Blaze destroys local meat locker

Toxic smoke forces 500 people to evacuate area

By Anne Kevlin
The Daily Iowan

A fire at an Iowa City meat locker Tuesday night forced the evacuation of about 500 people from businesses and homes within a 1-mile radius when a 300-pound ammonia tank burned, producing billows of toxic smoke.

About six firefighters were treated on the scene for heat exhaustion, but no other injuries were reported from the fire or the toxic fumes at Gay's Locker and Meat Market, 1421 Waterfront Drive.

Owner Charles Gay predicted the fire would destroy the building. "The whole thing's going to cave in," he said after the fire had been burning for about an hour. "It's going to be a total loss. It's amazing how fast it's burning."

About 105 firefighters from Iowa City and 11 other Johnson County departments helped battle the blaze, which was brought under control at about 8:50 p.m. but continued to burn at 11 p.m.

The cause of the fire was unknown at that time. Cleanup crews stayed at the scene overnight, and officials said an investigation of the fire would begin today.

Iowa City Fire Marshal Larry Kinney estimated the damage at $300,000. Three employees were in the building when the fire was discovered at about 6:45 p.m., but all escaped safely.

Marty Martinson, 17, and Jason Northam, 16, were in the front retail area of the locker when they noticed a "popping noise" coming from the back area and smelled an "electrical" smoke, which they said smelled similar to battery acid.

"We're pretty used to smelling smoke," Northam said, referring to the meat market's smokehouse. Employees tried to telephone for help but the fire had damaged telephone lines in the building, Northam said.

GAY SAID there were no customers in the building, which was to close at 7 p.m. "The boys had just finished cleaning the machines in the back room," he said.

Fire and rescue units were notified of the fire at about 6:50 p.m., and police blocked nearby roads, especially east of the building. A cloud of smoke rose in a southeasterly direction, and businesses as far east as the Pepperwood Place shopping center on Highway 6 were evacuated.

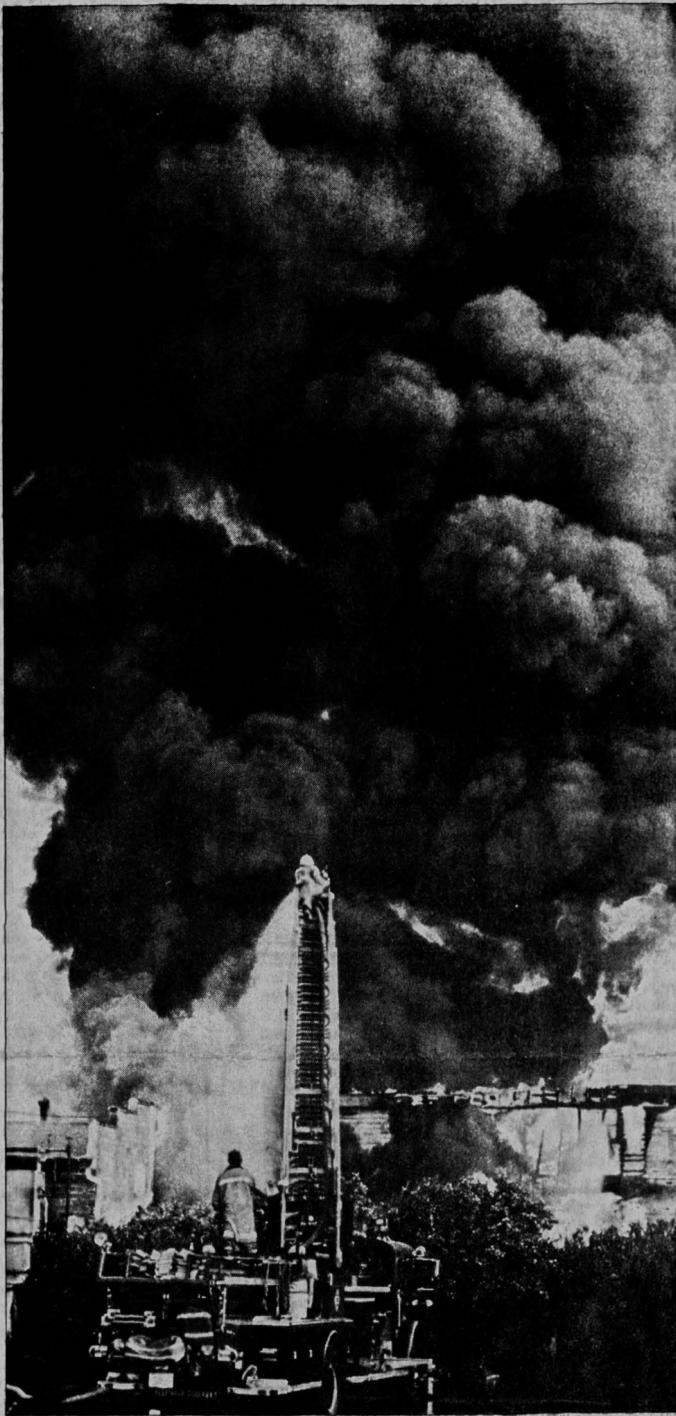

Fire officials feared an explosion from the ammonia, which was used as a coolant in the meat locker. Police and fire officials warned onlookers to move at least 50 yards away from the engulfed building.

"Ammonia gas is in the yard, and it's a very dangerous smoke," Iowa City police officer Greg Roth said. Roth said firefighters first on the scene at 7 p.m.

Fire marks end of era for Gay family business

By Anne Kevlin
The Daily Iowan

Tuesday night's fire at Gay's Locker and Meat Market marked the end of an era begun in the decade after 1910 by W.A. Gay, who started the company as a slaughterhouse for a downtown Iowa City meat market, according to grandson Charles Gay.

Charles Gay and his brother Richard are now co-owners of the market, which was to have soon entered its fourth generation of ownership.

"I don't know what we'll do," Charles Gay said while his business burned. "Only time will tell."

He said he began working at the family operation in 1936, as a junior high school student. That year, W.A. Gay converted the slaughterhouse into a meat market.

Gay, who said he learned of Tuesday night's fire while at a meeting, predicted the building would be a total loss.

"I've worked there ever since I was a kid," he said. "I'm at the point where I will retire. My nephews are in the process of planning to renovate."

Mike Gay, who is the son of Richard Gay, said remodeling was to have begun this summer.

"I was born and reared here," Mike Gay said as he watched firefighters try to control the blaze. "We have to do some remodeling, don't we?"

"All I can think about are memories and time spent here," he said.

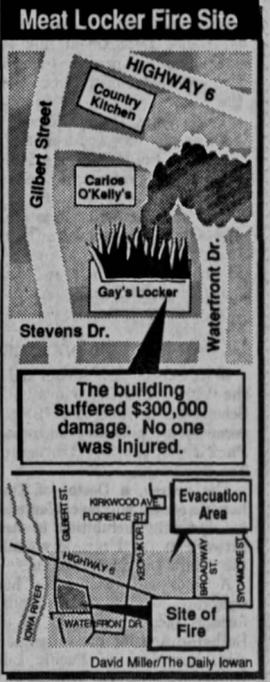

Pat Moore, owner of the Pat Moore Construction Company located west of Gay's Locker, watched the blaze.

"My son was down here at the office, and he called me to tell me it was on fire and I told him he better get out because they were evacuating people," Moore said. "I've got a metal building, so I don't have too much to worry about."

Moore commented on the building's age, which Charles Gay estimated as being about 70 years old.

"It's one of the oldest establishments in Iowa City," Moore said.

Charles Gay said the building was insured.

Council gives plant contract to Stanley

Iowa City councilors at a special meeting Tuesday awarded a $1.2 million contract to Stanley Consultants Inc., a Muscatine-based engineering firm, for construction management of the city's new sewer treatment plant.

Stanley will oversee construction of the plant and ensure that the contractor follows design specifications, although the firm will not be involved in any design work itself.

County sheriff candidates criticize current administration at forum

By James Cahoy
The Daily Iowan

The administration of outgoing Johnson County Sheriff Gary Hughes came under fire Tuesday night from three out of the four candidates for the position at a candidates forum held in the Iowa City Public Library.

The forum was sponsored by the Johnson County Democratic Party, and the participants included all four candidates for sheriff — Johnson County Sheriff's Deputy Robert Carpenter, Iowa City police officer

Daniel Dreckman, Iowa City Deputy Police Chief Ken Stock and former Coralville police officer Steve Snyder. All four will be running in the Democratic primary June 7.

Hughes, who has been in office for 16 years and will retire at the end of his current term, was criticized by Stock, Dreckman and Snyder over policies ranging from drug enforcement to treatment of UI athletes.

Stock voiced the strongest criticism of Hughes during the forum, claiming Hughes doesn't even run the Johnson County Sheriff's Department.

"FROM WHAT I understand, the present first and second deputies run the sheriff's department," Stock said. "I don't think Gary Hughes has anything to do with it."

Snyder also criticized Hughes' handling of the sheriff's department in recent years, claiming it was time for a change in administration.

"Hughes has done a good job, but

Dukakis adds W. Virginia, Nebraska to list of victories

By Matthew C. Quinn
United Press International

Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis easily defeated civil rights leader Jesse Jackson Tuesday night in the Nebraska and West Virginia Democratic presidential primaries.

Vice President George Bush, who already has the Republican nomination locked up, faced no active opposition in either state.

In Nebraska, with 39 percent of the vote counted, Dukakis had 66 percent of the vote to 25 percent for Jackson. With 8 percent of the West Virginia vote counted, Dukakis had 79 percent to 14 percent for Jackson. A total of 62 delegates to the Democratic National Convention were at stake. Dukakis already has a wide lead over Jackson and is considered virtually unstoppable.

As the political primary season entered its last month, voters cast ballots Tuesday not only for their presidential favorites but also faced choices in two hot Republican primary races — a Senate contest in Nebraska and a gubernatorial battle in West Virginia.

THE NATIONAL focus, however, was on the presidential fray and how much the two states can help Dukakis on his drive to the nomination. Although polls show Jackson running well back in both states, he has nonetheless campaigned vigorously in the past week.

The latest United Press International count shows Dukakis with a projected total of 1,365 delegates and Jackson with 871; 2,081 delegates are needed to nominate at the Democratic National Convention in Atlanta July 18-21.

Voting booths were open until 8 p.m. in Nebraska, where the latest poll from the Omaha World-Herald indicated Dukakis held a nearly 3-1 lead over Jackson. A low voter turnout was projected.

UI dancing group to tour

Dancers To Go, the touring repertory company of the UI Dance Department, will perform in Kansas City and St. Louis May 16-21.

The company will visit schools in both cities to offer performances and master classes and will present a public performance, sponsored by the UI Alumni Association, at 7:30 p.m. May 16 in the Kansas City Middle School of Fine Arts.

The highlight of the tour will be an appearance in the Gala Performance program, sponsored by Dance of St. Louis and held at Washington University in St. Louis at 8 p.m. May 21.

The company will be featured as guest artists at the event, which celebrates high-school dance in the St. Louis area.

Dancers To Go, now in its third year, is comprised of eight top-flight dancers chosen by audition from the UI Dance Department. The artistic director, Lan-lan King, is a faculty member and founder of the U.S.-China Dance Exchange Program at the UI.

The current repertoire of Dancers To Go showcases a variety of styles including jazz, ballet, modern, Chinese and Indian dance. Most of the dances were choreographed by UI faculty members.

