U.S. fires on Iranian forces in Gulf region

By James Gerstenzang
Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON—U.S. warships and aircraft heavily damaged at least five Iranian Navy vessels Monday as a major confrontation erupted in the Persian Gulf in the wake of the United States' early-morning strike against two Iranian oil platforms, the Reagan administration said.

U.S. and Iranian forces fired on each other in the broadest and most direct conflict yet, suddenly escalating what for months had been a war of nerves in the volatile waterway.

After ordering the U.S. naval units to destroy the oil platforms in the southern gulf, in what he described as a "measured response" to the renewed Iranian mining of the gulf that crippled a U.S. frigate last week, President Ronald Reagan declared:

"We've taken this action to make certain the Iranians have no illusions about the cost of irresponsible behavior. We aim to deter further Iranian aggression, not provoke it."

"THEY MUST know that we will protect our ships; and if they threaten us, they'll pay a price," he said.

No American fatalities or injuries were reported, but Secretary of Defense Frank Carlucci said Monday afternoon that a Cobra attack helicopter, carrying two crewmen, was late returning to a Navy cruiser and that a search was launched. There was no U.S. report of Iranian casualties, but crewmen were seen abandoning the oil platforms just before the facilities were destroyed.

The gulf clashes — the most serious fighting between the United States and Iran since the stepped-up deployment of U.S. units began nine months ago to protect Kuwaiti oil tankers threatened in the Iran-Iraq war — left an Iranian frigate crippled and ablaze, another frigate heavily damaged and under tow and a patrol boat sunk.

WASHINGTON — President Ronald Reagan authorized military action in the Persian Gulf because he believed the United States would be confronted with a series of escalating Iranian provocations if he declined to act, senior administration officials said Monday.

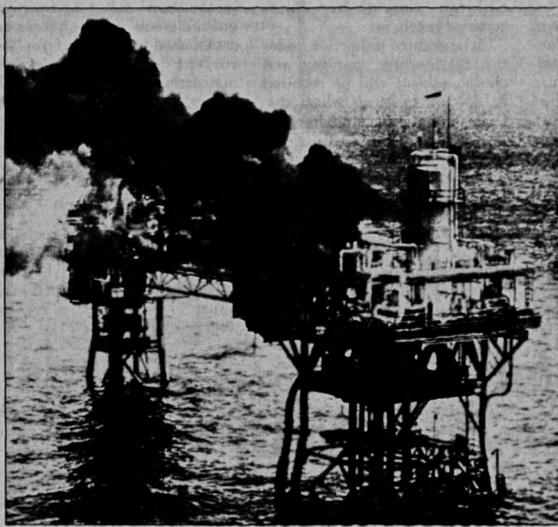

"The president was convinced he had no choice except to strike back once we had proof positive that our ship (the USS Samuel B. Roberts) had been hit by an Iranian mine," an official said. "The alternative would have been more mines, and more trouble."

Reagan, who declined to comment Monday morning while the operation was still going on, broke his silence in an afternoon speech when he told a group of visiting contractors, "We've taken this action to make certain the Iranians have no illusions about the cost of irresponsible behavior. We aim to deter further Iranian aggression, not provoke it. They must know that if they threaten us, they'll pay a price."

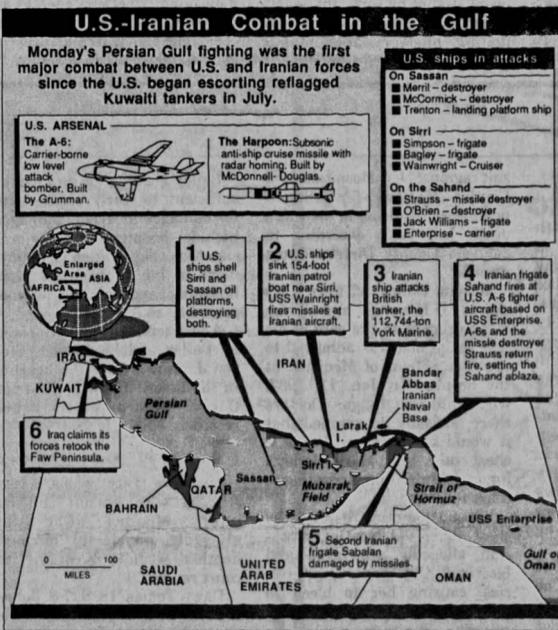

THE PRESIDENT was sleeping when the operation was actually carried out. A senior official said he was informed of the military action early Monday morning by his national security adviser, Lt. Gen. Colin Powell.

Officials who reconstructed the events leading up to approval of the attack on the Iranian oil platforms said that Reagan agreed in principle to retaliatory action at a meeting with his top aides on Friday, leaving it to his military advisers to draw up a target list. The president then went to Camp David for the weekend.

While Reagan was out of town, Adm. William Crowe Jr., chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and his deputies sent secret orders out over military teletypes to theater commanders. The thrust of this rapid-fire series of messages, sources said, was to put U.S. naval forces at a higher state of alert because the president could decide at any moment to exercise one of several options for military retaliation.

THE OPTIONS, officials said, ranged from a major strike against the Iranian naval base at Bandar Abbas to blowing up an oil platform, as was done last fall after Iran fired a Silkworm missile at a Kuwaiti tanker flying the American flag.

By Saturday, the Joint Chiefs had focused on striking three oil platforms, two of them much larger than the one hit last fall. The platforms fit the tit-for-tat doctrine because Iran had militarized them, using them for surveillance and gun mounts. Also, shelling the platforms avoided endangering Iranian civilians or risking the downing and capture of U.S. airmen.

On Sunday Reagan returned to the White House from Camp David. At 7:30 p.m. CST in the White House

UI presidential candidate Cahn visits campus

By Cathy Jackson
The Daily Iowan

The third UI presidential candidate to visit the UI campus this month arrived Monday for two days of meetings with UI students, faculty, staff and administrators.

Steven M. Cahn, provost and vice president for academic affairs at the City University of New York Graduate School and University Center, is one of five prospective replacements for former UI President James O. Freedman.

Freedman, who announced his resignation April 11, 1987, is now president of Dartmouth College in Hanover, N.H.

Cahn, 46, received his doctorate in philosophy from Columbia University in 1966. After a series of faculty appointments at colleges and universities including Vassar College, New York University and the University of Vermont, Cahn joined the faculty at the City University of New York Graduate School and University Center in 1983 as philosophy professor and Dean of Graduate Studies.

IN 1984, HE was appointed provost and vice president for academic affairs, overseeing the activities and budgets of 31 doctoral and seven masters programs, a university-wide baccalaureate program, 15 research centers, the library and the computer facility.

Cahn works with about 1,500 faculty members and approximately 3,000 doctoral students enrolled in the Graduate School and University Center.

Along with serving as an administrator, Cahn teaches at least one philosophy course a year, and in 1986 published his fifth book, Saints and Scamps: Ethics in Academia.

Steven N. Cahn

"He learns from people and they learn from him," Cahn's Executive Assistant Marilyn Marzolf said. "He really believes in excellence in graduate education. He wants the best faculty, the best students."

Although Marzolf said Cahn has little contact with students, she stressed his involvement with student concerns.

"He'd be a marvelous president, but I would hate to see him go," she said.

CAHN SAID his most recent book, Saints and Scamps: Ethics in Academia, best describes his current views on education.

"My views on all the heated issues of higher education are included in that book," he said. "That book talks about the importance of faculty taking responsibility for the quality of education. I think it's important for the faculty to be the education leaders at an institution."

Regents will consider new computing fees

By Jean Thilmann
The Daily Iowan

The state Board of Regents will determine Wednesday whether to establish mandatory computing fees for UI students in the College of Business Administration and the College of Law beginning next fall.

The proposed College of Business Administration fee is $35 per semester for students with 12 or more credit hours and is expected to generate $125,000 in annual revenue. The proposed College of Law fee is $25 per semester for all law students and is expected to generate $34,000 in annual revenue.

Regent and UI law student Jackie Van Eckerens said computer training is necessary for business and law students to be competitive in the job market.

"If we want to graduate people who are marketable in their fields we have to have a competitive computer system," Van Eckerens said. "The money can't come from tuition increases. If we want funding for computers it must come through extra fees."

ACCORDING TO regent reports prepared by the UI, funds generated by computer fees would be used "to support the continued expansion and enhancement of computing resources directly related to instructional programs."

"It's only fair that students who are affected pay the extra fees," Van Eckerens said.

UI Associate Vice President for Academic Affairs Kenneth Moll said the proposal is modeled after an existing mandatory $100-per-semester computer fee approved for UI engineering students, which was implemented during the 1986 school year.

He said there was extensive consultation with the appropriate student groups.

"Polls were conducted among business students and they responded with mixed feelings," Moll said. According to regents documents, informational meetings were also held for members of the UI Collegiate Associations Council, student senate, graduate student senate and other interested students.

RESULTS OF the business student poll indicated 47 percent of the 115 students polled prefer no computer fee.

UI Collegiate Associations Council President Mike Reck said the CAC is against the proposed fee because students would be paying for a part-time and a full-time staff person to work in the computer lab.

Liberal Arts may get stricter

Foreign language standards may rise for non-native students

By Paula Roesler
The Daily Iowan

Non-native speaking applicants to the UI College of Liberal Arts will face stricter admission standards if a recommendation by the UI administration is adopted by the state Board of Regents.

At the regents meeting Wednesday at the Union, UI administrators will propose the Test of English as a Foreign Language (TOEFL) minimum score be raised from the current 480 to 530, bringing the minimum scores in line with those of the UI College of Engineering, Iowa State University and the University of Northern Iowa.

"It seemed to make sense to have the two colleges that admit freshmen have the same TOEFL score requirements," UI College of Liberal Arts Dean James Lindberg said.

The proposal is a move to ensure that students with minimal English language capabilities obtain better skills before enrolling in the college, he said.

STUDIES CONDUCTED by the UI Admissions Office indicate international student scores on TOEFL tend to correlate with their performance as college students, according to a memorandum prepared for Wednesday's regents meeting.

"TOEFL scores at the low end of the current range (480-530) are more likely to have low grade-point averages and to experience academic problems with the undergraduate curriculum than those above this range," the memorandum states.

But UI Foreign Student Admissions Assistant Director Virginia Gross Monday evening said she could not comment on the studies at this time.

UI sophomore engineering student Khalid Mahmood Siddiqi, who scored 657 on the TOEFL, said making the language standards stricter is a good idea, but he said the TOEFLs may not be an accurate indicator of potential college performance.

"When I came here, I met a lot of people who had a hard time speaking English," Siddiqi, who is from India, said. "I know some people who do not speak very well, but they do so well in math" that they pass anyway.

UI Mobile Dental Unit benefits the elderly

By Jean Thilmann
The Daily Iowan

For the next three weeks, the UI College of Dentistry's Geriatric Mobile Dental Unit will be parked in front of the Beverly Manor Convalescent Center, 605 Greenwood Dr. The three fourth-year dental students who operate the mobile unit will spend time at the nursing home giving elderly patients dental care that might not otherwise be available to them, while gaining experience themselves.

