Counselors meet 1980s high-stress needs

By Jean Thilmany
The Daily Iowan

Nothing about today's society is getting easier. Faster, stronger, longer — what the "get-ahead" ethic boils down to is added stress on an individual to succeed, and this added stress can have some pretty nasty side effects.

May has been declared Mental Health Awareness Month by the National Institute of Mental Health. The public must become aware of the difference between facing a mental health problem and having a mental illness, according to Carol Spaziani, chairwoman for The Alliance for the Mentally Ill of Johnson County.

"People with mental health concerns are not ill," Spaziani said. "They are people who are the worried well, who are going through a rough time in their lives."

She said mental health is a more general term that does not involve a brain disorder, but has to do with personal problems or stress.

PEOPLE WITH MENTAL health concerns are those who have marital problems, family problems, relationship problems or are the victims of sexual, spouse, or alcohol abuse.

Verne Kelley, executive director of the Mid-East Iowa Community Mental Health Center, said the severity of mental health problems has been growing in recent years. The Community Mental Health Center counsels people with a wide range of personal problems.

"We see a greater proportion of people with severe problems," Kelley said. "Severity is the key thing. It seems to be getting worse but I couldn't say why."

Donald Black, UI assistant professor of psychiatry, denied that stress is a term that has to do with mental health problems.

"STRESS IS A TERM that is meaningless to psychiatrists because no one defines what stress means," Black said. "Does it mean anxiety, depression? What might be stressful to one person might not be stressful to another."

But UI Student Health Director Mary Khowassah said she thinks stress is one reason for the growing number of students counseled by UI Student Mental Health.

"Stress does play a part," she said of the problems students face. "Students have a lot of stress these days."

Margaret Koch, UI Counseling Service staff psychologist, agreed.

"The university can certainly be stressful," she said. "A lot of really horrible things can happen to a college student."

She said students may face anxiety disorders, adjustment reactions, family deaths, the break-up of relationships, and recovery from

Labor unrest leads to strike

Walensa supports effort but denies responsibility

By Bogdan Turek
United Press International

WARSAW, Poland — Weeklong labor unrest spread Monday to the Lenin shipyard of Gdansk, birthplace of the outlawed Solidarity trade union, with the walkout of about 3,000 workers demanding 50 percent pay hikes and freedom of political prisoners, a dissident source said.

Solidarity founder Lech Walesa appeared at the shipyard's front gate and pledged to join the strikers but sought to forestall government action against him by declaring he did not call for the walkout.

Town residents showed support for Solidarity and the strikers by decorating the shipyard's main gate with flowers and a picture of Pope John Paul II in a repeat of their actions of 1980, a dissident source said. A red-and-white banner, reading "The Sit-in Strike," also adorned the gate.

The labor strife that first erupted in the south central city of Krakow last week also extended to the southwest, where 3,700 employees at the Dolmel electric engine plant in Wroclaw struck for several hours and returned to work only when promised a $15-a-month pay increase.

THE AVERAGE WAGE for Polish workers is $105 a month. The worst labor unrest since the birth of Solidarity at the Gdansk shipyard in 1980 erupted into violence Sunday when thousands of workers rallied throughout Poland in support of 20,000 striking steelworkers at the Lenin foundry in the Krakow suburb of Nowa Huta. Baton-wielding police clashed with demonstrators in some cities, crushing nine of 20 May Day protest rallies, and detained more than 160 people, dissident sources said.

By Monday, the number of strikers at the Nowa Huta plant had dropped to about 12,000, said Jan Ciesielski, a strike committee member. The strike cost the government $2.6 million a day, the Polish media said.

A government spokesman confirmed that the labor unrest spread to the Gdansk shipyard Monday, saying "the strike is under way." But he could not specify the number of strikers.

GOVERNMENT SPOKESMAN Jerzy Urban said the Baltic facility in Gdansk "is working," denying a statement by dissident Jacek Kuron who said "the operation of the shipyard was brought to a halt."

The shipyard workers demanded 50 percent pay hikes, freedom of all political prisoners in Poland, revival of the banned Solidarity union and reinstatement of many workers dismissed for political reasons and for supporting the steelworkers' strike, the dissident source said.

Police surrounded the shipyard, not allowing strikers' families to bring in food and detaining Solidarity leader Bogdan Lis, a close Walesa associate, the sources said.

Harmon charged with assault in Burlington Street incident

By Trackable
The Daily Iowan

Former Iowa football player Kevin Harmon was charged Monday with assault causing injury after allegedly striking a man during an incident Saturday on the Burlington Street Bridge, according to Johnson County District Court records.

Harmon, who was drafted by the Seattle Seahawks in the fourth round of the NFL draft April 24, was charged with assault after he allegedly hit the victim in the mouth with his fist. The victim suffered a broken tooth, according to court records.

The incident occurred after the victim allegedly assaulted Harmon's car while crossing the Burlington Street Bridge against traffic in Iowa City, according to court records.

When contacted Monday night, Harmon declined to comment on the matter.

A hearing in the case is set for May 17 in Johnson County District Court, according to court records.

Assault causing injury is a serious misdemeanor which is punishable by up to one year in jail and a $1,000 fine.

The 6-foot, 200-pound running back from Laurelton, N.Y., led Iowa in rushing with 715 yards during his senior season despite being plagued by injuries.

Parents voice concerns to school board

By Deborah Gluba
The Daily Iowan

More than 50 parents cited drops in property values, safety concerns and lengthened walks to schools as reasons for opposing proposed Iowa City School District boundary changes at a public hearing Monday night.

Iowa City School Board members listened as concerned parents said they were unhappy with proposed boundary changes, which would force the transfer of about 73 students from Lucas Elementary School to Lemme and Longfellow Elementary Schools.

The proposed plan involves transferring about 27 Lucas students who live in the Arbor Drive vicinity to Lemme.

In addition, approximately 15 Lucas Elementary School students living on Meadowbrook Court will be bused to Lemme Elementary School and 31 students who are now bused to Lucas Elementary School from the rural area of Johnson County will be bused to Longfellow.

THE CHANGES were recommended by the Iowa City Community Schools Demographic Study Committee on April 12.

The committee recommendation involved the transfer of about 100 students to compensate for overcrowding at Lucas. A revised version of the plan, submitted by Iowa City Schools Superintendent David Cronin April 26 reduced the number of students to be moved to about 73.

The revision was introduced by Cronin to avoid 40 percent of the students at Longfellow be new students in 1988-1989.

Approximately 31 students living in the Modern Manor and Sunrise Mobile Home Village who were to be transferred to Longfellow under the original plan, will continue to be allowed to attend Lucas.

Cronin outlined the committee proposal at the hearing and said the 40-member committee looked at demographic trends in the east side schools and considered 28 different possibilities before making its final recommendation.

"IT'S MY observation these people came together in the spirit of trying to find the best solution possible," Cronin said.

But Judy and Bob Richardson, 3218 Arbor Drive, said they did not think the proposal was fair to children in their neighborhood who currently attend Lucas and would be forced to transfer.

David Cronin

The couple gathered 92 signatures against the proposed boundary changes and introduced an alternative to the committee recommendation, which they said would eliminate the need to transfer Lucas students.

"We are all concerned about the welfare of our children," Judy Richardson said.

She said she was concerned for her children's safety because they would have to cross Court Street to reach Lemme.

"Court Street is a natural divider for separating neighborhoods," she said.

ANOTHER RESIDENT said she was concerned about the distance her children would have to walk if they were transferred to another school.

Dolly Chestnut, 620 Brookside Drive, said her child's walk would increase from eight minutes to 28 minutes, if they were included in the transfer to Lemme.

But Chestnut was not sure if her block was included in the plan, noting her residence was on the border in the proposed boundary changes.

"The map that was presented to me was the map the committee worked with," she said. "But nowhere in this letter is Brookside Drive mentioned."

The board members were not able to definitively answer her question but promised to consult with committee members to and send a written response.

"This is the reason for the public hearing. There are parts that are not clear to us, as they are not clear to you," Iowa City School Board Chair Lynne Cannon said.

FSU bans Pikes for alleged gang rape

United Press International

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. — Florida State University banned the Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity from campus for five years Monday for obstructing a police investigation of an alleged gang rape in its house.

Dean of Students Jim Hayes said the sanction — the toughest against any FSU student organization in his nine years at the university — was recommended by a special administrative committee established to deal with the case.

Two residents of the FSU Pike house are charged in the March 5 sexual assault of a drunken, 18-year-old female FSU student in the house. A third fraternity member from Auburn University is charged with helping to dump the unconscious victim in the hallway of the Theta Chi fraternity house next door.

"Upon recommendation of the administrative hearing committee, and after review by university administrators, Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity has been disbanded for a period of five years," said a university statement.

"THEY NO longer exist," Hayes added.

"It's pretty clear the allegations are considered quite serious. So was the whole issue of whether there was cooperation with the police in the past month or so,"

Seminar on business held

"Women in Business: Expanding the Dream" will be the theme of a conference designed to provide information and support for women business owners in the eastern Iowa area who wish to expand their businesses.

The conference will be held today and Wednesday at the downtown Holiday Inn and is being sponsored by the eastern Iowa chapters of the National Association of Women Business Owners, the U.S. Small Business Administration and the National Federation of Independent Businesses.

