ceremony has grown in size and prestige over the years, and the awards have become more important. The first Academy Awards were given in 1929, and the ceremony has expanded ever since then.

The ceremony is not only a celebration of film, but also a chance for the entertainment industry to come together and recognize the accomplishments of their peers. It is a time for Hollywood to show its appreciation for the art form and the people who make it happen.

The Academy Awards are presented to the best performing actors, directors, and other contributors to the film industry. The awards are considered to be the highest honor one can receive in the motion picture industry, and the ceremony is held in Los Angeles every year.
The Big Three are predicted

The Big Three is the title for tonight's

Entertainment Today

The Academy also predicts a swaying of

Oscar nominations for 2014. Though Whitney Houston was nominated for Best Actress, she was not eligible. However, even though it's unfortunate she is not, it's unprecedented to say Oscar nominations can't be clouded with politics.

This year, however, the Academy will predict entertainment performances as usual.

Two performances that stand out to the Academy are

George Clooney for "Good Night and Good Luck," and Kevin Spacey for "House of Cards." The Academy expects them to be strong contenders for the Oscar.

George Clooney's performance is expected to be his best yet. He has already received five

Oscar nominations, but this year, the Academy expects him to finally win.

Kevin Spacey's performance in "House of Cards"

is also expected to be strong. He has received four Oscar nominations in the past, but this year, the Academy expects him to finally win.

In addition to these two performances, the Academy also predicts that Meryl Streep will win her second Academy Award for Best Actress.

Meryl Streep has received eight Oscar nominations in her career, but this year, the Academy expects her to win for her role in

"August: Osage County."