Dancers To Go is co-sponsored by the UI Dance Department and Performance Plus, a program of the Arts Outreach office of the Iowa Center for the Arts.

Performance Plus provides distinguished teachers, lecturers and performers from the Iowa Center for the Arts for arts organizations and schools throughout the Midwest.

In addition to performances in schools and community centers throughout Iowa, Dancers to Go has twice toured to the Chicago area and has been featured on Iowa Public Television.

UI professor given degree

Keith Achepol, a professor and head of the Printmaking Department at the UI School of Art and Art History, has received an honorary doctorate from Pacific Lutheran University in Tacoma, Wash.

The degree, a Doctor of Fine Arts honoris causa, will be conferred during an upcoming exhibition of Achepol's artwork at the University Gallery on the Pacific Lutheran campus.

Achepol will receive the honorary doctorate for his contributions as a former faculty member at Pacific Lutheran and for his subsequent success, according to Pacific Lutheran University President William O. Rieke.

Senior chosen for orchestra

Kristin Davidson, the daughter of Omer and Juanita Davidson, of Northwood, has been selected to play horn in the American-Soviet Youth Orchestra in its debut tour of the United States and the Soviet Union.

Kristin is a senior in the School of Music at the UI. At the UI she has played in the University Symphony Orchestra, the Symphonic Band, Chamber Wind Ensemble and several student chamber ensembles.

She has studied horn with Gail Williams and Thomas Tittle in Cedar Rapids and Paul Anderson at the UI.

The project represents the first effort by the United States and the Soviet Union to form an orchestra jointly. The Youth Orchestra, which consists of 110 American and Soviet musicians aged 17 to 23, will tour the United States Aug. 5-14 and perform in the Soviet Union Aug. 19-30.

The American tour is sponsored by the Conservatory of Music at Oberlin College in Ohio and AFS Intercultural Programs, an international exchange organization based in New York. In the Soviet Union the orchestra is sponsored by the U.S.S.R. Ministry of Culture and Gosconsert.

The American and Soviet musicians will arrive at Oberlin College July 16 to begin a 2½-week rehearsal period with Larry Rachleff, Oberlin conductor and music director, and Leonid Nikolaev from the Moscow Conservatory of Music.

Johnson County could get new rural address system

By Hilery Livengood
The Daily Iowan

A new rural address system could be functioning in Johnson County by the end of the year, according to county zoning officials who spoke to the Johnson County Board of Supervisors Tuesday.

Plans for the system began "at least two years ago at the request of the Iowa City Post Office and various emergency services in the area," Johnson County Planner Joanne Lilledahl said at the meeting.

The supervisors will vote on forming a task force to investigate house-numbering possibilities on Thursday.

"We should have a task force. There are a lot of people in the county who are interested in this," Supervisor Betty Ocken-fels said. Members of the task force "should be representatives from the agencies who will be using the system. They should learn how the system operates at the base level," Lilledahl said.

THE TASK force would pinpoint a "zero-point" in the county, the location where rural house numbers would begin. Two options are suggested by zoning officials.

Starting the numbering in the northwest corner of the county is the option recommended by state officials, Lilledahl said. This system would coordinate with the existing county address system here.

However, house numbers in southeastern Johnson County would possibly be five-digit numbers in this plan, an option which many find undesirable, Lilledahl said. This option would also conflict with the existing Iowa City system, she added.

"I think that the northwest system is the way to go," Supervisor Dick Myers said. "It seems to have worked for the rest of the state."

A zero-point in the geographic center of the county is another option, Lilledahl said. Iowa City would be the center for this system.

This option would coordinate with the existing address system in Iowa City and would eliminate the possibility of five-digit address numbers, Lilledahl said.

Addresses would require a suffix (NW, NE, SE or SW) at the end of the address because residents on opposite sides of the city would have similar addresses.

Dead flier's brother: Board made 'scapegoats' of Northwest pilots

United Press International

BETTENDORF—The brother of one of the two pilots of a Northwest Airlines jet that crashed near Detroit last summer Tuesday said the National Transportation Safety Board has made the pilots scapegoats for the crash that killed 156.

"They're a scapegoat. It's the same old story. I think whenever you find pilots dead, they blame it on the pilots," said Greg Dodds, Bettendorf, Iowa, whose brother, David Dodds, served as co-pilot on Northwest Flight 255.

"If the pilots are alive, they pat the pilots on the back and say they did a terrific job. It's a very common pattern, but an unfortunate one."

The four-member National Transportation Safety Board voted unanimously to approve a draft staff report on the crash of the flight that blames pilot John Maus, 57, and Dodds, 35, for failing to set the aircraft's wing flaps and slats in the proper, extended position for takeoff.

THE CREW ALSO failed to go through a mandatory check list that would have caught their mistake, the NTSB report said.

The report said that even after liftoff the pilots could have avoided the crash if they had taken correct action, but that they probably thought their failure to gain altitude was caused by wind shear.

"The evidence doesn't support that at all," Greg Dodd said.

"There are eye-witnesses who say that the flaps and slats were extended, they've got the cockpit voice recorder indicating that the pilots went through their checklist and they had the flaps and slats extended and they even heard the metallic click sound indicating that they were extended. So that contention really just doesn't hold water."

Bill gives bus drivers police aid

United Press International

DES MOINES—School bus drivers soon will have a new weapon to catch motorists who pass their stopped buses.

Gov. Terry Branstad Tuesday signed into law a bill giving bus drivers the power to dispatch police to the owner of the vehicle that passes a stopped bus.

Under the new law, which takes effect July 1, drivers can write down the license plate numbers of offending vehicles. Local law enforcement agencies would be required to visit the vehicles' owners within 48 hours and could issue citations to owners unless they provide the name of the actual driver and the driver admits to being behind the wheel.

Under the current law only drivers of offending vehicles can be prosecuted and school bus drivers sitting in their high perches often cannot identify the drivers.

In other action, Branstad signed a measure giving Iowa's 50,000 blacks a state agency to press their concerns. The measure establishes a Commission on the Status of Blacks within the Iowa Department of Human Rights.

An Iowa City woman was found guilty Monday of simple assault, criminal trespass and public intoxication after she allegedly slapped a victim and spit at another victim on Feb. 28, according to Johnson County District Court records.

Danielle D. Axton, 24, 738 Grant St., was found guilty of the three charges after she allegedly entered the property of the victims without permission and slapped a male victim and spit on his mother. She then allegedly threatened them both, according to court records.

Axton was found outside the residence by the officer responding to the scene and allegedly told the officer she had been pushed by a man in the house. Axton was found to have a strong odor of alcohol on her breath and slurred speech. She admitted to having two or three pitchers of beer during the evening, according to court records.

Axton was fined a total of $232 in court, according to court records.

A UI student was charged Tuesday with third-degree theft after she allegedly received money from a check she stole, according to Johnson County District Court records.

Laura Jean Nichols, 18, Burge Residence Hall, admitted to taking a checkbook and endorsed check to receive $395 cash from Mid America Savings Bank on April 18, according to court records.

A preliminary hearing in the case is set for May 24.

UI brain research leads to thought process discovery

United Press International

IOWA CITY — A study of how people recognize faces has led UI researchers to the discovery that different regions of the brain perform different thought processes.

Antonio Damasio, head of the UI Department of Neurology, said the findings eventually could lead to discoveries of methods to prevent diseases of the brain or ways to train regions of the brain to take over functions performed in other regions.

Damasio said the discovery, which was published in the May issue of the journal of the American Academy of Neurology, was an outgrowth of a UI study of four patients who suffer from prosopagnosia — a disorder caused by lesions in the brain which render a person incapable of recognizing familiar faces.

"The lesions impair the ability to recognize facial identity," said Daniel Tranel, a UI psychologist and lead author of the study.

TRANEL EXPLAINED the significance of the impairment by noting that "all you need to know about a pen, for example, is that it is a pen. But in looking at a face you need to know more than if it is male or female, what age it is or its expression. To communicate, you need to know if that person is your spouse, boss, friend or stranger."

"We discovered that the patients were still able to recognize gender, age and facial expressions such as happiness, sadness, disgust, surprise, anger and fear," Tranel said.

The findings "show how the brain uses different regions to perform differing processes," Damasio said.

"Knowing which facial expression is registered on a person's face is an entirely different problem from knowing who that face belongs to."

He said the discovery will help scientists to map brain systems to identify regions that control learning and memory processes.

"You have the possibility of discovering how certain diseases impinge upon the brain and how you could prevent some of those," Damasio said. "You could even retrain certain parts of the brain to do certain tasks."

O'Hare gunman delays air traffic

United Press International

CHICAGO — Air traffic was delayed a third day at O'Hare International Airport Tuesday by a gunman firing wildly in the air, lingering communications problems caused by a telephone switching center fire and storms in Atlanta.

Flights had returned to nearly normal early Tuesday after delays caused by a fire that knocked out air traffic communications when a gunman started firing from a Bensenville apartment at passing cars and into the air, including an O'Hare flight lane.

The shooting, in which one police officer was slightly wounded, prompted airport officials to close one runway for 2 1/2 hours, resulting in departure delays of 20 minutes, said Federal Aviation Administration spokesman Mort Edelstein.

"We closed (runway) 27 left because of the ... shooting case," Edelstein said. "It was reopened at 9:30 a.m. after we received word from the Bensenville police that the guy was in custody."

THE STANDOFF began at about 4:30 a.m. Tuesday and ended shortly before 9 a.m., when the gunman — identified as Michael Reimer, 32 — was surrendered.

O'Hare travelers faced yet another problem — bad weather in the Southeast.

"Of course weather will be a dependent factor," Edelstein said Tuesday. "We know it's real bad in Atlanta, so that could affect us today."

Sunday's fire crippled communications between O'Hare — the world's busiest airport — and the FAA Air Traffic Control Center in Aurora, resulting in flight delays of up to two hours Monday at O'Hare and nearby Midway Airport.

Air traffic at both Chicago airports returned to nearly normal Tuesday, with the FAA operating with its backup communications system and a dozen rerouted Illinois Bell Telephone Co. circuits, Edelstein said.

10th Anniversary

Richard Ellmann, during a long and distinguished career, won international recognition as scholar, teacher of English literature, critic, and biographer. His magisterial life of James Joyce has been widely acclaimed as the greatest literary biography of the century.

His Oscar Wilde—Ellmann's final and crowning achievement—has been welcomed by Leon Edel, who calls it "a work of biographic art" and says that "this portrait of the Victorian Age's most tragic figure surpasses Ellmann's well-known life of Joyce." In England, Anthony Burgess calls it "a great book... the second of his masterpieces... a product of long and meticulous labour, which is also an expression of Ellmann's exquisite critical sense, wide and deep learning, and profound humanity."

Brinkley's narrative carries us through the suspense of D-Day, the death of FDR, Truman's inauguration and the celebration at last of V-E and V-J Days. Crowded with memories, Washington Goes to War brilliantly and movingly recaptures a lost time that seems to us now—and perhaps was, despite the tragedy of the war—a time of innocence, as it shows us a city and a nation moving into a new era, changed profoundly and forever.

Gabriel Garcia Marquez established his literary reputation more than 20 years ago with the publication of One Hundred Years of Solitude, a legendary book that has been read by millions of people around the world. It was followed by other works, each of which drew new readers and new praise from the critics—culminating in the Nobel Prize for Literature in 1982.

Now Garcia Marquez has written a book that takes its place alongside that earlier, famous work, in the company of the true masterpieces of modern literature.

