Iowa Legislature wraps up long session

By Bill Brewer
United Press International

DES MOINES — The Iowa Legislature wrapped up business for the year early Sunday ending a 21 1/2-hour session in which lawmakers gave final approval to bills allowing the use of certain drugs on race horses and to spend state lottery profits.

The session ended at 6:22 a.m., shortly after the Senate gave 26-5 approval to a bill allowing trainers to administer the diuretic, lasix, and the anti-inflammatory drug, phenylbutazone to race horses. The measure passed in spite of a one-hour filibuster by Sen. Bill Dieleman of Pella, who kept the Senate in session for a full hour after the House had wrapped up its business.

Dieleman, a long-time opponent of parimutuel racing, said lawmakers should not blame him for delaying their adjournment, claiming other opponents of the bill were convinced to support the measure in return for winning approval of pet projects in the lottery spending bill. "It's wrong to be saying Dieleman is the fault of our staying here," he said.

EARLIER SUNDAY, both houses gave final approval to a compromise, $36.34 million, lottery spending bill that allocates profits from the games to a host of economic development initiatives.

Among the spending items is $2 million to expand the state's tourism and economic development promotional efforts, $500,000 to begin planning for a new office building for the Legislature and $130,000 to plan for paving of Statehouse parking lots.

Also approved was a bill to overhaul the Iowa Public Employees and Peace Officers Retirement Systems to encourage more government workers to retire early, boost benefits for current retirees and increase pension contributions for current state and local government workers.

THE BILL would boost benefits for workers who retired before 1982. It also encourages state workers to retire early by reducing from 95 to 92 the sum of an employee's age and years of government service required to become eligible for maximum retirement benefits.

Other items given final approval during the last day of the legislative session included:

• A bill imposing a one-year moratorium on the prosecution of parents who teach their children at home or at non-approved church schools. The bill also calls for a study of a possible permanent solution to be presented to the Legislature in January.

• A measure to regulate the removal of leaky underground fuel tanks and to insure tank owners against environmental damage caused by their tanks by levying a 2 cents-a-gallon gasoline tax increase during the month of August.

Spring means sun, fun, Riverfest

By James Cahoy and Anne Kevlin
The Daily Iowan

Sure, you've been a student here for so long you know how many steps it takes to get from Schaeffer Hall to the Union Wheelroom. You know how late the 9:20 a.m. Campus is on Tuesdays and Thursdays. And perhaps — but only if you've been a UI student for awhile — you have found a place to sunbathe where nobody will gawk at your winter-white flabbiness.

But if you have never taken part in UI Riverfest, you don't really know what springtime is all about.

The 10th annual Riverfest officially began Sunday, with events scheduled to take place through April 24. Mainstage, which every year proves to be one of the most popular events of the week, will be held Saturday afternoon at Union Field and will highlight feature bands The Untouchables and The Blue Hipsos.

JOINING THE feature bands will be the winner of Battle of the Bands. Entrants competed Friday and Saturday for a spot in next Friday's final round, which will include the bands East and West from LaGrange, Ill.; Drasbury from Des Moines; The Incredible DayGlo Bomber Boys from Iowa City; and Heavens With Betsy from Iowa City.

"All the bands sound very good," Riverfest Music Executive Julie Russell said. "We're going to have a wide variety of music for the final competition."

But even Top 40 fans may find Riverfest events to their liking. UI students can look forward to an air band contest, trivia contests, a fashion show, a casino night and "Oatmeal Odyssey" — a hot cereal fishing expedition sponsored by Quaker Oats and Hawkeye Waste Systems.

"We get a great big trash dumpster, which is put out in Union Field the day before the contest," Riverfest Assistant Director Kara Krummel-Logsdon said. "We receive 200 pounds of oatmeal from Quaker Oats in Cedar Rapids, and we dump it in. People pay a dollar to dive in and retrieve golf balls with numbers on them. The prizes are fantastic, from a free haircut to a night in a local motel."

FOR THE athletic and quasi-athletic alike, Reebok will sponsor See Riverfest, Page 8A

Israel seals Gaza Strip, West Bank

By Glenn Frankel
Washington Post

JERUSALEM — The Israeli Army on Sunday sealed off most of the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip and imposed curfews on nearly a half-million Palestinians following Saturday's wave of violence in protest of Israel's alleged role in the assassination of a senior Palestine Liberation Organization leader.

Palestinians were ordered to remain in their homes in 15 refugee camps, as well as in the West Bank city of Nablus and the town of Anabta, after at least 14 Arabs were shot dead by Israeli troops and 100 wounded in protests Saturday.

Residents and other witnesses said the streets were largely quiet in most areas and that a general strike kept shops closed and workers away from their jobs.

Black mourning flags and PLO banners were visible all across the territories as Palestinians plunged into the second day of mourning for Khalil Wazir, the PLO's No. 2 leader behind Yasser Arafat. Two Palestinians were wounded in a clash with soldiers at the Nur Shams refugee camp.

WHILE Palestinians mourned the assassination of Wazir, also known as Abu Jihad, in Tunis, many Israelis celebrated his killing as evidence of Israel's willingness and ability to strike back at terrorist leaders.

Israeli leaders continued to deny any direct knowledge of the assassination. "I heard about it on the radio, just like you," Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir reportedly told the Cabinet on Sunday morning.

Officials also refused to comment on an NBC News report that the killing had been a joint operation of the Mossad spy agency along with Navy and Army units undertaken with approval from Israel's ruling troika: Shamir, Defense Minister Yitzhak Rabin and Foreign Minister Shimon Peres.

Others were less circumspect, however, and even jubilant over the killing of the man whom the government and the Israeli media have portrayed as the PLO's top terrorist. "If Israel did not kill Abu Jihad it should have," Knesset member Geula Cohen of the small, right-wing Tehiya Party told reporters. "Let the planners of terrorism know that they too are running a risk."

TEL AVIV University terrorism expert Ariel Merari, who Saturday said he believed that Wazir had been killed because of an internal power struggle with PLO leader Arafat, retracted that statement on Sunday. After reading about the details of Saturday's assassination in Tunis, Merari said, "It looks very much like some of the other Israeli operations, such as the 1973 raid. . . . The modus operandi (bears) resemblance."

Merari was referring to the April 1973 commando attack in Beirut in which Israeli raiders killed the alleged organizers of the 1972 Munich Olympics massacre: Arafat See Israel, Page 8A

Government will check Continental

By Josh Getlin
Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — In another blow to Texas Air Corp., the nation's largest airline system, the federal government served notice Sunday that it will make safety checks on all of Continental Airlines' 351 planes starting today and may fine the company up to $1 million.

The 30-day inquiry will be similar to the unprecedented investigation of Eastern Airlines' 267 planes which began last week, and has already resulted in 19 aircraft being temporarily grounded, said U.S. Transportation Secretary James Burnley.

"We have had Continental under very intense scrutiny for a number of months now," Burnley said in a televised interview. He added that a review of Federal Aviation Administration files has revealed that "we've got almost $1 million in proposed (safety) penalties" against the airline.

Burnley's disclosure was another setback for Texas Air, which owns Eastern and Continental and controls more than 20 percent of the nation's airline business. The parent company, already reeling from an $823,000 fine levied against Eastern last week, has come under fire from Congress and Eastern's pilots and machinists for allegedly endangering passenger safety in a bid to slash operating costs.

ANTHONY HATCH, an airline analyst with Argus Research in New York, said that Sunday's announcement "is a real blow to Texas Air. This puts them back into the news where they don't want to be. A lot of people are choosing other airlines in anticipation of the results of the Eastern inquiry. Now, Continental's reputation will suffer as well, even before an investigation is completed."

Texas Air officials said Sunday that they welcomed the latest investigation, predicting that both airlines would be vindicated. Bruce Hicks, a Continental spokesman, said that his airline was "totally confident in the outcome" of the investigation, adding that "it is about time we remove this nonsense from the air once and for all."

Burnley, during an appearance on NBC-TV's "Meet the Press," said that Continental officials have brought many of the identified safety problems to the attention of federal regulators. He added that the company has been notified of virtually all of the proposed fines, and was considering whether to pay them voluntarily.

DURING THE investigation, Burnley said, federal regulators will be taking an in-depth look at the fleet, with officials "walking around the planes and through them, and talking to the maintenance personnel and the folks in the cockpit and making sure that anything that can be readily identified is corrected."

All the while, the FAA will be continuing a separate inquiry launched last week into Texas Air's overall fitness to operate airlines, he added.

Former schizophrenic: We must fight against stigma

By Paula Roesler
The Daily Iowan

Research should be supported and education provided to eliminate mental illness and its social stigma, former schizophrenic patient Carol North said Sunday at the Iowa City Public Library.

At her appearance — sponsored by the Johnson County Alliance for the Mentally Ill — North, now a psychiatrist who treats schizophrenics, told about 200 people about her triumph over schizophrenia and promoted her book, Welcome, Silence.

"We need to work so the stigma and the discrimination will discontinue — lord knows we don't need to be punished twice," said North, who received her undergraduate degree in chemistry from the UI. "I suffered the stigma by the people who were ignorant around me."

After years of ridicule and unsuccessful treatments, North said she was finally cured by dialysis. But dialysis is probably not a viable cure for most schizophrenics, she said, because there are too many different forms of the condition.

THE GOVERNMENT should allot more money to find a cure for schizophrenia, North said, adding the federal government allots $10 per schizophrenic for research to find a cure for the disease.

Schizophrenia is a disease of the brain that is usually manifested in the teen years, but North said she first experienced schizophrenic symptoms at age 6.

UI sponsors farm survey

Several hundred members of Iowa farm families will soon get a chance to influence public policy on farm health and safety by participating in a UI telephone survey this spring.

The 350 randomly selected family farm couples will receive letters from researchers at the UI Institute of Agricultural Medicine and Occupational Health requesting 20 minutes of their time to respond to the survey.

"The purpose of the survey is to gather information on occupational health problems specific to agriculture and to gain the input of Iowa farm families on how to solve them," says Kelley Donham, professor of preventive medicine and environmental health in the UI College of Medicine.

The information also will be presented to participants at a national conference sponsored jointly by the UI and Iowa State University — "Agricultural Occupational and Environmental Health: Policy Strategies for the Future" — to be held in Iowa City and Des Moines this September.

Donham emphasizes that all survey responses will be kept strictly confidential. Although interview results may be presented later in summary form, no individual respondent's answers will be disseminated.

The survey will ask about the farm family members' health, their personal concerns about health and safety in farming, their safety practices with farm chemicals and machinery, and their knowledge of and attitudes toward farm health and safety services and programs.

"Farming is probably the most hazardous occupation in Iowa," Donham says. "This survey will help us to identify health problems and risks in farming. It also will let us know farm families' views about how public and private efforts could best serve their health needs."

Rutgers professor to speak

Lloyd C. Gardner, professor of history at Rutgers University, will speak on the topic of "Detente Was Not Enough: Soviet-American Conflicts After the Cold War" tonight at 8 in Phillips Hall Room 100.

Sponsors of the lecture include the UI Graduate History Society, the Undergraduate History Society, the Department of History and the Global Studies Program.

Language workshop held

A sexist language workshop will be held from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday, April 23, in the Union Kirkwood Room.

Participants will discuss ways in which English is a sexist language and how this can be remedied. Ruth Harstad, English instructor at Indian Hills Community College, will lead the workshop.

The workshop is being sponsored by the UI Women's Resource and Action Center. Registration is available by calling the center at 335-1486.

Delavan president lectures

Joseph B. Ryan, president of Delavan Inc., in West Des Moines, will deliver a lecture at 3:30 p.m. on April 15, in Phillips Hall Room 313.

Ryan's talk is part of the John R. Hughes Lecture Series, which brings business and academic leaders to the UI College of Business Administration one day a month.

While at the UI, Ryan will meet with UI business students, faculty and administrators.

Palestinian night sponsored

The General Union of Palestine Students invites the public to Palestinian Night at 7 p.m. on April 16 in the Zion Lutheran Church, 310 N. Johnson St.

The event will feature Arabic cuisine, Palestinian folkloric dancing and a speech on the recent Palestinian uprising in the occupied territories in Israel. Admission to the event is $5.

Tickets are available at the GUPS office in the Union, the Union Box Office and the UI International Center.

County approves rezoning of site for wastewater plant

By Sara Anderson
The Daily Iowan

Johnson County's adoption of a rezoning application last week means construction on the new wastewater treatment plant could begin this summer.

The Johnson County Board of Supervisors approved the second and third readings of the rezoning application for the plant, located just south of Iowa City. The application requested the county rezone a 51.5 acre tract of land for the proposed plant site from "agricultural" to "light industrial." The city needed approval to begin construction on the plant.

Metcalf and Eddy, the Boston-based engineering firm contracted to design the city's new wastewater treatment plant, has prepared a second addendum to plans for the facility which moves the starting construction date at the new plant from January 1, 1989, to August 1, 1988.

IOWA CITY Manager Stephen

Atkins said creation of an addendum of this sort is relatively common due to changes which take place during the bidding process.

"When you put a contract out for bid, changes may occur during the course of the bidding process," he said. "Basically what this does is to notify bidders that they'll be able to have summertime instead of winter construction."

All bids are due Friday, Atkins said.

The city has made progress on planning for the plant since Johnson County approved rezoning of the plant site, according to Atkins.

"We've been able to move things along much more quickly since they approved it," he said.

