Tornadoes rampage across Iowa landscape

By Cathy Jackson
The Daily Iowan
and United Press International

A family of tornadoes swept across Johnson County and surrounding counties Sunday afternoon, collapsing trees and power lines and damaging property outside of Iowa City.

The tornadoes were part of a series of storms blanketing the state Sunday. At least one person was injured and several homes were damaged as the tornadoes and thunderstorms packing strong winds and golfball-sized hail sent people scurrying for cover across the state.

Two to three tornadoes touched down in about six places around Johnson County, according to National Weather Service Forecaster Scott Truett.

"I don't know which were the same storms and which were different storms," he said.

A tornado demolished a mobile home south of Hills and a barn north of Lone Tree, caused a barn fire northwest of Hills, also damaging a shed and garage near Hills.

Shortly before 3 p.m., a twister was reported skimming the junction of Highway 1 and Interstate 80 outside of Iowa City, the closest a twister got to Iowa City.

Other tornadoes were seen south of Holmstead, and outside of Solon, Fry Town, Hills and Lone Tree, according to Truett.

A tornado warning was in effect for Johnson County from 2:35 to 3:15 and was accompanied by about a half hour of sirens sounding across the county.

"I don't think too many people took shelter," Iowa City Fire Department Battalion Chief Art Cloos said about Iowa City. "I don't know why people don't take shelter."

Cloos said members of the fire department were in constant communication with people from the state warning system and made sure Iowa City residents were aware of the storm.

"Four different (fire) departments were out in their areas and they kept us posted as to where the tornadoes were coming from," Cloos said.

"Most of the damage was wind damage," Cloos added. "We had heavy rain, clouds and wind."

Sgt. James Hazlett of the Iowa City Police Department said some officers served as spotters, surveying the area from a high point west of Iowa City.

Elsewhere across the state, damage from the storms was more severe.

A rural Plainfield resident suffered head injuries when strong winds damaged a barn and sent debris smashing into a nearby farmhouse, Bremer County sheriff's officials said.

Restrict Us Not calls awareness to UI's barriers

About 50 people, several in wheelchairs or with crutches, gathered on the Pentacrest Friday afternoon to call awareness to the barriers disabled students face on the UI campus.

"Disability awareness fluctuates on campus and now we feel we're at ground zero," Joy Mincey, UI Restrict Us Not member and organizer of the event, said. "We hope that if people see us as a group and read our pamphlets it will provide the perfect fertilizer for future demonstrations and protests."

According to Mincey, Iowa Book and Supply, the UI International Center, Halsey Gymnasium, the Boyd Law Building and the Main Library are a few examples of Iowa City buildings that are inaccessible to disabled students.

"The library doesn't have door openers, which are important for people without full use of their hands," Mincey said.

Although Iowa Book and Supply, 8

S. Clinton St., is not a UI book store, many professors assign books that can only be purchased there, according to Mincey. She said the building is not accessible because all the books are downstairs.

"CLERKS OFFER to help, but that limits our choices," Mincey said. "Accessibility is not helping, accessibility is independence."

Mincey said she organized the gathering in honor of National Barrier Awareness Day and to show UI students that the population of disabled students is higher than they think.

UI junior Chris Dykes, wandering through the Pentacrest on his way to class, stopped to talk with UI sophomore Joe Busta, who was confined to a wheelchair after a traffic accident.

Katie McClain sits on grandmother Joan McClain's lap next to her mother, Becky McClain, in their Iowa City home. Mother Joan and daughter Becky will graduate from the UI together next Saturday before moving back to Des Moines.

Mother, daughter to graduate 2 generations will turn their tassels together

By Cathy Jackson
The Daily Iowan

It seems right that UI senior Joan McClain will graduate before her daughter. After all, Becky McClain is almost 35 years younger than her mother. But Becky, 22, is next in line — literally.

Both mother and daughter will graduate May 13 from the UI College of Liberal Arts, separated only by a few steps.

"My real name is Rebecca," Becky said, "so if they go by the alphabet I'll go right after my mom. I don't think there are any other McClains graduating."

Becky and Joan have done almost everything together the past two years. Not only are they graduating on the same day with the same major — general studies — but they are roommates, study mates and have been in two of the same classes. They even enrolled at the UI at the same time.

"She's my last child and my only daughter," Joan McClain, who had five sons before Becky, said. "We really got along well. It was kind of a neat experience for both of us."

BECKY AGREED, stressing living with her mother hasn't cramped her style.

"I think it would be hard for some people to live with their mother," Becky said. "But I'm not a real going-out-and-partying type. I'm a homebody. It didn't hinder my lifestyle or anything."

Although they were non-traditional college students anyway, Becky and Joan didn't go as far as planning on being junior- and senior-year roommates.

Becky attended Iowa State University and two Iowa junior colleges, receiving her associate arts degree from Des Moines Area Community College before deciding on the UI to study pharmacy. She has since changed her major.

Joan started working on her bachelor's degree at Ohio University in 1948, but then got married and helped her husband through medical school, which prolonged her education almost 40 years.

JOAN MCCLAIN, who had been volunteering for several Des Moines organizations, said the opportunity to finish her education

Riots, arrests mar Veishea festivities

United Press International

AMES — About 45 bottle-throwing revelers were arrested and eight law officers were injured in a drunken melee early Sunday that marked the third night of disturbances during Iowa State University's Veishea weekend.

More than 70 local and state law officers dodged bottles and rocks thrown from a crowd of 5,000 people who started a bonfire with piles of furniture and debris on Welsh Street near the ISU campus at 1:45 a.m. The fire burned most of the night.

"This is unprecedented. We've never had this uncontrolled rioting and damage to this extent before," said an Ames Police Department spokeswoman. "Traditionally, Saturday night of Veishea week is the worst night for law enforcement people and Sunday they all prepare for finals week."

Eight police officers — several with injuries requiring stitches — were treated and released at Mary Greeley Hospital after they were struck by bottles and rocks when they moved in to break up the mob.

AMES POLICE Chief Dennis Ballantine called the Veishea weekend melees the worst he had seen in the "campustown" area since the Vietnam War era. "The only difference is those people had a legitimate gripe. These people

Regents expected to name four new finalists for UI presidency

By Anne Kevlin
The Daily Iowan

Four new finalists for the position of UI president are expected to be announced today by the state Board of Regents, which will conduct interviews for the $130,000-a-year job on Thursday and Friday in Des Moines.

The announcement will increase the list of presidential finalists to seven, including UI Interim President Richard Remington, University of Kansas Vice Chancellor Frances Horowitz and University of Arizona Provost Nils Hasselmo.

Each of four new finalists visited the UI campus in April. They include Hunter R. Rawlings III, University of Colorado vice president for academic affairs and research; Indiana University Vice President Kenneth R.R. Gros Louis; Steven M. Cahn, provost and vice president for academic affairs at the City University of New York Graduate School and University Center; and Alice Chandler, president of the State University of New York's College at New Paltz.

UI PRESIDENTIAL search committee chairman Sam Becker would not comment Sunday on the finalists or the interview procedure pending a formal announcement by the regents, which he said would be made today.

Regents in December interviewed Horowitz and Hasselmo after receiving recommendations from the UI search committee. Regents then requested the committee submit additional names and asked Remington to interview for the position.

Hasselmo withdrew his name from consideration when the regents extended the presidential search. Hasselmo told The Daily Iowan Sunday evening he would not interview for the job again and does not consider himself a candidate.

Horowitz said she would interview with the regents again late this week and is a "very interested" candidate for the position.

UI teachers honored

Four UI students have been selected to receive the first UI Council On Teaching Outstanding Teaching Assistant Awards for 1987-88.

Nominations for the awards were solicited by the council from students, faculty, colleagues, departmental executive officers and deans. The winners were selected from more than 30 nominees. The award carried with it a $250 cash award.

The students selected included Rebecca Sue Bohde, of the UI Department of German; Pamela Sue Ruiters-Feenstra, of the School of Music; Katherine K. Jellison, of the Department of History; and JoAnn Elisabeth Castagna, of the American Studies Program.

Choralaires present concert

The Iowa City Choralaires will present a free concert in memory of former member Thomas Doling at 8 p.m. on May 17 at Zion Lutheran Church, 310 N. Johnson St.

Doling passed away in April after a long illness. He was a former UI vending service employee.

The Choralaires is a 21-member community chorus dedicated to bringing a gift of classical and popular music to the Iowa City area. Director Jeffrey Hook is a UI graduate student in voice and choral conducting at the UI and has served as assistant to the director of the UI Opera Workshop.

Foundation to sponsor run

The Johnson County Chapter of the National Kidney Foundation of Iowa is sponsoring a five kilometer run/walk on May 21. The event is held in cooperation with 11 area businesses.

The event will begin at 9:30 a.m. in Iowa City Park. Advance registration for the event is $7.50, and late registration on the day of the event is $8. Those wishing to register on the day of the event may do so at 9 a.m.

T-shirts will be given to all registered participants and results of the race will be sent to the runners and walkers by mail. Refreshments will also be provided at the event.

Proceeds from the event will be used to support research in kidney disease, public and professional education, services to kidney patients and continued management and fundraising.

For more information, contact Marge Fearing at 356-1737 or Mike Smith at 356-4003.

Loss of bone mass studied

UI College of Medicine researchers will return to the Iowa communities of Greene and Hartley this month to conduct a follow-up study on factors affecting loss of bone mass in women.

By examining bone mass changes in women as they age, researchers hope to determine what environmental, behavioral and physiological factors help prevent or deter bone loss, says Kathleen Clark, project coordinator. Loss of bone mass can lead to osteoporosis — a weakening of the bones — and fractures.

Greene- and Hartley-area women aged 25-40 and 65-80 who participated in the 1983 study will be asked to participate in the follow-up study.

The original study found that women with adequate dietary intakes of vitamin D, combined with calcium, sustain less bone loss than those who do not consume the Recommended Dietary Allowance. It also reported that in women aged 20-35, those who had adequate vitamin D intake had significantly lower blood pressure.

The Hartley and Greene communities were chosen for the first study because of their size and population stability, as well as the differing calcium content in their water supplies, Clark explains.

As in the first study, researchers will measure bone mass in the forearm using a non-invasive procedure and will assess body size and composition, Clark says. Participants will again be interviewed about diet, water consumption, lifestyle and medical history.

