Reagan reportedly makes offer to Noriega

Administration said to be divided over president's proposal

United Press International

WASHINGTON — President Ronald Reagan has authorized a plan to drop federal drug charges against Panama's Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega in exchange for the military strongman stepping down, network news reports said Wednesday.

The plan was authorized over the objections of Attorney General Edwin Meese, and U.S. Attorney Robert Merkle, involved in the Noriega case in Tampa, Fla., said he would be fired before he would drop the criminal charges against the accused drug smuggler, NBC News reported.

Quoting a U.S. official close to the negotiations and opposed to the plan, NBC said the administration proposal contained four steps:

- Noriega would stay in power until Aug. 12, the fifth anniversary of his taking command of Panamanian Defense Forces.
- Noriega then would leave Panama for a third country and the United States would drop all charges against him.
- Panama would hold new general elections in 1990, after which Noriega could return to the Central American nation.
- Panamanian law would be changed so that the top defense forces commander could stay in power only five years.

It was not known whether Noriega had accepted the deal. U.S. officials would not comment publicly, and in Panama City the government said Reagan had spoken directly with Noriega but denied any deal for his departure.

State-run television, quoting "reliable sources," said the telephone exchange between Reagan and Noriega was the result of another secret visit to Panama this week by Michael Kovak, a State Department official dealing with Noriega.

"As a result of that mission... there is direct contact with Reagan and Noriega," said the broadcast.

IN A REFERENCE to the Kovak visit, the official Pana Press said, "In Panama, there have been simple conversations about diverse topics. No agreement has been established on any matter."

Panamanian government sources said talks between Noriega and Kovak were conducted this week in a "favorable climate."

Kovak, principal deputy to Assistant Secretary of State Elliott Abrams, held his first secret meetings with Noriega on April 18 and 19.

He has an old personal relationship with one of Noriega's chief advisers and is regarded by Panamanian officials as more conciliatory than other U.S. officials who have met Noriega.

Panamanian authorities have called the meetings between Kovak and Noriega "conversations," rather than "negotiations."

NBC SAID REAGAN approved the plan after national security advisers warned that a delay in getting rid of Noriega could lead to an alliance between Noriega and Cuban President Fidel Castro.

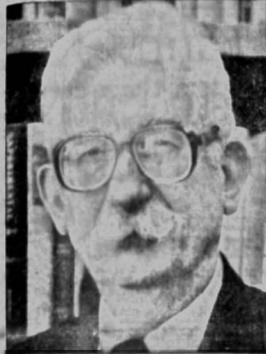

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater told United Press International "we are in negotiations" but declined further comment on the reports that a deal had been

UI graduation to take place this Saturday

Richard Remington

By Joe Euchner
The Daily Iowan

The UI will hold its spring commencement ceremony Saturday in Carver-Hawkeye Arena at 9:30 a.m.

UI Interim President Richard Remington will confer degrees and deliver the traditional charge to graduates. Tracey Burton of Waterloo, a law degree candidate, will speak on behalf of the graduates. Burton said she will address the need to take responsibility for one's actions.

This spring, 3,103 candidates have applied for degrees, bringing the total number for the 1987-88 school year to a record high of 5,855. More than 202,000 have earned UI degrees since the UI was founded in 1847.

UI Administrative Assistant Jean Lawrence, a coordinator of commencement activities, explained the commencement process, and some of the rules to be followed.

"At the UI commencement, Ph.D. and D.M.A. candidates will be called by name to cross the stage and receive their hoods. M.A. candidates will also be called to cross the stage. All other candidates will be conferred degrees as a group by President Remington," she said.

The UI will stage separate convocations for each college to recognize individual degree candidates, in addition to the larger commencement where only some names will be announced.

Convocations will be held Friday for the following colleges:

- College of Business Administration, 10:30 a.m. at Hancher Auditorium.
  - College of Dentistry, 3 p.m. at Hancher Auditorium.
  - College of Medicine, 7:30 p.m. at Hancher Auditorium.
  - College of Liberal Arts, 8 p.m. at Carver-Hawkeye Arena.
- Convocations will also be held Saturday for the following colleges:
- College of Engineering, noon at Clapp Recital Hall.
  - College of Law, 1 p.m. at Hancher Auditorium.
  - College of Nursing, 5 p.m. at Hancher Auditorium.

Lawrence advised students who will take part in the ceremonies to follow the UI dress code.

"All candidates will be required to wear the appropriate academic apparel of cap, gown and tassel for both convocation and commencement, with exception of candidates from the College of Business Administration, who will have the option of choosing their own apparel for convocation," Lawrence said.

Lawrence said students should have received letters containing specific information about the convocations of their colleges. She said instructions for the commencement would be the same for all candidates.

"Candidates will be asked to report to Carver-Hawkeye at 9 a.m. Saturday to prepare for the procession that will begin the program," Lawrence said.

UI OFFICIALS request that those planning to attend not bring any alcoholic beverages inside the arena.

Parking for commencement will be provided in the lots south and west of the arena, the two Dental Science Building lots and lots near Kinnick Stadium.

Commencement exercises will be recorded by the UI Video Center, and cassettes will be available for $30 plus shipping and handling. Video cassettes of dental, medical and law convocations will also be available from the Union Bookstore.

Tim Gay, left, and Dr. Richard Campbell, an area supervisor for the Meat and Poultry Inspectors, survey the aftermath Wednesday afternoon of Tuesday night's fire which caused an estimated $300,000 damage to Gay's Locker and Meat Market on Waterfront Drive.

Building left a pile of bricks

Local fire officials look for clues in attic

By Cathy Jackson
The Daily Iowan

Piles of bricks and rubble, crowned with remains from the black and white Gay's Locker and Meat Market emblem, were all that was left Wednesday after a fire destroyed the building Tuesday night.

Although fire officials are still investigating the cause of the blaze, Iowa City Fire Marshal Larry Kinney said the fire, which was completely smothered by about 5 a.m. Wednesday, started in the attic of the building.

"We have been working all day searching for possible ignition sources," Kinney said Wednesday afternoon. "We are concentrating on the process of elimination."

The blaze, which caused an estimated $300,000 in damages, began at about 6:45 p.m. Tuesday. More than 100 firefighters from Iowa City and 11 other Johnson County departments brought the flames under control at about 8:50 p.m.

ABOUT 500 PEOPLE within a 1-mile radius were forced to evacuate to escape toxic smoke produced when a 300-pound ammonia tank burned inside the building, located at 1421 Waterfront Drive.

Kinney said he and the other investigators have finished examining coil pin valves that opened the ammonia lines in the building, and eliminated them as possible sources of the fire.

"Now we're working on the wiring," Kinney said. "We're seeing if we can find any sources or shorts. We will be doing our best to hopefully wrap (the investigation) up (today)."

But when Kinney's investigation is finished, the Gay family will have just begun picking up the pieces.

"We have no plans yet," Tim Gay, who is the son of co-owner Richard Gay, said. "It's awfully early — we have to clean up the mess before we do anything. (The building) is totaled. There's nothing left."

GAY SAID Gay's Locker and Meat Market customers will receive letters from the family's insurance company, Alderman-Wilson and Associates, Inc.

"We've been talking with the insurance company," co-owner Charles Gay said. "We're negotiating to get a van in the parking lot here (to serve as a) temporary office so we can answer calls and correspondence."

But Charles Gay said he didn't have any other plans for the future of the business.

"We've got to clean it up for a while," he said. "I don't know what I'm going to do."

And the futures of the approximately 15 other Gay's employees are also up in the air.

"I'm worried," Gay's night worker Keith Phelps, 52, said. "I may be out of a job. I have my age and two disabilities that stand in the way of me finding other work."

PHELPS, WHO has worked 11-hour shifts at Gay's for the past four years, said he thinks the Gays will help him in some way, and he hopes there will be some work available at Gay's after the investigation.

Bush endorsed by Reagan, Robertson

By James Gerstenzang and J. Edgar
Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — President Ronald Reagan, in a surprisingly brief and unadorned announcement, endorsed Vice President George Bush for the presidency Wednesday evening.

"I'm going to work as hard as I can to make Vice President George Bush the next president of the United States," Reagan said.

The endorsement, though expected, had been held in abeyance until Bush had locked up the Republican Party's presidential nomination. It followed by several hours Pat Robertson's announcement that he would officially abandon his campaign next week and support Bush.

After meeting with the one remaining candidate in the Republican presidential race, Robertson told reporters at the White House: "We are going to be working harmoniously and in unity together and, of course, I am wholeheartedly endorsing the vice president for the presidency of the United States. The race is now over."

IN HIS PREPARED text, the president mentioned Bush by name only twice. Reagan recited a one-sentence resume of the jobs held by the vice president, whom he called "my candidate": member of Congress, ambassador to China, ambassador to the United Nations, director of the Central Intelligence Agency and national chairman of the Republican Party.

George Bush

Candidates debate supervisor issues

By Jay Casini
The Daily Iowan

The four announced candidates for the Johnson County Board of Supervisors squared off in a candidate forum sponsored by the Johnson County Democrats Wednesday night.

Candidates David Belgum, Charles Duffy, Dick Myers and Betty Ockenfels are vying in the June 7 Democratic primary for three open seats on the board. No Republicans have announced their candidacy for the positions.

Forum moderator Nicholas Johnson, chairman of the Johnson County Democrat Platform Committee, asked the candidates to respond to questions focusing on a variety of county issues during the two-hour debate.

Incumbent Dick Myers said he has been involved in local government for almost 20 years, including nine years of public office as mayor and council member in Coralville, state director of the Farm Home Administration under the Carter administration and as the representative for the Johnson County supervisors to the county labor negotiators team.

MYERS SAID he is committed to government because he can have a positive role in it. He said he will be available to answer questions by supervisors, Page 6

UI holds business seminar

The UI will present a business seminar May 17 on the successful transition of a Mount Pleasant manufacturing plant from traditional to innovative work practices.

Entitled "Transforming the Production Floor/Self-Directing Work Teams: The Goodyear Experience," the seminar will be presented from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Iowa City Holiday Inn.

More than 150 representatives of Midwest firms have registered for the event, sponsored by the Manufacturing Productivity Center of the UI College of Business Administration.

During the last six years, the Goodyear Rubber and Tire Co. in Mount Pleasant has successfully replaced a traditional management structure with one composed of self-directing work teams, who set production methods and schedules.

There are no longer supervisors, but rather team coordinators, who serve for six months and are chosen by team members based on criteria set by the team. As a result, the plant has moved from a four-level hierarchy to a lean, two-level organization in which production teams report directly to the plant manager.

Featured at the seminar will be individual presentations and panel discussions by UI business faculty and Goodyear employees.

There will be ample time for questions from the audience throughout the day, which will end with a reception so that participants may meet informally with the presenters and other manufacturers.

For information or to register, call the Office of External Programs in the UI College of Business Administration at 335-1021.

UI Press releases collection

The UI Press has released "Fruit of the Month," a collection of short stories exploring the impulses behind moments of aggression, jealousy and loneliness.

The book was written by Abby Frucht, co-winner of the Iowa Short Fiction Award.

"Fruit of the Month," published in a hardbound edition, is available for $15.95 from the UI Press Order Department.

WRAC to hold open house

The UI Women's Resource and Action Center will be holding an open house for Asian women on Friday, May 13, from 3 p.m. to 5 p.m. at the center, 130 N. Madison St. Refreshments will be served.

WRAC is also sponsoring summer support groups for women. Most will meet for six to eight weeks, although a few many continue on a long-term basis.

Support groups are offered for divorced and separating women, ex-smokers, Jewish women, lesbians, single mothers, incest survivors, women returning to school, writers, and women interested in discussing women's spirituality.

The support groups are open to university students, staff and faculty and women in the Iowa City community.