COUNCILOR Kate Dickson said approval of the rezoning application constitutes progress, as construction of the plant is overdue.

"I'm delighted. It will mean a great deal to Iowa City to get this whole thing started," she said. "It's many years overdue."

This will be a beginning to help alleviate problems from the old plant."

Approval of the rezoning application will ease relations between the city and Johnson County, she said.

"Well, there isn't any question (approval of the application will help)," Dickson said. "I believe we've gotten along well in the past, though. This was just a matter that had to work its way clear. If we've had problems in the past, we've usually been able to work something out."

Dickson said she anticipates no further problems with the county.

The city will begin searching for an access road to the new plant site, pending approval from the Iowa City council. During a formal meeting Tuesday, councilors will consider a resolution authorizing the city staff to investigate and begin negotiations for an access road to the plant site.

Atkins said the city hopes to have acquired the route by the beginning of August.

Senate ratifies moratorium on prosecution of home schoolers

By Bill Brewer
United Press International

DES MOINES — Despite charges it would make truancy laws unenforceable, the Senate Saturday gave final approval to a one-year moratorium on the prosecution of parents who teach their children at home or in church schools that do not employ certified teachers.

The bill sent to Gov. Terry Branstad, 29-20, was designed as a temporary solution to the long-running dispute between the state and fundamentalist Christian home and church schoolers who claim a provision of current law requiring all children to be taught by state-certified teachers violates their religious freedom.

In return for immunity from arrest during the next year, parents who teach their children at home and at non-approved church schools would be required to submit to local public school boards the names of all children receiving instruction by non-certified teachers.

THE HOME schools and church schools also would be required to submit curriculum plans and copies of their textbooks to local school districts for approval.

The bill, which passed the House, 61-32, Thursday, also requires lawmakers to conduct a study before the start of the 1989 legislative session to try to work out a permanent accommodation for the home and church schoolers.

"We have taken a minor step in resolving a situation in which people are going to jail," said Sen. Bill Dieleman, D-Pella, and floor manager of the bill.

But Sen. Wally Horn, D-Cedar Rapids, argued the bill, which requires lawmakers to study possible permanent solutions before reconvening next year, offers no guarantee the issue ultimately will be resolved.

Police

By Susan M. Wessling
The Daily Iowan

A UI student was charged with two counts of making a false report to a law enforcement agency after he called the Iowa City Police Department on two separate occasions and said a bomb was in the police station and in a squad car, according to police reports.

At about 3:14 a.m. Saturday, a male called 911 and said a bomb was in the station. Police traced the call back to the residence of a Brian Tower, 318 Ridgeland St., according to the report.

Police went to the address and charged UI sophomore William S. Evans, 20, 202 Ellis Ave., with making a false report.

At about 3:40 a.m. Saturday, a male again called the police department on the emergency number and stated a bomb had been planted in "Squad 23," a navy blue Iowa City police car, according to the report.

The report stated the receiver could hear another male in the background advising the caller to "hang up now or they'll trace it," according to the report.

The call was traced to the Acacia fraternity house, 202 Ellis Ave., and Evans was taken to the Johnson County Sheriff's Office and charged with the second count of making a false report, according to the report.

Report: A Bettendorf, Iowa, man was charged with public intoxication and criminal mischief after he was reportedly urinating in Quik-Trip, 323 E. Burlington St., according to police reports.

Mark A. Hoenk, 18, was reportedly at about 12:50 a.m. Saturday urinating on the floor. He was arrested and transported to the Johnson County Jail, according to the report.

Report: Approximately $1,500 in damage was done to a vehicle belonging to an Iowa City woman, according to police reports.

Trudy Perry, 242 Bon-Aire Mobile Home Lodge, reported Friday that both front fenders, the hood and the left door of her car were dented, bent and scraped by unknown individuals, according to the report.

Report: A Cedar Rapids man allegedly received a cut on the right side of his head when he was struck by an Iowa City man Saturday in The Fieldhouse, 111 E. College St., according to police reports.

The victim was examined by the Johnson County Ambulance Service and referred to the Johnson County Attorney's Office for further action, according to the report.

Courts

By Traci Auble
The Daily Iowan

Two UI students were charged with third-degree theft by deception Friday in Johnson County District Court, according to court records.

Joey Lee Schwiager, 20, 308 S. Gilbert St., and Christopher

Glenn Maze, 20, 1413 2nd St., Coralville, allegedly opened individual savings accounts at the First National Bank of Coralville on March 16 with deposits of $1, according to court records.

They both allegedly used fictitious names, addresses, dates of birth and social security numbers. Schwiager and Maze were then issued instant access cards on their accounts, according to court records.

They allegedly deposited empty envelopes to build up the accounts enabling them to withdraw $300 cash. A preliminary hearing is set for May 3, according to court records.

UI groups sponsor events on Nicaragua, South Africa

By Cathy Jackson
The Daily Iowan

Two UI student groups will sponsor activities this week in attempts to educate the community about controversial U.S. foreign policy issues.

The Central American Solidarity Committee will hold Honduras Week, and the Iowa Coalition Against Apartheid will synthesize Anti-Apartheid Week, both April 18-22.

Three UI law professors will lecture as part of Anti-Apartheid Week.

UI Law Professor Peter Shane will examine "South Africa: Constitutionalism in Reverse," today at 7 p.m. in the Grant Wood Room of the Union. Associate Law Professor Adrien Wing will address "Supporters of Apartheid: 1988 and Beyond," 7 p.m. Wednesday in Room 201 of the UI Biology Building, and Law Professor Joe Knight will discuss U.S. economic sanctions in South Africa in a lecture titled "Economic Sanctions: How the Anti-Apartheid Act 1986 Has Failed Us," 7 p.m. Thursday on the Sun Porch of the Union.

"ADRIEN WING has a reputation for being a great speaker and is extraordinarily knowledgeable about the situation down there," Iowa Coalition Against Apartheid organizer Brian Brandt said. "I think the other law faculty lecturers are dealing with two very important aspects of the South African regime per se."

Other Anti-Apartheid Week highlights include several lectures throughout the week given by Keyan Tomaselli, a visiting professor from the University of Natal in Durban, South Africa, and Third Perspective Panel Series No. 3 titled "South Africa and Palestine: Homelands in Occupation," 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in Gilmore Hall Room 106.

"WE WANT to try to educate the University of Iowa community about a variety of issues that are wrapped up in the issue of apartheid," Brandt said. "We hope to go at this problem from a variety of angles."

Honduras Week events, which will all be held in Old Brick, will also include a variety of lectures as well as several documentaries.

"Our government is deeply involved in Honduras, yet the vast majority of the U.S. public has no idea of what's going on there," Central American Solidarity Committee organizer Suzanne Janssen said. "We are sponsoring this week to educate ourselves as much as everyone else."

SHE SAID some of the week's highlights will be a documentary on Honduran human rights abuses today at 7:30 p.m. and Wednesday at 7 p.m. and a lecture titled "Economic and Political Effects of U.S. Involvement in Honduras," given by UI student from Honduras Jose Blanco at 7 p.m. Tuesday.

Also tonight, musician and member of the band Shay's Rebellion John O'Connor will sing about human rights issues and the oppression of the Central American peoples at 8:30 p.m.

"Honduras has become the bastion of the U.S. military presence in Central America, as a threat to Nicaragua and as a support force for the repressive government in El Salvador," Janssen said. "Last week a group of 2,000 Hondurans attacked the U.S. Embassy in a move to try to stop the U.S. from manipulating and controlling their country through military force. Most people don't understand the relationship between these two events and that's what Honduras Week hopes to explain," she said.

Honors Recognition Week notices UI students, faculty

By John Gilardi
The Daily Iowan

The UI will celebrate its first Honors Recognition Week April 17-24, according to UI Honors Program Director Irwin Levin.

Highlighting the week will be the Finkbine Dinner, which will be held Tuesday. Awarded at the dinner is the M.L. Huit Faculty Award, the James N. Murray Faculty Award, the Philip G. Hubbard Human Rights Award, the Robert F. Ray Faculty Representative Scholarship, Distinguished Student Leader awards and the Hancher-Finkbine medallions.

The first dinner was held on Feb. 21, 1917, for men attending the UI. The first annual dinner for women, held in 1921 and hosted by Dorothy Finkbine, was called the Good-Will Dinner.

The two were combined in 1972 and designated the Finkbine Dinner of Representative Students.

The concept of an honors week came about because in the past, the ceremonies were packed into one day, Levin said.

"WE DECIDED it was too much to get into one day because there were so many students involved," Levin said. "This allows for short, more personal ceremonies."

An honors award ceremony and reception was held Sunday at the UI Art Museum for UI freshmen, sophomores and juniors.

UI freshman Timothy Handy was awarded the Dewey B. Stuit Award. UI sophomores Lori Brandt and Lyn Raue were awarded Dewey B. Stuit scholarships. UI sophomore Thad Metz was awarded the James D. Robertson scholarship and juniors Valerie Holst and Sara Schnitjter were awarded UI Honors Program scholarships.

Beth Godwin was given the Hancher Memorial scholarship, which is awarded to the UI junior who has achieved a high level of scholarship and has exhibited evidence of maturity and social responsibility, according to UI Assistant Honors Program Director Sandra Barkan.

ABOUT 20 students were also awarded UI Foundation Honors scholarships at the Sunday convocation.

During the week, exhibits of costume designs for "The Portrait" by Mary Wolverton and a photographic exhibit titled "The Deadwood" by William Stuelke will be on display at Shambaugh House Honors Center, 219 N. Clinton St.

On Wednesday, honors students will present research projects at different sessions. All events will be held at 4:30 p.m. in English-Philosophy Building.

Research projects by students studying natural and physical sciences will be held in English-Philosophy Building Room 9. Those in humanities and fine arts will be held in Room 10, and those in the social sciences will meet in Room 16.

On Thursday, undergraduate scholar assistants will present their research projects from 2:30 p.m. to 4 p.m. in the Union South Room.

SAE, Kappas win volleyball event

The Daily Iowan

UI fraternity and sorority volleyball teams clashed in the sandpit Friday and Saturday to benefit the handicapped in the annual Phi Kappa Psi/Gamma Phi Beta volleyball tournament philanthropy.

Phi Psi philanthropy Co-chairperson John Nangle said this year's event was much larger than previous tournaments.

"Overall, I think the tournament was a big success," Nangle said. "We had a lot more participation this year. The tournament is really turning into a big annual event on campus."

Nangle said the event began Friday afternoon with a pre-tournament party at the Phi Psi house. The volleyball tournament started Friday night and continued until Saturday evening.

THE WINNING fraternity and sorority teams were determined by points awarded for participation, T-shirt sales and placing in the tournament.

In Saturday's final matches, defending fraternity champion Sigma Alpha Epsilon defeated Delta Tau Delta, and Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority beat Delta Zeta.

Sigma Alpha Epsilon and Kappa Kappa Gamma were also the overall winners for the event.

Philanthropy Co-chairperson Bowen Campbell said proceeds from the event will be donated to Systems Unlimited Inc., an Iowa City organization that works with local handicapped citizens.

SPECIAL FINANCIAL AID FOR T.A.'S AND R.A.'S

As a consequence of the Tax Reform Act of 1986 income earned from Teaching or Research Assistantships, which previously may have qualified for exemption, became completely taxable. The Iowa State Legislature has appropriated a limited amount of funds to provide financial assistance to students at the University of Iowa who held assistantships and were adversely affected by the Tax Reform Act of 1986.

To qualify for the aid the applicant must:

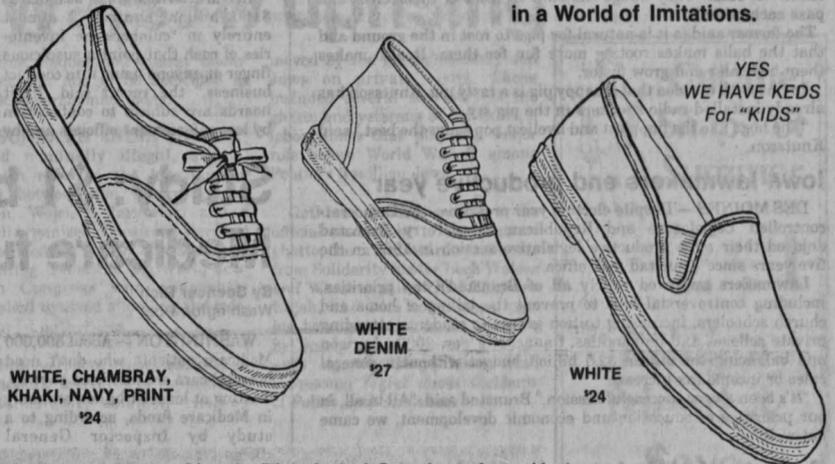

- 1) Have held an appointment as either a Teaching Assistant (TA) or a Research Assistant (RA) during the Fall of 1987.
- 2) Have filed 1987 tax returns (both State and Federal).
- 3) Have been adversely affected by the Tax Reform Act of 1986.

Hostage urges Kuwait to meet demands

ALGIERS, Algeria — One of 31 hostages aboard a Kuwaiti jetliner pleaded Sunday with Kuwait to accept hijackers' demands after the air pirates backed away from a refueling deadline in one of the longest hijackings on record.

The hostage's appeal at 4 p.m. (10 a.m. CST) appeared to have been written by the hijackers and was similar to three messages delivered under duress by captives since the airplane landed in Algeria Wednesday.

