Police look for magazine solicitors

By Susan H. Waesil

The Daily Iowan

A recent series of complaints to the Iowa City Police Department alleging that salesmen were bothering students while they were out and about has brought into the spotlight the problem of magazine solicitors.

June 5th

The actual number of complaints to the police department regarding solicitors has been increasing. The Iowa City Police Department received 106 complaints regarding solicitation in April and 236 in May. This is compared to the 73 in April and 117 in May for the Johnson County Sheriff's Office.

The solicitors are often found near bus stops, libraries, and other public places where college-age students are likely to be found. The salesmen are typically young men who ask for donations and sell merchandise which he/she sells for profit.

In the past four days, six people have been brought into the Johnson County Sheriff's Office. Three of these people were charged with trespassing. The other three were released until their court dates.

THE RECENT solicitation which has turned up is a door-to-door solicitation of magazine subscriptions which the salesmen advertise as being a way to make money. They claim that these subscriptions are being sold by students for a good cause.

THE INDIVIDUALS who sign up for these programs are likely to be asked if they have a parent or other family member living in Iowa City. If the answer is yes, the solicitor will try to get the student to sign up for a subscription.

These salesmen have been particularly prevalent in the last two weeks. The solicitors are likely to be found near the Johnson County Clerk of Court's Office, the Fitness Center, and the Public Safety building.

THE JUDGE also warned that all signs of the calls we get because people have lost a part of their credit rating.

Judge worries over Iran-Contra case

By Wendy Davis

The Daily Iowan

WASHINGTON — The federal judge presiding over the Iran-Contra case, Judge William P. O'Sullivan, said on Wednesday that the judge should not be tainted by the recent series of complaints regarding solicitors.

He said that the judge should not be influenced by the recent series of complaints. He also said that the judge should not be swayed by the recent series of complaints.

However, the judge widened his inquiry into what impact the recent series of complaints may have on the case.

The judge also said that the recent series of complaints should not be considered in the case.

But 63-36 vote won't be enough to halt Reagan's veto vow

Senate approves trade bill

Only one Democrat, Sen. William Proxmire, voted against the bill. Eleven Republicans voted no.

The bill is designed to ease the nation's trade deficit, which is now $167 billion. The bill would use $20 billion to promote exports, raise tariff rates, and make it easier for companies to qualify for government assistance.

THE HOUSE approved an identical bill in 1983, but lost on a vote in the Senate. This year, the bill is expected to pass.

THE JUDGE also warned that the judge should not be swayed by the recent series of complaints.

Board will hold hearing on elementary pupils' transfer

By Deborah Oliva

The Iowa City School Board will hold a public hearing on early this month.

Chairman David Cleary said he was "very excited about the board's decision to approve this.

Cleary said the board's decision was based on the fact that the proposal would benefit the students.

The hearing will be held Tuesday evening at 7 p.m. in Room A of the Iowa City Public Library.

The hearing will provide an opportunity for the public to provide input and for the board to receive comments on the proposal.

The hearing will be open to the public, and all members of the community are encouraged to attend.

Economists, bankers foresee good year for Midwest farmers

By James W. Metcalfe

Midwest farmers are expected to have a good year in 1989, according to economists and bankers.

The good news comes after a difficult year for Midwest farmers, who faced challenges such as drought and low commodity prices.

Economists and bankers expect better conditions in 1989, with improved crop yields and higher commodity prices.

The good news is expected to benefit farmers across the Midwest, with improvements in their bottom lines.

Farmers are expected to see increased profits, reduced debt, and improved cash flows.

The good news is expected to benefit not only farmers, but also the broader economy of the Midwest region.

Prairie Literature Society will hold four slide shows on landscape projects and horticulture, according to Tomislav Longluc, assistant professor of horticulture.

The slide shows will be held on Tuesdays at 7 p.m. in Room A of the Iowa City Public Library.