Dukakis OKs Secret Service protection

BOSTON — Democratic presidential front-runner Michael Dukakis said Tuesday he will accept Secret Service protection despite misgivings about possible infringement on his privacy.

He said the decision was not prompted by any particular experience but, "There comes a point in all of this when Secret Service protection is necessary and in my judgment we've arrived at that point," said Dukakis.

Until Tuesday, the Massachusetts governor has relied on the state and capitol Police, his hometown Brookline, Mass., police department and local law enforcement in the cities he visits while campaigning for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Democrats begin hammering out platform

WASHINGTON — Democratic platform writers, urged on by elected officials, said Tuesday they want a party platform that is a readable, succinct and hard-hitting statement of principles.

But outsiders, including the Jesse Jackson campaign, and some groups traditionally allied with the Democrats warned the quest for brevity must not sacrifice "the essence of the principles that have made this the party of the people," said Rep. Mervyn Dymally, D-Calif., chairman of the Black Congressional Caucus.

Delegate Walter Fauntroy, D-D.C., Jackson's liaison with the committee, also cautioned that if some of his candidate's "bottom-line" issues are not included in the platform, "You'll see a drop off in the people that would give us the margin of victory in November."

Democratic leaders, including party Chairman Paul Kirk, have long said they wanted to avoid a platform like the 1984 statement that ran more than 50 pages and was interpreted as little more than a laundry list for special interests, especially civil rights groups, feminists, environmentalists, senior citizens and others.

Error delayed report of skyscraper fire

LOS ANGELES — Seven vital minutes elapsed between the time the first alarm signaled a fire inside the First Interstate Bank tower and when fire officials received their initial report because security personnel had turned off smoke alarms in the belief that they were false, Los Angeles fire officials said Tuesday.

In a second fatal error, a worker was sent up to the 12th floor to investigate the alarms, officials said.

Three calls came in simultaneously last Wednesday night to firefighters from the 911 emergency telephone number, but all were from outside the bank, Fire Chief Donald Manning said. Firemen responded to the scene 3 1/2 minutes later.

It is not clear, he said, when building officials finally reported the fire. But after the first alarm, a security guard apparently reset the alarms, believing them to be another in a recent string of false alarms, Manning said.

Postmaster hopes to restore full service

WASHINGTON — Postmaster General Anthony Frank said Tuesday that he hoped to restore full hours of service at post offices and Sunday sorting of mail by the summer.

The cutbacks, an average of about four hours a week in window service, were imposed in February to save the Postal Service $9 million a month after Congress ordered budget reductions.

Frank said that the postal system was achieving savings in other areas and expressed confidence that full service could be resumed in the summer, possibly as soon as July.

"I am absolutely committed to reopening the windows," Frank said in a breakfast meeting with reporters. "But I will not do it until I am sure we can keep them open."

Gangs kill 2 girls in mistaken identity

LOS ANGELES — In a case of mistaken identity, a carload of gang members seeking revenge for a drug deal that went sour shot dead a female college student and a 12-year-old girl in their car, police said Tuesday.

Five young men were arrested Monday night and early Tuesday on suspicion of murder in the shooting of Latonya Stover, 18, and Jamee Finney, 12, in a gang-plagued area west of the Los Angeles Memorial Coliseum, Assistant Chief Jesse Brewer said.

A woman also was booked on suspicion of assault with a deadly weapon for her role in assisting the kidnapping and sexual assault of another young woman, who served as a go-between in a drug deal earlier in the day, Brewer said.

Cause of Alzheimer's disease still elusive

Despite all the progress, recent optimism and pioneering experiments, doctors still do not know what causes Alzheimer's disease. They have found some tantalizing clues, but no "smoking gun."

"We are not there yet, but we are close to understanding how the disease affects the brain," said Robert Terry, a neurologist and leading expert on Alzheimer's disease from the University of California-San Diego.

FAA finds reason for 1987 crash in Detroit

By Hugh Vickery
United Press International

WASHINGTON — Pilot error and failure of a key cockpit safety device combined to cause last summer's crash of Northwest Flight 255 outside Detroit that killed 156 people, federal investigators concluded Tuesday.

The National Transportation Safety Board said pilots John Maus, 57, and David Dodds, 35, did not set wing flaps and slats properly for takeoff, then did not conduct a pre-flight check list that would have caught the mistake.

As a result, the McDonnell Douglas MD-80 jetliner failed to gain altitude quickly enough after takeoff, struck a lamp post and the roof of a nearby building, and crashed upside down on a two-lane road.

Of the 155 passengers and crew on board, only Cecelia Cichan, 5, survived the accident. Two people on the ground were killed.

The Aug. 16, 1987, accident was the second worst in U.S. aviation history. The 1979 crash of an American Airlines DC-10 in Chicago claimed 273 lives.

COCKPIT VOICE recordings revealed the pilots had skipped steps in check list procedures during earlier flights, and that this might have caused them to forget a key check list before takeoff, the safety board said in its final report on the accident.

The NTSB suggested that skipping steps in check lists may be a common practice in commercial cockpits and recommended the Federal Aviation Administration reevaluate and reinforce its cockpit check list and safety guidelines.

Even with the pilots' initial error, the plane could have been saved if the warning device had worked or if the pilots had taken the proper action after the plane began to stall, the agency said.

A computer-generated voice should have said "flaps" or "slats" once the pilots opened the throttle and began to accelerate in preparation for lift-off, but a circuit breaker either failed or had been disconnected, cutting off power to the device.

The board said it could not determine the reason for the power failure.

Even with the flaps and slats in the wrong position, the crew could have avoided the crash if they had taken the correct action and pointed the nose of the plane down, the report said.

But based on weather reports, the pilots probably thought the plane's failure to gain altitude was caused by wind shear from nearby thunderstorms and pointed the plane's nose up instead, sealing their doom, it said.

Reagan's 'no' reopens possibility of pardons

By Norman D. Sandler
United Press International

WASHINGTON — President Ronald Reagan, a day after he suggested he might not have to face the issue at all, reopened Tuesday the possibility of pardons for key figures in the Iran-Contra scandal.

During a ceremony honoring Lord Peter Carrington, the outgoing NATO secretary-general, Reagan replied with a firm "no" when asked whether he had "definitely ruled out" pardons in the case.

As the president left the room without elaborating, White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater refused to square Reagan's latest comment with his clear indication Monday that pardons are not in the wind for former national security adviser John Poindexter and former National Security Council aide Oliver North.

Reagan has ducked direct comment on the issue in the past, but on Monday he said pardons cannot be considered at least "until this case has been closed, whichever way it's going to go."

DURING A lunchtime interview Monday with columnist Carl Rowan, Reagan seemed to tip his hand for the first time, saying: "To pardon somebody before trial leaves a sense of guilt around them, a cloud of guilt, for the rest of time."

A White House transcript showed Reagan went on to call the issue "something that I don't have to face," reflecting his expectation that the trials of Poindexter, North and two other men indicted in the affair will not conclude until after he leaves office Jan. 20.

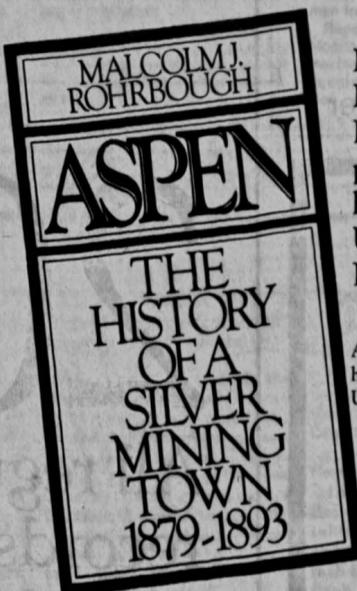

White House officials refused to reconcile Reagan's terse answer Tuesday with his straightforward response Monday to Rowan's blunt question about pardons for Poindexter and North.

"You've got a yes and a no, which means no definitive decision has been made," Fitzwater quipped.

Earlier, he acknowledged that although the question of pardons had not been discussed, much less decided, he could not quarrel with interpretations that Reagan at least had ruled out pardons before criminal trials run their course.

"Rohrbough, one of the finest historians of the American West now writing, showed in his previous books how the farming frontier 'worked'. In Aspen, he shows how the mining frontier of the Colorado Rockies 'worked', from its shaky first days to its boom years to ghost town, and how, as he says, Americans of the 1880's were as greedy for the riches of Cibola as Coronado ever was. This is a history meticulously researched and exciting told."

STUDENT FOOTBALL SALES ENDS FRIDAY, MAY 13

The cost of the tickets are $42.00 per student and $92.00 per student guest ticket. Student season tickets are good for all six home games of the 1988 football season. Student guest tickets are available on a limited basis; all students ordering these tickets may not be accommodated, but will receive a refund for their order at fall pickup. Priority buying was from April 18 thru May 13, and this is the only time that guest tickets may be ordered. Athletic Ticket Office hours are 9 a.m. - 4 p.m., Monday thru Friday. Students may pick up their tickets beginning September 7. Please read the student policy before placing your order.

STUDENT FOOTBALL POLICY—1988

1. A student may purchase one season ticket at the student price of $42.00. A guest ticket may be ordered at the public price of $92.00. A limited number of guest tickets will be available; therefore, all students ordering these may not receive them. Guest tickets are only valid when entering the stadium with another student and are not replaceable if lost or stolen. The guest ticket will not be available after May 13, the deadline for student priority. Office hours are 9:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. Monday through Friday.
2. Students will receive priority based on the number of consecutive years they have applied for or purchased football tickets at the University of Iowa. There will be no loss in priority for off-campus progress or a bona fide illness. An individual who misses two or more consecutive seasons for reasons other than the above will lose all priority.
3. In order for a student to receive their priority for football he/she must order sometime during the period of April 18 to May 13, 1988. These orders will be filled according to priority established. Any order placed after May 13 will be filled as if the order was a zero priority. Students ordering after the priority period will also accrue a year of buying credit toward their priority for purchase of tickets in following years.
4. Individuals may order season tickets for a group no larger than eight. If all group members cannot be present when the order is placed, the members who are not present must provide either their personal check with current and summer address thereon or cash and their ID number to the person placing the order. One student may not write a personal check in payment for another student's tickets.
5. The lowest priority within a group will determine the location of the entire block of tickets for that group. That is, all students within a group will carry the lowest priority of any member in that group. If certain priorities are denied student or guest tickets, anyone with higher priority requesting seating with this group will also be denied tickets.
6. Student season tickets will continue on sale on a non-priority basis after May 13 and will remain on sale through Tuesday, August 31. Tickets may be sold after September 7 if available. Please contact the Athletic Ticket Office for further information.
7. Each student must pick up their own ticket in the fall. The student must present their own student ID with current registration (Fall 1988) sticker and picture ID at the time of pickup. Student pickup will begin Wednesday, September 7.
8. Students may cancel their football season ticket order and receive a full refund up until the Friday before the first home game. After that date, refunds will be issued only for the portion of games remaining to be played. No cancellations or refund requests will be honored after the student ticket has been picked up and signed for. All requests for refunds must be made in writing to the Athletic Ticket Office. Please provide your full name, ID number and an address for the mailing of the refund check. ALL REFUNDS ARE NOT AUTOMATICALLY PROCESSED AND MAILED.
9. A student ticket, to be valid, must be accompanied by a University of Iowa ID with current registration (Fall 1988) sticker and a picture ID. A student ticket may be used by the original purchaser or by any other University of Iowa student, but the original purchaser will be held liable for any violations of the student ticket policy. The penalty for a violation of the University policy involving the ID and ticket will be the loss of the use of the ticket for two games. If a non-student is found using a student's ticket, that student forfeits all future student ticket privileges.
10. Disciplinary action will be taken as a result of disorderly conduct on the part of a student ticket holder. Discretionary measures will be left up to the investigation of the dean of students. This may result in the loss of the student's ticket for the remaining season or possibly the remaining enrollment period of said student at the University of Iowa.
11. Everyone, regardless of age, is required to have a valid ticket for admittance to all University of Iowa football games. This includes infants in arms.
12. DUPLICATE TICKETS CANNOT BE ISSUED FOR LOST OR STOLEN STUDENT TICKETS.