"We developed the unit seven years ago for a twofold reason,"

Howard Cowen, clinical instructor and director of the unit, said. "It provides care for the elderly who weren't receiving dental care and gives the senior dental students experience."

The mobile unit, which has a monthly rotating staff, visits 26 nursing homes and six county care facilities within a 60-mile radius of Iowa City. The unit spends one month at each institution providing any dental care necessary for the residents, Cowen said.

"Students usually see adult patients in the normal aging process and under the normal medical conditions," Cowen said. "The experience in nursing homes allows students to see a much more disabled group of people."

HE ADDED many patients have Alzheimer's disease or other physical or mental ailments and cannot be moved. The mobile unit contains equipment that can be set up inside the home so patients don't become disoriented.

"Working with the mobile unit is a big challenge because we're working with equipment we've brought, not the standard dental equipment," UI dental student Millard Roth said. "It's hard to work on people who are ill and can't walk."

Sometimes we have to do dentistry on people in wheelchairs."

Roth said at first he was surprised the unit had such thorough equipment.

"We keep a trailer outside where we have a lab, an X-ray facility and a chair, but we also bring chairs into the nursing home, which amazed me," Roth said.

At each convalescent home, patients are screened for oral cancer and receive an examination. If treatment is needed, recommendations are made and the party legally or financially responsible for each patient is contacted, Cowen said.

elderly Inside

HE SAID the program solicits funds from United Way for those patients who have no financial means available, so no one goes without dental care.

"Patients in nursing homes tend not to get good dental care," Cowen said. "They think they're too old to have anything done, or that if it doesn't hurt there's nothing wrong."

Roth agreed the Geriatric Mobile Dental Unit provides a necessary service. He said many patients he sees are too ill to brush their own teeth.

"Last week I examined a woman

Program offers grant money

A grant program that offers up to $5,000 for research projects in history is now accepting applications.

The State Historical Society of Iowa and the American Association for State and Local History invite museums, libraries, colleges, and historical organizations to apply. The program was created to encourage new insights into state and local history through original research in the humanities or social sciences.

The deadline to submit a research proposal is June 1. Proposals will be screened by a state committee, then sent to a national panel. Applicants will be notified by July 15 of the state committee's decision. Those chosen for national review will be told of the final results by Aug. 30.

Thirty-three states are taking part in the competitive grant program, which is also supported by the National Endowment for the Humanities.

For more information about the Grants-in-Aid Program for Research in State and Local History, write to Patricia Comegys, 600 E. Locust St., Des Moines.

Also, in a story headlined "Iowa City TV store files suit against Fry's wife" (DI, April 14), it was incorrectly reported that a new satellite dish was purchased. Actually, Fry had contracted for a dish to be moved from their old house to a new residence.

Also, the headline "Iraq launches surprise offensive in Kuwait" (DI, April 18), was incorrect. Actually, Iraq launched a large offensive Sunday against Iranian forces off the Faw Peninsula, according to reports.

Branstad is disappointed by schooling moratorium

United Press International

DES MOINES — Republican Gov. Terry Branstad said Monday he is disappointed lawmakers passed a stop gap measure to prevent the jailings of parents who teach their children at home or in non-approved church schools, rather than a permanent accommodation.

"It doesn't solve the problem. This merely avoids people being jailed," Branstad said of the bill sent to him late Saturday that imposes a one-year moratorium on the prosecution of home and church schoolers, who refuse for religious reasons to have their children taught by state-certified teachers.

To be granted protection under the moratorium, parents and church schools will be required to submit to local school districts lists of the students who are being taught by non-certified teachers, their lesson plans and copies of the textbooks they will be using.

THE BILL also requires lawmakers to set up an interim study committee to design a bill for the 1989 Legislature to provide a permanent solution to the problem.

Branstad said there already have been several studies, including one by a task force he established in 1986 to replace current certified teacher instruction requirements with annual proficiency testing of students.

He noted the Senate sent such a proposal to the House last year, which the House refused to consider.

"Something like that is going to have to take place," Branstad said. "Eventually the Legislature is going to have to bite the bullet . . . and reach a reasonable accommodation."

Corn Promotion Board awards research money to UI and ISU

United Press International

DES MOINES — The Iowa Corn Promotion Board Monday announced it has awarded $190,400 to research projects at the UI and Iowa State University to study new uses for corn and better ways to market corn products.

"Research is the key building block for new markets and increased demand," said Lucy Norton, the board's domestic market development director.

Among new projects funded were studies by three ISU scientists into the possibility of developing biodegradable plastic from corn that can be used in insulated drinking cups, warming containers and fast-food packaging.

Also funded were studies of corn starch at ISU and the UI to determine whether geneticists can develop new varieties of corn and the potential uses of corn starch to produce energy.

Courts

By Traci Auble

A UI student was charged with bribery and possession of a controlled substance Monday after he tried to bribe a police officer to drop his charges, according to court records.

Scott M. Harris, 20, 932 E. College St., was a passenger in a car that was stopped for a traffic offense. Harris was arrested for not wearing a seat-belt and taken to the Johnson County Jail where he was searched. A quantity of marijuana was found in his sock along with two driver's licenses not belonging to him, according to court records.

Harris then asked to speak to the officer in private where he allegedly offered the officer $50 or $60 to have the charges dropped. He later offered the officer any amount of money to get him out of his charges. The second conversation was allegedly overheard by personnel at the jail, according to court records.

A preliminary hearing is set for May 3.

An Iowa City man filed a lawsuit against UI Hospitals and Clinics Monday for alleged negligence resulting in his wife's death last year, according to Johnson County District Court records.

Marvin Bailey of Iowa City claims UI Hospitals and Clinics was negligent in the care of his wife when she was admitted to the Department of Medicine at the hospital on Jan. 11, 1987, with infected lungs. Doctors there allegedly determined that it would be necessary to put a chest tube into Mary Bailey's lungs to drain fluid, according to court records.

When attempting to insert the chest tube, the treating physician allegedly punctured and lacerated the pulmonary arteries, causing her to bleed to death, according to court records.

Bailey is accusing UI Hospitals and Clinics of being negligent by failing to properly place the tube in her chest, for allowing an intern or resident without sufficient experience to perform the procedure and for failing to have immediate supervision and guidance of a qualified cardiothoracic surgeon, according to court records.

Bailey is suing for an amount sufficient to fairly compensate for damages incurred. Damages include hospital and funeral expenses, deprivation of enjoyment of life to her and her husband, and loss of income, according to court records.

A jury trial is being requested by Bailey and his lawyer, Steven J. Crowley, for the hearing in Johnson County District Court, according to court records.

An Iowa City woman was charged with assault causing injury Monday after she allegedly physically harmed another woman, according to court records.

Dawn Tomas, 18, 637 S. Johnson St., allegedly assaulted the victim at least twice Sunday following a verbal argument. The assaults to the victim resulted in a swollen face, cut lip and hairline fracture to her cheekbone, according to court records.

Later when interviewed, Tomas admitted to the assault. A preliminary hearing in the case is set for May 3, according to court records.

Davenport teens arrested on attempted murder charges

DAVENPORT — A nationwide alert to law officers issued for a 1986 pickup taken in a weekend shooting incident in Scott County led to the capture of three Davenport teenagers wanted on arrest warrants Monday, officials said.

The suspects — Jerry Lee Osborn, 18; Chris Ramsey Jr., 18; and a 15-year-old juvenile from Davenport — "have been apprehended in the truck that was stolen from the victim," said Scott County sheriff's Capt. Dennis Conard.

Iowa authorities planned to see whether the three youths would waive extradition at a court appearance today before proceeding with the case, Conard added. The three suspects were apprehended at about 3 p.m., several hours after Scott County Attorney William Davis issued arrest warrants charging the suspects with attempted murder and second-degree theft.

THE TEENAGERS are accused of allegedly shooting James Clark, 55, Davenport, stealing his wallet and pickup truck and leaving him for dead in a rural area early Sunday.

Clark was listed in critical but stable condition at St. Luke's Hospital Monday after suffering a gunshot wound above the right eye.

Scott County Sheriff Forrest Ashcraft said Clark apparently met the three teens at a Davenport tavern late Saturday, but authorities were uncertain what prompted the shooting with a small-caliber handgun.

Ashcraft said authorities believed the shooting occurred in the county, but investigators had not determined where Clark was shot nor how he got to the rural Princeton home.

Clark was left on a rural county road about 3 1/4 miles northwest of LeClaire, where law officers found blood and Clark's glasses. He then crawled or walked about 30 yards to a nearby house where he was discovered in a semi-conscious state, officials said.

Branstad gives GOP 'longshot' chance of control in Legislature

By Bill Brewer
United Press International

DES MOINES — Republicans stand to gain some seats in the Legislature this fall and have a "longshot" chance of gaining control of one of the two houses, Gov. Terry Branstad said Monday.

"I think it's still a longshot for the Republicans to gain control of both chambers of the Legislature. It's possible they could take control of one house."

Democrats have controlled both houses of the Legislature since Branstad took office in 1983. Democrats currently outnumber Republicans 29-21 in the Senate and 58-42 in the House.

"Republicans have fielded an excellent group of candidates. I expect there's a good chance we'll see Republican gains in the Legislature and I'm going to do all I can to make it happen," he said.

Regardless of which party controls the General Assembly, Branstad said he and lawmakers will have to

"roll up our sleeves and get to work."

He said the two branches showed their ability to cooperate this year when the Democrat-controlled Legislature enacted his recommendations to bolster the state's economic development and education programs.

THE TWO SIDES also agreed to some Democratic priorities, including an increase in benefits for welfare recipients. The increases, and several welfare reform measures such as daycare vouchers and expanded medical coverage for welfare families, should enable welfare recipients to "break the cycle of poverty," Branstad said.

He said the cooperation between himself and legislative Democrats this year was in stark contrast to the combative atmosphere of 1987 sessions in which the two branches engaged in an often bitter battle over tax reform.

"We all learned a lesson from that and that a lot more can be accomplished by working together... rather than fighting it out in a partisan arena," he said.

The Iowa State Legislature has appropriated a limited amount of funds to provide financial assistance to students at the University of Iowa who held assistantships and were adversely affected by the Tax Reform Act of 1986.

To qualify for the aid the applicant must:

- 1) Have held an appointment as either a Teaching Assistant (TA) or a Research Assistant (RA) during the Fall of 1987.
- 2) Have filed 1987 tax returns (both State and Federal).
- 3) Have been adversely affected by the Tax Reform Act of 1986.

Too many breaks

It was recently revealed that the modestly titled Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints has been adding Iowa farmland to its multibillion-dollar investment portfolio. Reportedly the church has purchased 11 farms for a total of more than 12,000 acres.

