Family housing provides students low-cost loan opportunity

By Lisa Swingle
Special to the Daily Iowan

For many students, living with their roommates and single-room students and either paying a low-cost option or free rent, the Iowa City family housing that has been restructured provides a unique living opportunity. The change in family housing is designed to improve the general environment and quality of life for students in family housing.

The federal government mandated that local housing agencies, such as the University of Iowa (UI), offer low-cost loans to low-income families. The Iowa City Housing Authority (ICHA) is working to meet this requirement by restructuring family housing, which includes changes in the number of students who reside in family housing buildings.

A teacher at the First Unitarian Church and president of the Iowa City Housing Authority, said the federal government requires that family housing buildings be made available to low-income families. The restructuring of the family housing buildings has resulted in a number of changes, including alterations to the number of family housing buildings and the availability of on-campus student housing.

This year, there are nine in all on the UI campus, starting Aug. 30. Iowa City housing may include a variety of individuals, including those from the UI, and will vary by location.

The majority of these buildings are located within the city limits of the UI, and will be closed around the downtown area near the UI campus.

The new family housing buildings will be open by September 1, 2023.

The release says that the new buildings will be open on the UI campus, and will be located on the west side of the UI campus.

Free Medical Clinic

A clinic is scheduled for the day Monday at the Professional Development Center. The clinic will be open from 8 a.m. to 11 a.m.

The clinic will be free of charge and open to all UI students.

Soviet-American relations

The trip, which included stops in Moscow, Leningrad, and other major cities, was aimed at promoting cultural exchange and understanding between the two nations.

The trip also included visits to educational and cultural institutions, as well as meetings with political and business leaders in both countries.

The trip was initially planned as a goodwill gesture to improve relations between the two nations, but it was later expanded to include discussions on a wide range of issues, including economic and political cooperation.

The trip was supported by a number of American and Soviet organizations, including the American Chamber of Commerce in the Soviet Union, the Russian-American Chamber of Commerce, and the Institute for Russian-American Cooperation.

The trip was generally well received, with many participants expressing the hope that it would help to break down barriers between the two nations and promote a more positive understanding of each other.

Iraqis claim gulf war in final phase

ATHENS, Greece - A series of morale-boosting measures has given Iraq the edge in its war with Iran and convinced Iraq's leaders the war will end soon.

"The situation has improved a lot for Iraqis alike," said Brig. Gen. Yousef al-Mouh, an Iraqi military spokesman, who added that recent fighting had been "favorable to Iraq.

"We think we are in the last phase of the war, a phase where the situation will improve," he said.

Mouh, a veteran who visited several war-torn areas, noted that the war was moving into a "phase of reconstruction and development.

The Western military victory is the Iraq capital.

The statement said, "The war is not yet over, but we are close to the end of it. For a few or six years, it has been the worse of two worlds. We are now in a new phase of reconstruction and economic development." The statement added that Iraq had a great impact on the world.

Hurtling their cause

To: The Daily Iowan

The treatment of Tammy L. was to try to make the world believe that she is trying to make their legal problem as bad as possible. That Tammy L. is trying to make a point is evident in her actions. Too many people seem to be drastically influenced by the media and are following the example of Tammy L.'s actions. Too many people are looking to their own interests and are not concerned about the actions of Tammy L. Tammy L. is a self-promoting, delusional, and maybe delusional. The public should realize that Tammy L. is trying to make a point and that she is confusing the emotions of the public.

Re: Role of the Supreme Court

It's a sad day when the most respected court in the land, the Supreme Court, could not reach a decision on a matter that concerns the lives of so many people. The question of whether to keep the child she originally bequeathed to her is a moral issue that the court should have addressed. The court's failure to provide a decision is a failure to the public and to the people who are affected by this decision.

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Supreme Court handed down a series of decisions Wednesday that are a bitter judgment on the Reagan administration and some of its key figures.

The court, in a setback to the government, arguments that these officials are not entitled to a return of $25,000 paid to them in a tax case.