Indian professor to speak

Professor U.R. Anatha Murthy, vice chancellor of Gandhi-Ji University in Kerala, India, and a well-known author, will speak on the topic of "Tensions between the States and Central Government in India" at noon Tuesday, May 17, in the Fellowship Hall of the Iowa City Congregational Church, 30 N. Clinton St.

Murthy's talk is sponsored by the Iowa City Foreign Relations Council. No reservations are necessary. All members and guests are welcome.

In addition, the council will be sponsoring a speech by Rep. James Leach, R-Iowa, at noon Friday, May 27, in Fellowship Hall. Leach will be giving a congressional update to the council.

Reservations for Leach's speech must be made by Wednesday, May 25. Reservations will not be accepted by telephone.

School board likely to put athletic complex on hold

By Deborah Gluba
The Daily Iowan

Iowa City West High School will not receive an athletic complex in the near future if the Iowa City School Board follows the recommendation made by school administrators Tuesday night.

About 40 parents listened as Iowa City Schools Superintendent David Cronin outlined recommended planned expenditures for the next 10 years — which did not include a West High Athletic Complex, but suggested hiring a consultant to assess the project's feasibility.

The Iowa City Community School District Athletic Facilities Issues Committee recommended on April 12 that the board include a competitive football or soccer facility at West High in its long-range plans.

But Cronin said the district operates on a "pay as you go" basis. Capital improvements funding, he said, is from the Site Fund, a board-approved fund, and the "67 and a half cent" Fund, a voter-approved fund.

He said that $900,000 of the $1.5 million available from the funds was tentatively committed to other projects including $300,000 for district roof repairs and maintenance.

CRONIN SAID he hoped the district would first establish an athletic policy statement before considering a West Athletic Complex.

"My suggestion to the board is to first establish a policy to get at this duplicate or equal question," he said.

Cronin said the board could consider alternative funding for a field, perhaps using an enrichment tax levy, bond issue or donations.

But several members of the Athletic Facilities Issues Committee said Cronin's recommendation did not give priority to building equitable athletic facilities.

Committee member Jane Zukin said the group worked diligently to keep their recommendations within the board's tentative long-term budget.

"We worked very hard to set the priority of the plan and tried to fit it into the school board plans," she said.

THE COMMITTEE worked with the 1984-85 Site Fund Plan but Zukin said they did not realize the Site Fund total was minus $300,000 for roof improvements.

Board members Jay Christensen-Szalanski apologized to the committee for the misunderstanding but said he wanted a better understanding of the committee's priorities.

"I think we need some more work on the numbering of that project before we can be comfortable with it," Christensen-Szalanski said.

But committee member Bob Luepke said the capital improvement recommendations were not prioritized, but were arranged to fit the board's long-range plan.

Jeff Albright, a Iowa City West High School student, also presented the board with a petition signed by 415 West High students who supported equitable district athletic facilities.

Jury may consider prior sex acts in Iowa sex abuse trials

By Bill Brewer
United Press International

DES MOINES — A jury may consider a defendant's prior forced sex acts in a case in which he claims subsequent acts were agreed to by the victim, a divided Iowa Supreme Court ruled Wednesday.

In making the 6-3 ruling, the majority upheld the third-degree sexual abuse conviction of Kevin Plaster of Davenport, in an incident involving a Davenport woman he had met in a laundromat in June 1986.

Court records said after spending two hours drinking at a tavern, Plaster and the woman went to his apartment where they engaged in oral sex. After the woman refused to engage in other acts, Plaster began fondling the woman causing injury to her.

The woman, identified in court records as Christine, alleged Plaster threatened to repeat the injurious act unless she consented to engage in intercourse.

DURING HIS TRIAL, prosecutors called another woman to the witness stand who testified that Plaster previously had forced her to engage in sex acts, to illustrate Plaster's history of forcing himself on women.

Plaster, who insisted the woman involved in the June 1986 incident consented to have sex with him, argued the testimony of the other woman should have been disallowed because the prior incidents had no bearing on the crime against Christine he was charged with.

The majority, in an opinion by Justice Louis Luvato, said Plaster's prior sexual conduct "tends to show the same peculiar and characteristic behavior pattern manifested in the crime charged."

"Both acts occurred in Plaster's apartment. Both acts occurred following admittedly consensual sexual activity. . . . Both women suffered similar injuries as a result of the manipulation," Luvato wrote. "In each instance Plaster forced the women to participate in a sex act following the injury."

BUT JUSTICE Louis Schultz, in a dissenting opinion, wrote the majority decision "involves a leap in logic that I am unwilling to make."

"The issue of consent in a sexual abuse case focuses on the alleged victim's state of mind. I fail to see how one woman's state of mind on a previous occasion is relevant to prove another woman's state of mind on a later occasion," Schultz wrote.

Police

By Susan M. Wessling
The Daily Iowan

An Iowa City woman was charged with harassment Wednesday after she allegedly threatened to harm a victim, according to police reports.

Billie Wildman, 28, 1130 Fourth Ave., called the Iowa City Police Department at about 12:30 a.m. Wednesday and said she had a gun and a knife and was going to harm the woman at the woman's home, according to the report.

An officer went to Wildman's residence and arrested her. She was taken to the Johnson County Sheriff's Office, according to the report.

Report: An Iowa City man was charged Wednesday with two counts of third-degree theft regarding an April 29 incident, and two counts of second-degree theft, according to police reports.

Darlington A. Edu, 21, 632 S. Van Buren, was charged at his residence in connection with the thefts for having possession of stolen property, according to the report.

Theft: Items valued at approximately $300 were reported stolen Tuesday from an apartment in the Hawkeye Court apartment complex, according to Campus Security reports.

Pauline Banks-Izadjoo reported at about 9 a.m. Tuesday that miscellaneous clothing and jewelry were stolen from the apartment, according to the report.

Theft: A car stereo of unknown value was reported stolen Monday from a car belonging to a UI student, according to police reports.

UI junior Sarah Hurlbut, 4015 Lakeside Manor, reported Monday afternoon that approximately $400 damage was done to the dashboard of her car when unidentified individuals stole the stereo, according to the report.

Report: Unidentified individuals attempted to break into Gilmore Hall, according to Campus Security reports.

At about 9 a.m. Tuesday, it was reported that a screen had been cut out of the window of Gilmore Hall Room 6, according to the report.

Approximately $25 damage was done during the incident, but nothing was reported stolen.

Report: Individuals were reported Tuesday having attempted to enter the UI Main Library, according to Campus Security reports.

Someone reported at about 10:30 a.m. Tuesday that a vent and door were bent, but no entry was gained.

Courts

By Traci Auble
The Daily Iowan

The restitution hearing for the assault case of UI football player Keaton Smiley has been changed to June 24, according to Johnson County District Court records.

The original restitution hearing was set for May 6. The hearing was to decide the amount of compensation Smiley will be required to pay for assaulting former UI volleyball player Cheryl Zemaitis.

Smiley was found guilty in November of the assault and was sentenced Nov. 30 to one year in the Johnson County Jail with all but 60 days suspended. He was also placed on probation for two years.

Smiley completed his jail term, which began Dec. 7, 1987.

Fire at phone station causes ruckus for Illinois residents

By Cathy Jackson
The Daily Iowan

Thousands of UI students from the Chicago area couldn't get through to their moms Sunday, and won't be phoning home for the next several days after a major fire at a Hinsdale Illinois Bell Telephone Co. switching center wiped out phone service in several of Chicago's western suburbs.

The Sunday fire has left about 35,000 residents and businesses without phone service, and created phone problems at the O'Hare International and Midway airports, as well as many surrounding towns.

"The quickest way to get in touch with your family now is by writing a letter — a telegram is $20," UI sophomore Juan Ugarte, who is one of 4,420 UI students from Illinois, said. "I called my mom on Saturday before the phones went out, but my friends are all trying in any way they can to get through to home."

IN AN ATTEMPT to compensate for the phone problems, Illinois Bell set up a dozen phones in a mobile unit outside the Hinsdale switching station for area residents to use free of charge.

Some suburbs have also sent police officers in radio-equipped squad cars and firefighters with hand-held radios to selected locations to receive reports of emergencies.

Although the Bell lines are not in service, some students have reported reaching their homes by calling on Teleconnect lines.

"I was talking to a friend of mine and he told me to try calling on Teleconnect," UI sophomore Pam Serp, who got through to Western Springs on the Teleconnect line, said. "The lines were busy at 2:30 a.m. and 3:30 a.m., so I guess a bunch of people were calling on Teleconnect. I talked to my mom and she said she could call across the street, but not down the block."

But a representative from Teleconnect said callers are just as likely to get through on an AT&T line as a Teleconnect line.

"ALL CARRIERS WERE affected on an intermittent basis," Teleconnect Public Relations Manager Kent Mumaw said. "But we have ways that we can alternately re-route long distance traffic into that area. We are still expecting some minor blockage of certain calls."

The phone problems have caused other problems for UI students trying to make arrangements to get home after finals.

"My parents were supposed to come get me on Saturday," UI freshman Rachel Scheid said. "I tried to call and make sure they were still coming but I can't get through."

"It totally sucks because I'm trying to buy a car so I can get home and I need a check from my parents," UI sophomore from La Grange Park Joe Larusso said. "I can't buy the car because I can't get through. I also couldn't call home on Mother's Day and I didn't send a card so I felt bad."

Along with area residents, suburban Chicago businesses have suffered from the lack of phone service.

"A LOT OF businesses are at a standstill," Ugarte, who is from Western Springs, said.

As well as Hinsdale, the fire, blazing from about 4:30 p.m. to about 11:30 p.m. Sunday, cut off phone service to Clarendon Hills, Burr Ridge, Willowbrook, eastern Daren and Oak Brook south of 31st St.

Phone service problems between control towers and the Federal Aviation Administration's traffic control center in Aurora delayed flights for up to an hour at Midway and O'Hare Monday morning.

A short circuit is suspected to have started the fire, but the cause has not yet been determined.

"I think it's kind of ridiculous that in this day and age something like that could be so all-encompassing in craziness," Larusso said. "It kind of reflects the idiocy of these huge multinational corporations."

Branstad to ask legislature for state preschool funding

United Press International

DES MOINES — Gov. Terry Branstad said he will ask the Legislature in January to establish preschool programs for Iowa's 32,000 4-year-olds and finance the new programs by shifting current state aid to school districts.

If Branstad's proposal is approved by lawmakers Tuesday, Iowa would become the first state in the nation to require its school districts to offer preschool programs.

Proponents of mandatory preschool programs said several recent studies show that 4-year-olds exposed to preschool receive lasting educational benefits.

The Iowa Board of Education, which favors mandatory preschool, last year dropped the controversial proposal from a list of new standards for school districts that are scheduled to take effect in 1990 after local school officials complained about the high cost of providing an additional year of instruction.

BRANSTAD, IN a speech to 200 school administrators, said although he has not worked out specifics of the plan, he believes the estimated $7 million needed to finance the new programs can be found by shifting state aid to school districts.

The current School Aid Formula, which funnels approximately $1 billion annually to Iowa's 436 school districts, is scheduled to be revised by lawmakers next session.

Rewriting the formula will give the state an opportunity to set new educational priorities, Branstad said.

Among the expected changes in the formula is the deletion or modification of a provision that cushions districts with declining enrollment from large cuts in state aid.

The state reimburses districts for approximately 36,000 "phantom" students.

Changing that provision alone may save the state millions of dollars and enable the state to pay for all or part of the preschool programs, the governor said.

Governors' task force addresses critical condition of rural America

United Press International

RALEIGH, N.C. — Rural America, staggered by the farm crisis, loss of jobs and population decline this decade, needs a new vision of its future, witnesses told a National Governors' Association task force on rural development Tuesday.