Officials claim 65 mph has hiked speed on other roads

By Rod Boshart
United Press International

DES MOINES — Transportation officials say a one-year return to the 65-mph speed limit on rural interstate highways in Iowa has not had a major impact on traffic deaths but has increased speeds on other roadways.

The federally mandated higher interstate speed limit, which took effect May 12, 1987, has meant smoother traffic flows on Iowa's major thoroughfares, but also has contributed to higher average speeds on primary and secondary roads where speed limits remain at 55 mph, state officials said.

"The 65-mile-per-hour speed limit is not a bad thing. The problem is where that speed is continued on the primary and secondary roadways," said Maj. Wayne Peterson of the Iowa State Patrol.

"The trend has been it would appear that the traffic pattern at least are flowing smoother because of the increased speed limit," he added. "There are some problems with the speed that drifts off of the interstate and spills over onto the primary and secondary roads where the speed limit is 55 mph."

OVERALL, Pat Cain, director of office transportation inventory for the Iowa Department of Transportation in Ames, said monitoring equipment at several rural primary locations have not detected any significant change in average speeds.

But DOT safety officer Gus Horn, who charts monthly traffic fatalities in Iowa, said his office has noted an increase in the number of serious accidents occurring within a dozen miles of interstate highways and more speed-related crashes, particularly on highway curves. "We're noticing an increase in fatalities clustered about 10 to 15 miles off the interstate which may indicate that speed was a factor but we don't have the data to prove that," said Horn.

"What we're finding is hints that speed has increased in some of the primary and secondary systems in that there's been an increase in the number of people just losing control of their vehicles," Horn added.

"There's been an increase in people just running off curves so that would tell us that they either were going too fast for the conditions of the roadway or they were going over the posted speed limit," he said.

The average speed on Iowa's interstate highways has increased by about 3 1/2 mph over the past year — from 59.4 mph in fiscal 1987 to 63 mph, which is below the allowable limit, Cain said.

Campbell: 1988 will conclude Democrats' dry spell in Iowa

By Bill Brewer
United Press International

DES MOINES — Voters' desire for political change and an unpopular Republican presidential candidate will lead the Democrats to their first presidential victory in Iowa in 24 years, says Iowa Democratic Party Chair Bonnie Campbell.

Campbell, in a weekend speech to the annual convention of the United Press International Broadcasters of Iowa this weekend, also said Democratic polls in Iowa show Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis, who likely will win the Democratic presidential nomination, would defeat Republican George Bush.

A poll of likely voters in the 5th District in southwest Iowa shows Dukakis leading Bush 41 percent to 28 percent. In the 2nd District in northeast Iowa, Dukakis holds a 49 percent to 29 percent lead over the Republican vice president, she said.

Campbell also said polls of Iowans show Bush with a negative rating of 49 percent compared with a negative rating of 13 percent for Dukakis.

"THOSE FACTORS bode very well for Iowa going Democratic in the fall, and if it happens, it will be the first time in 24 years," when President Lyndon Johnson defeated Republican Barry Goldwater, she said.

Much of the Democratic optimism is a result of a cyclical change in the state's political climate, she added.

"The Republicans have a rather unpopular Reagan administration in the White House and quite frankly, an unpopular governor," Campbell said.

"Iowa is not a good place if you're George Bush."

Campbell said she is hopeful the dissatisfaction with Reagan administration farm policies also will allow Democratic congressional candidates to be pulled into office on Dukakis' coattails.

"With a good year, we could pick up a seat in Congress, maybe two," she said, adding the best prospects for Democratic upsets are in the 5th and 2nd Districts.

Congressional and legislative candidates also will be aided by the Dukakis campaign and the Democratic National Committee, which both have targeted Iowa as a priority state in November.

Police

A UI student was transported to UI Hospitals and Clinics early Friday morning after he reportedly went into convulsions as a reaction to a drug not officially identified, but suspected to be mushrooms, according to police reports.

The 18-year-old male UI freshman, a resident of Burge Residence Hall, was reported at about 1:15 a.m. as having convulsions suspected to be a reaction to a Thursday night injection of mushrooms, according to the report.

The Iowa City Fire Department and Johnson County Ambulance responded to the call, and the individual was taken to UI Hospitals, where he was treated and released on Friday, according to spokespersons from the Johnson County Ambulance Service and UI Hospitals Central Nursing Services.

Report: A motorcycle valued at approximately $400 was demolished early Sunday morning when it ignited after the driver lost control and the vehicle went down, according to police reports.

At about 12:02 a.m. Sunday, it was reported that John D. Garringer, 31, address unknown, was driving a motorcycle northbound on Gilbert Street when he lost control of the vehicle, according to the report.

A full tank of gas with a bad seal around the gas cap leaked onto the hot engine and plug wires and ignited, according to the report.

The motorcycle was completely torched, and Garringer refused medical treatment, according to the report.

Report: A Hinsdale, Ill., man was charged with criminal trespass and public intoxication Saturday morning after he allegedly set a fire in a trash can in the Downtown Pedestrian Mall, according to police reports.

Members of the Iowa City Fire

Department extinguished the fire, which caused no reported damage, and Scott M. Steeves, 22, was arrested and charged, according to the report.

Report: An intoxicated man was charged Saturday with his second and subsequent public intoxication charge and criminal trespass, according to police reports.

Donald J. Weldon, 55, address unknown, was reported at about 6:30 p.m. Saturday causing problems at the Emergency Housing Project, 331 N. Gilbert St., and was taken to the Johnson County Sheriff's Office and charged, according to the report.

Report: Approximately $400 damage was done to an Iowa City home Thursday when unidentified individuals allegedly threw a picnic table onto the awning of the home, according to police reports.

Sometime between 10 a.m. and 5 p.m. Thursday, a wooden table was thrown onto the awning of the rear of a house on the 2100 block of Grantwood Drive, according to the report.

Courts

By Traci Auble
The Daily Iowan

An Iowa City woman and man were charged with assault causing injury Friday after they allegedly physically injured each other during a fight, according to Johnson County District Court records.

Christine A. Steeno, 24, and Allen S. Taylor, 26, both of 12C Towncrest Trailer Court, allegedly were involved in a fight when Taylor struck Steeno and bruised her back and arm, according to court records.

Steen admitted that she threw five knives at Taylor after he repeatedly struck her. One of the knives allegedly struck Taylor in the hip and caused a deep cut that required him to seek treatment at UI Hospitals and Clinics, according to court records.

Iowa City police reports also reported that Taylor was charged with cruelty to animals Thursday afternoon after he allegedly threw a dog against a car during the dispute.

Taylor reportedly retrieved his dog from Little School House Nursery, 901 First Ave., at about 4:45 p.m. Thursday, then threw it against the car, injuring the dog and damaging the vehicle, according to the report.

A preliminary hearing in both cases is set for May 24, according to court records.

Israel delays expulsion of Arab-American

JERUSALEM — The Israeli Supreme Court on Sunday issued a temporary injunction barring deportation of Palestinian-American activist Mubarak Awad pending a hearing on his appeal, which could set a legal precedent affecting thousands of Jerusalem-born Arabs.

The court gave the government three days to answer Awad's argument that it has no right under the so-called Law of Entry into Israel of 1952 to deny him residency.

Awad was arrested in a midnight raid on his home Thursday after Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir, in his additional capacity as acting Interior Minister, signed the deportation order over strong U.S. objections.

While Israel accused the U.S.-educated psychologist of activities harmful "to the security of the state and to the public order," the specific grounds for the expulsion order are that Awad has been in the country illegally since his tourist visa expired Nov. 22.

Panama banks to resume cashing checks

PANAMA CITY, Panama — Banks in Panama prepared Sunday to cash checks for the first time in nine weeks, a move expected to ease the country's economic crisis and reflect Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega's ability to stay in power despite U.S. pressure.

Leading banks placed full-page ads in Sunday newspapers announcing they would be open for business this morning, although government restrictions will limit the amount of cash clients can withdraw from their accounts.

Some banks placed barricades and loudspeakers outside their offices to control expected crowds of customers and foreign banks were reported to have brought cash into the country to meet the expected demand.

Panamanians have not been able to cash checks or withdraw money from banks since March 3, when the government controlled by defense forces chief Noriega ordered banking operations suspended because of a cash shortage and fears of a banking panic.

U.S. to launch aid plan to help Aquino

WASHINGTON — The administration, in a strong sign of support for Philippine President Corazon Aquino, plans to launch a "mini-Marshall Plan" to provide up to $10 billion in aid to the Philippines, officials said Sunday.

An administration official said the proposal "has been kicking around for more than a year" and has been refined in discussions between the administration and Congress.

The plan for the Philippines, unlike the U.S. program in the 1940s that helped rebuild war-torn Europe, involves major assistance from other countries with the United States playing a more limited financial role.

Other major contributors to the plan would be Japan, West Germany, the World Bank, commercial American banks and other Asian and European countries.

Hadley to return to Iowa to face charges

HOUSTON — Steven Hadley, accused of walking away with nearly $1.14 million from a Waterloo, Iowa, credit union and assuming a new identity in Texas, was slated to be returned to Iowa today to face embezzlement charges.

U.S. Magistrate George Kelt set cash bond for Hadley, 40, at $50,000 if a state court agreed to freeze $900,000 in stocks and bonds belonging to Hadley at a Rotan Mosley brokerage house in Houston. The magistrate allowed two of Hadley's bank accounts totaling about $8,000 to remain unfrozen for his family's use.

Sailor faces AIDS assault court-martial

SAN FRANCISCO — A Navy petty officer from Arkansas faces court-martial Monday on charges he knowingly engaged in unprotected sex after learning he had tested positive for the virus believed to cause AIDS.

The case against Petty Officer 2nd Class John Crawford, 27, is the first of its type ever tried in a Navy court. It begins just two days before the Army was scheduled to court-martial a private on similar charges at Fort Huachuca, Ariz.

According to the Navy, Crawford had unprotected sex with a woman he met at bar near Moffett Field, the base 40 miles south of San Francisco where he was stationed, in April 1987.

One month previously, the Magnolia, Ark., native had tested positive for the antibody to the human immunodeficiency virus, or HIV. The Navy said he failed to inform his sexual partner.

France's Mitterrand retains presidency

By John Phillips
United Press International

PARIS — Francois Mitterrand won a second seven-year term as president of France, exit polls showed Sunday, defeating underdog Prime Minister Jacques Chirac in an election marred by a violent attack on right-wing demonstrators in the capital.

