These barrels found in the Chemistry-Botany Building underneath the chemistry auditorium once contained emergency supplies to be used if a bomb was ever dropped on Iowa City. Most of the containers which held everything from a can opener to a toilet seat are now empty, but approximately 55 gallons of carbohydrate-filled cherry and lemon drops remain.

Survival items found at UI Bomb shelter supplies recall '60s UI history

By Paula Roesler
The Daily Iowan

With the increasing cooperation of the U.S. and Soviet governments, many people tend to forget about the Cold War panic of the 1960s.

But UI Chemistry Professor David Cater got a blast from the past last week when he found civil defense survival supplies in the UI Chemistry-Botany Building, one of several UI buildings once designated as a bomb shelter.

"Back in the 1960s, in the Cold War, everybody was worried the emergency tactic was coming," Cater said. "So parts of the university were designated as fallout shelters."

Cater said after the Cuban Missile Crisis of 1962, bomb shelters sprang up all over Iowa City, both in private and public buildings. "The old schedule of classes used to have a list of where the shelters were located and where students from different dormitories were supposed to go on campus," he added.

CATER FOUND the supplies, which included about 50 five-gallon tins of lemon and cherry drop candy and several empty cardboard sanitation kit cylinders which once were filled with chemical toilets and hygienic products, in a small storage room located beneath Room 300 in the building.

"Maybe 200 people were supposed to come in this building and shelter themselves (in the event of a nuclear bombing)," Cater, who was then in charge of policing the second floor in the event of a nuclear threat, said.

Most of the supplies, including rations and blankets, were cleared out in the 1970s and used for famine relief, Cater said.

Cater said he discovered the remaining supplies, which dated from 1963, when he showed plumbers — who were working in the utility room off the storage area — where to set their tools when they left for the day.

UI Director of Planning and Administrative Services Dick Gibson said he was not aware some of the survival supplies were still in storage.

"IF YOU WOULD have asked me if there were any supplies in any of the buildings on campus, I would have said no, only because there is no organized effort to keep them there," Gibson said, adding he would have the remaining provisions removed.

UI Vice President for Student Services Philip Hubbard said the last of the big yellow signs designating some UI buildings as fallout shelters were removed in the past five years.

"It was following the Cuban Missile Crisis and everyone was very worried and started building bomb shelters and they designed shelters here on campus," Hubbard said.

Some AIDS legislation worries groups

This is the last in a series of three stories on the AIDS crisis in Iowa

By Jay Casini
The Daily Iowan

In the shroud of misconceptions and fear surrounding the AIDS crisis in the Midwest, those diagnosed with the disease are not the only victims.

According to local organizations like the Iowa Center for AIDS/ARC Resources and Education and the UI Gay People's Union, some recent attempts at AIDS regulations introduced in the Iowa Legislature may endanger the civil rights of those in groups that are considered high-risk for the disease.

Michael Blake of the UI Gay People's Union said the Iowa Legislature may be disregarding caution to pass AIDS controls quickly.

"The big problem as I see it is they are sort of in a panic to pass some sort of legislation, and they aren't really thinking through everything," Blake said. "It is not so much an attitude problem, it is more a lack of education about the disease. They really don't know the ins and outs of how discrimination can happen."

BLAKE SAID one of the major problems in legislative attempts to control AIDS is ambiguous wording.

"Wording has been a real problem," Blake said. "I know there have been instances when they have used real ambiguous phrasing, and I think they are setting themselves up for some confusion." See AIDS, Page 9A

USO club explosion kills 5, injures 16

United Press International

NAPLES, Italy — An explosion apparently caused by a car bomb ripped through a USO club crowded with U.S. servicemen Thursday night, killing five people and wounding at least 16 others, including four U.S. sailors, Italian and U.S. officials said.

Because the attack came two years to the date after the U.S. air raid on Libya, police said they were investigating a possible Libyan connection. No one claimed responsibility in the hours immediately after the blast.

Police said the five dead, ripped apart by the explosion, could not immediately be identified but they were believed to include an elderly souvenir vendor and an Italian woman who worked for the U.S. Navy.

Police said at least 16 people had been wounded.

In Washington, a U.S. Navy spokesman said all sailors from the three U.S. warships in Naples in port call were accounted for after the blast and that four servicemen had been wounded. The spokesman said no U.S. servicemen had been killed. Earlier, a naval source said an American seaman died.

CMDR. CONNIE Haney said two men from the Navy frigate Capodanno, based in Newport, R.I., and one from the Paul, of Mayport, Fla., were being treated for wounds See Explode, Page 9A

Art students protest change in class space assignment

By Jean Thilmay
The Daily Iowan

Twelve students enrolled in a UI art class sat with their teaching assistant on a segment of grass partitioned off by bright yellow tape on the Pentacrest Thursday in protest of a change in their building assignment.

The students are enrolled in a 2:30 p.m. Multimedia I class, according to T.A. Mary Disney.

Disney said when the Old Music Building, which formerly housed her class and other sculpture, media and painting classes, was condemned March 21, students were left with no place to store their materials and with inadequate classroom space.

County sheriff to leave post after 16 years

By James Cahoy
The Daily Iowan

Johnson County Sheriff Gary Hughes announced his retirement Thursday after 16 years as the county's only elected Republican official.

Hughes announced his retirement in a one-page release issued by the sheriff's department on Thursday.

"I would like to take this opportunity to thank all the residents of Johnson County and friends I have made across the county, state and nation during my 16 years as sheriff," Hughes said in the release.

In the release, Hughes did not give any specific reason for his retirement. He did, however, issue a strong endorsement of Robert Carpenter, a captain who has served 22 years in the sheriff's department, to be his successor as sheriff.

"This most difficult personal decision was simplified when I determined that Robert Carpenter had consented to run for the office of sheriff," Hughes said in the release. "Having worked with Bob throughout those 22 years, I know firsthand that he has continually put the department and its reputation in the county and the state foremost, and the interest of the citizens in front of personal convenience or gain."

Neither Hughes nor Carpenter was available for comment Thursday regarding Hughes' decision to retire.

CARPENTER, a Coralville resident and a Democrat, is one of four people running for sheriff in the June 7 Democratic primary.

The others include Daniel Dreck-men, an Iowa City police officer and former sheriff's deputy who has been critical of the way Hughes has handled the sheriff's department; Kenneth Stock of Solon; and Steve Snyder of Coralville.

Snyder, a former Coralville police officer, was charged Sept. 23, 1987, with going armed with a dangerous weapon with intent to use it after allegedly pointing it at an Iowa City man, according to Johnson County District Court records.

Johnson County Attorney J. Patrick White said Thursday night the charges against Snyder were dismissed "in the interest of justice," but said the state could opt to refile charges within three years. White did not comment further on the case.

Jackson asks Jews to forgive remark

By Matthew C. Quinn
United Press International

NEW YORK — Civil rights leader Jesse Jackson appealed to New York voters Thursday night to "forgive, redeem and move on" after controversial remarks in 1984 about Jews that have clouded his New York campaign.

Jackson made the appeal during a televised debate with Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis and Sen. Albert Gore Jr. of Tennessee five days before the crucial Empire State primary.

New polls showed Dukakis with a comfortable lead over Jackson and Gore mired in a distant third place though Gore picked up the endorsement of Mayor Edward Koch earlier Thursday.

During the hourlong debate cosponsored by Newsday and WCBS-TV, Gore continued his assault on Dukakis for remarks on nuclear weapons policy he said demonstrate a gaping lack of foreign policy experience on the part of the Democratic presidential front-runner.

BUT DUKAKIS responded in kind to more than a day of goading, dredging up a misstatement by Gore where the senator apparently confused the name of the present ruler of Saudi Arabia.

"Al, when it comes to experience, I wouldn't trade mine for yours," Dukakis told his underdog rival.

He said Gore had referred to King Khalid of Saudi Arabia during an address to Jewish leaders last week.

"He died in 1982 and had a heart attack. He hasn't been the king of Saudi Arabia at least since 1982 unless you know something we don't know," said Dukakis. He joked that his rival would be "awfully good" if he could bring the king back to life.

"Al shouldn't run for president," Dukakis joked later. "He ought to run for something even bigger than that."

Foreign policy issues dominated the debate, the second this week between the three Democratic candidates vying for the 255 Democratic National Convention delegates at stake in Tuesday's vote.

ALL THREE agreed on the need to be tough on terrorism and that military retaliation is called for See Jackson, Page 9A

Metro briefs

from DI staff reports

Lands' End postpones move

Lands' End Inc., a Dodgeville, Wis., company which sells apparel and soft luggage through mail-order catalogs, has announced the indefinite postponement of the opening of its new store at 10 S. Clinton St.

The scheduled April 21 opening has been delayed by Lands' End pending the clarification of issues raised in a suit brought by Grafton Group Inc. — the parent company of Seiferts clothing store, which formerly occupied the space — against Center City Properties, Dey Building Corporation and Lands' End.

Joe Sirianni, vice president of merchandising for Lands' End, stated in a release that, "Under the circumstances, we have stopped all remodeling on the space pending our resolution of the legal issues."

Sirianni said the company is hopeful the matter is resolved shortly.

Professor given award

UI Associate Professor of English John Galvin has been awarded a Guggenheim Fellowship by the John Simon Guggenheim memorial foundation.

The fellowship honors unusually distinguished achievement in the past and exceptional promise of future accomplishment among artists, scholars and scientists. The foundation awarded 262 fellowships from among 3,265 applicants for awards totalling over $6 million.

Galvin was recognized for his work in the field of poetry.

Association elects president

Iowa City Superintendent of Recreation Michael Moran has been voted president of the Iowa Park and Recreational Association.

The Iowa Park and Recreational Association is a statewide organization totalling approximately 700 members. The membership consists of professionals working in the areas of community recreation, parks and conservation, therapeutic recreation, and education, as well as board and commission members, students and commercial members.

Four staff members of Iowa City's Parks and Recreation Department, including Moran, currently serve on the state association's board of directors.

Coralville sponsors pick-up

The city of Coralville will be sponsoring its Mayor's Spring Clean-Trash Pick-Up days on April 18, 19 and 20.

Please note that only these days are designated. There will also be a Fall Clean-Up again in October.

During these special trash pick-up days Coralville city crews will pick up anything that otherwise does not qualify for regular refuse collection. Residents may set out anything for regular refuse collection.

School performs musical

The Iowa City Regina High School Theatre Department will perform John-Michael Tebalak's musical Godspell on Thursday, April 28; Friday, April 29; and Saturday, April 30.

Curtain time is 8 p.m. at the Regina Elementary Theatre. Ticket prices are $3.50 for adults and $2.50 for students. Reserved tickets may be purchased from cast members or can be obtained by calling Regina High School at 338-5436.

Vendors may apply for stall

Vendors who want to sell goods at the Iowa City Farmers' Market may apply at the Recreation Division Office, 220 S. Gilbert St., for a stall.

The market opens May 4 and runs Saturdays and Wednesdays through Oct. 29. Wednesday hours are 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. and Saturdays hours are 7:30 to 11:30 a.m.

Vendor fees are $6 per market, $119.60 for all Wednesdays and $119.60 for all Saturdays.

The market is restricted to individuals only. Commercial, civic, fraternal or religious organizations may not sell goods at the market.

Peterson pleads not guilty to first-degree murder

By Traci Auble
The Daily Iowan

Mark R. Peterson, 35, Coralville, entered a plea of not guilty to the charge of first-degree murder in Johnson County District Court during his arraignment before Sixth District Judge Lynne E. Brady Thursday, according to court records.

Peterson was charged with first-degree murder after allegedly fatally stabbing Marshall Stewart, 61, on March 24. Stewart was murdered at about 5:30 a.m. in his home at 1314 Whiting Ave. Court, according to court records.

Peterson attacked Stewart and reportedly stabbed him at least three to six times in the abdomen. Peterson then left the house and Stewart's wife telephoned for help.

Stewart, a former manager of the UI Power Plant, had been Peterson's boss at the plant until he retired Dec. 31.

AT THE TIME of arraignment, hearing was also held on Peterson's application for reduction of his $200,000 bond. Brady determined the bond would remain as set due to the nature and the circumstances of the offense and for the protection of the personal safety of the victim's family and other co-workers at the UI power plant, according to court records.

Peterson's lawyer, William Yetter, said Peterson needed a bond reduction so he could continue working as an assistant chief operator at the UI power plant to support his wife and four children. He is currently on leave from his job at the plant.

Yetter said Peterson had lived in Johnson County for 20 years and would not leave the area if allowed to work.

But Assistant County Attorney Linda McGuire said the court should not feel confident that Peterson would appear for his trial if he were released on bond. She said family members and co-workers had expressed fear their lives would be endangered if Peterson was released.

She also said that when Peterson turned himself in, he said he didn't know Stewart was dead.

Branstad signs 4 measures giving $280 million to state

United Press International

DES MOINES — Gov. Terry Branstad has signed into law four spending bills appropriating more than $280 million next fiscal year for state programs, including a $152.2 million measure to finance the operations of Iowa's prison system.

But Branstad, in a statement Thursday, renewed a plea to lawmakers to send him a second measure appropriating another $2 million to finance the first phase of a two-year plan to add an additional 200 beds to the state's prison system.

The prison bill signed by the governor late Wednesday includes $100,000 for a study of the state's prison system and the need for additional inmate space. Branstad said he supports the study as a way to determine long-term prison needs.

"Our prison population now exceeds the designed capacity for our system and the community-based corrections system is threatened by a lack of secure space for those individuals who are not good risks," Branstad said. "Therefore, I encourage the General Assembly to take action yet this year to add an additional 200 medium-security beds to deal with our critical prison overpopulation problem."

OTHER SPENDING bills signed by Branstad include a $9.8 million measure to finance a host of small, regulatory agencies, $109.7 million to cover the operational costs of the secretary of state's office and other agencies headed by elected officials and $7.6 million to finance state economic development agencies.

The governor vetoed a provision of the regulatory agency appropriations bill which would have required proprietary schools, such as barber and cosmetology schools, to refund 80 percent of the tuition paid by students who drop out of the schools less than four weeks into their courses. He also vetoed a second provision to require proprietary schools to purchase $50,000 performance bonds to guarantee tuition refunds to students if the schools go out of business.

Branstad said the tuition refund provision would have been unduly harsh on the schools, which have high fixed operating costs.

The requirement for proprietary schools to obtain performance bonds, which was prompted by the closing of a cosmetology school in Des Moines, might drive up student tuitions. He also said the $50,000 of required coverage would provide little protection to students in the event a school becomes insolvent.

Two motorcycles were reported stolen Wednesday from the parking lot south of South Quadrangle Residence Hall, according to Campus Security reports.

At about 8:25 a.m. Wednesday, a motorcycle valued at approximately $2,000 was reported stolen, according to the report.

At 8:40 p.m. Wednesday, a motorcycle valued at approximately $1,800 belonging to UI freshmen Brett and Brian Fereday, 346 Rienow Residence Hall, was reported stolen, but was later recovered, according to the report.

Theft: Golf clubs and bag and other golf items were reported stolen Wednesday from the room of a UI student, according to Campus Security reports.

UI freshman Thomas B. Jordan, 744 Rienow, reported at about 1:15 p.m. Wednesday that his golf equipment, valued at approximately $375, was stolen from his room, the report stated.