The purchases have various people around the state worried because the Mormon Church is now the absentee landlord of these farms. Absentee ownership of farms by individuals or corporations has long been seen as undesirable in Iowa. Local ownership is preferable because farm revenues are cycled into the community and sound long-term land practices are encouraged.

In 1980, the Iowa Legislature effectively outlawed further absentee speculation by corporations and individuals. Churches and other supposedly non-profit organizations are still free to acquire as much farmland as they wish, however, regardless of where the revenues may go. This sounds harmless enough until one considers how much like corporations many churches have become. And that most church revenues are not taxed.

Jerry Cahill, speaking for the Latter-day Saints, came up with a story that sounds like it was crafted by a public relations firm. The farms his church has bought are a "long-term investment" with "possible future use to produce food for a church welfare program." Who would be churlish enough to doubt the worthiness of a "church welfare program?" It would be like slamming motherhood. Thus, Cahill hopes to elevate a cold-blooded fiscal calculation into the realm of good works by wrapping it in the vaguest of good intentions.

It is worth noting that some of these farms were purchased after foreclosures, or sold by farmers under the duress of financial difficulty. This fact puts the Mormon Church in the rather odd position of having capitalized on past misfortune, supposedly to allay future misfortunes. If charity begins at home, why is it being exported to Salt Lake City?

Cahill also said that the Mormon Church will not accept revenues from government farm subsidies. (This would be inconsistent with the ultra-rightist policies it everywhere espouses and promotes.) But since the farms are being leased on a cash basis "it leaves it up to the farmer whether he wants to do so." In essence, then, the lessor of the farm will launder the money of any taint of the public trough before handing it over to the church.

Perhaps it is time, now that churches are operating like multinational corporations and Political Action Committees, to afford the citizen and the tax-paying enterprise equal protection under the law, to reconsider some of the extraordinary privileges church lobbies have carved out.

Minimum wage rip-off

Here's a financial — and moral — dilemma for all you undergrads dreaming of stocks, bonds, Keoghs and the like: Suppose you were unskilled, with no education past the high-school level. Suppose you had a wife (or husband) and two kids. Suppose the only gainful employment you could find was unloading freight at a local factory for minimum wage. Could you support your family of four on $536 a month — before taxes? Yeah, that's what I thought.

The minimum wage currently stands at $3.35 and has stood there since 1981. Congress is currently considering legislation that would raise the minimum wage to $5.05.

The issue is a controversial one, and the lines are drawn. Businesspeople are in a rage, claiming that the proposed hike would spell doom for their profits. They fear that the additional $1.70 per employee could mean passing costs on to consumers or mass layoffs. Meanwhile, workers can't buy shoes for their children.

Millions of American laborers exist in an economic prison built on the current minimum wage. They are living the ultimate Catch-22, and the frustrations are endless. Incentive is zapped by an employer who says a raise is out of the question — even if an employee's work is deserving — because that employer knows no one is indispensable, not these days.

And it's not feasible for both husband and wife to work for $3.35 an hour, because satisfactory child care is extremely expensive, particularly in urban areas. When coupled with time and transportation costs, day care alone would practically consume one salary. Imagine the problems this causes single mothers.

For nearly eight years, the Reagan administration has been trying to convince us that unequal distribution of the good life is OK. The evidence proves the opposite is true. People are literally working themselves to death, and not for another car or a family vacation. Just to eat. And if $3.35 an hour won't buy bread, it sure won't pay for a decent funeral.

Speakes speaks out of turn

I don't like seeing anyone out of work, but I didn't lapse into a funk when Larry Speakes was dumped from his $250,000 job as a front man for a New York banking house.

Technically, Speakes resigned. But he left because Merrill Lynch shoved him out the door. They were uncomfortable having an admitted liar and fink as their public relations man.

This, I believe, is an example of what the hip generation described as: "What goes around, comes around." Or maybe it's the other way.

Whatever, it was perfect justice for a fink.

Speakes has always thought of himself as a clever fellow. Watching him perform as the White House press secretary, you could almost see him ooze self-satisfaction.

HE HAD A WAY of looking down his nose at those who have the miserable assignment of covering the White House and trying to find out what the executive branch of government is bungling today.

Although he had never been a reporter, preferring a career as a flunky for Washington politicians, he obviously felt superior to those who earn their living by asking questions.

And to demonstrate his mental nimbleness, as he now admits, he hoked up phony lines and told the press that President Reagan had said them.

Actually, the lines weren't especially memorable or profound. On a slow day, Jesse Jackson can come up with a dozen that are better and make them rhyme, too.

But Speakes was proud of them. So proud, in fact, that when he recently put out a book about his White House spokesman days, he couldn't resist bragging about putting words in Reagan's mouth.

THIS BECAME news, although I don't know why. There's nothing new about flunkies composing sentences for politicians. Most politicians use hired speech writers. Some pay others to write entire books on which they slap their names. Before becoming president, John F. Kennedy won a Pulitzer Prize for a history book without having to tap a single typewriter key.

For that matter, Speakes wasn't literate enough to write his own fink book. He paid someone to put his words into understandable, although banal, form.

About the only thing that made his disclosure interesting was that Reagan said he wasn't aware that Speakes had been making up quotes.

That meant Reagan either didn't know what he had said or, when he read his words in the newspapers, he thought that he had said them. Or maybe it meant that he simply didn't pay any attention to what the press said he said.

THIS, TO SOME Washington observers, was evidence that Reagan might be "out of touch" with what is happening around him.

There's nothing shocking about that. Only recently, we were told that when Reagan meets with visiting dignitaries, aides give him little cue cards so he'll remember to say "Good morning, George," or "Welcome to the White House," or "Nice to meet you, too."

Almost from the beginning of his presidency, Reagan has been hailed as one of the most out-of-touch presidents in our history. That's been one of the secrets of his success. In a world that is too complicated, the majority of Americans choose to be out of touch with reality. Some use drugs or booze to disconnect. Others fade into their TV sets. And with their votes, or lack of them, they said they preferred an out-of-touch leader.

BEING A CLEVER fellow, though, Speakes figured that by finking about how out of touch Reagan was, and how he, Speakes, could put words in Reagan's mouth, the book would get oodles of free publicity that would help sales.

And I'm sure it has. But it turns out that Speakes is surprisingly dopey for someone so clever.

It didn't occur to him that an image-conscious outfit like Merrill Lynch might say: "Holy bottom line, we're paying this guy $250,000 a year to be our spokesman. And now he's telling the world that he's a liar and a cattle-tale fink. If he'll fink on a president, how do we know he won't fink on us? Tell him to turn in his key to the executive washroom. And change the lock."

So now the clever fellow is out of work. The quick-fix publicity will subside and in a week or two his book will start gathering dust in the bookstores.

AND SPEAKES WILL discover that $250,000-a-year jobs aren't that easy to come by. It's one thing to walk out of the White House with a lot of political clout and a reputation for being able to think fast on your feet. It's something else when the most recent item on your resume is that you were sacked by Merrill Lynch.

I suppose he can take out an ad. It could say something like:

"Position wanted. Top-level experience as congressional aide, White House press officer and corporate spokesman. Advanced training in finkery, back-stabbing and ingratitude."

Lots of luck. But he'd be wise to check the location of his nearest unemployment comp office.

Savings bond route to tuition

I'm having this nightmare in which a pickup truck approaches, piled high with chairs and mattresses. It's a rusted old truck, reminiscent of those Depression-era vehicles used by evicted sharecroppers. But this truck is different: As it rattles past I see on its rear window a sticker that reads "Briarmount College."

The dream reoccurs often these days, usually when I've been thinking about refinancing the mortgage. Borrowing against one's house to pay college expenses, or any expenses for that matter, is a scary proposition. But many people don't see any choice. As I noted recently, proposals to reduce borrowing through so-called prepayment plans haven't gained much support.

There is, however, another alternative: using savings bonds to pay tuition. One proposal to accomplish this is now before the Senate; it would exempt from taxation the interest earned on U.S. Savings Bonds — now a minimum six percent — so long as earnings were applied to college expenses.

John Hildebrand

WHILE THESE earnings are modest, the plan offers several advantages. It employs a system with which the public already is familiar. It provides some protection against inflation, because interest rates are variable. And it requires minimal cash to participate, as little as $25 for a bond yielding $50 at maturity.

But the idea's workability doesn't guarantee its survival. Many congressmen are wary of granting new tax exemptions, having spent sleepless nights eliminating exemptions only two years ago. On the state level, too, there is resistance to the concept of government-backed savings plans.

Those able to save are going to save anyway, says Robert Shaw, staff director of the New York Senate's higher education committee. That is not to say it shouldn't be done, but it might reach a relatively small portion of the population.

POSSIBLY SO. Still, there was great excitement in Illinois several months ago when college bonds were sold there for the first time. The Illinois bonds cost $1,000 to $3,500, depending on their date of maturity. They offered interest rates ranging from 6.3 to 7.9 percent, along with bonuses for students who attended in-state colleges.

On the day the bonds were marketed, phone lines in Chicago banks were swamped with calls from parents and grandparents. Some brokers got requests from as far away as California. By the close of business, authorities had received orders for $270 million in bonds, three times the amount available.

Clearly, there is public demand for college savings plans that are reasonably safe and tax-exempt. But are such plans sound policy? There are many worthy causes for which tax breaks could be offered:

pollution controls, inexpensive housing, etc. To include them all is to invite chaos.

STILL, THERE are experts who believe that tax-exempt savings make sense. Richard E. Anderson, who directs a federally supported project on college finance at Columbia University, argues that the government actually could save money by selling more bonds to domestic investors, as opposed to those overseas. It's cheaper, he says, to borrow from parents than from the Japanese.

The real issue, I think, is not whether tax breaks should be offered, but in what form. Tax deductions are being granted already for interest paid on second mortgages, and that's why so many parents are rushing out to refinance. Don't save — borrow — we are being told. And don't worry that the trucks will drive away with the box springs.

Jackson rips Koch's remarks

New York prepares for primary

By Matthew C. Quinn United Press International

NEW YORK — The New York presidential primary campaign ended Monday with Jesse Jackson accusing Mayor Edward Koch of fanning the flames of "fear and hysteria" with nasty attacks on the civil rights leader.

Koch stood by his criticism of Jackson, casting a shadow over the final hours of campaigning in the three-way Democratic contest among Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis, Jackson and Sen. Albert Gore of Tennessee.

Gore campaigned energetically with Koch on the flamboyant mayor's home turf but distanced himself from his No. 1 supporter's latest attacks on Jackson.

Koch, in a national television interview Sunday, accused Jackson of "lying" when he glorified his role in the aftermath of Martin Luther King's assassination 20 years ago and initially denied four years ago that he had used the term "Hymietown" to describe New York City.

BUT GORE said during a tour of Manhattan subway stops with Koch that the mayor "speaks for himself."

"I don't question his honesty," Gore said of Jackson. "I know my relationship with him is a good one."

The latest polls showed Dukakis maintaining his lead in the crucial primary with 255 Democratic National Convention delegates at stake. Victory could put the Massachusetts governor on a direct course toward the nomination.

