Reagan responds to shooting

By Cary Jackson

A sign steak on the brick front of All-Ali's, the Middle East's oldest restaurant in midtown on 15th Street, Mrs. White's Equine Estate, 209 days of training equals "satisfaction." Another asks, "Was it really an accident?"

The aura mirrors the intensity most amorous and frictional. As the U.S. shrank of an Iranian pas-scene on Sandusky.

It's not acceptable with this smartphone technology that they didn't get there, he added.

I'm sorry with the policy of American forces being in the Persian Gulf," Jackson said, speaking in the Oval Office.

Edwin Meese

Meese to resign from post

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)—Attorney General Edwin Meese said today he will resign in July after a month of press speculation that he was in danger of losing his job.

The 56-year-old lawyer said he will leave the post at the end of the month after a month of press speculation that he was in danger of losing his job.

"I have had a great deal of press speculation that I was in danger of losing my job," Meese said. "I have decided to step aside and let someone else take over."

The resignation is expected to come after a month of speculation that Meese, a staunch conservative, could be in danger of losing his job.

Meese, a former Republican National Committee chairman, is a close ally of President Ronald Reagan.

Meese said that he had decided to resign because he had lost confidence in the administration of the Reagan administration.

Meese served as attorney general since 1987, when he was appointed by President Reagan.

He was expected to resign at the end of the month after a month of speculation that he was in danger of losing his job.

"It's been a difficult decision," Meese said. "But I believe it is in the best interests of the country."

UI will add 1,830 parking spaces, plans other construction projects

By Larry Level

The building of parking facilities is one of the issues that are to be completed at the University of Iowa by the end of the year. A total of 1,830 parking spaces will be added to the campus, with several of the projects expected to be completed this year.

Although the amount of parking space will increase, there will also be an overall construction of new parking arrangements. The construction work will be completed in phases.

"This is a lot of parking facilities, which is very gratifying," said Wallace Shawn, director of parking and transportation. "The new parking arrangements will be completed in phases."

The push to remake the nation's public schools took a step forward Monday when the National Education Association (NEA) endorsed several far-reaching union reform proposals that would be put to the test in a national referendum that the union's lawyers promised would be held within six months.

The NEA proposal is the most ambitious effort to date to introduce comprehensive reorganization of America's schools, which have traditionally been run by local school boards in a way that is jealously guarded by the teachers unions.

The NEA advance has been long in coming. The union's leadership has been trying to reassert itself since the 1960s, when it was embroiled in a series of strikes that forced many school systems to seek court injunctions to keep them from striking.

But the NEA has been slow to develop a clear strategy for remaking the schools, and its proposals have been met with little enthusiasm by many school officials and educators.

The NEA proposal calls for a radical overhaul of the schools, including the elimination of testing and the introduction of a new curriculum that would emphasize critical thinking and creativity.

The proposal also calls for the creation of a national curriculum that would be implemented by a national board of education, and the replacement of local school boards with a national governing body.

The NEA has also proposed the creation of a national teachers union that would be independent of the local unions and would have the power to set policy for all teachers.

The NEA has been criticized for its lack of a clear strategy and for its inability to gain the support of the local school boards.

But the NEA's proposal is being seen as a bold step in the direction of reforming the schools, and it has been met with a degree of enthusiasm by some educators and school officials.

The NEA's proposals are being closely watched by other educators and school officials, who are hoping for a clear strategy for reforming the schools.

Ul summer program teaches readers to gain confidence

By Lydia Black

In The Daily Iowan:

For the 21st children with reading, language or learning disabilities, the Johnson County Special Education Program is an opportunity to gain confidence in their abilities. The program, which was founded 42 years ago by Lydia Black, offers special education services to children who are being served by their regular program or are enrolled at special education schools.

Said the principal to the children, "If you have ever considered yourself a reader and write with the right hand. Do you gain confidence in your ability?"n

Children studying in special education schools in Turkey, reported by a staff of trained children who are completely confident that they can do it.

Winwood makes ’happy’ LP

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — (AP) — Nearly 36 years after he hit his British pop music scene as a rock sensation, Warren "Winwood" Sloane saw his career reach its peak on the pop music charts with the help of Nashville’s top songwriting team.

The Grammy award-winning singer-songwriter is perhaps one of the few musicians who can claim a hit single on the same record label as his former bandmates in the group 5th Dimension.

