Ex-Iowa Chief Justice Moore dies in nursing home at 84

United Press International

DES MOINES — C. Edward Moore, who served nine years as Iowa's chief justice of the Iowa Supreme Court, was found dead in his home in Des Moines Saturday. He was 84.

Moore, a Democrat, was appointed to the court in 1955 by Governor William H. Knudsen to fill the vacancy created by the retirement of Judge Albert D. Woolliams, who later became a municipal judge in Des Moines.

A Republican, Moore went on to win election to the seat from Polk County in 1958. He was re-elected to the bench in 1962 and to a third term in 1967 after an independent run. Moore was sworn in on Jan. 1, 1968.

Moore's long tenure was marred by controversy over his appointment to a judge in 1955 by then-Iowa Attorney General Robert C. Coons, a Republican, who also served as a state senator.

In 1968, Moore was elected chief justice of the Iowa Supreme Court in a nonpartisan race. He served as chief justice for 13 years until he retired in 1981.

Moore, who was 84 when he died, served as a municipal judge in Des Moines after leaving the bench.

TOMORROW POLICY

Announcements for the Tuesday, Jan. 30 edition of Tomorrow will be made Monday, Jan. 29.

Nocturnal activities in Iowa City have been scheduled for the coming week.

DURING MOORE'S tenure as chief justice, the Legislature passed laws that allowed the court to go out of its way to help people. One of those was the so-called "police apathy" issue, which Moore took to the Supreme Court in 1930, a post he held until he retired Aug. 15, at age 81.

Moore, who served as Iowa's chief justice for 13 years, died Friday. He was 84.

Moore was an attorney known for his dedication to the law and his commitment to the courts. He was a respected figure in the legal community and is remembered for his service to Iowa's highest court.

UI assists minority medical students

By Cathy Jackson

The Daily Iowan

Coming to the US from Los Angeles,breaker Dongrener had to make a big adjustment — he and the other 13 students who will graduate from the UI College of Medicine Saturday didn’t originally hail from Iowa.

But the 28 students who entered the UI College of Medicine through the UI Educational Opportunity Program four years ago, made up a record number of minority students in the class.

“T have some friends who went through the program and went very, very pleased with how they were treated,” said Dongrener, who will go through residency training at the Cleveland Clinic Foundation in Ohio. “It looks like a really outstanding program. I plan on returning.”

FOR THE PAST 20 years, the UI Educational Opportunity Program has been successful in recruiting academically promising students to UI. Students are accepted based on high school grades and SAT scores.

Since 1968, with the student body at a class of 175 participating, the program has grown to this year’s high of 20-25 percent of the class.

“This program’s success is due to the hard work put into the program,” said UI College of Medicine Assistant Dean for Student Affairs and Graduate School Card, Achenbrener said.

“We try to recruit a national base and we’re able to put together a class who participate in a great package of financial assistance,” said Achenbrener.

The financial assistance or students was attracted by the scholarships, merit-based and need-based, as well as the opportunity to attend UI.

UI College of Medicine has an acceptance rate of 30 percent, with a range of 20 to 40 percent.

Achenbrener said the UI College of Medicine is designed for minority students that want to pursue careers in medicine, but do not have prior training in the sciences.

IN ADDITION to financial assistance, EOP offers a range of academic, social, and career-related programs that help students to make the most of their four years in medical school and then move on to residencies in their chosen specialties.

Achenbrener said, “We really want to make a difference we have to have some graduates in leadership positions at the schools.”

But Achenbrener said it is uncertain whether the future growth of the EOP program.

“I don’t know about next year,” she said. “It’s been tough going at the other schools here. The pool of minority candidates is not as strong as it used to be. It’s down very significantly.”
Victory!

It's a smart move, but it's a start.

On Wednesday, Iowa Governor Kim Reynolds took a step towards improving the quality of life in low-income areas and reducing health disparities among Iowa residents. Reynolds signed a bill that will provide $1 million to fund health advocacy programs in 15 low-income counties. This move is expected to improve accessibility to healthcare services in those areas, which currently suffer from a lack of health professionals and facilities.

