Counselors meet 1980s high-stress needs

By Debrah Globa
Daily Iowan

More than 30 percent of the students at the University of Iowa said they feel anxious about exams and study time, with 16 percent of those students reporting that they have trouble sleeping. This is according to a study conducted this spring by the University of Iowa Counseling Center.

The study found that 60 percent of students have experienced anxiety in the past year, and nearly 40 percent reported feeling anxious in the past two weeks. The study was conducted by the University of Iowa Counseling Center to assess the mental health needs of students.

"STRESS IS A TEND..."in communication to psychiatrists because we're not reaching out to people who are depressed!" What might be successful to one person might not be successful to another," said Globa. "But UI Student Health Director Mary Klugman, who thinks the study is a good start, says that "the more we publicize Mental Health, the more people will come.""

Globa also recommended that Margaret Koch, UI Counseling Staff psychologist, agreed. "UI students need to understand what mental health issues mean. Careers, family, personal lives, and personal concerns can happen in college." Globa added. "This is a good step forward for students, especially under stress." She said the study is important because it reveals the extent of the problem and helps identify areas where intervention is needed.

The Iowa City School Board will consider a proposal to move students from Lucas Elementary School to Iowa City schools. The proposal has been met with opposition from parents and community members.

The school board is considering a proposal to move students from Lucas Elementary School to Iowa City schools. The proposal was introduced by the school district in an effort to better align student demographics and improve educational outcomes.

One parent, who lives in the Iowa City area, said she was concerned that the proposal would lead to a loss of community and cultural identity. "I'm worried that the students will lose their sense of belonging," she said. "I want them to have a voice in their education and be able to represent their community." She added that the proposal would also lead to increased transportation costs for families.

The school district has proposed moving about 100 students from Lucas Elementary School to Iowa City Community Schools. The district has emphasized that the proposal is in response to changing demographics and the need to better align student demographics with educational resources.

North defends his actions
Claims scandal charges are 'badge of honor'

By Mary Ellis Arch

LINCOLN, Neb. — Other North, a black shirt and standing before a crowd of 7,000, testified Monday that charges against him in the Iran-Contra affair have been "a badge of honor." The former national security aide for President Reagan, who is now on trial in Washington, tried to calm Sunday's flareup of anger in the nation's capital.

"This is not an isolated incident," Mr. North said Monday in his first public address since he officially retired from government service. "It is part of a broader public service that I have been engaged in for 25 years."

Mr. North was speaking at a Fordham University commencement ceremony. He was awarded an honorary doctorate of laws.

"We ARE not going to be doing business. I am sure you, with your lives, your children's lives, your parents lives, your neighbors lives, you will not allow that to happen. And we're not going to be going into our kids that they've got to say no to drugs while we're saying yes to drug-runners and drug smugglers fostering aid to the Contra guerrillas."

The issue isn't whether Mr. North is innocent or guilty; it's whether the president and his staff are above the law, Mr. North said in a reference to the Justice Department's recent decision to forego the criminal prosecution of four former White House aides.

Mr. North, who was introduced by Tom J. Austin, speaker of the House of Representatives, said the president's aides may have been guilty of breaking the law, but they were not guilty of the crime of a cover-up.

"No one is going to be doing business. We're going to be doing business in a way that we can be proud of, not an ashamed of."

WASHINGTON -- In 1979, several weeks after the Select Committee on Presidential Campaign Activities began its probe of the Watergate scandal, the House of Representatives adopted a policy of no payout to congressmen, starting with the 96th Congress. The policy was never applied to senators. And many who claim that it made the job of a congressman more demanding and less lucrative have pointed to the legislation as an example of the kind of changes needed in the congressional grievance policy.

WASHINGTON — In an effort to limit the number of Americans killed by gun violence, the United States Congress has passed the "Gun Safety Act of 2023." The legislation, which includes a mandatory background check for all gun sales, a ban on assault weapons and high-capacity magazines, and increased penalties for straw purchasing and illegal sales, was signed into law by President Joe Biden last week.

The act also includes provisions for mental health screening and suicide prevention, as well as funding for research into gun violence and development of technologies to prevent illegal gun trafficking.