Workers lose battle as strike in Poland ends after 9 days

By Bogdan Turek
United Press International

GDANSK, Poland — Workers at the besieged Lenin Shipyard admitted defeat Tuesday in their showdown with the government and ended a 9-day-old strike for higher wages and official recognition of the banned Solidarity union.

The strikers, who occupied the shipyard with Solidarity founder Lech Walesa, announced an end to the protest after their numbers dwindled to 1,000 and police tightened a massive cordon around the 12,000-worker facility where Solidarity was born amid the stormy labor unrest of 1980.

As church bells tolled, the tired workers were led from the shipyard by Walesa, the 1983 Nobel Peace laureate, church mediator Tadeusz Mazowiecki and strike committee leader Alojzy Szablewski. Crowds waved and a vendor hurried from his stand and showered the workers with flowers.

The workers, carrying a portrait of Polish-born Pope John Paul II and chanting "Lech Walesa, Lech Walesa," marched 800 yards to St. Brigida's Church, where the Rev. Henryk Jankowski celebrated a mass and declared, "Solidarity is alive and is fighting. You are a new generation of Solidarity."

IN A COMMUNIQUE read at St. Brigida's, the strike committee said, "We took a sovereign decision to end the strike ... (but) we shall not give up struggling for the revival of the union because there is no freedom without Solidarity. We failed to win but we managed to express our protest."

The strike, which began May 2, had been a focal point in a two-week wave of walkouts that began after the government implemented stiff price increases as part of an economic restructuring program.

The central issue later shifted to political demands, including the legalization of Solidarity, organized in 1980 as the first independent trade union in the Soviet bloc and outlawed 16 months later with the imposition of martial law.

A striker at the Lenin shipyard in Gdansk, Poland, stands pensively at a gate Tuesday shortly before workers called off their 9-day-old strike.

Shultz will meet with Shevardnadze

By Robert C. Toth
Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — For their final meeting to prepare for the U.S.-Soviet summit, Secretary of State George Shultz and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze will meet in Geneva today to iron out late-breaking glitches in a recently signed arms treaty and to seek progress toward a more ambitious arms agreement in the future.

The two men will also discuss regional issues, a senior U.S. official said Tuesday, with the main focus on the conflict in Angola.

New hope for ending the 15-year-old civil war arose last week after a constructive U.S.-sponsored session in London, where South Africa and Cuba, whose troops support opposite sides, sat down to their first-ever direct meeting.

A Soviet representative observed the talks, a development that U.S. officials interpreted as the Gorbachev government's blessing on the peace process, with the apparent intent of following the same monitoring pattern as in the successful Afghan negotiations.

THE SENIOR official, briefing reporters before Shultz's departure, expressed optimism that the meeting will settle the "very technical issues" on verification that are holding up Senate ratification of the U.S.-Soviet medium-range (300 to 3,400 miles) missile accord.

Shevardnadze, arriving in Geneva, said he believes the problems have been basically resolved.

Senate leaders Monday decided to hold up consideration of the intermediate nuclear forces treaty until the verification difficulties had been cleared up.

Nine such issues had been outstanding. One dealt with the size of the smallest item subject to inspection: the entire missile, as the Soviets have claimed, or each stage of that missile, as the United States has insisted.

Although the senior official said the disputes were "legitimate and must be resolved," they were also "inevitable" in view of the complexity in translating the language of the treaty into implementing details.

Mitterrand appoints new prime minister

By Edward Cody
Washington Post

PARIS — Former agriculture minister Michel Rocard, a symbol of France's new pragmatic brand of socialism, was named as prime minister Tuesday by newly re-elected President Francois Mitterrand.

Rocard, 57, assumed office immediately after Jacques Chirac formally handed over a resignation letter at the Elysee Palace, ending two years as prime minister at the head of a center-right coalition.

Chirac, a neo-Gaullist conservative, was soundly beaten by Mitterrand in a presidential vote Sunday that many analysts have described as the start of a realignment in French politics.

Mitterrand's choice of Rocard exemplified the nonideological style of government the president has pledged to put in place. It represented a gesture toward the centrist leaders he has indicated a desire to include on his team and, if possible, in his parliamentary majority.

"The president of the republic has assigned me a difficult task," Rocard declared outside his new offices at the Hotel Matignon, the prime minister's official residence on the Left Bank.

Rocard said he will form his new government "as soon as possible." Contacts were reported under way Tuesday night with a number of non-Socialists as well as Socialists as possible ministers.

Newly appointed French Prime Minister Michel Rocard, left, accompanies former Prime Minister Jacques Chirac Tuesday in Paris.

Gorbachev: Conservatism has delayed Soviet reform

By David Remnick
Washington Post

MOSCOW — Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev said in a speech released today that conservatism, confusion and panic have delayed the successful implementation of his radical reform plans.

In a speech to newspaper and magazine editors last Saturday, Gorbachev said that conservatism has been "the main braking factor" on reform and that "the problem" extended even to the top leadership.

Gorbachev said the country was now in the second, or "post," phase of perestroika, or restructuring, and "far from everybody has proved prepared for this."

"We (in the ruling Politburo) saw that far from everybody was ready to view the present situation correctly," Gorbachev said, according to the official news agency Tass. "We found veritable confusion in the minds of many people — workers, intellectuals and administrators alike. And, let us be blunt, not only at the ground level, but also on the top."

IN THE PAST few months, Gorbachev and his closest allies in the Politburo, such as propagandist Alexander Yakovlev, have been laying the ideological and political groundwork for an important party conference at the end of June. The conference, the first such meeting held since 1941, is expected to play a key role in shaping the personnel of the 300-member Central Committee and the pace and scope of reform in the near future.

Too much mud-slinging

With all of the negative publicity surrounding the Johnson County sheriff's race, it'll be surprising if anyone other than the four candidates casts a vote in the June 7 primary. Even retiring Sheriff Gary Hughes, a Republican who has strongly endorsed one of the contenders, presumably won't be voting in June since all four candidates are running as Democrats.

Rather than good old American political competition, the race for sheriff looks more like a nasty battle in an ongoing war between the sheriff's department and the Iowa City Police Department. Two of the candidates, Daniel Dreckman and Kenneth Stock, are currently employed in the police department, and another, Steve Snyder, is a former Coralville police officer. Naturally, Hughes is supporting the fourth candidate, Sheriff's Deputy Robert Carpenter.

The fun began in March when Dreckman announced his bid for the office, claiming he could do a better job than Hughes and improve cooperation between the two departments as well. Hughes responded by saying that Dreckman was once fired from the sheriff's department and "just wasn't cut out to be a law officer." Dreckman says he resigned.

In April, Hughes announced his retirement and endorsed his deputy, Carpenter, who has been with the department 22 years. At the same time, it was pointed out in the The Daily Iowan that candidate Snyder was charged with threatening another man with a dangerous weapon in September 1987. The charges were dropped, apparently.

And this past weekend the sheriff's race took another interesting — albeit not encouraging — turn down the mucky track. Candidate Stock was attacked in a political flier for which no one claimed responsibility. The flier called Stock "a bad guy who acts like a good guy." The Iowa City Press-Citizen then quoted Stock as saying he thought Hughes was responsible. Then Hughes said something about Stock "stooping so low."

So who are the "good" guys and who are the "bad" guys? At this rate, Johnson County voters won't even care to find out.

Say no to policing

Not all the drug-induced paranoia is experienced by the users. Members of Congress have recently displayed their election-year hysteria, proposing to mandate Armed Forces' intervention in the war on drugs.

It is irrelevant to many of our representatives that the Armed Forces are forbidden from policing the civilian population by the Constitution. Equally irrelevant is the fact that most Pentagon officials want nothing to do with such a mission. The one salient consideration is the public relations benefit of a strong anti-drug stance.

Very few people, now that it is fashionable to consider drugs a "plague on the nation," bother to wonder whether the cure might be worse than the disease. Much as doctors once thought to cure opium addiction with heroin, our public officials now hope to cure drug abuse by massively expanding police power. The trouble is that nothing is as addictive, corrupting and prone to abuse as power, particularly police power. The founding fathers knew this, that's why they created the Bill of Rights.

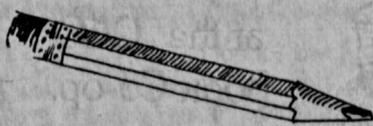

The citizen's rights are today being slowly whittled away in the name of protecting us from ourselves. Thus we have undercover operatives in our own country, no-knock warrants and mandatory drug tests. Nowadays one is often considered guilty until proven innocent by urinating in the presence of a stranger. And all sorts of people, from private employers to the umpires of collegiate games, are empowered to inventory your bodily fluids.

Only two nations have larger percentages of their populations in prison than does the Land of the Free. They are the Soviet Union and South Africa. One-half of America's prisoners will, at present rate, soon be drug offenders. Yet there is more drug traffic in this country every day. Drug traffic is even expanding dramatically in the Soviet Union where the police have unlimited power and the citizens very limited rights. Possibly police power is not the answer.

Perhaps if people stopped talking about narcotics in overblown metaphors, stopped using terms like "plague" and "war," we might develop a more realistic policy. Drug use is not a disease and we can't make war on it. It is something our citizens do to themselves.

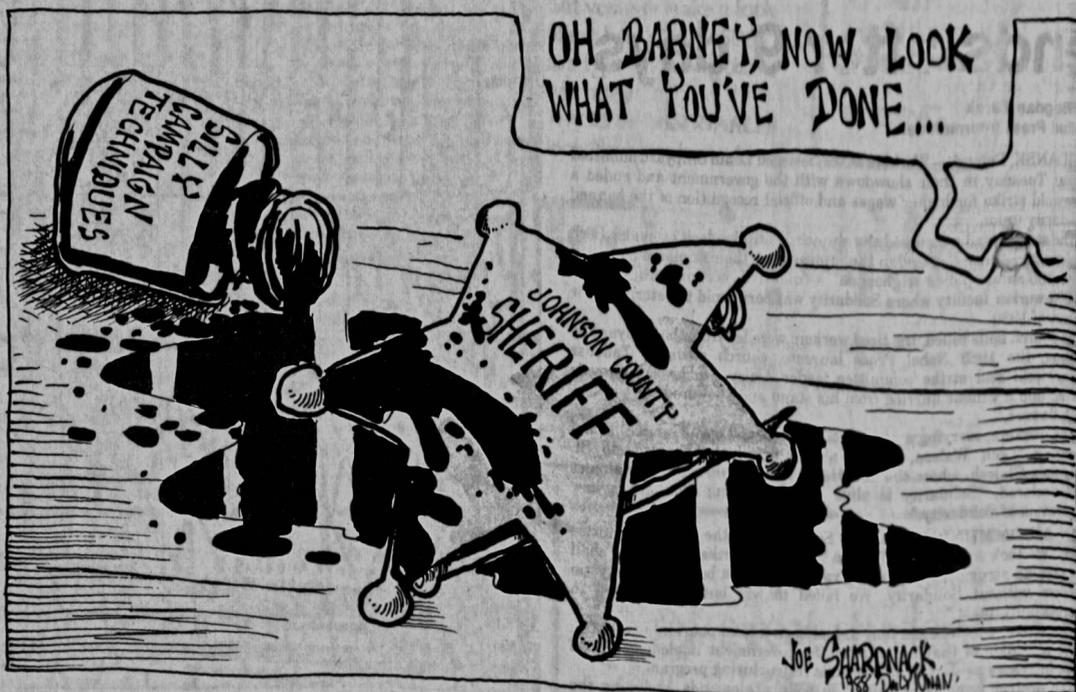

Drug use may be suicide on installments, and it may sometimes be just a form of mild protest, underground peer-bonding. But we will not stop it as long as the causes of social despair and contempt for authority remain unaddressed. Sending in the troops will hardly help in either case.