Mitterrand, crowning his political career, polled a solid 53.9 percent in the final presidential vote to trounce Chirac, according to unofficial projections issued shortly after the voting booths closed.

It was the first time anyone had won a second term as president by direct election since the start of the Fifth Republic in 1958.

The computerized exit polls showed Chirac, 55, garnering 46.1 percent, less than political experts expected after the conservative prime minister last week brought home the last three French hostages held by Moslem fundamentalists in Lebanon.

CHIRAC ACKNOWLEDGED defeat at his Paris Left Bank campaign headquarters soon after the projections were announced.

"The French have decided to confide the responsibility for the state to Francois Mitterrand," he said. "And I bow to their choice."

"I wish good luck to France and good luck to the French," he said.

Commentators said the Socialist Mitterrand's respectable showing would be sufficient for him to assemble a center-left government under a prime minister he had promised to name within 24 hours of re-election. Since 1986 Chirac has commanded a right-wing majority in Parliament.

A violent clash between suspected leftists and rightwing demonstrators marred the voting in Paris. Authorities said scores of masked youths brandishing iron bars attacked demonstrators.

Parishioners at St. Brygida's Church place food and other donations for Gdansk Shipyard strikers into a makeshift collection box in Gdansk. The strike has now lasted about two weeks.

Workers reject new pay hike, ignore orders to leave yard

By Bogdan Turek
United Press International

GDANSK, Poland — Striking shipyard workers aided by Solidarity founder Lech Walesa Sunday rejected an offer of a pay hike and ignored an ultimatum to abandon the yard, still demanding that the banned union be legalized.

A shipyard source said talks between the 1,500 workers and the management of the Lenin Shipyard broke off after two hours Sunday, and the management issued an ultimatum demanding the strikers leave the yard by 6 p.m.

Authorities promised the strikers they would face no repercussions if they left the yard, which was ringed by riot police. The authorities did not say what would happen if the workers refused to leave. The workers rejected the order and the deadline passed with no immediate action against them.

The strike committee later issued a communique urging authorities to resume the talks amid fears of an assault to end the strike, which entered its seventh day Sunday.

"LET US ALL kneel down — Cardinal (Jozef) Glemp, (Polish leader Gen. Wojciech) Jaruzelski and myself — and reconcile but let us preserve the independence of Solidarity," Walesa said.

Adam Michnik, a Solidarity adviser, said shipyard sources told him, "There is a possibility of police attack on the shipyard during the night. (The) authorities are facing a dilemma whether to choose a dialogue or violence." Also Sunday, Pope John Paul II announced his "unconditional support" for the right of workers to form labor unions, apparently referring to the Polish crisis during an address in Melo, Uruguay, on the second day of his four-nation Latin American tour.

The Gdansk strike was the last in a two-week wave of walkouts in Poland. Authorities handled the other job actions by offering pay hikes or putting them down with force. Officials also introduced pending legislation to give the government of Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski special powers to the unrest.

SHIPYARD MANAGERS met Saturday with strike leaders for the first time and offered a $37 a month pay increase in a bid to end the walkout.

But Sunday, the strikers — who demanded a $50 monthly increase — rejected the offer and insisted on legalization of Solidarity, which was outlawed in 1982, two years after its founding by Walesa.

The management said it could not negotiate Solidarity's status, saying a decision might be made by higher authorities.

In Washington, Deputy Secretary of State John Whitehead said Saturday possible direct U.S. economic help for Poland was "now in jeopardy because of the lack of any kind of national reconciliation. We have to condemn the violence, imprisonments ... that are reported to be taking place."

U.S. economic sanctions imposed on Poland in 1981 — when martial law was imposed to quell labor unrest — were lifted last year.

U.S. wildlife expert tackles rhino, saves 4-year-old son from tragedy

By Bhola Rana
United Press International

KATMANDU, Nepal — An American wildlife expert grabbed a rhinoceros charging his 4-year-old son and held on despite repeated goings, saving the boy in what an official called Sunday "one of the greatest acts of bravery" he ever saw.

James Smith, 46, a professor of fisheries and wildlife at the University of Minnesota, said Sunday from his hospital bed in Katmandu that he was gored about 14 times in 30 seconds.

Officials said he received severe chest, leg and head injuries in the attack Saturday.

SMITH, WHO has been studying small mammals in Nepal for the past three months, was setting up traps about 15 feet from his camp when he saw a huge male rhino charge his son Alex from a distance of about 30 yards.

"I rushed towards Alex to pull him away, but there was no chance so I rushed towards the rushing rhino," Smith said. "I tried to tackle the rhino and twice I was over him, catching his head."

While Smith grappled with the rhino, two other people at the camp snatched Alex and pushed him up a tree where he would be safe.

"This was one of the greatest acts of bravery. He just stood in front of the charging rhino," said one wildlife official, who requested anonymity. "Nothing happened to the child."

Learning the wind

Yesterday at around 3 p.m. you were in danger. Did you know?

Everybody living in Iowa City and points along a swath running west to east was in danger yesterday from a dark arm of storm in which were spotted several funnel clouds. Dark clouds that spin in circles have a tendency to touch down to earth, flattening buildings, tossing around anything that isn't nailed down and sometimes costing human lives. These spinning winds are called tornadoes, and if you live in this region of the country, you ought to know that name.

Tornado season in Iowa starts on the first of April and runs through the end of September. And most of what you think you know about them is probably wrong.

Yesterday sirens blew for a large part of the afternoon, whining for long stretches before automatically shutting off and starting up again. The sirens signal that a tornado warning has been issued for the immediate area, which means that an actual tornado has been sighted and everybody within earshot should take cover in a basement or a windowless room.

Yesterday's sirens were another kind of warning, too. The most natural nervous reaction in the world is to blame somebody else for your own unpreparedness. But the students who make Iowa City their home are given ample opportunity to learn the right procedures and facts concerning tornadoes. These students have no legitimate reason to be collecting outside on lawns and porches and patios to watch the oncoming rumble. But many did yesterday.

Tornadoes come out of the southwest corner of thunderstorms. Contrary to what virtually every student on this campus thinks, they aren't necessarily preceded by intense calm — they can push thunder and rain and wind ahead of them and come out of what looks like an ordinary stormy sky. They do blow in windows, but they also scoop brainless student thrillseekers up into the air and drop them back down like water balloons.

No lives were lost yesterday, but as long as most of this area's temporary residents don't take even the smallest steps to inform themselves, a zero loss of life will be a stroke of luck, not a testament to supposed intelligence.

Selective amnesia

George Bush is a liar, a piece of White House furniture or both.

Administration officials revealed this weekend that the vice president was told nearly three years ago by the American ambassador to Panama of alleged drug trafficking by Gen. Manuel Noriega. Campaigning in Los Angeles, Bush flatly denied any knowledge of reports linking Noriega to narcotics before last February's indictment of the Panamanian strongman.

The first — and most likely — explanation for this discrepancy is that Bush is lying. As the leader of the president's task force to stem the flow of drugs into the United States, Bush met in 1985 with Ambassador Edward Briggs to, in the words of administration sources, "discuss Panama and narcotics matters." The New York Times reported on Sunday that in the weeks preceding this meeting, Briggs sent the State Department numerous cables detailing allegations of drug trafficking by Noriega. Administration officials confirm that, although Bush did not see these cables himself, their contents formed the basis of his September 1985 meeting with Briggs.

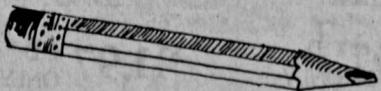

How then can Bush say, as he did in Los Angeles, that he was "not aware of" any advance reports linking Noriega to the narcotics trade?

He can because he is a student of history, and history will recall the Reagan era as eight years when accountability went out the window. When he says he "wasn't aware," he means that an accurate, honest memory is no longer expected in presidential politics.

On the other hand, maybe Bush really wasn't aware, at least not in any useful way. Vice presidents are tragic figures on the American political landscape, runners-up sent to a Coventry of ribbon-cutting and state funerals. Perhaps after seven mind-numbing years disconnected from executive decision making, even Bush knows how irrelevant he is.

From arms-for-hostages to drugs-for-thugs, the hypocrisy of the Reagan administration's foreign and domestic policies is the legacy Bush seems determined to inherit. If Bush wants to ride Reagan's coattails to the White House in '88, he might want to take a moment to inspect the quality of the weave. His remarks in Los Angeles, and his tepid circumlocutions disassociating himself from the Iran-Contra affair, show he either can't or won't. Pity Mr. Bush, but for heaven's sake, don't let him be president.

Larger classes will harm all

By Karen Woolums

Guest Opinion

Education Association Educational Research Service clearly shows that class sizes of 15-22 are best for student improvement, especially at the lower elementary levels. NEA continues to work for smaller class sizes.

The very study presented by the administration in December to convince the board to increase the student ratio, pointed to evidence that: 1) Pupils of lesser academic ability tend to achieve more in smaller classes; 2) Smaller classes can positively affect the academic achievement of economically disadvantaged and minority students; 3) Small classes are important to increased pupil achievement in reading and mathematics in the early primary grades. This data is further supported by more than 200 articles that have been collected in the past months by the ICEA.

THIS DECISION is reversible. We believe the school board should: 1) Examine at least part of the literature we have assembled regarding the results of both increased and decreased class size; 2) Consider the establishment of maximum class sizes — per class and not per district "average;" 3) Consider alternative avenues to compensate any financial cutbacks. A solution would be the placement of an enrichment tax referendum on the September ballot. The association will support and work towards the passage of this proposal much as it did to ensure the passage of the 67½-cent tax levy.

It has taken some time to assemble the information that we now have available. Part of the delay in gathering materials that could be used in a study of class size specific to Iowa City involved an inability of individual teachers to obtain class projections for next year from building administrators. It will take more time to thoroughly study the effects on students educated in larger classes. In spite of the delays, there is still enough time for the school district to reevaluate the impact that increased student loads will have on the community at large.

FOR SEVERAL years the district has placed an emphasis on teacher effectiveness training and innovative educational strategies which are predicted upon naive student-teacher interaction. In raising the ratio, the board seems to have considered only the issue of finances while disregarding the ramifications of this decision on its own long-term educational approach. What is not being considered and I believe must be remembered is that the optimal program and learning environment of each individual child is what is most important.