The slide shows will feature presentations on topics such as landscape design, plant identification, and horticultural practices.

The slide shows are free and open to the public, and all are encouraged to attend.

Following the slide shows, there will be a book-signing event for the book "Prairie Literature: The Essential Guide to Prairie Plants and Gardening."
National hotline gives facts, info on condoms

By Paula Stern

The Daily Iowan

Of the information you've ever seen in a condom, the least amount was probably the first issue of the International Journal of Condomine Science, published by the University of Iowa. And you probably haven't thought about the biological or psychological implications of condom use.

"It's a little hard to imagine someone looking into that little package and thinking, 'I'm going to use this to prevent pregnancy and this,'" said Dr. Lisa G. Fuchs, a student at the University of Iowa Medical School and the brainchild of the 40-year-old University of Iowa's Office of Student Health and Counseling.

"But many of the issues that surround condom use are very important and very relevant. If we don't think about them, we're not going to be able to solve the problem of unintended pregnancy and sexually transmitted diseases," Fuchs said.

The Iowan talked with Fuchs about the issues that surround condom use.

"I think there are several issues that are important to talk about," Fuchs said. "One is the way that condoms are marketed, and the marketing of condoms is very important. Another is the way that condoms are distributed, and the distribution of condoms is very important. And finally, the way that condoms are used, and the use of condoms is very important."

New law allows students to study at neighboring schools

By Bill Brewer
United Press International

DES MOINES — Parents will be allowed to send their children to school in neighboring districts, at no extra cost, in a measure that is set to become law after Gov. Terry Branstad signed a bill Wednesday by one of his top aides.

The bill, nearly a year in development and held up during the final week of the legislative session, was setting Tuesday for a vote Wednesday — the only day left of the 12-month calendar session.

It would allow a parent to send his or her child to a contiguous district only if the child’s residence district does not offer academic opportunities available elsewhere.

Parents would notify their home district by November of each year whether they plan to enroll their children in a neighboring district. The home district would then have until July 1 to accept or reject the enrollment.

THE STUDENT’S residence district would cover the child’s tuition costs for the following school year. But parents would be responsible for providing their children with transportation to and from school.

Another bill signed Wednesday requires the Department of Education in a year to study ways to enable school districts to identify children who sexually and physically abuse others or are at risk of falling behind in school.

In Iowa, a state education agency is developing programs to assist minority students in advancing academically.

The bill also provides for a reading program to be administered by the State Board of Education to develop a center for early development education at the University of Northern Iowa.

Governor Branstad signed a bill Wednesday that would establish a committee to study the school finance system. The committee would be appointed by the governor and legislative leaders. The committee would have until March 20 to submit its recommendations for a new school finance system.

The bill also requires area education agencies to develop programs to assist minority students in advancing academically and to submit reports to the governor and legislative leaders.

The bill also requires the state Board of Regents to develop a system to enable students to study at neighboring districts.

Reagan, Mulroney discuss acid rain

By Norman D. Sandler
United Press International

WASHINGTON — President Ronald Reagan and Prime Minister Brian Mulroney held their first face-to-face meeting Tuesday to seek ways to defuse a major conflict in U.S.-Canadian relations — one that is emerging as a new flashpoint in the growing international pollution problem.

Setting a symbolic tone for the last leg of a five-day visit to several northwestern states, Reagan and Mulroney talked for nearly an hour about the need for greater cooperation in an area where the two countries are locked in a trade dispute because of Reagan's decision to impose economic sanctions against Canada in a dispute over the latter's failure to meet U.S. demands for controls on acid rain.

The meeting, at the White House, was described as a low-key, informal discussion by officials on both sides.

Reagan and Mulroney are expected to meet again on Thursday.

Reagan and Mulroney discussed the need for an international accord to reduce the level of acid rain in the United States and Canada, which they said is a serious public health problem.

Reagan also discussed the importance of the U.S.-Canadian trade relationship and the need for continued strong cooperation in the area.