Speakers at the conference will include Mary Del Brady, former president of the National Association of Women Business Owners; Carol Crockett, Director of the Office of Women's Business Ownership in Washington, D.C.; and Sharlyne Powell, who was named an Avon 1987 Women of Enterprise Award Honoree.

For more information about the conference, contact the Iowa Department of Economic Development at 1-800-532-1216.

UI professor wins award

UI College of Medicine Professor Allyn L. Mark is the recipient of the MERIT — Method to Extend Research in Time — award given by the National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute of the National Institutes of Health.

Mark is the director of the Cardiovascular Division of the UI Department of Internal Medicine.

The MERIT Award is the most prestigious award given by the NHLBI to individual investigators. It is granted to researchers with a record of sustained scientific achievement and demonstrated leadership to pursue research deemed highly meritorious by the NHLBI research review group.

Mark will receive 10 years of financial support from the NHLBI to pursue research on the effects of exercise and psychological stress on the cardiovascular system in humans.

Dentists on increase

The number of dental practices in Iowa has been slightly but steadily increasing since 1968, according to a survey conducted by researchers at the UI College of Dentistry.

The survey also found that the number of communities in Iowa with practicing dentists decreased during the 1970s, but has been on the rise since 1977.

The research was conducted by Howard Field, UI associate professor of preventive and community dentistry; Jane Jakobsen, research assistant in preventive and community dentistry; and Nelson Logan, associate dean of academic affairs.

The Iowa Dental Association also cooperated with the study. Field says although the number of Iowa dentists rose over a 13-year period from 1,209 in 1973 to 1,327 in 1986, the increase is not significant. Also, 116 out of 253 Iowa communities with dentists had only a single dentist in 1986.

In the area of infection control, the 1986 survey found that dentists were not greatly concerned about protection against possible infection from patients.

"If the survey were taken again today, the data would be much different," Field said. He believes that guarding against infectious diseases would be much more important to practicing dentists in 1988 because of concern over the spreading AIDS virus.

The 1986 figures showed that only 22 percent of Iowa dentists used rubber gloves most of the time, while 66 percent used them occasionally. The gloves are used to prevent contracting infections from a patient who might have an infectious illness.

Also, 61 percent were found to use face masks occasionally and 75 percent wore either prescription glasses or protective goggles most of the time.

Council discusses proposal for denied zoning requests

By Sara Anderson
The Daily Iowan

The Iowa City Council discussed a proposal for the city's legal department Monday which would require councilors to give their reasons for denying zoning requests.

The proposal would have councilors state their reasons for denying zoning requests in the form of a resolution.

Iowa City Attorney Terry Timmins and Senior Planner Karin Franklin requested that the council approve the proposal because they said documented prior discussion can be submitted instead of testimony in court.

Timmins said approval of the proposal would give him more of an opportunity to defend the city's zoning decisions in court. "I think in the end it avoids lots of discomfort at trial," Timmins said.

Franklin also supported the request, saying that resolutions stating reasons for zoning request denials would help better document those decisions for future reference.

"BASICALLY WHAT it is a document of history," she said. "It tells what you did at the meeting before."

But the council deferred action on the request after some councilors expressed concern that debate over the resolutions could be too time consuming.

Councilors also agreed during the meeting to defer action on a resolution regarding improvement of Foster Road, Taft Speedway and Calibria Court until the city staff completes a study pertaining to putting traffic signals at Taft Speedway and Dubuque Street. Councilors had also requested more time to discuss flooding in the Taft Speedway area.

The council had asked for more information at a meeting two weeks ago about what needs to be done. Iowa City Manager Stephen Atkins requested an additional two weeks to prepare a policy summary which will review previous planning.

In other business, the council heard from Iowa City architect Benjamin Chait, who bid on a parcel of land near Ralston Creek. Chait plans to convert the old Regina Elementary School building to apartments and townhouses if the city accepts his bid.

Bill will allow vets to use drugs on Iowa racehorses

By Bill Brewer
United Press International

DES MOINES — Saying it could assure "first-class racing" in Iowa, Gov. Terry Branstad said Monday he plans to sign a controversial bill allowing the use of certain drugs on race horses.

The bill, which was the final measure passed in the 1988 legislative session, would allow veterinarians to administer small amounts of the anti-inflammatory drug phenylbutazone, or bute, to horses to prevent swelling of the joints during a race.

The bill also would allow track veterinarians to administer the diuretic lasix to horses that have a history of bleeding in the lungs during a race.

The measure is a priority of developers of Iowa's first pari-mutuel horse track now under construction in Altoona and state racing commissioners, who said the current prohibition against the use of drugs on race horses would discourage owners of top thoroughbreds from bringing their animals to Iowa.

HOWEVER, several lawmakers argued during debate on the measure the use of lasix could mask the presence of other drugs in race horses and that either drug could affect an animal's performance, possibly endangering the lives of horses and jockeys.

Branstad said at his regular news conference Monday he believes lawmakers built sufficient safeguards into the bill to minimize danger to animals and to assure clean racing in the state.

"Under those circumstances, I feel confident this is an appropriate step and one that is consistent with our intention to have quality and first-class racing in this state," Branstad said.

On another topic, the Republican governor said he still has not decided whether to sign or veto legislation to set up a state-managed insurance pool to pay large medical malpractice claims. He said strong opposition to the proposal from House Republicans will be only "just one of many factors" in his ultimate decision.

THE GOP lawmakers, led by House Minority Leader Del Stromer of Garner, Friday urged Branstad to veto the bill. The lawmakers said the state-managed insurance fund may have to be subsidized by up to $13 million in state funds annually. They said a 1 percent surcharge on patient hospital bills and on doctors' malpractice insurance premiums to fund the risk pool would be insufficient to cover its losses.

Todd P. Lynch, 18, was charged after a fight was reported at about 1:35 a.m. Saturday. Vandalism to a vehicle also was reported at that time, according to the report.

Theft: A stereo receiver and cassette player, value unknown, were reported stolen Sunday morning from an Iowa City home, according to police reports.

The victim in the 800 block of East Washington Street reported at about 8 a.m. Sunday that someone had broken in and stole the items, according to the report.

Courts

By Traci Auble
The Daily Iowan

A man was charged with fourth-degree theft and possession of prescription drugs Monday after he admitted to stealing prescription drugs from a room at the Emergency Housing Shelter, 331 N. Gilbert St., according to Johnson County District Court records.

Thomas M. Kollasch, 24, no address listed, was observed removing some prescription drug vials from the room of a female occupant of the Emergency Housing Shelter. The occupant said that her prescribed drugs were stolen from her room, according to court records.

Kollasch allegedly returned to the Emergency Housing Project on Sunday, and after being advised of his rights by officers, he admitted he had stolen the drugs and hidden them in the basement of the house. Kollasch said he was in the process of returning for them at the time, according to court records.

Kollasch was being held Monday in the Johnson County Jail on $1,000 bail. A preliminary hearing in the case is set for May 12, according to court records.

NIGHT RESERVED PARKING ZONES IMPLEMENTED

Portions of University parking lots 3, 4, 30, and all of Lot 35 have recently been designated as protected evening parking zones for Faculty and Staff. Between 5:30 PM and 7:30 AM, and all day on Saturdays and Sundays, cars parked in these zones will be required to display a reserved permit. Faculty/Staff Reserved Ramp permits from all lots are valid in any of these designated facilities during these times. Vehicles without the proper permits will be considered in violation and will receive a ticket. Commuter, meter and storage permits are not valid in these zones. Regulations for weekday parking within these facilities, and existing regulations for evening parking in other facilities will remain unchanged.

The zones are designated by signs and will be further highlighted with red flags through the remainder of the semester. Lot 3 is located directly south of the English Philosophy Building, lot 4 is east and north of Gilmore Hall, lot 30 is west of the Health Sciences Library, and lot 35 is between the Engineering Building and the offices of the Security Department.

These areas have been set aside in order to provide parking for University faculty and staff who must teach or work in the evenings. The majority of reserved parking spaces will remain open at night so that students, staff and the public may use them while attending University functions.

North defends his actions

Claims scandal charges are 'badge of honor'

By Mary Ellen Arch
United Press International

LYNCHBURG, Va. — Oliver North, in a black robe and standing before a massive American flag, said Monday charges against him in the Iran-Contra scandal were a "badge of honor" and drew cheers from 900 Liberty University graduates.

In his first public address since he officially retired Sunday from the Marine Corps, the former lieutenant colonel also urged graduates of the school founded by the Rev. Jerry Falwell to vote and seek public office. "We need more than the right president. We need a better Congress," North said in a commencement address filled with references to the arms-for-hostages deal that he helped orchestrate from the basement of the White House.

Falwell, who is conducting a nationwide campaign to get North pardoned, announced he had so far obtained 600,000 signatures on the petition, which he vowed "to present to the White House personally."

THE FORMER National Security Council aide — called a "national hero" by President Ronald Reagan — took aim at Congress' probe of the affair, calling it "the largest investigation" in the nation's history.

North, accused along with other Reagan aides of running a secret operation to sell arms to Iran and divert funds to the U.S.-supported Contras fighting in Nicaragua, faces 16 criminal charges and a maximum 85 years in prison if convicted.

North, standing in front of a 20-foot by 30-foot American flag, said he had been "accused of trying to rescue American hostages held captive and of trying to prevent other terrorist attacks."

THE CROWD of graduates, family members and university figures, officially estimated at around 10,000, gave North a standing ovation when he declared, "Those accusations are not a brand; they are a badge of honor."