The association would like to encourage citizens concerned about the quality cutbacks that will result from increasing student loads to contact the school board regarding this decision. Let them know your children can not get the attention they need in larger classes. We believe the citizens of Iowa in general, and of Iowa City in particular, are committed to the highest standard of public education. Increasing class size puts each child in jeopardy.

Karen Woolums is president of the Iowa City Education Association.

Letters

Completely off base

To the Editor:
I am responding to Scott Raab's column (DI, May 4) about Amana. The column is a brilliant example of Raab's stupidity, ignorance and total lack of knowledge.

It is easy to ridicule a group of people that you obviously have never met. How do you know the people are sullen and greedy? Maybe you met the clerk at the local gas station and from that you chose your adjectives. It is fun to ridicule people, but the criticism should have some basis and point to them — it is obvious that you had no point in mind the day you wrote your column.

Your reference to "kill the Jew" is totally off base — the Germans settled in Amana in Iowa from 1850 to 1860. That is 90 years before World War II. The people of Amana, while definitely German, had nothing to do with Germany during World War II nor showed any association with Adolf Hitler.

Next time you criticize a community as proud as Amana, I would make a suggestion: get to know the people and the heritage before you try to write your column. If you need help being better informed about Amana and the people, I will be more than happy to show you the community. We would avoid the concentration camps and, of course, the local chapter of the Nazi Party, which gave you trouble during your last visit — right!

Randy Parvin
Amana, Iowa

Not quite right

To the Editor:
In reference to the letter titled "Rest of the story" (DI, May 6), David Tingwald should be advised to take greater care with etymologies if he wishes to use philological arguments in his critiques. Apparently he has the impression "homo" in the word homosexual is from the Latin noun meaning "man." In fact, "homo" in this word is from a Greek adjective meaning "the same." "Homosexual" simply denotes one whose sexual preference is for others of the same sex.

J. Stephen Clark
715 Iowa Ave. No. 5

Violating rights

To the Editor:
The battle between the CIA off campus supporters and those who wish to have the CIA continue to recruit here has been, to most people, a strictly partisan issue, but for anyone who read a recent Daily Iowan article (DI, May 5) the realization must have arrived that it has turned into a direct attack on the rights of all students who attend the UI.

What is at issue now is an extraordinary document regarding student life — which miraculously is inapplicable to students whose violations of the code occur off campus — and the attempts to manipulate it to circumvent and circumscribe the civil liberties of those students who were involved in the protest at Westlawn. Not only that, but if successful, the administrators involved will have managed to proscribe freedom of expression for us all by intimidating future protests of moral and political belief.

At a time when the UI is struggling to establish itself as a leader in sports, in faculty pay and in research, we ask that the leaders and the students of this institution demonstrate their commitment to a goal of at least equal importance: leadership in social justice.

The individuals who are charged with violating the student code have been found innocent by a civil court — is the UI choosing to ignore the very foundation of our legal system? And if so, what is the motivation? Vindictiveness? Partisan politics? Authoritarianism? Surely it is not justice that motivates the proceedings and the actions of Dean of Student Services Phillip Jones and Susan Mask. And what about the nature of the proceedings? Due process is something we take for granted, yet the obvious conflict of interests that plagues the prosecuting administrators is flagrant, as described in the DI article, and should arouse indignation in us all.

Should the defendants lose their case, we all lose. Let Jones and Mask know your opinion, vocally and in writing.

Overplayed story

To the Editor:
I was irritated by the inordinate attention The Daily Iowan paid to the alleged incident involving UI student Kevin Harmon.

If it had been any other student, this incident would have received no press coverage. All the facts were not presented in the article. The story makes Kevin Harmon look like a criminal, when in fact, he was just protecting his property from an obnoxious drunk.

Kevin Harmon's 1987 season accomplishments need not be presented, as they are irrelevant to the incident.

Robert C. Margeas

One more solution

To the Editor:
In his letter of May 4, Associated Residence Hall President Shawn D. Shaw made a statement that was not only enlightening but also ruined my whole week. At the end of his letter defending the installation of condom machines in the residence halls, he stated: "Sex will not be any more accessible than before; protection will."

Darn! Just when things were starting to look up, I was positive my sex life would skyrocket once I got hold of some condoms (and figured out what to do with the darn things). I had even written my congressman to tell him that we students were behind the condom proposal 100 percent.

I guess I'll have to work on another letter presenting a different idea: has anybody thought of installing "Inflate-a-Mate" machines next to the condom dispensers? It would seem to me that this would solve the important problem brought up by Shaw, not to mention the bigger problem of sexually transmitted diseases, like the dreaded "A" word.

Talk about safe sex — inflatable friends like Latex Lisa or Action Annie are made of nothing but pure, hygienic, grade-A polyethylene; and they don't run around town having intercourse with every Typhoid Tom, Diseased Dick and Dirty Harry. Your "Inflate-a-Mate" exists only to "inflate" (Unless you choose to share her with your friends.) And just try to get one pregnant!

Making blow-up vixens available in the residence halls seems to be the natural next step in the "safe sex" revolution and a perfect solution to the troubles some of us are having. I hope that some readers will consider the logic behind my idea and help with the cause.

Bush knew of drug trade

But denies earlier knowledge of Noriega's role

By Norman D. Sandler
United Press International

WASHINGTON — Vice President George Bush was aware of Panamanian links to the international drug trade almost five years ago but had no "concrete information" about the role of Gen. Manuel Noriega until this year, aides said Sunday.

Commenting on a report in The New York Times that Bush was told in December 1985 of allegations that Noriega was involved in narcotics trafficking, the aides acknowledged much was known of the Panamanian drug connection at the time.

However, they were careful to distinguish between unsupported allegations that circulated within the administration and the kind of detailed information used earlier this year to indict Noriega in Florida on drug smuggling and racketeering charges.

CAMPAIGN SPOKESMAN Peter Teeley said that although Bush "had a lot of knowledge" as far back as late 1983 that Panama played a role in the narcotics trade, "in terms of concrete information that constitute indictment evidence, that's different."

Another senior aide to Bush, national security adviser Donald Gregg, acknowledged that "the vice president has said that there were allegations that we were all aware of." However, Gregg hastened to add that "proof of Noriega's involvement came only in 1987 — late 1987, whenever the indictment came through."

Noriega was indicted Feb. 4 by federal grand juries in Miami and Tampa, Fla.

Sen. Christopher Dodd, D-Conn., chairman of a Senate subcommittee on Latin America, said Sunday he found it hard to imagine that Bush would have been unaware of Noriega's drug trafficking activities.

"IF HE DIDN'T know, that's almost as disturbing in a sense," Dodd said on NBC's "Meet the Press."

"He was director of the Central Intelligence Agency and General Noriega has been on the U.S. government payroll for some years," Dodd said. "I'm concerned, in a sense, that he would suggest he wasn't aware of it at all."

The question of whether Bush knew of allegations that Noriega was involved in the drug trade before the United States decided to press for his removal as the de facto ruler of Panama has been raised as a political issue by some of the vice president's rivals for the Oval Office.

Bush has campaigned hard on foreign policy credentials his opponents have depicted as tarnished by his role in the Iran-Contra affair and, more recently, by suggestions the Reagan administration might have tolerated Noriega's involvement with drug traffickers in keeping him as a U.S. ally and key intelligence source.

The New York Times reported that Bush was told about Noriega's alleged drug connections in Dec. 16, 1985, by Edward Briggs, who then was the U.S. ambassador to Panama and argued for the administration to turn its policy against Noriega.

IN ADVANCE of the meeting with Briggs, Bush was given a staff memo that said the purpose was to "discuss U.S. relations with Panama and narcotics matters." However, senior aides to Bush said allegations against Noriega were not discussed.

Regan's new book paints a damning picture of first lady

By Mark Perkiss
United Press International

NEW YORK — In a damning portrait of Nancy Reagan, former White House chief of staff Donald Regan writes in a new book that the first lady intruded into all aspects of the president's life, with emphasis on controlling his schedule on advice from an astrologer.

"Mrs. Reagan regarded herself as the president's alter ego not only in the conjugal but also in the political and official dimensions," Regan writes in the book For the Record, which goes on sale today.

In excerpts published Sunday by Time magazine, which was reported to have paid him $125,000 for publication rights, Regan paints Mrs. Reagan as a wife obsessed with her husband's protection, an outgrowth, aides contend, of the March 30, 1981, attempt on his life.

BUT REGAN GOES beyond past inside accounts of the Reagan administration to declare that the first lady behaved "as if the office that had been bestowed upon her husband by the people somehow fell into the category of worldly goods covered by the marriage vows."

"The first lady's intense identification with her husband and his political fortunes was the random factor in the Reagan presidency," Regan concludes.

The White House, which had withheld formal comment on the Regan book in advance of the Time excerpts, fired back with a blast authorized by the Reagans, who declined to answer questions from reporters on their return to the

Donald Regan

White House from Camp David. "Vindictiveness and revenge are not admirable qualities and are not worthy of comment," a White House spokesman said in a statement telephoned to news agencies. "Donald Regan's attempts to defame the first lady, on Mother's Day no less, are certainly in that category."

THE 397-PAGE BOOK, for which Regan was reported to have received a $1 million advance, is the latest in a succession of kiss-and-tell memoirs to embarrass and anger the Reagans.

When word leaked last week that Regan's "bombshell" would be the disclosure of Mrs. Reagan's reliance on astrology to plan his schedule, the White House was forced to acknowledge her "interest" in the stars and planets while the president denied it had ever played any role in policy decisions. On Friday, Reagan lashed out at Regan for choosing to attack the first lady and told reporters, "I don't look kindly on that at all."

Regan, breaking the silence he has held about the bad blood between him and the first lady, blames Mrs. Reagan in the book for his February 1987 firing, which he learned about from a television news report.

AFTERWARD, REGAN recalled telling Reagan: "I thought I was chief of staff to the president, not to his wife. I have to tell you, sir, that I'm very bitter."

Nancy Reagan constantly consulted an astrologer — referred to by Regan as "the Friend," but identified by Time as Joan Quigley of San Francisco, the author of three books on the subject — for advice on the president's schedule.

New York newspaper reveals more improprieties by Meese

United Press International

NEW YORK — Attorney General Edwin Meese accepted free air fare and lodging from non-profit organizations a dozen times in 1985 and 1986, the New York Daily News reported Sunday.