"I don't have to tell you how important the New York primary is tomorrow," Dukakis told workers at the American Brass plant in Buffalo, the state's second-largest city. "If we can win tomorrow, we will be on our way to the nomination and then we will go on to defeat George Bush."

In a poll by The Washington Post-ABC News, Dukakis held a 6 percent edge over Jackson, with Gore losing 2 percent since Sunday. The survey showed Dukakis with 46 percent, Jackson with 40 percent and Gore with 11 percent.

A New York Post poll, however, showed Dukakis' lead has narrowed in recent days but he still had 49.5 percent, Jackson 32.7 percent and Gore 9.1 percent.

A Gallup Poll commissioned by Newsday put Dukakis with 48 percent, Jackson with 25 percent and Gore with 12 percent. Pollster George Gallup said a nationwide survey also indicates Dukakis would beat Bush 49 percent to 44 percent if the general election were held now.

Dukakis campaigned in New York City and flew across upstate while Gore and Jackson stuck to the Big Apple, where 58 percent of the 1 million people expected to vote today reside.

Paul Bograd, Dukakis' New York coordinator, said New York has a "very complex electoral process," with separate delegate races and a non-binding preference ballot.

Holbert James, Jackson's New York campaign manager, predicted Jackson would sweep five congressional districts with black and Hispanic majorities.

Panel suggests 'safety czar' for skies

By Frank T. Csongos United Press International

WASHINGTON — A presidential panel recommended Monday establishment of an independent federal aviation authority with a "safety czar" responsible for keeping America's skies safe for air travel.

"After months of study, hearings, meetings around the country, and staff reports, the Aviation Safety Commission unanimously concludes that the nation's air transportation system is safe," the report said. "However, safety is being maintained to an increasing extent through delays and other inconveniences."

The report called for an independent Federal Aviation Authority headed by an administrator who is appointed by the president for a fixed term. Under the present system, the FAA is part of the Transportation Department and its administrator reports to the transportation secretary.

The new authority should also have an independent "safety czar" responsible for maintaining the safety of air travel, the report said.

IT ALSO called for surprise inspection of airlines and beefing up the government's inspector work force.

"The safety czar's sole responsibility is ensuring system safety," commission Chairman John Albertine told the National Press Club in presenting the 10-month study.

"This arrangement holds a single person accountable for the safety of the system while still providing the potential for collegial judgment to overturn that person's actions if they are ill-advised," he said.

But Rep. Guy Molinari, R-N.Y., who successfully sponsored a bill in the House that would direct the government to rehire some of the air traffic controllers fired in 1981 following an illegal strike, said, "Safety czar is like chicken soup. It can't hurt if you have a cold. But does it help?"

Molinari said he disagrees with the commission's central conclusion — "I no longer believe the system is safe."

Speakes: I told Reagan about quotes

By Donnie Radcliffe Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Larry Speakes said Sunday he told President Ronald Reagan years ago about the made-up quotes.

A couple of days after he had fabricated the remarks at the 1985 Geneva summit, Speakes said, he told the president he had "put words in his mouth" about one of Reagan's meetings with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev.

The former presidential spokesman said Reagan "really didn't say much, he didn't have any specific reaction" when told.

Speakes tells the story about devising the quotes in his new book, Speaking Out, but neglects to say that he informed the president while they were still in Geneva. He says now he didn't include that because "it seemed such a small part of the book."

Monday, the White House declined to comment on Speakes' account of telling the president about the quotes. But White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater and the president himself did comment on Speakes' disclosures last week, harshly criticizing him for attributing to the president quotes that were neither said nor authorized by him. Reagan said he didn't know about the quotes until hearing about them in Speakes' book.

THAT REAGAN does not remember their exchange is understandable, Speakes said. "To be absolutely fair to him, there were many things being mentioned to him, many things going on he doesn't recall," he said.

"I thought it strong," he said of Reagan's criticism of him. "I could fully understand how he might not have remembered, in the whole rush of things," Speakes laughed. "A lot of things I don't remember."

But it's what he does remember that has caused an uproar, particularly telling the press in Geneva that the president told Gorbachev, "There is much that divides us, but I believe the world breathes easier because we are talking here together."

Report of Higgins' death denied by Lebanese group

United Press International

BEIRUT, Lebanon — A Christian-run radio station said Monday kidnapped U.S. Marine Lt. Col. William Higgins was killed by his pro-Iranian Moslem captors this month in southern Lebanon, but the report was promptly denied.

A spokesman for the Shiite Moslem militia Amal, which has participated in the search for Higgins since his February capture, issued a denial, and U.S. officials said they could not confirm the report by the Voice of Lebanon radio station.

Citing "special information," the station said the decorated Vietnam veteran was killed by members of the fundamentalist pro-Iranian Hezbollah movement during fighting this month between Hezbollah and Amal in southern Lebanon.

PLO chief to be buried in Syria

TUNIS, Tunisia — The Palestine Liberation Organization announced Monday that it will bury its slain military commander Khalil Wazir in Syria, a surprise move apparently aimed at healing a 6-year-old rift between PLO Chairman Yasser Arafat and Syrian President Hafez Assad.

The decision was announced as the Tunisian government officially blamed Israel for Wazir's assassination here Saturday, claiming Israel had used an electronic warfare plane off Tunisia's Mediterranean shores to disrupt telephone communications while an Israeli commando unit attacked Wazir's home in the suburb of Sidi Bou Said.

Wazir, 52, two bodyguards and a Tunisian gardener were killed by the group of seven to nine commandos, which disappeared under the cover of darkness early Saturday.

Panama banks re-open for deposits

PANAMA CITY, Panama — Banks in Panama opened their doors for the first time in nearly two months Monday, but only to receive deposits and not to allow withdrawals by cash-strapped Panamanians caught in Washington's efforts to oust Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega.

Under new banking regulations issued Friday, two state-owned banks and most of the 60 private banks in Panama unlocked their doors, but customers and bank personnel said the financial institutions were limiting operations to accepting cash and checks for deposit.

The government warned the nation's 2.2 million people they would not be permitted to cash checks or withdraw money from their accounts.

Shultz hopes Moscow talks end impasse

WASHINGTON — With diminishing hopes for significant progress, Secretary of State George Shultz leaves for Moscow Tuesday in an effort to end the impasse in U.S.-Soviet strategic arms negotiations and make advances on some regional issues in the wake of last week's settlement on Afghanistan.

The prospect of reaching a new strategic arms reduction treaty, known as START, before the next U.S.-Soviet summit May 29 to June 2 has been dimmed by the lack of movement over the past month, a senior administration official said Monday.

Although both sides have agreed in principle to halve each side's arsenal of long-range nuclear missiles, negotiators in Geneva have failed to reduce the number of disagreements over the joint text of the proposed treaty and its three associated documents.

"It was 1,200 (disagreements)" in March, when Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze visited here, the official said, "and it's still 1,200."

Senate panel endorses INF Treaty

WASHINGTON — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee, issuing a formal report to back up an earlier vote favoring the INF Treaty, recommended approval of the pact Monday with a condition barring later efforts to change the meaning of the historic agreement.

The lengthy document, approved 17-2, said the condition was needed to protect the Senate's treaty powers. The committee endorsed the pact last month by the same vote.

The addition to the treaty's resolution of ratification declared that the meaning of the agreement's provisions will be determined by the explanations Reagan administration witnesses gave the Senate in lengthy hearings on the pact.

Judge to review deal on three-wheelers

WASHINGTON — A federal judge said Monday he will review a landmark agreement between the government and makers of all-terrain vehicles and decide within a week whether to approve it.

U.S. District Judge Gerhard Gesell made the decision after a hearing on the consent decree, which was reached several months after a Justice Department lawsuit alleging that the vehicles should be considered hazardous because they pose an unreasonable risk of death or injury.

The agreement involving American Honda Motor Co., Yamaha Motor Corp. U.S.A., U.S. Suzuki Motor Corp. and Kawasaki Corp. U.S.A. is aimed at providing consumers with safety information on ATVs, which are three- and four-wheeled motorized vehicles with large low-pressure tires intended for off-road use.

Eccentric sculptor Louise Nevelson dies

Louise Nevelson, whose eccentric and flamboyant persona became as well-known as the aristocratic and elegant wooden sculptures that will be her more lasting legacy, died Sunday, it was learned Monday.

The doyenne of American sculpture had been in poor health for several months and died at her home in Manhattan's Soho district at age 87.

Although success came to her relatively late in life she welcomed it not as a disquieted senior citizen but as a proud peacock.

Israeli court finds Demjanjuk guilty of World War II crimes

By Dan Fisher
Los Angeles Times

JERUSALEM — An Israeli court Monday night pronounced retired Cleveland autoworker John Demjanjuk guilty of World War II crimes that government prosecutors described as "amongst the most serious and awful in human history."

In only the second war crimes trial ever conducted here, a three-judge panel ruled that the 68-year-old defendant was the same man whose cruelty as a guard in the Treblinka death camp in Poland during World War II earned him the nickname "Ivan the Terrible."

"We have concluded unequivocally, without the slightest doubt, that Ivan John Demjanjuk is the Ivan who operated the gas chambers at Treblinka and who perpetrated the gruesome deeds described above," presiding Judge Dov Levine said.

The crimes for which Demjanjuk was found guilty are among the handful that carry a possible death penalty under Israeli law, but his sentence will be pronounced only after a separate hearing next Monday. The defense will have 45 days from the date of sentencing to launch its expected appeal.

DEMJANJUK WAS extradited from the United States to Israel in February 1986 to face the Jewish state's first war crimes trial since Adolf Eichmann was convicted 26 years ago of masterminding the systematic extermination of 6 million European Jews. Eichmann was hanged in 1962.

Monday's verdict, greeted by applause from the standing-room-only crowd in a converted theater here, came near the end of a marathon, 12-hour session in which the three judges took turns reading excerpts from their 444-page opinion. It was the 107th session of a trial that stretched out, with frequent delays, more than 14 months. The burly, bespectacled, Ukrainian-born Demjanjuk, who immigrated to the United States and settled in the Cleveland area in 1952, heard the verdict from a holding cell off the courtroom where he spent the day lying on a cot.

DEFENSE ATTORNEY John Gill explained as the crucial session began that his client was suffering from back spasms that caused him to "cry out in pain" at the slightest movement and prevented him from taking his normal seat in the dock.

"I am very good — don't worry," the handcuffed defendant told reporters as he was led away from the court Monday night, surrounded by guards. "I am an innocent man. I'll appeal, and I'm sure that I will win."

Demjanjuk's attorneys argued that he was the victim of mistaken identity and their defense concentrated largely on challenging the memory of five Treblinka survivors who identified their client as Ivan during the trial.

Cousin of Kuwaiti ruler makes plea for his life

By Jonathan C. Randal
Washington Post

ALGIERS, Algeria — A man identified as the cousin of Kuwait's ruler made a halting plea Monday for his life and those of the estimated 30 others aboard the hijacked Kuwait Airways jumbo jet as their ordeal ended its second week with no end in sight.