A presidential farce, Act II

Freedom of the press? Sure, but let's not hurt anyone's feelings. Truth? The truth is, we'd rather save face.

I'll gladly handicap the UI presidential search, but will someone please define the word "finalist" for me? The best I can manage is a syllogistic hash, to wit:

1) The search committee recommends finalists to the state Board of Regents;

2) At no time did the committee recommend UI Interim President Richard Remington;

3) Therefore, R.R. must not be a presidential finalist. But at different points this semester The Daily Iowan, the Iowa City Press-Citizen, the Cedar Rapids Gazette and the Des Moines Register all began to refer to Remington as one of two finalists already named, along with Frances Horowitz. And now, despite the fact that he was never recommended by the committee, he is somehow a finalist anyhow.

WHAT HAPPENED? Who knows? But on April 24, the Register reported rather off-handedly that "Meanwhile, the regents added U of I interim president Richard Remington to the list of finalists." Poof: Just like that. Back on Feb. 15, though, we were told that "If the search committee does decide to forward Remington's name to the state Board of Regents, (search Chair Sam) Becker says the committee will wait to forward additional names as well.

Unless I'm senile, what's happened is that the search committee, after interviewing Remington earlier this term, has voted NOT to recommend him to the regents. The board named Alice Chandler, Kenneth Gros Louis and Hunter Rawlings III. That's all, folks. So let's stop nodding and grinning; let's give credit where it's due and try to see what's really going on here. Gutsy move, committee persons. I'd say the ball's in Large Marv's court, wouldn't you? As in game, set and match point.

I handicap it this way:
• Remington, 3-2. Deans say yea, moustache stay
• Horowitz, 100-1. Make mine Antioch, go Fran
• Chandler, 1000-1. No way: Easterners just burned us
• Rawlings III, 25-1. Too young? Nice moniker, could win
• Gros Louis, 500-1. Get a name, pal

• Hasselomo, *. Marv launched coup, Nils withdrew. Call me Mister Skeptic, but I still think it's Rich and Rolf in a waltz, unless His Royal Largeness either suddenly grew a conscience or traded his UI prez votes for his re-election as regents honcho. And I think the way the media have treated the truth has been shoddy at best.

CALL ME MISTER LIFE-ON-THE-EDGE, too, but I spent Toronto Sunday stalking downtown Iowa City. We stayed pretty close to shelter — this ain't exactly Kansas as Steve "If You Didn't Go Right To The Basement I Hope the Next Twister Nails You To The Nearest Tree" Donoghue seems to think — and my own terror of nature, always honed to neurosis, kept the adrenaline pumped. You should have seen the clouds whorl and the whole day blacken at once. You should have stood a minute in the wind, in the rain. Besides, Real Records was having a sale. Carpe diem, that's my credo, carpe the damn diem.

I CAME ACROSS the week's worst news in an article headlined "Liberal Arts Look Good To Business," all about how Goodyear, Sears and Proctor and Gamble are hiring hundreds of truth-seeking humanists. One placement officer even said, "Companies are looking to liberal arts graduates for jobs in sales and as management trainees."

Yes, selling and management training: What divine next steps for any philosophy, religion or literature major. How I wish such companies were thus enlightened when I was a liberal arts grad; ah, to spend life as a suited clown, crawling among millions of soma-sucking middle-classists, lying for money. Or a management trainee! Listen, if you're entering that vast world beyond college this summer, do it and your soul a favor by meditating — between interviews, if need be — on the differences between making money and earning a living.

I don't mean to preach — not much, anyway — but even a management sciences major can set some time aside to volunteer as a Big Brother or Sister, an English conversation partner with a foreign student, a Free Clinic patient guide or a masseuse for the Old Columnist's Home. Okay, that's it. Good luck on finals, then beat it for a while. Go home, check out the 'rents, eat real food. Go on, get out. Give us real citizens a chance to park downtown for once. Bums.

Congratulations

To the Editor:

Recent newspaper articles have made adulation for members of university athletic teams that have received academic awards. The stories noted how busy they were.

I would like to take this opportunity to congratulate the no-names; the students who worked for minimum wage at the local stores, the fast food places, the beverage houses, hospitals and so forth; the student who worked to pay tuition; the student that took a semester off to save up for the next semester.

The no-names who graduated with a 2.0 grade-point average and the no-name who graduated with a 4.0 G.P.A. who will go on to become the teacher, the manager, the nurse, the person next door that coaches little league, the den parent, the block mother, the volunteer at Sunday school.

There are a lot of congratulations to give in this great country. Let's keep it in perspective. Congratulations to the no-names. You earned it also.

Other side

To the Editor:

In response to John E. Lyons' letter titled "Improvement needed" (DI, May 2), I would like to respond by stating that it was written with an obvious disregard for factual information.

In Lyons' letter he accuses the Riverfest Commission of being "perfectly incapable of good judgment in regard to the Battle of the Bands." The locations that he so strongly criticized were the result of many hours of consideration and negotiation with the Union administration. The preliminary rounds took place in the same location as they were held every year with the exception of 1987, when it was impossible to do so due to the renovation in progress at that time. In the past, the Union Wheel-room proved to be a good location, as it proved to be this year.

The decision to move the final round of the Battle of the Bands was the result of a last-minute decision of the Union Food Service supported by Dean of Student Services Phillip Jones. The options proposed to me, as director of the Riverfest Commission, were to hold the final round in the Union Ballroom as we did in the past, but with the capacity limited to 800 people and with no alcoholic beverages available to anyone. Although we did not feel that beer was a necessary part of the event, we felt that it was complimentary to the atmosphere.

After a long discussion with Jones and many top Union administrators, it was stated that the Riverfest Commission was welcome to move its event off campus and that the lost revenue from the Union would be insignificant. The Fieldhouse bar was chosen because it was the largest place available — 1,200-person capacity — that would admit people not old enough to drink and still make alcohol available to those of legal drinking age. The most conducive off-campus location for the event — The Dubuque Street Brewing Co. — was unavailable due to a fraternity philanthropy taking place on the same date.

John Lyons, an employee of KRUI, accused the judges of the Battle of the Bands of being "largely unqualified." The judges were invited from KRUI, SCOPE and Union Board. The commission felt that these people were the most qualified persons to judge "up and coming rock 'n' roll bands" in the UI community.

The accusation that the Riverfest Commission refused to provide the necessary information for KRUI to broadcast live from the Battle of the Bands and from Soundstage is unfounded. Due to the last-minute change in locations caused by factors beyond our control, we were unable to give any information to anyone. There was no refusal on Riverfest's part; it was not humanly possible to provide information that we did not have.

Nevertheless, all necessary arrangements were made for KRUI to broadcast live from the Fieldhouse including an open phone line for that purpose. KRUI never expressed any interest in broadcasting live remotes from the Riverfest Soundstage. It would have been impossible for KRUI to do so, seeing as that it was already broadcasting a live remote from the Riverfest/SCOPE Mainstage occurring at the same time.

Think about it, John. Just the slightest bit of intelligence and integrity on your part would have compelled you to research the facts of the situation before writing a letter to the editor. I'm sure the majority of the people in attendance at all of the Riverfest '88 activities enjoyed themselves.

Joel E. Rosenstein
Director
Riverfest Commission

Unfair charges

To the Editor:

In response to the letter written by John Lyons concerning the judgment capabilities of the Riverfest Committee and, more specifically, judges of the Battle of the Bands. Mr. Lyons, please, at the very least, research what you write.

In addressing the question of "qualifications" for effective judgment of the Battle of the Bands, just what are the "qualifications" that makes one "qualified" to judge an event which is so objective, such as the Battle of the Bands? As judges, obviously it is impossible to please everyone when choosing a winner for this event. The best the Riverfest Committee could do was choose judges with diverse musical tastes. Lyons states, "The judges were largely unqualified, exclusively Top 40 listeners." This is simply not true. At least three of the judges are currently or have been disc jockeys at KRUI for two or more years and have obtained as much "knowledge" as Lyons and other losers claim to possess.

We cannot speak for the other judges' musical tastes, but even if they are "exclusively Top 40 listeners," what would be wrong with that? Would it not be fair to wager that at least 50 percent of the UI campus is composed of "exclusively Top 40 listeners?" It is supposed to try to please everyone on campus, no matter how impractical and impossible that may be, or is the John Lyons on campus?

We have been harassed and unfairly ridiculed following the events. As to the undying rumors that the voting was rigged and decided before the bands played, it was a wash period. But it probably would have been if judgment would have been placed in the hands of people like John Lyons, who obviously already had his mind made up on who should win and would win.

there comes a time when you just kind of settle in and let things go on," Snyder said. "I think the department has become very complacent in recent years."

But Carpenter, who has been endorsed by Hughes for the sheriff's office, said he was proud of the sheriff's department.

"Quite obviously, we're a very proud department," Carpenter said.

STOCK CRITICIZED the sheriff's department for what he said was its lack of cooperation with other area law enforcement agencies, particularly the Iowa City Police Department. He proposed the establishment of a joint communication center between the sheriff's department and other county law enforcement agencies as a way to facilitate cooperation.

"One of the most important things we have to have is cooperation among the different law enforcement agencies in the county," Stock said. "We certainly do not have it now and it is a necessity."

Stock's suggestion there was a lack of cooperation between the sheriff's department and other local law enforcement agencies was echoed by Dreckman.

"From what I understand there is some type of administration dispute between Iowa City and the sheriff's department," Dreckman said. "I would try to eliminate any kind of friction between the two departments if I became sheriff."

BUT CARPENTER denied during the debate any problems existed between the sheriff's department and other local law enforcement agencies.

"I do not have any knowledge of any disagreement between the sheriff's department and Iowa City," Carpenter said, adding that there was a great deal of cooperation between police officials and sheriff's deputies.

On the subject of relations with the UI, Stock criticized Hughes for his relationship with the Iowa football team and football Coach Hayden Fry, saying athletes and athletic boosters often seem to get preferential treatment from the sheriff's department.

"I think Gary Hughes has got a good thing going with the football team," Stock said. "But I don't feel that the sheriff's department should babysit the football coach."

BUT CARPENTER said any help sheriff's deputies give the football team is their own decision. "They do it of their own free time and their own free will," Carpenter said.

Several of the candidates were also critical of the county's efforts on drug enforcement, suggesting not enough was being done to fight the problem.