In a counter measure to Falwell's petition, the Washington-based group People For The American Way announced Monday it had launched a national campaign to oppose a pardon and said North "deserves a trial."

"The issue isn't whether Ollie North is innocent or guilty; it's whether the president and his staff are above the law," said Arthur Kropp, president of the non-partisan constitutional liberties organization.

At the lectern, the clean-cut 44-year-old North opposed the cutoff of aid to the Nicaraguan resistance, saying in an apparent reference to Vietnam that the United States shouldn't commit to helping a nation overcome tyranny and then abandon it. "That tragedy," he said, "is about to be repeated in Nicaragua."

North's address focused on patriotism and family, and he urged the students to hold fast "to your compass of values."

Front-runner Dukakis picked to handily win Ohio primary

By Anne Saker
United Press International

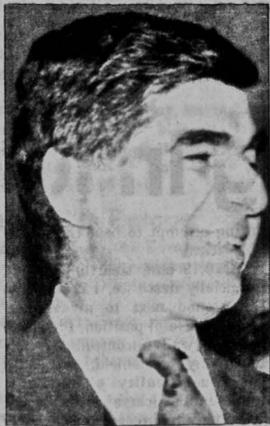

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Democratic front-runner Michael Dukakis attacked the administration for a lax attitude toward the law and promised Monday, "We're going to put the word justice back into the Department of Justice."

With presidential primaries Tuesday in Indiana, the District of Columbia and delegate-rich Ohio, Dukakis hopped from Cincinnati to Columbus to Cleveland to close out his campaign in the Buckeye State. A poll Monday indicated the Massachusetts governor will handily win Ohio.

Dukakis' rival, civil rights leader Jesse Jackson, capped his day with emotional rallies at Cleveland-area schools where he delivered a strong anti-drug message.

FOR a second day, Dukakis aimed at the likely Republican nominee, Vice President George Bush, and toiled up what could be a potent weapon in a Democratic nominee's arsenal in the fall election — the criminal and ethical problems of the Reagan administration.

At a lunchtime rally in Columbus, Dukakis noted that May 1 is marked Law Day in the United States and vowed his would be an administration that would adhere to the "rule of law."

"We are a government of laws, and not of men and women. . . . If with your help, Mike Dukakis is elected president of the United States, we're going to put the word justice back into the Department of Justice," he said. "And we're going to have an attorney general you can be proud of, not ashamed of."

"WE ARE not going to be doing business, I can assure you, with drug-running Panamanian dictators," he said. "And we're not going to be telling our kids that they've got to say no to drugs while we're saying yes to drug-runners and drug-peddlers funneling aid to the Contras."

Sunday in Akron, Ohio, Dukakis said the Justice Department under Attorney General Edwin Meese "is rapidly becoming a laughingstock." When asked what role Bush has played in the administration's criminal and ethical problems, Dukakis said, "I'm not sure I can assess what that role has been because he's such a blank slate and one doesn't know."

At stake Tuesday were a total of 254 delegates to the Democratic National Convention. Ohio is the big prize because 154 delegates are up for grabs, but the weight of the state's primary was reduced by Dukakis' convincing victories in New York April 19 and Pennsylvania April 26.

Those wins cemented Dukakis' status as front-runner, but Jackson has been running hard in Ohio and has said he will stay in the race through the Atlanta convention in July to provide a "choice between margarine and butter."

Pappas suicide indicates trouble of congressional grievance policy

By E. Michael Myers
United Press International

WASHINGTON — In 1977, a group of Capitol Hill aides wearing paper sacks over their heads went before a congressional commission to ask for some way of filling grievances about their working conditions.

The rights of most American workers to appeal for relief from job discrimination on the basis of sex, age, religion or sexual preference end at the steps of the Capitol because Congress has exempted itself from the same rules it legislates for others.

"It's an embarrassment for Congress," one staff aide said Monday, reviewing the virtual absence of a system under which young, inexperienced staffers can seek to protect themselves from possible sexual harassment or other job abuse.

"We have a 'do as we say, not as we do attitude,'" another said.

SEVERAL SENIOR staff aides said the reported personnel problems of young men recruited by Tom Pappas, an administrative assistant to Rep. Roy Dyson, D-Md., could not have had an effective grievance before Congress.

The Washington Post reported on Sunday that Pappas made unusual social demands on young male staffers that were representative of "a troubling pattern of conduct" in the congressman's office.

Pappas, 46, apparently jumped to his death from a New York hotel room Sunday just hours after the story appeared.

The newspaper said Pappas required male staff members to accompany him socially, told one that he could not date for a year and another that he would have to perform a strip tease at an office retreat.

All of the aides insisted on anonymity before they would comment on the situation because they are as vulnerable to instant dismissal as the greenest new employee on the Hill.

"You can go to the ethics committees, but it is stacked against you," one aide said.

How dry we are

Studying for final exams while the weather is beautiful is a difficult task indeed — but there's a solution.

Pray for rain.
 Acting state climatologist Harry Hillaker of the Iowa Department of Agriculture reports that the amount of Iowa City rainfall in the first four months of 1988 is the lowest since the Dust Bowl year of 1934. According to Hillaker, normal rainfall for the period January through April is 8.25 inches; so far this year, a paltry 4.18 inches has fallen from the sky.

"It's a bad time of year for things to be so dry," Hillaker said Monday. "There may not be enough moisture for corn to germinate." This could force some Johnson County farmers to replant, he said.

Things are not as dire when it comes to drinking water. According to Jerry DeMarce, a park ranger at the Coralville Dam, there is sufficient flow to Iowa City water systems. But that may not last if things keep up the way they are going.

"We anticipate spring rains," DeMarce said, "but we haven't gotten any."

April, usually the wettest spring month, has been an especial disappointment for water watchers. The heavens relinquished only about one-third of their usual gifts.

This news is surely received with some ambivalence. While nobody can begrudge Iowa farmers their precious H<sub>2</sub>O, the weather has provided us with a much-needed opportunity to hang loose, catch some rays, toss around the 'bee, take the kids to the park.

But now the weekend is over, and the final lap of the spring semester race is upon us. Why study over the sweet scent of magnolia blossoms? Why pretend to read Plato while stretched out on a beach towel, when all you really want to do is deepen your tan? How can anyone be expected to concentrate on organic chemistry in the dismal dark of the library while spring bursts into balmy fullness outside — and inside — our cabin-fevered bodies?

So do us all a favor. This week, when you ask divine guidance on that bear of a Latin test, throw in a little extra supplication.

Pray for rain.

Correct label

Surgeon General C. Everett Koop will soon release a report which will declare nicotine an addictive substance. This will make official what thousands of doctors and millions of smokers have known for years.

People tend think of a tobacco habit as a very minor-league sort of compulsion. The trials and tribulations of the smoker who goes "cold turkey" have been the stuff of screen and TV comedy for years. The reality is not so funny. Ask anyone who has given the devil weed up. Or ask your doctor. Chances are he or she has seen someone who, when told "Quit smoking or die," opted for the latter.

Tobacco users don't have to hide or steal to support their habits so we don't normally lump them with junkies, crack users or even alcoholics. But the fact is that the ratio of users to addicts is much higher for tobacco than for heroin, cocaine or alcohol. By this measure tobacco is perhaps the most addictive drug.

Koop's report could be a first step towards elimination of the codified hypocrisy which calls some imported substances dangerous drugs, but classifies a homegrown, government-subsidized killer as a crop. Ultimately, such institutionalized double standards will prove more corrosive to our society than any of the temptations from which our laws "protect" us.

Plenty of culture

Usually this editorial writer finds fellow Daily Iowan editorial columnist J.L. McClure slightly amusing. Not yesterday.

Perhaps my disgust at his column "(Waste)land between rivers" stems from 22 years spent in this "fin-de-siècle Vienna with seed caps and pickup trucks." Or perhaps all the tired, pointless, Mike Royko-ish Iowa bashing that has become so popular since THE CAUCUSES has gotten to me.

McClure, it seems, is unhappy with an advertising supplement that will appear in the June 6 issue of Business Week magazine by the Iowa Department of Economic Development. The purpose of the advertisement is to show another side of the state — the cultural side.

McClure implies that, with the placement of this ad, the DED is trying to lure businesses to Iowa by hiding the fact that Iowa is an agricultural region, that we grow corn here, that we once crowned a pork queen. That is not the case. That is ridiculous. What would be the point of denying — and therefore negating — our very livelihood?

Is there an unwritten geographical rule that Iowa cannot offer cultural advantages because farmers live here and some of them drive pickups? Is there something ludicrous about advertising Hancher Auditorium and the world premiere of The Nutcracker and award-winning community theater?

McClure, methinks thou dost protest too much. (Oh, that's Shakespeare, for all you out-of-staters who maybe weren't sure.)

Perils of parking in Iowa City

Two years ago, it seemed prudent enough. I'll have to hand it to them, Mom and Dad warned me. None of your friends will have a car at college. None of our friends' kids have a car at college. But I insisted.

Back then, what did I know? To a naive incoming freshman, a car meant laughing at gusting winds and pouring rain. A car meant scoffing at Iowa City's frigid winters and scalding summers. It meant basking in cozy heat and cool air conditioning.

Most of all, it was the crucial option. The comfortable convenience resulting from centuries of man's epic struggle for technology. The fundamental weapon in my arsenal of laziness.