The painful, incomplete message from Fadel Sabah, a cousin of Kuwaiti Emir Sheik Jabir Ahmed Sabah, appeared to confirm reports that he was under mental and possibly physical duress.

Read over the Boeing 747's radio and relayed through the Algiers airport control tower, the message began as another in the almost daily fare of warnings by hostages that they would be killed unless Kuwait released 17 men jailed for terrorist attacks against oil installations and the U.S. and French embassies in December 1983.

But Fadel Sabah's gasping, anguished 10-second effort was so unintelligible — he got no further than praising God and asking for the release of the 17 convicted terrorists — that the control tower asked him to try again.

WHEN HIS renewed effort failed, a voice, presumably that of a hijacker, said the hostage was "too weak" to make a third try. Only then did the hijacker reveal the Fadel Sabah's identity. In earlier messages, the hostages' names were given clearly before they began talking.

The hijackers, believed to be Iranian Shiite Moslems, drew a distinction Saturday between "civilian" hostages, two Kuwaiti "officers" they shot to death during an earlier stopover in Cyprus, and "those who belong to power" in Kuwait.

The latter category includes Fadel and his two sisters, Anwaar and Entesam.

Fadel Sabah was in the worst psychological condition of those still held aboard the airliner, according to a diabetic hostage released here by the hijackers last Thursday.

Late last week, sources close to the Kuwaiti ruler said he had written off the hijacked airliner.

Meanwhile, Algerian security was tightened around the hijacked plane and Algerian officials twice went aboard the airliner briefly to confer with the hijackers.

Contra-Sandinista talks may end without pact

By David Kirby
United Press International

MANAGUA, Nicaragua — Negotiators for the U.S.-backed Contra rebels and the Sandinista government began the last day of their high-level peace talks Monday with little hope of reaching a concrete agreement to end the 7-year-old civil war.

The 43-member Contra delegation, which arrived in Managua Friday to begin negotiations on a permanent cease-fire, said the rebels would leave Nicaragua at the end of Monday's session no matter what the results were.

A weekend of proposals and counterproposals produced only accusations from each side that the other was trying to block progress to a lasting peace and prolong the war that has killed an estimated 50,000 people.

THE TWO SIDES resumed their talks shortly after 9 a.m. (10 a.m. CST) at the luxury Hotel El Camino Real, five miles outside downtown Managua. The talks were called for in a nine-point temporary cease-fire agreement signed March 23 at the border post of Sapoa, near the Costa Rican border.

Heribert Scharrenbroich, a West German legal adviser to the rebels, said the talks were "condemned to failure" because of the negotiating stalemate.

Before the negotiations began, Contra leaders Adolfo Calero, Pedro Joaquin Chamorro, Alfredo Cesar and Azucena Ferrey visited the offices of the opposition La Prensa newspaper where they were enthusiastically greeted by hundreds of people who clapped wildly and shouted "Viva la Contra."

It was the first time the Contras left the site of the peace talks and came in direct contact with ordinary Nicaraguans.

"The Sandinista Front no longer exists in Nicaragua. The change is coming," said Violeta Chamorro, La Prensa director.

Gulf

shipping and known as "Boghamers," were attacked by the U.S. forces, with one sunk and two others heavily damaged.

Congressional leaders, some of whom were summoned to the White House Sunday evening for a secret briefing on the planned mission, expressed fears Monday that the conflict could escalate.

Although they raised some concerns during the White House meeting, according to White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater, they closed ranks Monday to support Reagan's decision to strike the oil platforms.

"I think it was a legitimate response," said Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va.

Although the administration was prepared for an Iranian military reply to the strike on the oil platforms, the magnitude caught U.S. officials by surprise, and one remarked that "they were a bit more brazen and foolish in their response this time," compared with previous incidents in which U.S. retaliatory strikes brought no direct Iranian responses.

"WE WERE prepared to do more, and when they obliged us, we did more. The Iranians obliged by doing some pretty foolish things today, which we were aching for them to do," said another aide, a senior official at the Pentagon.

Carlucci, asked to explain why Iran ignored U.S. warnings not to respond to the initial retaliatory attacks on the oil platforms, said at a news conference:

"I'm not sure that it's explainable in terms of Western logic at this point. I have only to assume that it's some kind of a fanatical reaction or slavish obedience to a contingency plan."

In the most extensive U.S. air action over the gulf, an American A-6 Intruder bomber, launched from the carrier Enterprise in the northern Arabian Sea just outside the gulf, destroyed one of the speedboats and badly damaged the other two.

IN A SEPARATE incident, the Iranian frigate Sahand fired on an American A-6 aircraft, the Pentagon said. In response, three A-6 jets fired Harpoon missiles and laser-guided bombs at the frigate, steaming in the Strait of Hormuz at the entrance to the gulf. A Harpoon missile fired by the U.S. destroyer Joseph Strauss struck the Sahand as well, setting the 310-foot warship ablaze.

The Iranian frigate Sabalan also fired on an A-6, which struck back with a laser-guided bomb. The Pentagon said that as darkness fell over the gulf, the ship was "down by the stern, with tugs fore and aft."

In addition, four Iranian F-4 jet fighters, supplied to the pre-revolutionary government of Iran by the United States, took off from the Iranian air base at Bandar Abbas at the beginning of the action, but were airborne only a few minutes before returning to their base, Fitzwater said. During the time they were aloft, the aircraft bore down on the U.S. cruiser Wainwright, which launched two missiles at the Iranian jets.

The daylong clash began when the U.S. forces attacked the two multi-story oil-drilling platforms, which were also used as command and control radar sites that played central roles in Iranian military operations run by the Revolutionary Guards in the southern gulf. U.S. officials said that they were unaware how many Iranians were deployed on the platforms, which sit on stilts in the shallow gulf. They are normally manned by 20 to 40 people, Fitzwater said.

Reaction

residence he was given a full briefing on the military options by Defense Secretary Frank Carlucci and Adm. Crowe. In attendance were Vice President Bush, Secretary of State George Shultz, White House chief of staff Howard Baker, White House deputy chief of staff Kenneth Duberstein, vice presidential chief of staff Craig Fuller, legislative liaison aide Alan Kranowitz, Powell and his deputy, John Negroponte.

IMMEDIATELY after this meeting, at 8 p.m., the president met with congressional leaders.

In the past, congressional leaders of both parties have criticized the Reagan administration for consulting with Congress only after the fact. According to participants, the president made it a point to say that he had not signed off on the specific option that should be taken against Iran although he had approved of retaliation in principle.

Language Cahn

UI SOPHOMORE Mohammed Asim Baig, a liberal arts student, agreed raising the minimum passing score on the TOEFL would be an improvement.

Baig, a Pakistani whose native language is Urdu, said the UI should raise the passing TOEFL score to 550.

"Some people from Malaysia and Korea just don't speak good English," he said, adding his score was 592. "They just screw up the GPA curve."

UI administrators will also propose an increase in TOEFL scores for which additional testing is required from the current range of 480 to 549 to the range of 530 to 599.

If these proposals are adopted, the UI would also change the score at which no required testing or restrictions would be applied, the memorandum states. The current level is 550 or higher. The proposed level is 600 or higher.

If the UI administration's proposals regarding non-native speaking liberal arts applicants are approved by the regents, the new test standards would go into effect January 1989.

Cahn said faculty members should control the curriculum and evaluate other faculty members.

"If you're going to have a liberal arts education, you have to take the essentials of a liberal arts education and that's set out for you by faculty professionals," he said.

IF HE BECOMES UI president, Cahn said he will continue teaching.

Cahn added he is very concerned about the quality of education wherever he goes.

"Everywhere I've gone I've tried hard to enhance the quality at that institution."

In addition to Cahn, two UI presidential prospects have visited the UI this month. Hunter R. Rawlings III, University of Colorado vice president for academic affairs and research, and Indiana Vice President Kenneth R.R. Gros Louis visited during the first two weeks of this month.

UI Interim President Richard Remington and University of Kansas Vice Chancellor Frances Horowitz are also expected to be among the list of candidates recommended by the UI presidential search committee.

with no legs who was on all kinds of different medications," he said. "It would have been a hassle for anyone to take her to the dentist."

The Geriatric Mobile Dental Unit was established by Ronald Ettinger, professor of removable prosthodontics, and James Beck, formerly head of the Department of Preventive and Community Dentistry and now head of dental ecology at the University of North Carolina. It was initially started by a grant from the Heritage For Aging and is now subsidized by the UI College of Dentistry.

Roth, who has been working with the unit for one week at the Beverly Manor home, said, "I've found that the people I see wouldn't be treated well if no one could come (to give them a dental exam)."

Reagan signed the order to carry out the military action shortly after 9 p.m. and then retired, officials said. The Joint Chiefs sent the "execute order" to the fleet in the gulf, leaving it to the commanders on the scene to position their forces and decide the method and timing of the warnings.

"Essentially, that's like paying for an extra professor," Reck said. Kendall White, president of UI Associated Students of Business, also said the majority of business students are against the proposal. "The software and hardware they would be using for the new programs are things that are normally available from Weeg (Computing Center)," White said. "It's wrong to ask students to pay for that."

"I'm paying so much in tuition now I won't notice the extra increase," Emrick said.

Center for New Music livens with adventurous program

By C.W. Simons
Special to The Daily Iowan

Marking their 22nd season, the Center for New Music and conductor William Hibbard presented a varied and highly stimulating concert Saturday in Clapp Recital Hall. Richard Hervig's Antiphon II: Quid Est Musica? (1972) provided a powerful beginning, followed later with his Five Romantic Songs (1982). Two works by John Cage also appeared, Concert for Piano and Orchestra (1958) and 4'33" (1952). Plane Dancing (1984) by Erik Lund and The Viola in My Life (1970) by Morton Feldman filled out the program.

Explaining that new music is "not just aggressive dissonance," Hibbard said, "The 20th century is characterized by diversity, and we like for our concerts to illustrate that." In this case, diversity was reflected not only in the assortment of music, but also in the reasons behind the choice of composers.

HERVIG'S retirement was honored with two works. Quid Est Musica? was composed especially for the dedication of Clapp Recital Hall. Based on the 6th- and 9th-century writings on music theory and philosophy, the text poses the question, "What is music?"

Kantorei was divided into two choirs in the back of Clapp with instrumentalists there and onstage. The interaction of sound was distinguished by precision and excellence. Sometimes speaking, sometimes singing, finally whispering, the participants demonstrated the marvelous resonance of their voices and of the hall itself. It was undoubtedly the most exciting work on the program.

Five Romantic Songs, dedicated to Hervig's wife, won first art song competition of the National Association of Teachers of Singing in 1984. The intensity of these deeply romantic poems was reflected in the music and beautifully expressed by Jean McDonald's singing and Jerome Lenk's piano playing. Hervig received enthusiastic applause from the audience.