The newspaper quoted financial disclosure forms as showing that the nation's highest law enforcement official allowed the American Medical Association to pick up a $598 travel bill for his wife, Ursula, to attend a convention in December 1986.

The AMA was awaiting a Justice Department ruling at the time on whether its peer-review policy violated federal antitrust laws, the News said.

Meese announced a decision favorable to the group when he arrived at the Las Vegas conference, the newspaper quoted Wayne Bradley, AMA assistant executive vice president, as saying.

Bradley told the News that he later received word that the organization would be reimbursed for Mrs. Meese's expenses because questions had been raised "from outside." But an AMA spokesman said last week the group never got the money and "it's not something we would ever ask for," the newspaper noted.

GOVERNMENT OFFICIALS are barred from accepting free trips from groups with pending business with their agencies or are regulated by their departments, the newspaper pointed out.

Justice Department spokesman Terry Eastland insisted that Meese had done nothing improper, although he refused to discuss the AMA trip, the News said.

The newspaper said Meese accepted free travel or lodging from 12 non-profit organizations in 1985 and 1986. The financial disclosure forms for 1987 were not available, it said.

Among those that provided freebies for the attorney general, and sometimes his wife, were: St. Louis Bar Association, Harvard University in Cambridge, Mass., American Bar Association, Institute for Contemporary Studies in San Francisco, Ashbrook Center for Public Affairs in Ashland, Ohio, and Illinois Institute for Continuing Legal Education in Chicago.

Yacht seized after pot found

By Laura Parker
Washington Post

A $2.5 million luxury yacht was seized by the Coast Guard after one-tenth of an ounce of marijuana was found on board, and the vessel will be sold under the government's tough new policy aimed at even the most casual drug users.

The 133-foot Ark Royal, registered in Delaware with its home port in Philadelphia, was seized Saturday in international waters between Mexico and Cuba after Coast Guard officers found a butt of a marijuana cigarette in a trash can and a small amount of marijuana in a stateroom, Coast Guard officials in Miami said.

The Coast Guard can legally board

U.S.-flagged vessels in international waters.

None of the six people on board was arrested, Coast Guard spokesman Lou Parris said. He declined to identify them, but said the boat is registered to a Delaware business, the Tomima Corp.

THE BOAT, under a Coast Guard escort, was headed for Key West. Parris said the six on board would be released there.

The Associated Press quoted Coast Guard Lt. John Felker in Miami as saying that neither the yacht's registered owner, Michael Rogerson, described by the Coast Guard as the president and chief shareholder of Tomima Corp., nor any passengers were on board. Apparently only the crew was on board.

The seizure reflects the administration's "zero tolerance" policy, and came at a time when the Coast Guard has been forced to cut its drug patrols by 50 percent because of budget reductions.

"This new policy should be taken as fair warning to anyone who is using or transporting any detectable amount of drugs on our waterways," Transportation Secretary James Burnley IV said in a speech in Miami April 23. "We are dead serious about slamming the door on the drug threat in this country."

"THE NEW policy says that any vessel with controlled substances on board is subject to seizure and that does not specify any amount," Parris said. "What it means is just exactly that. Any amount." Parris said the Coast Guard has seized seven other boats — including two shrimp boats — in the Florida district since the new policy took effect April 15.

The Ark Royal, Parris said, is believed to be the most valuable of the boats seized so far. About a dozen boats have been seized nationally, he said.

In one of the other seven boardings, the Coast Guard found one marijuana cigarette, a marijuana cigarette butt and some ash, Parris said.

Under the new directive, Parris said, "some things that we had been, by policy, overlooking in the past, we are no longer overlooking."

UI claims handicap guidelines are met

By Jean Thilmany
The Daily Iowan

Members of UI Restrict Us Not, a group that rallied on the Pentacrest Friday afternoon, had a gripe. They wanted better accessibility on campus as soon as possible, but according to UI Director of Planning and Administration Richard Gibson, the UI has met necessary handicap guidelines.

But Maureen Edwards, CAC president-elect, said the main purpose of the gathering was to demonstrate that compliance with state codes is not enough.

"Accessibility means more than complying with state codes," Edwards said. "We want to work with the administration to increase the accessibility on campus."

Gibson said he thinks the UI is adequately complying with codes and he does not understand the complaint.

"To tell the truth, I was surprised to see they were having a rally," Gibson said. "I had thought we were meeting guidelines. I don't know what the current complaint is."

ACCORDING TO UI freshman Scott Dight, a UI student senator, the UI administration is "basically reactionary."

"There's been no advanced planning, especially when it comes to the Union," Dight said of the newly remodeled building. "They go back and change things that were not done right the first time around."

Gibson said his office is keeping up with individual requests for changes that students bring forth, but the UI is now running out of funds to meet those requests.

"We haven't had any requests recently," he said. "If individuals have complaints, we'll help out to the extent we have the funds."

Dight said RUN members usually approach about six different organizations on campus — including facilities planning and the UI administration — with their problems to make sure they are noticed.

"The general response from facilities planning is, 'It's in the works,' or 'It's under consideration,'" Dight said.

"If facilities planning tries to say we didn't tell them about our complaints, its ridiculous because we are bringing it to their attention with events like this," Dight said.

Rally

"I'm interested in getting to know people in wheelchairs, in being sensitive to what they go through," Dykes said. "I think people get neglected and treated like they're different and that's not the way it should be."

Busta agreed, saying disabled students cannot afford to ignore some things most students take for granted.

"IT WOULD BE nice if they maintained elevators," Busta said. "I had to miss class once because the elevator was out of order."

He said sidewalks are not properly cleared in the winter and there are not enough door openers on campus.

"These are little things, but they are the main things that have got to be done," Busta said.

Dykes said he thought the points being raised were legitimate ones.

According to RUN President Dan Burns, the goal of the rally was increased awareness among UI students.

"It's hard to judge at the time it's happening if we've achieved anything or not," Burns said. "If we called attention to the barriers we've had to deal with, then we are successful."

Mincey said disabled people should not have to sit at doors without door openers and wait for someone to open it.

"If the general public were to withstand our restrictions, they would be outraged," Mincey said. "The barriers restrict the freedom our country is based on."

Veishea

didn't. They were just drunk."

It took law officers until 4:15 a.m. to quell the disturbance and even pleas from Iowa State basketball coach Johnny Orr for the students to disperse were ignored as merry-makers damaged three police squad cars and one fire department unit before order was restored. One police car was overturned and its tires slashed early Saturday.

"I just asked them to go home. I said it's not good for Iowa State and it doesn't help anything," said Orr, who expressed concern that the riot scene might adversely affect the school's athletic recruiting. "I think they needed some leadership."

SUNDAY MORNING'S activity brought the number of arrests to about 60 in the past three days, police said. Those arrested early Sunday were charged with participating in a riot, an aggravated misdemeanor. Previous arrests were mainly for assault, public intoxication and disorderly conduct charges.

Authorities were forced to take some of those arrested to area jails for booking to accommodate the large number. Officers from the Ames Police Department, Story County Sheriff's Department, ISU Campus Police and the Iowa State Patrol were called to help put down the disturbance.

A police department dispatcher said authorities were "semi-prepared" Sunday should bands of partying ISU students take to the streets for a fourth straight night. "We're all hoping that this is it — that students will say we need a night of rest before finals week. We'll see."

The four-day Veishea celebration, Thursday through Sunday, is marked by parties before the week of final exams. The word "Veishea" represents the initials of the Iowa State University colleges that existed when the celebration started around the turn of the century. Those colleges were V-veterinary medicine, E-engineering, IS-industrial science, HE-home economics and A-agriculture.

Mothers

popped up at about the same time Becky decided to attend the UI. "Becky was planning on going here, and my husband suggested I go to college, too," Joan, who's 56, said. "He thought it was time for me to get my degree. My son had gone to college here and we had a condominium here."

When the McClains left for college, they also left Joan's husband David McClain behind so he could continue his practice as an osteopath in Des Moines and keep up the house while they were gone.

But four generations of McClain mothers provided the real catalyst for Joan and Becky's joint college experience. Encouragement from Joan's mother for her to finish her degree, along with the birth of Becky's baby, Katie, now 2 years old, were major factors in their decision to go to the UI together.

"I PROMISED my mother I would finish," Joan said. "She always wanted me to finish."

And Joan's presence made it more convenient for Becky to finish her degree.

"I'm a single mom," said Becky, who will probably work at an insurance company next year. "I think it would be more difficult without my mother. I'm not a real fan of day care centers."

Becky and Joan even alternated their course schedule one summer and fall so they could take turns watching Katie.

But they both said working together has been a good experience. Although they help each other study, they have sometimes joined in a bit of friendly competition.

"In our history of Christianity course, I got an A and she got a B," Joan said. "I think she felt the professor was a bit easier on me because I was older."

"She usually does a little better than me," Becky said. "She worries a lot. Sometimes I'd rather sit and play with Katie than study."

Hawkeyes top Buckeyes in season finale

By Marc Bona
The Daily Iowan

Softball

The Iowa Hawkeyes, who 12 games ago tried to salvage the remainder of the season, did just that by ending the year with a four-game sweep over the Ohio State Buckeyes this past weekend at the Hawkeye Softball Complex.

Iowa topped the Buckeyes 1-0 and 5-2 Friday and 5-0 and 8-1 Saturday. Iowa finished the year 33-20-1 overall, 10-13-1 in the Big Ten. The 33 wins broke the previous school record (30) for wins in a season.

While a veteran group of three seniors (Amy Drake, Cristen Barry and Jeannette Painovich) played their final game in an Iowa uniform, it was slew of newcomers that brought the season to end on a strong note. Iowa's first-year pitchers Diana Repp and Tami Chown each earned two victories over the weekend. Repp set a school record for wins by becoming the first Iowa pitcher to record a 20-win season. First-year Iowa Coach Gayle Bleivins was pleased with the way the season ended.

"WE HAD A REAL good finish the last three weeks," she said. "I'm real proud of them. I think that's (going 10-2 the past 12 games) very respectable. A lot of teams would have called it quits; our kids didn't."

Saturday, Lori DeSmyter and Sally Miller led the Hawkeyes offensively, as the pair combined for a four-for-six hitting performance and three runs scored.

Repp gave up four hits in six innings to gain the victory while Barry picked up the save.