Report: Three unidentified juveniles allegedly attempted to break into a vacant house on Dover and Sterling streets Wednesday, according to police reports.

The complainant reported at about 7:25 p.m. that she saw three males, described as about 13 years old, trying to get in all of the windows in the house, according to the report.

The juveniles reportedly went around to the back of the house, and the complainant did not see them leave the area, but officers were unable to locate anyone in the building when they arrived, according to the report.

Theft: A stereo of unknown value was reported stolen Thursday from a truck belonging to an Iowa City man, according to police reports.

The right window was smashed and the stereo was stolen from a truck belonging to Bob Woodward, 814 Oakcrest St., as it was parked in the lot at that address, according to the report.

Courts

By Traci Auble
The Daily Iowan

An Iowa City man was found guilty Thursday of criminal trespass after he allegedly was peeping in windows of an apartment complex, according to Johnson County District Court records.

Stuart R. Mock, 37, 323 Hawkeye Court, was observed looking in the windows of apartments at 929 Iowa Ave. One resident said she heard someone outside her window, according to court records.

After being advised of his rights, Mock allegedly stated he had been peeping in windows of the apartments on Iowa Avenue. He was fined $66, according to court records.

Fundraiser garners $215 for UI daycare

By Cathy Jackson
The Daily Iowan

The need for quality affordable child care is an increasingly critical issue both in higher education and the nation, speakers noted at the UI Student Senate Daycare fundraiser Thursday night.

The event drew about 50 supporters at the Union and more than $215 in donations.

Commending student senate members on their efforts to increase awareness about daycare needs, Rep. Dave Nagle, D-Iowa, in a statement read by a representative from his office, said investments in children through daycare are integral to the future vitality of America.

"In my judgment there is a growing national consensus that this issue must be addressed," Nagle wrote. "America's children simply cannot be allowed to suffer because their parents must work."

NAGLE ALSO outlined current local and national efforts to expand and improve child care, including the UI program providing space to the 4 C's daycare referral service and the national Act for Better Child Care Services.

UI Vice President for Finance and University Services Mary Jo Small spoke of the need for financial stability among UI daycare centers.

"The financial stability of Student Senate Daycares is obviously a matter of great concern. Children are obviously the future of our society," Small said. "All I can say is that I and others who work here recognize its importance and will try to use all the creativity and energy we can to work with you to try to band together and support the parents."

Iowa City Mayor John McDonald read a proclamation that the National Week of the Young Child — April 9-15 — has been recognized in Iowa City, adding the area of child care needs immediate attention.

"THIS IS AN area we are going to have to focus more and more attention on. I think we're just seeing the beginning of it," he said.

5 area legislators currently run unopposed in primaries

By Sara Anderson
The Daily Iowan

All five local legislators from the Iowa City area currently are running unopposed in county and state primaries scheduled for June 7.

State Rep. Mary Neuhauser, D-Iowa City, Rep. Minette Doderer, D-Iowa City and Rep. Robert Dvorsky, D-Coralville, and State Sen. Jean Lloyd-Jones, D-Iowa City and Sen. Richard Varr, D-Solon, face no opposition in the primaries.

No Republican candidates have yet filed for any of the seats. The party can decide after the primaries whether or not to put an opposing candidate on the ballots.

The final deadline for candidates to file for a position on the June 7 ballot was 5 p.m. Wednesday.

In addition, Democrat Tom Slockett will run unopposed for his fourth term as county auditor.

Slockett, who has held his position as Johnson County Auditor for 12 years, said he had hoped to have an opponent in the election.

"I was looking forward to having an opponent," he said. "I think having two candidates to choose from is good in that there is an exchange of ideas on how best to run the office."

SLOCKETT SAID he hopes the fact he is running unopposed indicates satisfaction with the job he has done as county auditor.

"I hope that it means there is no great concern about the way I'm doing the job," he said. "And I would hope it confirms that I'm doing a good job."

But a two-person race would be beneficial to voters, Slockett added.

AS FOR POTENTIAL Republican opponents in the November general election, Slockett said the Republican party could follow one of two conflicting political strategies in deciding whether to place a Republican candidate on a ballot.

The first is to place a party representative in every office on the ballot, in order to increase the vote for the entire party ticket.

In an area like Johnson County, where Democrats constitute a majority, the second strategy is to provide little or no competition in order to cut down on the number of voting Democrats.

"The theory is that since this county is heavily Democratic, you don't want to arouse the natives," he said. "Because then all of the incumbent local Democrats in the county won't be out campaigning as hard and you cut down on the Democrat vote."

OTHER CANDIDATES running in the June primaries include four candidates for three seats on the Johnson County Board of Supervisors. They include: incumbent Betty Ockenfels of Hills, incumbent Dick Myers of Coralville, Charles Duffy of Solon and David Belgum of Iowa City. Each of the candidates is a Democrat.

Incumbent Supervisor Don Sehr, chairman of the board, will not seek re-election.

Candidates for 3rd District U.S. House of Representatives are: incumbent Democrat David Nagle of Cedar Falls, Democrat James Cox of Grinnell, Republican Donald Redfern of Cedar Falls and Republican Marvin Simpson of Waterloo.

Citizens wishing to vote in their party's primary must register by post card with the Johnson County Commissioner of elections by May 23 or in person at the Administration Building, 913 S. Dubuque St., by 5 p.m. Saturday, May 28. The office will be open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Voters must register as either a Democrat or a Republican.

Johnson County voters who have moved but are registered under their former addresses can vote at polling places for their new locations after filling out a change-of-address form.

One hostage freed from jet

By Brendan Murphy
United Press International

ALGIERS, Algeria — Hijackers holding a Kuwait Airways jumbo jet released one of their 32 hostages Thursday, the 10th day of an ordeal in which the terrorists threatened to kill their captives unless the Persian Gulf sheikdom met their demands.

However, a deal to free two of the three members of the Kuwaiti royal family aboard the Boeing 747 jumbo jet fell through at the last minute, witnesses and Algerian sources said.

The freed hostage was identified by Algerian officials as Jamal Abdallah Al Zaki, 50. He was taken by a security van to the VIP lounge at Algiers airport at 9:45 p.m. (3:45 p.m. CDT).

The release came about two hours after an Algerian negotiator spent 27 minutes in the plane talking to the hijackers.

"I am tired but, thank God, I'm fine," Al Zaki told reporters. He appeared haggard and unshaven and wore glasses and traditional white Kuwaiti robes.

INITIALLY, witnesses said they believed the man was Fadhel Al Sabah, 33, a member of the Kuwaiti royal family. But sources close to Algerian mediators later said those reports were not correct.

They said the hijackers at one point offered to release two of the three Kuwaiti royal family members on board, but the hostages had refused to go unless all three were freed.

Earlier, the hijackers had forced one hostage to appeal for their demands to be met, saying, "If not, they will execute us all."

In unusual signs of cooperation, the air pirates had taxied the jetliner away from in front of the control tower at Houari Boumediene International Airport to avoid interfering with the state visit of Zambian President Kenneth Kaunda and later allowed a doctor and cleaners to board the plane.

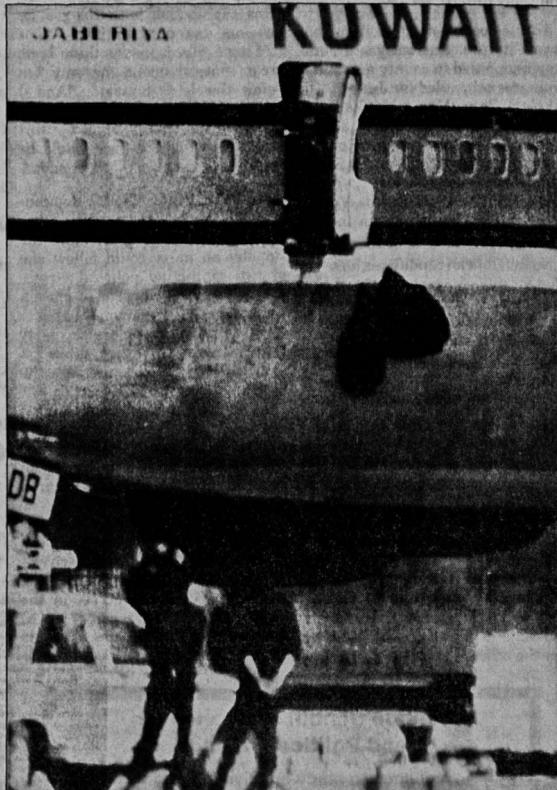

"Their morale is low," Mehdi Yousef, a physician, said of the hostages after emerging from the plane. "They are tired. But physically they are in good condition."

THE HIJACKERS, their precise number and identification unknown publicly, seized the plane April 5 during a non-stop flight from Bangkok, Thailand, to Kuwait, demanding Kuwait release 17 Moslem extremist prisoners. The jumbo jet arrived in Algiers Wednesday from Larnaca, Cyprus, where it landed April 8.

Two of the passengers, Kuwaiti nationals, were killed after Kuwait refused repeatedly to meet the terrorists' demands but 13 others were released in Cyprus.

Yousef said he examined five or six "obviously worn-down" elderly captives and one crewman who requested attention, ordering antibiotics, cough medicine and aspirin be sent to the plane.

"I saw no sign of any illness requiring hospitalization or any major medication," the doctor said. "I find them satisfactory."

Algerian policemen look up to a door on the hijacked Kuwaiti airliner Thursday as someone inside throws out a plastic bag.

2 Arab protesters killed during clash

By William B. Ries
United Press International

JERUSALEM — Two Arab protesters were killed Thursday during clashes with Israeli soldiers and the military's chief of staff said Palestinians in the West Bank and Gaza Strip were beginning to realize rioting would not win them a homeland.

The unrest came as thousands of Israelis mourned the 6 million Jews killed in the Holocaust during World War II, flying flags at half-staff, shuttering shops and attending memorial services to recite prayers for the dead.

The army, meanwhile, completed its investigation into the death of a Jewish girl killed April 6 in the West Bank Arab village of Beita. Two Palestinians also died in the clash between Israeli hikers and rock-throwing Arabs.

A REPORT ON the incident was submitted Wednesday to Maj. Gen. Amram Miztna, the West Bank army commander, who was expected to deliver it to Defense Minister Yitzhak Rabin, the Hebrew-language newspaper Ma'ariv reported.

An army spokesman said it was not known when the report would be made public.

But Ma'ariv said the probe found Tirtza Porat, 15, was killed by a bullet fired from the gun of an adult escort — a conclusion that supported the army's initial findings and refuted claims by Jewish settlers that Arabs had fired on the 16 hikers.

In the West Bank, two Palestinians were shot to death Thursday by Israeli troops during riots in the city of Nablus and anti-Israeli demonstrations erupted in at least six other West Bank and Gaza Strip towns and refugee camps.

PALESTINIAN SOURCES identified the victims as Wa'el Hassan Asma, 24, and Nasser Sami Lidawi, 23. At least six others were injured in the clashes with Israeli troops.

At least 142 Palestinians have died since anti-Israel violence began Dec. 9. An Israeli soldier was fatally shot by an unknown assailant in Bethlehem.

Four U.N.-run refugee camps in Gaza remained under curfew Thursday. The army clamped curfews on Nur Shams and Tulkarm refugee camps in the West Bank after protesters clashed with soldiers, Palestinian sources said.

Lt. Gen. Dan Shomron, the armed forces chief of staff, told military reporters Thursday that Palestinians were realizing they cannot win a Palestinian state by force.

"A process of wising up has started in which it is better understood that without the state of Israel as a partner in any negotiation, it's impossible to achieve anything, and in no case will it be a short process," he said.

Explosion damages U.S. frigate in Gulf

By Lee Stokes
United Press International

MANAMA, Bahrain — An underwater explosion possibly caused by a mine seriously damaged a U.S. Navy frigate and wounded 10 sailors Thursday in the worst incident involving an American warship in the Persian Gulf since the Iraqi missile attack on the USS Stark 11 months ago.

In Washington, Pentagon spokesman Dan Howard said the explosion hit the USS Samuel B. Roberts at 9:10 a.m. CDT as it cruised about 70 miles east of the island of Bahrain after escorting a re-flagged Kuwaiti tanker through the war-stricken waterway.

A Pentagon official said 10 U.S. seamen were injured, one more seriously than the others. None of the injuries were life threatening, the Pentagon said.

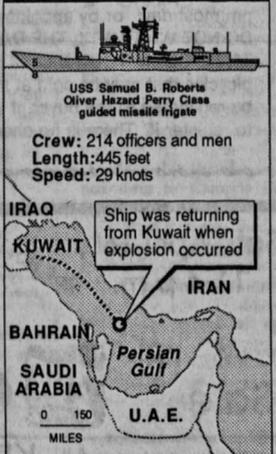

OF THE NINE less seriously injured, two had "slight" back injuries, six had "slight" burns and one had a hernia, the Pentagon said. The nine were flown by helicopter to the supply ship San Jose in the central gulf for treatment.

The sailor with more serious second-degree burns was flown by helicopter to the amphibious landing dock USS Trenton in the central gulf and was then being taken to Bahrain. The names of the wounded were not released.

U.S. officials could not positively identify what caused the explosion but gulf shipping sources said it was a mine and that it blew a hole in the frigate's hull.

"I am convinced the Roberts hit a mine," said one shipping source, requesting anonymity. "Nothing else could have caused such a hole." The incident was the worst involving a U.S. warship in the gulf since an Iraqi F-1 Mirage fighter unleashed two sea-skimming Exocet missiles at the frigate Stark May 17, killing 37 sailors and wounding 21 others.

It marked the first incident involving American forces in the gulf since November when the frigate USS Carr fired at a suspected Iranian vessel making a run at the U.S. supply ship Patriot.

Howard said the explosion beneath the Roberts caused flooding in the engine room and some hull damage. He said the ship was operating under auxiliary power and the cruiser Wainwright was on its way to aid the frigate.

Contras, Sandinistas agree on peace talks

By David Kirby
United Press International

MANAGUA, Nicaragua — U.S.-backed Contras and Nicaraguan officials agreed Thursday to conduct high-level peace talks as scheduled this weekend, showing flexibility in working through disputes that had threatened to disrupt the negotiations.

Following a week of haggling, Contra leaders arrived Thursday in Managua to prepare for the peace talks amid uncertainty over whether the negotiations would be held as scheduled. But the two sides quickly worked through the problems and agreed to go ahead with the talks today.

The Sandinistas bowed to Contra pressure to resume talks on the technical details of a truce, including the withdrawal of rebels to cease-fire zones, and resumed negotiations Thursday afternoon in the town of Sapoa on the Nicaraguan border with Costa Rica.

IN RETURN, the rebels withdrew their demand that the technical issues be settled before beginning high-level talks on an end to the 7-year-old civil war. The issues had threatened to force a delay of the peace talks.

Both sides announced they will hold the negotiations Friday at the El Camino Real Hotel, outside Managua, to begin work on an agreement to end the guerrilla war. The high-level peace talks are called for in the cease-fire accord signed by the two sides March 23 in Sapoa.

"If we don't reach an agreement on the operation of the cease-fire zones this afternoon in Sapoa, we will continue discussing this Friday in Managua," said a statement released by the government.