"My name is Farhan Doukhi," the captive said by radio from the airplane cockpit to the control tower. "I send greetings to my brothers, my sisters, my parents — to all those who think of me. I pray to God that the Kuwaiti government releases the 17 prisoners. If not, our future will be very black."

Police sharpshooters, meanwhile, were posted on the roofs of the terminal at the Houari Boumediene Airport for the first time, and officials evicted about 150 reporters and cameramen from a makeshift press room in the lounge.

Authorities did not provide any explanation for the tighter security, but the official Kuwaiti News Agency said an "important Arab personality" was expected to appeal to the hijackers to relent.

Some diplomatic sources speculated Palestine Liberation Organization Chairman Yasser Arafat would arrive from Tunis, Tunisia.

Aquino visit ends with China's support

MANILA, Philippines — Philippine President Corazon Aquino returned from a successful state visit to China Sunday and expressed her gratitude to her military commanders for preventing the overthrow of her government during her absence.

Aquino was clearly pleased by Chinese leader Deng Xiaoping's official support for her government's war against the 19-year-old Maoist-based Communist insurgency here. But she was clearly equally pleased to have proved that she could make a foreign trip without exposing her government to a threat from within.

"No one can say now that political stability in the Philippines is a daily battle that must be waged by the president herself," Aquino declared upon her return.

A little pig soccer makes good ham

STOCKHOLM, Sweden — Swedish farmer Lars Knutsson has bought several hundred hard plastic balls for his pigs to use playing soccer, the Swedish news agency TT said Sunday.

A nice game of snout soccer to liven up a pig's day is just what will make Knutsson's 2,500 hogs happier and tastier, said the farmer in the southern Swedish village of Billesholm.

"There's no question that the hogs have fun with the balls," Knutsson said. "They nudge the balls in front of themselves and pass each other."

The farmer said it is natural for pigs to root in the ground and that the balls makes rooting more fun for them. It also makes them healthier and grow faster.

In line with his idea that a happy pig is a tasty pig, Knutsson has already installed radio speakers in the pig sty.

"The hogs like the happiest and liveliest pop songs the best," said Knutsson.

Iowa lawmakers end productive year

DES MOINES — Despite election year pressures, the Democrat-controlled Legislature and Republican Gov. Terry Branstad enjoyed their most productive legislative session in 1988 in the five years since Branstad took office.

Lawmakers approved nearly all of Branstad's top priorities, including controversial bills to prevent the jailing of home and church schoolers, increasing tuition grants to students attending private colleges and universities, financing a new 200-bed prison and balancing the state's $2.5 billion budget without a general sales or income tax increase.

"It's been a very successful session," Branstad said. "All in all, in our priorities of education and economic development, we came out well."

Parents of slain teenager hold vigil

NEW YORK — The tearful parents and grandparents of a teenage girl strangled by a prep school graduate in Central Park lit candles in her memory at a vigil for crime victims Sunday, two days after her killer was sentenced.

The slain teenager's sister arrived at the Manhattan church vigil holding her 2-month-old daughter, who was named after the aunt she will never know.

The family also revealed that the prosecutor in the sensational case became the child's godmother Friday, the same day Robert Chambers began serving a five- to 15-year prison sentence for strangling Jennifer Levin.

Chambers, 21, a former altar boy who attended New York area prep schools before dropping out of college, strangled the victim in a Central Park crab apple tree grove in the pre-dawn hours of Aug. 26, 1986.

Nofziger again tied to illegal lobbying

WASHINGTON — Former White House aide Lyn Nofziger played a key role in a private health company's multimillion dollar lobbying campaign to loosen federal regulations protecting Medicare patients, congressional investigators said Sunday.

C. McClain Haddow, the government official Nofziger lobbied, ruled in favor of the company, and received a $40,000 consulting fee from the company less than six months after he left his post at the Department of Health and Human Services, a House report said.

Report: Drug war should receive local, state help

By Don Irwin
Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — Tactics for state and local officials to use in finding and confiscating the concealed profits of drug dealers are catalogued in a report issued Sunday by the National Institute of Justice, the Department of Justice's research arm.

Basically a textbook on procedures to root out "money laundering" devices used by organized crime to conceal huge profits from illicit ventures, principally drug trafficking, the 66-page report calls for more state and local action to supplement federal enforcement efforts.

While federal officials have thus far taken the lead in building "financially-oriented cases" against laundering operations, "the time is ripe to explore an expanded role for state and local agencies," James Stewart, director of the institute, wrote in a foreword to the report.

THUS FAR, the report noted, the only states that have directly outlawed money-laundering are California and Georgia. The California statute, which took effect in January 1987, requires banks to report suspicious cash transactions involving more than $5,000. It has figured in several investigations, including the one that led to the arrest last December of two Orange County, Calif., men on charges of laundering more than $1 million in drug profits.

Illegal activities gross "as much as $100 billion annually," almost entirely in "cumbersome inventories of cash that point a suspicious finger at anyone using it to conduct business," the report said. Illicit hoards are subject to confiscation by law enforcement officials and by tax collectors.

THE REPORT commended asset forfeiture as "perhaps the most potent weapon against economically motivated crime, for it allows government agencies to strip criminals both of the profits of their crimes . . . and (of) equipment, supplies and other assets that may be essential for manufacturing, distributing and selling illegal commodities."

Contraband funds, the report said, can be "laundered" in a variety of ways that screen their source.

Devises start with simple single-step conversion of raw cash into unrevealing "bearer instruments" — cashier's checks or money orders made out to "bearer" — that hide the identity of the holder. More complex schemes use such unidentifiable paper to acquire valuable assets — such as jewelry or real estate ventures — and revenue-producing commercial investments that are frequently wholly legitimate blinds for tainted money.

WHERE liquidity is required, laundered funds are banked in accounts in the names of individuals without criminal records. Large operations employ lawyers, accountants, brokers and couriers to keep the laundering process going smoothly.

Systematic moves to chart these money trails across nations and continents got a boost at the federal level with the passage in 1970 of the Bank Secrecy Act, which requires banks to report currency deposits of $10,000 or more and penalizes failure to report. Launderers have tried to evade the law by "smurfing," a process of subdividing large deposits into units under $10,000, as well as by corrupting bank officials and subverting their procedures.

Study: $1 billion in Medicare funds wasted

By Spencer Rich
Washington Post

WASHINGTON — About 800,000 Medicare patients who don't need hospital care are admitted anyway, wasting at least $1 billion annually in Medicare funds, according to a study by Inspector General Richard Kusserow of the Department of Health and Human Services.

Kusserow said the study indicates that 10 percent of Medicare patients who enter hospitals could be treated in doctors' offices, outpatient surgical facilities and other settings that are far less costly than hospitals.

About 7.5 million to 8 million Medicare patients go to the hospital annually under the relatively new fixed-payment-per-case system.

HOSPITAL representatives criticized the report, arguing that it does not reflect a recent shift to outpatient treatment.

Kusserow's conclusions were based on a random sample of 7,050 Medicare patients admitted to 239 hospitals under the fixed-payment system between October 1984 and March 1985.

The medical records of these patients were evaluated by a panel of doctors and other health personnel assembled by Kusserow.

The study was undertaken to determine the efficiency of hospitals and whether hospitals have "incentives to admit patients unnecessarily" to increase receipts.

The study "found that 10.5 percent of the hospital admissions were unnecessary," according to a report drafted by Kusserow's office. "Projected nationally," it said, Medicare "paid hospitals approximately $2 billion for unnecessary admissions" in fiscal 1985.

THE REPORT SAID that treating these patients in less costly settings would have cut the $2 billion figure to about $1 billion, or in effect, Medicare wasted $1 billion.

Kusserow said that about 75 percent of the patients admitted needlessly required care "but would have been treated more appropriately in outpatient settings." The others were "social admissions," meaning patients who did not need hospital care but were admitted because no one was at home to take care of them, or who belonged in nursing homes, or who did not need or receive acute-care services.

The study found that hospitals with the highest proportion of unnecessary admissions were small hospitals, for-profit hospitals and non-teaching hospitals.

SMALL HOSPITALS, those with fewer than 100 beds, "had the greatest problems with unnecessary admissions — 12.5 percent of patient admissions, compared with 10.1 percent in medium hospitals and 9 percent in large hospitals."

The draft report said, "Overall, the rate of unnecessary admissions was higher in profit hospitals (15.5 percent) than in non-profit hospitals (10 percent)." It said, "Overall, non-teaching hospitals had a higher rate of unnecessary admissions (12.5 percent compared with 8.8 percent in teaching hospitals)."

Talks resume in Nicaragua

Contras, Sandinistas disagree on democratization issue

By David Kirby
United Press International

MANAGUA, Nicaragua — The U.S.-backed Contra rebels resumed high-level peace talks with the Sandinistas Sunday, vowing to take up the "critical issue of democratization" despite the government's insistence that the talks be limited to discussion of a permanent cease-fire.

The two sides entered into their second full day of talks on ending the 7-year-old civil war and braced themselves for a long day of delicate negotiations to reach an agreement on ending the bloody conflict, which has claimed 50,000 lives.

Adolfo Calero, a member of the rebel directorate, said in a telephone interview from his hotel that the Contras would raise the issue of democracy in Nicaragua during the talks, despite Sandinista efforts to limit the discussions to a permanent cease-fire.

"The most essential part of these talks is the democratization of the country. The political problem here is very important, it is a part of the peace process," Calero said. "We didn't come to Managua only to discuss the cease-fire, but also the critical issue of democratization."

DEFENSE MINISTER Humberto, the head of the government delegation at the talks and the brother of President Daniel Ortega, said the only goal of the Managua meeting was to arrange a permanent end to the war. The talks were called for in the nine-point agreement signed March 23 in Sapoa, a border post located 85 miles southeast of Managua.

"When they signed the accord in Sapoa, the Contras agreed to come to Managua exclusively to discuss the terms of a definitive cease-fire," he said. "Any other issues not pertinent to that subject will have to be taken up at the national dialogue."

The national dialogue between the government and the internal opposition was called for in the peace plan signed August 1987 by five Central American presidents. The talks, to discuss political issues, have been stalemated because the government refuses to make concessions sought by the opposition.

THE 43-MEMBER Contra negotiating team arrived Friday in Managua and met briefly that night with the Sandinista group.

After more than nine hours of talks Saturday at the luxury El Camino Real hotel just outside the capital, the two sides agreed to present their positions in writing in order to "see if we can come up with a synthesis of the two that satisfies both parties," said Deputy Foreign Minister Victor Hugo Tinoco after Saturday's round of talks.

The Saturday talks, which failed to produce any concrete agreements, were described by Calero as "a step backward. The Sandinista regime must show more flexibility," he said.

Contra spokesman Bosco Matamoros also complained Sunday that the government had rejected their request to attend the Sunday mass celebrated by Cardinal Miguel Obando y Bravo, an observer at the talks and a one-time mediator between the two sides.

"They should have let us go to mass. Religion is the right of all Nicaraguans and it would have been a sign of good faith to let us attend," Matamoros said.

Iraq launches surprise offensive in Kuwait

By Patrick E. Tyler
Washington Post

KUWAIT—Iraq launched a large offensive Sunday aimed at driving Iranian forces off the Faw Peninsula, where Iranian military authorities claimed that their forces were bombarded during the day with chemical weapons and that "fierce fighting" was still under way Sunday night.

The surprise offensive on the first day of the Moslem month of fasting was code-named "Blessed Ramadan" by Iraq's military command, which said its pre-dawn attack combined units of the 7th army Corps and elite Republican Guard forces, which have been on alert for months to contain any new Iranian offensive in the area.

The distant rumble of the war could be heard by residents of this adjoining sheikdom, which has been seized by the hijack crisis still unfolding in Algeria.

THIS FIRST IRAQI army offensive in nearly two years comes as Iraq has expressed frustration with efforts by the U.N. Security Council to enforce a cease-fire resolution passed last July 20. Iraq was prepared to accept the initiative, which carried the threat of imposing an arms embargo on Iran if it did not comply.

The international diplomacy to end the war followed two successive winter campaigns in which Iran overran Faw in February 1986 and then in January 1987 advanced to the outskirts of Basra, Iraq's largest southern city, where Iranian artillery terrorized the 1 million inhabitants with punishing barrages.

The Basra campaign was costly for both sides and this winter, when Iran failed to mobilize a major invasion force in the south, Iraq stepped up bombing attacks against Iranian cities and shipping lanes until, in late February, both sides began a long-range missile duel.

IRAQ'S HOPES, according to a number of Western officials, are pegged to pushing for peace to avoid a drawn-out war of attrition in which Iraq's larger population and industrial base could prove decisive.

Iraq recently has acquired new long-range missiles for attacking Tehran and used chemical weapons on an expanded scale. Iraq charges that Iran also has begun using chemical weapons.

Sunday, Iran said, Iraqi forces stormed the outer defenses of Faw at 5 a.m. and by the end of the day, a Revolutionary Guard statement said, "fierce fighting is (still) going on in Faw."

In a somewhat contradictory statement, Iran's news agency IRNA said the Iraqi offensive had been "smashed" and driven back. It said "thousands" of Iraqi soldiers had been killed or wounded.

IRAQ'S HIGH command said the 7th Army Corps, commanded by Maj. Gen. Maher Rashid, began its advance south along the West bank of the Shatt al Arab waterway, the strategic canal that before the war provided Iraq's access to the Persian Gulf.