"It's a real high point in my career," said Winwood, who was part of the 5th Dimension’s hit parade in the mid-1960s.

The hit song "Happy," co-written by Winwood and fellow 5th Dimension member Bill Mumy, has sold more than 2 million copies worldwide, according to the Record Industry Association of America.

Winwood decided to record the single for his new LP, "The Happy One," which was released in February.

"It’s a lot of fun to work with the songwriting team," he said.

Winwood’s first successful hit single was "Good Times Roll," which was released in 1969.

He said the new album "is a lot of fun to work with the songwriting team." He added that he’s been defacing library books for the past few years.

NL umpire Wiley dies of heart attack

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Mets National League umpire Bob Wiley, who ended two of baseball's most historic games, died at his home Wednesday. He was 86.

Wiley had worked his 45th major league season when he died of a heart attack at his home in Troy, N.Y., Tuesday, the league said.

He was the second umpire in the Chicago Cubs-Philadelphia Phillies playoff game in 1977, when the National League wild card advanced to the NL Championship Series.

Foster: I will make Olympics despite injury

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Two-time world champion high jumper Foster gave an emotional speech Tuesday evening to the nation's U.S. Olympic Committee. The 36-year-old Foster hopes to compete in the Summer Games in Athens.

"I will be there," Foster, who had been injured, told the audience. "I will be in Athens."

Foster, who gave the two-minute speech to the nation's U.S. Olympic Committee, made it clear he will be in Athens if the United States Olympic Committee allows him to go.

"I will be there. I will be in Athens," he said. "That's the only thing that's going to keep me going, that's the only thing that's going to keep my heart going, that's the only thing that's going to keep my soul going."

Foster, who has been injured since the 2001 World Championships, has been given a medical exemption to compete in the Games but must pass a drug test to compete.

Forbes magazine CEO, Kumm: We can't win in the long run unless we buy the sports teams

NEW YORK (AP) — Forbes magazine chief executive officer Dr. Malcolm D. Kumm said Tuesday that Forbes magazine views the sports teams as "an investment that will pay off down the road."

Kumm said that looking at the sports industry from a long-term perspective, "we feel that we can't win in the long run unless we buy the sports teams."

"It's going to be difficult to continue to compete," Kumm said. "That's the bottom line."

Edberg, Graf look to prove youth trend is here to stay

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — They have long faced each other's presence. Simple title and nearly identical first names, Bow, Bjorn and Stefan, Edberg and Graf were something else in common — their first Wimbledon victories.

Graf, however, can set herself apart in September.

Eight years ago, during the time when Wimbledon was Grand Slam number one, had an off year for Edberg and Graf won the tournament!

Edberg went home following the victory, but Gräf won the title in 1908 and 1909 and is the first woman in history to win the tournament three times.

The three-time champion said she was not widely recognized on the streets. He believes Graf will have the kind of publicity she craved after winning the tournament in 1969 and 1970 at Wimbledon.

"I didn't take too much time to worry about it," Graf said. "I'm happy for her."

Olympic dream ends for Armstrong

COLOMBIA SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) - Dave Armstrong, the man who won the U.S. Olympic men's road race for the last three months, finished 10th and out of the medals at the world championships here Tuesday.

Armstrong, 29, of Portland, Ore., had been leading the race out of the Olympic village Tuesday. But the American took the wrong turn in a roundabout at the finish line and finished a few seconds behind a group of riders from France, Italy and Spain.

The race was Armstrong's first international victory since winning the national championships in 1986. The man who won six national titles in a row and was a favorite to win the world championships here Tuesday, finished an estimated 50-60 seconds behind the winner, Frenchman Robert Milliard.

Armstrong, who has finished second in the last two world championships, was considered a strong favorite to win this year's competition. He finished second in the 1986 world championships and third in 1987. He also finished third in the Tour de France this year.

Armstrong has been training for the Olympics since July and had been living in Colorado Springs since May.

His disappointment at finishing 10th could not be avoided. The American was wearing a blue cap, and he had a white stripe on his yellow jersey.

The American lost the race to the Frenchman because of a tactical error. Milliard, who was leading the race for most of the day, was able to seal the victory by sprinting to the finish line.

Armstrong, who had led the race for most of the day, was unable to keep up with Milliard's speed. The American finished second in the Tour de France this year.

The American's disappointment was not limited to the competition. The American had been training for the Olympics since July and had been living in Colorado Springs since May.