"I think there is a drug problem in this county and I think more should be done to combat it," said Snyder, a former Coralville police officer. "There has to be a community effort to fight the problems."

Snyder said the sheriff's department should work on improving community relations in order to help better deal with drug enforcement.

Dreckman said the key to fighting the problem was increasing cooperation between the sheriff's department and local and state agencies.

"I don't think we should have to wait every five years for action to be taken on this problem," Dreckman said. "I want to see more cooperation with different agencies on this."

Carpenter said such cooperation between the sheriff's department and other agencies was already taking place.

Councilors voted on a fixed price contract with Stanley for a 24-month period. If the work is not completed in that time, Stanley could bill the city $13,500 per month for each additional month it takes to complete work.

Stanley was approved by councilors despite its involvement in an $11-million lawsuit over construction of Muscatine's sewer treatment plant in the late '70s and early '80s, which it settled out of court in 1982. But Atkins said the lawsuit would have no bearing on Stanley's ability to carry out management of Iowa City's plant.

"THAT THING is at least 10 years old and it involved a design and not a construction management issue," Atkins said, adding he has no reservations about hiring the firm.

Last week, the council awarded the city's construction contract to the Paul A. Laurence Co., a Minneapolis-based engineering firm, which submitted a bid for renovating the city's current plant and construction the new plant for a total cost of $25.2 million. The firm bid about $2 million less than what Metcalf & Eddy, the city's consulting firm, had estimated it would cost.

In other business, the council discussed the purchase of an automated pool blanket for the Mercer Park Aquatic Center.

scene tried to douse the ammonia lines, but they had to be pulled away when the lines exploded and released toxic smoke.

KINNEY SAID he believed the ammonia gas had completely vented at about 7:45 p.m., but at about 8:20 p.m., billows of brown smoke began to engulf the building. Kinney said the brown smoke was probably more burning ammonia. Firefighters attempted to dissipate the smoke with water as it continued to rise to the east.

"If the thermal cloud keeps going like this, we'll be fine," Kinney said. Gay said ammonia was stored on the north side of the building, where the brown smoke originated.

At about 10:15 p.m., firefighters entered the building and examined the ammonia tank. Iowa City Fire Chief Larry Donner said the ammonia had apparently precipitated into the atmosphere. At that time, Donner said, the evacuation was lifted.

Kinney said the fire appeared to have started on the meat locker's second floor.

About five employees rescued the seven hogs that were kept in a pen west of the building and moved them into a truck. Gay said the hogs were to have been butchered this morning.

Scarfo acquitted of 1984 murder of mobster Testa

By Joe B. Warrick
United Press International

PHILADELPHIA — A jury Tuesday acquitted a reputed Philadelphia-Atlantic City mob boss Nicodemo "Little Nicky" Scarfo and eight associates of the 1984 murder of another mobster.

The courtroom, packed with friends and family of the nine defendants, erupted in cheers, with some people jumping into the air when the jury of eight women and four men announced its verdict.

The jury deliberated about 5½ hours Monday and Tuesday before returning the verdict following a month-long trial. The prosecution's key witnesses were two admitted mobsters-turned-informants, who have testified against Scarfo in previous trials.

SCARFO, 59, will not be a free man, however. He is serving a 14-year term for extortion and faces two more murder trials in Pennsylvania and New Jersey. He was acquitted in December of federal drug charges.

In closing arguments Monday, Assistant District Attorney Barbara Christie pronounced Scarfo and his eight associates guilty.

"You — you are guilty!" Christie shouted while pointing a finger at the nine defendants, describing how each allegedly took part in planning and carrying out the September 1984 slaying of another reputed mobster, Salvatore Testa.

"You, Nicodemo Scarfo, are guilty of ordering, approving, and delegating the murder of Salvatore Testa," Christie said, pointing at Scarfo while standing inches behind him. "You — you are guilty of murder in the first degree!"

CHRISTIE ARGUED that Scarfo acted as "judge, jury and executioner" for Testa because he believed his former protege was becoming too powerful. In addition, she said, Testa angered mob leaders when he broke his engagement with the daughter of Salvatore Merlino, an alleged mob underboss and a co-defendant in the murder trial.

In West Virginia, polls closed at 7:30 p.m. EDT with a heavy turnout reported. Pre-election surveys showed Dukakis with a huge lead.

DUKAKIS HAS not campaigned heavily in either state and even took the weekend off. In contrast, Jackson, who is struggling to restart a fire under his White House drive, toured both states.

The civil rights leader, after spending the night with a Nebraska farm family, met Tuesday with a number of Midwestern farm leaders to discuss what agricultural policy planks should be added to the Democrats' 1988 platform.

He argued that even though his campaign was sputtering, "This coalition that we began building in 1984 continues to expand."

"The most significant value of the process is to bring people together to form a common bond," Jackson said.

In both states, however, local political leaders were more concerned with two other primary races than with the outcome of the presidential battle.

IN WEST VIRGINIA, Republicans held a gubernatorial primary that pitted Gov. Arch Moore against John Raese, a brash young millionaire, in a tough fight.

In an interview aired by NBC News this week, convicted felon Johnnie Owens said Moore paid $12,000 in 1972 to buy votes in Mingo County. Moore immediately denied the charge.

Owens, a former sheriff and Democratic party leader in Mingo, was convicted on charges he sold the sheriff's office in 1982 for $100,000.

West Virginia Democrats chose among seven candidates for governor, and Senate Democratic leader Robert Byrd also was involved in a primary but had only token opposition.

The hottest contest in Nebraska was a Republican primary for a Senate seat between Rep. Hal Daub and incumbent Sen. David Karnes, 39, appointed in March 1987 to finish the term of Democratic Sen. Edward Zorinsky, who died suddenly.

Basketball ticket prices to increase

By Marc Bona
The Daily Iowan

In a final meeting of the 1987-88 UI Board in Control of Athletics approved ticket price increases for Iowa men's basketball games for this coming season.

Prices will increase $1 for students and $2 for general public, faculty and staff. The proposal, presented by UI vice president of finance and board member Ann Rhodes, was made amid some dissension during the 90-minute meeting.

The price increase is needed to cover operating costs, Rhodes said. Prices for single game tickets will be raised from $9 to $11 for the general public, from $7 to $9 for faculty and staff and from $4 to $5 for UI students.

RHODES SAID THE "costs of maintaining and operating facilities" total about $392,000. Operating costs at Carver-Hawkeye Arena are the main reason for the increase, as Rhodes said costs at Kinnick Stadium and practice facilities are already funded by the UI athletic department.

"We're looking at ways in which to accommodate costs and general increases in the costs of the university," Rhodes said. "We've reallocated internally as much as we can."

"I think some kind of explanation needs to be made to the public,"

said Bennie Hawkins, board member and associate professor of Periodontics. "It just doesn't make sense."

Rod Caughron, a student representative on the board and UI graduate student, opposed the student increase. Board member Pat Donahue concurred with Caughron's position.

"I really feel for the students," Donahue said. "A dollar may not seem like much to us but it certainly seems like a lot to my daughter. For that reason I agree with your (Caughron's) opposition."

CAUGHRON PROPOSED to amend the recommendation but the board voted 7-4 to keep the proposal intact.

The board then approved the original proposal.

Rhodes said discussion on the issue before Tuesday's board meeting drew mixed reviews. She said the finance and ticket committees each convened on the matter, adding the latter committee held a "heated discussion" on the increases. Rhodes, who is a member of the board's finance committee, said she attended both committees' meetings.

"Because athletics is such a widespread enterprise," Rhodes said, "this was one of the ways to spread the costs. I don't think anyone is really happy about spreading the costs to the ticket user."

The last public increase was two years ago, according to Iowa Associate Athletic Director Larry Bruner.

Other reports and notes from the board meeting:

• The Academic Achievement Committee proposed nine "Recommendations for Student-Athlete Time Involvement." The measures deal with monitoring time and utilizing it efficiently.

Seven of the measures will be passed from athletic directors to coaches, while one is appropriate for NCAA and Big Ten representatives to present at conference meetings. The remaining measure calls for the Health Care Advisory Group to "consider the amount of class time students are missing due to treatments (medical) and visits to University Hospitals in order to potentially develop a process to expedite their visits."

• Bruner presented a summary of four projects "underway and under construction" regarding UI athletic facilities. A building renovation, floor repair and possibility of upgrading the public address system in the Recreation Building was proposed, as were several adjustments in Carver-Hawkeye Arena, including a new, portable floor, first aid/security office expansion and parking improvements.

Surging Pistons top Bulls 93-82

United Press International

PONTIAC, Mich. — Adrian Dantley scored 23 points and the Detroit Pistons reeled off 10 straight points during the final period Tuesday night to post a 93-82 victory over the Chicago Bulls in the opening game of their Eastern Conference semifinal.

Game 2 is Thursday night at the Silverdome. The best-of-seven series then moves to Chicago for Games 3 and 4 Saturday and Sunday.

Michael Jordan of the Bulls scored 29 points, scoring six straight points to move the Bulls within 79-72 with nine minutes, 15 seconds left. The Pistons then went on their 10-0 surge to lead 89-72. The Bulls did not score for the next 5:28 when a basket by Jordan cut it to 87-74.

The Detroit run featured two tips by Vinnie Johnson and baskets from Dantley, John Salley and Isiah Thomas. Jordan had 14 of the Bulls' 16 points in the fourth period.

THE PISTONS WERE backed by 16 points from Bill Laimbeer, 14 from Thomas and 12 from Joe Dumars. Chicago received 16 points from Horace Grant.

Detroit scored just 19 points in the third period but led 75-66 entering the final quarter. Chicago, behind eight points from Jordan, scored just 20 in the third quarter.

The Bulls twice cut the deficit to 10 points.

Bruins trounce Devils 7-1 in Wales series

BOSTON — Bob Joyce scored two goals and Craig Janney added a goal and three assists Tuesday night, powering the Boston Bruins to a 7-1 playoff rout of the New Jersey Devils, who played without suspended Coach Jim Schoenfeld.

The Bruins lead the Wales Conference finals 3-2 and moved within one victory of the Stanley Cup finals. They can eliminate the Devils Thursday night at New Jersey.

Schoenfeld was suspended an hour before gametime by NHL President John Ziegler for "physically demeaning" conduct to referee Don Koharski following Game 3.

Devils General Manager Lou Lamoriello and assistant coach Bob Lemmeyer were behind New Jersey's bench. Schoenfeld sat in a private box opposite the Devils' bench.

BOSTON, WHICH LAST appeared in the Stanley Cup final in 1978, scored the game's first two goals and led 4-1 after two periods. Midway through the third period, Boston scored twice within 24 seconds and the sellout Boston Garden crowd of 14,451 began singing "Hey, hey, good-bye" to the Devils.

Also scoring for Boston were Michael Thelven, Keith Crowder, Ken Linseman and Bob Sweeney. New Jersey's only goal was by Brendan Shanahan.

Thelven scored the game's first goal on a two-man advantage at 12:12 of the first period. The defenseman took Janney's cross-ice pass from the right circle and scored on a 12-foot wrist shot. Janney expanded the lead to 2-0 on BOSTON — New Jersey Devils Coach Jim Schoenfeld was suspended for Tuesday night's Game 5 of the Wales Conference finals with the Boston Bruins after his actions toward a referee were judged "physically demeaning" by NHL President John Ziegler.