How was I to know that an innocent gold 1978 Toyota Celica would be like a piece of rancid meat in a desert full of drooling vultures?

9:22 a.m. Running nude through the parking lot, furiously pulling on clothes and trying to stop the blood gushing from 100 small razor cuts on my face, I climb into my trusted mount. I will not allow myself to miss this class. Thank God, I say ironically to myself, for this rusting imported vehicle.

9:23 a.m. I speed down the driveway and race furiously along North Riverside Drive, obsessed with punctual education.

By Jay Casini

Digressions

9:23.5 a.m. Despite the high rate of speed at which I am travelling for the sole reason of becoming a more educated, and thus better, person, I realize I am being followed. Behind me, a lone compact car emblazoned with UI markings follows closely.

9:25 a.m. As I hurtle along Riverside Drive, similar cars peel away from the curb and fall into formation behind the original UI car.

9:27 a.m. With time running out, I pull into the Main Library parking lot, searching wildly for a parking spot and trailing a huge tentacle of UI cars and Campus Security vehicles behind me.

9:30 a.m. A young couple backs out of a parking spot, and I deftly cut off a long line of bulkier American-made autos to claim the spot. Cramming a quarter in the meter, I rush off to further my quest for knowledge. Immediately, two dozen UI employees burst from their vehicles and surround my Toyota. The meter ticks ominously.

10:18 a.m. Opting to skip the last two vital minutes of lecture, I slink from the classroom in a daring attempt to beat the inevitable ticket.

10:19 a.m. Heartbroken and financially destitute, I crumple to the ground next to my vehicle. Lying in a fetal position, I begin to sob and wail uncontrollably. Littering my windshield, bathed in the cruel reality of daylight, innumerable tickets flutter in the crisp morning breeze.

Of course, this story is not completely true. The astute reader will refer to the mere three-minute time lapse between entering the UI Main Library Parking lot and actually finding a spot. This, in all but the most miraculous of circumstances, is ridiculous.

Even with this minor exaggeration, the story captures the cruel torment of the car owner in Iowa City — the grim reality that confronts one trapped on a campus devoid of standard automotive courtesy.

MAYBE IT'S me. I came to the UI two years ago from Muscatine, Iowa, a "River City" town of 25,000 or so just 30 minutes from here if you speed all the way.

It's the kind of town where you get a parking ticket when you leave the damned thing parked somewhere all night. Maybe.

It's the kind of town where, like almost anywhere else in the free world, flashing hazard lights mean something. Something like, "Relax, give me five minutes." They're like an unwritten code telling the ticket person to just be cool for a few minutes.

Well, not here. Here in Iowa City the ticket people can't just be cool for a few minutes. But it isn't their fault.

They aren't human. Oh, they might have been. Before the indoctrination.

Whether they're from the city or the UI, parking meter watchers or Campus Policefolk, it doesn't matter. They all go to the same place. Innocently, they sign on to the traffic patrol and then they're whisked away in the middle of the night to a lonely work farm near Solon, Iowa.

The details are too horrible to mention, but after six months at the camp everything about them changes.

Now, I take some sadistic pleasure just watching them. Standing in the relative safety of a crowded Cambus, my face pushed uncomfortably close to the punishing armpit of the man standing in front of me, I watch them pounce on unattended vehicles.

But they won't get me. I won't depend on simple courtesy, or recognition of the urgency of education or even pure human compassion. Not anymore. I know the truth.

How Slat's lost his cymbals

Many people were shocked by the story of the two baseball players who swapped their wives, children — even their dogs. They see it as still another example of our new, loose morality.

That may be. But it isn't the first time such a thing has happened.

I remember a slightly similar incident involving the Grobnik family, who used to live in my old neighborhood.

The cause of it all was Slat's Grobnik, the eldest son.

One day he decided to join the alderman's marching boys band, which played in his parades and rallied and also threw stones at windows displaying pictures of his opponent.

The alderman had been Slat's hero ever since his father had said he never worked a day in his life.

BECAUSE OF his peculiar ear for music, Slat's was given the cymbals to play. He rushed home and immediately began practicing. He hoped that if he did well, the alderman would let him play something else, such as the horses.

Mr. Grobnik was working nights at the time, so when Slat's began marching through the flat, clanging the cymbals, he came roaring out of bed.

He hit Slat's on the head with one of the cymbals, causing the boy's eyes to roll even more than they usually did.

This touched off a terrible row, with Mrs. Grobnik crying that her husband should not stifle Slat's musical development.

Mike Royko

That was when Mr. Grobnik said he would like to swap his family.

"I would trade all of you for a little peace and quiet," he shouted, hitting Mrs. Grobnik with a cymbal too.

"Ma, you can get alimony," Slat's yelled. "I will be your witness."

Mrs. Grobnik gathered her clothes and children and said she was leaving and would not return until Mr. Grobnik apologized.

AT FIRST, Mr. Grobnik could not believe they were really gone. To make sure, he changed the locks. Then he went back to bed.

Mrs. Grobnik took the children and went around the corner to stay with her friend, Ruby Peak, who had a nice apartment above the war-surplus store.

"Now you are the man of the family," Mrs. Grobnik tearfully told Slat's. He turned pale, thinking that meant he might have to go to work.

Word of the break-up quickly spread through the neighborhood. Naturally, some of the unattached women set their caps for Mr. Grobnik. They didn't get anywhere with him, though, because he didn't like women who wore caps.

The shapely widow who ran the corner bakery hurried over with some fresh sweet rolls for him.

AND AS MR. Grobnik ate them, she leaned forward and whispered huskily in his ear:

"Is there anything else you would like?"

"Yeah," he said, "next time bring a loaf of rye."

When Slat's teacher heard of the separation, she worried that he might suffer a trauma.

The next day he came to class with tears streaming down his face.

The teacher assumed it had something to do with his home life. Actually, somebody in the schoolyard had told a filthy joke and Slat's had laughed until he cried.

She put her arm around him and said: "There, there."

Slat's said: "Where, where?" and gave her a pinch.

She ordered him from the room, which didn't bother Slat's, as he figured he had learned enough for one day.

A FEW DAYS after the separation, old Mrs. Novak asked Slat's what his mother was doing.

"She is going to Reno," Slat's said. He didn't know what that meant, but he had heard someone say it in a movie.

Old Mrs. Novak didn't know what it meant either. She figured it must mean Mrs. Grobnik had run off with a man named Reno.

So she went to the grocery store and told all the other ladies about it.

"I'll bet he is a no-good gigolo," one of them said.

That afternoon, they all told their husbands that Mrs. Grobnik was carrying on with Mr. Reno, a notorious gigolo.

The husbands discussed it in the tavern. One of them said: "I think I know the guy. He lives over in the Italian neighborhood."

Another said: "I know the one. He has a mustache and hangs out in the pool hall."

WHEN MR. Grobnik stopped for a beer, they told him his wife was in love with a notorious pool shark and fortune hunter named Reno, who had a mustache and wore pointy shoes.

"Everybody in the neighborhood knows about it," the bartender said. "I hear she has even sold her wedding ring to give him money."

Enraged, Mr. Grobnik went to the pool hall and punched the first man he saw wearing a mustache. He turned out to be a jukebox distributor, and three of his boys beat Mr. Grobnik with pool cues.

When Mr. Grobnik came to in the hospital, his wife and children were at his bedside. Mrs. Grobnik said she would come back home and make Slat's give up the cymbals.

"Will you stay away from Reno?" Mr. Grobnik said.

"But Reno is in Nevada," said Mrs. Grobnik.

Mr. Grobnik smiled. "Good. I must have really taught him a lesson."

Letter urges democratic reform

By Jack Redden
United Press International

MOSCOW — A letter published Monday on the front of the newspaper Pravda warned that the success of Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev's reform program depends on the introduction of greater democracy inside the ruling Communist Party.

The pro-Gorbachev letter, signed by V. Selivanov, deputy administration head at the Ministry of the Aviation Industry, accused high-ranking party officials of ignoring the wishes of rank-and-file members.

"The main question of perestroika (the reform program) is democratization of society, and that is not going to happen without democratization within the party," said the Pravda letter, which was boxed on the front of the Communist Party's main newspaper and then continued on page 3.

It was the latest in a series of letters reflecting an intense struggle between reformers and conservatives in the period before a key meeting of 5,000 members of the Communist Party at the end of June. The conservatives are widely believed to be led by Yegor Ligachev, the No. 2 man in the ruling Politburo.

TWO DAYS EARLIER, a letter in another newspaper, Sovetskaya Kultura, said Gorbachev had vast support across the country but could be dismissed by unnamed senior members of the party opposed to his reforms.

In his letter, Selivanov ridiculed official pronouncements that regularly say "the party decided" on any particular action. Instead, he said, decisions are handed down from the top and then receive "unanimous approval" from party members.

The letter called for election by secret ballot of officials as high as the first secretaries of cities and regions of the country. Those ballots would leave only leaders of entire republics, such as Georgia or Russia, still elected by the traditional unanimous and open show of hands.

Selivanov also suggested editors of party newspapers and magazines be elected, another move that could strengthen the position of reformers. Gorbachev's policy of glasnost, or openness, has found its strongest support among the intelligentsia, including journalists.

for the Gdansk workers in 1980, sneaked into the shipyard despite the police cordon and prayed with the workers, the source said.