Honors Recognition Week

April 17 - 24

This year The University of Iowa is celebrating its first Honors Recognition Week, which will be held Sunday, April 17 through Sunday, April 24. According to Professor Irwin Levin, Honors Program Director, this event will honor outstanding undergraduate academic achievement from all Colleges of the University, and give special recognition to those students who have won awards for superior work.

There will be two awards ceremonies to honor individual achievements: an Awards Ceremony in Honor of Freshmen, Sophomores and Juniors, which will be held on Sunday, April 17 at 2:00 p.m. at the University of Iowa Museum of Art; and a Senior Honors Convocation and Reception, to be held Sunday, April 24 at 2:00 p.m., also at the Museum of Art.

In addition to these ceremonies, there will be other events held to recognize student work, including student presentations of Honors research on Wednesday, April 20 from 4:30 to 6:00 p.m. in English-Philosophy Building rooms 9, 10, and 16, and displays of student artwork at the Shambaugh House Honors Center, 219 North Clinton St. (next to Daum Residence Hall), throughout the week. Additional events are listed on the Honors Recognition Week calendar. All events are open to University students, faculty, staff, and the general public.

As the University of Iowa prepares to celebrate Honors Recognition Week, it is also an appropriate time to look back at the history of Honors at Iowa. The University of Iowa Honors program was started in 1958, with 10 departments in the College of Liberal Arts participating. The first all-University awards ceremony, the Honors Convocation, was held in 1960, and involved the Colleges of Liberal Arts and Nursing.

Professor Rhodes Dunlap, Director of the Honors Program from its inception in 1958 until 1981, said that one of the reasons that the Honors Convocation was started was to provide a record of honors achievements for each year. "Dewey B. Stuit, who was Dean of the College of Liberal Arts at the time, suggested the idea. A need was felt for some kind of commemorative ceremony, as well as a written record in the form of a program, to recognize the University awards given each year," said Professor Dunlap. A banquet was originally considered for the ceremony, but the Convocation format was chosen instead to accommodate more guests. Before Hancher Auditorium was available in 1979, the convocation was held each year in Macbride Auditorium.

It was also decided that, in addition to the presentation of awards, a speaker would be invited each year to address the assembly. "Originally we thought that we would invite speakers from off-campus, from State government and the like, but we realized that we had so many distinguished faculty and visiting professors already at Iowa that it became a tradition to invite an on-campus speaker," said Professor Dunlap. Over the years, musical performances were also added to the Convocation program. A reception for the Convocation participants and guests would follow the event.

As the years passed, the size of both the Honors Program and the Honors Convocation grew. By 1968 the Colleges of Business Administration, Education, Engineering, Liberal Arts, Nursing, and Pharmacy were all participating in the Convocation, and by 1978 the University awards being presented included the Collegiate Scholars Certificate, the Virgil M. Hancher Memorial Scholarship, the James D. Robertson Scholarship for a Junior in the Social Sciences, the Dewey B. Stuit Award for an Honors Freshman, and the Dewey B. Stuit Scholarship for an Honors Sophomore. Professor Donald G. Marshall, who was Director of the Honors Program from 1981 to 1985, recalls his most memorable Honors Convocation. "I'd have to say my most memorable Convocation was my first, in 1982, because it was my first Convocation as Director of the Honors Program and it was James Freedman's first year as President of the University. He was our speaker that year, and he delivered his first major address as President, entitled 'Public Duties, Private Lives.'"

Another memorable Convocation for Professor Marshall was the one marking the 25th anniversary of the ceremony, held in 1985. The speaker for that year was Mark Schantz, a graduate of the Liberal Arts and Law Colleges of the University of Iowa, a former Rhodes Scholar, and a former faculty member of the UI College of Law. "Part of the purpose of a Convocation or any Honors ceremony is not only to recognize award recipients for that year, but also to instill a sense of tradition, a feeling for the many achievements that have been made before, and will be made after. That's why I hope that the knowledge that there has been a record of Honors recognition dating back at least a quarter of a century will help instill in students a sense of that history, a realization that individual achievements are also part of a bigger picture," said Professor Marshall.

This year, the traditions of the Honors Convocation have been expanded into a week-long series of events that will give a greater number of students a chance to celebrate Honors at Iowa. The awards ceremony itself has been divided into the two ceremonies that will open and close Honors Recognition Week.

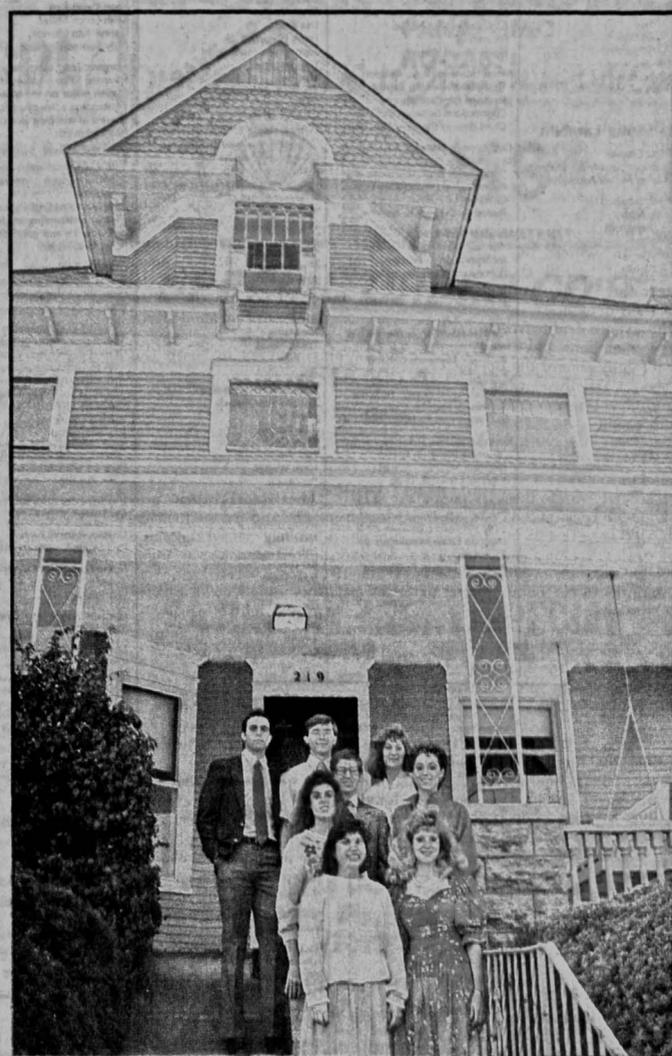

Honors Recognition Week commemorates the achievements of both the individual and the University as a whole. "The reputation of the University of Iowa depends ultimately on its students. The achievements of its graduates as researchers, business people, teach-professionals, all reflect back upon the University," said Professor Marshall.

Professor Levin wishes to extend an invitation to the entire University community to join the Honors Program in celebrating Honors Recognition Week. "This is the time to set aside to highlight the accomplishments of University of Iowa students, who we believe to be among the nation's best in terms of scholarship and citizenship. We are recognizing them not only for their accomplishments in the classroom and the laboratory, but also for the positive impact they have made on the lives of their fellow human beings through their service and leadership roles," said Professor Levin. Most importantly, Honors Recognition Week is also an expression of faith that these students will continue to be a force for the advancement of society in their future careers and activities. "Those students who are new to the University are fortunate to have such excellent role models," Professor Levin said. "Honors Recognition Week is a chance for us all to share our aspirations and ideals."

Engine disintegrates on Piedmont jet

CHARLESTON, W.Va. — The right engine of a Piedmont jet disintegrated in mid-flight Thursday and a piece of it ripped a hole in the fuselage, forcing the pilot to make an emergency landing at Yeager Airport, officials said.

No serious injuries were reported, but several of the plane's 45 passengers complained of ear problems resulting from rapid decompression aboard the aircraft and two women were taken to a hospital for evaluation.

The twin-engine F-28 4000 was en route from Charlotte, N.C., to Columbus, Ohio — flying at 31,000 feet some 40 miles south of Charleston — when the engine came apart at about 9 a.m. CDT, Huffman said.

FAA spokesman Roger Myers said a dislodged piece of the engine tore a hole through the fuselage, causing the cabin to decompress. He said officials also reported a fire in the right engine.

Huffman said the force of rapid decompression blew the bathroom door at the rear of the plane through the left side of the fuselage, threatening the plane's remaining engine.

Iowa State enacts staff hiring freeze

AMES — Iowa State University will be under a hiring freeze for about a year, the result of budget constraints and a declining enrollment, university administrators announced.

With only spotty exceptions, job vacancies will not be filled. Over the past year the university staff has seen its ranks diminish. Fifty faculty positions have been eliminated during the period, said ISU Vice President Warren Madden.

Compensating for the smaller factory, ISU has allowed some classes to grow larger and had delayed some building repairs.

Madden said the hiring freeze will affect faculty positions and other staff positions, including janitorial and food service departments. The freeze is expected to save about $1 million out of a budget of $175 million.

ISU Executive Vice President Charles McCandless said in some instances temporary instructors will be hired at substantially lower salaries to fill positions.

ISU's budget problems largely are the result of a 3-percent decline in enrollment since the 1985-86 school year, a drop that has cost about $2.9 million in tuition revenue. The university has about 25,700 students this year.

Military court overrules Billig conviction

WASHINGTON — A military court of review has overturned the manslaughter conviction of Navy heart surgeon Donal Billig, clearing his release from prison, restoring back pay and reinstating him into the Navy, a Pentagon spokesman said Thursday.

Billig, a Navy commander and chief of heart surgery at Bethesda Naval Hospital, was convicted in March 1986 on two counts of involuntary manslaughter, one count of negligent homicide and 18 counts of dereliction of duty. He was described as technically incompetent, lacking in judgment and dishonest during his court-martial.

Navy Lt. Brian Cullin, a Pentagon spokesman, said a six-man panel of the U.S. Navy-Marine Corps Court of Military Review ruled unanimously that it "did not find sufficient evidence to dispel any reasonable doubt" and dismissed the charges.

Cullin said Billig would be released from the military prison at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., where he had been serving a four-year sentence, would be reinstated into the Navy with his rank of commander restored and would receive all back pay he had forfeited.

The government now has 20 days to file for a reconsideration before the same court of military review that overturned the conviction, Cullin said.

He said Billig's release from Fort Leavenworth only awaits the completion of paperwork.

U.S. soldiers continue to sweep area

PANAMA CITY, Panama — American soldiers continued a sweep Thursday of dense jungle surrounding a strategic fuel depot where U.S. Marines Tuesday night reported exchanging fire with a group of armed intruders, U.S. military officials said.

"As of now, the sweep has not been completed," said a spokesman for the U.S. Southern Command, which oversees American forces stationed in Panama. U.S. officials said they would not announce whether they had been able to identify the armed intruders until today.

Panamanian officials, including military and civilian spokesmen, Thursday ridiculed U.S. concern over the incident, calling it a "pretext to justify a climate of war which they have presented to other countries."

Government newspapers said the Foreign Ministry was planning to present a formal protest to the United Nations about violations of the Panama Canal treaties as a result of the shooting incident.

Meanwhile, riot police fanned out through an impoverished neighborhood of Panama City to prevent a demonstration called by opposition groups. On Wednesday, police reported looting of several stores in a popular shopping district of the capital where a protest was broken up earlier in the day.

The government has banned street demonstrations.

U.S., Soviets sign Afghan agreement

By Norman Kempster
Los Angeles Times

GENEVA — The United States and the Soviet Union, joined by Pakistan and Afghanistan, signed a fragile agreement Thursday calling for withdrawal of Soviet forces from Afghanistan but allowing the superpowers, according to the U.S. interpretation, to continue pouring arms into the 8-year-old civil war.

Secretary of State George Shultz, who signed the accords for the United States, told reporters that the agreement was a historic one that could become a model for cooperation between the U.S. and Soviet governments in settling other Third World conflicts.

Nevertheless, Shultz said, the United States would not stop supplying weapons to the anti-communist "mujahedeen" guerrillas in Afghanistan unless Moscow ended its military aid to the government of President Najibullah.

He said that the United States would "meet restraint with restraint" in the event Moscow stopped sending arms to the government forces. But as long as Soviet arms continued to reach the army, he declared, "the mujahedeen may be sure that the United States will continue to support them."

IN WASHINGTON, White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater also said that the United States "will support the mujahedeen as the Soviets support the Kabul government."

"We would expect the rebels to remain an active and viable fighting force... if the Afghan government is operating in the same fashion," he said.

Fitzwater said President Ronald Reagan had encouraged the rebels to "fight on if the opposition remains, if the fight is there to maintain."

The mujahedeen have rejected the Geneva agreement and have vowed to ignore it.

The key aspect of the accord, from the U.S. point of view, is withdrawal of the 115,000 Soviet forces that have been in Afghanistan since 1979.

"The faithful implementation of the withdrawal commitments... will do much to improve the atmosphere for our bilateral relations and for the resolution of other regional conflicts," Shultz said.

ASKED HOW Washington can trust Moscow to pull out its forces, he replied, "It is well to be cautious in our dealing with the Soviet Union, but it is also well to be willing to agree when we can agree."

After the signing ceremony, Shultz met for about 90 minutes with Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze to discuss issues that will be on the agenda next week when Shultz visits Moscow to continue planning for the upcoming summit meeting between President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev.

The Afghanistan accords seem to ban all outside interference in the war-torn nation. But before the signing, the United States sent a formal statement to Moscow outlining its position on military aid for the rebels.

Senate passes $1.1 trillion 1989 budget

By Linda Werfelman
United Press International

WASHINGTON — The Senate passed a $1.1 trillion budget proposal Thursday, tacking on extra money for the campaign against drug abuse but turning aside all other bids to rearrange government spending priorities.

Senators voted 69-26 in favor of the fiscal 1989 spending blueprint, which would establish guidelines for government appropriations bills to be drawn up over the next few months for the year that begins Oct. 1.

"I think we've sort of done the best we could," said Sen. Lawton Chiles, D-Fla., chairman of the Senate Budget Committee, referring to the bipartisan spending proposal that he drafted with the panel's senior Republican, Pete Domenici of New Mexico.

DOMENICI DESCRIBED the plan as "one of the most futuristic budgets in the history of the United States," largely because of its emphasis on increased funds for scientific research and space exploration.

The timetable now calls for a House-Senate committee to draft a compromise spending plan that can win approval from both chambers. The proposal strongly resembles both President Ronald Reagan's spending recommendations and an alternative passed by the House last month.

All three were based on guidelines set forth last fall in a two-year deficit-reduction agreement negotiated between the White House and congressional leaders.

As a result, the Senate proposal is calculated to match requirements to shrink the deficit to $136 billion in fiscal 1989. The administration and the House have said their spending plans would result in slightly lower deficits.

IN ALL THREE cases, critics have challenged calculations used in projecting the deficit, charging that they are based on overly optimistic economic assumptions and that the actual deficit will be higher than forecast.

All three proposals set military spending authority at $299.5 billion and domestic discretionary spending at $169.2 billion. They call for no new taxes other than the $23 billion two-year package required under last fall's agreement.

No more victims

This world is a cruel, indifferent place, populated from pole to pole with enough liars, hypocrites and evil people to outnumber the good 1,000 to one. Ten thousand to one. This ratio has one effect more horrible than any other: It can force good people to make evil decisions.