Ziegler also fined Schoenfeld $1,000 and fined the Devils franchise $10,000 for the coach's altercation with referee Don Koharski following Game 3 Friday night in New Jersey. Ziegler said the suspension could not be appealed, but the fines could be.

The NHL president held a four-hour hearing at a Boston hotel. He said Schoenfeld's actions constituted "unseemly conduct" and "it was clear Mr. Schoenfeld's conduct was physically demeaning" to Koharski.

Police: Martin's report is untrue

United Press International

ARLINGTON, Texas — Police said Tuesday they are convinced New York Yankees Manager Billy Martin lied when he said he was attacked and beaten last weekend, and that witnesses say Martin started the fight at a topless bar.

Police spokesman Dee Anderson said investigators have determined Martin's report was unfounded and that the case will be closed.

Martin told reporters that three men attacked him in the restroom of a topless bar early Saturday, that he did nothing to provoke the assault and did not even throw a punch. He suffered scrapes, bruises and several facial cuts that required at least 40 stitches.

Anderson, however, said police have talked to several witnesses who told the same story: that Martin started the altercation, threw the only punch and was injured when he scraped his face on a stucco wall outside the Lacey nightclub near Arlington Stadium.

Billy Martin

"WE HAVE HEARD enough (from witnesses) to make us comfortable to believe that what Mr. Martin said happened did not happen," Anderson said. "The information we have leads us away from the story he has told us, so we're going to close the case as unfounded."

"There are major discrepancies between what he said and what other witnesses told us," he added. Anderson said police spent two hours Tuesday questioning a witness who was in the club's restroom when the altercation began. That story matched the account given by other observers, he added.

"The story we have been generally

Jeff Parrett pitched two innings. He got out of a bases-loaded two-out situation in the ninth by getting Ted Simmons to ground out to second base. Tom Glavine, 1-5, was the loser.

Pirates 6, Giants 2

PITTSBURGH — Vicente Palacios and two relievers combined on a five-hitter and the Pittsburgh Pirates struck early to defeat the San Francisco Giants 6-2.

R.J. Reynolds delivered a two-run single in the first inning and Jose Lind produced an RBI single in the second to send Pittsburgh ahead 3-0.

Palacios, 1-2, went five innings, allowing two runs on three hits. He walked three and struck out one. Barry Jones, who has not permitted an earned run in 14½ innings, pitched one-hit ball over two innings. Jim Gott hurled two innings for his fifth save.

Yankees 17, White Sox 3

NEW YORK — Don Mattingly capped a seven-run outburst in the third inning with his first homer of the season and the New York Yankees broke a three-game losing streak Tuesday night with a 17-3 rout of the Chicago White Sox.

The Yankees, coming off a weekend series in Texas in which they lost three straight and Manager Billy Martin said he was attacked at a topless bar, pounded Ricky Horton, 3-5, and John Pawlowski for nine runs in the first three innings.

Twins 9, Brewers 3

MINNEAPOLIS — Kirby Puckett and Kent Hrbek ignited a six-run fourth inning with back-to-back homers Tuesday night to enable the Minnesota Twins to end Milwaukee's 10-game winning streak with a 9-3 drubbing of the Brewers.

Frank Viola, 5-1, benefitted from the Twins' biggest inning of the season. The left-hander yielded three runs on six hits over 7½ innings.

He set a Twins record by stretching his scoreless-inning streak to 30½.

Edwards wins Silver Basketball Award

Iowa senior Michelle Edwards has been named the recipient of the Chicago Tribune Silver Basketball Award presented to the Big Ten Conference women's basketball athlete of the year. This is the inaugural year for the women's award, the counterpart of the men's basketball award which is being presented for the 43rd year.

Michigan senior guard Gary Grant was chosen as the men's basketball award winner. Both the men's and women's selections were chosen by a panel of voters which consisted of Big Ten Commissioner Wayne Duke, 10 basketball officials, the Big Ten basketball coaches and a group of Chicago Tribune writers.

Edwards, a senior guard from Boston, Mass., averaged 20 points per game to lead Iowa to its first-ever outright Big Ten Conference championship and the Elite Eight round of the 1988 NCAA championship. The Hawkeyes became the first Big Ten team to rank No. 1 on the nation's polls and held that position for eight weeks.

In addition to scoring, Edwards led Iowa in field goal percentage (58 percent), assists (140), steals (89), and average minutes played per game (34.9). She led Iowa's scoring attack in 23 of 32 games during the 1987-88 season.

Edwards was chosen by the nation's Division I coaches as the Champion Player of the Year and by the Big Ten coaches as the league's player of the year. She became the first player in Iowa history to earn first-team all-America honors after earning a position on the 1988 Kodak, Naismith and United States Basketball Association all-America squads. She was a first-team all-Big Ten selection for the third-consecutive season and was named the tournament MVP at both the Amara-Hawkeye Classic and the Northern Illinois Fastbreak Fest.

Cedar Rapids prep signs with Hawks

Jason Maxson, the runner-up in the Iowa state cross country meet, has signed a national letter of intent to attend Iowa.

Maxson, who prepped at Cedar Rapids Washington, has the state's top time in the mile run (4:19) this spring. He will compete in both track and cross country while attending Iowa. Maxson is an honor student and a semi-finalist for the National Council for Youth Leadership award.

"Jason is one of the top distance runners in the state," Iowa Coach Larry Wiczorek said. "He'll be a great addition to our team. He has good speed and even competed in the 1,600-meter relay in high school."

Jackson named top NBA rookie

By Collins Yearwood
United Press International

NEW YORK — New York guard Mark Jackson, the 18th pick in last year's NBA draft who led the Knicks to their first playoff berth in four seasons, Tuesday was named the league's Rookie of the Year in a landslide vote.

Jackson set an NBA record for assists by a rookie with 868. The previous rookie record was held by Hall of Famer Oscar Robertson, who recorded 690 assists in 1961 over 76 games. Jackson played in all 82 regular-season games this season.

"It's an honor I'll cherish for a long time to come," Jackson said. "What makes it special is being surrounded by great people all year long."

Jackson ranked third in the NBA in assists and sixth in steals at 2.50 per game. His average of 10.6 assists per game was also a rookie record. Jackson's 205 steals fell six short of the NBA rookie mark of 211 set by Dudley Bradley of Indiana in 1980.

JACKSON WAS GIVEN the Eddie Gottlieb trophy in voting by three sports writers and broadcasters from each of the 23 NBA cities and 11 members of the national media. He earned 77 of the 80 votes, with Greg Anderson of San Antonio, Winston Garland of Golden State and Kenny Smith of Sacramento getting one each.

"The road does not end here, standing here getting the Rookie of the Year award; I'm not finished," Jackson said.

Knicks Coach Rick Pitino lauded his point guard's achievement.

"He is not only the Rookie of the Year but someone special off the court," Pitino said. "I hope he goes from Rookie of the Year to MVP and an NBA championship."

The Knicks were eliminated in the first round of the playoffs by the Boston Celtics.

JACKSON BECOMES the lowest draft pick to receive the honor since Woody Sauldsberry in 1958. He joins Willis Reed (1964-65) and teammate Patrick Ewing (1985-86) among Knicks to win the award.

six points early in the quarter, but every rally was rebuffed by Detroit. Detroit's biggest lead in the period was 11 points, the last at 73-62 with 2:29 left.

Jordan converted one of seven shots from the field in the first half and Detroit led 56-46 at intermission. The Bulls guard had seven points after two periods along with four turnovers and five assists.

Dantley, who had 18 points in the first half, scored Detroit's final eight points of the second period.

That surge helped the Pistons to a 56-40 lead with 1:50 remaining.

The Bulls closed by scoring six straight points to trail by 10 at intermission. At the half, the Chicago bench had outscored the starters 29-17.

IN BOSTON, THE Celtics have no doubts about Atlanta's intentions tonight — or how they will counter them.

If the Hawks concentrate on stopping Kevin McHale down low, said

Celtics Coach K.C. Jones, Dennis Johnson will burn them from outside.

"They will pack, pack, pack it in," Jones said. "They will double-down on Kevin every time they even smell a pass going inside to him and they will rotate and leave Dennis open."

Johnson enters the opener in the Eastern Conference semifinals having averaged 17.8 points in the playoff series against the New York Knicks, 5.2 points more than his season average.

"He realizes he needs to score more," backcourt mate Danny Ainge said. "Dennis is being much more aggressive offensively. He's got that young energy back in him which he didn't have at the start of the season. He's always there in the playoffs."

"DJ played a great last month of the season," Ainge said. "And that's important to us because he's the player who has the ball in his hands the most."

Schoenfeld shouting at Koharski as the official left the ice. The film did not show whether Schoenfeld shoved Koharski.

Schoenfeld was originally suspended for Sunday night's Game 4 but a restraining order obtained by the Devils allowed him to coach. The regular officiating crew, led by Dave Newell, president of the NHL officials' union, refused to work and were replaced by amateur officials.

New Jersey won 3-1.

The Devils sought Tuesday to have the restraining order continued by a Superior Court judge in New Jersey, but the request was denied. The earlier order had been granted after the Devils complained Schoenfeld had been suspended without a proper hearing.

Ziegler was questioned repeatedly at a news conference about his whereabouts during the weekend, but he refused to say where he was.

another power-play goal.

The former U.S. Olympian was right of the crease when he grabbed Glen Wesley's pass from the left circle and tucked it behind rookie goalie Sean Burke.

THE DEVILS SCORED 31 seconds later, Shanahan grabbing the rebound of Tom Kurvers' shot and slipping it under Boston goalie Rejean Lemelin.

Crowder expanded the margin to 3-1 at 6:15 of the second period. Linseman passed from behind the New Jersey net to Crowder, who was in front of Burke. The wing flipped the puck into the upper right corner.

Joyce's first goal came at 8:41 of the second, his backhand from the slot providing a 4-1 advantage. The ex-Canadian Olympian scored again at 3:28 of the third when he skated down the slot and beat Burke inside the left post.

Boston's third power-play goal came on Linseman's score, a slap shot from the left circle at 9:05.

Bruner said "about $1,000,000" would be put into the Recreation Building.

Kinnick Stadium will also undergo several changes, including a new press room for photographers and elevator repair. The board will study whether to replace or modify the current public address system because of "intolerable loudness" and will also consider the possibility of replacing the current artificial surface on the field.

The current turf will last no longer than two more years, according to a statement Bruner distributed, and Prescription Athlete Turf — grass — is being considered.

Iowa football Coach Hayden Fry is a proponent of grass, which helps prevent injuries, according to some doctors and coaches.

Finkbine Golf Course had a new irrigation system installed last fall and completed this spring.

Iowa's NCAA and Big Ten representative, Sam Becker, issued a summary from the conference meeting earlier this month. The conference passed the White Resolution Matter, which mandates a higher grade point average be implemented for student-athletes who receive financial aid. The UI board had already passed the proposal.

Freshman ineligibility, which Becker said took up most of the time at the conference meeting, was also discussed Tuesday.

Becker also handed out an affirma-

Iowa Men's Athletics Director Bump Elliott formally nominated former Iowa football player Mike Flagg for the 1988 men's Big Ten Medal of Honor, given annually at each conference school to a student-athlete who exemplifies proficiency in scholarship and athletics.

Liz Tchou, a former Iowa field hockey player, was named Iowa's women's Medal of Honor recipient last week at the Women's Athletics annual banquet.

given by several witnesses is this — that Mr. Martin and another gentleman ... got into a verbal conflict in the bathroom that led to one punch, that being the only punch and that being thrown by Mr. Martin," Anderson said.