THE CELEBRATION of John Cage's 75th birthday prompted the inclusion of his works. The Concert for Piano and Orchestra, involving a fixed score to be played at the performer's choice of time and order, called for few traditional sounds from the instruments. Instead, forced air whistled through a flute mouthpiece and a trumpet, fingernails softly clicked across the tops of piano keys in a silent glissando and a blast on a conch shell. There was no traditional rhythm. One by one the orchestra members finished their music and left the stage.

Chosen because of its fame, Cage's 4'33" was the most provocative piece of the program. It was written to emphasize the idea that sounds not intended by the composer are perfectly legitimate parts of the composition and therefore may include audience noise and sounds from outside the auditorium.

THE PIECE began when pianist Barbara Phillips Farley raised the keyboard lid and placed her fingers on top of the keys. Four minutes and 33 seconds later, without having played a note, she signalled the end by removing her fingers from the keys and closing the lid. The composition included the sounds of shuffling papers, whispering, coughing, scratching of pens on paper and snickering. The high point came midway through with the sound of a distant train whistle. The performance was met with applause and shouts of "Bravo!" and "Encore!"

Plane Dancing by Erik Lund was selected for its rhythmic content. A steady beat from the maracas provided the background for a piece that seemed to set the percussion in relief against a sustained accompaniment by the other instruments. Michael Geary's playing was impressive.

Morton Feldman's The Viola in My Life was another work that displayed one part above the others. Feldman, who died last September, coached the CNM's 1973 performance of this piece. Its presentation in this concert was dedicated to his memory.

According to Hibbard, it is very important to experience new music by attending live performances. The CNM provided that opportunity last weekend. The high caliber of musicianship coupled with the careful selection of music combined to make an interesting and very enjoyable evening.

I.C. Improv group entertains

By B. Gordon
The Daily Iowan

Everyone who has taken a beginning acting class knows that improvisation exercises the imagination as isometrics work the body. "Improv," as they are known for short, encourage spontaneity onstage by placing the actor in an imaginary situation. The actor must react to that situation as if it were real — no matter how zany the situation might be.

Improvising is difficult enough when there is no audience but one's fellow actors. One of the principles of an improv class is to insulate the student actor from the need to entertain.

Imagine acting off the top of your head with a paying audience who not only calls the shots of the improv but must be made to laugh as well.

I.C. Improvs, Iowa City's improvisational comedy troupe, manages to be hilarious on the spur of the moment in the wildest of settings.

Thursday night at The Mill Restaurant, 120 E. Burlington St., I.C. Improvs' talented members played roles as varied as an expert in the physics of flying carpets and Jerry Lewis in a bathtub. They performed scenes between a neophyte transvestite and a janitor in a ladies' room, discussed Bono and Tammy Faye Bakker's marriage on a radio talk show and created a two-person movie that switched abruptly from horror to romance to science fiction.

THE CONDITIONS of the improvisational exercises were set by the company, but the circumstances of each one were donated by the audience.

Although a few members of the cast seem to shine brighter than the rest, the overall quality of each of the improvs and actors was astonishingly high. One might think that consistency would be the biggest problem for an ambitious endeavor such as this, but for I.C. Improvs most of the room for improvement seemed to be in-between the improvised material. A raggedy look to the evening was derived mostly from the unscripted introductions, not the unscripted comedy itself. Music in the interims might be helpful, as would giving the announcer characters and routines to perform while eliciting suggestions from the audience.

Additionally, the rate of quick-change in the improvisations needs to slow down. In several of the sketches, development was a matter of seconds before another actor jumped in and switched everything around. I.C. Improvs needs to focus a little more on character and a little less on situation comedy to give its entertainment offerings more variety.

But Iowa City can look forward to the growth of this extraordinarily talented group — maybe into another Duck's Breath ...?

Two Iowa divers sign with Hawkeyes

Two Iowa high school seniors have signed national letters of intent to attend the Iowa, diving Coach Bob Rydze announced Monday.

Kathryn Ketoff of Dubuque, a two-time high school all-American, and Chris Munn of Cedar Rapids, also a high school all-American and the Iowa high school state diving champion this past season, will join Rydze's squad.

Ketoff attended Dubuque Wahlert High School and won the Mississippi Valley Conference title as a junior and finished runner-up to Munn her final year.

Some camps closed, others open

Both sessions for Iowa summer sports camps in boys' basketball and some of the girls' basketball sessions for June 19-24 have been filled, according to camp coordinator Michelle Harder.

Jordan's brother signs with Express

CHICAGO (UPI) — The Chicago Express of the World Basketball League has signed Larry Jordan, younger brother of Chicago Bulls' star Michael Jordan, as the first player on its team.

The World Basketball League is limited to players 6-foot-4 and shorter.

Jordan, 5-8, 155 pounds, played his college basketball at North Carolina A & T. Michael Jordan, the leading scorer in the NBA, played basketball at North Carolina.

Haynes says he will play to 66

BRIDGEPORT, Ill. (UPI) — Marcus Haynes says he intends to retire from playing basketball in 1991, when he'll be 66 years old.

Haynes and his Harlem Magicians played an exhibition game at Bridgeport Sunday as a fundraiser for the local chamber of commerce.

"I do plan on retiring in another three years," said Haynes, 63. "I plan to retire in 1991. At that time I will have played during seven decades."

Haynes formed the Magicians in 1953 when he left the Harlem Globetrotters for the first time. He joined the more famous Globetrotters three times and left them three times. The Magicians now play 10 months a year.

He began playing professionally in 1945 with a show troupe called the Oklahoma Stars.

In the mid 1960s and early '70s, Haynes teamed up with Curly Neal of the Globetrotters to make up one of their most famous backcourts. Haynes was a dribbling wizard confounding opponents with his speed and maneuvers before Neal took over the spotlight as stunt dribbler.

Haynes, who can still throw jump hooks from the top of the key, said he still enjoys the crowds — "not only the kids, but even the adults."

"Many of them I got to know over the years. Many of them saw me when they were a kid. It's just a big joy and a thrill. Really, I'm honored that they continue to do so," he said.

CCHA will present Canham Award in '89

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI) — The 1989 Central Collegiate Hockey Association playoff champion will receive the inaugural Don Canham Trophy named in honor of the retiring Michigan athletic director.

The CCHA Council took the action during its annual spring meetings.

Canham has been instrumental in the growth of the CCHA since the Wolverines joined the league for the 1981-82 season.

Filippini, Smid win opening-round matches

MONTE CARLO, Monaco (UPI) — Marcelo Filippini captured 11 of the last 12 games to overcome two-time champion Guillermo Vilas 2-6, 6-3, 6-0, in a marathon battle of baseliners Monday in the first round of the $492,500 Monte Carlo Open tennis tournament.

Also, Tomas Smid overcame a rocky start to beat Jimmy Arias, 2-6, 6-4, 6-1.

Michiel Schapers overpowered Eric Jelen 6-1, 6-4, and Marian Vajda defeated Mark Woodforde 6-0, 7-5, in other early matches in the tournament, which will feature the return of Ivan Lendl.

In other first-round play, Horst Skoff crushed Jan Gunnarsson 6-0, 6-2; Niclas Kroon defeated Luis Mattar 6-2, 7-6 (7-4); Tarik Benhabib swept past Eduardo Bengoechea 6-2, 6-3; Tore Meinecke beat Juan Aguilera 6-0, 6-3; and Thierry Tulasne rallied to beat Jim Pugh 3-6, 6-2, 6-3.

STUDENT FOOTBALL TICKET SALES TO BEGIN APRIL 18

Students may order their 1988 Football Season Tickets beginning April 18 at the Athletic Ticket Office in Carver Hawkeye Arena. The cost of the tickets are $42.00 per student and $96.00 per student guest ticket. Student season tickets are good for all six home games of the 1988 football season. Student guest tickets are available on a limited basis; all students ordering these tickets may not receive them. These tickets are only valid when entering the stadium with another student and are not replaceable if lost or stolen. The guest ticket will not be available after May 13, the deadline for student priority. Office hours are 9:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. Monday through Friday.

STUDENT FOOTBALL POLICY - 1988

- A student may purchase one season ticket at the student price of $42.00. A guest ticket may be ordered at the public price of $96.00. A limited number of guest tickets will be available; therefore, all students ordering these tickets may not receive them. These tickets are only valid when entering the stadium with another student and are not replaceable if lost or stolen. The guest ticket will not be available after May 13, the deadline for student priority. Office hours are 9:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. Monday through Friday.
- Students will receive priority based on the number of consecutive years they have applied for or purchased football tickets at The University of Iowa. There will be no loss in priority for off-campus programs or a bona fide illness. An individual who misses two or more consecutive seasons for reasons other than the above will lose all priority.
- In order for a student to receive their priority for football tickets during the season during the period of April 18 to May 13, 1988, these orders will be filled according to priority established. Any order placed after May 13 will be filled as if the order was a zero priority. Students ordering after the priority period will also accrue a year of buying credit toward their priority for purchase of tickets in following years.
- Individuals may order season tickets for a group no larger than eight. If all group members cannot be present when the order is placed, the members who are not present must provide either their personal check with current and summer address thereon or cash and their ID number to the person placing the order. One student may not write a personal check in payment for another student's tickets.
- The lowest priority within a group will determine the location of the entire block of tickets for that group. That is, all students within a group will carry the lowest priority of any member in that group. If certain priorities are denied student or guest tickets, anyone with higher priority requesting seating with this group will also be denied tickets.
- Student season tickets will continue on sale on a non-priority basis after May 13 and will remain on sale through Tuesday, August 31. Tickets may be sold after September 7 if available. Please contact the Athletic Ticket Office for further information.
- Each student must pick up their own ticket in the fall. The student must present their own student ID with current registration (Fall 1988) fewer than the record set by Canadian Andre Viger in Boston in 1986.

CANDACE CABLE-BROOKES of San Luis Obispo, Calif., won the women's wheelchair division for the sixth time with a time of 2:10:44. It was her fourth straight Boston triumph.

The start of the race was free of the mishaps that marred the beginning of last year's race, when de Castella tripped and fell over the starter's rope and six wheelchair competitors crashed and fell.

As expected, the young African runners pushed the early pace, but were not allowed to break away. A pack of 18 of the top men formed by the five-mile mark and maintained a tempo slightly off a course-record pace.

The group dwindled to seven by the 15-mile mark and to three by 18 miles when John Treacy, Ikangaa and Hussein were alone in front. Steve Jones of Great Britain, who had earlier fallen back, rejoined the leaders and they were four-abreast as they crested Heartbreak Hill near the 21-mile marker.

Jones fell back first and Treacy dropped back in the 22nd mile, leaving the Africans to complete their duel.

Treacy, silver medalist in the 1984 Olympic marathon, finished third at 2:09:15.

Last year's winner, Toshihiko Seko of Japan, did not race in this year's event.

Hussein, running in Boston for the first time, said he changed his strategy during the race.