One is needed now.

Last Tuesday, hijackers captured a Kuwait Airways Boeing 747 and, after releasing 56 hostages in Mashhad, Iran, they flew on to Cyprus, where a shortage of fuel forced them to land. In Cyprus the hijackers released 13 of their prisoners and killed two. The freed hostages were exchanged for enough fuel to get the plane to an airway in Algiers, where it sits now with its complement of fanatics and martyrs.

The hijackers have demanded 20,000 tons of fuel and a change of underwear for everybody on board, and Algerian officials continue trying to negotiate with the hijackers, who want the release of 17 convicted Shiite Moslem terrorists imprisoned in Kuwait in 1983.

The Kuwait government has refused to negotiate with the hijackers, and this is the right thing to do. The hijackers are terrorists, and the prisoners they want released are terrorists, too — terrorists who bomb embassies and murder government workers and hijack airplanes and murder defenseless hostages.

By threatening the lives of innocents like those people trapped on the Kuwait Airways jet, any group of terrorists, no matter how small, can gain a hammerlock of leverage to use against an entire country, or more than one country.

These hijackers want to barter the lives of the innocent for the freedom of guilty, and the guilty will use their freedom to make more deals, end more lives and slowly, slowly make the world even more cruel, even more indifferent to the suffering of the few good people in it.

This is not to say that refusing to deal with terrorists will act as a deterrent to future terrorism, not in any conscious way. People such as these hijackers aren't capable of learning; deterrents would only encourage them.

Rather, this is to say that people — good, honest, brave, decent people — who make deals with terrorists and killers only perpetuate their own victimization. Pity for those victims captured on that airway in Algiers turns into a mockery of itself if it allows 17 convicted terrorists to go free and make new victims.

The Algerian government should not give these killers encouragement to try again. The hijackers' demands must not be met.

Sleaze update

The present administration in Washington can be — and certainly has been — accused of many things. Embarrassment is not one of them, however. It seems the sleazy just get sleazier.

The latest "we're sleazy but not embarrassed" awards go to administrative aides in the Labor Department and the Office of Management and Budget. Contempt citations are currently being sought against these officials in a suit filed by the United Steelworkers of America in a U.S. Court of Appeals. The union claims the two departments have illegally blocked court-ordered warnings to American workers about toxic chemicals.

Last May the same appeals court ordered the Labor Department to begin enforcing regulations issued by the Occupational Safety and Health Administration. The OSHA regulations require employers in several industries to make sure warning labels are placed on hazardous chemical products. The regulations don't ban any products or even order any reduction in exposure — they simply require employers to warn of health risks and train workers on proper safeguards.

The director of OMB, James C. Miller III, came up with a wonderfully sleazy way to avoid carrying out the court order. Miller asserted that some provisions of the order violated the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1980, a bill intended to reduce the number of governmental forms that businesses must handle. Hence, according to the clever budget chief, reducing paperwork takes precedence over reducing the 100,000 deaths blamed on occupational diseases every year.

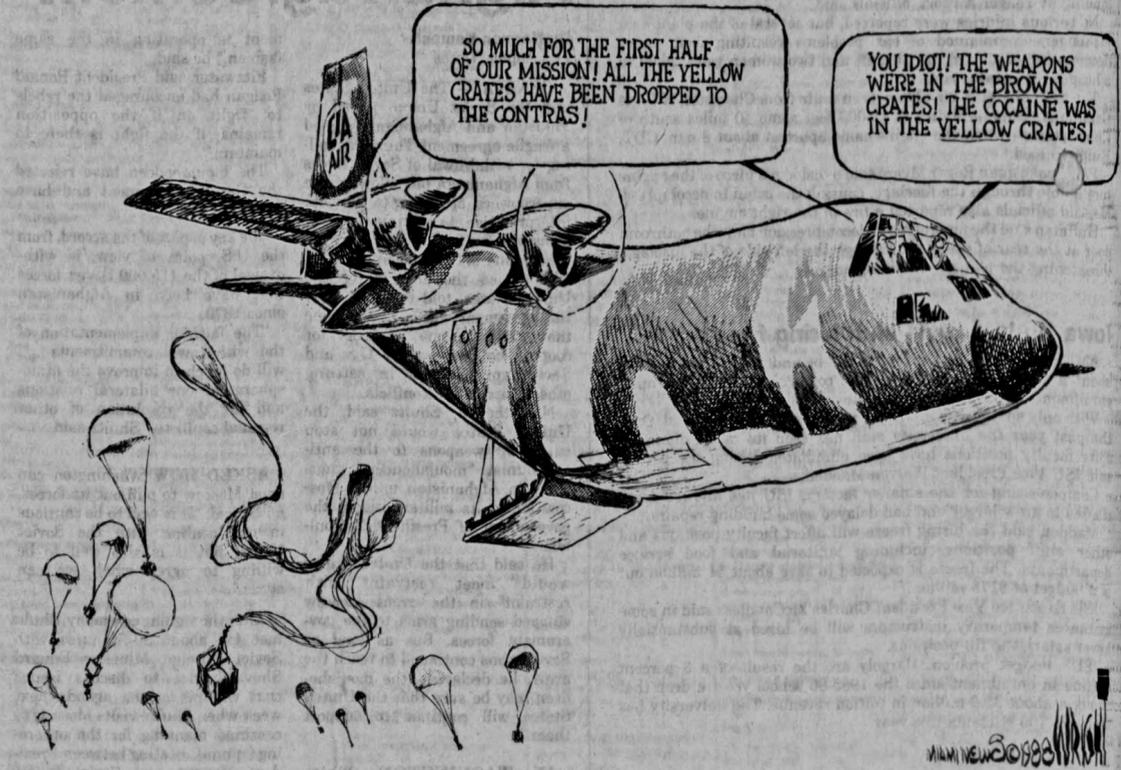

All this comes as no surprise. The same administration has brought us the Interior Department secretary who so diligently put mining and oil-drilling interests above protection of the interior, and the top Justice Department official who made the extraordinary announcement that criminal suspects would not be suspects if they weren't actually guilty of the crime.

Likewise, in good Orwellian fashion, the Labor Department — with help from the OMB — reveals its paradoxical mandate. Bust the unions and put profits above people.

Some late breaking news . . .

"I'm Betty Blatherskite . . . And I'm Bob Spalpeen!"
"And this is Nightly Action Eyewitness Newsdesk Evening Weekend Edition News Report. Our top story tonight, Betty?"
"Well, Bob, Washington was rocked this week by the revelation that someone actually sat down and thought up what was up until now thought to be the mindless blathering of President Ronald Reagan. In his newly published book, former White House spokesman Larry Speakes described his frustration at Reagan's behavior during high-level White House meetings where the chief executive was reported to sit in silence, not pay attention, play with his dog Freedom Fighter or wear a walkman. To make up for the lack of presidential input, Speakes said he was often forced to invent presidential quotes to make the president look like an involved decision-maker rather than a unattentive, semi-conscious ninny."
"I GUESS IT didn't work," Speakes was quoted as saying. When President Reagan was questioned about the matter, he smiled, cocked his head and chuckled, 'I guess it didn't work, Speakes was quoted as saying.' At this point, First Lady Nancy Reagan expressed disgust at such 'kiss-and-tell' books, and then laughed maniacally as she unleashed Freedom Fighter and set him on unsuspecting reporters."

"And in a related story, the former White House spokesman is entering upon a show-biz career. He is teaming up with members of the former '70s bubble gum pop band The Archies, and he will launch a national tour with the group, newly renamed Forked Tongue. So look for Larry Speakes with Forked Tongue at an auditorium near you soon. Bob?"
"Well, Betty, Harvard University scientists recently were granted the first U.S. patent on a higher life form. Patent 4,736,866, going under the scientific name 'transgenic non-human mammal,' or in layman's terms 'unhealthy mouse,' is different from other mice only in that it is much more likely to develop cancer. In fact, roughly half of the females develop cancer and die, with the side effect that roughly half of the males hang around in secluded areas of the park trying to meet each other."

"GENETICISTS claim the rodent's sickness will enable them to better test whether chemicals in food or the environment are harmful, provide a more effective model for determining how genes contribute to cancer and save a ton on cigarette money, since the mere sight of a pack of Camel studs will flood the little Mickeys and Minnies with tumors. 'More ciggies for us is what this really means,' said an unidentified researcher."
"In a related story, scientists at Yale University, not to be outdone by their hated rivals at Harvard, are at work on several new animal species, including cats more prone to hairballs, bats with impaired hearing, pit bulldogs who are easily offended, rats with thumbs and cockroaches who can make powerful explosives out of common household items to blast open refrigerator doors. Betty?"
"WELL, BOB, still on the science beat, advice columnist Ann Landers shocked ailurophiles everywhere when she gave details of a report detailing the effects of falls of between six and 27 stories on household cats. The report did reveal that Tabby is a remarkably sturdy little fellow; in fact, the cat who fell 27 stories suffered only a chipped tooth, a bruised chest and lungs and legs so bowed you can pass a cantelope between them without him noticing."

Scientists disclaimed responsibility for the plummeting pussies, blaming instead 'coincidence, yeah, that's it,' cats showing off for other cats by walking on balcony railings and 'kittens despondent over recent financial reversals.' Harvard scientists responded to the study by announcing a project to genetically engineer aerodynamically inferior cats who will fall faster."
"And we'll be back after this message to report on the controversy over defrocked televangelist Jimmy Swaggart offering his services to the U.S. Supreme Court when it is considering obscenity cases, claiming 'I'm a man who knows pornography when I see it.'"
Michael Humes' column appears on the Viewpoints page every Friday.

Letters

Take action
To the Editor:
Currently several buildings at Iowa's state universities are in violation of the state fire code. Students have been pleading with state officials to appropriate funds to bring these buildings up to code, but so far these pleas have fallen on deaf ears.
Several days ago there was a major fire at the UI's International Center. Students in the building at the time were forced to jump out windows to escape the fire. These students had no prior warning of the danger, as the building did not have working fire alarms. Fortunately, no students lost their lives in this fire. However, if campus buildings are not made fire safe, students may not be so lucky in the future.
The state Board of Regents asked for $1.5 million to correct these violations, but has not lobbied for this as actively as they have for other projects. The state Legislature has ignored these fire safety violations because it claims there is not money in the education budget. The governor found more than $4.5 million in the education budget to increase the private college tuition program to more than $28 million, but the governor could not find a dime to correct fire code violations at the state universities.
Students have been complaining for years about the fire safety violations at the regents universities. It seems that nothing is ever done to remedy this problem. The International Center was cited for violation of safety standards in 1983, yet the building was never brought in compliance with state fire regulations.

Why do the Legislature and the governor continue to appropriate huge sums of money to aid private colleges while ignoring the safety of students, faculty and staff at the state universities? The answer is simple. Private college students and their parents sponsor large write-in campaigns to their legislator and to the governor requesting funds for the Iowa Tuition Grant.
If you are concerned about the safety of students at the state universities, please call or write your legislators and Gov. Terry Branstad. Several deaths and millions of dollars in damage to campus buildings can be prevented by adequate fire alarm systems. Let government officials know that fire safety projects are important. . . .

Fighting apartheid
To the Editor:
I attended the Helen Suzman lecture on April 6. Suzman, a leading opponent of apartheid for many years in South Africa, has repeatedly called for full equality, an end to the policy of banning, the release of all political prisoners and many other admirable actions too numerous to list. Despite her record, she is regarded with suspicion by some other opponents of apartheid.
The debate — and I use the term loosely — last week centered around Suzman's advocacy of building black "economic muscle" as one of the means of bringing an end to apartheid. She maintains that economic sanctions only hurt the poor. However, since she is neither black nor poor, nothing she says about the situation has any credibility. So once again racism triumphs over reason. Presumably, most black South Africans would rather see their families starve than live under apartheid.
However, in the day-to-day life of many black industrial workers, economic power is at least as important as political power. In 1984, Lawrence Schlemmer of the University of Natal sampled a cross-section of black industrial workers throughout South Africa. The results showed that "resources of the greatest value" to blacks were regarded as: skills training for job investment — 43 percent; the franchise — 19 percent; better education — 16 percent; with strong black leadership, strong trade union and strong political organization bringing in lesser percentages. This would indicate that South African blacks are keenly aware of the economic oppression of apartheid.

Before 1948 white South Africans made no pretense, as they do now, that racist laws were intended to protect black tribal life. Rather, the whites were afraid of black economic muscle. Blacks were better farmers in general and were releasing themselves from the servitude of land tenancy.
In industry, skilled positions were given only to whites because they feared black economic muscle. The South African Communist Party slogan in the 1920s was "Workers of the world unite and fight for a white South Africa." Contrary to the opinion of some, white government monopolies are not blacked, blacks will have no trouble competing. The poor will get richer and some of the rich will get poorer.
Of course, racism is more than a question of economic justice. No amount of money and economic power is a substitute for human dignity and equality. Building black economic muscle is not the end, it is one of the means to a free South Africa. Unless you are absolutely sure that black South Africans would rather work for the South African "boss man" than an American investment which recognizes trade unions, full equality and the Sullivan principles, you should support American investment in the black economy.

under certain circumstances. "It is called for but you must first have accurate information," said Jackson, who generally advocates a dovish foreign policy. He criticized the 1986 U.S. bombing raid on Libya, however. Jackson was questioned about his 1984 remarks calling New York City "Hymietown," his links to Black Muslim leader Louis Farrakhan, his 1979 embrace of Palestine Liberation Organization Chairman Yasser Arafat and other controversies that offended many Jews and others. "Throughout the course of human affairs, people forgive, redeem and move on," Jackson responded. He also said some New Yorkers remember that he visited a concentration camp while President Reagan was visiting a German cemetery where members of the Nazi SS were buried and that he raised the issue of Soviet Jewish emigration with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev. "SO PEOPLE remember what they choose to remember," he said. "People also remember that not only did I meet with Arafat, but I challenged him to change his course, to move to mutual recognition and away from a course of annihilation." Gore, who has attacked Jackson's Middle East policy, said he had "never in this race brought up the comment about Hymietown because he apologized for it some time ago and said he thought it was a mistake. "I haven't talked about Farrakhan because I remember a statement last year, two years ago, that separated him from the views expressed there in a way I thought was pretty clear," he said. But Gore again attacked Jackson for advocating an independent Palestinian state and hammered away at Dukakis for comments the senator contends were a "major blunder" because they betrayed circumstances under which Dukakis would use strategic nuclear weapons. "YOU'VE GOT to correct that, Mike," Gore chided Dukakis. Dukakis again said he had only restated basic NATO policy reserving the right to use nuclear weapons in the event of a Soviet invasion of Western Europe in a newspaper interview earlier this week. He offered Gore a transcript to back up his point and told Gore that if he wants to know what he said about something, "Don't pick up the morning newspaper and hold a press conference. Give me a buzz. I'll tell you exactly what I said and there will be much less confusion." Jackson's 1984 comments calling Jews "Hymies" and New York City "Hymietown" have hung over the campaign in New York, where Jews are expected to represent a quarter of Tuesday's Democratic electorate.