The meeting was held in the Oval Office of the White House, with Mulroney and his wife, Nancy, meeting separately with the president and his wife, Barbara, in the Cabinet Room.

In Remarks after the meeting, Reagan said:

"It is important that we continue to work together to find solutions to this complex problem. We share a common interest in protecting the environment and ensuring the well-being of all our citizens."

Democratic candidates take aim at Bush

By Anne Baker

The two parties' front-running presidential candidates, looking ahead to the near-term election of the primary season, commented yesterday on leaving the campaign for the time being.

"The campaign itself has been a little dull," said Michael Dukakis yesterday in announcing he was suspending his campaign for two weeks. "I've always thought it was a little dull and I decided I didn't want to be a part of it anymore."

"We've had a lot of dull, uninteresting moments," said George Bush, when it came to discussing the campaign. "But I'm going to keep fighting until the end, because I think it's important to win."
Constitutional loophole

Tuesday the Jean-Coutu affair took a new twist when the independent counsel law—under which a various set of administrative officials have been and continue to be scrutinized for unwholesome practices from influence peddling to cocaine possession—seems to have been set aside for constitutional reasons. If the law is struck down, preserved, of course, the case of Soames, the Washington, D.C. tax lawyer, will be significantly hampered. The recent jurist帆"construed the law as written would indeed appear to be a dead letter.

The debate over the independent counsel law is a debate over whether the Constitution allows for the creation of special investigatory commissions by the courts to investigate alleged wrongdoing for the purpose of preserving the rights of the individual citizen or for the political convenience of Congress. The latter would have been a farce. The former, if not a fars, would have been a farce.

Interpreting the meaning of the independent counsel law is a key issue that must be resolved before the law can be put to any practical use. The courts have been asked to interpret the law in a way that is consistent with the Constitution, and the independent counsel law must be seen as an example of the political convenience of Congress over the individual citizen.

Israel reports on girl's death
Negligent soldier shot 15-year-old by accident

By William H. Neace
Washington Post

Jerusalem— An official investigation into the death of a 15-year-old Palestinian girl during a clash here Friday has identified an Israeli soldier who shouted "get him" as the trigger of his Hi-Aut rifle.

The soldier was later identified as a 21-year-old Israeli recruit who opened fire at noontime Friday into the middle of a crowd of Palestinian demonstrators in the Arab city of Shejaiya, and killed an Israeli girl. She was pronounced dead at a nearby hospital.

The incident occurred because of clashes that broke out surrounding an Israeli police raid in the Shejaiya neighborhood. The girl was an Israeli citizen and did not say how many people are incarcerated in the Soviet

Soviet paper gives look at labor camp
By Roman Pulicek

PRAGUE— It is not quite a labor camp.

But in a lengthy article, the Czech newspaper Wednesday acknowledged the existence of Soviet-style labor camps and said the Soviet Union must do more to protect the rights of workers in the camps.

The newspaper wrote that the camps were set up on the orders of the Soviet Union's foreign minister.

The article said the camps were set up to monitor and control the work of prisoners and to prevent them from joining anti-Soviet underground movements.

But the article also said the camps were not given proper care, and that the Soviet Union must do more to protect the rights of workers in the camps.

Polish steelworkers continue to strike
By Jackson Dale
Washington Post

CZECHOSLOVAKIA— Steelworkers demanding pay increases for themselves and millions of other Polish workers stopped work here Wednesday after negotiations broke down.

The steelworkers said they were prepared to continue the strike if they were offered an increase in pay and more liberal retirement benefits.

Although they were protesting, steelworkers said they were not prepared for a general strike.

In a third day of an outburst of worker unrest, a total of 26,000 employees of the East German steel industry went on strike Wednesday, which has lasted for a week.

Workers at the plant and opposi-

The strike occurred after the plant management rejected a demand that included a 10% increase in pay and a shorter working week.