"AT THAT POINT, an employee and an ex-employee of the club restrained Mr. Martin and he was consequently ejected from the club through an emergency exit. Apparently his injuries were suffered when he struck a stone wall outside that exit."

The Dallas Times-Herald quoted the witness, identified as Keith Morrow of Fort Worth, Texas, as saying Martin struck the unidentified man after the man told Martin something to the effect of "Yeah, but you're still an old man."

Anderson said the man's testimony had a major influence on police because he was a "disinterested person who we felt was very credible and had nothing to gain by siding with either party."

Anderson said police considered filing charges against Martin for making a false report to police but probably will not do so.

"For one thing, those cases are sometimes difficult to prove," he said. "For another, Mr. Martin did not seek out the police department. He was contacted by our officers, who questioned him and he related his account. He didn't actually approach us to make a report."

A's ride win streak behind Welch trade

United Press International

OAKLAND, Calif. — You don't go trading All-Star shortstops every day, so the Oakland Athletics expected big things from pitcher Bob Welch when they acquired him from the Los Angeles Dodgers last December in exchange for Alfredo Griffin.

Those expectations were slow to be realized but like the A's, Welch is now on a roll. Welch stifled Detroit on four hits through eight innings Monday night, extending his personal winning streak to four games and the team's winning streak to 14 with a 4-1 victory over the Tigers.

"I'm not one who really compares each outing," said Welch, a Detroit native who made his first-ever start against the Tigers. "The key thing is that we won the ballgame."

Detroit's Jack Morris, 3-4, pitched his fourth complete game in eight starts and struck out 11, one shy of his career high.

"WITH BOB WELCH and Jack Morris, the batters didn't hardly have anything to hit all day long," said Oakland Manager Tony LaRussa. "It's a game that you expected."

From Welch, it was the type game the A's expected all along when they gave up Griffin. But, after four starts, he shouldered a 6.26 ERA. Now, four starts later, the ERA is down to 4.38, and the four-hit performance Monday night ranks as Welch's finest of the season.

"I just think he's settling down," said LaRussa. "I think he's pitching within himself more. He was trying so hard to make an impression, so hard to make a contribution. I think that was a big part of the problem."

Welch sensed those high expectations.

"It's something Tony and I had talked about in spring training, not to try to push things," said Welch, 5-2. "It's a whole new environment. You're doing some things for the first time, something I haven't really experienced before, not since coming out of college."

WELCH JOINED THE Dodgers organization out of Eastern Michigan University in 1977 and stayed with Los Angeles until the December trade. Detroit Manager Sparky Anderson hadn't seen Welch since 1978, when Anderson served the last of his nine years as the Cincinnati manager.

"I haven't seen Welch for 10 years, but he looks the same to me as he always has," said Anderson. "Welch pitched good. Morris pitched good. I enjoyed watching it."

Anderson may not have gotten tremendous enjoyment out of Jose Canseco, who slammed a game-winning homer in the third inning. Canseco's nine home runs lead the American League and he has scored 32 runs and driven in 32 in Oakland's 31 games this season.

Canseco's homer drove in Carney Lansford and gave the A's a 2-1 lead. Mike Gallego singled in Dave Henderson in the fourth for Oakland's final run.

Detroit's lone run came in a two-balk inning. Pat Sheridan reached base on an infield single to lead off the third, went to second on a Welch balk, took third on another infield single, and scored on another Welch balk.

Oakland's 14 consecutive victories mark the longest major-league winning streak since the 1977 Kansas City Royals won 16 straight. Oakland is also 12-0 this season against American League East teams.

Academic Hall takes 6 members

By Dave Raffo United Press International

NEW YORK — Congressmen Bill Bradley and Tom McMillen and Senate candidate Pete Dawkins were among six inducted Tuesday into the new Academic All-America Hall of Fame.

Also inducted were Dr. Donn Moomaw, Merlin Olsen and Pat Haden. The Hall of Fame was established to honor top student-athletes from the past 40 years.

Bradley, a two-time all-America basketball player at Princeton and member of the 1964 U.S. Olympic team and two New York Knicks NBA championship teams, was elected to the Senate as a Democrat from New Jersey in 1978. He is in his second term.

The group proves athletes can make their marks in fields other than sports after retiring, and showed good athletes can be good students too. Bradley, McMillen, Dawkins and Haden are Rhodes Scholars.

The six were chosen from 50 former academic all-Americans nominated by college sports information directors. The program is sponsored by GTE.

French astrologer's quake prediction doesn't pan out

By Bill Blanning United Press International

LOS ANGELES — The sun rose Tuesday, millions of people fought traffic to get to work and Southern California did not tumble into the sea, despite predictions to the contrary.

May 10 was supposed to be the day of the Big One, according to some interpretations of the writings of Nostradamus, the 16th-century French astrologer.

Nostradamus rarely used dates, basing the time of most of his predictions on planetary alignments. The vagueness of Nostradamus's writings have led other astrologers and psychics to choose various days in May for the quake.

"At first I heard it was May 5, then May 8, then May 10," said Edward Velez, who works in downtown Los Angeles.

"I think it's something that's on everybody's mind," he said. "It's like the threat of nuclear war. ... This morning I woke up wondering if a book case would fall on my head."

"To tell you the truth, I bought three gallons of water and a 12-pack of beer," said Jean Moore, who also works in downtown Los Angeles. "I've been a little wary."

Scientists, who agree that a big earthquake will rock the Golden State sometime, scoff at the specific predictions and point out that earthquakes are a daily part of life in Southern California.

Edwards' 'Sunset' fades fast

By Kevin C. Kretschmer
The Daily Iowan

CASTING is a tricky process. Choosing actors whose personas complement each other can create screen energy — failing to do so can cause a power outage. Sunset, writer-director Blake Edwards' mild spoof of '20s Hollywood, suffers from a form of the latter.

Pairing Bruce Willis and James Garner, neither must have seemed a novel idea to some casting director, because their careers share certain similarities. Garner gained overnight fame on television in the '50s as a wise-cracking charmer on "Maverick" and quickly made the transition to movies. Likewise, Willis has achieved instant success via the tube in "Moonlighting," also playing a fast-talking smoothie.

Now, Willis continues his big-screen bid, following last year's Blind Date, by teaming with Garner to star as Tom Mix to Garner's Wyatt Earp, two of America's most unlikely, but truly legendary heroes. Together they attempt to solve the murder of a Hollywood madam without the cooperation of the corrupt authorities.

THE PROBLEM with this pairing is that the actors are too much alike. Apparently no one heeded the adage "don't kid a kidder" because Willis and Garner are on the same side (the good guys) and appear in too many scenes together. When they're together they have no one to play port diffuses the conflict that should have existed between an elderly real-life hero like Earp and Mix, the Hollywood manufactured variety. Garner is a bit too spry to be portraying someone who would have been 80 and Willis too impish to play a 48-year-old.

Despite its tongue-in-cheek attitude, Edwards' script takes excessive liberties with history in telling a story of scandal and murder in the screen capital during the late '20s. Of course, conceptions of the American West are as much myth as fact, and Hollywood was scandal-ridden in that period, but this glamorized abstraction just further clouds more fascinating actual events. Nevertheless, film buffs may get a certain kick watching recreations of silent picture production; others will have less of a reason to stay alert.

THE PACE IS leisurely at best, with the occasional fistfights and showdowns providing the sort of rollicking fun that Edwards' better pictures feature throughout. Sunset does benefit from slick production design, including lavish mansions, glistening period autos and elegant costuming, lushly photographed in over-saturated color. However, all its many technical qualities can't make up for the slow-moving storyline.

Mariel Hemingway, sporting a Clara Bow hairstyle, and Kathleen Quinlan are on hand to lend visual support, though they get little chance to demonstrate but minimal acting skill. Malcolm McDowell livens things considerably as sadistic producer Alfie Alperin, while Richard Bradford and M. Emmett Walsh back him superbly as his cronies.

Tighter editing would improve Sunset, as would a script that drew more from reality. Hollywood truth during the '20s was much stranger than fiction, the decade is rife with movie possibilities. Most of all, however, unique talents like Willis and Garner need room to operate — in Sunset they're corralled.

Stravinsky's 'Rite' opened to uproar

By Rob Gloster
United Press International

PARIS — The audience started booing and yelling insults even as the curtain went up on a new ballet one critic called "a kind of drunken barbarity." Composer Igor Stravinsky stormed from the hall, slamming the door behind him.

But 75 years after its dissonant chords and primitive rhythms shocked the French, Le Sacre du Printemps ("The Rite of Spring") is regarded as one of the 20th century's most significant musical creations.

It tore down music's rhythmic and tonal boundaries, which had not been challenged by late 19th-century romanticism, and laid the groundwork for almost all of modern music.

"The Sacre is undoubtedly the most famous composition of the early 20th century," wrote the late American music historian Donald Grout. "It had the effect of an explosion that so scattered the elements of musical language that they could never again be put together as before."

THE BALLETS' original version, with revolutionary choreography by Vaslav Nijinsky, was performed only five times in Paris and several times in London. Stravinsky's music was presented as an orchestral work in Paris in 1914 and now usually is performed without the ballet.

But the 75th anniversary of the May 29, 1913, premiere spawned a reconstruction of the ballet by the Joffrey Ballet in New York and Los Angeles last fall and two performances by another dance troupe in Vienna in February. Ironically, there are no plans for a similar re-creation in Paris, where it was first performed.

Auguste Mangeot, editor of Le Monde Musical, wrote that "never have the annals of theater recorded a performance more tumultuous" and warned "it is a curious demonstration... that would be dangerous to repeat or imitate."

STRAVINSKY, in a conversation recorded in 1960, said he was "unprepared for the explosion" at the premiere. "Mild protests against the music could be heard from the beginning," he recounted. "Then, when the curtain opened and a group of knock-kneed and long-braided Lolitas jumped up and down, the storm broke."

"I left the hall in a rage. I was sitting on the right near the orchestra and I remember slamming the door. I have never again been that angry."

Stravinsky was much more satisfied the following year when Le Sacre du Printemps was presented in a concert performance. The mostly young audience at the Casino de Paris gave it a rousing ovation and carried Stravinsky on its shoulders into the streets.

Nightlife

Tony Brown plays at Gabe's Oasis, 330 E. Washington St.

Radio

Pianist Murray Perahia joins conductor Seiji Ozawa and the Boston Symphony Orchestra in performing works by Henze and by the Big Guy himself, Beethoven, his magnificent, you'll-hum-it-all-day "Emperor" concerto (8 p.m.; KSUI 91.7 FM).

Records

By William C. Trot
United Press International

Ian Matthews, Walking a Changing Line (Windmill Hill Records).

Top listeners may recognize Ian Matthews' delicate tenor from his 1970s hit "Woodstock" during his days with Matthews Southern Comfort. Others will recall his folk-rock work with Fairport Convention.

For Walking a Changing Line, his return to performing after five years, Matthews chose to create an album based strictly on the works of Jules Shear (formerly of Jules and the Polar Bears and composer of the Bangles' hit "If She Knew What She Wants") in the soft tradition of Windham Hill.

He creates a gentle mood as his voice mingles with the synthesizers and is especially effective on "Alive Alone," a duet with newcomer Eliza Gilkyson, and "On Squirrel Hill," an a capella number that Shear wrote especially for this album.