HE COUNSELED THEM "to be wise, strong and watchful of provocations, both from the outside and inside," the dissident source said.

Industry Minister Jerzy Bilip told a television broadcast that he will demand that other government ministers use "all accessible means in line with law" to end the strike.

Bilip said the wage demands by steelworkers, who seek a 70 percent monthly wage hike and a $30-a-month increase for 12 million people employed in state-run enterprises, were unrealistic because the government would be forced to print the equivalent of $1.3 billion.

"The shelves in the shops would be completely empty," he said.

About 200 Gdansk shipyard workers, some carrying a red-and-white national banner, ran through the shipyard urging the work force of 12,000 to strike, the dissident source said. They gathered about 2,000 to 3,000 followers, who displayed a big Solidarity banner and blocked the main gate to the shipyard, the source said.

"THE GROUP DECLARED they are on strike," the source said. Walesa immediately appeared in front of the gate and told the strikers, "I am with you. But I did not call for this strike," he said in anticipation of possible government action charging him with instigating the strike.

The Stetson University chapter was suspended for one year last substance abuse or chronic family problems.

Stetson fraternity members also were ordered to participate in a campus program set up to study alcohol abuse and the dignity of human life.

THE UI COUNSELING Service provides psychologists for individual counseling and therapy, referrals, group counseling and outreach programs. It is free and available to all UI students, according to Koch.

Counseling Service Director Gerald Stone said the service provides a continuum of programs for students facing a variety of problems.

"Most students have developmental concerns like how to improve interpersonal skills or how to choose a vocation," Stone said. "But we see students suffering from more serious problems like relationship problems or possibly a personality disorder."

Stone said he refers students with serious problems either to UI Student Health, a private doctor, or another area of help in the Iowa City community.

HE SAID HIS organization coordinates efforts with other health agencies on campus such as UI Special Support Services, Health Iowa, or the Office of International Education and Services.

STUDENTS COMING INTO a new atmosphere for the first time face adjustment problems, and that is true for foreign students who study at the UI or freshmen who are away from home for the first time, according to Theresa Ganglhassemloei, OIES foreign student adviser.

"Foreign students initially have limited contact with Americans," Ganglhassemloei said. "They are lonely and it takes a while to meet people."

She said her organization provides counseling for students who may be having a rough time becoming adjusted or meeting people.

According to Stone, there is a stigma attached with seeking help for mental problems that keeps people from getting counseling.

"People may think they need to have a severe problem to use the Counseling Service, but most students that come here don't," Stone said.

STUDENTS ARE NOT the only group of people who face problems and may need to seek counseling. According to Spaziani, there is an array of support groups in Johnson County for people with mental health concerns.

She said one group facing such problems are the elderly. "The elderly don't get out," Spaziani said. "They sit at home and are depressed and lonely. There is a school of thought that says they probably won't talk to strangers about their problems."

She said senior centers and local church groups provide counseling and socialization for elderly people who otherwise would not seek it.

"Weight centers, aerobics classes and classes that help alleviate stress are opening whole new fields of help for those with mental health concerns," Spaziani said.

To benefit from these programs, a patient must be an active participant, according to Bruce Etringer, UI Counseling Service staff psychologist.

"You must have the knowledge that you have choices and options," he said. "Counseling is an educational process in which you learn how to become more self-directed so you can better deal with your life."

harm it," Suisa told Israel Radio. "There's a limit to democracy."

JERUSALEM — Israel toughened its crackdown on the Palestinian press Monday by shutting down a weekly magazine and charging that the pro-Palestine Liberation Organization publication was a tool of terrorist organizations.

"It's a political decision," Ibrahim Kara'een, co-owner of Al Awdah, said of the indefinite closure. "It's part of state policy to silence the Palestinian voice."

Kara'een denied the magazine was connected to any hostile organizations. But Eliyahu Suisa, Jerusalem district commissioner for the Interior Ministry, said in a letter to Kara'een he canceled Al Awdah's licenses because he was "convinced that English and Arabic language papers were funded by terror organizations and used as a tool in their service."

"Democracy is democracy, but we still have to defend democracy from those who want to KARA'EEN said the magazine's purpose was "to offer the readers a moderate Palestinian view that was based on mutual recognition" of Israel's right to exist and Palestinian self-determination. He said it also strived to present to Palestinian readers the views of prominent Israelis.

The magazine, based in Arab East Jerusalem, began publication in 1982, but Israeli authorities never permitted it to be distributed in the West Bank or Gaza Strip, Kara'een said. The magazine, which published PLO editorials, had a combined English and Arabic circulation of 10,000 to 15,000.

As part of the efforts to crush the nearly 5-month-old Palestinian uprising, Israeli authorities have increased restrictions on the already heavily censored Palestinian press.

Sean Clark's 'Bullpen' plays tonight in ongoing Festival

By Jordana Belt
Special to The Daily Iowan

On one level, Sean Clark's play Bullpen is about the descent of a once-promising baseball pitcher from the major to the minor leagues. On another level, Clark describes it as "a play in which people scratch and spit and say f--- a lot. It's guys with guys being guys."

Bullpen, which runs tonight at 6:30 and 9 in Theatre A, is the second entry in the weeklong UI Playwrights Festival.

"I was trying to write a poem about what happens in a baseball bullpen, in particular, a pitcher waiting for his chance to be great again," explains Clark.

The main character in the play, named Caruthers, was an average major league pitcher whose fortunes changed on one peculiar spring night when he set an incredible record. Explains Clark, "Maybe it was just one weird evening in Cleveland that the air was just right... Caruthers just happened to be great that night. But he couldn't repeat it. He had one extraordinary game and now he's back to being normal, and he realizes that. This is the tale of his journey."

CLARK GAINED familiarity with the life of the big league ballplayer with his father, who has been a major league scout for the Cincinnati Reds for 20 years. As a child, Sean would pack up and travel with his father to conduct tryout camps across the country.

Clark found his inspiration for Bullpen from a replay of a controversial home run call in a World Series game.

"People were screaming and yelling at the umpire. Players were going berserk. Millions of people around the world were watching.

But where the ball hit was the point of controversy, which was directly above the bullpen. If you study the replay and look down at the eight guys in the bullpen, they're sitting on the bench spitting, looking like the eight most disinterested guys in the world," Clark said.

Clark makes it clear that his play is a comedy. His intent is to make people laugh as well as allow the actors to enjoy themselves in their characters. "I think the greatest exploration in theater is laughter," he said.

Like countless writers, Clark is drawn to the vision of baseball as metaphor. "You can stand in right field and watch a 10-run lead disappear and no one will hit the ball to you and you have no control. You watch your team lose. And in a lot of ways, that's the way the world goes. There's nothing you can do about it so you just have to sit back and hang on."

Bears waive Bell, withdraw offer

LAKE FOREST, Ill. (UPI) — The Chicago Bears Monday placed defensive back Todd Bell on waivers and withdrew a contract offer to tight end Tim Wrightman. Bell, 29, was a six-year veteran with the Bears, not including the 1985 season when he sat out in a contract dispute. In 1987, Bell started at safety until late in the season but was reportedly unhappy with the club and the Bears had been trying to trade him. Bell was named to the starting Pro Bowl team in 1984 after picking off four passes during the regular season. Wrightman, 28, sat out the 1987 season with damaged knee ligaments. He received a medical clearance to work out with the Bears in March.

Turner's Goodwill Games will continue

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The Goodwill Games, an amateur sports festival launched by cable television magnate Ted Turner two years ago, will continue through 1998 under an agreement signed Monday. The signing in Moscow was beamed by satellite to seven international cities, including Los Angeles, where Turner, chairman of Turner Broadcasting Systems, predicted a healthy financial showing for the 1990 games in Seattle.

Kuczynska tops Horvath in Italian Open

ROME, May 2 (UPI) — Iwona Kuczynska upset 12th-seeded American Kathy Horvath 6-4, 6-0 Monday in the opening round of the $200,000 Women's Italian Open. The only other seeded player in action on a quiet opening-day program at Rome's Foro Italico complex was No. 13 Judith Wiesner of Austria. She fought back to oust Italian Gabriella Boschiore 6-3, 5-7, 6-2. World No. 3 Chris Evert, the top seed, and second seed Gabriela Sabatini received first-round byes along with the six other top players in the clay-court event. The top seeds begin play Wednesday in the second round.

Cleveland rookie lost for season

BEREA, Ohio (UPI) — Wide receiver LaJourdain "J.J." Birden, the Cleveland Browns' eighth-round draft pick, tore ligaments in his right knee Monday during a mini-camp practice and will miss the 1988 season. Birden, 22, out of Oregon, suffered the injury while running a pass pattern on the artificial surface of Baldwin-Wallace College's Finnie Stadium.

Yacht designer Lexcen dies at 52

Soviet hoopster may join Trail Blazers

United Press International

PORTLAND, Ore. — Soviet basketball star Arvidas Sabonis has remained quiet during his visit to Oregon, where he is being courted by the Portland Trail Blazers and undergoing therapy for an injured Achilles tendon.

The 7-foot-3 center, who was the Blazers' top draft choice in 1986, watched a second playoff game Saturday night between Portland and the Utah Jazz. He also had two workouts Saturday with Blazers team physician Robert Cook. Team officials say Sabonis has set his own pace during his visit. They said he cancelled a dinner engagement Saturday because he wanted to take a nap. Team President Harry Glickman described Sabonis as very shy.