As the 7th army advanced south from positions below Basra, Iraq's Republican Guards apparently pushed east from positions between Zubair and Umm Qasr into an area identified as "Great Salt Lake," which is believed to be the marshy tidal lands West of Faw.

Iraq said its forces attacked by air, land and sea, indicating that amphibious units in the inlets and canals around Umm Qasr were involved.

Demjanjuk awaits verdict in Israel

By Carol Rosenberg
United Press International

RAMLE, Israel — Retired Ohio autoworker John Demjanjuk laughed with his family and read cards from well-wishers in his prison cell Sunday, the eve of a verdict in his trial on charges he was the sadistic Nazi death camp guard "Ivan the Terrible."

Demjanjuk, 68, spent three hours with his wife Vera, daughter Lydia, son John Jr., and two sons-in-law at the Ayalon Prison, 25 miles from Jerusalem, where he has been held since he arrived in Israel in 1986.

After the visit, family members said Demjanjuk was in good spirits and expressed optimism about the verdict, to be announced by a three-judge panel Monday in Jerusalem. If convicted, Demjanjuk could be hanged.

"He's cautiously optimistic. He thinks the prosecution didn't make a case against him and he just wants to go home," said Ed Nishnic, who is married to Demjanjuk's daughter Irene, 28, and is the father of his 3-year-old grandson.

"WE LAUGHED a lot about when he comes home," Nishnic said. "He's got a year of babysitting to do."

Prosecutors charge that Demjanjuk was the guard "Ivan the Terrible," who used a sword, whip and pistol to jam tens of thousands of naked prisoners into the gas chambers of a Nazi death camp in Treblinka, and then fired up the engines that spewed deadly fumes into the chambers.

More than 850,000 people, most of them Jews, perished at the death camp in Nazi-occupied Poland in 1942 and 1943.

But Demjanjuk claims he is a victim of mistaken identification. The native Ukrainian says he was held at a prisoner-of-war camp in Chelm, Poland, at the time he was allegedly at Treblinka. He also charges the Soviet Union is trying to frame him because he served in an anti-Soviet Nazi militia at the end of World War II.

FIVE TREBLINKA survivors identified Demjanjuk as "Ivan" at the yearlong trial, one of the longest and most sensational in Israeli history. He faces four charges — war crimes, crimes against humanity, crimes against the Jewish people and crimes against persecuted persons.

Only one other person has been tried under Israel's genocide law. He was Adolf Eichmann, the mastermind of the Nazi plot to exterminate the Jews, who was kidnapped from Argentina by Israeli Mossad agents in 1960, convicted a year later and hanged in 1962.

Demjanjuk moved to the United States after the war and worked for 30 years on an automobile assembly line in Cleveland until he was stripped of his U.S. citizenship in 1981 for lying about his past on an immigration application. He was sent to Israel for trial five years later.

Poles commemorate WWII Warsaw uprising

By Jackson Diehl
Washington Post

WARSAW, Poland — Thousands of people carrying candles and the banners of opposition political movements marched through the streets of the former World War II Jewish ghetto here Sunday in an independent commemoration of the 1943 ghetto uprising against Nazi forces.

The march by more than 5,000 Jews and Poles, including leaders of the banned Solidarity trade union, was one of the largest independent demonstrations to take place in Warsaw in recent years without police interference.

It followed the dedication Sunday morning of a privately supported monument in Warsaw's Jewish cemetery to two leaders of the former Jewish Workers Bund who were executed in the Soviet Union.

THE TWO EVENTS, organized by a committee of intellectuals and political activists led by Marek Edelman, a leader of the ghetto uprising, took place as communist authorities sought to focus international attention on an elaborate weeklong official program of events here marking the uprising's 45th anniversary.

At the Polish parliament, called the Sejm, 97 Poles who helped save Jews from the Holocaust in Poland were awarded medals Sunday morning from the Jerusalem-based Yad Vashem authority.

At the same time, a prominent member of the ruling Communist Party Politburo, Mieczyslaw Rakowski, met with a group of Israeli government officials and dignitaries visiting Poland for the anniversary, including Israeli Deputy Prime Minister Yitzhak Navon.

According to official accounts, more than 5,000 Jews from 36 countries have come to Poland for the anniversary celebrations, which will continue through Tuesday. A new "route of remembrance" in the former ghetto featuring plaques and a large monument are due to be dedicated in official ceremonies today.

SUNDAY'S INDEPENDENT, and nominally illegal, events, which reflected the longstanding rift between the government of Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski and a well-organized opposition, were not attended by Israeli officials or by visiting leaders of the World Jewish Congress who apparently wished to avoid offending the communist authorities.

However, both events featured an unusual mixture of opposition intellectuals, common citizens moved by the ghetto's history and Jews on private visits. These included several survivors of the ghetto and veterans of the Bund, a labor union that played a major role before World War II among Poland's 3 million Jews.

Gathered Sunday evening at the official monument to the Warsaw ghetto, the crowd heard statements from Solidarity leader Lech Walesa and Warsaw union chief Zbigniew Bujak, who were not present, paying homage to the 44-day struggle by poorly armed Jewish combatants against Nazi forces and expressing regret about incidents of Polish anti-Semitism.

Rocket explodes in Pakistan as soldiers clear ordnance

United Press International

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan — A rocket exploded in the hands of an army disposal team clearing ordnance from the rubble of an ammunition depot Sunday, killing two soldiers and injuring eight others, Defense Ministry and hospital sources said.

The rocket exploded as the army team was loading it aboard a truck for transport to Barakahu on the outskirts of Islamabad. Unexploded ordnance has been detonated by remote control in a massive cleanup following the April 10 fire and explosions at an army ammunition depot in Faizabad.

At least 100 people were killed and 1,100 injured by the explosions in Faizabad.

The closed list is in numerical order and indicates the department, course, and section numbers followed by a code (CD) indicating why the course is closed.
Code 1: the course or section is full
Code 2: the course or section has been cancelled
Code 3: the course or section is not available until the first day of classes
Code 4: the course or section is pending (undetermined)
These lists should be reviewed and adjustments made prior to entering the Registration Center. Registration information is printed in the Schedule of Courses.

Justified grounding

Frank Lorenzo, CEO of the byzantine and embattled Texas Air Corp., handily won this week's award for Orwellian doublespeak.

On Sunday's installment of "Meet The Press," Lorenzo demonstrated a surgeon's knack for splitting hairs when he addressed the media's coverage of the Federal Aviation Administration investigation of Eastern Airlines, an investigation which was extended Friday to include Continental as well. None of his planes had been "grounded," Lorenzo said, drawing a distinction as close to absolutely meaningless as possible. They were just "temporarily out of service."

Out of service indeed. The list of safety violations uncovered by the FAA — from improper repair of an eight-inch tear in the door of an Airbus jet to the absence of flight attendants on aircraft being boarded — reveals a management safety policy in utter disarray. Lorenzo points out that every time passengers are delayed in boarding an aircraft at the gate, that aircraft is technically "out of service." Well, there's a reason. "Out of service" is industry shorthand for "unfit to fly according to FAA regulations."

The history of the airline industry since deregulation and the PATCO strike is rocky at best, and a certain measure of sympathy must be extended to Lorenzo and other airline executives. Between fare wars and union pressure — an Eastern baggage handler makes an average of $47,000 per year — according to Lorenzo, it has become nearly impossible to operate in the black. Texas Air, Eastern's parent company, lost $466 million last year, $265 million of it in the fourth quarter alone.

But no one said running an airline would be easy, particularly an airline empire of the type Lorenzo has amassed. Nicknamed "Darth Vader" by industry analysts for his Draconian management style and corporate raider muscling, Lorenzo says he has been singled out for an FAA dragnet. Maybe so.

But if Texas Air is too large for it to effectively police its subsidiaries and cannot be made "fit, willing and able to perform properly" in the wake of its financial problems, then Lorenzo's aircraft should be grounded — in someone else's hanger.

View from the past

Could it be a bad joke? Nope, there on our television screens was Richard Nixon, dispensing legal advice about pardons, of all things, to the man who now sits in the office he once disgraced. Having heard him out, it is clear to us that having a presidential pardon yourself does not make you an expert on presidential pardons.

If President Reagan believes that his former aides, John M. Poindexter and Oliver L. North, had his approval or were acting in his interests in the Iran-Contra affair, then, Nixon said, Reagan "would have a good case for pardoning" them because "the so-called crime would lack an intent." After all, he added, there had been no "personal gain" for North and Poindexter in what the independent counsel has charged was a conspiracy to defraud the United States. Nixon might be wise to review what his law books say about intent — it is not interchangeable with criminal motive or personal gain — or, better yet, he should keep these thoughts to himself.

Every time Nixon grants an interview or makes a speech, we are reminded of what a master strategist he is, just how impressive is his grasp of global issues and world personalities — and what a moral vacuum there is inside him. He admitted, somewhat grudgingly, to the NBC-TV interviewers that the Watergate cover-up was "wrong" but at the same time he expressed regret that he had not pardoned his White House aides, H.R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman, before they went to trial. If the cover-up itself was wrong, would it not have been equally wrong to have let its perpetrators off scot-free?

Nixon himself is the strongest argument against pretrial pardons. He escaped impeachment and trial by resigning before Congress could move against him; former President Ford's blanket pardon a month later pre-empted any grand jury indictment. The country never got a final, official accounting of the wrongs Nixon committed. Thus to this day, die-hard Nixon supporters can insist that the 37th president of the United States, despite obstructing investigations, concealing evidence and paying off witnesses, did nothing other presidents had not done.

It is unlikely that Poindexter and North can be tried before Reagan leaves office, and for Reagan to pardon them in advance would short-circuit the judicial process and deny the country yet another final accounting. Years from now, Americans would still be debating whether Ollie really did anything wrong; that is an issue that should be decided by a jury, not debated in barrooms.

Traveling the Iowa byways

By Christine Selk

Digressions

I hail from a small town in northwest Iowa — Sutherland, for any of you rural geographers who are boring enough to be interested — and I returned there last weekend for some solitude. (Pigs oinking, cows mooing, teenagers drinking contraband Black Label on dark, deserted gravel roads, that kind of thing.)

To borrow a phrase from the Grateful Dead, it was a long, strange trip. Long, meaning approximately five hours of AM radio (Crackle, crackle, crackle, "Now here's Woe B. Gone, singin' 'I Broke my Toe!' crackle, crackle). Strange, meaning the sights and sounds of Interstate 80.

I have often wondered about those nameless, faceless wanderers who travel that semi-lonesome stretch. Where are they going? Where have they been? What color is their underwear?

While these questions may remain forever unanswered, some interesting information can be gleaned about a person strictly from the car he or she drives. A vehicle's year, color and make are especially telling.

Following is a list I compiled during my trip last weekend. It contains various types of automobiles and my guesses at the life forms that drive them. Maybe you'll agree. Maybe you'll disagree. Maybe you've already quit reading this. If not, here goes.

• 1987 beige Aries — Undoubt-

Ruxpins and the entire Jem collection, calls cooing sister a snottosed liberal. Mother throws Jacqueline out the window at a sign reading "Buckle Up For Safety."

• 1976 red Monte Carlo with a white roof — There's gotta be a University of Northern Iowa sticker in the rear window of this baby. It may even be a little jacked up. Peter Brady saved his allowance for years to buy a car very similar to this one. The driver is, in a word, repugnant. The car's window is rolled down, and Sammy Hagar whines, "I Can't Drive 55." An evergreen air freshener dangles from the rear-view mirror. The driver — named Carl or something like that — throws hey-wanna-get-lucky glances at passing pretty young things, who return the favor with an index finger down the throat and a look that translates into, "I'd rather suck mud through a straw, beatnik."

• 1964 color undistinguishable Ford pickup — The Joads are alive and well and cruisin' down I-80. There's always a load of sorry furniture in the flatbed of this rusted-out lead sled. Why are these people always moving? And where in God's name did they get those fringed lampshades? The leader of this pack chews enough Red Man to put Skoal out of business permanently, and his wife smokes a cigar. They make their offspring ride in the back of the pickup, just to make sure those lampshades don't blow off. And keep an eye on that Elvis wall hanging, kids!

• 1970 black MG — Two hot-looking college kids (one blonde, one brunette) are on the way to their boyfriend's spring formal. They're both wearing white-rimmed sunglasses and smoking lots of French cigarettes — they don't inhale, though. Both were born in a tanning bed. Many women want them to die. They throw maybe-if-you're-cute-enough-we'll-honk-and-wave-at-you glances at passing males, who return the favor by frothing at the mouth.

• 1986 white Ford sedan with UI insignia — A man bearing an uncanny resemblance to a skinny, beardless Santa careens down the road with reckless abandon, a harried look of frustration on his face. He's near tears. He's going to be beaten to a senseless pulp by state Board of Regents President Marvin Pomerantz. He's UI Interim President Richard Remington, and he's 10 minutes late for this month's regents meeting. With the way this man's luck is going, you know that a state trooper is lying in wait over the next hill. Yep, I think I hear the sirens now

Can ya spare some shrimp?

I've decided it's high time I put in my own request to Congress for some lethal military aid.

Not that I expect to get any, of course. The only lethal military aid I've ever received was when I was 12 and my Uncle Floyd let me use his new .410 double-barreled Winchester while we were out rabbit hunting. As we walked stealthily down the hedgerow, a rabbit suddenly darted out in front of us. I jerked the gun up, pointing it wildly in the general direction of the sprinting prey, and fired both rounds in rapid succession, one pelting an unfortunately placed barn, the other clipping a branch from an innocently bystander elm. My uncle forcibly took the gun from me and told me to go sit in the pickup.