AIDS

ICARE Director and UI Gay People's Union member Rick Graf said an early version of a bill recently discussed by the Iowa Senate referred to the potential danger of people who lead "a concealed lifestyle unreachable by community organizations or AIDS service groups." Graf said this type of wording, coupled with attempts to require mandatory HIV testing for marriage licenses and employment, threatens the civil rights of people with the disease or those in high-risk exposure groups.

Sen. Richard Varn, D-Solon, admits there have been instances of reactionary bills, but he said the Iowa Legislature is working hard to find the best way to control the disease. "I AGREE THAT there is a lot of reactionary legislation going on around the country, and I agree that there has been some reactionary legislation introduced in the Iowa Senate, but I see most of what is being passed into law as being positive measures," Varn said. "The primary evil of those reactionary laws you see in some other states is that they waste important resources, and that can hinder the fight against the disease," Varn said.

the needs of both the gay community and people who have been diagnosed with the disease. LLOYD-JONES said some reactionary bills had been discussed in the past, but she said the legislators who still hold those positions are in the minority. "I think we have been quite sensitive to the concerns of the gay community and I think we have addressed the need as best we could," Lloyd-Jones said. "When you look at what other states are doing, I think Iowa has been very rational in what we are trying to do." Blake said some of the attempts at laws reflect a lack of sensitivity among lawmakers to the rights of the gay community. "From our perspective, they need to take time to talk with AIDS patients specifically in regard to gay issues, which they are really shaky about doing," Blake said. Graf said Iowa legislators are not immune to the general misconceptions about the disease prevalent in society.

is not happening just like too many gay people did at the start." "In Iowa, and especially rural Iowa, where people still think that there aren't any gay people around, then people don't think this disease is relevant to them," Graf said. Even in the Iowa City community, which many people consider to be more liberal than other Iowa cities, Graf said fear and discrimination against gay people is widespread. "Intellectually, yes, people don't think gay people should be discriminated against, but when it comes down to the real nitty gritty, what if their son was going out with another man? Obviously there would be a different reaction," Graf said. "What if their children were being taught by a gay teacher? They wouldn't allow that to happen."

"I'M AFRAID that they might go about it just like they did in Illinois where anything that had AIDS on it passed just because they were trying to prove to their constituents that they were doing something about AIDS," Graf said. "The reaction is indeed based upon a lot of misconceptions," Graf said. "I think the fundamental mistake everyone is making when it comes to making decisions about AIDS is not moving slowly and carefully and with reason and using as much information as can be obtained." "That is their biggest mistake," Graf said. "I think it leads to bad and harmful laws that they will have to correct later. For some people, those laws could ruin their lives."

Varn said the Legislature's effort is not being rushed, and he said lawmakers are trying to balance prudent medical advice with the rights of their constituents. "The issue is not really what the gay people want," Varn said. "The issue is what the best medical people who are dealing with the problem feel is the best approach. I look at what we have been told is the best medical evidence on hand." Sen. Jean Lloyd-Jones, D-Iowa City, said she believes the Iowa Legislature has been sensitive to

"MOST PEOPLE think that AIDS is the fault of gay people," Graf said. "Unfortunately, that is a fatal misconception for a lot of people. Straight people are going to do the denying and pretend that it

Graf said the answer to controlling the disease lies in better education. "The threat of death alone is not enough — punitive measures against people are not enough," Graf said. "You have to have everybody convinced that it is affecting them. When enough people's lives have been affected by this disease, that is when you are going to see the changes."

it is foreign-made or Italian," Police Chief Antonio Barrel said at the scene. The blast destroyed a number of other cars parked nearby and started a fire that spread through the building but was quickly controlled.

Lezzi, who ran there from the nearby municipal offices. Mario Gismondi, a business consultant, compared the explosion to the earthquake that hit southern Italy Nov. 23, 1980. "The blast was tremendous. You had the sensation that the building would collapse in pieces," he said. "Glass from the building fell like rain in the street." Fifteen of the wounded, including two U.S. servicemen, were taken to Old Pilgrim Hospital. An Italian passerby identified as Rosaria Grima, 27, was reported in critical condition at the hospital. The sailors were later taken to U.S. facilities.

Police said it appeared a bomb, set off by remote control, exploded at 8 p.m. in a car parked directly in front of the servicemen's club. Witnesses told police they saw an olive-skinned man aged about 40 in the area at the time. "The car bomb is unrecognizable. At first view we can't say whether

OFFICES OF THE neo-fascist Italian Social Movement are located in the same building above the club, but police said they were convinced the USO was the target. First reports indicated there had been two blasts. "Inside the club the scene is apocalyptic," said Mayor Pietro

UI PLANNING and Administrative Services Director Dick Gibson admitted the doors of the Old Music Building were locked with little warning. But he said students have had ample time to enter the building and remove their materials. "We had no choice but to do what we did," he said. "Once we decided it was unsafe we had to move swiftly."

"If the students have a complaint they need to bring it to us," he said. "So far no one has come forward."

He said the Boyd Law Building was decided upon as the new home for the multimedia studio after comparing all the sites.

while bracing the gun and ordered the person to walk toward him on Newton Road. Snyder told the person to walk toward a wooded area. The person told police he recognized Snyder's voice and said Snyder had made previous threats on his life, according to court records. Snyder was subsequently released from the Johnson County Jail after posting $20,000 bond, according to jail officials.

Hughes is currently the only Republican special in Johnson County government. No Republican has filed for the June 7 primary to fill Hughes' post, but Republicans still have the option of nominating someone to fill the vacancy on the primary ballot. Hughes was first elected sheriff in 1972. He was re-elected in 1976, 1980 and 1984. His fourth term expires Dec. 31. His performance was praised Thursday by other Johnson County officials.

"I THOUGHT HE did an excellent job of running the department," said Johnson County Board of Supervisors Chairman Don Sehr.

NEW YORK — Billionaire hotel magnates Harry and Leona Helmsley — their smiles dissolving into tears as they stood among drug suspects and thieves — pleaded innocent Thursday to charges of making millions in illegal tax deductions.

Helmsley is the largest landowner in New York City, with properties worth an estimated $5 billion that include the Empire State Building, the Flatiron Building, the One Penn Plaza office building next to Madison Square Garden, and apartment complexes with nearly 20,000 units.

Leona Helmsley, a former Chesterfield Cigarette Girl, has for years been featured on lavish advertisements for the Helmsley Palace hotel in New York in dozens of magazines. The ads say the hotel is "the only palace where the queen stands guard."

THE COUPLE, ALONG with two former aides, were accused of tax evasion in state and federal indictments unsealed Thursday, a day before income tax returns are due.

Prosecutors said the couple wrote off as business costs $4 million in personal expenses, including a $2,000 lace and satin outfit and a $45,000 silver clock in the shape of the famed Helmsley building on Park Avenue.

The federal indictment also accuses Mrs. Helmsley of conspiracy to commit extortion by demanding kickbacks and "free goods and services" from contractors. She faces a maximum sentence of 20 years in prison on that charge alone.

The self-styled king and queen of the New York hotel industry — smiling, tanned and linked arm-in-arm — arrived at the state attorney general's office in lower Manhattan in a silver stretch limousine and surrendered at 6:40 a.m. CDT after cutting short a Barbados vacation. They refused to talk about the case.

THE HELMSLEYS WERE fingerprinted and photographed like any other prisoners and, by the time they reached the infamous Manhattan criminal courts building for their arraignment, their grins had dissolved into tears.

Mrs. Helmsley, 67, clad in red, white, and blue and her mascara smudged, stood next to her ailing 79-year-old husband among the drug suspects and petty thieves to answer the charges.

Both said just two words during 10-minute procedure — loudly proclaiming "not guilty."

Although the assistant state attorney general asked for $1 million bail for each, state Supreme Court Justice Carol Berkman released them on their own recognizance.

The judge also released on their own recognizance Frank Turco, 45, of Lutz, Fla., the former vice president of Helmsley Hotels, and Joseph Licari, 51, of Oyster Bay Cove, N.Y., the former chief financial officer in the empire, after they pleaded innocent to the state charges.

THE FOUR WERE charged in a 188-count state indictment with falsifying business records, scheming to defraud and conspiracy, carrying a maximum sentence of four years in prison on each of 186 felony counts and a total of up to $930,000 in fines. Only two of the counts against them were misdemeanor charges.

Authorities charge that between 1982 and 1986 they illegally deducted $4 million in personal expenses, including swimming pools, marble dance floors and jade artwork in the Helmsley's palatial $11 million Greenwich, Conn., mansion Dunnellen Hall.

Also included were the $45,000 silver clock Mrs. Helmsley bought as a birthday present for her husband in 1984, and the satin, lace and chiffon outfit she called a "uniform."

Annual spring game set

The Daily Iowan

The annual Iowa spring football game will be held Saturday at 1:05 p.m. in Kinnick Stadium. Admission for the game, which will feature 12-minute quarters instead of the regulation 15, is free.

Fans who drive to the game can park in ramps and hard-surfaced lots within walking distance of the stadium.

Although parking in UI lots will be free Saturday, regular hourly fees will be in effect at the two University Hospitals parking ramps near Kinnick Stadium.

A parking area for persons with physical disabilities will be provided near the west side of the stadium.

Fans who wish to watch the scrimmage from the east stands should enter through Gate 12; to watch from the west stands, enter through Gate 11.

University Security will station monitors at the entrance gates so that coolers and other visible beverage containers are not carried into the stadium.

An estimated 40,000 fans attended last spring's contest.

LINCOLN, Neb. — For the second year in a row the Iowa men's gymnastics team finished in fifth place at the NCAA Championships.

Extremely close competition in the preliminaries kept the final three teams a mystery until the last rotation. Illinois, Nebraska and UCLA, after swinging up and down in the rankings, will continue to today's final round.

Iowa landed in fifth place behind Stanford with a 283.05 in the team preliminaries.

The Hawkeyes opened the meet on the pommel horse with senior Ron Nasti scoring a 9.6. Following Nasti was captain Joe Thome and Randy Gentile, both scoring a 9.45.

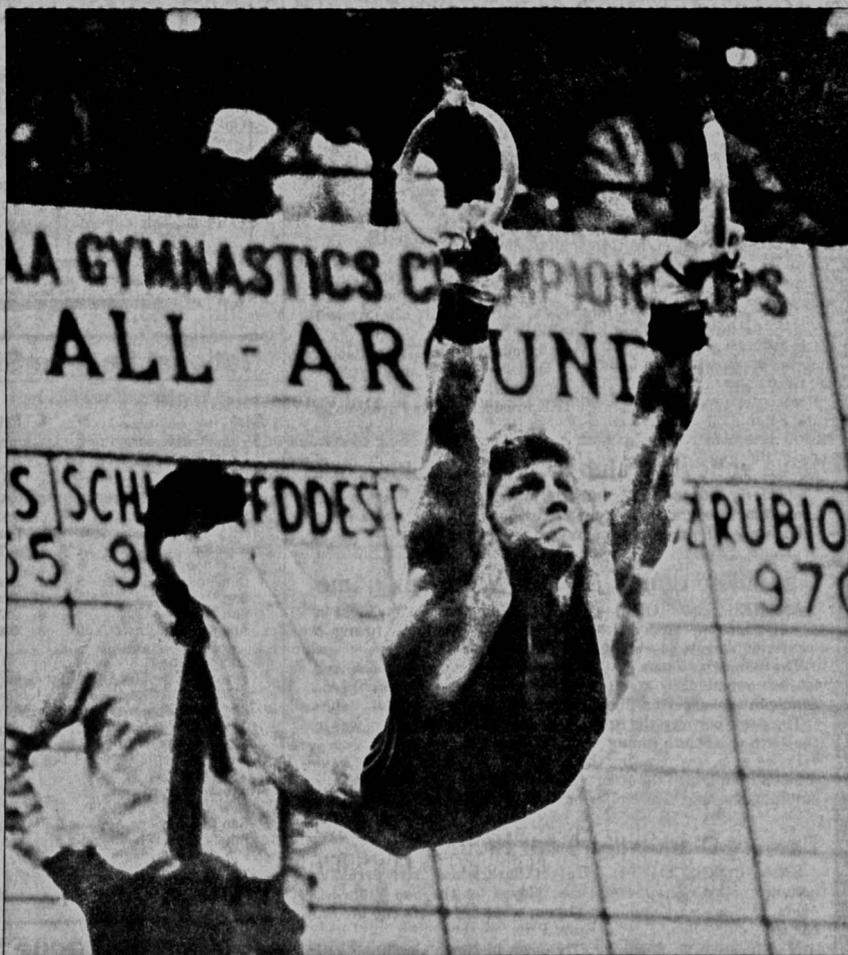

IOWA'S TEAM score was 47.10, leaving the Hawkeyes third after the second rotation.

The still rings helped Iowa move up. The team scored a 47.80, tying for second overall with Oklahoma after the fourth rotation.

Thome, a senior from Lakewood, Ohio, finished his career as a Hawkeye performing a career high 9.8 on the still rings.

"This was my personal best. I wanted to be clean and hit well," he said. "I didn't think I'd score that high, maybe a 9.6, 9.7. I just wanted to score well mostly for the team."

The second-place standing was Iowa's Chris Stanicek performs on the still rings Thursday at the NCAA Men's Gymnastics Championships in Lincoln, Neb. In 1987, Stanicek was named the Hawkeyes' Most Reliable Performer.

short-lived, however, as Iowa then slipped to sixth place, tying Houston Baptist, after its poorest performance of the meet on the vault.

"WE OBVIOUSLY missed a few on the vault. But that hasn't been our strongest event all season," Iowa Coach Tom Dunn said. "We did the best I thought we could."

The leading scorer in the vault was sophomore Keith Cousino with a 9.3. Thome trailed behind Cousino with a 9.2.

On the parallel bars, Iowa's top performance came again from Thome, scoring a 9.55. Cousino followed Thome with a 9.45.

The Hawkeyes finished with a 46.90 on the bars, landing them at fifth place, a spot which they continued to hold the rest of the meet. Dunn said his was pleased with his team's final standing.

"There were 10 good teams out there and this was a good meet to end the season," he said. "We earned a solid fifth."

The finals of the team competition are today. The individual competition ends Saturday.

Clubs combine for 12 errors; Hatcher sets freshman mark

By Bryce Miller
The Daily Iowan

Duane Banks' squad used a lot of offense and a helping hand from the Western Illinois defense to score a 14-9 victory over the Leathernecks.

The contest, held Thursday afternoon in Macomb, Ill., proved that to err is human — and err they did as 12 errors were chalked up between both squads. The Hawkeyes committed four, while the Leathernecks were guilty of eight miscues.

"We really didn't play well," said Leatherneck skipper Dick Pawlow. "While we were out there kicking the ball around, Iowa was scoring runs."

Luis Ramirez got a leadoff double in the top of the first inning, then scored on Mike Bradley's double to get the Hawkeyes, 15-13 overall and 4-2 in conference action, into the scoring column first.

FOLLOWING ONE Western Illinois run in the bottom half, the Hawkeyes came back with three in the second courtesy of Bryan Luedtke's two-run single that brought in teammates Jeff Schafer and Tim Costo. Luedtke rounded out the scoring in that inning on Bradley's single.

The Leathernecks returned to batter Iowa starter Brian Kennedy in the bottom of the second with four earned runs to take their only lead of the game, 5-4.