In the nightcap, Iowa jumped to an early lead in the bottom of the second and never looked back, exploding for five hits and three runs. DeSmyter doubled to deep left-center and scored on Lynda Schlueter's triple. Painovich — the team's leading hitter with a .319 average — bunted Schlueter in and scored on Karen Wick's double to left field.

Ohio State third baseman Shawna Bowman awaits the umpire's call after she makes an unsuccessful attempt to tag out Iowa's Sally Miller during the first game of a double header Saturday at the Hawkeye Softball Complex. The Hawkeyes swept the Buckeyes in four games.

Noreen's bat, Driscol's arm drop Vikings

By Eric J. Hess
The Daily Iowan

Baseball

The Iowa Hawkeyes took the first half of a baseball doubleheader Sunday, defeating Grandview 8-2 at Iowa Field.

The second game of the doubleheader did not begin after heavy rains stormed the field.

Iowa Coach Duane Banks said his team's performance against Grandview was impressive. With the victory, Iowa's record stands at 28-22 following three losses in four games to Wisconsin Thursday and Friday. Grandview fell to 24-20.

"Everything fell together today," Banks said. "But it's easy when you get pitching like we did with Bob (Driscol)."

Driscol was taken out of the starting rotation for Big Ten games earlier this season, a move he said was warranted.

"I know that I wasn't throwing as well as I could have been," he said.

DRISCOL SAID A minor adjustment was made in his pitching stride which enabled the junior transfer from Mt. Auburn, Iowa, to improve his season record 3-4.

Since pitching coach Bus Campbell left the Iowa program to attend personal matters in Colorado in the end of March, Driscol said it took a little time to adjust to Campbell's departure.

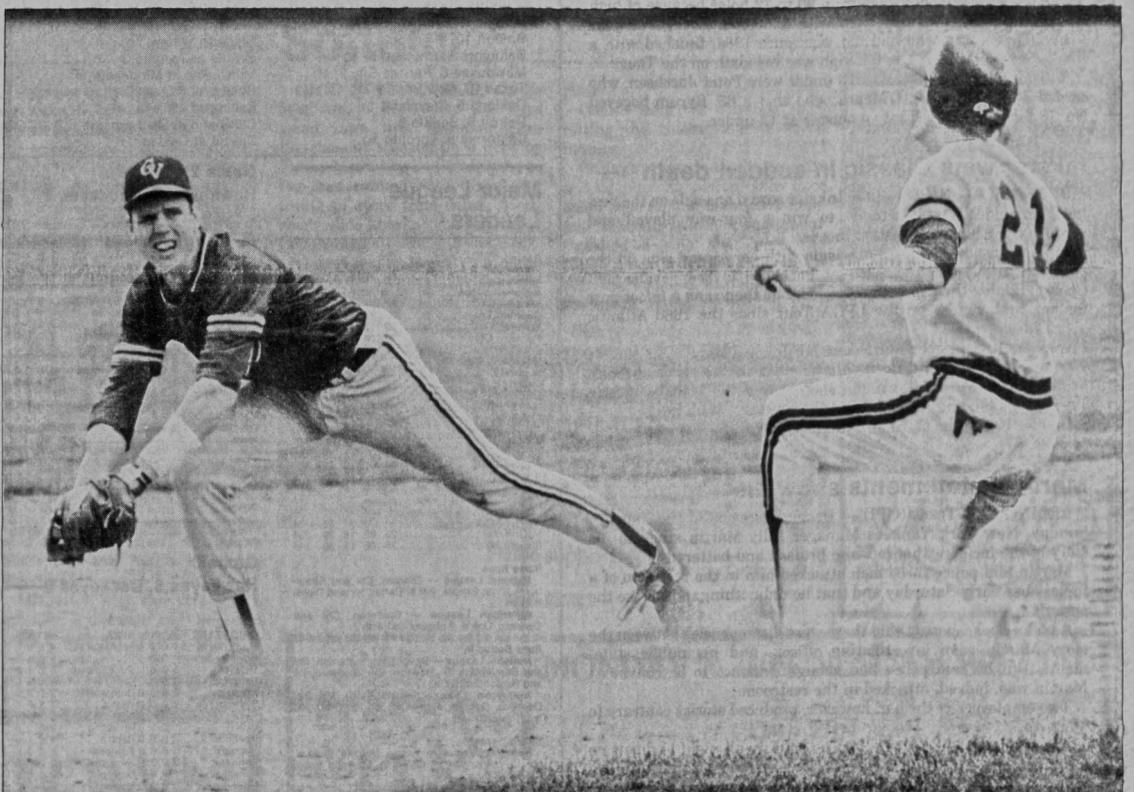

"The short time I was with him he taught me a lot," Driscol said.

Now, out of the starting rotation, Driscol said long relief will be his role with the Hawkeyes the remainder of the season.

It was Iowa's hitting that ruled against Grandview Sunday.

Third baseman Keith Noreen opened up the scoring in the bottom of the first inning, taking a 2-2 fastball over the left-field fence with Luis Ramirez and Jeff Schafer on base. It was Noreen's eighth homer of the year.

Grandview's Brian Speas stretches to catch an errant throw in an attempt to stop Iowa's Tim Costo from stealing to second base. The Hawkeyes prevailed 8-2 in the first game of a doubleheader Sunday at the Iowa Field. The second game was canceled due to rain.

Bulls dump Cavs with 107-101 win

By Ian Love
United Press International

CHICAGO — For the first time in the series between the Chicago Bulls and the Cleveland Cavaliers, the Bulls won when Michael Jordan scored less than 50 points.

The Bulls also won their first playoff series since 1981 with the 107-101 win over Cleveland in the fifth and deciding game of the series.

Jordan totaled 39 points for the Bulls, rookie Scott Pippen poured in 25 while Dave Corzine added 14. Mark Price scored 25, Ron Harper

NBA Playoffs

17 and Brad Daugherty 16 for the Cavaliers. Cleveland made only 20 of 32 free throws.

Jordan set an NBA record for most points scored in a five-game series with 226.

Pistons 99, Bullets 78

DETROIT — Joe Dumars of the Pistons shut down Jeff Malone of the Bullets Sunday to earn the NBA's most infuriating assignment — trying to stop Michael Jordan.

The Detroit Pistons and Chicago Bulls won at home in Game 5 to capture their opening-round playoff series, setting up a meeting in the second round.

Lakers 110, Utah 91

INGLEWOOD, Calif. — The Utah Jazz hit 4 of 19 shots and were outrebounded 20-6 in falling behind 24-8 after one period as the Los Angeles Lakers rolled to a second-round victory over the Jazz 110-91.

The Lakers led by 24 points at halftime. Karl Malone of the Jazz had 29 points but just three in the first half. He missed his first seven shots and did not score until 4:08 remained in the second period.

United Press International

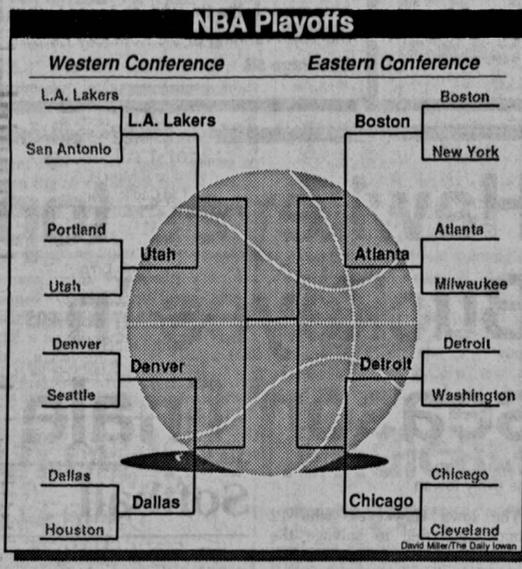

Chicago's Michael Jordan, left, has his shot blocked by Cleveland's Craig Ehlo while the Bulls' Horace Grant is elbowed in the face in the first quarter of the first-round game in Chicago. The Bulls advanced with a 107-101 victory behind Jordan's 39 points.

Hawks 121, Bucks 111

ATLANTA — Dominique Wilkins scored 33 points and Randy Wittman 29 Sunday night to spark the Atlanta Hawks to a 121-111 victory over the Milwaukee Bucks in the decisive game of their opening-round playoff series.

Atlanta, which beat Milwaukee 3-2, begins its best-of-seven Eastern Conference semifinal Wednesday night in Boston against the Celtics. Boston advanced by beating the New York Knicks 3-1.

Hawks dump Illini, run record to 19-6

By Anne Upson
The Daily Iowan

The members of Iowa men's tennis team finished the season the same way they brought it in — with a win. The Hawkeyes landed a victory over Illinois, 6-3, Friday at Klotz Tennis Courts.

Iowa (19-6 overall, 5-4 in the Big Ten) ended the season two wins short of tying the school's single-season win record of 21. Iowa Coach Steve Houghton said he was extremely happy with his team's performance Friday.

"I am very pleased with the team," Houghton said. "I didn't think we practiced as good as we played."

The Hawkeyes suffered two losses in singles and one in doubles. Both losses in singles, Claes Ramel at No. 1 and Dave Novak at No. 2, went three sets. Houghton said it was unfortunate that both Ramel and his opponent Mark Long couldn't win the match.

"CLAES REALLY WORKED hard," Houghton said. "It is a shame that both of them couldn't win. They are both great players."

Houghton added he has seen Long throughout his career and is impressed by his performance.

"This is my fourth year watching him and I really admire his ability," Houghton said. "He is a really impressive player."

Of the wins the team recorded, Houghton said he thought No. 2, No. 4 and No. 5 players played well.

Women's Tennis

"I was really pleased with the singles, they were great," Houghton said. "I was pleased with Martin Aguirre and Lars (Nordmark) and Jay (Maltby) — those guys did great."

Iowa's seventh-year coach said he thought Illinois played better than he had expected but Illinois Coach Neal Adams disagreed.

"THEY WERE GOOD, a good Big Ten team," Houghton said. "They played better than I had anticipated."

"I am disappointed," Adams said. "We were good at No. 1 and No. 3 in singles and No. 1 doubles, but as for the rest I was wasn't too pleased."

Adams attributed his team's loss to a slow start and a pressure factor.

"They didn't deal with the pressure like they should have," Adams said. "We got a slow start and we didn't perform like we usually do. We will use this as a positive learning experience."

The Illinois coach said he thought Iowa really proved that they wanted the win.

