Dukakis, Bush get big Pennsylvania wins

In Pennsylvania, Gov. Michael Dukakis, the Democratic nominee, and Sen. Bob Dole, the Republican nominee, had a virtual tie in the presidential race, with Dukakis leading Dole by 1 percent of the vote. Dukakis won the state's primary election, but the race was too close to call in the general election.

Iowa City, Iowa, Corvalle could receive new 911 system

By Jeff Kauth

A Corvalle-based discipline hearing for eight students arrested at an Iowa City residence over the weekend was held Tuesday in the Coralville-Cedar County Courthouse.

The hearing followed a March decision by the Iowa City Board of Supervisors, which found all eight guilty of disturbing the peace, and guilty of refusing to leave the building.

The hearing was scheduled to last for several days, but was concluded in one day.

The court was not scheduled to rule on the case until Thursday.

All eight were arrested in connection with a protest over the university's hiring of a new business manager for the western region.

Israeli commander, soldier die in Arab border probes

By Dan Fisher

Los Angeles Times

JERUSALEM - In one of the worst incidents in a recent series of stepped-up Arab probes of Israeli border areas, an Israeli army commander and one other soldier from an elite Israeli army unit were killed and two other troops wounded during a predawn clash with guerrillas Tuesday.

Three Arab infiltrators were killed in a 25-minute battle at the northern border near the point where the Israeli, Syrian and Lebanese borders meet. Israeli Radio reported that the fighting at one point took place at a distance of only about 2 feet.

The death toll brought to at least 11 the number of Israeli soldiers killed in northern border probes in the last five months. Dozens of Arabs - most of them Palestinians - have also been killed along the northern border in the last five months. Acne drug causes birth defects, still on market

United Press International

WASHINGTON — A prominent acne drug, Accutane, has been linked to hundreds of birth defects, but the Food & Drug Administration (FDA) is expected to keep it on the market.

FDA spokeswoman Susan W. Brown said Tuesday that no final decision has been made on whether Accutane should be sold and that the FDA is still reviewing the case.

The FDA has received reports of children with birth defects who were exposed to Accutane in utero, but Dr. Brown said that the drug should not be withdrawn unless there is a safety risk.

The plan to keep the drug on the market is based on data from a large study that showed a link between the drug and birth defects.

FDA officials said they expect to make a decision within the next few months, but Dr. Brown added that the agency is still reviewing the data.

Dr. Brown said that the FDA is considering a number of factors, including the drug's effectiveness, safety, and the potential for the drug to cause other health problems.

The FDA's decision is based on data from a large study that showed a link between the drug and birth defects, but Dr. Brown said that the agency is still reviewing the data.

The study found that women who used Accutane during pregnancy were more likely to have children with birth defects than women who did not use the drug.

The FDA is also reviewing the results of a smaller study that found a link between Accutane and birth defects in women who used the drug after conception.

Dr. Brown said that the FDA is considering a number of factors, including the drug's effectiveness, safety, and the potential for the drug to cause other health problems.

Fair warning

The most recent skirmish between Congress and the Reagan administration centers around a single provision of a number of bills. One bill that appears to be in serious trouble is the Chapel Hill for nearly three years. While the House passed the bill last fall, the Senate has failed to vote on it. The president has repeatedly voiced his support of the "fair warning."" The Senate will have a vote this week. If it passes, the bill will go to the House for further consideration. The administration has stated that it will not reconsider the bill, and the president has repeatedly stated that he will not sign it into law.

Mercy remembers, too

On Monday John Demjanjuk was sentenced by an Israeli court to be held in prison for 10 years. The case is significant because it involves the first public trial of a Nazi war criminal. Demjanjuk is accused of being a guard at the Nazi concentration camp at Sobibor, where he is said to have murdered hundreds of thousands of Jews. The trial has been watched closely by human rights activists around the world, who hope it will set a precedent for future trials of Nazi war criminals.

Long of due

Now, thanks to the efforts of 'The Daily Iowan,' which is the daily newspaper of the University of Iowa, Iowan readers can look forward to a new weekly comic strip, "Buck Stops at 102 Church St.", starting this week. The strip will appear every Thursday, and it promises to be a fun and informative way to keep up with the latest news and events on campus.

Bulls' Grant could see limited play

Chicago Press International

CHICAGO — The Bulls' Grant OK'd for a limited play after undergoing extensive indoctrination toward the team's winning style. Grant was given the green light to play against the Cavaliers, a move that will bolster the team's late-game strategy.

During a recent practice Monday, Grant's on-court performance was praised for its aggressive nature. The player demonstrated quickness and agility, which will aid in the team's fast-breaking offense.

"It's exciting to see Grant stepping up," said head coach Michael Jordan. "He's shown a lot of promise in practice and I think he'll make a great addition to our late-game lineup."

The second game and officials were worried about getting a second game in after a 3-hour rain delay in the sixth inning of the game, but only got to the sixth inning before a downpour kept the umpires and players from continuing. "I love this game," Scott said. "I can't wait to get back out there and play again." The umpires had a hard time calling any balls and strikes, which pleased Blevin.

"That Iowa opener," Scott said, "was getting six runs and one out in the bottom of the fifth inning. I had a 60-foot gap and I was getting two outs for a run. I had to concentrate harder."

Iowa's Van Meter honored by peers

Michael Van Meter, who has built the TVCs mounting and licensing program into a million-dollar-a-year business, has been named to the Iowa Broadcast News Association's Hall of Fame. He was honored for creating a program that has become the prototype for sports shows on TVCs, according to the IBNA.

As marketing/business director for his station's sports department, Van Meter is credited with taking the idea of a high school football show and making it into a year-round activity. The show, which used to be called "Iowa High," was renamed "High School Sports," adding "ski" and "summer" to the name, and now covers all forms of high school sports.

Van Meter has also been active in the community, serving as president of the United Way and chairing the city's economic development committee.

'Sex’ isn’t worth the trouble

By Kevin C. Frumbeber

The Daily Iowa

 staged yesterday the title role, Desdemona, in a production by the University of Iowa "to depict his own feelings of isolation from society." Desdemona is the only white character in the play and the only one who is a fundamental part of the action. The production, which was directed by the university’s Resident Director of the arts, is part of a series of plays that the university is producinng to celebrate the 40th anniversary of the arts center.

The production is set in a small town in the Midwest, where Desdemona, a young woman, lives with her parents. The play centers around Desdemona’s relationship with a man who is struggling to maintain his own identity.

The University Band and Concert Band from the UI School of Music will perform tonight at 8 p.m. in Hancher Auditorium. The program will feature works by some of the most important composers of the 20th century, including Leonard Bernstein, John Adams, and Philip Glass.

The University Band, conducted by School of Music professor Dr. David Bohnhorst, will perform a contemporary work that reflects the concerns of the world, "The World, War, and Peace," by German composer Dietrich Fischer-Dieskau. The piece is a meditation on the costs of war and the need for peace.

The Concert Band, conducted by UI Assistant Professor of Music Dr. Andrew Price, will perform "Symphony No. 3" by Gustav Mahler. This work is a powerful statement on the dignity of human life and the need for compassion and understanding.