Pawlow was quick to point out that both teams didn't utilize their bullpen aces in an attempt to bolster the mound depth for upcoming conference agendas.

"We threw a freshman (Eric Hillier) early to save our hurlers for the conference schedule," he said. "I think that Iowa saved their strength for that same reason."

In the bottom of the seventh inning the Hawkeyes ran into some problems of their own as they fell victim to three errors, allowing the Leathernecks to tie up the contest at nine.

Second baseman Marty Brauch doubled in the eighth to set up Bradley's first game-winning RBI of the season with a double. The final punch came in Iowa's half of the ninth when Ramirez belted his second home run this year, a two-run shot scoring Brauch.

Sophomore pitcher John DeJarid gained the victory for his three innings of work in which he gave up three hits, three runs (two earned) and collected six strikeouts. The win moved DeJarid's season record to 3-1.

Anti-apartheid committee lists people who play in S. Africa

By Martin Lader
United Press International

NEW YORK — Tennis players Jimmy Connors, Chris Evert, Brad Gilbert, Billie Jean King and Pat Cash, boxer Mark Breland and golfer Seve Ballesteros are among some 2,500 athletes and officials cited Thursday in the annual register of the United Nations Special Committee against Apartheid.

The register, compiled since 1981, lists the names of people who have participated in sporting events in South Africa and of South Africans who have played outside their country.

Britain leads the list with 701 names, followed by the United States with 651. In addition, several teams, such as tug-of-war groups and the University of Western Florida women's basketball squad, are listed.

"THIS WON'T BRING down apartheid, no one expects that," said Sotirios Mousouris of Greece, Assistant Secretary General of the U.N. Center Against Apartheid. "But this is one of a means of pressure applied to South Africa."

Seve Ballesteros

This is more psychological."

Golfer Jack Nicklaus and tennis player Ivan Lendl, a Czechoslovakian who now makes his home in the United States, are among a list of 157 sportspeople whose names were deleted from the register after pledging not to participate in South Africa until apartheid is eliminated.

Twenty-nine countries have ratified the International Convention against Apartheid in Sports which took effect April 3. Among them are East Germany, Mexico, the Soviet Union, Czechoslovakia and Jamaica.

MOUSOURIS SAID several countries, such as Sweden and some African and Asian nations, adhere to the precepts of the convention "but they feel it's against their constitutions to bar individuals from traveling."

Asked if this register would have any bearing on the Seoul Olympics, Mousouris said, "I don't know. It is possible because we had cases in the past where this has happened."

Tennis players, golfers and boxers comprise the biggest portion of American athletes listed in the register. Other tennis players mentioned include South African-born Kevin Curren and Johan Kriek,

AMERICAN GOLFERS include Andy Bean, Ben Crenshaw, Beth Daniel, Ray Floyd, Hubert Green, Tom Kite, Larry Nelson, Mark O'Meara, Corey Pavin, Muffin Spencer-Devlin, Curtis Strange, Lee Trevino, Bob Tway, Lanny Wadkins and Fuzzy Zoeller.

Welshman Ian Woosnam, who won $1 million in a tournament in South Africa last year, also is on the list.

Breland, who fights WBA welterweight champion Marlon Starling Saturday night in Las Vegas, is listed along with such other boxers as Scott Ledoux, Greg Page, Dwight Muhammad Qawi and Renaldo Snipes. Also listed are promoter Bob Arum and former heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson.

"This effort of the international community is being made to see change in apartheid in South Africa," Mousouris said. "Boycotts and sanctions will bring effective pressure."

Schillig is upbeat despite setbacks

By Hugh Donlan
The Daily Iowan

Despite four consecutive losses and only one victory in the last eight matches, Iowa women's tennis Coach Micki Schillig retains her "if-it-isn't-broken, then-don't-fix-it" attitude about the team.

"It's not the time to make any big changes, but we do have to be more intense," the Iowa coach said. "I want to keep positive, but it's hard."

The seventh-place Hawkeyes will host two of the conference's strongest teams, second place Northwestern today at 2:30 p.m. and third-place Wisconsin Saturday at 11 a.m. at Klotz Courts.

Women's Tennis

IOWA, 8-9 OVERALL and 1-4 in the conference, hopes to turn its fortunes around against the highly-touted Wildcat and Badger clubs. Northwestern is 7-13 overall and 5-1 in the Big Ten. Wisconsin is 12-5 and 3-1.

"It's going to be a tough weekend. They don't get any easier," Schillig said. "I'm excited about this weekend although they are tough matches. I think they (the Iowa players) are ready for a win."

Northwestern has an unusually high number of losses, 13, due to a rugged nonconference schedule. But the Wildcats are traditionally one of the country's top teams and

Kentucky basketball program embroiled in new controversy

United Press International

LEXINGTON, Ky. — The University of Kentucky and the NCAA are investigating a report that $1,000 in cash was accidentally discovered in a package mailed to the father of a basketball recruit.

The Los Angeles Daily News reported today that a package addressed to Claud Mills from Kentucky assistant coach Dwane Casey was accidentally opened at the Los Angeles shipping office of Emery Worldwide Air Freight March 31 and 20 $50 bills were discovered. Claud Mills is the father of Chris Mills, a Los Angeles native who signed a letter of intent last November to play at Kentucky.

Kentucky Coach Eddie Sutton

spent the day huddled with boosters and assistant coaches Thursday and continued to decline comment.

"Son of a bitch, I can't believe it," a haggard-looking Sutton said as he emerged from his office Thursday afternoon at Memorial Coliseum.

Kentucky President David Roselle said the school first learned of the allegation from a Daily News reporter Friday.

"WE IMMEDIATELY began an investigation and in very short order we informed the NCAA enforcement staff," Roselle said. "Within a day we confirmed enough of the information given to us by a reporter to be concerned. At that point, we requested the NCAA staff to join us in further investigation."

The Daily News reported an NCAA investigator was in Los Angeles this week looking into the allegations.

Casey, Claud and Chris Mills all said they had no knowledge of the money and that the package contained only videotapes, the newspaper reported.

"We don't recruit that way," Casey said. "I have never put any money in a package. That accusation is ridiculous."

"I didn't receive no money from Dwane Casey," Claud Mills said. "Nobody from Kentucky gave me no money. They sent me a tape but I don't know nothing about no money."

Hawks sign area heavyweight grappler

John Oostendorp, the 1987 Class 2A state heavyweight champion from West Liberty, Iowa, has signed a national letter of intent to wrestle for the Hawkeyes.

Oostendorp compiled a 35-0 record this season, including 29 pins, and became West Liberty's first state wrestling champion. He was 103-19 in his career.

"Heavyweight was our No. 1 priority with the graduation of Mark Sindlinger," Iowa Coach Dan Gable said. "John is still growing and has a lot of potential to develop."

Oostendorp was recruited by several Division I schools, including Wisconsin, to play football. He may yet tryout with the Hawkeyes next spring.

Currently, Oostendorp is one of the top high school weight men in track and recently captured the 110-meter high hurdle championship with a time of 16.0 seconds at the Tiger Relays in Tipton, Iowa.

Gable compares Oostendorp favorably to former NCAA heavyweight champion Lou Banach.

"He's an active heavyweight and a very impressive athlete, too."

Man killed during Angels-White Sox game

ANAHEIM, Calif. (UPI) — A man was killed Wednesday night in a fall from the upper levels of Anaheim Stadium during a California Angels baseball game, authorities said.

The man, whose name was not released, fell about 8:15 p.m. and landed outside the stadium at 2000 S. State College Blvd., Anaheim spokesperson Sheri Erlewine said.

The game between the Angels and the Chicago White Sox was in the sixth or seventh inning when the man fell, she said.

Police were investigating the possibility that the man may have jumped from one of the ramps that lead to the upper levels of the stadium, she said. The ramps have five-foot walls, she said.

Ex-49er Clark will try car racing

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Dwight Clark, whose extracurricular activities were curtailed when he played for the San Francisco 49ers, will realize a childhood dream when he enters the pro-am car race at the Long Beach Grand Prix.

"I come from stock car country down in North Carolina," said Clark. "It (racing) was something I always wanted to try but the 49ers frowned on players doing anything this dangerous."

Pittsburgh honors Bears' Ditka

CARNEGIE, Pa. (UPI) — The Carnegie City Council in suburban Pittsburgh voted to honor native son and Chicago Bears Coach Mike Ditka with a ball field named for him.

The council voted this week to rename the Seventh Avenue Field "Mike Ditka Athletic Field."

Carnegie officials plan to have a "Mike Ditka Day" June 25, and they said Ditka has promised to attend.

McEnroe advances in Suntory

TOKYO (UPI) — John McEnroe, playing his first major tournament in seven months, won two matches Thursday to advance to the quarterfinals of the $752,500 Suntory Japan Open Tennis championships.

McEnroe, of New York, N.Y., eliminated Greg Holmes, of Salt Lake City, Utah, 6-3, 6-4 in a second-round match. McEnroe then defeated Derrick Rostagno, of Brentwood, Calif., 6-2, 6-3 in the third round.

Gophers lose 2 assistant hoops coaches

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — Minnesota Gophers basketball coach Clem Haskins' top two assistants, Milton Barnes and Jay Williams, announced their resignations Thursday, one day after they were shut out on national recruit signing day.

Barnes, 28, and Williams, 34, had been with Haskins since he took over the Minnesota program two seasons ago following a sex scandal that devastated the team. Their resignations are effective July 1.

Both assistants indicated the recent NCAA probation slapped on the school for violations committed by the staff of Haskins' predecessor, Jim Dutcher, had frustrated their recruiting efforts and had influenced their decisions to quit.

Penguins fire GM, hire 'Espo'

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The Pittsburgh Penguins, who have not reached the NHL playoffs since 1982, have fired General Manager Eddie Johnston and will replace him with former Chicago goalie Tony Esposito, The Pittsburgh Press reported Thursday.

Pencak takes U.S. Open bowling lead

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (UPI) — Jim Pencak, from Richmond Heights, Ohio, Wednesday night soared into the lead after three rounds of the men's bowling U.S. Open.

Pencak, winless on the PBA Tour, felled 5,644 pins for his 24 qualifying games to pace the field of 240 in this $500,000 tournament. The winner will receive $100,000, the biggest paycheck on the PBA tour.

STUDENT FOOTBALL TICKET SALES TO BEGIN APRIL 18
Students may order their 1988 Football Season Tickets beginning April 18 at the Athletic Ticket Office in Carver Hawkeye Arena. The cost of the tickets are $42.00 per student and $96.00 per student guest ticket. Student season tickets are good for all six home games of the 1988 football season. Student guest tickets are available on a limited basis; all students ordering these tickets may not be accommodated, but will receive a refund for their order at full pickup. Priority buying is from April 18 thru May 13, and this is the only time that guest tickets may be ordered. Athletic Ticket Office hours are 9 a.m. - 4 p.m., Monday thru Friday. Students may pick up their tickets beginning September 7. Please read the student ticket policy before placing your order.

STUDENT FOOTBALL POLICY - 1988

- A student may purchase one season ticket at the student price of $42.00. A guest ticket may be ordered at the public price of $96.00. A limited number of guest tickets will be available; therefore, all students ordering these may not receive them. Guest tickets are only valid when entering the stadium with another student and are not replaceable if lost or stolen. The guest ticket will not be available after May 13, the deadline for student priority. Office hours are 9:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. Monday through Friday.
- Students will receive priority based on the number of consecutive years they have applied for or purchased football tickets at the University of Iowa. There will be no loss in priority for off-campus programs or a bona fide illness. An individual who misses two or more consecutive seasons for reasons other than the above will lose all priority.
- In order for a student to receive their priority for football he/she must order sometime during the period of April 18 to May 13, 1988. These orders will be filled according to priority established. Any order placed after May 13 will be filled as if the order was a zero priority. Students ordering after the priority period will also accrue a year of buying credit toward their priority for purchase of tickets in following years.
- Individuals may order season tickets for a group no larger than eight. If all group members cannot be present when the order is placed, the members who are not present must provide either their personal check with current and summer address thereon or cash and their ID number to the person placing the order. One student may not write a personal check in payment for another student's tickets.
- The lowest priority within a group will determine the location of the entire block of tickets for that group. That is, all students within a group will carry the lowest priority of any member in that group. If certain priorities are denied student or guest tickets, anyone with higher priority requesting seating with this group will also be denied tickets.
- Student season tickets will continue on sale on a non-priority basis after May 13 and will remain on sale through Tuesday, August 31. Tickets may be sold after September 7 if available. Please contact the Athletic Ticket Office for further information.
- Each student must pick up their own ticket in the fall. The student must present their own student ID with current registration (Fall 1988) sticker and picture ID at the time of pickup. Student pickup will begin Wednesday, September 7.
- Students may cancel their football season ticket order and receive a full refund up until the Friday before the first home game. After that date, refunds will be issued only for the portion of games remaining to be played. No cancellations or refund requests will be honored after the student ticket has been picked up and signed for. All requests for refunds must be made in writing to the Athletic Ticket Office. Please provide your full name, ID number and an address for the mailing of the refund check. REFUNDS ARE NOT AUTOMATICALLY PROCESSED AND MAILED.
- A student ticket, to be valid, must be accompanied by a University of Iowa ID with current registration (Fall 1988) sticker and a picture ID. A student ticket may be used by the original purchaser or by any other University of Iowa student, but the original purchaser will be held liable for any violations of the student ticket policy. The penalty for a violation of the University policy involving the ID and ticket will be the loss of the use of the ticket for two games. If a non-student is found using a student's ticket, that student forfeits all future student ticket privileges.
- Disciplinary action will be taken as a result of disorderly conduct on the part of a student ticket holder. Discretionary measures will be left up to the investigation of the Dean of Students. This may result in the loss of the student's ticket for the remaining season or possibly the remaining enrollment period of said student at The University of Iowa.
- Everyone, regardless of age, is required to have a valid ticket for admittance to all University of Iowa football games. This includes infants in arms.
- DUPLICATE TICKETS CANNOT BE ISSUED FOR LOST OR STOLEN STUDENT TICKETS.

Perennial power Buckeyes lie in waiting for Hawkeyes

By Hugh Donlan
The Daily Iowan

Indiana and Ohio State are the two best golf teams in the Big Ten. Fortunately for the Iowa men's golf team, Indiana won't be at the Kepler Intercollegiate Invitational at Columbus this weekend. But Ohio State will.

Nine of the Big Ten teams will appear at the annual three-day 54-hole tournament. But don't expect more than a minimum of country club courtesy from the Buckeyes, who have won the event 15 of the last 19 years.

Ohio State's roster boasts five of the conference's top seven linksters. Gary Nicklaus, son of the Golden Bear, Jack Nicklaus, has the team's highest average at 75.0

strokes per round.

IOWA IS COMING off a third-place finish in the 11-team Bradley Invitational last weekend and a victory last week at the Big Four Meet (Iowa, Iowa State, Northern Iowa and Drake), but the team will be up against much tougher competition in Columbus.

