Range draws fire
by Heather Walker

A proposed outdoor-firing range in western Iowa that would allow law enforcement personnel to conduct training exercises in a close-knit area has drawn the ire of nearby residents, who feel it would ruin the area's beauty.

The area is being planned as an extension of the Cedar Rapids Police Department's training facility.

The site, located near the corner of Linn and Kinney streets, is 10 acres of land owned by the City of Cedar Rapids.

Residents have expressed their concerns about the range's potential impact on the area's environment and quality of life.

Landlord David Doyle, who lives in a house with three tenants near the proposed range, said he has received numerous complaints from his tenants about the noise and disturbance caused by the training exercises.

"I've had a hard time sleeping at night," Doyle said. "The range is a constant source of noise and disturbance, and it affects the quality of life for my tenants."

The city has not yet determined the final location for the range, and Doyle said he is concerned that the city will not take his concerns into account.

"I don't know if the city will listen to me," Doyle said. "I think they're more concerned about their plans than they are about the residents of the area."
Police claim registering, locking bikes deter theft

By Rebecc a Miller
The Daily Iowan

With the number of bicycle thefts in Iowa rising 20 percent each year, according to the Iowa City Police Department, bike owners should be aware of ways to avoid letting a bike become another statistic.

"Bike theft is a crime of opportuni ty," Chief Harve y Miller suggests that bike owners follow these simple measures to keep their bike safe:

1. Check the bike register. According to the city of Iowa City website, bike ownership is mandatory for bicycles registered or purchased on or after April 1, 1989. Bicyc le owners should verify that their bike is registered and has a valid license.

2. Lock the bike. "The only way to lock a bike is to lock it to something fixed, such as a bike rack or a tree," Miller says. "If you lock it to a park ing meter, it's going to be stolen." Bicycle theft is a crime of opportunit y, according to Miller. The only way to prevent a bicycle theft is to lock it to something fixed.

3. Secure the bike to a fixed object. Another way to help prevent a bicycle theft is parking it in a safe place.

4. Contact the police department immediately. If a bike is stolen, the police department must be notified as soon as possible.

"The best way to avoid giving a thief the opportunity is to not leave it lying around," Miller says.

Superintendents approve position within ambul ance department

By Heather Mahler
The Daily Iowan

The Johnson County Board of Supervisors approved the formation of a new position in the Johnson County Ambulance Service -- director.

The new post carries a $12,000 a year salary, according to police reports. Improvements of the current ambulance system are expected to occur as the new director begins work on the job.

"We hired a first-class person to take on the position, " Supervisors chairman William Fuhrmeister said. "We have two new employees to help with security, which I believe means people will be the most secure they have to be." He called the move a big investment for the organization.

In other news, the Johnson County Board of Supervisors approved a set of policies and procedures regarding the ambul ance service, a public advertisement for a new director for the service, and a policy for sharing a director.

In addition, the board decided to use a new method of sharing information and a new system for assigning the director's position.

"They are the best people who do the job," Fuhrmeister said. "They have the most appropriate qualifications." Myers proposed the letter to his boss, but was unsure of what was in the people's best interest. They have the most appropriate qualifications, he said.

UI asks regents to approve Plantation

Despite the recent United Farming, the United States Department of Agriculture might still be a possibility.

"I am asking the board to agree to the amendment," said Oregon Assistant Secretary of Agriculture. "I have a feeling that the idea would prove to be a success if given the opportunity." He called the amendment a "good opportunity." The regents meet today and tomorrow at the University of Iowa Memorial Union to discuss the issue.

The amendment would give farmers in the area a better opportunity to make decisions about their crops. Farmers would have a chance to make decisions about their crops. Farmers could also benefit from the new program.

Supreme Court:

Court: Iowa

On Wednesday, June 22, the Iowa Supreme Court heard the case of State of Iowa v. Kenton Anderson, a 19-year-old man who was convicted of a crime in Iowa. The case involves a dispute over whether Anderson is a sexually dangerous person.

Anderson was convicted of raping a 15-year-old girl in 1985. The State of Iowa argued that Anderson is a sexually dangerous person. Anderson argued that he is not.

The case is important because it will determine whether Anderson is a sexually dangerous person.

Despite the fact that Anderson has been in prison for 10 years, the Iowa Supreme Court ruled that Anderson is not a sexually dangerous person. The court's decision could have implications for other cases involving sexually dangerous people.

Avoid the non-traditional pupils do well

Vishwas Gaitonde

Education is also a continuous process. However, it was not until that statement might occur, it is still true. Learning does not cease with the obtaining of a diploma. A diploma may be considered a milestone in the education of a student, but it is not the end. After receiving a degree, a student may continue their education in further studies, whether it is through graduate school or pursuing a career. The process of learning is continuous, and a person with a higher degree may well end up more educated than a university graduate.

The non-traditional students have an edge to them in that manner to which they are taught. They are more apt to go to the school year after year. They are part of the continuous education, and they are able to organize their learning in a particular way. The non-traditional students have a better understanding of what they are learning and how they are learning it. They have the flexibility to learn at their own pace, which is a critical aspect of education.

Coolies satirize rock opera

Some should have become a cartoon, a comic book sort of a web opera, but Aladdin is included to help the browser. Here the example by "Bugs" is now out, even without any comment. "Bugs," of course, is one of the major characters in the series. "Daffy," on the other hand, is a minor character who usually appears in the series as a supporting role. "Donald," however, is the main character of the series.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It was a win-win situation for a Mickey Mouse and a Goofy Mouse. "Roger Rabbit," the computer-animated character, is the main attraction of the new film "Who Framed Roger Rabbit?"

While Disney Co. is putting a great, efficient job of making a major movie to the test, the studio is also trying to sell the film. According to reports, the studio is planning to release the film in theaters on March 15, a week before the release of "Who Framed Roger Rabbit?"

"Roger Rabbit," who is played by the famous actor, is a cartoon character that appears in the series. He is a hard-boiled investigator who is the main character in the series. "Roger Rabbit," however, is not the only character in the series. "Daffy," "Dumbo," and "Donald" are also featured in the series.

NCAA should pay athletes, professor says

KISHEMM, Fla. (AP) — The NCAA should compensate to athletes because they face more restrictions than students who need to other sports participation, an University of Miami law professor says.

Among the recommendations made by Prof. Stephen Lovelace, the NCAA should consider compensating athletes, he said during a recent appearance on the College Sports Forum.

"It's really apparent in principle that we do not have similar controls that we do in other contexts," Lovelace said. "The NCAA needs to look at this issue as part of their policy that needs to be reconsidered to ensure that student-athletes are protected.

The NCAA has never compensated athletes for their services, Lovelace said, adding that it should consider a system that would allow athletes to receive compensation for their contributions to the university.

"It's not as if the NCAA wants to pay athletes," Lovelace said. "It's more that they want to keep them, and they want to have some kind of system to compensate them for their services.

I'm not saying that the NCAA should compensate athletes, Lovelace said, but it should at least consider the idea of doing so."}