"Our non-metropolitan areas are our areas of greatest need now," said Iowa Gov. Terry Branstad, who chaired the task force hearing. He equated the problems of rural America with the desperate needs of the inner cities of the 1960s.

"More than anything else, we hope a new vision can be found for rural America," Branstad said.

BRANSTAD AND governors from Minnesota, South Dakota and North Carolina listened as local government officials and banking leaders offered perspective on the needs of the country's non-urban communities in the areas of economic development, capital for new ventures, health care and maintaining a viable agricultural system.

"We've learned that rural development is a grassroots effort," Branstad said.

North Carolina Gov. Jim Martin said local leaders must mobilize to roll out the welcome mat to attract new business and industry.

"While no one can direct a business to invest in a particular community, and no one can wield central power to send jobs to a deserving town, we've found that we can roll out the red carpet, make business feel welcome and attract the investment," Martin said.

Richard Ellmann, during a long and distinguished career, won international recognition as scholar, teacher of English literature, critic and biographer. His magisterial life of James Joyce has been widely acclaimed as the greatest literary biography of the century.

His Oscar Wilde—Ellmann's final and crowning achievement—has been welcomed by Leon Edel, who calls it "a work of biographic art" and says that "this portrait of the Victorian Age's most tragic figure surpasses Ellmann's well-known life of Joyce." In England, Anthony Burgess calls it "a great book... the second of his masterpieces... a product of long and meticulous labour, which is also an expression of Ellmann's exquisite critical sense, wide and deep learning, and profound humanity."

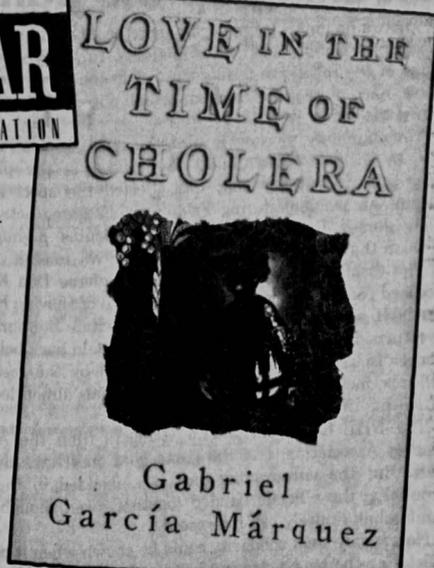

Brinkley's narrative carries us through the suspense of D-Day, the death of FDR, Truman's inauguration and the celebration at last of V-E and V-J Days. Crowded with memories, Washington Goes to War brilliantly and movingly recaptures a lost time that seems to us now—and perhaps was, despite the tragedy of the war—a time of innocence, as it shows us a city and a nation moving into a new era, changed profoundly and forever.

Gabriel García Márquez established his literary reputation more than 20 years ago with the publication of One Hundred Years of Solitude, a legendary book that has been read by millions of people around the world. It was followed by other works, each of which drew new readers and new praise from the critics—culminating in the Nobel Prize for Literature in 1982.

Now García Márquez has written a book that takes its place alongside that earlier, famous work, in the company of the true masterpieces of modern literature.

Don't sit back

The lines at local bookstores and the crowd of students studying at the various UI libraries have begun to diminish. By the end of the weekend, Iowa City will be a virtual ghost town — a majority of the UI student population, along with numerous faculty and staff members, will have left town for the summer, or at least a short vacation.

With finals over and the start of summer classes still weeks away the last thing most people are thinking about is academics, let alone who will be named the next UI president. By next week, though, those who have been following the lengthy, often controversial process of selecting the next UI president — and those who have not — will know who the next leader will be.

Since July 1987 — when former UI President James O. Freedman left Iowa to assume the head position at Dartmouth College in Hanover, N.H. — a 17-member search committee has been seeking a president. The committee had originally planned to submit a list of finalists to the state Board of Regents last fall. The regents, in turn, were to name the next UI president at the end of the first semester.

But matters became complicated when the regents expressed dismay with the number of finalists recommended, and subsequently requested additional names. Now, five months later, the search is coming to an official end. On Monday, the committee presented a list of six finalists to the regents, and today and Friday the candidates will be interviewed by the board. A new president could be named as early as next week.

The committee deserves commendation for completing their task. And a hearty good luck to the regents is in order for the important decision they are about to make.

But members of the UI community — students, staff and faculty — should not stop there. Once the new president is named, the process of setting priorities and devising an agenda will begin. All of those involved with the UI and concerned about its future need to make the effort to participate in this important process. Submitting ideas, voicing concerns and keeping up-to-date on what the UI is doing are all ways in which any member of the community can actively participate in charting the UI's future.

There may be some hard feelings, some apprehension, even some feelings of apathy about the search process and what may happen once the new president is named. But the future success of the UI depends upon the support and active participation of all.

Congratulations and good luck, new president. And members of the UI community: let's work together to assure the UI continues to be a great place of learning.

Cleaning up the game

There's no major league sport more beautiful to watch than hockey; it has none of the stop-and-go turgidity of baseball, none of the repetitive facelessness of football and the skaters have much more grace than basketball players trotting up and down the court.

Unfortunately, hockey is also the most frustrating major league sport to watch, and the reason is the plague of undisguised brutality that has affected the sport since its origin. An incident during Friday night's game between the New Jersey Devils and the Boston Bruins highlighted a tension that needs fixing and displays a way to do it.

The incident was nothing unusual: Referee Don Koharski accused New Jersey coach Jim Schoenfeld of shoving him, and the NHL suspended Schoenfeld. But the State Supreme Court overturned the suspension and let Schoenfeld back behind the bench. In response, Koharski was joined by the rest of the officials, including Dave Newell, the officials' union leader, in absents themselves from the ice.

The NHL hauled in second stringers from the Amateur Hockey Association, and the game goes on. That's the slimy part. But the encouraging part is embedded in the whole brouhaha: the officials banded together, even though it was minimal and purely self-interested.

Now if only such solidarity could be shown when it comes to officiating the bench-clearing brawls that tend to characterize hockey games on every level, the bad reputation of the game could be cleaned up. If officials threatened to band together and abandon ship unless penalties were stiffened and players were heavily fined or expelled for bashing each other with lethal weapons, the game might finally achieve the kind of clean-handed grace that exists in its structure.

A positive note

Hooray for the United State Congress for insisting that the government get a plain-speaking pamphlet on AIDS out to the public. Congress, not the Reagan administration, deserves credit for this . . .

Until 1986, five years into the epidemic, the source of AIDS-prevention materials was almost exclusively the gay community. But even that long ago, the number of AIDS cases had risen beyond 20,000, and the infection was spreading.

That summer, Surgeon General C. Everett Koop issued a 30-page report about the medical facts and sexual aspects of AIDS. But ultraconservatives within the White House circle, headed by Education Secretary William Bennett, blocked a household manual. Koop report on grounds it was too explicit . . .

The most telling cr. of the AIDS epidemic in the early years, when steps were not taken in the disease might have been slowed. The Boston Globe

Opinions expressed on the Viewpoints page are those of the signers and not of The Daily Iowan, as a non-profit corporation, does not have a position on these matters.

What's really in the water?

Gov. Terry Branstad has water on the brain. Or, to be more biologically accurate, water is Terry Branstad's brain.

In that way, he's not different from any of the rest of us. We're all, as author Tom Robbins speculates, simply transportation devices for the ubiquitous liquid. Fact is, most of our bodies is water and even the slightest change in our personal fluid level sends the senses spiraling. If you've ever been very thirsty and without something to drink, you know what I mean.

Just as quantity is a tricky thing, so is quality. If the water in our bodies stinks, we stink.

THAT'S WHY THE one million catfish that died a few weeks ago in the Lake Rathbun hatchery in southern Iowa scare the hell out of me.

This isn't anything new. Last year, 600,000 catfish were caught in the holocaust. Scientists tried to figure out the reason, but all they came up with were vague references to pesticide run-off.

This year, the dilemma would seem to be more pressing. There's been no rain, hence no run-off. And nearly twice as many fish have bitten the dust, if fish can be said to do that.

What scares me is that the catfish are the first line of defense against poisons in our water, and when the bottom eaters start to go belly up, we of the two-legged variety can't be far behind.

OF COURSE, THE 1,600,000 catfish that have died Jim Jones-style in two batches one year apart could be an isolated tragedy. Perhaps there was a pollution problem, but it was confined to Lake Rathbun, and we solid-ground dwellers need not worry. The Iowa Department of Natural Resources has scientists working on the mystery even as you read this, and they'll surely arrive at an explanation that will at least tell us who or what the culprit is. Right?

Don't count on it. Everybody and her baby brother knows the culprit, knows at least some of the many names it calls itself.

It's pesticides. The lack of run-off this year only means the situation is a lot worse than we'd like to think. Pesticides now threaten the health of every living creature that walks, crawls, swims or flies in the state of Iowa.

But pesticides are big money here. There are jobs on the line, investments, influence. Too much political pull from the industry — lobbying, campaign contributions — to put an end to, or at least slow down, the accelerating poisoning of Iowa.

LET ME TAKE a break here to calm down, get a drink of water, mull this over. Why such a cheap shot at our esteemed governor in the lead paragraph? Why select him of all people to illustrate the amazing human body and its wondrous contents?

Because Branstad believes that tourism can save Iowa's economy and has dedicated himself to the task of promoting it — with our tax dollars, of course. And those 1,600,000 catfish sing louder than any radio jingle extolling the many virtues of our state. Without fish, Iowa won't have many fishers visiting from anywhere.

Without fish — and with two generations of catfish wiped out, there's already an underpopulation problem — there will soon be too much algae and other lake creatures the catfish feed on and the shock waves will reverberate up and down the food chain. Pretty soon, there goes the neighborhood.

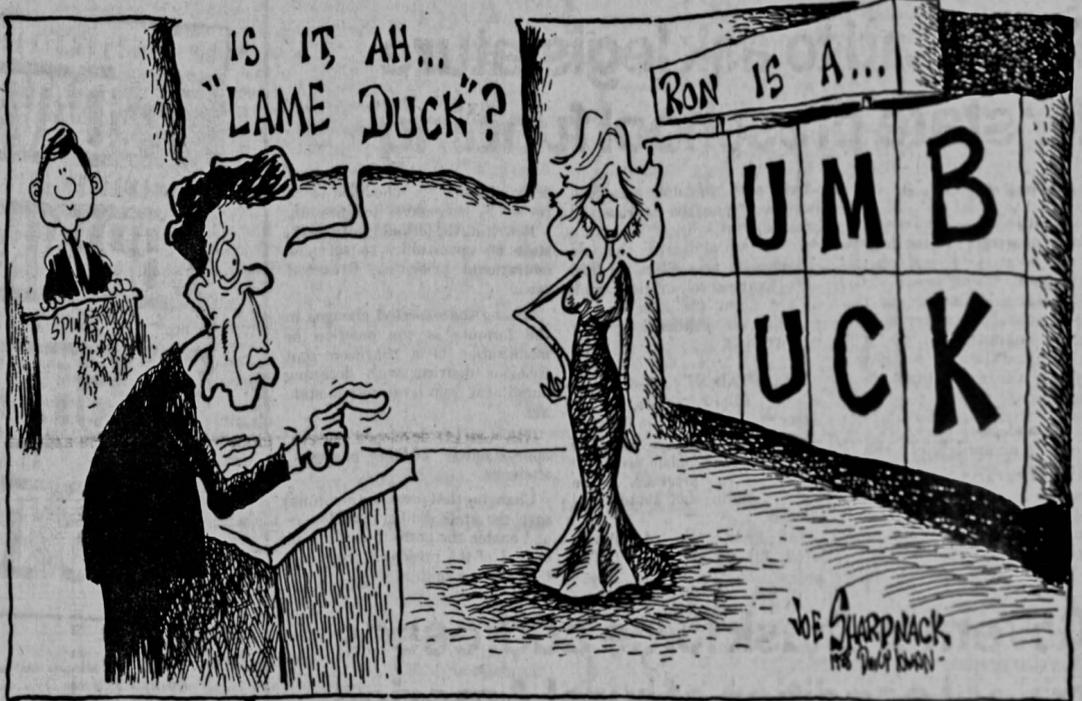

And when visiting sportspeople begin catching rashes and headaches and cancer instead of fish, Iowa's public relations problem will really get sticky.