"When we started I wanted to control the race," he said. "When we hit the Newton Hills (about 17 miles into the race), I was feeling real strong and decided to stay behind. I wanted to concentrate on just relaxing and letting Ikangaa do the walking (pacing)."

display its allegiance and the police presence ensured rival fans were strictly segregated.

BARBED WIRE HUNG from the stadium's perimeter wall as we approached the Bridge. Before entering the stands we passed through a metal detector to test for concealed weaponry. A policeman held a six-inch blade removed from a so-called "fan." Various other implements lay on a table.

After our electronic frisking we paid the entrance fee of what translates to be approximately $7.20 and entered the visitor's enclosure, a part of the stadium designated for fans of the visiting team. The compound was surrounded by high fences and bordered on both sides, sort of "No man's land" areas to separate us from the Chelsea crowd.

Before the kickoff two police officers carefully scanned a video camera across our stand to identify troublemakers, should violence erupt. From behind our fences we followed the game and sung for the "Irons," a nickname of the West Ham United squad, until we were hoarse. After the match the public address announcers broadcast the usual period of waiting until the home fans had been escorted from the stands.

WE WERE STILL caged behind bars half an hour after the final whistle. With increasing impatience, the crowd surged toward the exit and commenced to taunt the police. Several times people fell and struggled to avoid being crushed. Eventually we were "released," escorted to the underground and headed home. On my return I asked — as I always do — "why do I bother?" After returning from the States this will echo louder.

The comparison between the two games was vast. One buzzed of excitement; the other of tension and conflict. The mindless minority has done its best to transform British football into a tribal battleground, and as a result supporters are abandoning the national game by thousands. Although many clubs remain trouble-free, reports of crowd violence have a domino effect and then the entire league becomes involved. Attendances have fallen dramatically and only the giants of the game, such as Liverpool and Manchester United, maintain crowds more than 40,000.

THE POLICE HAVE affected measures to curb the violence but the result, sadly, is the scenario pictured above. The gangs involved in soccer hooliganism are often highly organized and care little for the game they are intent on destroying.

Attempts by the Football League to tackle the problems have had some effect. Luton Town have banned all visiting fans from their stadium and some clubs such as Charlton Athletic have made their stadiums into all-seating arrangements (it is common in British stadiums to have sections designated for standing and other sections allotted for sitting).

Fences have been improved and security cameras installed to check crowd movements. Alcohol is no longer sold in the stadiums and cannot be taken inside.

But still the problem resides.

ALONGSIDE THE TRAGEDY, American football is growing in popularity. The British Super Bowl, which features NFL teams from the United States, is in its third year, and demand for tickets is high. Channel four now shows American football twice a week and achieves a growing audience for the Super Bowl, despite it taking place in the early hours of the morning. The beginnings of a league are underway. It may be that American football in the United Kingdom will avoid the troubles soccer faces. Our national game could certainly learn a lot from its American example.

As for me, I long to see cheerleaders replace fences and families replace the police. I long to feel the thud of tiny feet in my back, the shower of popcorn on my head and the blast of a horn section as West Ham United thrash Chelsea.

year before and we have a strong offense, too. We've got good depth, pitching."

While the Hawkeyes haven't been suffering any major injuries, the Wildcats have, Ishikawa said. Coupled with the fact Ishikawa won't be pitching, Iowa may be able to break into the win column against the Wildcats. After setting several conference records during her career at Northwestern, Ishikawa finished her eligibility last season and is now putting her talents to use as an assistant coach.

Iowa begins a 12-game road trip over the next two weeks starting April 22 against Indiana, the school Blevins led to three conference titles over seven seasons.

Strickland

Meyer said he did not try to dissuade Strickland from turning pro.

"I told him if he could knuckle down and get the job done in the classroom, he should come back," Meyer said. "But school is very difficult for him and he realized it was a good year to be a point guard in the (NBA) draft."

Expected to replace Strickland on the Blue Demon roster is 6-1 guard Gilbert Miller, a native of Flint, Mich., who signed a national letter of intent Monday to join DePaul in the fall.

Miller, who comes to DePaul as a junior, averaged 19.4 points and 9.5 assists per game last season while playing for Compton Community College in California. He had a 53 percent field-goal percentage.

Tidewater Tides may aid Orioles

By Mike Tully
United Press International

NEW YORK — The Baltimore Orioles, who could use some hope, might enjoy the saga of the 1983 Tidewater Tides.

Managed by current Mets skipper Dave Johnson, the Tides absorbed a 13-game losing streak and still won the minor-league title. They finished fourth in the regular season, won the International League playoffs, then captured the Minor League World Series.

Such news may hearten the Orioles, who take a 0-12 mark into tonight's game against Milwaukee. A loss would tie Baltimore with the 1904 Washington Senators and 1920 Detroit Tigers for the worst start in major-league history.

Tidewater's streak began June 30 and continued until the second game of a double-header July 12. Johnson blamed the slide on a series of moves by the parent New York Mets.

"ANYBODY I HAD who could play, they took," Johnson said.

The call-ups included a right fielder named Darryl Strawberry. Other Mets who played on that team include pitchers Ron Darling and Terry Letcher and second baseman Wally Backman.

New song chronicles ills of U.S.

United Press International
Bo Diddley's latest song not only has a beat, it has a message. The rock 'n' roll pioneer recently returned from a tour of Japan with Rolling Stone Ron Wood and was in Boston last week to promote a Showtime cable special. The song, "What's Wrong with America," castigates "yin" and "connivin" politicians and pleads, "It's time to get drugs and the pushers off the streets." The song is being released on Diddley's own label, Big Dad, and also will have a music video. "I plan to dress up like an Indian chief and jump out of the bushes as a rich politician's limousine goes by," Diddley told The Boston Globe. "Do you think that will get the message across?"
Adrian Cronauer has been in demand on the lecture circuit ever since Robin Williams portrayed him in Good Morning, Vietnam and he used his forum at the University of Florida to warn that Nicaragua could become another Vietnam for the United States. "I do see similarities and so do a lot of people," he said. "But if there's one lesson we learned from Vietnam, it's that if we're ever going to get involved in another war, we'd better be totally committed to doing the job. If we don't agree as a country, we better not even let involvement in a war get started." Cronauer, 49, who says he wasn't nearly as maniacal as Williams was in the movie, is now a law student at the University of Pennsylvania.

A shaky wall

Four members of the UI soccer club look a bit hesitant as they form a human wall in front of their goal, attempting to block a free kick by a club member during a Monday afternoon game at Union Field.

Muller's absence hurts ruggers; women's club earns 3rd place

By Hugh Donlan
The Daily Iowan

Not many rugby matches have been lost because of one man's military calling.

But without the services of second-row forward Bob Muller, a member of the Army reserve, the Iowa rugby club lost in overtime Sunday to Luther College, 3-0, in the championship game of the Northern Iowa Collegiate Tournament. It was the second year in a row Black Label fell to Luther in the championship.

"I was really surprised we played as well as we did without Bob. He's such a force. We'll be glad to have him back next week," Scooter McDonough said. Iowa stomped past Northern Iowa 31-0, and beat Central College 15-0 Saturday and appeared to be on its way to a second tournament title in as many weeks. Black Label won the collegiate bracket of the Omaha Rugby Classic two weeks ago.

BUT INJURIES and the absence of key members of the club prevented Black Label from remaining undefeated. The team's record stands at 7-1. Wing-forward Tim Patterson suffered a broken right hand against Northern Iowa, inside-center Pete Hildner severely sprained an ankle in the second game and several other ruggers had lingering injuries.

"All in all, for the final game we were without six of our starters," McDonough said. "Luther is a good team, but if we would have had our ace lineup, we would have beaten them."

Black Label will host Des Moines Rugby Football Club Sunday at 1:30 p.m. on the pitch at the Hawkeye Apartments.

The women's rugby club captured third place in The Collegiate Tournament hosted by Purdue in West Lafayette, Ind., this past weekend.

"We played very well. We lost our first game to one of the best teams in the Midwest," Coach Trudy Grout said. "It was an overall tremendous team effort and I was extremely pleased and proud."

The club played three matches Saturday. Cyndi Miller scored the club's only try in a 12-4 loss to Wisconsin. Lori Derham scored twice and Diane Pfile, Tara Dirth, Lynn Cullen and Jean O'Leary all scored once in a 24-4 victory over Michigan. Cullen and Dirth scored in an 8-0 win over Illinois.

In Sunday's game for third place, Dirth scored two tries and Libby Wheatley, Cullen and Barb Gorvin each scored once in a 20-0 win over Michigan State.

The club travels to Minneapolis this weekend to play Minnesota and the Amazons Saturday.

It was more than gusty winds and the strong currents of the Thames River that prevented the sailing club from performing as well as it would have liked in the Coast Guard Academy's Regatta in New London, Conn., this past weekend.

The top 20 of sailing was well represented as 15 of the best collegiate clubs appeared at the event, which was won by California-Irvine. Iowa finished 18th of 21 schools.

"We did not sail to the best of our ability," Coach Bob Woodward said. "This regatta was actually tougher than we thought it was (going to be). Whenever the wind blows really hard, that's when we tend to fall back."

The club performed much better on Lake Michigan at the Women's Regatta at Northwestern last weekend. The sailors captured third in the eight-team event.

"It took us a little bit to get adjusted (to sailing in Lake Michigan), but we came out strong in the end," Joey Grandgenett said.

Skipper Kara Luben captured first place in "A" division with Amy Baltzer at crew. Grandgenett was the "B" skipper and Liz Churchwell was at crew.

The club will attempt to qualify for the Women's National Championships this weekend at Ohio Wesleyan in Columbus, Ohio. The top three finishers qualify for nationals.

The remaining members of the club will host the Huntley Team Races at Lake Macbride Saturday and Sunday.

The lacrosse club suffered three defeats at the Big Ten Championships held at Northwestern this past weekend. Top-seeded Michigan captured the conference crown.

Saturday, Iowa lost 7-3 to Michigan and 9-2 to Indiana. The club fell 3-2 to Northwestern Sunday. Hobie Brenner led the club in scoring with four goals.

"We put everything into that first game and they still beat us. It took a lot out of us," Mark St. Germain, club president, said.

The club will host Western Illinois Friday on Union Field during Riverfest activities. Iowa will also meet Iowa State Saturday and North Dakota Sunday. Both matches are at Lower Finkbine at 1 p.m.

Caps take Game 1 from Devils; Canadiens top Bruins in blackout

United Press International

LANDOVER, Md. — Larry Murphy scored one goal and set up another Monday night to back the strong goaltending of Pete Peeters and lead the Washington Capitals over the New Jersey Devils 3-1 in the opening game of the Patrick Division finals.

After Mike Ridley gave Washington a 1-0 lead 7 minutes and 18 seconds into the first period, Murphy beat rookie goalie Sean Burke off a feed from Bengt Gustafsson on a power play for a 2-0 Washington lead at 2:29 of the second period.