In its most important capital punishment case, the justices by a 5-4 vote expanded the way killers can use statistical arguments to argue why they should not be executed. The court, however, in a setback to the prosecution of key former Reagan aides Michael Deaver and Lyn Nofziger and two others, said the standards for use of the statistical arguments were too high.

The court also ruled in a 7-1 decision that a group known as the Christian Coalition is protected by the Constitution in its efforts to counsel adolescents against premarital sex.

The court said that the mixed messages given to society by a system that eschews reality for laughs is not a defense against a return of $25,000 paid to some members of the administration.

Inconsistency, pop, insight characterize three albums

By Brian Jones

Soul Asylum — Hang "Big"

Great songs, puffy album art, a generally wonderful sound, an impressive guitar solo in "Wicked Games," I just wasn't impressed by this album. Soul Asylum worked quite hard, but it left me cold. I don't think I want to hear it again. Soul Asylum, the first album, is much better. It's much more consistent, much more listenable, and there's a line of thought that runs throughout the whole album. Hang "Big" is just a bunch of songs, and I'm not sure what's going on with them.

Weibring will attempt to defend Western Open title

OAK BROOK, III. (AP) — B.J. Weibring knew that defending champions rarely win on the PGA Tour.

"I understand the odds against someone repeating," Weibring said before a final contemporary PGA Tour news conference. He'll be facing $900,000 Western Open that begins Thursday.

"But I think about being here. I feel good about my golf game. I hope to be able to play well, to compete well, to get back to the Tour again, get back to the position I was in last year," Weibring said.

He has been in contention in the year: Weibring said, "But that's the kind of golf you have to play here," said of the Father National Golf Club. "It has undergone extensive renovations, eliminating some severe hazards during the tournament last year.

"But don't let you just go out and see how you feel here. It doesn't get involved in playing this golf course."

"We have two tournaments. It is important to see how my game of the golf course."

"He is a field of 138 who are chasing a big dollar purse."

Chief among them are three-time Western Open winners Bern Weir and Larry Nelson. Nelson, who has won in the final round of the U.S. Open at Oakmont and the PGA Championship at three-time Western Open winner Ben Crenshaw. Nelson, who has won in the final round of the U.S. Open at Oakmont and the PGA Championship at three-time Western Open winner Ben Crenshaw.

Australian Greg Norman, who had planned to play, is among the missing. He still is missing a proposed visit to the U.S. Open at Oakmont.

Both major contenders included former champion Andy North and South Carolina, Ben Crenshaw, Male Iowa, South African David Frost and South Korea.

Lee Trevino is making only his third appearance ever event since being beaten back during the 1975 Open. 15 of the final two days are expected to take place in the final round of the U.S. Open at Oakmont.

Navratilova fights back up score set

Wimbledon, England (AP) - Martina Navratilova kept her bid for a seventh straight Wimbledon singles title alive with a 7-6 (7-3), 6-3 upset victory over Pam Shriver in the fourth round Tuesday. The second-seeded Shriver had eliminated Navratilova in the first round each of the last two years.

Shriver was 6-0, 4-2 ahead when Navratilova won six consecutive games to take the set. Shriver was up 4-0 in the second set and had won the first five games when Navratilova battled back for the second straight year in a semifinal match.

"It was hard to do anything in my empty head today," said Shriver, who was making her 10th appearance in a straight-set encounter in this year's event. She has won all three matches against Navratilova in their previous three meetings.

"I think I just missed serving a few good ones and trying to be brave today," said Navratilova, who falls to 1-3 against Shriver in her career. "I just played from behind to catch up, and then when she pulled away, I just had a gut feeling that I can do something.

"And I think when I serve and see the great shot, it gives me a lift to keep going.'"

Navratilova, who was seeded 14th, will meet top-seeded Martina Hingis of Switzerland in the quarterfinals. Hingis defeated third-seeded Conchita Martinez 6-7 (4-7), 6-1, 6-2 Tuesday.