No, I'm not exactly what you would call lethal military aid material. But I am, I think, deserving of some humanitarian aid — if only as a means of assuaging my darker lethal military tendencies. And as I understand it, the way to go about getting humanitarian aid from Congress is to request lethal military aid. Congress, ever wary of America's image as a world belligerent, will deny the request for lethal military aid, but in a concession to all that is moral and right and good, grant an appropriate store of humanitarian aid. And it's that humanitarian aid that I'm really after.

WHO WOULDNT be?
 Consider a letter recently obtained by Peter Kornbluh of the National Security Archive, using the Freedom of Information Act, from the director of the State Department's Nicaraguan Humanitarian Assistance Office to a Contra liaison. According to the letter, some of the humanitarian expenditures approved by the State Department in support of the Contra "Freedom Fighters" for 1985 and 1986 include:

J.L. McClure

- $5,760.53 for deodorant.
- $1,071 for volleyball equipment.
- 12 domino games, $132.18.
- Two living room sets worth $1,283.63, a dining room set worth $654.94 and a $477.75 sofa.
- Three 19-inch color TVs at about $1,000 each.

Of course, my humanitarian needs are not quite as extensive as the Nicaraguan Freedom Fighters.

I CAN GET by on just a couple of hundred dollars a year for deodorant.

I'm not much into playing volleyball, unless it's in the nude, in which case equipment isn't all that necessary.

Dominoes isn't my gambling game, though I could use a new deck of Bicycle poker cards (I mark them myself) and maybe some chips — $20 should cover it easy.

total?) — good for my back... and whatever else.

I've already got a pretty good TV. I could, however, use a new VCR — and how about a satellite dish? (Do they have the Playboy channel?)

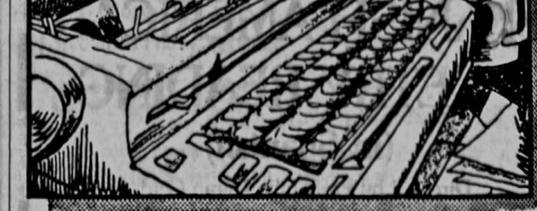

THAT SHOULD do it. I don't want to be overly greedy in my humanitarian need; I understand how tight the government budget is these days. Why else would the State Department, as revealed in its letter to the Contras, so ruthlessly refuse them their request for:

- $369.82 in Christmas decorations.
- $226 in guitar strings.

Still, if there should be a few extra dollars floating in Congress' humanitarian till, I've always harbored a non-lethal desire for a Jaguar XJ-6 (preferably silver, but black would be OK, too).

Or if that's asking too much, how about a new .410 double-barreled Winchester? There's an aging rabbit out there somewhere and a score I have to settle.

J.L. McClure's column appears on the Viewpoints page every other Monday.

Arafat accuses U.S. of role in Al-Wazir death

United Press International

TUNIS, Tunisia — Palestine Liberation Organization Chairman Yasser Arafat accused the United States of complicity in slaying his right-hand man and vowed Sunday the Palestinian uprising in the Israeli-occupied territories will continue.

It was Arafat's first public statement on Saturday's early morning assassination of Khalil Al-Wazir, better known as Abu Jihad, or Father of War. He said the death of his childhood friend and the PLO's No. 2 man was not in vain.

"He was martyred while carrying out his duty, weapons in hand. He resisted until he was outnumbered by the Israeli Mossad gang and his body was riddled with tens of bullets," said the PLO chief, who arrived in Tunis Saturday after the assassination.

"The decision was an Israeli decision, taken at the highest levels of the Israeli leadership, with a green light from the American administration," Arafat said.

ARAFAT VOWED the Palestinian uprising in the occupied Gaza Strip and West Bank would continue despite the assassination.

Israel has declined comment on the assassination of Al-Wazir, said to have been responsible for turning the Palestinian demonstrations that first erupted in December in the West Bank and Gaza Strip into a semi-permanent challenge to the 20-year Israeli occupation.

Gunmen firing submachine guns and silencer-equipped pistols burst into the suburban villa of Al-Wazir, 52, between 1:15 a.m. and 1:45 a.m. Saturday.

Dukakis wins in Arizona, widens lead over Jackson

By Jeffrey T. Shain
United Press International

PHOENIX — Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis widened his lead over Democratic presidential rival Jesse Jackson with an easy victory in the Arizona caucuses, overcoming surprising rural support for Jackson.

The final tally of Saturday's balloting showed Dukakis with 54 percent of the ballots cast in heavier than expected turnout, while Jackson scored better than projected to finish with 38 percent.

Dukakis snared 20,814 votes in the presidential preference poll, followed by Jackson with 14,538 ballots. Sen. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., ran a distant third with 1,972 votes, or 5 percent.

THAT LEFT DUKAKIS with 22 of the state's 36 delegates who were up for grabs, with Jackson taking the remaining 14. Gore will not take anything from Arizona, because state party rules stipulate a candidate must carry at least 15 percent of the vote to earn delegates.

"This was a very important state for us, not in terms of the number of delegates, but in terms of showing his popularity across this land," said Jose Villarreal, the Dukakis campaign coordinator in Arizona. "Dukakis has won in every region of this country. No other candidate can say that."

The results gave Dukakis a total of 743.15 delegates nationwide, while Jackson held 675.20. A total of 2,082 delegate votes are needed for nomination.

A poll released on the eve of the caucuses showed Dukakis holding roughly a 2-to-1 margin over Jackson, but the civil rights leader made some inroads in rural counties, especially in northern Arizona.

Democratic presidential candidate Michael Dukakis and his wife, Kitty, wave to a New York City crowd during a parade marking Israel's 40th anniversary.

"THIS IS ABSOLUTELY wonderful for Jackson, to get (38) percent in a state where there's only 3 percent blacks," said Mitch Etter, Arizona state delegate coordinator for the Jackson campaign. "This will give Jackson tremendous momentum going into the New York vote."

But some of Jackson's gains were offset by Dukakis nearly taking one of Jackson's primary strongholds, the Phoenix suburb of Tempe, which includes Arizona State University.

"In Tempe, Jackson won by about 33 votes, and that was where Jackson's organizers were," said Sam Goddard, the state Democratic chairman. "They expected a much, much stronger showing than they got."

Also this weekend, Tennessee Gov. Ned McWherter said Jesse Jackson is not likely to be this year's presidential nominee although his delegates are apt to be power brokers in the party's Atlanta convention.

"IT'S EVIDENT NOW that the Jackson delegates — whether we like that or not — are going to play a very important part in the Democratic convention this year," McWherter said Saturday.

"I personally think they'll be in a position to broker the convention," he said. But, the Democratic governor said, he does not believe Jackson will be able to win the nomination.

McWherter also said he does not believe Democrats should use their super delegates — party officials and office holders who are selected by the party hierarchy rather than by vote — to deny Jackson the nomination if he deserves it.

"I think it would be wrong for the so-called super delegates, the power brokers, to stop him," said McWherter.

L.A. police arrest 147 in anti-gang assault

United Press International

LOS ANGELES — Police arrested nearly 150 suspects in a scaled-down anti-gang sweep that involved far fewer officers than an unprecedented effort launched last week, authorities said Sunday.

In all, 147 arrests were made Saturday night in South Central Los Angeles, including 73 known gang members, most of whom were booked on drug and traffic violations, Detective John Clark said.

Unlike a full-scale assault last weekend that involved a special

1,000-member task force that fanned out across the city, Saturday night's operation employed only 200 officers.

Along with arrests, the officers seized several weapons, drugs and impounded a dozen cars.

"There (were) not a lot of people on the streets," said Deputy Chief William Rathburn. "Yet, I'm quite pleased with the number of arrests."

Gang violence in Los Angeles has led to nearly 90 deaths since Jan. 1, and there were 387 gang-related killings in the county last year.

sional sports agents to register with the Secretary of State's office and prohibiting agents from offering payments to college athletes while the athletes still are eligible for intercollegiate competition.

• A measure returning to county clerk of court offices by 1990 the collection and accounting of child support payments. The bill allows a dual collection and record keeping system in the Department of Human Services and clerks office until the change is completed.

Lawmakers also approved a bill delaying next year's scheduled implementation of a prohibition against school superintendents doubling as principals, a requirement for districts to establish and staff media centers and an increase in the minimum number of required vocational educational course offering from five to 10.

THE CHANGE in the vocational education requirements allowed lawmakers to reduce from 41 to 36 the minimum number of credit units districts must offer their high school students.

The lawmakers voted to retain a 1992 deadline for districts to establish all-day, everyday kindergarten programs. But they called for a study during next year to determine the educational advantage of the all-day programs in the event the Legislature should decide to reconsider the issue next year.

Democratic leaders and Republican Gov. Terry Branstad were all pleased with their work during the session, noting nearly all of Branstad's and Democrats' priorities won approval.

"We came in looking at a very dismal budget situation. We ended up with a balanced budget, we took a major step toward welfare reform ... and we continued to work on improving the quality of life in this state," Senate Majority Leader Bill Hutchins, D-Audubon, said.

"It's been a very successful session," Branstad said. "All in all, in our priorities of education and economic development, we came out well."

deputy Mohammed Yussuf Najjar, PLO spokesman Kamal Nasser, Najjar's deputy Kemal Adwan and dozens of Palestinian guerrillas. Eleven Israeli athletes died in Munich, as well as a West German policeman and five of the terrorists.

AS IN Saturday's operation, the raid was set up by an advance party that included a woman, and the assault team arrived by sea, used rental cars to travel to its target and killed the PLO leaders in their homes late at night. The attacking force then escaped by helicopters.

Israeli officials publicly acknowledged responsibility for that assault, but have maintained silence this time.

While some experts expressed grudging respect for Wazir's expertise and stature in the Palestinian community, most made clear that they considered him a supreme terrorist responsible for hundreds of attacks against civilians.

They especially cited the March 1975 hostage-taking operation at the Savoy Hotel in Tel Aviv in which six Israeli civilians and six foreign tourists were killed, and the March 1978 coastal bus hijacking in which 35 civilians died.

THE PLO'S latest terrorist operation was a bus hijacking last month near Dimona in the Negev desert in which three civilians and three gunmen were killed, and many press reports here interpreted Wazir's killing as retaliation for that act. In one of his last press interviews, Wazir reportedly had praised the attack as "a success."

Former Israeli spymaster Rafael Eitan, who headed the controversial Defense Ministry intelligence unit that recruited and ran U.S. spy Jonathan Pollard, said, "There is no doubt there is a parallel" between the 1973 Beirut operation and Saturday's attack. "I have always honored doing justice to those people responsible for terrorist attacks," he added.

The man who commanded the 1973 Beirut raid and now heads military intelligence here, Gen. Amnon Shahak, told an Army magazine earlier this week that "in my opinion, whoever leads acts of terror is a proper target for liquidation. Whoever uses terrorism against us shall be a target."

When North told her parents she was hearing voices in her head, she said her parents didn't know how to react. There were no textbooks on the subject of schizophrenia and doctors didn't know how to diagnose or treat the condition, she said.

While riding in the car, North said, she would watch the telephone poll cables, dip up and down.

When the cables dipped up, North said she heard a voice say, "Here, do you want a cigar?" And when the cables went down she heard another voice say, "Ha, ha, we'll take it away."

"MY FAMILY gave me the idea that this is something that we don't talk about," North said. "It's like going to the bathroom, you do it in private and you don't talk about it."

Because her parents tried to overlook her unusual behavior, North said she was forced to develop coping skills. She said she would mimic those around her so she knew which voices to respond to and which to ignore.

But North said during college her symptoms became too pronounced to ignore.

"In college, I experienced what is known as pure perception," she said, explaining she was constantly inundated by audio and visual images. "I stared at the wall for three days. If I moved, it brought about more images."

During her years at Washington University's medical school in the early 1980s, North said she checked in and out of various psychiatric hospitals.

"I would listen to the patient's heart through a stethoscope and all I could hear was dogs barking," she said.

Doctors prescribed medicines and treatments, but North said none of them worked and many of them had unsavory side effects.

Eventually, doctors put her on dialysis treatments, she said. Eight times a week she would undergo the painful and nauseating treatment using "needles the size of pipecleaners," she said.

One morning in 1983, North said, she woke up and the voices in her head had stopped. She said she has not taken any medication to control her illness since that morning.

Texas Air, said during the same broadcast that the two airlines had exemplary safety standards and blamed the situation on "political" attacks by airline pilots and machinists who he said are trying to "bring down" the company.

Lorenzo's Texas International Airlines was merged with Continental and in 1983 it filed for bankruptcy and cut the pay of workers. The airline's pilots went on strike and were eventually replaced by non-union employees. Texas Air purchased Eastern 16 months ago.

"WHAT YOU don't hear in all this rhetoric is a lot of the positive things that are going on ... there's much more beneath the surface than a few of these little comments that are just made by people who have a motive and are just trying to tear the airline down," said Lorenzo.

He added that Eastern pilots and machinists were "fifth columns," or subversive elements, within his company. Lorenzo also denied that he has endangered passenger safety on Eastern by trying to sell off some of its more profitable assets, such as the shuttle service linking Washington with New York and Boston.