President Biden hailed the legislation as a "historic milestone" in reducing gun violence and saving lives. "This is a day of triumph for all Americans who care about the safety of our children and families," he said in a statement.

The new law is expected to be popular among the American public, with polls showing strong support for stricter gun control measures. However, members of the National Rifle Association (NRA) and its supporters have vowed to challenge the law in court, citing violations of the Second Amendment right to bear arms.

The Gun Safety Act of 2023 represents a significant step forward in the ongoing debate over gun control in the United States, where gun deaths have reached record levels in recent years. The legislation is expected to be a test case for future gun control measures, with both sides of the issue likely to mount sizable campaigns in the upcoming years to influence the outcome of the upcoming elections.

For more information, visit the website of the National Shooting Sports Foundation, the NRA's lobbying arm, or contact your local congressional office to learn more about the new law and its impact on the American gun culture.

Sean Clark’s ‘Bullpen’ plays tonight in ongoing Festival

By Joanna Bell

Sean Clark’s play Bullpen, which had its world premiere in Glasgow in 1988, is now being staged in Des Moines in a production directed by Clark himself.

Clark, a graduate of the University of Iowa, has been working on this play for several years. He wrote it as a way to express his feelings about his own experiences as a minor league pitcher.

The main character in the play, Bullpen, is the story of a pitcher who, after years of waiting for his chance to be great, finally gets his shot. But when the ball hits the screen, the pitcher realizes that he has made a mistake and he must decide what to do next.

“I wanted to write a play about what happens when you’re trying to write a poem, and then you forget what you were trying to say,” Clark said.

Clark found his inspiration for the play in the life of his own father, who is a former minor league pitcher. He also drew on his experiences as a pitcher himself.

Clark’s play Bullpen is being performed at the Des Moines Playhouse, which is located downtown. The play will run through May 31.

The play is being directed by Clark himself, and the cast includes several local actors. The play is being produced by the Des Moines Playhouse in association with the University of Iowa’s Playwrights Festival.

Clark’s play Bullpen is a comedy. His intent is to make people laugh as well as allow the audience to see the world from a different perspective.

“I hope people will be able to relate to the characters in the play and see things differently,” Clark said.

Clark’s play Bullpen is one of the highlights of the ongoing Playwrights Festival, which is being held in Des Moines. The festival features a variety of plays written by local and national playwrights.

The festival is being held at the Des Moines Playhouse, which is located downtown.

The festival is being held from April 15 through May 31.

Black Label ruggers hit 3-game losing skid

By Hugh Delton
The Daily Iowan
Black Label just isn't the same these days.

After winning seven straight games in eight years, the now seven-time NCAA III and IIIAI champion will end this season 6-5. That's the 12th straight season Black Label has lost at least five games.

Senior winger Dan Turner, who scored one of Black Label's four goals Saturday, said the ruggers' loss is a "slight letdown." He said the team "only lost" five games this season.

The ruggers have lost five straight games.

Black Label has not won a game since defeating the University of Wisconsin-Green Bay, University of Wisconsin-La Crosse and University of Wisconsin-Oshkosh in the 1988-89 season.

Senior forward Ted Zussman, who scored two goals Saturday, said the team has "lost its edge."

"We haven't had a full, strong team, which spent eight weeks down in the Florida Keys," Zussman said.

The Florida Keys is the ruggers' training camp.

"Our main problem is that we haven't had a balanced team," Zussman said. "We've been left with four or five good players and a bunch of.IIIAI players.

"I don't think we've been able to turn this season around," Zussman said.

Iowa field hockey player Lisa Tchou and basketball player Pam Davidson were honored for their accomplishments this past season.

Pam's efforts on the basketball court and Lisa's on the hockey field were not limited to Iowa's accomplishments.

"Our team is a lot of the same Big Ten season," says Panthers' head coach, Lisa Tchou. "It's been an exciting season for us, winning games in the Big Eight.

Iowa's Saturday night game against Minnesota and the Big Eight Championship game against Nebraska were some of the highlights.

Lisa Tchou's last home game was on March 20th, and she recorded her team's all-time leading goal scorer with 114 goals.

"Lisa Tchou deserves all the credit for our success this season," says Coach Lisa Tchou. "She has been a key player for us in our success this season.