As for those of us who live here — and Iowa is a much better place to live than it is to visit — we'll be drinking the stuff and washing ourselves in it. Mmm mmm good.

Pesticides in our water means pesticides in us. The chemicals don't kill only pests, they kill humans, too, no matter how influential its lobby in Des Moines.

Let's hope Branstad remembers that the next time he drops chlordane in frozen form into his double martini.

No winner or loser at Stanford

Stanford University, where I teach, has lately been seen by several melancholy and despairing commentators as a place where Western civilization has sustained an enormous defeat. Visiting the campus recently for a few hours, Secretary of Education William Bennett bestowed on us his colorful version of our history, informing us that we had been "brought low by the very forces which modern universities came into being to oppose — ignorance, irrationality and intimidation."

He was referring to a decision by Stanford's Academic Senate to change some aspects of a required course in Western culture. His grim appraisal was echoed in the pages of The Washington Post by Charles Krauthammer in his column, whose apocalyptic finding was that "Western civilization has suffered a setback at Stanford. Civilization will recover. Whether Stanford will is another question."

THERE IS A point in Krauthammer's piece with which I agree: the West in its totality will outlast my employer. Otherwise, the vigilance of external spectators such as the secretary and Krauthammer has its disadvantages: among them are hyperbole and the willingness to rush to judgment.

It would have been better for Bennett and Krauthammer to have remembered the caution of someone undoubtedly dear to them: the conservative thinker Edmund Burke. It was Burke who said: "Circumstances (which for some gentlemen pass for nothing) give in reality to every political principle its distinguishing colour and discriminating effect."

Had these two vigilant spectators been more attentive to the actual Burkean circumstances at Stanford, they would have learned that the course whose passing they mourn has not died. Next year, Stanford students will all take "Cultures, Ideas, and Values," in which the primary emphases will be on the achievements of the West. That course will be historically comprehensive from the ancient world to the medieval to the modern periods.

Every student will read the Hebrew and Christian Bibles, Plato, St. Augustine, Machiavelli, Rousseau and Marx. Choices of additional reading — which inevitably will include the likes of Homer, Sophocles, Aquinas, Dante, Shakespeare, Darwin, Mill and Kafka — will remain where they have always been — in the hands of the instructors.

WHAT THE TWO alarmed spectators have a hard time seeing from their vantage point in Washington, D.C., is that two years of discussion of this topic at Stanford has been exactly that: discussion. Committees met, debates were held, formal resolutions were moved, caucuses were formed, and the Academic Senate convened no fewer than five meetings, more than 10 hours, for the study of the topic. What Bennett and Krauthammer want to imagine as a fit of parliamentary capitolization and hysteria was actually the composure of a deliberative body of professors and administrators who had heard every conceivable argument on the subject and were at last ready in late March to vote their consciences.

Bennett would have had his Stanford audience, and thereafter his national audience, believe that "the loudest voices have won" on this campus. Had he remained at Stanford even a few hours longer, he would have learned that what was effected here in March was a compromise, that no one "won" or "lost." One might think that a member of the president's Cabinet, accustomed to the ways of political change and evolution, would recognize the community value of compromise.

WHAT WAS that compromise? At its foundation was a shared understanding on the part of those teaching the course that it could profitably embrace important works by women and by members of ethnic minorities. That recognition, hardly radical, was based on the fact that the course was already embracing such writings; indeed, Virginia Woolf, Mary Shelley, Richard Wright and others have been incorporated for years.

The compromise also meant that the course will confront "issues of race, gender and class during each academic quarter." This pedagogical step was taken on the basis of another recognition, again hardly radical, that such matters deeply affect the world in which we live and in which our forebears have lived. Others might wish to think that such matters as race, gender and class make no difference to cultural formation, but they might find themselves mistaken.

AS PART OF the demonic mythology coloring the secretary's and Krauthammer's vision of Stanford, they employ, as have others, the notion that the Rev. Jesse Jackson, here to address a memorial service for Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. on Jan. 17, 1987, was later seen "leading a group of students in the now famous cry: 'Hey hey, ho ho, Western culture's got to go.'" The actual Burkean details are more interesting: Jackson followed a throng of some 200 people indeed chanting those words on that day, but when it was his turn to speak, he said, "The issue is not that we don't want Western culture. We're from the West. But other cultures should be studied."

That position has much to recommend it. It is close to Stanford's own, for the university asks each of its students, knowing that they are living in the West, to study the West. It also asks them to study cultures not a part of the West, for it knows that the West influences, and is influenced by, the non-West.

When the secretary left the campus, his departing words had a calm wisdom not elsewhere found in his remarks. He told us that "life, of course, will go on." I concur. There is a widespread conviction here that a very good course, now modified in reasonable ways, will continue to be taught effectively. No treacherous have been committed, no apocalypses hastened. More than two years of a university community's discussing its fundamental agenda has resulted in a confidence that its essential teaching missions will be staunchly maintained.

That community now asks that it be offered a period of design neglect.

Poland OKs laws to limit protests

WARSAW, Poland — New laws giving authorities special powers to push through economic reforms and limit protests were approved by parliament Wednesday, hours after the collapse of a Solidarity-led confrontation with the communist government.

In a speech to parliament one day after Solidarity founder Lech Walesa and less than 1,000 workers ended a nine-day strike at the Lenin shipyard in Gdansk, Polish Prime Minister Zbigniew Messner said the two weeks of labor unrest in Poland had been inspired by a "lack of trust" in the communist authorities.

"The strikes burned themselves out and were of a local and limited character," he said. None of the existing conflicts can be resolved by resorting to illegal strikes.

The communist-dominated parliament, or the Sejm, overwhelmingly adopted a nine-point law Wednesday aimed at helping the government implement the economic reforms that will include the closure of inefficient factories, and price and wage freezes.

The law also limits protests against such actions, allowing official unions sanctioned by the government to strike, but only after negotiations.

Tutu asks U.S. to impose new sanctions

WASHINGTON — South African Archbishop Desmond Tutu appealed Wednesday to the American people and Congress to ignore President Ronald Reagan's opposition and impose tough new sanctions against his country as the only way to force the white minority government to end its apartheid policies.

In meetings with Congress and a speech to the National Press Club, Tutu, who won the 1984 Nobel Peace Prize for his opposition to racism, drew a distinction between rank-and-file Americans, whom he described as friends of South African blacks, and the Reagan administration, which he said was among "the most effective allies of the most immoral system in the world."

Referring to Reagan, British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl and the Japanese government, Tutu said that while they personally are "not racist," they are "aiding and abetting" the Pretoria government because they either oppose sanctions or continue to do business with South Africa.

'Spy of century' dies in Soviet Union

LONDON — Double agent Kim Philby, the "spy of the century" who worked for the Soviet Union while a senior officer in British intelligence, died in Moscow Wednesday at the age of 76, the Foreign Office said.

"We were told by the Soviet Embassy that he died today," a British Foreign Office spokesman said. "We don't know what of, or how, or the circumstances, just that he died."

The Soviet Embassy was closed for the day and a man who answered the phone Wednesday night said no information would be available until today.

The Foreign office spokesman said the Soviet Embassy officials told the British government "so the information could be passed on to relatives. I understand there is a son in this country."

The defection to the Soviet Union of British diplomats Guy Burgess and Donald Maclean in 1951 led to Philby's unmasking more than a decade later as "the third man," possibly the most important agent ever to serve Moscow from inside the Western intelligence apparatus.

A "mole" who gained official access to the most sensitive secrets of Britain and the United States at the height of the Cold War, Philby was called the "spy of the century."

U.S. urged to seek freedom for hostages

PARIS — Liberated French hostage Jean-Paul Kauffmann, nervous and thin, urged the United States Wednesday not to "abandon its hostages in Beirut" but to "do something for them as soon as possible."

"It is urgent," Kauffmann told a news conference. "They are suffering."

But the 45-year-old journalist, imprisoned by a Shia Moslem fundamentalist terror group for almost three years, refused to say what he knew about the condition of any of the remaining hostages in Beirut, except that he believed that all nine American and three British hostages were alive.

"It is a question of their security," he said. "The smallest thing you say can have enormous importance over there. I don't want them to suffer because of the slightest thing I say. As a journalist, I understand these questions. But I am a former hostage first, and for that reason I cannot answer them."

Soviet satellite apparently out of control

LONDON — British tracking stations Wednesday monitored a nuclear-powered Soviet surveillance satellite that apparently is orbiting out of control and may plunge to Earth in two or three months, the Defense Ministry said.

The satellite, Cosmos 1900, may yet be boosted into a safe, higher orbit or may burn up re-entering the Earth's atmosphere, a ministry spokesman said.

In Moscow, a spokesman for the Soviet commercial space agency Glavkosmos told United Press International, "We have no information at this time" about any problems with a Soviet satellite.

Shultz and Shevardnadze wrap up INF's 'loose ends'

By E. Michael Myers
United Press International

GENEVA — Secretary of State George Shultz and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze made steady progress Wednesday in wrapping up "loose ends" blocking Senate ratification of the intermediate-range nuclear missile treaty, an aide to Shultz said.

"There have been some tentative solutions," the senior aide told reporters at the end of the first of two days of talks.

Shultz said earlier he hoped the differences clouding the treaty's future — largely involving ground rules for on-site verification of the pact — could be resolved before President Ronald Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev meet for their fourth summit May 29-June 2 in Moscow.

"The summit seems to be in very good shape," the aide said, speaking to reporters on condition of anonymity. "It is our expectation we will get this resolved on this visit."

THE TREATY ON intermediate nuclear forces, or INF, would abolish an entire class of ground-launched nuclear missiles with ranges of between 300 and 3,400 miles and would provide for the first on-site verification between the superpowers.

The disputes generally involve limitations to be imposed on the observers sent by each country to verify the other's compliance with the treaty. The Senate and the Reagan administration want the observers for both sides to have enough latitude to be able to determine without a doubt that none of the banned missiles are being produced or secretly hidden.

The terms under discussion in Geneva include the right for inspectors to look into the smallest containers that might hold a stage of the intermediate- and short-range missiles, as well as the right to photograph what they see.

SHULTZ AND Shevardnadze, holding their 26th round of meetings in three years, are to conclude their latest talks today. Both appeared optimistic that they can resolve the important technical matters at the heart of the treaty disputes.

"We will try to nail down these things that people feel are loose ends," Shultz said. "My effort here is to try to get everything that anybody feels is up in the air clarified."

"We are here to solve the problem and we intend to do it."

The first meeting Wednesday at the U.S. diplomatic mission lasted 2 hours 40 minutes and Shultz and Shevardnadze set their second session for dinner at the Soviet mission. Officials provided no immediate details on the talks.

Shevardnadze declined to answer a question of whether the Soviet Union is pulling back on its commitments to allow full inspection of its production facilities.

Transplant child dies from blood infection

By Sheila Mullan
United Press International

PITTSBURGH — Tabatha Foster, 3, the world's longest-surviving five-organ transplant recipient, died Wednesday of "multi-system failure" caused by a blood infection, Children's Hospital officials said.

The Madisonville, Ky., girl was listed in serious condition for several weeks but doctors downgraded her to critical this week. Tabatha's condition deteriorated Tuesday night and she died at 2:58 p.m. Wednesday.