SABONIS IS SCHEDULED to stay through the end of the week, but may extend his stay as he works to recover from a heel problem that has led to speculation that he may not play on the Soviet Olympic Team later this year.

The Blazers hope to sign the Soviet star if international rules are changed to permit professionals to compete in the Olympics. The change won't happen until after the Games in South Korea this September, but Sabonis said last Thursday he expects to some day play in the NBA.

Sabonis speaks little English and communicates through his Lithuanian physician, Kestutis Vitkus. Vitkus said people shouldn't read too much into Sabonis' shy nature.

"Americans are very open with each other," Vitkus said. "When they walk down the street, they stop to talk, they want to communicate."

"We are not used to doing that in our country. This is different for him."

Glickman has not only been showing off his team to Sabonis, but has been trying to sell him on the idea of Portland as a good place to live. The week's agenda included shopping excursions, tours of the city and a visit to the Oregon Coast.

Phoenix fires Wetzel

United Press International

PHOENIX — The Phoenix Suns, who finished with their second worst record in the 20 years of the franchise, Monday fired Coach John Wetzel.

"John Wetzel is not being replaced because of the record that we had ... nor is he being made a scapegoat in any way, shape or form," Suns President Jerry Colangelo said at a news conference.

Colangelo said the team needs "different type of leadership heading into the future." He said no decision has been made regarding the next coach.

Wetzel took over as coach in April 1987 after eight years as assistant to John MacLeod, who was fired in February 1987. Under Wetzel, the Suns finished with a 28-54 record, the worst since the 16-66 finish in the expansion season of 1968-69. Only four teams had poorer records than the Suns this season.

Baltimore releases McGregor

By Steven Ginsburg
United Press International

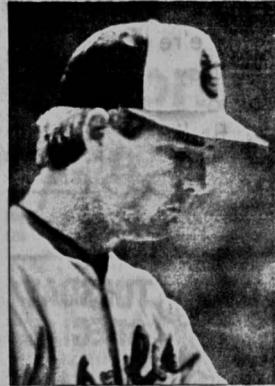

BALTIMORE — Scott McGregor, the fifth winningest pitcher in Orioles history, was given his unconditional release Monday by Baltimore, General Manager Roland Hemond announced.

McGregor, who has not won a game in almost a year, is 0-3 this season with an 8.83 ERA. McGregor, who indicated he will retire, could be the first in a long line of veterans removed from the team as the Orioles try to rebuild amid the worst start in major-league history.

"I've given it everything I can," said McGregor, who broke down in tears several times during a Memorial Stadium news conference. "I've just come up short this year. The team's come up short and I've followed suit. It's time to go on."

McGREGOR, 34, was 138-108 in 11 major-league seasons. He came to Baltimore in a 10-player trade in 1976 with the New York Yankees that also brought catcher Rick Dempsey and pitcher Tippy Martinez to the Orioles.

"I thank God for that trade in

Scott McGregor

1976 that sent me to the Orioles," said McGregor, who formerly was in the Yankees' farm system. "It's turned out to be 11 of the greatest years I could have ever imagined."

"I could have never written a script any better than what happened when I came over here."

McGregor has nearly two seasons and $1.97 million remaining on his four-year contract. The left-hander, known for his pinpoint control, said he has no desire to continue playing.

"THIS IS MY home now. Baltimore's become my home and I don't want to leave," said McGregor, adding he will probably join the ministry. "I love Baltimore with all my heart and I love this balleclub with all my heart."

McGregor was the winning pitcher in the fifth and final game of the 1983 World Series against the Philadelphia Phillies.

"We had some great times and we had some bad times," McGregor said. "I'll choose to remember the good times. I'm just glad I started it here and ended it here."

"I've been around long enough to know that two and two is four. If you don't win a game for a year, eventually the team is going to have to let you go."

McGregor's two best seasons were 1980 when he was 20-8 and 1983 when he went 18-7.

The Orioles called up pitchers John Habyan and Jay Tibbs from Triple-A Rochester of the International League. Sent down to Rochester was pitcher Bill Scherer.

Black Label ruggers hit 3-game losing skid

By Hugh Donlan
The Daily Iowan

Black Label just isn't the same these days.

After victories in seven straight matches, the Iowa men's rugby club has lost its last three, including a 20-12 defeat at the hands of the Dubuque Dogs Saturday in Dubuque.

"It was 20-0 at halftime. We should have beaten them," club member Scooter McDonough said. "Since we won that tournament in Omaha, we haven't had a full, strong side. We'll turn it around."

Sportsclubs

Inside-center Andy Butler and eight-man McDonough, both seniors from Grinnell, Iowa, and wing Chris Bredesen, a freshman from Dubuque, each scored a try for Black Label. The club missed all three conversion kicks.

BUTLER WAS ALSO named Player of the Game by the Dubuque club and received a Dubuque Dogs Rugby Football Club t-shirt for his performance. The ruggers will participate in the All-Iowa Tournament Saturday and Sunday in Des Moines and McDonough said he thinks the club will be healthy.

"It looks like we'll have a strong, full side for the first time since Omaha," he said. "So it looks like things are looking up for us that way."

• An Iowa lacrosse club short of players lost, 11-3, at Northern Illinois Saturday.

"They didn't have any outstanding players," said Mark St. Germain, club president. "They were just a well-balanced team. We only had 13 guys, so we only had three substitutes the whole game. We were trailing 5-3 going into the second half. We just slowly died."

Eric Noss, Chris Gibbs and Justin Berg scored for Iowa.

The club will take on Iowa State Friday during VEISHEA festivities in Ames.

• The sailing club failed to capture the second jewel of collegiate sailing's triple crown, according to Coach Bob Woodward.

Two weeks ago, the club qualified for the women's national championships, but this past weekend the club finished fourth at the Area Team Racing Championships in Ann Arbor, Mich. The top three clubs will compete in nationals.

Michigan captured first place, Wisconsin was second and Michigan State third.

"We only team race a couple times a year," Woodward said. "So we weren't well practiced. It was a little disappointing, but we know what our primary goal is — the Dinghy Championships at Northwestern. That's what we've been setting our sights on."

But to qualify for the May 14-15 Dinghy Championships, the third jewel in Woodward's triple crown, the club must finish in the top three at the Area C Elimination Regatta held at Lake MacBride Saturday and Sunday.

Wisconsin, Wisconsin-Green Bay, Wisconsin-Oshkosh, Marquette, Illinois Institute of Technology, University of Chicago, Illinois Wesleyan, Milikin and Southern Illinois will participate in the regatta hosted by Iowa at the North Arm of Lake MacBride.

Sportsclubs is a weekly feature in The Daily Iowan. If you would like information published, contact Hugh Donlan at the DI sports desk, 335-5848.

Rose

the game 6-5.

The tone of Saturday night's game was set in the seventh inning after Reds pitcher Tom Browning hit Tim Teufel with a pitch. Both benches cleared and Mets outfielder Darryl Strawberry was punched on the chin after charging from the dugout. In the ninth, Rose argued a call in which Pallone ruled Mookie Wilson safe at first, allowing the winning run to score.

Rose shoved the first-base umpire twice. The manager later claimed Pallone jabbed him in the left cheek with his finger as the two argued.

"IF HE POKES or slaps you, that's asking for a fight," Tigers Manager Sparky Anderson said from Detroit. "He's lucky Rose didn't deck him."

Giamatti said in his statement that "such disgraceful episodes are not business as usual, nor can they be allowed to become so."

Banquet

standing ovation from the audience.

ALSO BASKING IN the limelight was the Iowa women's basketball team, which spent eight weeks this season as the nation's top squad. Senior Michelle Edwards was named the UI Athlete of the Year and Coach Vivian Stringer, who praised her team and its dedication, was herself honored with a standing ovation as she took the podium.

Both Edwards and Tchou, also a senior, won their respective team MVP awards.

Basketball player Jolynn Schneider, who recently became the first female student-athlete at Iowa to win an NCAA post-graduate scholarship, won the Robert F. Ray Award, presented every other year to the female student-athlete who excels academically and athletically.

Athletes honored as MVPs in their respective sports were: Pennie Wohlford, tennis; Senta Hawkins, track; Chris Dieterle, swimming;

Robyn Zussman and Traci Junker, gymnastics; Ellen Mullarkey, volleyball; Diana Repp, softball; Renee Doyle, cross country.

Dieterle was named the fourth recipient of the Lou Ginsberg Humanitarian Award, given "to the student-athlete who displays a genuine concern for the welfare of others."

IOWA NOTES

• The Johnson County I-Club will sponsor a banquet for the women's basketball team Thursday at the University Athletic Club. Social hour is at 6 p.m., with dinner to follow an hour later. Tickets may be purchased at Bremer's Clothing, 120 E. Washington St.; Hawkeye Medical Supply, 225 E. Prentiss St.; or Malcolm's Jewelers, Old Capitol Center.

• Former Iowa tennis player Michele Conlon, now a student assistant coach with the Hawk-eyes, will leave this week for West Germany to play for a club there. Conlon spent four years at the No. 1 singles position for the Hawk-eyes.

Bullets dodge early boot from playoffs

By Will Dunham
United Press International

LANDOVER, Md. — Jeff Malone scored 8 of his 35 points in overtime Monday night to help the Washington Bullets stave off playoff elimination with a 114-106 victory over the Detroit Pistons.