"They fought hard for the win, they really wanted it," Adams said. "They performed well. We will wait and see how the Big Tens go."

Next up for the Hawkeyes is the Big Ten Championships at Purdue May 13-15.

GRANDVIEW SCORED its two runs in the third. Tony Nelson led off with a double and was driven home with a double by Scott Wilgenbusch. Dave Solseth followed with an RBI single.

The Hawkeyes countered in the fourth with a four-run rally with all scores coming after two outs. Banks said the two-out rally was encouraging for his club, considering hitting has not been a Hawkeye strength.

"We've had problems hitting all season. That's no secret," he said.

Tim Costo opened the fourth with a single. After two outs, the Hawkeyes erupted as Brian Butz doubled, Marty Brauch singled, Ramirez singled and Schafer singled.

The Hawkeyes' final run came in the sixth as Ramirez doubled and Noreen singled him home.

Iowa's next action is Saturday and Sunday at Iowa Field against Northwestern. Banks said the Hawkeyes will need to win three of four against the Wildcats to be included in the Big Ten tournament later this month.

OHIO STATE PICKED up its lone run in the top of the third when Iowa first baseman Cara Coughenour scooped up a bunt by Tracie Matheny and attempted to tag lead runner Kathy Boettcher trying to score from third. Boettcher's slide knocked the ball out of Coughenour's glove and the Buckeyes were on the board.

Iowa grabbed five insurance runs in the fifth on five hits. In all, the Hawkeyes went 10-for-28 at the plate.

Chown went the distance, four-hitting the Buckeyes over seven innings.

Friday's action was highlighted by a solid pitching performance once again from mound mainstay Repp and Chown, while Coughenour smashed a solo shot past the 225-foot sign in left field to break a scoreless deadlock in the bottom of the fourth inning.

6-1 victory. Sunday, the NHL suspended Schoenfeld, but the Devils received a restraining order from State Supreme Court Judge J.F. Madden, and Schoenfeld was behind the bench for Game 4. The start of the game was delayed more than an hour because of the confusion.

Maley gave the Devils a 1-0 lead at 10:47 of the first period when his shot through a screen off a 2-on-1 break trickled through the pads of goaltender Rejean Lemelin. Moments later, Ken Linseman hit the post to the right of Devils goaltender Sean Burke.

AT 11:32, HOWEVER, Verbeek broke free from a scramble at the Bruins blue line and faked Lemelin on a breakaway to score on a backhand for a 2-0 lead.

Boston outshot New Jersey 14-5 in the second period and went ahead 2-1. Craig Janney dug the puck out of the right corner, broke toward the net and fed Neely, who beat Burke from close range.

At 4:04 of the third period, Kurvers took a pass from Brendan Shanahan and beat Lemelin from 25 feet for a 3-1 lead.

The game got out of hand only once when play was interrupted for 10 minutes in the middle of the second period by a 10-player melee. Referee Paul McNis, who has refereed NHL exhibition games, called a total of 86 penalty minutes and conferred often with John McCauley, the NHL's officiating director.

McCauley said the three NHL officials — Newell and linemen Gord Broseker and Ray Scapinello — refused to work because of Schoenfeld's reinstatement.

Golfers play middle ground

Women take seventh place at Big Ten Championships

By G. Hammond-Kunke
The Daily Iowan

The Iowa women's golf team finished seventh for the second straight year at the Big Ten Championships this past weekend at the Scarlet Golf Course in Columbus, Ohio.

Ohio State ran away from the rest of the nine-team field, winning for the fourth time in the last six years. Minnesota finished second, 28 strokes behind the Buckeyes' total of 1,248. With the conference crown, Ohio State receives an automatic bid to the NCAA Women's Golf Championships.

Women's Golf

Minnesota's Kate Hughes claimed medalist honors with a 72-hole total of 306, four strokes ahead of Ohio State's Jane Kang and Indiana's Tracy Chapman. Hughes fired a tournament-low, par 73 in Sunday's final round after trailing Kang by one stroke opening Sunday's play.

Iowa's Stacey Arnold was named Big Ten first-year Player of the Year after finishing 17th overall with a 327 total. Arnold shot the low round Saturday with a 74.

INDIANA FINISHED third (1,277), followed by Michigan State (1,287), Illinois (1,311), Wisconsin (1,321), Iowa (1,325), Purdue (1,329) and Michigan (1,409).

Kelley Brooke placed 19th for Iowa with a score of 328. Jeannine Gibson (337), Sarah Ward (339), Amy Butzer (341) and Kris Heatherly (359) rounded out Iowa scoring.

The Hawkeyes will return their entire squad next season, giving Thomason reason for optimism.

"We have a good foundation to build on for next season."

Klapprott's steady rounds lead Hawkeyes to ninth place

By Michael Trilk
The Daily Iowan

If what happened at the Northern Intercollegiate golf meet this past weekend was a preview of this weekend's Big Ten Championships, Chuck Zwienier's Iowa Hawkeyes have a lot of work to do in a little time.

Iowa, which going into this past weekend's meet was entertaining thoughts of challenging for the Big Ten title, finished ninth out of 15 teams at the Northern Intercollegiate meet at the Cherokee Country Club in Madison, Wis.

Men's Golf

The top of the team standings were no surprise as Ohio State, which has won the last six Big Ten titles, won the event with an 865 score for the 54-hole event. Illinois, which may have the best chance to threaten Ohio State's title this weekend, was second with an 874.

Wisconsin was third with an 881, Ball State was fourth at 885, Northwestern finished fifth at 889, Michigan State was sixth at 895, Michigan was seventh at 896 and Indiana was eighth with a 901.

IOWA TOTALED 915 as Purdue, Minnesota, Toledo, Eastern Michigan, Western Michigan and Northern Illinois rounded out the field.

The Hawkeyes' pattern this season of starting slow and finishing strong was reversed in this meet. Iowa started well but wore out as the tourney wore on, firing 293, 303 and 319.

Individually, Brad Klapprott was the low Iowa player with a 54-hole score of 228. Steve Reilly and Jeff Schmid each shot 230 while Dave Holmes shot a 232 and Bob Kollsmith scored a 235.

McGhee leads Hawks to sixth

By Brent D. Woods
The Daily Iowan

Iowa hurdler Pat McGhee is finally finding out what he can do when he's not saddled with injuries.

The senior set two season bests at the National Invitational in Bloomington, Ind., this past Saturday, leading the Hawkeyes to a sixth-place finish and being named athlete of the meet.

McGhee claimed the 400-meter intermediate hurdles in a meet record and NCAA qualifying time of 49.80 and was third in the 110-high hurdles in 13.96.

"Saturday things worked real

Men's Track

well," McGhee said of his run in the 400 hurdles. "I went out relaxed and my steps came out very good."

McGhee was also pleased with his race in the 110 highs, but said he was room for improvement.

"It was a close race," he said. "I probably could have done better, though. My legs weren't really snappy."

PAUL JONES BROKE Quinn Early's school record in taking second in the long jump, going 25 feet, 8 inches.

"With Pat's performance, and Doug Jones' outstanding long jump, we are really pleased with the meet," Iowa Coach Ted Wheeler said. "We had Kelly Scott do an excellent job in the pole vault, and the mile relay team also did very well."

Scott vaulted 16-4/4 to take seventh, and the mile relay team of St. Clair Blackman, Louis English, Paul Steele and DJuan Strozier was second in 3:10.80.

Steele was also second behind

McGhee in the 400-intermediate hurdles in 51.16. K.P. Lansing was fifth in the high jump at 6-9/2 and Doug Jones recorded a sixth-place showing in the 110 highs in 14.34.

Big Ten power Indiana claimed the team crown, with Illinois taking second. Cincinnati finished third.

Wheeler said McGhee's emergence on the national scene is directly related to his injury-free season.

"We don't have any serious injuries with him, that's the biggest thing," Wheeler said. "We just hope to keep him healthy."

The Hawkeyes will host the Iowa Open this weekend before heading into the Big Ten meet May 21-22.

Indiana journalism student writes the best of the worst

By Michael Molinski
United Press International

SAN JOSE, Calif. — An Indiana journalism student's dreadful description of a "fine-tuned" woman with "hair as dark as new tires" was named the best of the worst Sunday in the annual Bulwer-Lytton bad writing contest.

Rachel Sheeley, 20, a student at Franklin College in Franklin, Ind., beat out entries from more than 10,000 writers in what contest founder Scott Rice, an English professor at San Jose State University, called "the Baltimore Orioles of literary competitions."

The aim of the contest was to write the opening sentence to the worst possible novel.

Sheeley's winning entry:

"Like an expensive sports car, fine-tuned and well-built, Portia was sleek, shapely and gorgeous, her red jumpsuit moulding her body, which was as warm as the seatcovers in July, her hair as dark as new tires, her eyes flashing like bright hubcaps, and her lips as dewy as the beads of fresh rain on the hood; she was a woman driven — fueled by a single accelerator — and she needed a man, a man who wouldn't shift from his views, a man to steer her along the right road: a man like Alf Romeo."

It was the seventh annual Bulwer-Lytton, named after the British novelist who wrote the line, "The pen is mightier than the sword," but was known for his awkward language, unbelievable plot twists and overdone descriptions.

1988 KENTUCKY DERBY

Lukas finally gets his Derby

By Paul Moran
Newsday

Winning Colors, right, noses out Forty Niner to claim Saturday's Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs.

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — This time, the scenario he envisioned was played out precisely on the racetrack.

The 13th time was the charm. Where a dozen others had failed before, a huge, long-striding roan filly the color of gun metal, unlocked the hallowed Kentucky Derby winner's circle to trainer Wayne Lukas Saturday. Nobody wanted it more.

"It's a seven-year buildup," Lukas said after Winning Colors had raced home with the victory. "I don't think it's really sunk in yet. We were pretty loose all week. I just felt watching it unfold all spring... I just felt that we were going to send the best horse over here."

"We certainly could have gotten beat today. We were backing some very big odds, but I just felt that whatever was there, whatever that filly had, that she was going to come over here and run her very best race. In the last 120 days of her preparation, we never missed a work, a step, an out, a travel arrangement or anything of that sort, and I think that's what it takes to win the Derby. I'm more convinced of that than ever."

"I KNOW WE'VE WON the Derby," said Gene Klein, who owns Winning Colors. Klein had been involved with three of the horses that contributed to Lukas' record losing streak. "But I'm not quite sure I believe it," he said.