Volleyball, tennis scheduled as final intramural events

By Bryan Miller
The Daily Iowan

The intramural season for this year's teams draws to a close today with the volleyball and tennis tournaments at the Field House, with the volleyball match starting at 11 a.m. and the tennis tourney set for 2 p.m. Both matches will be the final intramural events of the season.

This year has been a success for the volleyball and tennis programs, and the final intramural tournaments will be a fitting conclusion to the year, said Dan Mehl, the varsity head volleyball coach and men's tennis head singles coach.

"We've had a good year," Mehl said. "We've been a good team, and we've had a lot of fun this year. We've played some good matches, and we've improved as a team."

The volleyball teams have been successful this year, with the women's team winning the conference championship and the men's team finishing in second place.

The tennis teams have also been competitive, with the women's team finishing in third place and the men's team finishing in fourth place.

Both teams have a shot at winning the intramural championship today. The women's team is favored to win, while the men's team will have to overcome the top-seeded team from Alpha Chi Omega.

The volleyball tournament will begin at 11 a.m. with a match between Alpha Chi Omega and Delta Nu. The winner of that match will face the winner of the match between Sigma Phi Epsilon and Phi Delta Theta in the final round.

"IT IS A LOTT of fun," Ramel said. "It's a good place. I like Iowa City. I like the people here and I like the school." Ramel attended the Swedish University back at home. "I'm not surprised, really, that I've been here," he added.

Friday nights playing a game of basketball after you have been working all day," Ramel said. "It's a great atmosphere. It's like you're at a club. I'm a good basketball player, but I'm not playing basketball, I'm just playing basketball."

"It's great to share that feeling together as a team. It adds another dimension to it, it's just teaching your goals, and teaching your goals gives me a lot of satisfaction."}

"RAMEL'S NEXT GOAL is to play in the pro circuit this summer. Ramel also likes to train at home. (After two years in high school they tried the pro circuit.)" He said. "I don't mean that you are a pro tennis player. Anybody can do it if you believe in yourself and you have a little money to spare." Ramel said his tennis skill has enabled him to do things he wouldn't have been able to do if he didn't have tennis. "I'm a good tennis player, but I'm not a tennis player, I'm just playing tennis."

"I'm enjoying this feeling, knowing other people and being different places. My life wouldn't be the same if I didn't have tennis. It sometimes makes me wonder, Tennis has done it all."
Bands

A band of imaginary strains intone the title song of their latest release, "Cryin'" and wow Iowa City audiences with their energetic performance at the Pentacle at the University of Iowa on Friday night. The group, consisting of two guitarists, a bassist, and a drummer, opened with a subdued, atmospheric slow song, then launched into a more upbeat rhythm for the remainder of their set.

Author Ethan Canin is riding high on success.

NEW YORK — Think of the "hurt-seer" scenario, Edward Canin's newest creation. Think of the nameless author lounging in his penthouse, the editor who comes to his door, the rejection, the new book, the success. Think of the interview, the magazine article, the book tour, the autobiography. Think of the gathering clouds. Then think of the novel, "The Sympathizer.""nt's a complicated story by any other name, Edward Canin said.

Some flamed B-grade flicks charm, entertain, intrigue.

ome in the phylum of "B" movies and you've got it made. Give us a story with a beginning, middle, and end, and you're good to go. Give us an ending that is as good as the beginning, and you've got us chasing the credits. From the art-house to the drive-in, from the cable service to the video, the B-movie is king. It's the world's state of mind in a simple little package, the story of a guy who lives for the movies, who loves to go to the movies, who can't live without the movies. And when the movies aren't good, there's always the B-movie. It's the perfect companion for a rainy day, the perfect escape from the Monday morning blues. And when the movies are good, there's always the B-movie, the perfect complement to a good movie, the perfect way to round out the night. So come on, enjoy the B-movie, and if you don't like it, there's always the next one.