Her parents, Sandra and Roy Foster, were at Tabatha's bedside. "Tabatha's official cause of death was multi-system failure, secondary to septicemia," said Jane Duffield, a hospital spokeswoman.

THE CHILD developed "severe septicemia," a blood stream infection that is always a risk for people given massive amounts of anti-rejection medicine, as she was, said hospital spokeswoman Sue Cardillo.

Tabatha received a liver, small intestine, pancreas and parts of a stomach and colon in a landmark 15-hour operation Nov. 1.

The family's insurance company refused to pay for the multi-organ surgery because it was considered experimental, and friends in her hometown raised more than $365,000 — including $1,000 from President Ronald Reagan. Sandra Foster said one day after the operation, "My baby now has a second chance."

Tabatha became the world's longest-surviving five-organ transplant patient six days after the operation. The procedure was performed only twice before and both patients died.

Marine kills wife, child, then self

United Press International

JACKSONVILLE, N.C. — A Marine corporal apparently slipped in the back door of a mobile home where his estranged wife and 6-year-old son slept and fatally shot each once in the head before killing himself, authorities said Wednesday.

The bodies of all three were discovered Tuesday in the back bedroom of the wife's trailer home and a 9mm pistol was found near the Marine's body, authorities said.

Authorities believe Cpl. Wesley Glynn Young, 26, stationed at the Camp LeJeune Marine base, shot his wife, Sarah E. Young, 26, and their son, Wesley Glynn II, before killing himself.

Party leaders warn veto could be costly

By Mary Beth Franklin
United Press International

WASHINGTON — Congressional Democrats warned President Ronald Reagan Wednesday they will turn a veto of the trade reform bill into a campaign issue that could cost the Republicans the presidential election.

More than a dozen lawmakers staged a rally outside Democratic National Committee headquarters to highlight a key provision of the massive bill — a requirement that companies give their employees 60 days notice of plant closings and layoffs.

The president and business interests oppose the provision.

Reagan will have 10 days to veto the measure, once he receives it from Congress, and White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said again Wednesday the president intends to veto the trade bill.

"PRESIDENT REAGAN, stop playing political chicken with the lives of American workers," Rep. David Bonior, D-Mich., said at the rally. "Before you take out that veto pen — think. Sixty days, it's only fair."

The 1,200-page compromise trade bill is also designed to:

- Open global markets to U.S. products.
- Crack down on foreign trade abuses and assist American industries and workers hurt by imports.
- Encourage better coordination of economic policies and exchange rates with trading partners . . .

Senate Republican leader Robert Dole of Kansas and House GOP leader Robert Michel of Illinois told reporters that once Reagan vetoes the trade bill, Congress could quickly pass a new bill without the controversial plant closing language and send it to the president for his signature.

But on Capitol Hill, Byrd reiterated that he could not guarantee any quick action on a new bill.

Standing beneath a banner proclaiming "60 days — it's only fair" and flanked by unemployed factory workers, one Democrat after another stressed advance notice issue draws a clear distinction between the two political parties.

"It's a clear choice between a party that cares about people and a party that doesn't," said Rep. Richard Gephardt, D-Mo.

Bush

have appeared unenthusiastic, Reagan said: "I intend to campaign as hard as I can."
Whatever the case, the value of the Reagan endorsement was questioned by some analysts. Political scientist Larry Sabato of the University of Virginia, citing Bush's difficulty in establishing an identity separate from that of Reagan, said the candidate risked being overshadowed by the president.

"I know Reagan can energize his base more than most politicians, but Bush is still almost completely undefined," said Sabato, who has studied the impact of endorsements and the transferability of political popularity.

AS FOR ROBERTSON'S endorsement, Sabato called it "a blessing and a curse."

"It helps to some degree with the fundamentalists, but I'm not certain that he doesn't drive away more voters than he attracts, especially among young people. And I don't know that he can particularly motivate his base of fundamentalist Christians to vote for Bush, he added.

As predictable as it was — the president endorsing his vice president of eight years — Bush was surely relieved to get the support behind him. In the last two weeks, a growing number of questions confronted the vice president on the campaign trail: Why the delay in the endorsement? Is there a problem between Bush and the president?

SOME BUSH campaign advisers were disappointed that the endorsement became such an exclusive late-night gala for party insiders, rather than a carefully orchestrated midday event geared toward showing the president embracing his vice president in plenty of time for broadcast on evening television news.

But vice presidential press secretary Steve Hart said the complainants "are off the reservation. This was the decision of the two men."

As Robertson made his endorsement, standing on a driveway in front of the White House West Wing, Bush surveyed the scene — the vice president's one remaining opponent surrounded by reporters and television camera crews, offering his unconditional support.

Bush, interrupting a five-minute photo session with members of the National Advisory Council to the Small Business Administration, stood on the second-floor balcony of his office across a private street from the White House and raised his arms in a victory salute over his head.

ROBERTSON SAID he was encouraging his supporters "to continue the struggle that they have been undertaking for conservative values in America," adding: "I feel that virtually to a man or a woman, they will be unified as Republicans this fall to support the Republican ticket."

He said that he was not seeking the vice presidential nomination and that he would not consider running in 1992 if Bush wins in November. But he acknowledged that, if Bush loses, he might resume his own candidacy in the next presidential election.

Without disclosing specific elements that he wants to see in the Republican Party platform on which Bush will run, Robertson said "we definitely had a meeting of the minds in relation" to that agenda.

"They discussed the platform, and they agreed with Bush's approach to build on the platform of 1984," one Bush assistant said. Sources said Robertson is seeking a platform that would include references to education in the United States and to the AIDS epidemic.

Bush, who seems disinterested in holding a grudge, met cheerfully for 30 minutes with Robertson, an aide to the vice president said. Neither brought up the differences that had grown deep and personal during their months of rivalry.

Noriega

struck to force Noriega out of power.

White House aides indicated a meeting was held Tuesday concerning Noriega.

Noriega was indicted by two federal grand juries in Florida Feb. 4 on drug trafficking charges. After declarations by top U.S. officials that Noriega should be ousted, Panamanian President Eric Arturo Delvalle fired him, but Noriega refused to step down and Delvalle went into hiding.

CBS News reported final details of the plan still were being worked out.

NORIEGA'S LAWYERS, who are currently working on a motion to dismiss the case, told UPI they knew of no such deal, but said they heard the news reports.

Lawyer Frank Rubino added, "It would be a wise move for the government because they're going to lose in court," he said. "There is no question in my mind that we can establish political motivations."

Rubino said Panama has advised him "to wait and see what develops."

Sen. Alfonse D'Amato, R-N.Y., a member of a subcommittee investigating drug business in Panama, called Noriega a "cancer" on Panama and told NBC:

"Who would ever believe that the United States can or will do anything again in Latin America if in Panama ... we allow a drug-dealing dictator who has been indicted, who has killed people, who is a mercenary of the worst sort, to thumb his nose at the United States as he has and to continue to keep the Panamanian people under his control? And who's going to guarantee these free elections? I've never heard of such a disgraceful proposal."

THE UNITED STATES has continued to call for Noriega's removal and has tried to cut off all U.S. payments to Panama in an effort to squeeze the economy and force Noriega out.

During the four-month tug-of-war between the United States and Panama over Noriega's future, U.S. economic sanctions have frozen $50 million in Panamanian assets deposited in American banks.

Further restrictions imposed by Reagan in March have denied the Noriega government income from U.S. companies and individuals based Panama.

Supervisors

"I believe local government is our friend," Myers said, but added that only the Democratic Party can effectively provide services.

Myers said he has a strong commitment to maintaining roadside management, current county human service programs and a stable county financial policy.

Incumbent Betty Ockenfels said serving on the board for the past six years — and nine years of community nursing experience — have given her an appreciation for Johnson County's 38 human services programs.

Candidate Charles Duffy said he grew up in Iowa City and has farmed here for 38 years. He said his involvement with a variety of Johnson County agricultural committees and community services has made him more aware of the county's problems.

"As the city grew, I grew," Duffy said. "I feel I am well-acquainted with both city and local concerns."

DUFFY, AN ORGANIC farmer, was a member of the National Ground Water Policy Forum and testified before a U.S. House of Representatives Subcommittee on Agriculture.

The fourth candidate, David Belgium, said he found an interest in local politics while serving three terms as mayor of University Heights. Belgium said he decided to run for the supervisor position after a career as a professor of religion at the UI.

Belgium said a "rural family tradition" and his government experience gave him an understanding of city and rural problems.

"I guess I have roots in the soil," Belgium said. "On the other hand, I have been professionally involved in problem solving."

All four candidates agreed on the value of existing human service programs in Johnson County.

The candidates also discussed animal control, county budget plans, transportation programs, roadside management, oiling county gravel roads and combining the services of neighboring counties to provide more cost-efficient services to an area.

The candidate forum will be featured on local cable channels 20, 26 and 29 until the June 7 primary. Voters who have not registered to vote in the primary may register until 5:00 p.m. May 20 at the Johnson County Auditors Office.

More people arrested after Veishea

United Press International

AMES — Examination of photographs and videotapes of the weekend Veishea riots led Wednesday to the arrests of three more people including two college students, Ames police said.

Ames Police Chief Dennis Ballantine said authorities are examining newspaper photographs and private snapshots plus videotapes of the three days of rioting in an effort to identify lawbreakers.

The three men Wednesday bring the total number of arrests to 40 for the unexpected weekend of violence surrounding the annual Iowa State University festival.

Ballantine said possibly six to 10 more people may be charged before the investigation is closed.

The three charged Wednesday were Sean M. Becker, 18, an ISU student from Naperville, Ill.; Gregory Binder, 21, an ISU student from Cedar Rapids; and Jeffrey Ried, 20, a non-student from Ames.

The three are charged with rioting, an aggravated misdemeanor. Ballantine said the trio were identified as aiding the start of three large fires that burned on Welch Avenue Saturday night and early Sunday.

Meanwhile, in the aftermath of the violence that injured 27 people including several police officers and firefighters, Ames officials have offered to spend $11,000 for new riot gear.

Ballantine said it was "just luck" that an officer was not killed during the weekend when about 80 law officers faced a mob of 5,000 people. He said Ames police wore outmoded riot gear including cast off military helmets during the incidents because mob control had never been a priority for the department.

Sending his outmanned and underequipped officers into the height of the Veishea riot Sunday morning was the toughest decision of his career, Ballantine said.

He said police were pelted with rocks and bottles and sprayed with urine and fire extinguishers.

Ballantine said he waited as long as possible for sending officers into the crowd, in hope the melee would die down on its own.

Chicago stage makes history

By Kevin Goulding
The Daily Iowan

The International Theatre Festival, Chicago's answer to the ancient Greek and Roman theatre marathons, gives new meaning to the moniker "Windy City."

The festival, with theatre companies from eight countries, in addition to four of Chicago's own, consists of 20 productions at nine locations over 40 days.

The highlight to many of the attendees is the English Shakespeare Company's seven-play Wars of the Roses cycle. Comprised of the seven plays that chronicle one hundred of the most tumultuous years in England's history, from Richard II's reign through Richard III's death, the cycle is presented in repertory for the first time in American theatre history.

"EXPERIENCE LUST, greed, deceit, murder and revenge all in one fun-filled weekend," exclaims a festival brochure. For the hard-core Shakespeareophile, the cycle will be available in its entirety in one 21-plus hour marathon weekend, complete with survivors' party.

In a true sense of "the best of both worlds," four of Chicago's theatres will create productions with distinct international flair.

The Chicago Theatre Company, the only professional black theatre on Chicago's Southside, is presenting Have You Seen Zandile?, by South African playwright Ccina Mhlope. Mhlope's life-story, Zandile centers around a child's relationship with her grandmother. Along with the psychological struggles of coming to terms with love, trust and a divided family, the conflicts shown in Zandile are basic to South Africa and other countries undergoing the traumas of industrialization and political upheaval. In addition to her role as playwright, Mhlope will direct and perform a featured role in the play.