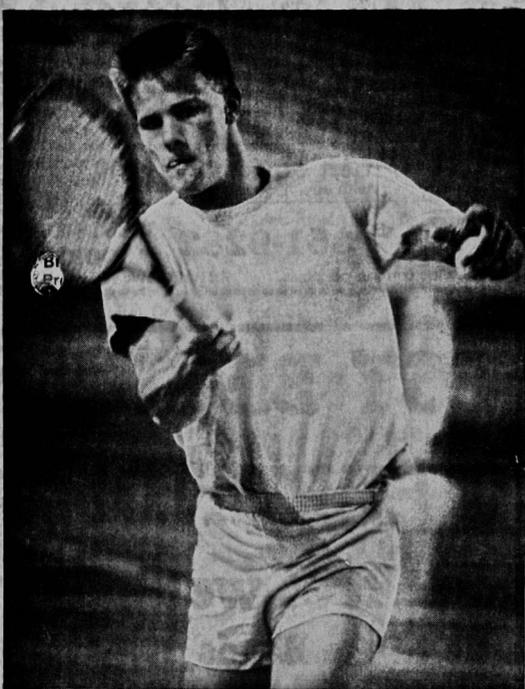

"We really need to become a little more consistent," Iowa Coach Chuck Zweiner said. "The Kepler meet has a strong field. We'll have to play much better than we did last week in order to finish high."

Leading the Hawkeyes is a senior out of Dubuque by the name of Steve Reilly who has a 76.2 stroke average after eight rounds, good for 10th in the conference.

Following Reilly is Dave Holmes, a junior from Moline, Ill. Holmes has averaged 76.8 strokes his first five rounds and stands 16th in the conference. The history major also carded the squad's lowest round of the season, a 68 at the Purdue Invitational.

Jeff Schmid, a sophomore from Eagan, Minn., is 19th in the conference with a 77.0 average and Brad Klapprott, a freshman native of Keokuk, Iowa, has an average of 77.1 after eight rounds for 22nd in the conference.

Tennis à la Michael Jordan

Iowa tennis player Bryan Stokstad, looking a bit like basketball's Michael Jordan with his tongue hanging out, returns a shot during practice in the Recreation Building Thursday. The Northwestern Wildcats will travel to meet the Hawkeyes Sunday.

Tracksters prepare for weekend action

Men host UNI in their first home dual

By Brent Woods
The Daily Iowan

When the Iowa men's track team hosts its first meet of the season Saturday, there will be more at stake than a dual-meet win.

A little state pride will also be up for grabs.

The Hawkeyes will host Northern Iowa at the Cretzmeyer Track at noon, and Iowa Coach Ted Wheeler knows the Panthers will feel like

Taylor won't run in Drake Invitational

By Bryce Miller
The Daily Iowan

When Iowa women's track Coach Jerry Hassard takes his squad to Des Moines for the Drake Invitational this weekend, he'll have some shuffling to do before the starter's gun sounds at Drake Stadium.

The Hawkeyes will be without the services of senior sprinter Davera Taylor, who will be in

they have something to prove.

"It's self-dignity, that's what it is," Wheeler said of the matchup. "Obviously, it's a meet we would really like to win. We hope to get some good performances."

Augustana and Wisconsin-LaCrosse will also participate in the meet on a non-scoring basis.

ACCORDING TO Wheeler, the Panthers and the Hawkeyes have similar squads. And he expects the meet to be decided by a narrow margin.

"UNI is strong where we are strong," he said. "In the 400, the 800, the 1,500, with the exception of the hurdles. I think we're better there."

"We're both marginal in events like the long jump. I think events away from our strengths will decide this meet."

The Hawkeyes' troubles in the weight events may play a part in the outcome of the contest. The Panthers look to have an advantage in that category, but Wheeler hasn't given up on his young group.

"The potential is there," Wheeler said. "We have some strengths here but they are inexperienced."

THE POTENTIAL MAY be there, but three main Hawkeyes won't. James Armstrong, Curtis Chung and Chuck Moye are still sidelined and will miss the meet.

"It's affecting a lot better," Armstrong said of the stress fracture in his left foot. "I've been working out on a bike, and today was the first day I worked in the pool."

"Now it's just a matter of getting my cardiovascular system back in shape. But we don't want to rush it. If I hurt it again, it could really set me back in the program."

Fortunately for Iowa, Pat McGhee will be running. The sophomore from Aurora, Ill., qualified for the NCAA meet in the intermediate hurdles last weekend in Los Angeles and has been a consistent performer this season.

DESPITE THE qualifying time, McGhee sees room for improvement.

"That was the first time I've run the intermediates in a year or so," he said. "Conditioning-wise, I felt

Women's Track

Kingston, Jamaica, to compete in the sixth-annual Jamaican National Relays.

Taylor, who runs the 100 and 200 meters, is also the mainstay on Iowa relay crews. Following the announcement that Taylor would travel to Jamaica, Hassard reviewed his options and decided freshman Jill Freed will have to shoulder some of the duties.

"SHE (FREED) is a hard worker," he said. "We'll miss Davera in the sprints and relays, but we'll just have to try to fill the holes. I am confident that Jill will perform well."

Hassard said Freed will indeed be busy as she is slated to run in the 4 x 100-meter relay, the 4 x 400-meter relay and the distance medley.

Iowa is healthy except for Kim Schneckloth. The junior from Eldridge, Iowa, is suffering from what Hassard called "inflammation of the achilles tendon." Hassard said it would be best to hold the athlete out of this weekend's meet.

"She (Schneckloth) probably won't run," he said. "She has had some problems with her tendon and I think we'll just let her get rested up."

Among the 25-30 schools that are scheduled to compete are Minnesota, Marquette and UNI. Hassard said the competition at the event should be brisk and feels it could prove to be a good indicator at this point in the season.

"There will be a number of schools in Des Moines," he said. "It should give us a chance to see a lot of different athletes and get a good indication as to where we are."

really good. But my steps were off, and I think I could of qualified for the Olympic trials.

"But I'm pretty happy with the season, especially the hurdles."

In Saturday's meet, McGhee will get his first-ever shot at running the 100-meter dash — an event which has hurt the Hawkeyes this year.

"It's kind of just a workout meet for me," McGhee said.

Padres blank Dodgers, 2-0, in West Coast pitching battle

United Press International

SAN DIEGO — Tony Gwynn scored in the fourth inning on a throwing error by catcher Mike Scioscia and John Kruk drew a bases-loaded walk in the seventh inning forcing in Stanley Jefferson Thursday, lifting the San Diego Padres to a 2-0 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Three Padre pitchers combined to shutout the Dodgers on six hits. Starter Jimmy Jones went 6 2/3 innings to improve to 1-1. Lance innings. Jimmy Key, 2-1, was the loser.

Pirates 4, Phillies 2

At Pittsburgh, Barry Bonds smashed two solo home runs and Junior Ortiz added a solo shot and drew a bases-loaded walk Thursday night to lead the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 4-2 victory and a three-game sweep of the Philadelphia Phillies.

The victory, the Pirates' fourth straight, went to starter Bob Walk, 1-1. The loss went to Don Carman, 1-1.

Royals 4, Orioles 3

Jim Eisenreich scored the winning run from first base Thursday night when left fielder Jeff Stone let a single roll to the wall, enabling the Kansas City Royals to extend Baltimore's season-opening losing streak to nine with a 4-3 victory over the Orioles in Baltimore.

Baltimore, off to its worst start ever, is four losses shy of equalling the poorest start in major-league history. The 1904 Washington Senators and the 1920 Detroit Tigers both lost their first 13 games.

Kansas City starter Bret Saberhagen, 1-1, was the winning pitcher. Gene Garber recorded his second save.

Mike Boddicker, 0-3, went the distance for Baltimore, striking out 10, walking none and allowing five hits.

Indians 3, Twins 1

In Cleveland, Joe Carter and Mel Hall hit consecutive one-out RBI singles in the sixth inning and Willie Upshaw scored two runs Thursday night, leading the Cleveland Indians to a 3-1 triumph over the Minnesota Twins.

The Indians, 8-2, are off to their best start since 1966.

White Sox-Angels rained out

In Anaheim, Calif., the scheduled game between the Chicago White Sox and California Angels was postponed due to rain Thursday after a one hour, 42 minute delay.

The rainout was only the 14th in Angel history.

Baseball Roundup

McCullers earned his second save, hurling the final two innings after Mark Davis pitched to one batter in the seventh.

Fernando Valenzuela, 1-2, pitched his first complete game of the season for the Dodgers, but gave up nine hits and four walks.

Mets 1, Expos 0

Bobby Ojeda further proved he is over the elbow woes that cost him most of 1987 by throwing his first career two-hitter Thursday to spark the Mets to a 1-0 victory over the Expos in New York.

Ojeda's sterling effort follows Ron Darling's five-hitter Tuesday in the Mets' 3-0 triumph over Montreal.

The Expos, 2-6 on the season, have lost four of five to the Mets.

Rangers 2, Tigers 1

Jose Guzman held Detroit to one hit through the first seven innings Thursday and four hits over eight innings while Ruben Sierra doubled in a third-inning run then scored on a single by Pete O'Brien to give the Rangers a 2-1 victory over the Tigers in Detroit.

Guzman, 1-1, struck out four and didn't walk a batter but needed relief help in the ninth from Mitch Williams, who notched his third save.

Red Sox 2, Brewers 0

Roger Clemens scattered six hits Thursday in a 2-0 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers in Boston.

Milwaukee starter Bill Wegman, 0-2, lost the pitchers' duel despite not giving up an earned run. He struck out three, walked two and allowed only four hits in going the distance.

The Red Sox announced Thursday they signed free-agent catcher Rick Cerone to a one-year contract. Boston is in need of experienced help after Rich Gedman broke a toe Sunday. Cerone, 33, is expected to serve as a backup to John Marzano.

Yankees 7, Blue Jays 3

Dave Winfield knocked in four runs with a triple and home run and rookie Al Leiter gave up four hits in eight innings Thursday to pace the New York Yankees to a 7-3 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays in Toronto.

Leiter, 2-0, struck out a career-high 11, including nine of 11 between the fourth and seventh

Baseball

Big Ten foe this year was Illinois, said Duane Banks' team always has the green light when it steps to the plate.

"Iowa is different from Illinois," he said. "The Illini do a lot of hit and run, bunting and generally moving the ball around. Iowa likes to swing those bats. They just come straight at you."

Pawlow also mentioned that a stiff wind out to right-center field aided the Hawkeye sluggers, but emphasized the importance of his club's errors at key points in the game.

"We just made too many mistakes," he said. "Iowa doesn't need any help. They're going to hit the ball. You just have to track it down."

The Hawkeyes play host to the Illini in a pair of doubleheaders Saturday and Sunday at Iowa Field. Both games begin at 1 p.m.

Boston may be key to Seoul

By Jim Rattray

BOSTON—Several of the world's top runners compete Monday in the 92nd Boston Marathon with the understanding that a trip to the Olympic Marathon in Seoul could be at stake.

Kenya, Tanzania and Finland have all designated Boston as the site of their Olympic trials, while other nations including Great Britain, Italy and Mexico view Boston as a critical race in their Olympic selection process.

Two marathoners, Steve Jones of Wales and Geoff Smith of Great Britain are competing for one spot on the British Olympic team. Jones and Smith finished second and third respectively at Boston last year.

"IT'S A GAMBLE, but life's a gamble," Smith said Thursday of bypassing this weekend's London Marathon, the official British Olympic trials. "I'm rolling the dice, and I think they're going to come up."

Smith, who won Boston in 1984 and 1985 to become the first back-to-back winner since Bill Rodgers did it in 1979 and 1980, and Jones both agreed it would take a Boston victory to make the British team.

"They're really looking for an exceptional performance," said

Jones, who holds history's second-fastest marathon time of 2 hours, 7 minutes, 13 seconds — just one second shy of the world mark.

"If I have aspirations of running in the '88 Olympics, I have to win the race to be considered," Jones said.

SMITH AND JONES worked together over Boston's final miles last year to finish strongly behind Japan's Toshihiko Seko, who is not defending his laurel wreath.

Ex-UTEP hoopster arrested for 'mischief'

United Press International

EL PASO, Texas—Texas-El Paso basketball star Chris Sandle was released from jail early Wednesday after posting bond following his arrest on criminal mischief charges, according to police reports.

The 21-year-old UTEP senior was charged and arrested Tuesday for kicking down a dormitory door April 7 in a dispute with a student who had allegedly vandalized his apartment.

Sandle reported the student to police April 4 for allegedly ransacking and burglarizing his apartment, according to reports. A television set was stolen and the side windows of Sandle's Volkswagen were smashed.

Sandle was arrested in September and charged with two counts of assault and one count of resisting arrest. Two women, ages 15 and 22, said Sandle assaulted them at an El Paso nightclub on Sept. 13.

Sandle finished his basketball career at UTEP in March.

He was not available for comment. Police said Sandle had to post bonds totaling $8,500 for three previous charges and the present charge when the bonds for the three previous charges were revoked.

Former Redskin sues club physician

United Press International

ARLINGTON, Va. — A former Washington Redskins player has filed suit against the team's doctor, claiming he operated on the wrong knee when performing arthroscopic surgery in 1986.

Linebacker Stuart Anderson, a special teams standout who played in Super Bowl XVIII for Washington, is asking for $350,000 in damages from Dr. Charles Jackson and Arlington Hospital.

The suit, filed last week in Arlington County Circuit Court, was assailed Wednesday by Jackson's lawyer, Gary Godard.

"The suit is frivolous," Godard said in a statement released through the team's public relations office. "Dr. Jackson performed arthroscopic surgery on Stuart Anderson's right and left knees on Jan. 21, 1986 with the player's complete approval. Anderson signed a release for the operation on both knees before the operation was performed."

ANDERSON, 28, who lives in Fairfax, Va., and is unemployed, played from 1982 to 1985 for Washington and was cut from the team during the 1986 summer training camp, about seven months after the operation.

Russell Roberts, Anderson's lawyer, said his client was to have only his right knee operated upon to repair cartilage damage sustained in a 1985 regular season game.

Jackson, of Great Falls, Va., has served as a team's doctor for the past three seasons and performed the complicated surgery to repair the compound fracture of the lower right leg suffered by former Redskins quarterback Joe Theismann.

they carry their reputation with them.

"They've done so well for so long they expect to win," Schillig said.

BOTH OPPONENTS are bolstered by some of the Big Ten's finest players. Four of the Wildcat's singles players — Julie Staples at No. 2 singles, Soyoung Lee at No. 4, Cindy Galloway at No. 5 and Tonya Evans at No. 6 — are ranked first in the conference. Galloway and Evans team up at No. 3 doubles, also top-ranked.

Things aren't get any easier against Wisconsin. All the Badgers' doubles teams are either first or second in the conference.

Cindy Gilles is the Big Ten's top player at No. 1 singles. Gilles, the Wisconsin captain, is also paired with Elaine Demetroulis at No. 1 doubles and they make up the Central Region's top-ranked doubles team.

One of the odds in favor of the Hawkeyes in their match with Wisconsin will be the presence of thousands of fans in attendance at Saturday's spring football game at Kinnick Stadium who will stop by to watch tennis.

Schillig said she thinks the crowds will be more of a boost to her squad than a distraction.

"There's going to be a lot of excitement," she said. "The more Hawkeye fans the better."