Washington, seeking to advance past the first round for the first time since 1982, forced Game 4 Wednesday night at the Capital Centre. Washington, trailing 2-1, is trying to become the third team team ever to overcome a 2-0 deficit and win a best-of-five series.

With the score 104-104 in overtime, Malone hit a baseline jumper. Detroit's Rick Mahorn committed an offensive foul and Washington's Darrell Walker sank a baseline jumper for a 108-104 lead with 1:38 to play.

DETROIT'S ISIAH Thomas made a layup, but Malone sank another jumper with 1:08 left. Thomas committed an offensive foul and Walker drilled a shot with 43 seconds left for a 112-106 lead.

Malone, a shooting guard, is averaging 33 points in the three games of the series. His 33 points in Game 1 was his previous postseason high.

BOSTON — Ray Bourque snapped a 3-3 tie in the third period Monday night, knocking in a rebound to lift the Boston Bruins over the New Jersey Devils 5-3 in the opener of the Wales Conference finals.

Game 2 of the best-of-seven series is Wednesday night at Boston Garden.

Boston led 3-0 midway through the second period but then appeared to turn flat. New Jersey drew to 3-2 on goals by Tom Kurver and Jack O'Callahan. The Devils, playing in their first postseason, tied the score on Kurver's second goal of the game, a power-play slap shot from the left point at 2:48 of the third period.

BOURQUE, THE 1987 winner of the Norris Trophy as the NHL's top defenseman, put Boston ahead again at 5:56. Keith Crowder's shot from the slot was stopped by Bob Sauve's pad save, but the rebound came out nearly 12 feet and Bourque, a few strides inside the blue line, charged down the slot and slammed the loose puck home. Ken Linseman boosted the lead to two goals at 16:05 when he fired in the rebound of Bob Sweeney's shot.

Also scoring for Boston were Glen Wesley, Steve Kasper and, on the power play, Craig Janney.

Boston went ahead 3-0 on Janney's score at 9:40 of the second period. Kurvers scored from the slot at 11:26 when he redirected Aaron Broten's centering pass from the right boards.

Reds' Robinson retires 26 in a row but loses shutout

United Press International

CINCINNATI — Ron Robinson came within one out Monday night of the first perfect game in the major leagues since 1984 in leading the Cincinnati Reds to a 3-2 victory over the Montreal Expos.

Robinson, 2-2, had pinch-hitter Wallace Johnson at 2-2 before Johnson fouled off a pitch then sent a soft line drive to left field for a single. Tim Raines followed with a home run that pulled the Expos within 3-2 and further disappointed a Riverfront Stadium crowd of 35,266.

Robinson came out after yielding Raines's homer to right field on a 3-2 pitch. He struck out three and walked none. John Franco got Johnny Paredes to ground out to second for his fourth save.

Robinson, who has shuttled between the bullpen and the starting rotation, was shooting for the first perfect game since California's Mike Witt did so against Texas Sept. 30, 1984. Milwaukee's Juan Nieves threw the only no-hitter of last season, April 15, 1987 against Baltimore. The last no-hitter in the National League was by Houston's Mike Scott and clinched the NL West title for the Astros on Sept. 25, 1986 against San Francisco.

The Reds have never had a perfect game. The last no-hitter by a Red was by Tom Seaver against St. Louis, June 16, 1978. The last time the Expos were no-hit was Sept. 26, 1983, by St. Louis' Bob Forsch.

Houston's Nolan Ryan came within two outs of his sixth career no-hitter last Wednesday.

In the ninth, Robinson induced Mike Fitzgerald to ground out to shortstop and Tom Foley to fly out to center before Johnson's hit.

Montreal starter Pascual Perez, 3-3, surrendered three runs on five hits over eight innings. Perez, who threw a two-hitter against the Reds last Wednesday, struck out four and walked three.

Phillies 7, Astros 1

PHILADELPHIA — Kevin Gross pitched a five-hitter Monday night and Mike Schmidt moved into a tie for eighth place on the all-time homer list with his 534th to help the Philadelphia Phillies rout the Houston Astros 7-1.

Schmidt hit a solo homer off reliever Dave Meads to give Philadelphia a 7-1 lead in the seventh. The 534 homers tie Schmidt with Jimmie Foxx for eighth on the major-league list. Mickey Mantle, with 536, is Schmidt's next target.

Braves 3, Mets 1

NEW YORK — Rookie Ronald Gant hit a three-run double Monday night to power the Atlanta Braves to a 3-1 victory over New York that halted the Mets' five-game winning streak.

Indians 3, Angels 0

CLEVELAND — Greg Swindell pitched a two-hitter Monday night to stretch his unbeaten string to six games for the best start by a Cleveland pitcher in 26 seasons, pacing the Indians to a 3-0 victory over the California Angels.

Only four California batters reached base as Swindell, 6-0, struck out four and walked two in notching his third complete game and the Indians' major league-leading 10th. The left-hander faced 30 batters, three over the minimum, and retired 14 of the last 15.

California's Johnny Ray extended his league-leading hitting streak to 16 games with a second-inning line double to center.

Royals 2, Red Sox 0

BOSTON — Floyd Bannister and three relievers combined on an eight-hitter Monday night to extend Boston's streak without a run scored to 19 innings and lift the Kansas City Royals to a 2-0 victory over the Red Sox.

Bannister, 4-1, gave up six hits and three walks in 5 1/2 innings. Steve Farr and Bud Black relieved. Gene Garber came on with the bases loaded and one out in the ninth and struck out Jim Rice and Mike Greenwell to gain his fourth save.

A's 4, Tigers 2

DETROIT — Ron Hassey delivered a two-run double with two outs in the 10th inning Monday to enable the Oakland Athletics to gain their longest winning streak in seven years with a 4-2 victory over the Detroit Tigers.

The A's have won eight in a row. They haven't won that many straight games since starting the 1981 campaign with 11 consecutive triumphs. Detroit had its four-game winning streak snapped.

Starter Curt Young, 2-0, gave up six hits over nine innings for the win. Dennis Eckersley pitched the 10th to stretch his scoreless inning streak to 13 1/2 innings this season and secure his 10th save.

Orioles 9, Rangers 4

BALTIMORE — Jay Tibbs, recalled earlier in the day from AAA Rochester, yielded six hits over 8 1/2 innings and Cal Ripken homered and scored three runs Monday night to pace the Baltimore Orioles to their second victory in 25 games, 9-4 over the Texas Rangers.

The triumph, before 50,402 at Memorial Stadium, was the Orioles' first at home in eight attempts. Baltimore started the season with a 21-game losing streak, the longest in major-league history to begin a season and the longest ever in the American League. The Orioles' previous triumph came Friday night at Chicago.

Brewers 4, Twins 3

MILWAUKEE — Juan Nieves and Odell Jones combined on a three-hitter Monday night to lead the Milwaukee Brewers to a 4-3 victory over the Minnesota Twins.

Nieves, 3-2, allowed three hits, three runs — two earned run — over five innings. Jones pitched four hitless innings of relief, striking out five to gain his first save since 1984 when he was with Texas.

Bert Blyleven, 1-3, took the loss despite retiring the last 18 batters he faced. He allowed four runs on six hits in his complete game, striking out four and walking one.

Twins outfielder Kirby Puckett went 0 for 4, snapping his 14-game hitting streak.

Iowa honors Tchou, Davidson

By Marc Bona
The Daily Iowan

Iowa field hockey player Liz Tchou and Coach Judith Davidson highlighted a field of female athletes honored at the Iowa Women's Athletics Awards Banquet Monday night before an audience of about 500 in the Union Ballroom.

Davidson, who will become the men's and women's athletic director at Central Connecticut State in June, received several of eight standing ovations on the night and was honored with the Big Ten Conference Award, presented by Iowa Women's Athletic Director Christine Grant.

Davidson's squad won the national championship two years ago and took the Big Ten title five times.

After praising the Iowa athletic administration, a choked-up Davidson recalled the struggles her 1988 team overcame before finishing fourth in the nation.