Steady offense has Fry happy with Hawkeyes

By Marc Bona
 The Daily Iowan

The Black squad of the Iowa football team, comprised primarily of the Nos. 1 and 4 teams, used a balanced offensive attack Saturday in Kinnick Stadium to defeat the White squad, 49-7, before a record crowd of 42,500 in the annual Iowa spring football game.

The Black squad tallied 468 yards of offense in the game, 245 passing and 223 rushing. Most of the

Stewart adds to explosive backfield

Football coaches who prepare for Iowa always say it is the Hawkeyes' offensive balance that's so difficult to stop.

And with Chuck Hartlieb, who has been mentioned as a Heisman Trophy hopeful, at quarterback, along with another well-stocked offensive line, it seems logical that the missing link to another explosive Iowa offense may be a top-flight ball carrier.

The probable answer to that line of thought is Tony Stewart, a sophomore from Vauxhall, N.J., who Iowa Coach Hayden Fry late last season said would be "the man back there next year."

In the Iowa's annual spring game Saturday at Kinnick Stadium, Stewart carried the ball 16 times for 91 yards for his winning Black squad team. The first- and fourth-string Black team thumped the second- and third-

Offense was highlighted in the contest, and the squads gave fans their money's worth, so to speak (admission was free). Iowa Coach Hayden Fry said he was pleased with the play of some of the team's inexperienced players.

Hawks drop 4 games to Illinois

By Eric J. Hess
 The Daily Iowan

Of all the presents Iowa baseball Coach Duane Banks would wish for his birthday, two losses to complete a four-game sweep by Illinois was not among them.

Iowa's hitting took a dismal downturn against the Illini, and for the Iowa coach it may mean making drastic changes or having more patience. Even he doesn't know.

"I don't know what we're going to do from day to day," Banks said after the Hawkeyes lowered their record to 16-17 overall and 4-6 in the Big Ten at Iowa Field Saturday and Sunday.

Illinois improved its record to 20-8 overall and 8-6 in conference play after winning 2-1, 8-4, 5-2 and 7-4.

Offense was not an Iowa strength during the weekend series. A few examples can illustrate that.

Iowa gymnasts finish with 3 all-American performances

By Anne Upson
 The Daily Iowan

LINCOLN, Neb. — The final day of the NCAA men's gymnastics meet at the Bob Devaney Sports Center Saturday proved to be exciting for competitors, the crowd, and three Iowa Hawkeyes.

Three of the Hawkeyes' four individual competitors in the meet earned all-American status, after Iowa claimed fifth as a team last Thursday.

Iowa Coach Tom Dunn said he was pleased with his all-American qualifiers.

"Three out of four is not bad at all," Dunn said. "We did as well as could be expected. We had a much better performance this year than last. The competition was tougher but we're definitely better."

In the floor exercise, Ron Nasti scored a 9.675 in a satisfying routine to grab fifth place for the second year in a row. Nasti said he was content with this routine — but it could have been better.

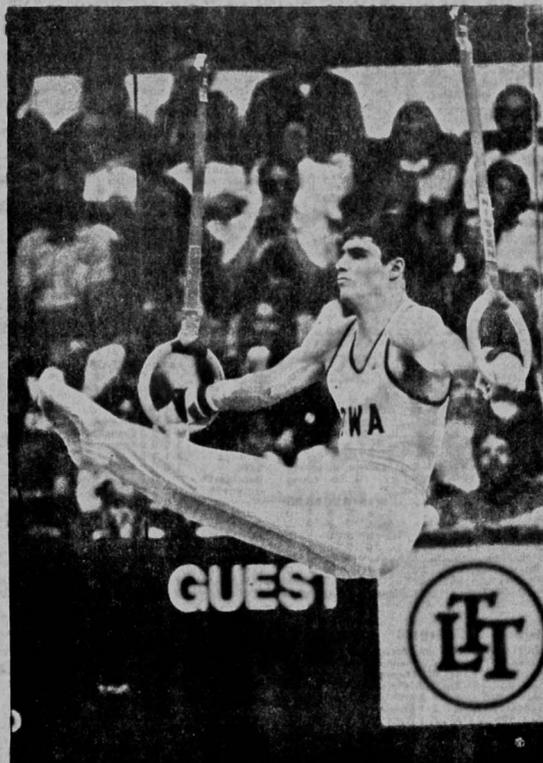

"I WAS EXCITED," Nasti said. "I was happy with what I got. I went out to hit all my tricks, but I could have done a lot better. I had hoped to score a 9.8 and get fourth instead of fifth. But I'm still happy."

The senior from Elmhurst, Ill., added that the floor exercise champion Chris Wyatt of Temple, who scored a near-perfect 9.90, and the two gymnasts who tied for second (Chris McKee of Illinois and Chad Fox of New Mexico) deserved their positions.

"The guys who got one, two and three definitely earned it," Nasti said. "In my opinion, the judging was bad in the beginning and looser in the end."

Iowa did not have any qualifiers in three events — vault, pommel horse and parallel bars — but the Hawkeyes did have two finalists in the still rings.

IOWA'S TEAM captain Joe Thome was cheered on by members of the team, boosters and alumni as he performed his routine. After a short deliberation about the score of a 9.3 from one judge, Thome received a 9.55 to tie for sixth with Paul Linne (Arizona State) as a still rings all-American.

The Daily Iowan/Joe Kress

Iowa gymnast Joe Thome steadies himself on the still rings during the NCAA competition in Lincoln, Neb., this weekend. Thome scored a 9.55 overall and tied for sixth place in the individual competition on the still rings. Iowa finished fifth overall in the championships.

Thome said he enjoyed performing but wasn't pleased with his final score.

"I had fun out there," Thome said. "It was tough competition. I wanted to pull out a good routine and be clean in front of the judges. I wasn't pleased with my score; I guess the judges interpreted my routine differently."

The other Hawkeye who competed in the event was rings specialist Paul Wozniak. Wozniak, in his first NCAA appearance, scored as 8.650 as a result of a fall off the rings. Dunn attributed Wozniak's showing to first-time jitters.

"IT WAS A little case of nerves," Dunn said. "He had trouble warming up his trick and that bothered him. He tried to cover up when he ripped off the rings. It happened to a few guys."

The first-place position in still rings was awarded to the defending champion, Paul O'Neil of New Mexico, with a score of 9.80. O'Neil said he was thought the competition was difficult and the judges were fair.

"It's hard because these guys are the best and it was especially tough to wait because I had a step (on dismount). But I thought the judges were very fair in the scoring all the way through."

The highlight of the meet was saved for the last event, the high bar. Iowa's Jeff Dow scored a 9.90 in his crowd-pleasing routine, which earned him a standing ovation by the audience of 4,797.

Dow, who competed fourth, led the event until all-around champion Miguel Rubio (Houston Baptist) edged the Dow for the crown by five-hundredths of a point.

Dow, beating out the 1988 Nissen Award winner Tom Schlesinger, said he just let his routine flow.

"I just went out and let it happen," Dow said. "I didn't think about it but it feels great."

Marble, Armstrong, Jones share basketball MVP award

By Marc Bona
 The Daily Iowan

Three Michigan natives — Roy Marble, B.J. Armstrong and Bill Jones — were named co-winners of the Iowa basketball Most Valuable Player Award Friday night at the team's annual banquet in the Union.

Marble, a 6-foot-5 junior forward who hails from Flint, Mich., averaged 15.4 points per game for the Hawkeyes and was a second-team all-Big Ten selection. Armstrong scored 17.4 points per game and was a second-team all-conference pick, while Jones averaged 13 points and six rebounds per game.

Marble and Armstrong will be back for their final seasons next year.

Men's Basketball

Other awards given out at the banquet included the Coaches' Appreciation Award (Al Lorenzen), Most Dedicated Player Award (Armstrong), Most Improved Player Award (Les Jepsen) and Mr. Hustle Award (Jeff Moe).

JONES, MOE AND Kent Hill were chosen as honorary team captains.

More than 15 athletic, statistical, academic and team awards were also awarded.

Jim Zabel, a former Daily Iowan sports editor who is a broadcaster with WHO-TV in Des Moines, was the banquet's emcee. Zabel began the banquet by reading congratulatory notes from former Hawkeye Fred Brown, who played with the 1970 Iowa team that advanced to the Final Four, and Brad Lohaus, now with the Boston Celtics.

The seniors, in white tuxedos, sat at the head table along with underclassmen. Redshirted players sat in the audience. Behind the table was a banner that read, "Thanks for the Memories," and included a sketch of each senior player's and manager's (John Lockie) portrait.

EACH SENIOR WAS presented with a plaque and an NCAA watch and delivered a brief speech before the several hundred fans, alumni, family and members of the press corps who had gathered for the event. While all congratulated and thanked their family and the Iowa

Netters see different fates

Iowa skid grows to nine matches

By Hugh Donlan
The Daily Iowan

Susan Evans' right shoulder feels a lot like the Hawkeyes' losing streak. It hurts.

The Iowa women's tennis team dropped two Big Ten matches over the weekend, 7-2 to Northwestern Friday and 9-0 to Wisconsin Saturday. The squad, 1-6 in the Big Ten and 8-11 overall, has lost six in a row and nine of its last 10 matches.

"It has been hurting me all week," Evans, half of Iowa's No. 1 doubles team, said. "I couldn't serve or hit returns. That girl (Wisconsin's Chris Gilles) knew that I was hurting. She hit to me every time and I missed every shot."

The sophomore strained her right shoulder in practice earlier in the week and the problem recurred Saturday when she reached for an overhead return at a crucial moment in a match against Wisconsin's Gilles and Sioux City, Iowa, native, Elaine Demetroulis.

"IT WAS DISAPPOINTING because it was 3-2 (in the first set) when it happened. It has just been really tough," Evans said.

After the injury, the tables were turned on the Evans-Pennie Wohlford duo. The pair battled the Central Region's top-ranked doubles team but fell 6-2, 6-2.

The losing streak has the Iowa players frustrated, but Iowa Coach Micki Schillig said she knows what has her team in search of answers, and victories.

Women's Tennis

"The reason we lost is we have forgotten how to win the big points. We have forgotten how to close out a match," Schillig explained. "It has been a while since these girls have won some matches and they get tentative when they get up."

"They're frustrated because they know how close they are to these teams and yet we're looking at scores of 7-2 and 9-0 this weekend. It's a lot easier to explain losing a match 5-4 to other people, especially non-tennis people."

ONE PART OF the club's problem appears to be psychological. Second-place Northwestern and third-place Wisconsin are traditionally two of the conference's leaders and their winning reputations can be intimidating.

"I think what happened is all mental," Evans said. "We have to ignore who we're playing. They think they're so great that they couldn't possibly lose. I think we just need one win."

The game requires concentration combined with physical skill, and when tennis players think they can't win, they don't.

Catherine Wilson, who was Iowa's No. 4 singles and No. 1 doubles player but is now recovering from successful knee surgery, watched from courtside and said she feels much the way Evans does about the team's situation.

"The score doesn't show how well everybody played today," Wilson said.

Hawkeyes roll over Northwestern

By Anne Upson
The Daily Iowan

The Iowa men's tennis team boosted its record to 17-3 with a 6-3 win over Northwestern Sunday at the Klotz Courts.

The Hawkeyes are now 3-2 in the Big Ten and 8-1 while playing at home.

Northwestern Coach Paul Porricelli said Iowa was a strong team and the Hawkeyes earned the win over his squad.

"We played hard," Porricelli said, "but Iowa deserved to win. They were definitely a better team."

Porricelli added that his team had opportunities in the match to grab wins but the Hawkeyes were too powerful.

"We had chances to come back," Porricelli said. "No. 3 and No. 5 were two matches we could have won but didn't. In No. 1 and No. 4 we were outplayed. We lost in singles."

THE WILDCATS' weak spot in singles became an advantage for the Hawkeyes, who claimed four of six singles matches. Iowa Coach Steve Houghton said the singles were the highlight of the meet.

"It was an impressive win," Houghton said. "We had a particularly strong singles game."

According to Porricelli, Iowa's No. 1 player Claes Ramel worked hard for the victory over the Wildcats' Matt Ackman.

"The No. 1 win was a great match

for Claes," Porricelli said. "He really earned it."

After the 4-2 singles, Iowa enjoyed a 2-1 triumph in doubles. The only loss in the doubles was the team of Lars Nordmark and Dave Novak. Houghton said he thought his team could have played better in doubles.

"We didn't play as well as we could have," Houghton said. "We were off to win 2 of 3 doubles."

HOUGHTON ADDED that every one on the team contributed to the win in either doubles or singles.

"It was a good team effort," Houghton said of his Hawkeyes. "They are a good cohesive team. The other players are supportive."

Houghton also credited his two assistants — Rob Moellering and Mike Henrich — with helping the Iowa cause during the meets.

"They help as another set of eyes during the matches," Houghton said. "I can't watch all the matches going on. They have done a great job coaching the guys individually."

According to Houghton, Nordmark and Novak stood out against the Wildcats.

"Dave Novak in his match played really well," Houghton said. "It was a good win for him. Lars Nordmark has had several wins in a row. He has won all four matches in the Big Ten."

Iowa will take the Big Ten show on the road this weekend against Michigan and Michigan State.

Spartans overpower Hawks

By Hugh Donlan
The Daily Iowan

It takes more than just strong pitching and hitting to win softball games.

The Iowa softball team learned that defense is also the name of the game this weekend when it lost three of four games to the Michigan State Spartans. The squad fell to 2-6 in the Big Ten and 21-13 on the season.