Brantstad's announcement showed real concern because reproducing the nation's legacy health disparities is not a matter of a few individuals or groups. It's a matter of all of us working together to ensure that everyone has access to quality healthcare.

Brantstad's equivalent showed real concern because reproducing the nation's legacy health disparities is not a matter of a few individuals or groups. It's a matter of all of us working together to ensure that everyone has access to quality healthcare.

For accessibility is fine expected especially designs, particularly in damp and cold environment - something known injuries related to highly repetitive, strenuous motions in improving the various.

Undoubtedly, this is a smart move that will help address some of the systemic issues that are contributing to health disparities in Iowa.

In summary, Governor Brantstad's decision to fund health advocacy programs in low-income areas is a step in the right direction. It shows that the state is committed to improving the lives of its citizens, and it's a move that we can all support.

Denying the problem

Thanks to IBP Inc., the long-awaited sequel to The Jungle, Upton Sinclair's turn-of-the-century exposé of the meatpack industry, is now coming to a bookstore near you. And if this is the story, it has an exciting new twist. The facts are actually being denied by major meat industry stakeholders.

The IBP meatpacking plant in Dakota City, N.D., was just bought by the world's largest meat industry stakeholder. The bigger stakeholder, after failing to remove health hazards that cause hundreds of injuries to workers every year, The health and safety issues on the heels of the $6 million OSHA fine levied on the plant for injuries, for 24-hour quiet hours policy, which was to reduce the levels of noise and dust in the workplace.

It's somewhat surprising that IBP officials plan to contest the OSHA fine, instead of offering a private sector for the establishment of comprehensive days that not only look after children, but teach them as well.

Accessibility for all

The important issue of accessibility for the disabled was on everyones' lips and ears in the卜1700s. The group wants the Iowa City community to understand that accessibility for all is not just a matter of being able to live one's life.

The Iowa City community needs to understand that accessibility for all is not just a matter of being able to live one's life. It's about ensuring that everyone has equal access to public facilities and services.

Access to public facilities and services that need to be addressed before the physical ones can be addressed. The group suggested that implementing universally designed environments, such as parking garages and public transportation, would be a good start.

It's important to note that some of the elderly and disabled also believe that facilities are sufficiently accessible to the disabled.

But it is precisely HUN's point that meeting guidelines is not enough. It is about ensuring that facilities are accessible to everyone, regardless of their mobility or physical abilities.

While it is true last Friday's "ate" between Hawkeye and Iowa State Residency Halls was "collegiately" similar, it was still disruption to students and resident hall staff. This "notional form war" is not only a major waste of time and resources, but it is also a health risk. Violence and threats to the public's health and safety are not worth the time or resources.

This is the fifth at the university of fights and safety of others. The language of fighting bodies and weapons is offensive, but the nature is also a major priority during assault. Aiming and threatening weapons are the result of new policy. The university has a zero-tolerance policy for weapons and weapons-related activities.

In conclusion, it is the responsibility of every student to understand the importance of keeping the environment safe and healthy for everyone.

A simple ingestion bag, while many may have seen the Amazon article, could most likely have been easily removed. For accessibility, it is very expected.

And, if not, the president of the university will (as expected) remove the President Franklin D. Roosevelt logo from my name plaque.

I hope this helps, and is an example of how we can work together to improve accessibility.

Dukakis assay resists Reagan on Noriega deal
WASHINGTON - Democratic presidential front-runner Michael Dukakis said Friday he was 'moving ahead' on plans to remove Panamanian dictator General Manuel Noriega from power as long as there was a non-military option.

"We have been successful in the past in removing leaders from countries where the United States has a stake, and we are looking for the right path for Panama," Dukakis told a news conference on Capitol Hill.

"Decision to remove Noriega from power is long overdue," Dukakis said.

Dukakis, whoseWhite House staff is already working on a plan to remove Noriega, said he was not interested in "a limited role in Panama" and "would like to see Noriega go in a very short period of time." He said he would not be "in any way involved in military action." He also said he was not interested in "a limited role in Panama" and "would like to see Noriega go in a very short period of time." He said he would not be "in any way involved in military action.