Their hearts must have skipped a beat as they watched rider Gary Stevens put a left-handed whip to the tiring Winning Colors in the last sixteenth of a mile as Forty Niner closed in with every stride. But Lukas' almost obsessive Kentucky Derby quest ended when the filly doggedly prevailed by a neck — the narrowest margin of victory in 19 years. Not since Majestic Price defeated Arts and Letters by a neck in 1969 has a Derby been decided in a photo.

Winning Colors joined Regret (1915) and Genuine Risk (1980) as the only fillies to win the Derby. She led for every step of the 1 1/4 miles, which she covered in 2:02 1-5.

THE ANTICIPATED early challenges never materialized as Pat Day, who rode Forty Niner, elected to take his colt well off the pace after reaching even terms with the filly in a 23-second opening quarter. None of the others with apparent speed were sent after her early. What developed was the most cleanly run, uncontested Derby since Spend a Buck in 1985.

Were it not for Forty Niner's futile late run, the Kentucky Derby would have been almost identical to Winning Colors' victory in the Santa Anita Derby.

Of 17 starters, only Winning Colors and Forty Niner did any meaningful running. Wood Memorial winner Private Terms, a slight betting favorite over the filly, suffered defeat for the first time in his eight-race career. Though superbly ridden by Chris Antley, the colt failed to fire and finished ninth. The slow early pace took the stretch runners — Brian's Time, Lively One and Cefis — out of the race before a half-mile was run. The pace also severely compromised Risen Star, who raced well to finish third, three lengths behind, but was never in position to threaten.

Stevens said Lukas had directed him to make the stretch-turn move if the filly enjoyed an easy lead to that point. "He said, 'Just go ahead and try to steal away from them right there.' That's basically the plan we had. He also told me if somebody got crazy and tried to go to the lead, don't worry about it, just ride my race."

Ancient Egyptian pharaoh Ramesses invades Boston

By Matt Damsker
United Press International

BOSTON—Three thousand years ago, he lorded it over the masses, and here he goes again. "Ramesses the Great," a blockbuster display celebrating the empire-building son and scourge of the Nile, opened April 24 at the Boston Museum of Science. By the time it closes Aug. 30, as many as a million viewers will have paid tribute (at $5 to $8 a pop) to his mummified highness.

Actually, the mummy of Ramesses II will not be part of this display (it remains under wraps in Egypt), but that has not stopped nearly 1 million visitors from viewing the exhibit during its previous stop in Denver. And before that, 600,000 saw it in Memphis, Tenn., where no museum show had drawn more than 50,000. Clearly, this is the sequel to the legendary King Tutankhamen exhibit that dazzled America in the mid-1970s, although Ramesses' loot may not match the golden glint of Tut's treasures.

INSTEAD, THIS display offers about 70 items to better acquaint us with the range of ancient Egyptian life as opposed to focusing only on the contents of royal coffers and tombs. Yes, there is fabulous jewelry — most prominently the 19-pound, solid gold necklace called the Gold of Valor, found in 1940 on the mummy of King Psusennes I and comprising 5,000 golden discs. And there are treasures of lapis lazuli, silver water pitchers, some imposing granite statuary, but also many everyday objects — lamps, gloves, chairs, mirrors, hairbrushes and the like — that provide a sense of what the simple folk did in those distant days.

Egyptologist Rita E. Freed, who

Inevitably, . . . focus on the selling of Ramesses tends to obscure a more relevant question: Just who was the guy?

curated the Memphis exhibit, has acknowledged that only about 10 of the works on display are certifiably world-class, but nonetheless calls it "a very careful selection of the finest and most representative Egyptian treasures." And indisputably top-class is the show's imposing centerpiece, a 27-foot-high Ramesses colossus — 57 tons of 3,000-year-old stone statuary — for which a special mock temple has had to be built on a site adjacent to the museum. In order to add the colossus to the tour in Memphis, Coca-Cola kicked in $100,000 to restore and recombine it from the 60 unearthed fragments that had lain in the sands of Egypt since their discovery 20 years ago. It is the largest Egyptian statue ever restored.

THAT GIVES YOU an idea of the physical and financial scale of this show — a scale that pleases the Egyptian government, which reportedly did not make as much money as it might have from the hugely successful King Tut exhibit. Indeed, while American museums profited from King Tut replica merchandise, Egypt got not a penny of those ancillary revenues. This time the Egyptians are demanding guarantees of $250,000 and up from each American museum on the tour, in addition to all the ticket money above regular museum admission prices, plus all the merchandising profits from poster, post card and replica sales. So far, all of that has translated into more than $3 million for Egypt from the American tour.

Inevitably, such focus on the selling of Ramesses tends to obscure a more relevant question: Just who was the guy? Well, Yul Brynner played him (opposite Charlton Heston's Moses, one may recall) in the film The Ten Commandments, and it's fair to say he was the last great pharaoh and the most prolific builder of ancient Egypt. But there is a lot more to know. Indeed, the Museum of Science press kit on Ramesses weighs in with the heft of a sarcophagus lid, detailing everything from Ramesses' basic bio to the art of mummification.

MOST IMPRESSIVE of all, though, is the evidence that Ramesses really deserves this sort of museum spectacle. King Tut, by comparison, was a relatively weak ruler who reigned only until he was 18. Ramesses ruled for 66 years (1279-1213 B.C.), presiding over Egypt's Golden Age, battling and defeating an outnumbering army of Hittites, then concluding history's first recorded peace treaty with them. He built some of the greatest monuments in Egyptian history, among them the temple of Abu Simbel, and the world's greatest hall of columns, Karnak.

Believed by many to be the pharaoh of the Jews' Exodus from Egypt, Ramesses died at age 90, having sired about 90 children (and having married his own daughter, along with nearly 100 other women). In appetite and accomplishment, he was truly pharaohic, and "Ramesses the Great" should do him justice.

Cinema revives memories, stirs the mind with celluloid

By Paul Dunt
The Daily Iowan

The cinema has always been a magical place for me. It's not so much the film as the occasion that makes it special. The aroma of hot dogs, dust fanning the projector and the crunch of popcorn underfoot. And dates. What inexplicable attraction always binds a bad film and a disastrous date? And why does the kid behind you always glue gum to your jacket? Anyway, as the lights go down and hands meet, all is forgotten as we immerse in silver. Here are my top 10 and the reactions they conjure.

2010 — It was sticky hot. Heat hung above the road as I cycled frantically across Portsmouth. Late as ever. Dust pitted my skin beneath a sweaty glaze. A rookie reporter on his first story. "Press!" I announced, flashing my card proudly and danced into the theater. After the blaze of sun, all was dark. I stumbled, blindly grasping for a hand-hold. I felt a seat — and sat on the the correspondent from the local paper. Then the radio station. Then local TV. After the film, I hid 'neath my seat, checked the coast was clear and ran.

The Blues Brothers — Ask any respectable Brits the distance to Chicago and they'll lower their dark glasses and reply, "106 miles," be it from Bournemouth, Liverpool or Bath. The Blues Brothers is almost a national institution in the United Kingdom and "Sweet Home Chicago" fills the air from John O'Groats to Land's End. Wonderful R'n'B and tactics learned in the "Rawhide" scene provide hours of entertainment when the bands play rough at our local pub.

Splash — Always a lover of seafoods, this was a culinary delight. Daryl Hannah had 'em diving off the Cross-Channel Ferries like manic Lemmings on acid, and sales of hair crimpers soared. John Candy was delightful as a sweaty peeper and some wonderful lines like, "OK, so she's a fish. Most people never fall in love," made this so cute.

All of Me — Why oh why oh why wasn't Steve Martin nominated for an Oscar this year? Chevy Chase made numerous digs at the Academy, so perhaps American comedy will get its just rewards in a few years' time. All of Me displays Martin at his comical best and broadly follows the theme established in The Man with Two Brains a year earlier. Martin, his body carrying the soul of a deceased millionaire, battles to control his two sexual halves and release Lily Tomlin, incarcerated by mystical mistake which whisks them both to love.

Return of the Jedi — This one had it all. Incest, sweaty toads and those gorgeous little bears. Lots of fun, action and frolics with the Star Wars stalwarts and the goo behind Vader's black bucket. OK, so we'd seen the Death Star before and yes, it had exactly the same design fault as the original. But from a bunch of contractors who obviously live in the same wonderful dream world as those who bring you SDI, what is to be expected?

The Life Of Brian — This film had enraged clergy ringing their church bells in horror as the Python team return in another episode of inspired lunacy. Whilst swinging placards and banners obscured cinemas across the country, internal reaction was nothing but side-splitting laughter as the British loons conjure up what is probably the best of the Python movies. As the hordes gather beneath Brian's bedroom window, his "mother" says it all. "He's not coming out today. He's been a very naughty boy." Now where have I heard that before?

Reuben Reuben — Tom Conti

teams up with Kelly McGillis in her movie debut to play a drunken Scottish bard seducing America's housewives with his dulcet tones and cheeky grin. He bumbles along in a haze of prime Scotch until romance and responsibility draw ever nearer as he falls for McGillis as a pretty young student. A witty script and unexpected finale make this a memorable and thoughtful tragi-comedy.

Romancing the Stone — The opening sequence is a delight to aspiring novelists everywhere as Kathleen Turner, romantic novelist, finishes her latest masterpiece in a flood of tears and liquor. Suddenly she finds herself sweating it out in the Colombian jungle with rugged soldier of fortune Michael Douglas whose idea of romance seems a quick grope in the mud swamp. Danny De Vito raises his choppy little head in this madcap adventure that races from start to finish in fun, frolics and love.

The Goodbye Girl — An essential manual for aspiring flatmates everywhere. Recently divorced dancer Marsha Mason returns home to find her home inhabited by Richard Dreyfuss as a gurgling, naked guitar-playing young actor. As both struggle to adapt to conflicting lifestyles and faltering careers love blossoms amidst the lentils and tears. Proof that all living differences can be forgotten if you dine on the roof of your apartment.

Educating Rita — Michael Caine and Julie Walters in her screen debut proves that not all British films have to be three hour epics to be good. Caine is brilliant as a boozy Oxford Don and Walter's gritty and spunky character provides excellent contrast to the dreamy spires of Oxford. As Walters grapples with the pages of "Howard's bleeding End," she gradually rises to the academic plane she desires but Caine detests and separation sadly ensues.