Michigan State scored twice in the bottom of the seventh inning to sneak past Iowa, 6-5, in Sunday's nightcap in East Lansing, Mich.

"Diana Repp gave us two solid performances on the mound, but I was very disappointed in our defense," first-year Coach Gayle Blevins said. "We backed off some important plays, especially the ball that fell just behind second (base) in the second game. That should have been caught and we would have been out of the inning."

THE VICTORY completed a sweep by the Spartans after they won the opener 1-0 in a contest which lacked offensive sparkle for Iowa.

In the second game, the Hawkeyes took a 5-4 lead into the bottom of the seventh. With two outs and one runner on, the Spartans' Sally Green blooped a fly ball over second base to score the tying run.

Michigan State's Mary Bangard followed with a groundball single up the middle to bring Green home and clinch the victory.

Green also scored Michigan State's winning run in the opener as she led off the second inning with a single. Iowa catcher Traci Gilmore allowed a passed ball and Green moved to second. A fielder's choice allowed her to reach third before she scored on another passed ball.

THE HAWKEYES HAD the opportunity to tie the game in the seventh inning when Jeannette Painovich scored, but was called

Bruins look to overcome Montreal

United Press International

NEW YORK — The Boston Bruins, losers of 18 straight playoff series against the Montreal Canadiens, get another chance to snap what is presently a 45-year drought.

The Bruins play the Canadiens today in second-round Adams Division playoff action at the Montreal Forum. The last time Boston knocked Montreal out of the playoffs was in 1943.

In second-round Patrick Division play, the New Jersey Devils begin their best-of-seven series today at the Washington Capitals.

The remaining playoff series begin Tuesday, when the St. Louis Blues play the Detroit Red Wings in the Norris Division final and the Edmonton Oilers face the Calgary Flames for the Smythe Division crown.

ALTHOUGH MONTREAL finished the regular season nine points better than second-place Boston (103-94), Canadiens Coach Jean Beliveau said the teams are evenly matched.

"They're both big, physical teams with good balance," Perron said. "They have a clutch scorer in Cam Neely. We have Stephane Richer. The goaltending on both teams is very good. They have Raymond Bourque on defense. We counter with Chris Chelios. And both teams have big wingers. It's very equal."

Montreal forward Claude Lemieux known for his quick temper, said the series could be determined by penalties.

"The most disciplined team will win the series," Lemieux said. "We also have to pressure Bourque to make sure he can't hang on to the puck too long. He's dangerous when he has control."

IN WASHINGTON, the Capitals try to continue the quality of play that enabled them to become only the fifth team in NHL history to overcome a 3-1 deficit in games when they defeated the Philadelphia Flyers 5-4 in overtime Saturday night to advance to the second round.

"I think we've proved a lot," said Capitals Coach Bryan Murray, whose job may have been saved with his team's comeback. "But you've got to continue to win. I don't think we can take for granted that we've achieved what we've wanted to achieve because, absolutely, that has not happened."

Washington's first-round victory helped erase the memories of the Capitals' dismal playoff history. Washington previously had won just two of seven playoff series and last season squandered a 3-1 series lead to the Islanders, including a four-overtime Capitals loss in Game 7.

The Capitals face a New Jersey team that is making its first playoff appearance. The Devils will be well rested, having finished their series against the New York Islanders in six games Thursday.

STUDENT FOOTBALL TICKET SALES TO BEGIN APRIL 18

Students may order their 1988 Football Season Tickets beginning April 18 at the Athletic Ticket Office in Carver Hawkeye Arena. The cost of the tickets are $42.00 per student and $96.00 per student guest ticket. Student season tickets are good for all six home games of the 1988 football season. Student guest tickets are available on a limited basis; all students ordering these tickets may not be accommodated, but will receive a refund for their order at fall pickup. Priority buying is from April 18 thru May 13, and this is the only time that guest tickets may be ordered. Athletic Ticket Office hours are 9 a.m. - 4 p.m., Monday thru Friday. Students may pick up their tickets beginning September 7. Please read the student ticket policy before placing your order.

STUDENT FOOTBALL POLICY - 1988

1. A student may purchase one season ticket at the student price of $42.00. A guest ticket may be ordered at the public price of $96.00. A limited number of guest tickets will be available; therefore, all students ordering these may not receive them. Guest tickets are only valid when entering the stadium with another student and are not replaceable if lost or stolen. The guest ticket will not be available after May 13, the deadline for student priority. Office hours are 9:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. Monday through Friday.
2. Students will receive priority based on the number of consecutive years they have applied for or purchased football tickets at The University of Iowa. There will be no loss in priority for off-campus programs or a bona fide illness. An individual who misses two or more consecutive seasons for reasons other than the above will lose all priority.
3. In order for a student to receive their priority for football he/she must order sometime during the period of April 18 to May 13, 1988. These orders will be filled according to priority established. Any order placed after May 13 will be filled as if the order was a zero priority. Students ordering after the priority period will also accrue a year of buying credit toward their priority for purchase of tickets in following years.
4. Individuals may order season tickets for a group no larger than eight. If all group members cannot be present when the order is placed, the members who are not present must provide either their personal check with current and summer address thereon or cash and their ID number to the person placing the order. One student may not write a personal check in payment for another student's tickets.
5. The lowest priority within a group will determine the location of the entire block of tickets for that group. That is, all students within a group will carry the lowest priority of any member in that group. If certain priorities are denied student or guest tickets, anyone with higher priority requesting seating with this group will also be denied tickets.
6. Student season tickets will continue on sale on a non-priority basis after May 13 and will remain on sale through Tuesday, August 31. Tickets may be sold after September 7 if available. Please contact the Athletic Ticket Office for further information.
7. Each student must pick up their own ticket in the fall. The student must present their own student ID with current registration (Fall 1988) sticker and picture ID at the time of pickup. Student pickup will begin Wednesday, September 7.
8. Students may cancel their football season ticket order and receive a full refund up until the Friday before the first home game. After that date, refunds will be issued only for the portion of games remaining to be played. No cancellations or refund requests will be honored after the student ticket has been picked up and signed for. All requests for refunds must be made in writing to the Athletic Ticket Office. Please provide your full name, ID number and an address for the mailing of the refund check. ALL REFUNDS ARE NOT AUTOMATICALLY PROCESSED AND MAILED.
9. A student ticket, to be valid, must be accompanied by a University of Iowa ID with current registration (Fall 1988) sticker and a picture ID. A student ticket may be used by the original purchaser or by any other University of Iowa student, but the original purchaser will be held liable for any violations of the student ticket policy. The penalty for violation of the University policy involving the ID and ticket will be the loss of the use of the ticket for two games. If a non-student is found using a student's ticket, that student forfeits all future student ticket privileges.
10. Disciplinary action will be taken as a result of disorderly conduct on the part of a student ticket holder. Discretionary measures will be left up to the investigation of the Dean of Students. This may result in the loss of the student's ticket for the remaining season or possibly the remaining enrollment period of said student at The University of Iowa.
11. Everyone, regardless of age, is required to have a valid ticket for admittance to all University of Iowa football games. This includes infants in arms.
12. DUPLICATE TICKETS CANNOT BE ISSUED FOR LOST OR STOLEN STUDENT TICKETS.

Kollsmith leads linksters to 7th-place finish at Ohio State

By Hugh Donlan
The Daily Iowan

If there is such a thing as the home-course advantage, the Ohio State golf team has it.

The Buckeyes captured the 54-hole Kepler Invitational this past weekend for the 16th time in the last 20 years with a 913 team total in Columbus, Ohio.

Ohio State's Peter Hammar captured medalist honors with his three-round score of 221.

Iowa finished seventh in the 23-team field with a 961, the fourth-lowest total of the nine Big Ten teams entered in the event. Illinois finished fourth overall with a 953, and Northwestern tallied 954 for fifth.

SUNDAY'S EARLY morning rounds were played under spring-like temperatures and a blue sky, but the golfers had to face heavy winds in the afternoon.

Men's Golf

Three-year letter winner Bob Kollsmith led the Hawkeyes with a three-way tie for 24th place. The senior carded Iowa's lowest total with 239 on rounds of 78-80-81.

Freshman Brad Klapprott was the next lowest Hawkeye, carding a 242 total with scores of 86-78-78. The Keokuk, Iowa, native finished in a seven-way tie for 37th place.

Junior Dave Holmes carded rounds of 85-78-80 for a 243 total. Steve Reilly, a senior from Dubuque, shot a 245 total with rounds of 78-86-81. Sophomore Jeff Schmid was the final Iowa player, shooting rounds of 83-83-79 for a 245 total.

Brooke fires a 230 as Iowa claims 5th at Gulf Shores

By G. Hammond-Kunke
The Daily Iowan

Iowa finished fifth of 14 teams at the USA Gulf Shores Invitational in Gulf Shores, Ala., over the weekend.

Minnesota won the tournament, held at the Gulf Shore Country Club, with a team score of 911. Louisiana State was second at 920.

After 36 holes, Iowa was in third place. But the Hawkeyes' final round of 320 was bettered by Lamar (310) and Alabama-Birmingham (317).

Alabama-Birmingham finished third at 948 with Lamar fourth at 949. Iowa scored a 950.

The Hawkeyes were led by sophomore Kelley Brooke's fifth-place finish. Brooke fired an opening round 74 Friday, followed by a 77 Saturday and a 79 Sunday for a 54-hole score of 230.

"KELLEY WAS IN a position to

make a move after the first round," Iowa Coach Diane Thomason said. "She was only one stroke out of the lead, then she drops to seventh place after two rounds but came back to finish fifth."

Iowa's other scorers included Jeanne Gibson (76-80-80—236), Amy Butzer (81-80-82—243), Stacey Arnold (84-78-84—246) and Kris Heatherly (84-83-79—246).

LSU's Cissy Weeks took medalist honors with a 219 total.

"I'm a little disappointed because we should have finished third," Thomason said, "but it was a good field and I'm happy. "We played good the first two days but we left the door open and they came in."

Hawkeye track teams record solid showings over weekend

Hawks rebound to top Northern Iowa

By Brent Woods
The Daily Iowan

Iowa high jumper K.P. Lansing had a bad meet two weekends ago at UCLA, and so did most of his teammates.

Saturday, Lansing leaped 7 feet, 1 inch — a personal record — and the Hawkeyes rebounded as well, defeating Northern Iowa 78½-63½ at Cretzmeier Track.

"I had a real terrible meet at UCLA, and that was kind of representative of the team," Lansing said. "I went out there with high expectations, so it was really nice to bounce back and do well."

"It was a nice way to spend a Saturday afternoon." Augustana and Wisconsin-LaCrosse also participated in the meet but were not scored.

Hassard's squad sets personal bests

By Bryce Miller
The Daily Iowan

Iowa women's track Coach Jerry Hassard sent his squad into Drake Stadium this past weekend with aspirations of a strong showing — and he got it as nine personal records were established at the Drake Invitational.

Lynn McMillan turned in a personal best in the high jump with a leap of 5 feet, 9½ inches to take the event. Her effort eclipsed her previous best by over an inch and was enough to outdistance defending Big Ten champion Tracee Wolf of Wisconsin.

The mark also earned McMillan qualifying credentials for the upcoming Drake Relays April 29-30. The jump broke a four-year rut since high school in

Men's Track

THE HAWKEYES got the win by dominating the speed and jumping events, fighting brisk spring winds all afternoon.

"For us to do as well as we did with the wind and being without a few people — I thought it was a great day," Iowa Coach Ted Wheeler said. "Paul Steele looked really good in his races, and K.P. going 7-1 is great."

The Panthers got things going their way in the first event, claiming the 400-meter relay as the Hawkeyes took second. Steele made a strong bid in his anchor leg but couldn't close the gap.

Iowa's David Brown then turned in a fifth-place showing in the steeplechase, with Northern Iowa's John Ruth — a former Iowa City High star — taking third.

THE SHOT PUT and discus, events dominated by Wisconsin-LaCrosse, didn't have much effect on the team scoring between the two Iowa schools, but Lansing's win in the high jump got things rolling for the Hawkeyes.

Iowa's Rod Chambers claimed the 1,500 meters in 3 minutes, 55.7 seconds before the Panthers swept the top two places in the 400 meters to keep things close.

The Hawkeyes' Paul Jones won the long jump at 24-6¼; D'Juan Strozier and Louis English took first and second, respectively, in the 800 meters in 1:51.2 and 1:54.4; Kelly Scott won the pole vault at 15-6 with Rich Palumbo taking second at 15-6; Gordon Finch won the triple jump at 47-7 and Steele claimed the intermediate hurdles in 51.39 to put the meet away.

The Iowa 1,600-meter relay team of Strozier, St. Clair Blackman, Steele and English then iced the win by taking the event in 3:13.89.

James Armstrong, Curtis Chung and Chuck Moye are still out with injuries, and Wheeler said he isn't going to rush them back.

"Right now, we're a good team," Wheeler said. "With them back, I think this can be a great team. But we don't want to rush them. They may not be back next weekend, but we hope to have them back for the Drake Relays."

Iowa will host Minnesota Saturday and compete at Drake April 29-30.

Women's Track

which the junior from Springfield, Ill., unable to better the 5-8 mark.

"I knew the jump was good when I took off," she said. "I've been so close to clearing that height for so many years. I was so thrilled when I looked up and saw the bar still standing."

MANY OF THE Hawkeyes' personal records came in the distance events.