Murphy, who set up Dale Hunter's overtime winner in Game 7 against the Philadelphia Flyers Saturday, sent a backhand pass to fellow defenseman Scott Stevens. He ripped a wristshot from a left circle off Burke's glove and through his legs for a 3-0 lead at the 16:48 mark in the second period.

NEW JERSEY HAS won only once at the Capital Centre in its six years in the league and dropped its record on Washington's home ice to 1-20-1.

The best-of-seven series resumes Wednesday at the Capital Centre before shifting to East Rutherford, N.J., for games Friday and Sunday.

Peeters stopped 33 shots, including the first 29 before New Jersey's Tom Kurvers sent a wristshot through his pads at 9:49 of the third period to cut the lead to 3-1.

The Capitals sent 31 shots at Burke, who entered the game with a 13-3 log since joining New Jersey from the Canadian Olympic team.

NHL Roundup

Washington has now won six of eight meetings with the Devils this season. New Jersey's only Capital Centre victory was registered on March 20 in the final regular-season meeting between the teams this season.

The Devils, participating in the playoffs for the first time after finishing fourth in the division, beat the division champion New York Islanders in six games.

Ridley poked the puck from New Jersey's Kirk Muller, retrieved it in front of a charging Burke and scored from the right circle into the open net for a 1-0 lead in the first period.

Canadiens 5, Bruins 2

MONTREAL (UPI) — With the entire province of Quebec engulfed in darkness from a power blackout, Claude Lemieux scored twice Monday night to lead the Montreal Canadiens over the Boston Bruins 5-2 in the opener of the Adams Division final.

The game was played with auxiliary generators at the Forum after the massive generator at James Bay some 400 miles away blew at 7:08 CDT. The blackout extended to parts of New Brunswick, Ontario, and the northern

United States.

The blackout came with 6:27 left in the first period. But by that time, the Bruins had appeared to have a blackout of their own, trailing 2-0. Game 2 of the best-of-seven series is Wednesday night at the Forum.

KJELL DAHLIN opened the scoring for Montreal at 3:33 of the first period when he took the puck behind the Boston net, skated in front and beat goalie Andy Moog with a low wrist shot through the legs. On the play, Boston defenseman Reed Larson and Allen Pedersen were caught behind the net with Montreal forward John Kordic.

Montreal took a 2-0 lead on a short-handed goal by Mike McPhee at 8:52 of the first period. The play started with a pass from the right boards from Chris Chelios over Boston defenseman Raymond Bourque's stick, onto an onrushing McPhee, who had out-hustled rookie Craig Janney, and tipped it past Moog low to the stick side.

LEMIEUX GAVE Montreal a 3-0 lead at 5:17 of the second period when he took a pass from Bobby Smith, moved in alone on Moog and backhanded it over the fallen goalie. Lemieux scored his second goal at 15:43 after teammate Sergio Momesso carried the puck over the Boston blueline and got caught up with Bruin defenseman Larson and Bourque.

Lemieux, trailing on the play, picked up the puck and beat Moog with a high wrist shot.

Hussein claims Boston Marathon

By Frederick Waterman
 United Press International

BOSTON — Ibrahim Hussein of Kenya overcame Juma Ikangaa of Tanzania in the final 50 yards Monday to win the Boston Marathon by one second and become the first African champion in the 92-year history of the event.

In the closest finish of the world's oldest continuing marathon, Hussein triumphed in a time of 2 hours, 8 minutes and 43 seconds. The Africans were locked in a two-man duel for the final five miles before Hussein burst from just behind the Tanzanian's right shoulder to pull away in the final 50 yards.

"I didn't even hear his shoes," Ikangaa said.

"I like to make history," said Hussein, 29, who was also the first African to win the New York City Marathon, in 1987.

Temperatures were 49 degrees at the Hopkinton starting line and a light rain fell for the first hour.

"WHEN WE RAN the first two miles I was feeling my muscles were tight," Hussein said. "I thought it was going to bother me, but fortunately it didn't at the end."

Ikangaa said he was unaware of Hussein's final surge until he saw the Kenyan race into the lead.

Hussein fell short of both the world record of 2:06:50 set in Rotterdam, the Netherlands, on Sunday by Belayneh Dinsamo of Ethiopia and the Boston Marathon mark of 2:07:51 set by Rob de Castella in 1986.

Rosa Mota of Portugal successfully defended her women's crown, taking the lead in the third mile and never being threatened. Her time was 2:24:30, nearly two minutes off the course record of 2:22:43, set by Joan Benoit in 1983.

"I tried to run as fast as I can and think only about myself," said Mota, who was so fresh after completing the race she jogged away from the finish line. Hussein and Mota each won $45,000 and a Mercedes-Benz valued at $35,000.

BILL RODGERS, 40, a four-time winner at Boston, was the top American finisher, at No. 28, more than nine minutes behind Hussein. Most of the top U.S. male competitors skipped the race to compete in next week's U.S. Olympic Trials in New Jersey.

Hussein and Ikangaa ran shoulder-to-shoulder until they turned onto Boylston Street, less

Hawks look to end slump on 7-game stint

By Eric J. Hess
 The Daily Iowan

After suffering through a four-game sweep at home against Big Ten foe Illinois, the Iowa baseball team will go traveling for a seven-game stint on the road.

The Hawkeyes will take their hitting slump to Cedar Falls, Iowa, for one game against the Panthers today at 2 p.m. Iowa, 16-17 overall and 4-6 in the Big Ten, matched up with the Panthers one week ago at Iowa Field and dominated 13-1.

The Panthers come into today's game 5-27, pending Monday's game with Wartburg.

Iowa's Jeff Schafer, who collected his first win of the season against the Panthers in tossing a five-hitter, is expected to be the starter.

The upcoming road trip could be a turning point in the season for Iowa. Quiet bats doomed the Hawkeyes in the series against Illinois, but another good showing against Northern Iowa could give the Hawkeyes the momentum they need to climb back into the Big Ten race.

"IT CAN'T GET any worse," Iowa baseball Coach Duane Banks said. Banks made a few lineup changes during the series with the Illini.

Schafer, for one example, was placed in the Nos. 6, 4 and 2 spots in the lineup in three straight games.

Luis Ramirez, Iowa's lone all-Big Ten pick last season, was taken out of the fourth game of the series.

Baseball

After Ramirez went 0 for 10 in the first three series games, Schafer was moved from first base to left field for Ramirez and Jason Jones was inserted at first base.

"We thought we'd get Jason in there to get the offensive punch," Banks said.

Jones provided it, hitting a two-run homer and a single in game four. He previously collected an RBI from a walk for Iowa's single run of the series' first game.

WHETHER JONES will remain in the lineup, Banks said, is something he will consider from day to day. All other offensive changes, he added, will be made on the same basis.

The Iowa coach said the Hawkeyes hit well on the road against Indiana, so the hitting has potential.

"It's there," Banks said. "It's just a matter of getting it funneled in the right direction."

The Hawkeyes will get plenty of chances to change direction. After the Panthers, Iowa meets Minnesota at Minneapolis for a doubleheader Wednesday and a four-game series with Purdue at West Lafayette, Ind., Saturday and Sunday.

The next home game for the Hawkeyes is April 26 against Coe College at 2 p.m.

Blevins' crew hopes to roll on the road

By Marc Bona
 The Daily Iowan

The Iowa Hawkeyes will try to rebound after losing three of four games this past weekend when they meet the Northwestern Wildcats in a doubleheader today at the Hawkeye Softball Complex at 3 p.m.

The games will be the final home contests for the Hawkeyes (21-13 overall, 2-6 in the Big Ten) until May 6.

"We had a disappointing Sunday at Michigan State where we let a couple games slip away," Iowa Coach Gayle Blevins said. "I think the team has to come out and play consistently. The thing we're struggling with is a belief that we can handle teams in our conference."

One definite bright spot for Iowa is the lack of injuries the team has faced all season. It has been something Blevins has put aside in order to concentrate on the business at hand — winning.

"FOR THE MOST part, that's (injuries) not been a definite factor in our season. Getting to the point of being a winner, a contending type of team is what we're concerned with."

"I'm trying to move their expectations up," the first-year coach continued. "When we get them to the point of believing it (then I'll be

As the season moves past its halfway point, Blevins said she has one goal in mind for her team: "Just to get to the place of where we play good, day-to-day performances. I want to get off this roller-coaster ride we're on. I want to play more errorless ball."

"We're up against a lot of tough competition in this league."

However, the "tough" competition Blevins referred to may not come in the form of the Northwestern Wildcats (10-14 overall, 3-1 in the Big Ten). Tenth-year Coach Sharon Drysdale will probably throw Chino Opia (2-8) and Nanci Clement (5-5) in the doubleheader today.

BLEVINS SAID SHE will probably start first-year hurlers Diana Repp and Tami Chown.

Despite the poor showing so far this season, Northwestern has fared well against Iowa in the past, beating the Hawkeyes in 21 of 24 contests since 1979.

Northwestern assistant coach Lisa Ishikawa said the game will feature an offensive clash.

"I think Iowa has had a very strong offense last year and the

DePaul's Strickland will skip senior season for NBA draft

By Kent McDill
 United Press International

CHICAGO — Point guard Rod Strickland, who led DePaul to a 22-8 record last season despite regular benchings for missed practices, said Monday he will skip his senior year in college and enter the NBA Draft.

"I think I'm ready to play in the NBA," Strickland told a news conference. "I think if you asked other students in college if they had a chance to get a $200,000 or $300,000 job, I think they would take it."

Strickland, a flashy, 6-foot-3 playmaker from New York, averaged 20 points and 7.8 assists for the Blue Demons in 1987-88. DePaul reached the NCAA Tournament, losing to Kansas State in the second round.

He is the second college underclassman to announce he would turn professional this spring. Tito Horford of the University of Miami has decided to skip his last two seasons of college eligibility and enter the draft.

STRICKLAND TWICE scored 30 points during the season and had a season-high 13 assists in the NCAA opener against Wichita State.

Strickland was benched at the start of the season for academic ineligibility, then was kept out of the starting lineup on several occasions for missing practices.

On New Year's Eve, Strickland was involved in an altercation with a dorm official after forgetting his dorm key and was charged with battery.

Strickland, however, said his well-publicized troubles bothered other people more than him.

"There was a lot of controversy surrounding me at DePaul this year, but the media made more of it than me and Coach Joey (Meyer) did," Strickland said.

"THE BIG DECISION was, did I want to come back and go to school, or did I want to go out and make some money," he said.

Strickland, a third-team United Press International All-American, is the third DePaul player in the 1980s to turn professional early. Mark Aguirre and Terry Cummings left school in 1980 and 1981, respectively, and both were first-round draft selections.

Soccer gets booted for sun and popcorn

Asking in the sunshine at the annual Iowa spring football game I felt strangely sad. It was my first experience of American football and I reveled in the razmatazz and color of it all. The band bounced through their facades, the gladiators clashed on the field and the cheerleaders flew high.