A Whistle in the Dark, by Irish playwright Tom Murphy, is being presented by the Body Politic Theatre. A winner of the Irish Life Award and Time's Play of the Year award in 1969, Whistle is a harrowing study of an Irish family caught in the struggle of clan warfare. The play will be directed by Murphy.

NICHOLAS KENT, OF London's acclaimed Tricycle Theatre, returns to the Court Theatre to direct Mustapha Matura's new work, Playboy of the West Indies. Patterned after J.M. Synge's The Playboy of the Western World, Matura transposes the story to a Caribbean setting, bringing to life the foibles, fashion and political forces that have shaped this culture.

Tickets for the festival, which continues through June 2, are available by phone at 312/644-FEST. Student rush tickets for all foreign productions can be purchased two hours before curtain for $5 with a valid student I.D., pending availability.

Updike's 'S.' tries new style

By Jonathan Haas
The Daily Iowan

John Updike's new novel, S., represents something unique for the well-known author — an epistolary novel that attempts a woman's point of view. More specifically, S. is a story told through letters written and tapes recorded by Sarah Worth, a modern-day Hester Prynne with her own version of The Scarlet Letter to tell.

Having inherited a good deal of Hester's dignity, passion and obstinacy, Sarah is a 42-year-old woman who leaves her New England home and wealthy physician husband to join the Arizona commune centered around the guru Shri Arhat Mindadali. In a letter written to her husband, Sarah explains that the distance between them was growing long before she left. She's tired of him and tired of being the doctor's wife, but more than that, she wants to exchange her material surroundings for whatever spiritual treasures the Arhat is offering.

LIKE HAWTHORNE'S leading lady, Sarah scorns what society holds desirable and, as the venerated author put it, "her life had turned, in a great measure, from passion and feeling, to thought." Hence the yoga, the guru with his playful Buddhist platitudes and the austere life of the ashram. And hence the sizable glossary of Sanskrit words, from which Updike draws liberally if not excessively.

As she writes to a friend from her past, Sarah now has a "whole new vocabulary to frame the perennial problems in, and a way of looking at them that makes them almost vanish." To escape the illusion of this world, maya, and break the chains of existence, samsara, Sarah has come to the ashram to join other sannyasins in striving for a state of "perfect indifference."

Whatever state of indifference she does attain is not exactly "perfect."

John Updike

Lowlands." On one page she writes about transcendence, on the next she frets about the effects of Florida air on Mother's silver.

THOSE READERS familiar with Bhagwan Rajneesh and his controversial cultic settlement in Oregon will be amused by Updike's treatment of this guru and the all-too-profane politics of his ashram. In fact, the most entertaining episodes involve the Arhat, who — like Rajneesh and his Rolls Royces — has his own peculiar obsessions. Updike even sneaks some dialogue into S. by having Sarah hide a tape recorder under her sari during private sessions with the master.

Probably of greatest interest to most readers, women especially, will be Updike's attempt to create a female voice — not the novel's epistolary form, Sanskrit vocabulary or ties to The Scarlet Letter. The author's portrayal of Sarah, the '80s woman on the move, seems to reveal some ambivalence in Updike's view of women.

Perhaps S. is more commendable for what it tries to do than what it succeeds in doing. In the end, one can say this a pretty good book by a very good writer.

Centenarian Berlin honored

By Frederick M. Winship
United Press International

NEW YORK — Irving Berlin, who wrote songs to which America marched, made love and celebrated life for eight decades, marked his 100th birthday in seclusion Wednesday, while fans and friends honored the writer of "God Bless America," "White Christmas" and countless other immortal melodies.

At the top of the celebrations was an all-star gala at Carnegie Hall feting the best of the legendary composer's more than 1,500 songs. Berlin, who has led a reclusive life for more than 20 years, did not plan to attend, nor did his wife, Ellin, who has been ailing, but his three daughters and grandchildren were scheduled to be there.

Earlier in the day, the family gathered at the Berlin's Manhattan townhouse on exclusive Beekman Place for a birthday luncheon.

THE CELEBRATION actually had begun for Berlin on the stroke of midnight when about 50 neighborhood fans and well-wishers from as far away as Toronto serenaded him from the street with "Happy Birthday" and one of his most famous romantic songs, "I'll Be Loving You Always." Berlin, who is alert and reasonably active for a centenarian, came to an upstairs window and looked out but did not come out.

Instead, a woman believed to be a housekeeper called down, "He says to say, 'Thank you.' He's very grateful to you all."

The Carnegie Hall gala was a fitting program for the author of "There's No Business Like Show Business" and hundreds of other standards that made him a multi-millionaire, beginning with "Alexander's Ragtime Band" in 1911.

At Berlin's midnight birthday serenade, songwriter John Wallowitch, who arranged a medley of Berlin songs for the occasion including "God Bless America," shushed the crowd and urged them to leave Berlin in peace after the serenade, saying the composer likely was concerned about his wife being disturbed.

THE CARNEGIE HALL gala was arranged by the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, of which Berlin was a founder, with the authorization of the composer. The cast included show business and musical luminaries, members of Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts of America, the U.S. Army Chorus and soldiers from Fort Dix, N.J.

The two-hour program embraced song, dance, comedy and production numbers and such performers as Frank Sinatra, Leonard Bernstein, Rosemary Clooney, Ray Charles, Marilyn Horne, Billy Eckstine, Jerry Orbach, Shirley MacLaine, Willie Nelson, Isaac Stern, Tommy Tune, Natalie Cole, Nell Carter, Michael Feinstein, Maureen McGovern, Morton Gould, Bea Arthur and Barry Bostwick. Walter Cronkite was narrator.

The New York Public Library made a birthday announcement that Berlin will be honored with a major exhibition of manuscripts, scores, posters, set and costume designs of Broadway shows, autographed photographs, caricatures and stills and original photographs of Hollywood films and their stars.

BERLIN WAS BORN in Czarist Russia in 1888 and came to New York with his cantor father to escape anti-Jewish pogroms when he was 4.

He began his career as a singing waiter who pushed Tin Pan Alley songs and began writing his own in 1910, leading to a Broadway and Hollywood career that spanned six decades.

Berlin made social history in 1926 when he and Ellin Mackay, daughter of cable-telegraph tycoon Clarence Mackay, were married despite the objections of the bride's father.

It was considered one of the most romantic events of the Flapper Era, breaking New York society's taboo against mixed marriages between people of different religions and social castes.

Some of his early songs, including "Alexander's Ragtime Band," already have come into the public domain, their copyright having run out after 75 years.

At the Bijou

WR: Mysteries of the Organism (1971) — Using the theories of Austrian psychoanalyst Wilhelm Reich as a springboard, this film jumps off into quasi-documentary, inspired allegory and outrageous collage, examining both capitalist decadence and socialist authoritarianism, from plaster penis casts to the "Stalin fetish." In Serbo-Croatian. 7 p.m.

Shadow of a Doubt (1943) — The sleepy hamlet of Santa Rosa is rocked to the very core of its spinsters librarian when Uncle Charlie comes to pay his sister's family a visit. Solid Hitchcock. 8:45 p.m.

Television

"Wild America — Family Feud" — Sibling rivalries are examined in this unusual program that offers intriguing insights into animal behavior in the wild (7 p.m.; IPTV 12). "Land Between Two Rivers — The Amazing World of Insects" — Most people think of insects as pests that crawl across your legs when your catchin' rays or slither across your face while your asleep, and despite anything this special will reveal about the benefits those gross little critters can provide, most children will still fill some empty hours burning them under magnifying glasses, or pulling off varying numbers of their appendages (7:30 p.m.; IPTV 12).

Art

Chris Hunnicutt will sponsor a kite show and art sale in The Great Midwestern Ice Cream Co., 126 E. Washington St., through May 28. Studio thesis works by artists from a variety of art media will be on display in the UI Museum of Art through June 10. Over 100 textiles from Belgian collections are included in "Shoowa Design: African Textiles From the Kingdom of Kuba," on display in the UI Museum of Art through May 15. The tenth biennial Faculty Exhibition consists of works created by the studio faculty of the UI School of Art and Art History and will be on display through May 29. Sixty objects from the Stanley Collection of Central African art will be on display in the UI Museum of Art through May 22.

Nightlife

Black Star Reggae and Tony Brown play at Gabe's Oasis, 330 E. Washington St.

Radio

Christoph von Dohnanyi conducts the Cleveland Orchestra in works by Trojan, Schumann and Mussorgsky, his famous "A Night on Bald Mountain" (8 p.m.; KSUI 91.7 FM).

Hagler wants to fight Leonard again

MILAN, Italy (UPI) — Former world middleweight champion Marvellous Marvin Hagler said he wants to fight Sugar Ray Leonard again so he can retire as a "true champion."

Hagler, of Brockton, Mass., held the World Boxing Council title for a decade before losing to Leonard in a split decision April 6, 1987.

"One more match with Leonard, and I could retire as a true champion," Hagler said Tuesday.

Hagler said he will elaborate on his boxing future May 31 in a news conference in Massachusetts.

Hagler is in Milan, Italy, for the presentation of the new adventure film Indo, in which he stars. Hagler plays a defender of Amazon Indian rights in Brazil.

Leonard, of Potomac, Md., announced his third retirement from boxing after he defeated Hagler. Since then, he has turned his attention to promoting young boxers.

Speaking about a possible rematch, Leonard's attorney, Michael Trainer, said: "I don't believe Ray will react until he hears it from Marvin's lawyer."

Hagler's lawyer, Marris Goldings of Boston, said he and Trainer have been "exploring options" about a second Leonard-Hagler bout.

Boston businessman may buy Spurs

BOSTON (UPI) — An investment group headed by Boston businessman Bertram Lee has bid $50 million to purchase the San Antonio Spurs, the Boston Globe reported Wednesday.

Lee, the head of L&K Sports Inc., would become the first black owner of a professional sports team if he is successful in buying the Spurs. He could not be reached for comment Tuesday.

However, Angelo Drossos, chair of the Spurs, said he and three other team officials met with Lee's group last weekend in Boston to discuss the deal. He would not comment on the meeting.

Manley says he is underpaid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Washington Redskins defensive end Dexter Manley says he feels underpaid when he considers the contract new teammate Wilber Marshall received, the Washington Times reported Wednesday.

"There's no question his contract raised my eyebrows," the Times quoted Manley as saying. "If I said it didn't, I'd be a liar. I know I'm underpaid now that I know what he's making."

Manley, who is the Redskins' all-time quarterback sacker, has completed two years of a four-year contract paying $1.6 million, and with incentives, the pact is worth closer to $2 million, the Times reported.

Marshall, recently acquired as a free agent linebacker from the Chicago Bears, is being paid $6 million over five years. The two-time all-pro is the highest-paid defensive player in NFL history.

Bob Woolf, Manley's attorney, has talked with Redskins General Manager Bobby Beathard about his client's contract, the newspaper said.

"We spoke in generalities," the Times quoted Woolf as saying. "Right now, we're trying to appeal to the Redskins' sense of fairness."

"It really has nothing to do with the Marshall deal," Woolf said. "Dexter is underpaid anyway you look at it. This contract is not fair to him, and it certainly would be nice if the Redskins brought him up to par."

Johnson, Lewis will clash in Paris

PARIS (UPI) — The world's top two sprinters, Canadian Ben Johnson and Carl Lewis, will race for the first time in nearly a year at a track meet June 27 in Paris, said Raymond Lore, a race organizer.

Lewis, the defending Olympic champion in the 100 meters, and Johnson, the defending world champion at that distance, have not an against each other since the World Championships in Rome in August 1987. In that race, Johnson set a new world record with a time of 9.83 seconds and Lewis equaled the old record of 9.93 that had been held by Calvin Smith.