In the 1,500-meter run, Tami Hoskins clocked her best-ever time of 4:39.22 to capture the event, while teammate Jennifer Moore finished six spots behind Hoskins in 4:59.95. That time was also a personal record for Moore.

The 3,000- and 5,000-meter runs also produced career bests.

Jeanne Kruckeberg's 9:39.85 time in the 3,000 meters took top honors and shaved over seven seconds off her previous-best time.

Iowa's Tricia Kiraly finished fourth in that event. Renee Doyle took second in the 5,000 meters with a time of 16:39.46. The time, another Iowa personal best, was a vast improvement for the junior who ran about 40 seconds slower at the Iowa Open. Hassard said he felt this was an inspiring effort.

"I'M VERY ENCOURAGED with the performance of Renee Doyle," Hassard said. "That time is not far from national qualification (16:25.00)."

Wendy Bare's third-place finish in the 5,000-meter run was also a personal mark.

A career best was also registered by Kathy Snow in the discus. Her throw of 144-9 was good enough for fourth in what Hassard called "a very talented field."

"Snow gave us a very impressive showing in the discus," he said. "That could have been one of the most competitive events at the entire meet."

The remaining personal records were established by Hawkeyes in relay events during individual split times.

Hassard said he was pleased with his team's improvement.

"I don't remember a meet where we've seen as many athletes come up with personal bests," he said. "I think our effort was nothing short of outstanding."

Iowa will now prepare for the Kansas Relays, which will be held this weekend in Lawrence, Kan.

Norman gets win for ill boy

By De'Ann Weimer
United Press International

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. — Greg Norman, inspired by the presence of a 17-year-old leukemia victim who idolizes him, shot five birdies for a 5-under par 66 Sunday to win the MCI $700,000 Heritage Classic and claim his first PGA tournament victory since 1986.

Jamie Hutton of Madison, Wis., was sent to the tournament by Thursday's Child, a foundation in his hometown that tries to meet the wishes of sick children.

"I just wanted to fulfill a wish for Jamie and I think we've done more than that," said Norman, who came from four strokes back to win his first PGA title in two years. "I'm very excited about winning here, but I'm more excited for Jamie."

Norman, an Australian, beat David Frost and Gil Morgan by a stroke with a four-round total of 13-under 271.

"That's the reason he's great," Hutton said. "Everyone has heroes as a kid. Some people like movie stars — I like Mr. Norman."

DAVID FROST, a South African, missed a 25-foot birdie putt on the final green that would have sent the tournament into sudden death. His putt spun three inches past the cup, giving Norman first place and $126,000 in prize money.

Frost, who canned a 50-foot putt on the 18th green Saturday, vowed to improve his putting game.

"That's just the way it goes," he said of the missed putt. "It boils down to the end. You've got to make the putts going down the stretch and I haven't made them."

Frost held on at 12 under with a par on 18 to tie for second with Gil Morgan, who birdied the 18th hole. It was Frost's sixth second-place finish since he joined the PGA tour in 1985.

Fred Couples, who led by one stroke going into Sunday's final round, floundered on the final nine holes to fall to fourth place with a 274.

Ethiopian, Irishman expected to be frontrunners in Boston

By Frederick Waterman
United Press International

BOSTON — An Ethiopian in Rotterdam and an Irishman from Rhode Island have combined to make a world's record or even a simple victory more elusive in Monday's Boston Marathon.

Belayneh Dinsamo set a world standard Sunday at the marathon in the Netherlands, his 2:06:50 time knocking 22 seconds off the old mark set in 1985 in the same race by Carlos Lopes. Dinsamo and the rest of the Ethiopian contingent were entered in Boston but their national governing body sent them to Rotterdam instead.

John Treacy, an Irishman who lives in nearby Warwick, R.I., Saturday announced his intention of running in the already competitive Boston race. Treacy, silver medalist at the 1984 Olympics, is in peak form and immediately becomes one of the favorites.

"ONE TREACY MAKES up for four Ethiopians," said David D'Alessandro of John Hancock, primary sponsor of the Boston Marathon.

Treacy finished 14th in last year's race, struggling in the final 5 miles. Strong workouts and an impressive showing at the Ekiden race helped his decision. A high finish at Boston would also assure Treacy a spot on Ireland's Olympic team.

Kenya and Tanzania are now producing many world-class marathoners and because both countries are using Boston as their Olympic Trials, their best runners are here. An African never has won on the Hopkinton-to-Boston route.

The young Africans, who disregard pace and time splits, provide one unknown element. The other uncertainty is the constant one — weather.

Race could turn out to be Tanzania vs. Kenya dual

By Marlene Cimons
Los Angeles Times

BOSTON — They've been calling this year's Boston Marathon a dual between Tanzania and Kenya, because both countries have sent their finest athletes — among the fastest in the world — but the field lining up in Hopkinton, Mass., is even better than that.

It also includes top runners from Italy, Great Britain, Mexico and Japan, not to mention Rosa Mota, of Portugal, the third-fastest female marathoner in history.

With Americans skipping Boston in favor of the upcoming U.S. Olympic marathon trials, the field here is composed mostly of foreigners, many seeking to make their own country's Olympic teams.

They include: Juma Ikangaa, Zakariah Barie, Sulieman Nyambui and Gidamis Shahanga of Tanzania; Joseph Nzau, Sam Ngatia, Ibrahim Hussein and Gabriel Kamau of Kenya; Gianni Poli, Orlando Pizzolato and Gelindo Bordin of Italy; Geoff Smith and Steve Jones of Great Britain; Rodolfo Gomez and Jose Gomez of Mexico; and Hidki Kita and Tomoyuki Tamiguchi of Japan.

In the women's division, Mota, last year's Boston champion, is expected to win if she runs a problem-free race.

There is a total of $237,500 in prize money, to the top 15. It includes $45,000 and a car worth $35,000 for the first-place winner in both the men's and women's divisions. There is a $25,000 bonus for a course record and a $50,000 bonus for a world record.

Runners would be helped by the forecast cloudy skies and 55-degree temperature. Heat is an enemy in a long-distance race. For most of the last week, brisk winds have swept through Boston and that could continue through Monday.

"THE COURSE IS tough enough without running into a head wind for 26 miles," said 1986 champion Rob de Castella, who is not running this year. "The wind really makes a difference here. If there is a tail wind, the runners are going to fly. Last year it was horrible."

The runners are going due east for most of the 26-mile, 385-yard course. Defending women's champion Rosa Mota is 5-foot-1 and 99 pounds. Not being physically strong, her greatest advantage is her lightness.

"If there is a head wind, I get tired," said Mota, when asked what may be the greatest obstacle to a second crown.

Many of the runners will be wearing a small plaid ribbon in memory of Jock Semple, a long-time organizer of the race. Semple died in March at age 84.

The Boston Athletic Association, the Boston Bruins and the owners of Boston Garden have joined to create a trust in Semple's name to promote charitable causes.

The awards ceremony was concluded by a brief highlight video presentation which featured the passes of Armstrong, the slams of Marble and the smiles of Ed Horton, as well as several key Iowa plays from this past season.

• The Hawkeyes were 24 of 105 for a .229 batting average. Ten of those hits came in the second game Saturday.

• Luis Ramirez and Mike Bradley shared the duties batting in the No. 1 slot. The duo combined for a 1 for 12 performance. The lone hit came on a double by Bradley that Illinois right fielder Mike Mershon lost in the Sunday afternoon sun. However, they drew three walks.

• Iowa catchers Bryan Luedtke and Brian Butz combined to hit 0 for 12.

• Seven Iowa batters during the series went down on strikes without swinging at the third strike.

"We just aren't hitting," Banks said. "I don't know what we're going to do."

But for Illinois Coach Augie Garrido, this weekend was exactly what his team needed.

Garrido, who left a thriving program at California State-Fullerton where he won two national titles in 15 years, got the pitching and the hitting necessary to pound and embarrass the Hawkeyes.

"We needed to do something to turn it around after having a 1-7 string," he said. "The pitching got good support from the infield, particularly."

Pitching also became a sore spot for Iowa. Allen Rath gave up two homers in Sunday's first game, both thanks to a heavy wind blowing out to right field.

MARK BOLAND allowed seven earned runs on 10 hits in losing the second game Sunday. Banks called Boland's game "Bobo's worst outing since he came to Iowa."

Cal Eldred, however, was a bright spot in pitching a six-hitter and taking the first loss of the series on Saturday.

Banks linked the poor pitching to the lackluster hitting, noting that Iowa hurlers are beginning to feel like they have to pitch almost perfectly.

"Pitching would be better if they felt we could score some runs," Banks said. "It's a different game if you get some hits and score some runs."

On Sunday, Iowa's hitting was rare for Rath, whose record dropped to 4-1 for the season.

Iowa's first score came in the fourth inning on back-to-back hits. Shortstop Tim Costo doubled with one out and second baseman Marty Brauch followed with a single to center. Bill Heinz rapped a leadoff homer in sixth for the other Hawkeye score.

IN SUNDAY'S nightcap, Illinois rapped Boland and the Hawkeyes for six runs in the third inning while sending 11 batters to the plate.

Iowa scored twice in the second and the sixth. A Jason Jones two-run homer and a Chris Hatcher two-run homer, his 11th blast of the season, accounted for the scoring punch.

On Saturday, John Ericks threw a two-hitter in the first game for the Illini to run his record to 7-0. Ericks walked home a run for his lone blemish.

In the second game, the Hawkeyes had a hit in every inning and scored four runs total. Costo and Bradley provided the RBI hits in the sixth inning. Jeff Schafer added a seventh-inning RBI single.

The Hawkeyes, who have lost five straight in the Big Ten, will head to Cedar Falls Tuesday for another matchup with Northern Iowa.

Breland and Starling draw

By Dave Raffo
United Press International

LAS VEGAS, Nev. — The winner of the Marlon Starling-Mark Breland bout was supposed to be headed for big paydays in the near future and the loser for retirement.

But there was no winner and loser, although Starling certainly came out better. The 12-round draw Saturday night enabled him to retain the World Boxing Association welterweight title he won by knocking out Breland last Aug. 22.

However, Starling is not assured of future riches. The indecisive outcome did not help his marketability, and may hurt his chances of meeting World Boxing Council champion Lloyd Honeyghan.

And Breland, 24, said he will keep fighting.

"I'm happy to have the title but I wanted it my way," said Starling, who seemed to alienate the judges by clowning. "I don't see Mark winning too many rounds, maybe three out of 12. Every time I hit him his legs did a dance."

"I'LL TAKE IT (the draw), I'm still wearing the belt."

Starling, of Hartford, Conn., was in control early but stopped attacking after the seventh round. He hurt Breland three times with left hooks in the fight and once with a big right to the head

Braves end 10-game skid with victory over Dodgers

United Press International

LOS ANGELES — Zane Smith tossed a four-hitter and Damaso Garcia stroked a two-run homer to carry the Atlanta Braves to their first win of the season, a 3-1 decision over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

The Braves had set a modern National League mark Saturday with 10 straight losses to start the year. Six of those defeats came at the hands of the Dodgers.

Smith, 1-2, gave up four singles while striking out five and walking one in hurling Atlanta's first complete game of 1988.

New York Yankee manager Billy Martin argues with home plate umpire Drew Coble about pitcher John Candelaria's ejection during the fifth inning of Sunday's game in Milwaukee against the Brewers. Candelaria hit Milwaukee catcher Bill Schroeder with a pitch.

Indians 4, Orioles 1
BALTIMORE — Mel Hall collected two doubles and a single, scored two runs and batted in the game-winning run to spark the Cleveland Indians to a 4-1 victory over Baltimore that extended the Orioles' losing streak to 12 games.

The Orioles crept within one loss of tying the major league record for most defeats at a season's start. The record of 0-13 is shared by the 1904 Washington Senators and the 1920 Detroit Tigers.

Red Sox 15, Rangers 2
BOSTON — Mike Greenwell went 3 for 5 with a three-run homer and six RBIs to pace a 20-hit Boston attack that propelled the Red Sox to a 15-2 trouncing of the Texas Rangers.

Bruce Hurst, 2-0, allowed four hits, walked three and struck out eight in posting his first complete game of the season.

Rick Cerone collected four hits in his first start with the Red Sox and Jim Rice and Marty Barrett each collected three hits. Boston, which entered the game scoreless in its previous 18 innings against Texas pitching, scored four runs in the first inning and six in the second.

Blue Jays 2, Twins 0
TORONTO — Mike Flanagan shut out the Minnesota Twins on five hits over seven innings and the Toronto Blue Jays defeated the Minnesota Twins 2-0.

Tom Henke relieved Flanagan in the eighth and loaded the bases before striking out Kirby Puckett and Gary Gaetti for his second save of the season.

Toronto took a 1-0 lead in the third on a two-out single by Tony Fernandez that scored Kelly Gruber from third. Gruber double to left with one out and went to third on Manny Lee's grounder to first.

Toronto made it 2-0 in the seventh on a sacrifice fly by Gruber, scoring Fred McGriff from third.

Tigers 8, Royals 6
DETROIT — Chet Lemon singled home two runs in the second and set up two more with a fourth-inning sacrifice while Jeff Robinson allowed four hits in 6 1/2 innings to lead the Detroit Tigers to an 8-6 victory over the Kansas City Royals.

Robinson, 1-1, gave up three home runs, including the 22nd ball ever hit fair out of Tiger Stadium — a two-out solo blast over the right field roof by George Brett in the fourth.