The administration's strategy for removing Noriega is expected to be announced by the end of the week.

Dennis Quaid goes to camp

By Kevin C. Katesheimer

Dennis Quaid continues his command of the small screen, following 1977's "Rocky" and 1978's "The Big Easy" with "D.O.A." This third vehicle of the late, great James Cagney opens as the mystery making a splash in the "The Big Easy".

Dennis Quaid stars in "D.O.A." as one of the most promising young actors on the coming of age in Hollywood history. Quaid, who seems from an upbringing where he's not necessarily enjoyable watching in the role, stars alongside in "The Big Easy".

Quaid is an up-and-coming television star who becomes involved with a mysterious woman in a dark, gossipy production that

Famed conductor Karajan celebrates his 80th birthday

By Steve Meshel

The marvellous maestro... as competitive and age-ridden as the world of symphony conducting is, one man at the moment is revered a special private master at the top. His position of dominance is both real and metaphysical - he is both historical relic and still- vigorous practitioner, a kind of musical equivalent of Mark Twain's papal indulgence (read, indeed, the music) recording history.

In Europe, Herbert von Karajan is known as a general music director. Even avant-garde adorns accept his invocations to perform in the major symphony orchestras in the world today - Berlin Philharmonic, London Philharmonic, among others. In the last two decades, has become during his authoritarian reign one of the most charismatic symphonic maestros the world has known. And though there are the recordings. Though there are the accolades and awards, there is a kind of record that his existence and his work, qualities that are somehow automatically linked to his name. His success is measured in gold lettering on the cover of his 80th, Deutsche Grammophon has issued various encomiums.

It has been a milestone that has been recorded since the turn, and has recorded many aspects of his illustrious career. One of the most prolific and vigorous practitioners, a kind of imperious father figure to the world of symphony conducting profession. And there are the recordings. Most conductors are not, in the sense of abject religious pilgrims. The one man at the moment is the riveting personal power and the strong-willed integrity of Karajan, a kind of maestro and the Berlin Philharmonic, known as general music director. And so, for the new century, Deutsches Grammophon has issued various encomiums.

A few weeks ago Karajan turned 80, a milestone that has attained the predictable flow of tributes and announcements. But it has brought forth an avalanche of recordings, many on CD, of which Karajan has released (including admirers) periodically throughout his career from Mozart to Rossini over four decades. In his musical repertoire, there are 34 new Karajan titles.

THEME AND VARIATION

The repertoire covered is in one of the magnificent symphonic pillars: Beethoven, Schubert, Haydn, Stravinsky. Karajan's interpretations often reflect either a new advance in technology, or in his compositional interpretation. Kentucky guard Rex Hale, who is eligible for the NBA's draft next month, is one of the players who are on the chopping block for the coming season. Hale led the team in scoring and rebounding in both of his seasons at Kentucky, but his future is uncertain. He could enter the draft, but that decision would not be based on the NCAA's investigation of Kentucky's basketball program.

Illinois extends Henson's contract

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. — The University of Illinois has extended the contract of basketball Coach Lou Henson and signed the veteran assistant coach P.J. Fogg.

Fogg, who has been with the Big Ten school, contract, extended April 30 by the administration before Thursday's final practice of the season, is the last holdover of the Fighting Illini, through the 1982-83 season. The two-year contract covers the 1983-84 season and includes a salary of $11,800.

Hawkeyes swing into conference meet

The Daily Iowan

The Iowa men's golf team will find out where it ranks in the Big Ten when it tees off Thursday at the Illinois Orange Course in Champaign.

The Hawkeyes, along with eight other conference teams, will be chasing the Ohio State Buckeyes, who have claimed the last two Big Ten titles.

Men's Golf

The Hawkeyes are off to a ninth-place finish at the 13-team Northern Intercollegiate Tournament last weekend and Iowa Coach Chuck Faber hopes the trend will continue.

"The things coach has done here are incredible," said Tom Deitch, brother of former Indiana player and current assistant Don Deitch.

Fabre has turned Iowa into a team that has made it to the NCAA championships in 1985, 1986 and 1987. He is the only coach to win an NCAA title and Olympic and Pan American gold medals.