"Boncrusher" Smith will enter politics

LILLINGTON, N.C. (UPI) — Former heavyweight champion James "Boncrusher" Smith says he is running for political office in order to strike a blow against drug abuse and racism.

Smith, a former World Boxing Association champ, finished first in last week's Democratic primary for Harnett County commissioner. He said he is willing to enter a primary run-off against the white incumbent, who placed second.

Smith failed to get 50 percent of the votes in the May 3 primary and No. 2 Bill Shaw, a three-term incumbent, called for a run-off Tuesday bolstered by an endorsement from third-place finisher A.B. Sherman.

Smith faces a tough fight in an area known for its Ku Klux Klan activity, including frequent marches by the white supremacist group.

Smith's ring record was 19-7 with 14 knockouts. He insists his nickname "Boncrusher" be listed on the ballot.

Lendl, Wilander, Noah advance in Open

ROME (UPI) — Ivan Lendl, Mats Wilander and Yannick Noah Wednesday advanced to the third round of the $825,000 Italian Open tennis Championships.

Lendl, Wilander and Noah are the last three Italian Open champions and are among the top four seeds this year. Lendl is top seeded, Wilander second and Noah fourth.

Lendl, ranked No. 1 in the world, outlasted Milan Srejber 6-1, 5-7, 6-1 in Center Court. Wilander, the defending champion, received what he termed "good match practice" in holding off Carl-Uwe Steeb 6-4, 4-6, 6-3.

Crowd-pleaser Noah, the 1985 champion, had an easier time with Tore Meinekne. Noah won 7-6 (7-5), 6-1.

Andre Agassi, who moved up to 12th in the world by winning the Tournament of Champions in New York last week, advanced with a 3-6, 7-6 (7-5), 6-3 victory over Jan Gunnarsson.

Study: Baseball players live longer

BOSTON (UPI) — Professional baseball players tend to live longer than average men, a study released Wednesday said.

And players who played the longest and had the best records lived the longest. Infielders had the lowest mortality rate while catchers had the highest.

The study is the first to examine whether long-term physical fitness associated with being a professional athlete affects longevity. It provides new evidence being fit extends life, said John Waterbor, who headed the study.

Sports this week . . .

Sandy Lyle heads a field of top 20 money winners when the $750,000 Byron Nelson Golf Classic gets underway today. Arnold Palmer, Mark McCumber, Ben Crenshaw, Lanny Wadkins, David Frost, Bill Azinger, Payne Stewart, Tom Kite, Mark O'Meara and Mark Calcavecchia will also compete on the par-70 course. . . Lost Code trainer Bill Donovan insists his horse will finally prove himself as good as 3-year-old champion Alysbea Saturday when they meet in the Pimlico Special. Lost Code won $1.13 million and seven straight races last year but was never considered a serious challenger to Alysbea in the balloting for the 3-year-old Eclipse Award. . . MISL Playoffs, narrowed to four teams, will continue tomorrow when Minnesota plays at Cleveland and San Diego plays at Kansas City. . . Boxing tonight and Friday: Seamus McDonough vs. Mike Peak in a 10-round light heavyweight bout in New York and Myron Taylor vs. Omar Garcia in a 10-round featherweight bout tonight. Friday, at Atlantic City, N.J., Freddie Delgado will clash against Junior Edmonds in a 10-round light heavyweight bout. . . Clearwater, Fla., will host the first beach volleyball event of the season May 14, with $100,000 tournaments also scheduled for Boulder, Colo., June 25 and San Diego later this summer.

STUDENT FOOTBALL SALES ENDS FRIDAY, MAY 13

The cost of the tickets are $42.00 per student and $96.00 per student guest ticket. Student season tickets are good for all six home games of the 1988 football season. Student guest tickets are available on a limited basis; all students ordering these tickets may not be accommodated, but will receive a refund for their order at fall pickup. Priority buying was from April 18 thru May 13, and this is the only time that guest tickets may be ordered. Athletic Ticket Office hours are 9 a.m.-4 p.m., Monday thru Friday. Students may pick up their tickets beginning September 7. Please read the student policy before placing your order.

STUDENT FOOTBALL POLICY—1988

- A student may purchase one season ticket at the student price of $42.00. A guest ticket may be ordered at the public price of $96.00. A limited number of guest tickets will be available; therefore, all students ordering these tickets may not receive them. Guest tickets are only valid when entering the stadium with another student and are not replaceable if lost or stolen. The guest ticket will not be available after May 13, the deadline for student priority. Office hours are 9:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m., Monday through Friday.
- Students will receive priority based on the number of consecutive years they have applied for or purchased football tickets at The University of Iowa. There will be no loss in priority for off-campus programs or a bona fide illness. An individual who misses two or more consecutive seasons for reasons other than the above will lose all priority.
- In order for a student to receive their priority for football tickets, the student must order sometime during the period of April 18 to May 13, 1988. These orders will be filled according to priority established. Any order placed after May 13 will be filled as if the order was a zero priority. Students ordering after the priority period will also accrue a year of buying credit toward their priority for purchase of tickets in following years.
- Individuals may order season tickets for a group no larger than eight. If all group members cannot be present when the order is placed, the members who are not present must provide either their personal check with current and summer address thereon or cash and their ID number to the person placing the order. One student may not write a personal check in payment for another student's tickets.
- The lowest priority within a group will determine the location of the entire block of tickets for that group. That is, all students within a group will carry the lowest priority of any member in that group. If certain priorities are denied student or guest tickets, anyone with higher priority requesting seating with this group will also be denied tickets.
- Student season tickets will continue on sale on a non-priority basis after May 13 and will remain on sale through Tuesday, August 31. Tickets may be sold after September 7 if available. Please contact the Athletic Ticket Office for further information.
- Each student must pick up their own ticket in the fall. The student must present their own student ID with current registration (Fall 1988) sticker and picture ID at the time of pickup. Student pickup will begin Wednesday, September 7.
- Students may cancel their football season ticket order and receive a full refund up until the Friday before the first home game. After that date, refunds will be issued only for the portion of games remaining to be played. No cancellations or refund requests will be honored after the student ticket has been picked up and signed for. All requests for refunds must be made in writing to the Athletic Ticket Office. Please provide your full name, ID number and an address for the mailing of the refund check. ALL REFUNDS ARE NOT AUTOMATICALLY PROCESSED AND MAILED.
- A student ticket, to be valid, must be accompanied by a University of Iowa ID with current registration (Fall 1988) sticker and a picture ID. A student ticket may be used by the original purchaser or by any other University of Iowa student, but the original purchaser will be held liable for any violations of the student ticket policy. The penalty for a violation of the University policy involving the ID and ticket will be the loss of the use of the ticket for two games. If a non-student is found using a student's ticket, that student forfeits all future student ticket privileges.
- Disciplinary action will be taken as a result of disorderly conduct on the part of a student ticket holder. Disciplinary measures will be left up to the investigation of the Dean of Students. This may result in the loss of the student's ticket for the remaining season or possibly the remaining enrollment period of said student at The University of Iowa.
- Everyone, regardless of age, is required to have a valid ticket for admission to all University of Iowa football games. This includes infants in arms.
- DUPLICATE TICKETS CANNOT BE ISSUED FOR LOST OR STOLEN STUDENT TICKETS.

Olajuwon heads defensive squad

United Press International

NEW YORK — Houston's Akeem Olajuwon, the third player in NBA history to rank among the top 10 in steals and blocked shots in the same season, headed the 1988 All-Defensive team announced Wednesday.

The team was selected by the league's 23 coaches. Joining Olajuwon on the first team were forwards Kevin McHale of Boston and Rodney McCray of Houston and guards Michael Cooper of the Los Angeles Lakers and Michael Jordan of the Chicago Bulls. Jordan, who led the league in steals and scoring this season, made his first appearance on the All-Defensive team.

Olajuwon, McHale and Cooper are all repeaters from last year's first team. McCray was a second-team selection a year ago.

Cooper was named to the first or second All-Defensive team for the eighth straight season, the longest current streak.

COACHES WERE asked to select, by position, All-Defensive first and second teams and were not permitted to vote for players from their own club. Two points were awarded for a first-team vote and one point for a second-team vote, so the maximum number of points a player could receive was 44.

Olajuwon received 27 points, including 11 first-team votes, after finishing fourth in the NBA with 2.71 blocks per game and ninth with 2.05 steals per game. Julius Erving (1980 and 1984) and Elvin Hayes (1975) are the other players to rank in the top 10 in both categories since 1974.

Patrick Ewing of New York and Mark Eaton of Utah tied for the center position on the second team and were joined forwards Buck Williams of the New Jersey and Karl Malone of Utah and guards Alvin Robertson of San Antonio and Lafayette Lever of Denver.

NBA's 6 worst teams will vie for Manning

By Mike Weil
United Press International

NEW YORK — Lacking skill over an 82-game season, the NBA's six worst teams now hope for an instant of luck in the raffle for Danny Manning.

On May 21 the NBA will hold its fourth annual lottery for the No. 1 draft pick, a choice all but reserved for Manning, the 6-foot-10 star of NCAA champion Kansas.

Three Pacific Division teams — Phoenix, Golden State and the Los Angeles Clippers — join Philadelphia, New Jersey and Indiana in the lottery.

The drawing will be held at New York's Museum of Natural History, a site selected for no significant reason other than its availability, and will be televised during half-time of CBS' playoff telecast.

The Clippers, with the league's worst record of 17-65, gained a two-in-seven shot at Manning by trading for the top pick of Sacramento, the only other NBA squad to miss the playoffs.

WHILE MANY college players want to play for the Boston Celtics or Los Angeles Lakers, Manning says he would like to be picked by the Clippers.

"The Clippers have a good future," said Manning, who plans to be at the U.S. Olympic Trials in Colorado Springs, Colo., during the lottery. "They have a lot of promise. They're going to be one of the teams of the future because they have so much young talent."

"And living in a place like LA would not be bad. I'm just trying to keep things in perspective. I don't want to get so high on one team and not get to that team and be disappointed."

All six lottery teams have a shot at one of the top three picks in the regular NBA draft June 28. After those three picks are determined, the remaining lottery teams will earn draft choices in the reverse order of their finish, meaning the Clippers would pick no later than fourth if they missed out on one of the top three.

THE THREE TEAMS that have picked first since the lottery's inception — New York (Patrick Ewing), Cleveland (Brad Daugherty) and San Antonio (David Robinson) — all made this year's playoffs after missing the 1987 postseason. The Spurs did so with Robinson still serving in the Navy and could contend seriously when he arrives in the league.

Manning played center the second half of his senior season but will probably be converted to forward in the pros.

"Danny can probably play any position on the floor," said Nets General Manager Harry Weltman. "He's a potentially great player. Probably the only position where you might not want to play him would be center."

Bradley guard Hersey Hawkins, the nation's scoring leader with 36.3 points a game, is widely expected to be picked among the top five. Others possible lottery-picks include centers Charles Smith of Pittsburgh and Rick Smits of Marist and forwards Mitch Richmond of Kansas State, Tim Perry of Temple, Harvey Grant of Oklahoma and Chris Morris of Auburn.

MANNING WAS THE expected No. 1 even before carrying an otherwise average Jayhawks squad to the national title. He scored 2,951 points in his four years at Kansas, sixth on NCAA Division I all-time list, shooting 59 percent from the field. This season, he averaged 24.8 points and 9.0 rebounds. His greatest asset is his versatility, attested to by the 200 blocks, 270 steals and 342 assists with which he finished his college career.

Carson to write jokes as show returns to TV

By Jane Sutton
United Press International

Johnny Carson returned to his duties as "Tonight Show" host Wednesday after winning a waiver from the striking Writers Guild of America. Carson said he would write all his own material.