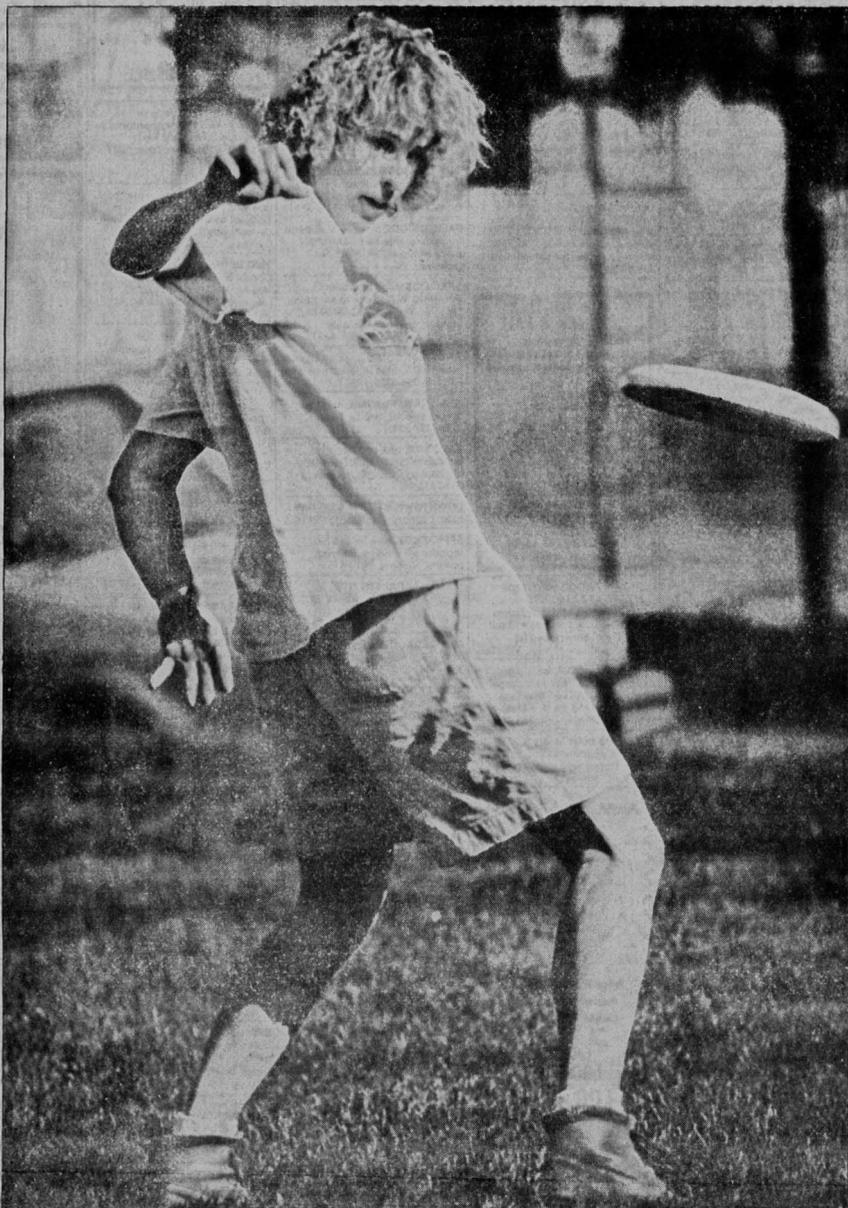

"THIS TEAM, MORE than any other I've been associated with, exemplifies what is the true meaning of the student-athlete. They showed mental toughness in the face of overwhelming odds."

The "overwhelming odds" Davidson referred to was a rash of injuries and sickness at the beginning of the season which, among other things, left the Hawkeyes without a goaltender literally minutes before leaving for a tournament in Boston.

"Let me make one thing perfectly clear," Davidson added. "We didn't win the national championship, but we defended it. We defended it with grace and style."

One of Davidson's protégées, Tchou, won the Big Ten Medal of Honor. The senior from Medford Lakes, N.J., had her jersey retired this past season. Tchou praised her coach, then embraced her amid a

Rejuvenated Hawkeyes meet .500 Cyclone squad at Ames

By Eric J. Hess
The Daily Iowan

The Iowa baseball team heads to the middle of the state today when it takes on rival Iowa State in a 1:30 p.m. game at Ames' Cap Timm Field.

Iowa and Iowa State will play one game instead of a doubleheader, as was scheduled. Cyclone Coach Bobby Randall said the change was made by mutual consent with Iowa Coach Duane Banks Monday.

"It's not fair for our ballclubs to get through a doubleheader," Randall said.

The Hawkeyes, 25-19 overall, return to Big Ten play Thursday when they play at Wisconsin. The Cyclones, 24-24 overall, will head into a Friday-Saturday series with Oklahoma State, a perennial power in the Big Eight.

THE HAWKEYES AND the Cyclones will play for the first time this season. A doubleheader scheduled for last Wednesday was cancelled because of a wet Iowa Field.

Randall said he was disappointed about the cancellation, but he is approaching today's game as he would any other.

"We take every game we play seriously," he said. "That's the kind of approach we're going to take. Every game we play is the biggest game of the year."

Iowa State will send Danny Kasperski, 1-2, to the mound. Banks said he's not sure who he will counter with.

"I don't know who we're going to throw, maybe (Bob) Driscoll or (Jeff) Schafer," he said.

Banks said rainouts against Iowa State and Coe College helped his team get a fresh view for the remainder of the season instead of losing any possible momentum the Hawkeyes had after taking three of four games from Purdue.

IT BECAME EVIDENT the Hawkeyes didn't lose any momentum and perhaps gained some after taking three of four from Michigan State Saturday and Sunday.

"I think it really helped our pitchers," Banks said. "This time of the year we need to take some days off just to keep the kids fresh."

Iowa's pitching will face a staunch Cyclone lineup, including centerfielder Mike Wiemerskirch. The sophomore from Rochester, Minn., is hitting .350 in the No. 3 position in the lineup and has set a school record for runs scored in a season, according to Randall.

Other players Randall said have been contributing heavily all season are first baseman Virgil Fulk, third baseman Reggie Stalzer, 1987 academic all-American catcher Pat Heiderscheit and relief pitcher Chris Zima.

'Prime Time' hoops sets summer start

By Eric J. Hess
The Daily Iowan

The Prime Time Basketball League will open its second season this summer with eight teams and more emphasis on defense, according to league organizer Randy Larson.

Larson, an Iowa City lawyer and a member of the City Council, said last year's success has spawned a few changes. But overall the structure will remain as it was last year.

Each team will be composed of 11 or 12 players playing a round-robin schedule Sundays, Wednesdays and every other Friday. The season opens June 15 and runs through August 3.

On June 5, Larson and seven other coaches yet to be named will gather for the PTL draft.

"WE'LL HAVE THE same kind of talent, maybe a little better," Larson said.

Players, coaches, referees and sponsors are still needed. Larson said if anyone would like to participate in any capacity or needs more information, call 354-1712.

Larson said he hopes two high-school age players will be drafted for each team, adding that anyone who attends the free games at City High School will be able to see some of the top Eastern Iowa talent as well as some of the top college age players in Iowa.

"What it does is provide an opportunity for our players and people from other schools like Drake, Northern Iowa and junior college players to play in a competitive situation," Iowa assistant coach Gary Close said.

LAST YEAR, former Iowa players Greg Stokes, Michael Payne and Todd Berkenpas among others joined current players like Roy Marble and B.J. Armstrong during the summer season.

Incoming freshmen were also on hand last year, including Curtis

Cuthbert, Brig Tubbs, Brian Garner and Rodell Davis.

Larson said he expects Iowa Coach Tom Davis' newest class of recruits to be making appearances this summer.

One more change Larson plans to implement is awards each night of games, including most valuable player and best defensive player.

"We'll have a committee to give an award each night," he said.

Larson said he wants to see more emphasis placed on team defense, even though he added that during the summer it's difficult to find players playing hard-nosed defense.

He'll be encouraging coaches to take players out who aren't stressing defense.

"I DID IT last year with my team, and it seemed to work," he said.

Close said the Prime Time Basketball League enables players to gain experience at a level most of the nation's players will not be able to find during the summer.

Last PTL season had an impact on the Iowa team that lost in the quarterfinals of the NCAA West Regional in Seattle, Wash. Players like 7-foot-1 Les Jepsen gained valuable experience, Close said, and developed parts of their individual game each may not have developed during the college basketball season.

"Defense is a part of that," Close said. "Certainly any progress you can get in that area is a benefit."

Larson said he'll know whether Iowa's Armstrong or Matt Bullard will be able to play in the PTL this year. Both were selected last month to compete for spots on the 1988 U.S. Olympic Team that will compete at the Summer Olympics in Seoul, South Korea.

The Trials will be completed and the Olympic team announced before the draft, he said.

"Even if they make it," Larson said, "they'll be here for all but two weeks."

Panthers lie in wait for Blevins' team

By Scott Wingert
The Daily Iowan

The Iowa softball team is still looking for a place to vent its anger.

The Hawkeyes, long out of the Big Ten race, get a final chance to uphold state pride in a doubleheader with Northern Iowa today at 3 p.m. in Cedar Falls.

Iowa, 27-20-1 overall and 6-11-1 in the Big Ten, hopes to inflict some of the same beatings it has suffered through during the first half of the Big Ten season.

After losing nine of its first 12 conference decisions, the Hawkeyes have rebounded to win four of its last six league games.

More important to Iowa Coach Gayle Blevins is the way her Hawkeyes have responded to their difficult losing streak.

"WE EVEN FOUND ourselves having to guard against being too fired up at Minnesota," Blevins said. "It was a nice change. I hope we can play that way the rest of the way out."

Northern Iowa, 29-21 overall and 7-7 in the Mid-Continent Conference, split its last road trip at Indiana State.

"We even found ourselves having to guard against being too fired up at Minnesota," says Iowa softball Coach Gayle Blevins of her team's recent resurgence. "It was a nice change."

Panther Coach Meredith Bakely said her team played well at Indiana State Saturday, but she was cautious about predicting a victory against Iowa.

"I think all teams are tough," Bakely said. "I'm sure both teams will be up for the game."

Blevins said the last three weeks have been difficult for everyone associated with the Iowa program, but especially so for the seniors.

And though their pride still smarts from a dismal Big Ten season, the first-year coach thinks the seniors are playing for more than wins and losses.

"I think for the seniors it's especially critical to them to have a chance to impact the program favorably," Blevins said. "They want to leave on a very positive note. For them, we want that to happen."

"They still get a chance then to be a part of the transformation of our program and pick up and go on. That's what we're working on doing."