UI Percussionists play Cage

By Therese Teasdale
The Daily Iowan

The UI Percussion Ensemble, directed by Tom Davis — not the basketball-coaching Davis, but the head of percussion and jazz studies at the UI — will celebrate the 75th anniversary of composer John Cage's birth with a free concert of his music at 6:30 p.m. Sunday in UI Music Building Voxman Hall.

The concert will feature Cage's First Construction (In Metal), The Wonderful Widow of Eighteen Springs, Amores and Third Construction. Double Music, by Cage and Lou Harrison, also will be performed.

"Cage is a major composer in the area of percussion ensembles," Davis said, "and he opened up a lot of new possibilities for objects that could be used as percussion instruments. For instance, he was among the first to use 'kitchen instruments,' ordinary things found around the house not normally thought of as musical instruments."

THE PIECES ON the program employ many of these unusual instruments. Third Construction uses 25 coffee cans and a huge conch shell and First Construction (In Metal) uses five thunder sheets, large pieces of galvanized metal which are shaken to imitate the sound of thunder.

In addition to innovative instrumentation, Davis said Cage's music differs from that of other composers for percussion because of the "influence of Oriental music on his composition. Most Western music is goal-oriented — it works toward a big ending or a quiet ending." Cage's doesn't. "It just begins and ends," Davis said.

Designers deepen meaning in 'Duet'

By Therese Teasdale
The Daily Iowan

Riverside Theatre continues its run of Duet for One with performances tonight and Saturday.

Jody Hovland and Ron Clark play the multiple sclerosis-stricken violinist and her psychiatrist, and they are the play's apparent stars. Less visible, but certainly no less essential to the production's success, are designers Phil Peters and Lani Apperson. Miriam Gilbert, the play's director and a UI English professor, praised Peters' set and Apperson's costumes for their "terrific visual support."

Because Duet for One will go on the road, the set "had to fit in the back of a pickup," said Peters, a visiting assistant professor in Theatre Arts. He found the assignment challenging because the set "has to be modular but not look like an erector set."

WOODEN SHELVES with books, stereo and albums, the desk, chairs and an Oriental rug present Dr. Feldmann's office and represent the safety Stephanie finds there. As Peters put it, "I tried to capture the feel of the serenity of his life."

The geometric forms of the walls represent the fear and pain disease has brought to Stephanie's life. Stark white adds hospital-like coldness and sterility to the office. Wires stretching across the top of the stage and rectangles arranged near the door like a musical staff call to mind Stephanie's shattered musical career. The walls have sections cut out, as does Step-hanie's new life.

Apperson, a Theatre Arts graduate student, began her work on the costumes by talking with Gilbert, to understand "how she felt about the characters." Apperson used fashion magazines to find clothes the eccentric, wealthy Stephanie might wear, and then created designs with simple, elegant lines.

Stephanie's clothes reflect her emotions. Apperson explained that as her "self-confidence deteriorates throughout the play," her clothing becomes less colorful and less stylish. At her first session, the violinist wears a bright scarf flung over one shoulder. Later, she appears wearing a white skirt, blouse and jacket with a pale pink scarf around her neck.

GILBERT FOUND the costumes "enormously helpful because they help chart the change in Stephanie." One outfit, a green kimono and beige blouse, at first demonstrates the violinist's creativity. In the next scene, she wears the kimono draped around herself, and the focus shifts from design to color. Apperson felt the "colors work well with her skin," visually reinforcing her emotional depression.

Duet for One runs tonight and Saturday at 8 p.m. with a matinee tomorrow at 2 p.m. Tickets for evening performances are $7.50 for general admission, $6 for students and senior citizens. Matinee prices are $5 and $4. The play contains strong language and is recommended for adult audiences. For reservations call 338-7672. Tickets are also available at Prairie Lights Books and at the door.

Mummy is an average Egyptian

By Mike Berry
United Press International

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — After months of studying a 2,300-year-old mummy, a team of scientists concluded Thursday he was a pretty ordinary guy — a right-handed, balding, 30-something Egyptian.

His name was Iret-Irew. He likely ate well. He probably didn't use drugs.

"We didn't find anything that would indicate the use of a drug. If this individual was a junkie, he used some stuff that didn't survive," said toxicologist David Stafford, who presented his findings along with about a dozen other Memphis scientists. Memphis State University loaned them the mummy in December.

THERE WAS speculation earlier that a hole in the mummy's head may have been caused by a war wound, explaining what killed him and shedding some light on his personal life toward the end of the ancient Egyptian civilization.

But radiologist James Langston put such talk to rest. Iret-Irew had an infection in his left temporal lobe, which may have led to a brain infection and likely caused his death between the ages of 30 and 40, Langston said.

"It's a common thing," he said. "What caused the infection is a mystery, though other probes revealed the mummy had bad teeth too. There is a wound in the right temple, but it was inflicted after the man died, said the scientists, who used computerized X-rays and other techniques to poke around."

The gist of the study was summed up by forensic pathologist O.C. Smith: "The toenail is unremarkable." What Smith meant was there was no sign of severe illness or hardening of the arteries.

WHAT THE scientists do know is that Iret-Irew was 5 feet tall, about 130 pounds, and had reddish hair and facial stubble. He showed a male balding pattern "which is still common in his part of the world," Smith said.

Symphony Band hits right notes

By C.W. Simons
Special to The Daily Iowan
Performing three demanding pieces composed in the 1980s, the UI Symphony Band gave a sonically spectacular concert Wednesday in Hancher Auditorium.

The pitch "b," introduced by solo piano, represents the command, "Be," first signifying the moment of birth, then returning many times in various disguises to suggest the preciousness of life.

interplay between oboe and harp in the second movement. A wide variety of instrumental color was obtained, some of it through less common procedures such as drawing a doublebass bow across the edge of a cymbal and blowing through a clarinet mouthpiece.

THE FIVE sections of this difficult work consistently involved most of the band, requiring their steady concentration. The brass was called upon for extreme ranges, and the percussionists energetically played what must have been exhausting passages.

and well-constructed symphonic nature. "There are only about 10 schools in the nation with bands that can play it," said bass trombonist Robert Belser. "It was a special experience."

Describing his band as a mature group with great depth, Welch voiced his excitement over conducting the piece. "It was a once-in-a-lifetime experience." An exuberance of energy and color characterized the entire concert.

Cellist Wiley joins the Beaux Arts Trio

By Steve T. Donoghue

The Beaux Arts Trio, the ensemble that for more than 30 years has set the standard for piano trio performance, will appear in concert at 8 tonight in Hancher Auditorium.

shot — a concerto, or a chamber music piece — but the opportunity to play a Brahms trio 30 to 40 times in one season helps your performance immensely.

Wiley studied at the Curtis Institute with David Soyer, cellist of the Guarneri String Quartet, and with cello master Pablo Casals. He joined the Pittsburgh Symphony in 1975, and at the age of 20 became the principal cellist of the Cincinnati Symphony. Since 1983 he has performed exclusively as a soloist and chamber player.

Commenting on the trio's pace of performance, Wiley said, "By the time the curtain comes down, we don't even know where we are sometimes, like one place is the same as another, which is as it should be, I think."

"OUR PERFORMANCE will be as good in Iowa City as it is in New York," Wiley said.

The program is Beethoven's Trio in E-flat major; the Trio for Piano, Violin and Cello by George Rochberg and Tchaikovsky's Trio in A minor. The Rochberg Trio was written by the respected American composer for the Beaux Arts, which premiered the work last season.

Tickets for tonight's performance are $16.50 and $14.50 (UI students receive a 20 percent discount) and are available in advance from the Hancher Box Office.

WILEY, WHO was born in the year the Beaux Arts Trio was formed, said he thought it might be "stimulating" for Cohen and Pressler, since the infusion of "new blood" will force a revising of the ensemble's repertoire to accommodate a new era.

Center for New Music plays founder's works

By Therese Teasdale
The Daily Iowan

The Center for New Music of the UI School of Music will present a free concert Saturday at 8 p.m. in Clapp Recital Hall.

associated with or not associated with the university.

Today the center is under the direction of William Hibbard, and it is supported by the UI School of Music. Hibbard said the group's goals "really are the same as when we were formed... to present the music of our time. We began to fill a need."

BECAUSE CNM is housed in a university, it functions as a "performance laboratory which provides considerable interaction between composers and performers."

Hibbard feels the program is "indispensable — it's so integrated with the goals of our teaching programs." However, in light of recent economic problems, he said "you have to realize how it looks to an administrator on a computer printout... it looks like a perfect place to cut back."

The center currently has eight people under stipend; Hibbard and seven performers playing flute, clarinet, violin, cello, percussion, piano and harp. Hibbard anticipates that next year's funds will be allocated differently, with smaller amounts given to a greater number of performers.

The group does still hope to find supplementary funding. Hibbard explained that many privately endowed scholarships are "attracting good students" to the UI School of Music especially in the area of composition. "I think we've made our case and made it well," he said, "I'm actually quite positive" about the future of CNM.

The concert will feature two works by UI composition Professor Richard Hervig, Quid est Musica? and Five Romantic Songs; 4'33" and Concert for Piano and Instruments by John Cage; The Viola in My Life II by Morton Feldman; and Plane Danc-ing by Eric Lund.

The Hervig and Cage pieces are part of a year long celebration of the two composers' work — Hervig in honor of his retirement from the UI School of Music faculty at the end of the year, and Cage in honor of his 75th birthday.

HERVIG EXPLAINED Quid est Musica? "was composed for the dedication of Clapp Recital Hall in 1972." He felt "What is Music?" — the English equivalent of the Latin title — was "an appropriate question to ask in opening a brand new hall." The piece includes antiphonal chorus and instruments and "takes advantage of some of the unique qualities of the hall."

Hibbard called 4'33" the "most controversial" piece on the evening's program, because it's "a piece of silence which lasts 4 minutes and 33 seconds." Hibbard predicted "people will become intensely aware of their surroundings."

Rookies perform two works

By Therese Teasdale
The Daily Iowan

The UI Black Action Theater will perform two works today and tomorrow at 7:30 p.m., and Sunday at 3 p.m., in UI Theatre Building Theatre B. Tonight's performance will be preceded by a panel discussion, which begins at 6 p.m.

Black Woman Speaks, by Beau Richards, is a monologue addressing the pain of black women growing up in slavery and the conflict that continues between black women and white women about aspirations for equality, peace and freedom. Egyirba High said the work "is telling white women, 'You are also oppressed.' Equality must be for everyone and we must work together." Niambi Webster, the productions' director, said the group is performing the piece as "a tribute to the women of South Africa ... because we're not free until they are."

Ma Rainey's Black Bottom, which was a Broadway hit in the '70s, was written by August Wilson. It reveals the exploitation of black musicians in the '20s and '30s, as seen through the experiences of four band members.

BLACK ACTION Theater is a course jointly sponsored by the UI Afro-American World Studies Program and the UI Department of Theatre Arts taught by Webster and High. Webster explained that the students in the course spend three-fourths of class time studying black theater and history. According to High, "Black theater tells the true story about the lives of Afro-Americans," and overcomes stereotypes common to mainstream American theater. "It focuses on perceiving life in a certain way ... it focuses on the Afro-American experience." Students devote the remaining class time to production. They act the roles and work on technical crews. Most of them are not theater majors, and many have no previous experience in theater. Webster stressed, "This is not a theater group. These students are coming from all walks of life — all majors, races, religious backgrounds." What they have in common is that they "want to learn more about the black aesthetic."

HIGH ENJOYS teaching the course because the students "really like what they're doing. They're intelligent kids. They get excited." Class members are also enjoying the experience. Alison Henderson, a freshman studying advertising, developed new skills working on the set and costume committees. "We had to build (the set) and make sure everything was set just so ... I never thought I could handle a drill or a hammer!"

Cheryll Cooks, a freshman in pre-law, said the course has increased her awareness of the uniqueness of black theater. "... it's so different from other theater. We always saw blacks in the fields and playing stereotypes." Black theater "gives them a chance to show their talent." K.T. Coleman, a freshman studying computer science, said the course has given him a new understanding of "the things black people had to go through to get onstage."

Henderson observed, "This class has opened us — we're not blinded" to black theater. This weekend's performances will give Black Action Theater a chance to open other people's eyes as well.

Admission to Black Woman Speaks and Ma Rainey's Black Bottom is $3 for the general public and $2 for UI students at the door.

Who Con '88 unites Doctor Who's fans

By Paul Dunt
The Daily Iowan

Back in 1963 when the Beatles crooned and Kennedy was president, the British Broadcasting Corp. launched an obscure science fiction series titled "Doctor Who." Nobody could have imagined that 25 years later, it would be the longest-running science fiction program in television history.

But The Doctor continues to hold a special place in many hearts, including the Iowa Who Goes There organization, whose members will be holding Who Con '88 Saturday to introduce the public to the show.

Steve Crow, president of the group, is a computer technician who first heard of the show after reading an article in Popular Mechanics. In the late '70s, Iowa Public television began running the program, and this decade has seen a plethora of societies.

THERE ARE A number of fan clubs in the United States, such as the Doctor Who fan club of America, which holds yearly conventions. Who Goes There is a smaller organization — only about 10 members — but Crow hopes the convention will bring more Iowa City residents to The Doctor.

The appeal of the program's special effects also enhances its charm. "Actors run around in poorly tailored rubber suits only one step above those in a Japanese monster movie," said Crow.

Who Con '88 runs Saturday at the Iowa City Public Library from 9:30 a.m. to 7:30 p.m. in meeting rooms A and B. Events will include videos of "Doctor Who," a trivia contest, door prizes and displays of rare magazines. The event is free and all are welcome.

At the Bijou

Friday: The Lady Eve (1941) — This Preston Sturges comedy concerns a naive young herpetologist played by Henry Fonda. 6:30 p.m.

Roses in December (1982)/ Las Madres: The Mothers of the Plaza de Mayo (1987) — These two films focus on women's heroism in the social struggles of Central and South America. 8:15 p.m.

What's Up Tiger Lily? (1966) — Woody Allen bought the rights to an actual Japanese movie and overdubbed his own jokes and non sequiturs. 10:30 p.m.; Saturday at 10:30 p.m.

Saturday: Devil in the Flesh (1986) — This 1946 remake of Raymond Radiguet's classic novel was one of the standard-bearers of the French Tradition of Quality. In French. 6:30 p.m.; Sunday at 9 p.m.

Maurice (1987) — This contemplative and psychologically complex film traces a young homosexual's solitary struggle for identity through aristocratic upbringing, initiation at Cambridge and stifling London life. 8:30 p.m.; Sunday at 7 p.m.

Television

Friday: "Doctor Who — Planet of the Spiders" — As a mediation group in a monastery in England run by Tibetans tries to make contact with far distant Metebelis Three, the Doctor receives a package from Jo Grant. It contains the crystal he found there, and now the Great One — the gigantic spider who rules the planet — wants it back (10 p.m.; IPTV 12).

Saturday: "Saturday Evening Film Classic" — The Hunchback of Notre Dame (1923) — Lon Chaney plays the hunchbacked bell-ringer in this silent version of Victor Hugo's novel (8 p.m.; UIVT 28).

Sunday: "Japan — The Sword and the Chrysanthemum" — This program contrasts the concept of the ruthless Samurai warrior with the gentle tea ceremony and looks at the influence of these opposing elements in the culture of Japan (6 p.m.; IPTV 12).