The show went into reruns when the writers walked out March 7 in a dispute over residuals and creative rights. David Tebet, executive vice president of Carson Productions, said Johnny pursued the waiver only after deciding the 10-week-old strike had reached a stalemate.

"He called all of his writers to see how they felt (about a return), and they were all on his side," Tebet said. "He waited long enough that he would just go crazy if he didn't go back to work." Carson is not a member of the Writers Guild.

The National Enquirer is out with a report of a City Hall romance between Clint Eastwood and Carmel, Calif., Mayor Jean Grace. Eastwood dismissed it all as "very silly."

Grace, the 52-year-old mother of three who succeeded Eastwood as mayor last month, also scoffed.

"I think we should ignore it. People in Carmel are far too worldly to get all shook up about this. It's not a scandal. It's just a scream," said Grace.

Sports Authority could stop White Sox move

United Press International
SPRINGFIELD, Ill. — The White Sox have agreed to remain in Chicago if lawmakers approve a deal between the team and the Illinois Sports Facilities Authority.

diligently as I know how to enact this legislation, as with the General Assembly leaders and the mayor of the city of Chicago. It will not be an easy fight.

"ANY SUBSTANTIAL amendment to that (agreement), I suggest, will be very close," said Senate President Philip Rock, D-Oak Park.

Thompson said it was impossible for Illinois officials to meet or beat the offer from Florida. The extra cost to the state for the new deal could not be estimated since it depends on attendance at the ballpark.

White Sox look forward to its passage by the Illinois General Assembly, the owners said. American League President Bobby Brown said the pair updated him on their situation during a one-hour meeting.

pay any rent if their attendance falls below 1.2 million in any of the first 10 years of the 20-year lease. The original $120 million bonding authority would be boosted to $150 million to reflect increased costs since the original agreement.

Flyers' GM releases Keenan

By Joe Ciolini
United Press International
PHILADELPHIA — Philadelphia Flyers General Manager Bob Clarke Wednesday fired Coach Mike Keenan, saying the team had failed to respond to him after four seasons.

In four seasons as coach of the Flyers, Keenan compiled a 190-102-28 record and his .638 winning percentage led active NHL coaches. Last season, the Flyers were 38-33-9 and finished in third place in the Patrick Division, three points behind the first-place New York Islanders.

"IT SEEMS IN professional sports that coaches have a time limit in their success and then a change has to be made," Clarke said.

Knight confers about Lobo job

By Jim Slater
United Press International

INDIANAPOLIS — Indiana basketball Coach Bobby Knight returned home from Albuquerque, N.M., Wednesday, and refused to comment about his discussing the vacant New Mexico coaching job with school officials.

Speculation continued that Knight has interviewed for the Lobos' job, although it is possible he was only offering advice to New Mexico officials.

One of Knight's former assistants, Southern Methodist Coach Dave Bliss, was considered a finalist for the New Mexico position.

When asked to comment on the visit upon his arrival at Indianapolis International Airport, Knight told reporters, "Why don't you people leave me alone?"

John Koenig, the New Mexico athletic director who will hire the coach, released a statement Wednesday that did not mention the names of two finalists to take over the Lobos.

"IT'S OUR HOPE that we will be in a position to make an offer to a candidate for the position of head basketball coach by Friday afternoon," Koenig's statement said. "At the present time, negotiations are continuing with two finalists and we hope to decide on the coach by late Thursday evening or early Friday morning. I will have no further comment on the situation until a press conference is called."

Bliss, Alabama-Birmingham's Gene Bartow and Oklahoma's Billy Tubbs were earlier considered the three finalists to replace Gary Colson, who resigned April 26 after eight years with the Lobos. Purdue's Gene Keady reportedly turned down an offer for the job.

Knight met Koenig at last weekend's Kentucky Derby and they first discussed the vacancy then. Knight, who has coached the Hoosiers since 1972, has said he wants to spend the rest of his career at Indiana. But two recent controversies have brought reprimands from new Indiana University President Thomas Ehrlich, who replaced John Ryan last year.

KNIGHT DREW HIS first rebuke for pulling his team off the floor last November during an exhibition game against the Soviet national team. Knight was also criticized after making an analogy regarding stress on a nationally televised show. "If rape is inevitable, relax and enjoy," Knight said in the interview.

He later claimed he was speaking symbolically about rape and said he asked the quote not to be used for fear it would be misinterpreted.

Ehrlich praised Knight Wednesday, saying he hopes the controversial coach will not leave the school for New Mexico.

"He said he hoped Coach Knight will not leave and that he is an excellent coach and he hopes he will finish his career at Indiana University," Indiana News Bureau spokesperson Susan Voelakel said. "He said Coach Knight has helped Indiana University in the academic arena and in a number of ways, pointing to the fact that Knight has helped fund raising for the IU Library, and he is an excellent teacher."

Knight's basketball salary from Indiana was $95,400 for the past season, according to school officials. Knight exercised a five-year option in his contract last year.

Andretti sets new lap record at Indy

By Jim Slater
United Press International

INDIANAPOLIS — Mario Andretti and Rick Mears clocked the fastest laps in Indianapolis Motor Speedway history for the second straight day, continuing a head-to-head practice battle Wednesday in preparation for Indianapolis 500 pole qualifying.

Andretti reached a top speed of 221.565 mph, driving his Chevrolet-powered Lola around the 2 1/4 mile oval in 40.62 seconds and reaching a top speed of 230 mph in the straightaways.

"I haven't gone any faster anywhere," he said. "It's really phenomenal out there. It's like you were learning out there because you have never been there before."

Mears followed Andretti with a practice lap of 220.967 mph, a mark that might have been even higher had teammate Danny Sullivan not been momentarily in the path of Mears's Penske-Chevy.

"I DIDN'T ENTIRELY give up on the lap, but I let up a little because the closing rate on the backstretch is tremendous," Mears said. "If I had kept on it, I would have had a hell of a lap. I'm sure it would have been a 221 at least."

Defending champion Al Unser Sr. was the third-fastest driver Wednesday, with a top lap of 218.128 mph. That was just under the previous unofficial speedway record of 218.234 mph set by Andretti last year and shattered over the past two days. The fastest official lap was 217.581 mph by Mears in 1986, but speedway marks can only be established during qualifying or the race.

On Tuesday, Mears reached a record speed of 220.048 mph and Andretti bettered 219 on three laps, the fastest being 219.995 mph.

ANDRETTI SAID the battle between him and Mears is partly responsible for the rapid increase in speed by the two former Indy winners.

"When you're challenged that closely, you're going to reach and reach and reach," Andretti said. "If you wait and see at this point, you've seen it. We don't need Rick to inspire us, though. We're plenty inspired, believe me. We're going to try and go even faster, no matter what Rick does."

Both drivers said the cool conditions at the end of the practice

Bird pours in 38 as Celtics down Hawks

By Frederick Waterman
United Press International

BOSTON — Larry Bird scored 24 of his 38 points in the first quarter and the Boston Celtics never trailed Wednesday night in defeating the Atlanta Hawks 110-101 in Game 1 of an Eastern Conference semifinal.

The loss was the Hawks' 12th in a row at Boston Garden, where they have not won since March 1985. Game 2 of the best-of-seven series will be played Friday night in Boston.

Bird set a team playoff record for points in a quarter and outscored Atlanta by himself in the opening period, when Boston built a 38-23 lead.

Atlanta used a 14-5 run to pull to 49-45 at 2:47 of the second period. The Hawks were within 58-52 early in the third quarter when Boston ran off 10 straight points over a 3:50 span. The Hawks were unable to mount another comeback, Boston retaining a lead of at least seven points over the final 16 minutes.

FOR BOSTON, Kevin McHale scored 21 of his 25 points in the second half. Robert Parish added 22 points and a game-high 14 rebounds. The Celtics starting frontline — Bird, McHale and Parish — totalled 85 points.

The Hawks were led by Dominique Wilkins' 25 points, but the forward managed only seven points in the first 36 minutes. Glenn Rivers contributed 16 points and Kevin Willis had 13.

In this year's Eastern Conference playoffs, the home team has won 19 of 20 games. The Celtics have won 67 of their last 68 home playoff games against Eastern teams.

Boston opened the game with a 12-4 run. Bird scored 18 of Boston's first 24 points, hitting a variety of long jumpers, scoop lay-ins and running push shots, plus two of his three 3-pointers. The Hawks committed five turnovers in the first four minutes.

The Celtics led 30-13 on Parish's lay-in at 3:56. Boston shot 74 percent in the first quarter, hitting 17 of 23 shots.

The Utah Jazz, coming off their first win at Los Angeles' Forum since November 1983, continue their best-of-seven Western Conference playoff series against the Lakers Friday for Game 3 when the series, tied at one game apiece, shifts back to Utah. Game 4 is Sunday at the Salt Palace.

Maddux pitches 10 innings as Cubs outlast Padres, 1-0

United Press International

CHICAGO — Greg Maddux has shown his pitching skill this young season. Wednesday, he displayed his toughness.

Maddux went 10 innings for the first time in his career and was still mowing down Padres when the Chicago Cubs finally broke through to defeat the Padres 1-0. Maddux completed a three-hitter by retiring the last 20 batters he faced.

Vance Law's squeeze bunt with one out in the 10th scored Mark Grace from third.

The Cubs managed eight hits but stranded nine runners before getting one across the plate.

Ryne Sandberg led off the 10th with a triple off the left-field wall. Lance McCullers, 0-3, intentionally walked Grace and Andre Dawson to load the bases. Mark Davis relieved and induced Rafael Palmeiro to bounce into a fielder's choice, with Sandberg forced at home. Law then bunted toward first. John Kruk fielded the ball but his throw home was late.

Braves 3, Expos 2

ATLANTA — Gary Roenicke doubled in two runs and scored on Gerald Perry's single to highlight a three-run sixth, inning Wednesday, leading the Atlanta Braves to a 3-2 victory over the Montreal Expos.

The Braves captured two of three from Montreal, representing the first time this season Atlanta has won a series. The Braves, at 9-21, have the National League's worst record.

With Montreal leading 2-0 in the sixth, Andres Thomas singled with two outs in the sixth off starter Neal Heaton, 0-2. Dale Murphy walked and Roenicke followed with a two-run double. Perry connected on the game-winner, a sharp single to center field.

Starter Kevin Coffman, 2-2, went 6 1/2 innings and yielded three hits and five walks. Paul Assenmacher pitched one-hit ball over 1 1/2 and Bruce Sutter went one hitless inning to earn his third save. Sutter saved both victories by Atlanta over Montreal.

Pirates 2, Dodgers 1

PITTSBURGH — Randy Milligan doubled home Andy Van Slyke from second base with two outs in the 11th inning Wednesday night to give the Pittsburgh Pirates a 2-1 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Van Slyke walked with one out and moved to second on a wild pitch by Alejandro Pena, 1-1. Bobby Bonilla was intentionally walked, the 12th walk issued by four Dodger pitchers. One out later, Milligan stroked a single to right-center field to score the game-winner.

Scott Medvin, 1-0, picked up the victory in his second major-league appearance. The rookie pitched one inning and surrendered one hit.

Phillies 4, Reds 3

PHILADELPHIA — Mike Young singled home Von Hayes with one out in the 11th inning Wednesday night to lift the Philadelphia Phillies to a 4-3 victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

Hayes led off the 11th with a single off John Franco, 0-3, and went to second on an infield single by Chris James. Bill Almon sacrificed before Steve Jeltz was walked intentionally to load the bases. Young singled to center to make a winner of Kent Tekulve, 1-3.

Philadelphia chased Reds starter Dennis Rasmussen. The Phillies scored twice to tie the score 3-3 in the seventh. Rasmussen walked Hayes to start the inning and James followed with his fourth
